Don’t Ask Don’t Tell

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/57064645.

| | |
|---|---|
| Rating: | Explicit |
| Archive Warning: | No Archive Warnings Apply |
| Category: | F/F |
| Fandom: | She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018) |
| Relationships: | Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Adora & Catra (She-Ra) |
| Characters: | Catra (She-Ra), Adora (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra), Bow (She-Ra), Entrapta (She-Ra) |
| Additional Tags: | Alternate Universe - Canon Divergence, Wet Dream, Mutual Pining, Mutual Masturbation, Voyeurism, Resolved Sexual Tension, Emotional Hurt/Comfort, Nightmares, Scent Marking, First Kiss, First Time, Awkward Sexual Situations, POV Catra (She-Ra), Love Confessions, Adora is in Love with Catra (She-Ra), Catra is in Love with Adora (She-Ra), Fluff and Smut, Light Angst, Denial, Trans Adora (She-Ra), Loss of Virginity |
| Language: | English |
| Series: | Part 18 of Catradora Smutshots |
| Stats: | Published: 2024-07-02 Words: 7,703 Chapters: 1/1 |

Don’t Ask Don’t Tell

by vagician

Summary

A few nights after being rescued from Prime’s ship, Catra startles awake from a wet dream. Knowing Adora is sleeping in the bed next to her own, she decides to handle business as discreetly as possible. What she doesn’t expect however, is Adora being compelled to join in on the self indulgence.

(Takes place on Darla right before going to Krytis.)

Notes

Have a plate of the fic that’s been rotting in my head for far too long now.

“You came back for me..” Catra’s voice is barely above a whisper, broadened and unblinking eyes laced with disbelief at the one person she never anticipated to see standing before her again in such a setting.

“Of course I did, Catra. Stupid sword and prophecy be damned, nothing is going to keep us apart. I may hate the Horde, but I’m not here for the Horde. I’m here for you.” Adora leaves the doorway of their barracks so she can close the distance between them, not hesitating to take Catra’s face in both of her hands, propping their foreheads together.

Despite their tendencies for platonic affection whenever they had a moment to themselves and wouldn’t get reprimanded by their superiors for insubordination, something about the gesture and the way Adora’s cradling her face has an undeniable difference in intimacy than what they were even used to.

“A-Adora..” she blurts out in a flustered stammer, blinking back the rising tears wanting to surface as the close proximity between them only has her heart rate skyrocketing to an unreasonable degree. Still, she doesn’t pull away from it. Nor does Adora.

“I’m here, Catra. I’m never leaving again. It took the hell of being away from you for an idiot like me to realize the feelings that had been there all along. I need you. More than anyone I’ve ever needed before. I love you, Catra.” Adora’s confession pours out of her like a faulty faucet incapable of turning off, and it takes a moment for the true gravity of those words to resonate for Catra.

Once the initial bewilderment wears off and the admission finally clicks into place, Catra is surging forward with pure desperation to close the offending distance between their lips, kissing her like a woman possessed. The feeling of catharsis she experiences when they connect is indescribable and the intensity of it threatens to have Catra’s knees from giving out altogether.

“I love you too, Adora. I always have. I just didn’t know if you felt the same..” Catra returns when the need for air in her lungs becomes vital, letting out a sharp hitch of breath when she can feel the tent in Adora’s pants pressing up against her navel.

Adora blushes when her erection immediately catches Catra's attention, mumbling a quiet apology to her before she's trying to step back and establish some space between their lower halves but Catra quickly snatches her wrist to keep her right where she is.

"Let me take care of you.. Please.. I've thought about this for so long.." Catra would never admit that she's begging, but that's exactly what she's being reduced to now as she guides the two of them as a pair back to their shared bunk, the world outside these barracks seemingly nonexistent.

"C-Catra.." The way Adora utters her name comes out deliciously broken, watching with eyes as wide as they are reverent as Catra zips down the back of her body suit, the feline's gaze not once leaving hers as she fully lays herself bare to her bunk mate. The sight of it has the member still imprisoned in Adora's trousers growing ever harder, putting the true extent of her need on display.

"Don't hide from me, Adora.. I want to see you.." Catra is already making quick work of Adora's belt with uncoordinated urgency while an all too eager Adora is shrugging off her half jacket to peel off the compression top beneath it, swiftly adding it to the abandoned pile of clothes on the floor.

Catra fishes inside of Adora's briefs to finally claim the prize she's been searching for, taking her length in her hand to give it a slow and purposeful pump. A soft moan escaping her lips and no longer able to put up with the torture of not being inside her, Adora pushes Catra down onto the bed, stepping out of her pants and briefs entirely before she's hovering over the magicat to slot herself between her legs.

Feeling the weight and girth of Adora's length lay flat against her core has Catra's arms scrambling around the blonde's broad shoulders for something to ground herself with, using the hold to yank her down for another heated trade of lips.

The delicious scrape of the stiffened peaks from their chests being pressed flush together has Catra burying a whimper that Adora hungrily swallows down, her parted lips greedily claiming the sound. Matching her kiss with an equal amount of fervor, Adora finally lines herself up with Catra's sodden entrance, pressing the tip of her cock just barely in and-

***

Catra's eyes rip open as she jerks upright into a sitting position, their old shared barracks instantly melting away from focus as her gaze readjusts to her true surroundings to reveal the modestly sized room somewhere on Darla, the gentle and ever-persistent hum of the ship's engine filling in the silence. She's covered in a cold sheen of sweat, every intake of breath just as erratic and aimless as the quickened pulse accompanying it.

Adora lays in the cot to the left of her on the opposite wall to the room, slumbering peacefully and blissfully unaware of the magicat's inner turmoil as she parts ways with the occasional light snore. As her sleep-addled fantasy finally begins to ebb away and her mind adjusts to being back in her unfortunate reality, Catra lowers herself back down onto her pillow, staring blankly at the ship grating making up the ceiling to their room.

Right.

They weren't back at the horde anymore, and that prior moment in time was just another surfacing part of the past. Nothing more than yet another of the unachievable dreams Catra's subconscious has cruelly crafted for herself in the midst of her slumber.

Now that she thinks about it, it's probably the first dream she's been capable of having in a while that wasn't related to one of the many nightmares she's been plagued with after having Entrapta rid her of her chip.

Dreams of this variety with she and Adora as the center point were rare even when she was still commanding the horde, when the stress of micromanaging an entire army made the prospect of a good night's rest just as unobtainable as the dreams that would accompany them.

What hurts the worst is that this dream in particular had felt too vivid and too real, usually never getting that far into her Adora-induced fantasies before the sheer intensity to them inevitably jostled her awake. How she managed to even stay dreaming for that long at all was a cruel and unanswered mystery to her.

Catra heaves out a shaky breath, her body still wound up and tensed like a live wire as she tries to gather the scattered mental marbles that were her thoughts. Though her efforts to collect herself seem to be in vain. She doesn't even need to slide a hand down to her sleep shorts to know the dream she'd been basking in moments earlier had left her a wet and aching mess down there.

Normally this was usually the part where she'd shove aside her self loathing long enough to quickly get herself off so she could have a chance at falling back asleep, but with Adora currently being only a few feet away from her on the opposite bed, it made achieving that endeavor a monumental risk.

It doesn't help her case by a long shot that with Adora's presence nearby, the room is overloaded with the temptation of her scent, making the chances of Catra defeating this mental war with her desires all the more harder.

There was no way in hell she was getting any chance of sleep with how worked up she was now, which really was a damn shame since all she wanted to do was hightail it back to the land of the snoozing so that dream she'd been enjoying could continue.

Catra shoots a subtle glance over at the other slumbering form, trying to weigh out her options. Adora was facing away from her at least, which would make the sinful act of what she was potentially about to attempt a little less risky. Add on the light snores on top of that and there was a good chance Adora would be none the wiser to any of it.

Or that's what she tries to rationalize as her hand becomes the first thing to betray herself, snaking down her furred midriff with a mind of its own. It only stops when the tips of her claws bump against the waistband to her sleep shorts.

Fuck, was she really about to go through with this? She puts partial blame on the fact it's been so long since she's been able to indulge in herself. Her hand ends up answering for her in the end, sheathing her claws as she finally lets her digits unhurriedly skim beneath the elastic of her waistband.

She can feel the palpable heat emanating off of her core before her hand can even arrive at its destination, hissing in sharply when it inevitably makes contact. She spares herself with just the barest of touches, but even that brief and featherlight graze has a boiling coil of heat unfurling in her belly.

Catra's insides clench around empty air as she uses her middle and index finger to single out the hood of her clit, the abundance of slick coated over it making it difficult to establish a circular rhythm against the stiffened bud without it constantly slipping between the gaps of her fingers.

She's physically panting now, breathing with the exertion of a high altitude climber struggling to make the most of the thin atmosphere. Her ears strive to keep a look out for any potential activity surfacing on Adora's side of the room, but it was unbearably difficult to do so when the totality of the attention wanted to dedicate itself to finishing up as quickly and stealthily as possible.

It results with her rubbing her clit a little too rapidly, the amount of slick her fingers are wading through having the motions of them making an audible sound that could immediately give away the depravity of what she was doing if Adora wasn't sleeping after all.

Catra begrudgingly slows down so the wet sounds can't be picked up on as easily, straining to hear if Adora was still snoring or not but she can't hear anything beyond the sound of her heart in her ears and her own ragged breathing now.

She's oh so painfully close to release now, knowing she's right on the precipice but a questionable noise she manages to catch coming from the other bed has her movements coming to a screeching halt. At first she simply thinks she's imagining it, a breathed moan so faint that only her ears had been able to pick up on its presence at all.

Fear has her forced to hold in a breath that she couldn't risk releasing, but when the need to breathe again becomes unavoidable, clarity strikes out of nowhere on her next inhale.

Wafting thick in the air was the ever pungent and all too recognizable scent of arousal, only it wasn't her own. Her mind is reeling over the revelation alone, the barely-there moans and shifting movement from Adora's bed suspiciously stopping once Catra stopped indulging on her end.

Adora was touching herself. Or had been, anyway. There was no mistake in her mind to that fact. But hadn't she been sleeping only mere moments ago? Catra swears up and down she didn't smell any arousal coming from Adora when she started all this, but the scent was undeniably in the air now.

It had a plethora of questions running through Catra's mind on a continuous loop. Did Adora wake up to witnessing Catra's shameful bout of indulgence and it had worked her up enough to do the same or had this merely been Adora waking up from a wet dream of her own and coincidentally needing to take care of her own business while being none the wiser to Catra simultaneously partaking in similar activities?

No, Adora had to have known she was doing it first, otherwise she wouldn't have bothered to stop when she stopped herself. Catra could have sworn she was being discreet as possible about it but maybe the noises she was making at her clit were coming off louder than she initially realized.

Just the thought of there being even a minuscule chance that Adora had been turned on by hearing the sounds of her pleasure was enough for Catra to release a shuddered breath, her stilled fingers briefly twitching against the clit they're frozen against.

She's overwhelmed with the sudden need to test out this theory of hers. Emboldened, her knees bend until the bottoms of her heels are laying flat on the bed, splaying her legs open for better leverage. Catra still had the thin fabric of her blanket draped over her bottom half as a modest barrier but should Adora at any moment feel inclined to look over at her bed, she would definitely be able to see that Catra's knees were folded and no longer resting flat like the legs of someone who's sleeping should be.

The previously motionless hand still inside her briefs gradually begins to pick back up right where it left off, this time not trying to mask the sounds of her wetness. The noises emitted from her movements deliberately get louder and become just barely below a squelch as she tries to see if it'll provoke a reaction out of Adora.

Doing something so shameless was as hot as it was nerve wracking, somehow going from praying she wouldn't hear her to needing Adora to hear her. If Catra had no hope of having her former best friend and unrequited love of her life in the waking world, then she would happily take what little of her she could get regardless of how inappropriate her methods may be.

Much to her surprise, the risky tactic ends up yielding results fairly quickly. Catra's magicat hearing lets her know that Adora had absolutely risen to the bait. Catra's still too chicken-shit to fully turn her head to visually inspect the specifics of what Adora was up to, but the register of a moving hand in her peripheral and the sound of a closed fist gliding against glistened skin tells her all she needs to know.

Never being one for making wise and healthy decisions that weren't fueled by underlying emotions, Catra grows even more daring, letting a low moan slip out of her that would be audible enough for nearby human ears to pick up on. Adora could just as likely interpret it as Catra making noise in her sleep, but the reaction it elicits suggests Adora knows the true nature of the sound.

It comes out of Adora in the form of the tiniest and barest "Fuck..", slipping out somewhere between a moan and an exhale. The broken way it's whispered threatens to have Catra unraveling right then and there, the only buffer keeping her climax at bay for the moment being the sheer force of will compelling her to have this moment between them stretch out for as long as she could make it.

Relying on the hope that Adora's human eyesight was far inferior to her own, Catra allows her head to discreetly turn on her pillow to get a better view, all higher thought seamlessly decimating on the spot when she witnesses the unmistakable up and down motion of a hand beneath Adora's blanket.

If that realization hadn't been enough to thoroughly wreck Catra from the inside out, the fact that Adora was staring directly at the hand moving beneath Catra's blanket would have surely done the trick. Knowing Adora was watching her was far too much for Catra to hope to stave off her building peak for even a moment longer.

She lets out a low and strangled cry that she knows couldn't possibly be disguised as anything else than what it was, her hips lifting off the mattress as her eyes flutter back to her whites.

The pleasure is all too consuming for her to even keep her eyes on Adora anymore as she climbs the heights of her peak, though she doesn't need to maintain a visual to know Adora had met her own reckoning midway through Catra's undoing.

It's almost too much, robbing her of all five senses seemingly at once as Catra's sense of awareness gets snatched from her entirely, rapidly circling fingers taking what felt like eons to slow down as her body gradually transitions from rigid to boneless, melting into the mattress as her soul takes its time coming back down to its mortal vessel.

By the time she comes to, the room is eerily quiet other than the sound of both of their uneven breathing, all other sources of sounds and activity now at a standstill as the gravity of what just happened apparently begins to set in for them both.

Though even with awareness and clarity from both participants, not a single word is spoken between them, both parties settling with leaving it unaddressed and unacknowledged to spare the other the awkwardness and fear of unknown waters.

Catra's more than fine with this outcome, since living in denial happened to be one of her specializations. If Adora had no intentions of ever bringing it up then neither did she, the don't ask don't tell approach easily the safest route for both of them. It's that simple comfort alone that finally has Catra being taken once more into the clutches of a dreamless sleep, her mind unsure and uncaring of what tomorrow might bring.

***

Predictably, tomorrow commences with both of them settling comfortably in blissful ignorance, so much so that Catra almost wonders if it had even happened at all. It wasn't uncommon phenomena for an individual to wake up from a dream into another dream, but the more intuitive side of Catra is still capable of taking notice that something between them has definitely changed, even if neither were willing to admit it.

She's been able to occasionally catch Adora in the act of sneaking lingering glances over at her far more than her usual, not failing to notice that both of them were now looking at each other in a whole new light.

They still manage to partially shove it off and put on the front that everything around them was continuing on like normal, but the playfulness and lighthearted bickering between them had dulled down substantially.

Though despite playing up the facade as much as they were capable, Catra knew without a doubt she wasn't the only one still thinking about it by picking up on and off that same sickeningly sweet aroma that had been coming off Adora that night.

To make matters even worse, Glimmer could easily tell something was up with them, though Sparkles had at least enough mercy in her to not confront either of them about it directly. The only way Catra knew it was on the queen's mind at all was due to her sensitive ears overhearing her discussing it with Bow whenever she was under the impression they couldn't be heard.

Arrow Boy at least had enough decency to play it off as she and Adora simply learning how to function around each other again now that they were finally both fighting on the same side of the war, reasoning that establishing a new normal between them wasn't something that was just going to take place overnight.

As far as Entrapta went, Catra suspects the inventor either knew what was up and wasn't bothered to invest any of her interest towards it, or was simply clueless to it as a whole due to her tendency to not accurately register social cues.

Catra was just grateful there weren't any lack of distractions to bide their time with. They still had plenty on their to-do list now that Darla had its course set towards Krytis. There were plenty of unknowns to take into consideration when arriving to a planet they hadn't known was even in existence until Wrong Hordak failed at keeping his fretting mouth shut when he was cornered for information and put under pressure.

Krytis was the vital key in getting a step closer to infiltrating Prime's near impenetrable defenses, so securing this potentially promising trump card into their hands had become priority number one. Most of the day consisted of laying out a game plan with Adora occasionally breaking away from the makeshift war table to continue practicing on trying to make her She-Ra transformation a more consistent process.

It unfortunately looked like it was still too soon for She-Ra to be reliably called upon, but at the very least Adora seemed to be making a little leeway here and there. Though everyone but Adora herself seemed to acknowledge the minor strides in progress. As her own worst critic, she took anything below the bar of mastery and perfection as personal failure.

It was a reaction Catra sadly wasn't unused to seeing and it broke her heart a little bit more each time it happened. Even back as horde cadets, Adora wasn't able to escape that constant self-deprecation. The only difference now being rather than her misgivings being berated under the ruthlessly critical eye of Shadow Weaver, they were being met with empathy and support from her friends.

If Weaver had even a fraction of a brain hidden beneath those ominous hair tendrils, she would have realized reassuring Adora whenever she made a mistake would have gone a far longer way towards self improvement than settling with tearing down her resolve.

Praise and the sense of validation that came packaged with it was and always has been Adora's greatest motivator, but Weaver relied on fear and intimidation tactics that were bound to get her nowhere with her. Had it been Weaver overseeing her She-Ra training right now instead of her friends, Catra doubts Adora would have made any progress at all.

That step in the right direction is what now led to them all being on Darla's bridge with a focused Adora seated in the pilot's chair. Bow stands on one side while Glimmer is posted by the other, both parties now in the middle of a rallying pep talk.

"Come on, Adora. You can't let distractions keep you from transforming!" Glimmer cheerily encourages her, the two watching with bated breath as Adora attempts to summon the sword again.

Growing a little restless from boredom and in a somewhat nefarious mood, Catra's momentarily forgotten about the events of the previous night as she falls right back into her signature bratty antics.

"What's going on? Ooh! Are we messing with Adora?" Catra delightedly questions, placing an open palm on the back of the command chair to vault herself sideways right into Adora's lap. To no one's surprise, the partially manifested sword instantly blinks out of existence the second Catra demotes the blonde to furniture.

She'd expected there would be a warranted annoyance to Adora's question and not the choked and strained words that immediately have Catra's forgotten recognition from last night being brought back to the surface of her thoughts. "R-Really, Catra? You have to sit right there?"

Turning insufferably smug over eliciting the reaction with hardly any effort on her end, Catra shapes a deceptively innocent smirk as she allows her tail tip to repeatedly brush up against the edge of the blonde's nose. "What? I'm not bothering anyone."

Adora's face swiftly flushes at her coy demeanor, unaware that one of the hands she'd had on the armrest had at some point migrated beneath Catra's folded knees to keep her from falling out of her lap.

"Wait, this is actually perfect! We all know Catra's one of your biggest distractions! If you can conquer this, then nothing else will threaten to break your focus!" Glimmer insists, that enlightening observation from the queen somehow managing to ascend Adora into a whole new level of flustered.

Seeing that blushing look being directed on her was growing dangerously addicting to Catra, cocking a questioning brow in return. "Aww, thinking about me that much, princess? I'm flattered."

Adora's cheeks are still heated to a rosy tint, though she manages to serve the magicat a somewhat indignant glare. "I swear, not naming you Bratra was a missed opportunity."

Catra's none too pleased when the jibe has Glimmer lifting her hand in front of her mouth to stifle her snickering, the queen graduating to full grown laughter when Catra narrows her eyes to give her an unamused glare of her own.

Bow ends up having to play the role of peacekeeper and mediate between the two of them before the mood of the room could sour, his efforts keeping the positivity leveled until eventually Wrong Hordak's need for assistance in the chow hall has both the archer and queen being whisked away.

Now that it's down to just the two of them, it easily turns the vibe in the air into silent tension. Subdued nerves have Catra looking elsewhere as she awkwardly shifts in the blonde's lap, failing in keeping the conversation flowing just as much as Adora.

She's already halfway through hopping off Adora's lap when she feels an unexpected pressure poking up against her rear that definitely wasn't there earlier. It nearly has her jolting, doing the best of her ability to keep the flustered startle from showing on her face.

It was far too much for Catra to even process, promptly hopping off her lap to spare either of them from being forced to acknowledge what just happened. Her tail now violently lashing against her will, Catra wordlessly exits the bridge, making a swift beeline towards the nearest corner of privacy that could be offered.

***

Catra had honestly expected what went down that night to be a one time thing. Just a once in a lifetime twist of fate she assumed would be swept under the rug and never brought to the light of day again. The last thing she ever anticipated however, was for it to not only happen again, but nearly every night going forward.

It happened so consistently that it had essentially turned into a routine. Sometimes she'd initiate it by waking up and starting first, while other times she'd awake to the unmistakable pungency of arousal in the air and Adora midway through finishing herself off.

Predictably, neither of them made any effort to call each other out on it, but neither of them made any attempts to stop it either. It had grown into some unspoken thing between them that both were all too aware of but pretended to be ignorant about, as if giving it a voice would risk shattering the fantasy altogether.

Though just because it wasn't being addressed directly, didn't mean each of them hadn't grown more and more brazen each night it happened. One night Catra had went as far as changing the display settings to her tracker pad to never shut off from inactivity just so she could utilize the modest amount of light it emitted to better light up the room so Adora's inferior eyesight could get a better view of her doing it. The improvised nightlight hasn't once been shut off since.

Adora eventually matched Catra's boldness by not bothering to do it under the blanket at all and Catra started following suit and doing the same. A couple times Adora's entire body had lit up like a golden beacon when her hormones had grown so unstable it triggered a partial She-Ra transformation. There were even a handful of days where they'd strip themselves down entirely in both their respective beds just for the sake of not wanting to obstruct the others view.

The deliberate voyeurism being shared in the room ended up happening between the two so frequently that the sight of Adora's naked body became as much of an image burned into her brain as Catra's unclothed form had for Adora.

While she couldn't speak for Adora, Catra would often find herself wondering if they'd ever stop torturing themselves and how long it would take for the bungee cord of tension between them to be stretched to its limits and have one of them caving in to the other first.

While the start of this thing had them trying to be subtle about it, now they weren't even trying to mask the breathed moans and telltale signs of their pleasure anymore. With their naturally competitive nature gradually coming into play, it wasn't long before they were making it a contest to see who would surpass who in brazenness and who would be victorious in making the other finish first.

Catra knew she had been in the lead at one point in time but it was becoming too much of a common occurrence between them that she honestly lost count after a while. Fast forwarding to the present, tonight happened to start out differently than the usual routine they were used to.

Before either of them could wake up intentionally to get right back into the swing of things, Catra's bad dream managed to force her awake with violent convulsions and a traumatized cry that's just a decibel or two below a scream.

She's barely able to rouse herself back to the land of the living before Adora's lunging out of bed and right to Catra's side with absolutely no hesitation whatsoever. A slight dip in her mattress is registered next, followed by a comforting hand smoothing down the fur at Catra's arm.

"Wake up, Catra. It was just a nightmare, nothing more. I promise you're safe here." Adora murmurs gentle reassurances down at her with Catra not registering them at first, fighting through one of the chip-induced nightmares as she slowly comes to.

Adora starts off sitting on the edge of her mattress but Catra's soon reaching out to bring her down to the bed to lay her out beside her so she can huddle up to the safe sanctuary she makes out of Adora's chest. Even the fleeting moments of embrace they managed to sneak together as children didn't have the same degree of intimacy to them as this one did.

On the few occasions Catra wasn't curled up by her feet at the edge of her bunk, she'd opt for sharing Adora's pillow with her but they had never done so lying face to face like this. Breathing in Adora's scent helps her to eventually stop trembling, willing control over her own body as she tucks her forehead against Adora's collarbone.

"I-I couldn't wake up.. It.. It felt so real.." her voice comes out even lower than a whisper, the thin fuzz of her facial fur wet with tears.

"I know, but the part that matters was that it wasn't real. He can't get you here, I promise. Prime would have to go through me and I'm not letting that happen, okay?" Adora assures her, keeping Catra huddled against her chest. She acknowledges Adora's statement with a silent nod, her breathing finally beginning to level out.

"C-Can you stay with me? At least long enough for me to fall back asleep?" the magicat weakly requests, hating how small and fragile she sounds right now.

"You don't even have to ask. I'm not going anywhere, I promise. We both can stay right here together, okay?" Adora tells her, nuzzling into the fluff of fur at the base of her ear. Catra finds herself purring with true contentment, too busy basking in being surrounded by Adora to bother being embarrassed by it.

Before she can register her own actions, Catra begins nuzzling in closer to the junction between jaw and neck, marking the area with her cheek so Adora's scent would mingle with her own. She hadn't done anything remotely close to this since they were kids, not failing to notice how it immediately has Adora's arms tensing around her.

It's followed by a slight hitch of breath that causes Catra to still her motions against her neck. The sound of two heartbeats knocking against ribs fills the silence next, but whose is beating louder can't be determined. The energy buzzing between them shifts in a near instant, a painfully familiar heat accumulating just below Catra's navel.

Curious and unable to stop herself, Catra's head shifts just enough so the breath from her parted lips blankets directly against the quickened pulse at Adora's neck. The sudden arousal coming off her hits Catra's senses right out of left field, her tail becoming active as it sways and repeatedly thwaps against the mattress.

From the sudden stop of the rise and fall she previously felt coming from her chest, she knows Adora has now stopped breathing altogether, the fingers anchored at the small of her back twitching ever so slightly. Something tells Catra if she didn't try testing the waters now, the opportunity would slip from her grasp entirely.

Her mouth still partially parted, Catra presses her lips ever so slightly to the square of Adora's jaw, pursing them to give her the barest of kisses. A full bodied shiver is Adora's response, the splayed hand at Catra's tail-base slowly relocating to the jut of the feline's hip.

The change in location provokes a slight gasp out of Catra, letting her lips mouth at the underside of Adora's jaw a little less subtly this time. Adora shifts from not breathing at all to breathing like she's just left a sparring session, fingertips anchoring deeper into the furred skin at Catra's waist.

"We ever going to talk about this? Or are we just going to keep pretending like it hasn't happened every single night since then?" Catra directly breathes the question against her neck, her thrill doubling when the question has a fresh new wave of arousal flaring against her nostrils.

"I.. I was waiting for you to bring it up but you never did.." Adora chokes out in a strained stammer, the length trapped beneath her sleep shorts beginning to rouse to life.

"You never brought it up either.." Catra returns to her, letting her upper thigh part just barely enough to allow Adora's knee entry between them.

"I-I didn't want it to stop.." Adora guiltily reasons, and the simple admission alone has a whole new wave of heat birthing at Catra's apex.

“Maybe I didn’t want it to stop either, Adora.” whispers the feline, letting one of her hands creep down south to splay itself along the flat of Adora’s exposed stomach to map out the tensed architecture of abs she finds there.

“F-Fuck..” Adora breathes back, pulling away just enough so her forehead can prop itself against Catra’s. “It’s all I can think about anymore, Catra. Once I knew for sure you were watching me I was too weak to stop..”

Catra’s gaze drops southward to Adora’s lips, the distance narrow enough to share the same air between them. “Pretty sure it’s grown past the point of just wanting to watch anymore.. Or it has for me, at least..”

Adora’s pupils blow out at the confession, blackening out her irises entirely. “It has for me too..”

Nothing else between them needing to be said, Catra slowly closes the distance, finally allowing their lips to connect. If the memory of this exact action happening in her dreams had been enough to drive Catra mad, having it happen in reality only makes it triple in potency.

It starts off as a slow and testing motion of lips dragging against their counterpart but it doesn’t take long at all to pick up in intensity. Just the kiss itself has Adora gasping more than she is breathing, releasing a moan into Catra’s mouth when a coarse tongue gets throw into the fray.

The magicat licks into her mouth with intent, the hand still resting on Adora’s stomach starting to travel lower, possessively cupping the outline of her hardened length through her sleep shorts. Adora temporarily stops the kiss to release a broken groan, her hips immediately twitching into the touch.

“Fuck me.” Catra’s request is just short of begging, relishing in how those two words manage to somehow wreck Adora even more. It’s all a blur of frantic and uncoordinated mess of limbs from there and the next thing Catra registers is her back being pinned against the mattress.

Not a single word gets exchanged as their nightwear frantically gets shed from their bodies, diligently eliminating any remaining obstructions left between them. Adora's on top of her now, slotted between the junction of her thighs exactly how she had been in Catra's fantasy, her member getting sandwiched between her navel and Catra's pelvis.

The pressure has Catra's back instantly curving into an arch for more friction, her fur pleasantly bristling when Adora's mouth makes it down to her chest. A whine breaks through the purr in her sternum when a firmed tongue rolls one of her nipples into a stiffened point, her head lulling back into the pillow.

It unintentionally has her claws coming out to bite into the flesh at Adora's shoulders, though by the way Adora buries a muffled groan around the tit in her mouth, she doesn't seem to mind the slight pain.

Adora wasn't even inside of her yet and already her mouth alone was successfully taking her apart. By the time the road of kisses Adora's paved down her stomach reach just above her core, Catra's a trembling and aimless mess.

"You have no idea how long I've thought about doing this to you." Adora groans the admission against the bottom of her stomach, carefully guiding Catra's furred thighs to rest over the tops of her shoulders and fuck, that sentence alone has Catra keening instantly because yes, she's been daydreaming of the same thing for too many years to count.

"Less thinking and more doing, princess." Catra tries to assert even as her voice is quite obviously wavering on her, fisting her grip on the crown of Adora's head to pointedly guide her mouth to where it's needed most.

Ever so obedient, Adora doesn't need to be told twice, the commanding grip in her hair making her release a guttural groan against Catra's slickened core as she promptly gets to work. Being so repressed meant that the two of them likely didn't have a clue to what they're doing, but that didn't matter to them. Where experience lacked, desire guided them instead.

There wasn't a single inch of Catra that Adora's tongue and mouth left uncovered, feeling everywhere at once to Catra as Adora switched from sampling the essence at her entrance to trapping her clit in a tight seal of wet heat. Neither shied away from vocalizing their pleasure, though even more evidence of Catra's enjoyment comes in the form of slick spilling out of her to drench Adora's neck and chin.

For how long it went on for, it seemed like Adora was content with making the valley between Catra's legs her permanent home, but Catra knew she couldn't put up with this much longer before risking the point of no return.

Adora groans out a dismayed and questioning sound of protest when Catra uses the hold on her hair to yank her back up north, hitting Adora's drenched mouth in a kiss that was nothing but tongue and teeth. When Catra's legs hitch around her waist and the heels of her feet dig into the small of her back to drag her in closer, Adora quickly gets the hint.

Breaking the kiss off to rest her forehead at the junction of Catra's shoulder, Adora pulls back just far enough to line up her cock with the welcoming heat of the magicat's entrance, stuttering out a broken noise when just the head of it gets invited in.

"I'll go slow, okay? Tell me when it's okay to move." Adora tells her, staying true to her word as she patiently waits for Catra's permission. That permission comes in the form of a shaky nod, letting out a trill when Adora carefully gives her another inch.

Catra's never had anything more than her fingers entering this region before so it takes a minute to adjust to the burning stretch, but once the discomfort simmers over into a subtly growing pleasure, she's made up her mind that she needs more.

It's a painstakingly slow process that drags out for what seems like ages but once Adora is fully sheathed inside of her, Catra finds that it was more than worth the wait. They stay frozen and pressed like that for a while, each basking in the feel of being connected at their most intimate points before Catra's hips slowly start to shift beneath them, wordlessly signaling she was ready for Adora to start moving.

"Gods, Catra.. You feel incredible wrapped around me like this.." Adora breathes into her shoulder, patiently picking up motion on her end. "I'm glad it's you, you know.. I can't picture anyone else in the world I'd want to give myself over to like this.."

Catra's responding whine is just as much pleasure as it is suprise because fuck, if this had been just about sex and nothing more, Adora probably wouldn't have hit her with something as telling as that.

As much as Catra dreads over anything that has to do with even remotely opening up about her feelings, she feels obligated to meet something as profound as that with her own show of honesty. "I'm glad it's you too, Adora.. I couldn't picture it being anyone else.."

Adora's hips involuntarily stutter forward as a response, plucking a shared moan of surprise from them both. Catra didn't think anything could top the way Adora's admission of wanting to be her first could make her feel, but the next three words Adora bestows upon her criminally prove otherwise.

"I love you." she murmurs to Catra with nothing but sincerity, the declaration holding enough emotion to it that Adora's body begins to take on a signature golden glow. Before Catra knows it, the fine fur at her face isn't just wet with sweat anymore, silent tears rolling down as she takes a shaky intake of air.

"I love you too." Catra croaks out, her voice addled with emotion that only doubles when the reverent gasp Adora releases suggests a part of her hadn't expected to hear the words being returned to her.

"Show me just how much you love me." Catra continues, the overwhelming weight their words have left in the air ascending her pleasure to something that surpassed simply mind and body. Adora nods in affirmation, dipping down to let their lips connect. While it's not as heated as it had been earlier, the exchange was no less profound, perfectly conveying the words from their heart that couldn't be expressed through speech.

Every return trip of hips piles onto the pressure Catra feels building up in her core, both becoming too exerted to keep up with the kiss as they prioritize with sharing their pleasure. Minor gasps and intakes of breath ascend into helpless groans as the stutter of Adora's hips grows more aimless and uncoordinated, both parties unable of postponing the inevitable any longer.

Adora attempts to pull out of her. "C-Catra, I'm.."

“Please, Adora.. I-Inside..” Catra emphasizes her point by locking her legs around Adora’s waistline even tighter to refuse her from leaving. It quickly has both of them reaching their breaking point.

With a strangled cry of bliss, Adora spills into her just as Catra meets her own moment of reckoning, no rhyme or reason to the spasms of her inner walls as she clings to Adora through a seemingly endless free fall they both seemed to be sharing together.

By the time awareness returns to Catra, she finds Adora weakly trembling against her through the aftershocks, Catra somehow knowing the wetness she feels against her shoulder isn’t from sweat. Smiling to herself, she cards a hand through Adora’s hair to push it out of her face, letting the pad of her thumb dust across the edge of her cheekbone.

“You love me..” is all Adora is able to weakly state in disbelief, as if the deceleration from Catra was too good to be true.

“Since we were seven, dummy. Why else do you think I took you leaving as poorly as I did?” Catra tells her, and she’s already regretting the poor choice of wording when Adora freezes against her, a guilt-ridden sob soon leaving her lungs.

“I-I didn’t know.. If I had, I would have tried harder to get you to leave with me.. T-This is all my fault.. I’m such an idiot..”

Catra’s expression softens, a long overdue tear of her own rolling down her cheek. “You are, but luckily for you, I’m an idiot too. I was too busy convincing myself you abandoned me out of spite to realize you leaving that place was the best thing that could have happened for either of us. But what matters now is you’re here now, and so am I.”

“I don’t deserve you..” Adora mumbles weakly against her shoulder, and the minute it’s said, Catra’s heart breaks on the spot. After all the multitude of grief and bullshit she’s made Adora suffer through up to this point and she thinks she’s the undeserving party in this?

“Believe me, Adora. You were never the undeserving one.” Catra informs her, and when Adora’s head lifts away from her shoulder to protest that statement, Catra promptly shuts her up with a kiss.

It seems to do the trick in the end, any potential debate dying in her throat as she invests all of her focus into kissing Catra back with an equal amount of sincerity. When it ends, both are equally flushed and breathless.

“We’re going to beat this pastey galactic asshole and make sure we have a home worth coming back to, you hear me?” Catra states with a conviction Adora immediately mirrors in return.

“Yeah, we will.”

Please drop by the Archive and comment to let the creator know if you enjoyed their work!