Summary

Due to the results of an uncompleted mating bite, Adora goes into heat for the very first time.

Notes

Not A/B/O. I just see many fics about Catra's heats that I thought it'd be fun to switch it up and have Adora experience going into heat.

It's late morning in Bright Moon, and while the rest of the world stirs to get on with the day, a certain princess of power seems to be having some trouble getting out of bed. Building sunlight heats and refracts against the mosaic window panes, leaving the spacious and privileged bedroom on the other side at a pleasantly comfortable temperature. Or it would have been comfortable, if it weren't for the light sheen of sweat blanketing her partially covered torso, causing the sheet draped over it to cling uncomfortably to her skin. Adora squeezes her eyes back to a close, burying her head into the pillow with a groan.

She likes to think of herself as a morning person, but all she's thinking about now is how much she wishes this morning would kindly fuck off. Her body feels far hotter than usual, and a distant part of her mind wonders if maybe she's getting sick. Though it didn't feel like it was super dire just yet, but enough to notice and complain about.

If anything it feels like one of those instinctual premonitions your body tries to send you the day before you end up falling under the weather, where you technically feel fine on the outside but inside your biological clock just continues to scream "wrong" in endless repetition. Adora knows Bow had just finished recovering from one of the many strains of flu circulating through the populace of Etheria, but that was a little over two weeks ago and she didn't think the half-life of that illness could still be contagious after so long.

Then again, what did she know?

It's kind of odd though. She clearly was suffering from the beginning stages of a fever but the chilling aches that usually accompanied it weren't due to physical pain this time. It was a different nature of ache Adora knows all too well, and it's usually Catra who's the one feeding the type of burn she feels right now. Adora immediately regrets going down that line of thought the minute it's formed. Thinking of her mate to any degree just has her need for Catra flaring ever higher, missing the feline now more than ever.

Catra was still over helping the remaining Horde refugees reintegrate into the Fright Zone now that Scorpia had officially taken it back as her rightful kingdom. It meant lots of lifestyle changes and adjustments of scenery that left hardly anyone with enough free time to go stop and smell the weather. Adora pressed her to allow her to come with but Catra reminded her that a lot of the soldiers there were still getting used to the idea of princesses not being their sworn enemies, and seeing the one princess they've been psychologically conditioned into destroying might not look so good for progress so, unfortunately, Adora had to sit this one out.

It's been nearly five days since Catra left Bright Moon and Adora feels that gap of time hollowing out her chest into a ravenous void, missing her partner to an unfathomable degree. She pulls the damp sheets off of herself, the slight draft in the air somewhat helping to cool down her skin. She frowns when she sees the indentation of her nipples through the thin cotton of her sleep shirt, her dismay only growing when she spots the even bigger mess down south of her. Her underwear wasn't just damp but soaked.

That explains the excessive sweating at least. Maybe she just woke up from a wet dream that ended prematurely and her body just simply decided to be cruel enough to have her waking up in this needy state? Adora could easily remedy this problem by hightailing it to the bathroom and rubbing one out in secret but the time on the trackerpad beside her indicates that she's already generously overslept.

There was simply no time left to take care of business, no matter how inappropriately lewd that business may be. Not with the princess alliance meeting she was already running late for. Why was she even this turned on to begin with? Adora's no stranger to waking up from wet dreams but past experience should have had her mind cleared of that haze by now, yet today it showed no signs of showing her hormones any mercy.

Even when she makes it out of the relative safety of her bed and bothers slipping on her shirt, the minor graze of the fabric against her skin is way more perceptible than normal, mildly shuddering at the friction as she gathers her hair up to brush it over her shoulder. It was far too long to bother using a ponytail anymore, plus Catra always did say she enjoyed seeing it down.

Brushing it to the side just succeeds in exposing Catra's brand on her neck, zeroing in on the fading mating bite the feline bestowed her with a few nights ago, glancing at it in the mirror with a worried lip as she traces the pads of her fingers over the scar. She never wants to forget how she got that mark nor the significant meaning put behind it. To the unsuspecting eye, it simply looks like a hickie, but Adora will always know what it truly means.

Of course, the bond wouldn't be completely sealed between them until Catra allows her to bite her back, but that's something she's not going to pressure Catra with in any way shape or form. Adora doesn't think Catra will be against her biting her or anything, but considering Catra biting her was a spur-of-the-moment sort of thing, she doesn't want to spring that on her until Catra asks of it. Adora startles when she glimpses a flash of light beaming in the mirror, turning to see Glimmer teleporting in right behind her.

Guess she was running a bit more late than she thought.

"Adora, will you hurry it up already? Everyone's waiting on you and I can't start the meeting with my best friend being a major slow poke!" Glimmer chides her, the sound of her voice coming in way too loud and shrill for Adora's liking, prompting her to wince at the auditory intrusion. At least she had some sense of mind to change her ruined underwear before Glimmer barged in on her. But she still had the troubling case of her pants to deal with. Mainly the lack of them. Adora can't even find it in herself to be embarrassed by her partial nudity, letting out a lengthy yawn instead.

"I'm ready, okay? Can you just.. keep it down a bit? I'm still waking up.." Adora requests, her voice coming out as dry and hoarse as she feels. Why she's so parched to begin with is a mystery to her, making an effort to clear her throat as Glimmer rolls her eyes at her. Adora sets to clothing the rest of herself with a little less coordination than usual, barely managing to get her pants on without toppling over altogether. She was easily clumsy on a regular day but this was just getting ridiculous.

She's definitely not prepared when the queen grabs ahold of her arm to teleport them once she deems Adora is properly covered up and presentable, the contact having her stiffen as her surroundings blink out of existence, leaving her with a dizzying sense of vertigo. Glimmer poofs them over to the war room, the pair manifesting inside by the door.

Adora opens her eyes and immediately regrets it, squinting at the atrocious light level assaulting her sight right now. Usually, the light in the war room was welcoming and rarely ever bothered her, but today it felt atrocious. The crystalline surface made the reflected light so severe that Adora was convinced she was staring at the sun itself. She's about to make a snide comment on it but it's a single voice alone that has Adora's words stolen from her throat.

"Well, if it isn't sleeping beauty herself."

Adora feels a surplus of dopamine float straight up her spine, knowing that voice even better than she does her own. As far as she's concerned, not only did that voice mean safe, but it also meant home. Immediately identifying it as her mate's, Adora's gaze is pulled into Catra's direction like a block of steel locking onto a magnet, her breath catching in her throat when their eyes find one another.

Oh gods, she's in her horde outfit too. Specifically the one with the tactfully placed boob window that will always undoubtedly be the very death of Adora. Though her arms are crossed over her chest at the moment so Adora's not getting as much of a view as she would have if her arms hadn't been there, but it's still enough to have another flare of arousal twisting into the recesses of her gut. She likely chose the outfit for political reasons that didn't involve torturing Adora's ovaries, but it still had an effect on her regardless. Catra wasn't even due to be back for another two days at least, so seeing her here now was a blessing in disguise.

Adora moves on pure instinct, guiltlessly abandoning Glimmer behind her as she instantly closes the offending distance still between them, giving her a kiss that really shouldn't have been happening in public. Catra makes a surprised trill at the forward move but doesn't hold back in boldly reciprocating on her end, Adora's greedy lips swallowing up most of the muffled sounds of surprise and delight that leave her.

Gods, she's missed this. Needed this as if kissing Catra was more vital to her prolonged survival than the very air itself. Which in this case, it most certainly felt like it was. Her body must be thankful too because now that she knows Catra is here, the vortex of volatile emotions and hormones she feels swimming around inside her have calmed some under her mate's presence.

She still knows well enough to know there's definitely something off with her today, but little does that matter when she's blissfully distracted by the woman in her loving embrace. How she gets the feline's body pinned to the wall with her own isn't really something Adora remembers, but it means little to her now that she's getting to kiss her wife like this.

After an orchestra of awkward coughs and the occasional hint of an amused snicker, Glimmer decides she's had quite enough of their PDA.

"Seriously? Right in the war room? You two really have no shame, do you?" Glimmer breaks the spell Adora's been sucked into, blushing guiltily as the rational part of her brain reminds her she's still very much in public with a room full of people who all happened to be staring directly at them. At least one of Glimmer's predictions had been wrong. Adora definitely had a bit of shame left in her to work with as she eases out of the embrace, her cheeks blazing under all the unwanted attention.

What the hell was wrong with her? Adora's been used to experiencing occasional fits of want that always circulated around Catra, but she's never lost control quite like that, and in public no less. If Glimmer hadn't interrupted them she likely would have been ready to rail her wife right then and there, audience or not.

"Missed me that much, princess?" Catra questions against her ear, and fuck, that voice was really doing some delectably cruel things to Adora right now. Her excitement was also accentuated by the fact she knew just how sensitive Catra's nose was, accompanied by the excited lash of Catra's tail which was more of an indicator to Catra's playful mood. There was no way she couldn't scent out the extent of Adora's arousal right now. Adora had to be a homing beacon of pheromones with the state she found herself in.

"Like you wouldn't believe," Adora whispers back, taking all of her leftover willpower to reluctantly pull away from the magicat, easing off of her completely.

"Annnd I'm being ignored." Glimmer mutters somewhere in the background, but Adora's far too busy with sneaking adoring glances at her wife, relishing in how the intensity of her staring has Catra failing to hide a flustered blush. Bow gently places a hand on Glimmer's shoulder to placate her while Catra scoffs at what she believes to be an intrusion.

"Oh can it, Sparkles. Like you and Arrow Boy don't do the same."

"Yeah, when people aren't here to witness it!" Glimmer shoots back, and Bow nearly turns pink from how hard he blushes at her blatant honesty.

"Glimmer!" he squeaks at her in protest, his voice raising as much as Mermista's brows.

"Well, that's a cursed mental image that's going to be rotting in my head for the rest of my life. Thanks for that, by the way. " the mermaid gripes, smirking at the glare Catra shoots her from across the room. Adora doesn't like to see such a bothered look on her spouse, mirroring the same level of glare before she unknowingly redirects it onto the mermaid as well.

A wave of satisfaction rolls through her when Mermista actually swaps out the smirking for a mildly confused look when she notices the additional scowl from Adora, which only has Catra giving Adora a questioning look as well, the deliberate intimidation highly out of character for the blonde.

"I think it's wonderful that you're able to express your love for your partners so openly." Perfuma beams at them, prompting the scorpini at her side to eagerly nod her head in agreement. Adora goes right back from annoyed to flustered at the comment, redirecting her attention onto the floor to hide her blush.

"Love all you want, but maybe tone it back a bit so I'm not forced to lose my breakfast?" Mermista shoots back, and this has Adora nearly growling at her. Thankfully, she doesn't.

"Can we just get this over with already? It's a Saturday and I really don't want to be up this early." Frosta complains, demoting the war table into her pillow as she buries her head back against her arms, threatening to fall asleep right at the table.

Adora falls into the seat right beside her wife's, and the proximity feels like a combination of sweet agony to her. Why the hell couldn't she get a hold of herself today? They were supposed to be here sitting like civilized adults and discussing the restoration projects commencing all over a war-torn Etheria and all Adora can think about is Catra filling her in every way conceivable.

Catra shifts uncomfortably in the seat beside her, evidently picking up on the extent of Adora's arousal. Her ears slant some, and Adora glances down when she feels a tail falling into her lap, the fur fluffed out quite a bit. Adora feels a dose of unbridled love shoot up her chest at the considerate gesture. It's not the first time she's done it, but Catra can clearly tell how turned on she is right now and rather than torture her with that knowledge, she's offering a restless Adora some sort of outlet to disperse the energy bubbling up inside her.

It's normal for Catra to offer up her tail in situations like these where a fidgeting Adora is forced to sit and stay still, but the state she's in just has that tail becoming even more of a distraction. She grips it delicately with both hands, threading her fingers through her fur as Glimmer begins to drone on about the villages still in need of aid.

Adora barely remains cognizant through it all, having far too much fun toying with the tail in her lap to pay any sort of attention to anything beyond that. She counts out every stripe she sees as if she didn't know the total by heart already, delighted with every single playful twitch it makes in her grasp. Spring transitioning to summer meant Catra's fluffier coat was already shedding to make way for the thinner summer-appropriate fur that would allow the skin beneath it to breathe more freely.

It's a loss Adora frowns at as she essentially combs her tail with her nails, plucking off the excess fur and gathering it into a small pile before she inconspicuously knocks it away from her lap and onto the floor. She'll mourn over being unable to bury her face in that extra fluffiness but at least now she'll be that much more appreciative when winter rolls around again and it grows back in all of its glory.

Adora has a distant thought about the lack of conversation taking place around her but she doesn't really pay it too much mind, only registering the happy little hum she makes as she toys with Catra's tail now that it's been properly groomed, grateful for the distraction.

The silence she hears soon starts to make more sense because when Adora eventually glances up she realizes just about everyone in the war room is staring directly at her. Each expression is a mix of confused and amused, and all the pairs of expectant eyes on her just has Adora mirroring that same look of confusion.

"Uh.. Did I miss something?" she asks, furrowing her brow when Glimmer gets up without a word, circling from around the table to stand beside Adora's chair. Glimmer leans into her space, (like really leans in) to the point where Adora feels like she's about to kiss her of all things. The warning growl sounding from her wife beside her (which didn't help calm Adora's raging ovaries in any way shape or form) sounds like Catra was coming to the same conclusions as she is.

Glimmer doesn't kiss her, making an effort to roll her eyes at Catra showcasing her territorial tendencies before she simply sniffs the air. Unaware of what the actual fuck was going on right now, Adora blinks at her dumbly. Glimmer's frown turns troubled, leaning away from Adora's personal bubble.

"Well, I don't smell any liquor on her breath so she clearly isn't drunk." Glimmer announces, which pulls a snort out of Catra.

"Of course she isn't. You really think I wouldn't have anything to say if my wife showed up to one of these stupid meetings hammered off her ass? My nose is eons more perceptive than yours, Sparkles."

Adora's already zoning out again to play with Catra's tail since it's kinda just there in her lap and up for the taking, unsure of what either of them are on about. All she can think about now is the god-awful scent of Salinean sushi lingering on Glimmer's breath that's assaulting every one of her five senses, causing Adora to wrinkle her nose in distasteful protest, visibly grimacing as she recoils from the princess.

"Glimmer you promised you'd stop eating sushi in the war room!" Adora complains, and Glimmer has the nerve to look perplexed by her statement.

"Adora, what are you talking about? I haven't had sushi in over three days.."

"Well, clearly that's a lie because I can smell it on your breath right now.." Adora grumbles back, shifting in her seat uncomfortably. "And can someone please turn off the heater? I feel like I'm sweating bullets right now."

"I don't even think the heater is on right now." Perfuma comments, not the only one at the table with a worried expression now. Adora sucks in a breath when she feels Catra setting an open palm on her forehead. It was to check her temperature obviously but the simple touch has her humming all over again, nuzzling into her hand mindlessly.

"Well, that explains the airheadedness. She's burning up." Catra deduces, pushing her chair away from the table with one hand since Adora's keen on keeping the other to herself.

"Psh, oh I'm burning up alright.. For your looooove." Adora sings, affectionately nipping at her wrist since it still happens to be within the area. Catra looks like she wants to laugh at Adora's sappier-than-normal declaration, but her building worry seems to be masking most of that urge.

"And on that note, I think it's best we put the mighty SheRa to bed." Catra gently tugs her wrist away from the blonde, prompting Adora to pout as she gets patiently assisted out of her seat.

"Only if you're the one who's doing the bedding." Adora quips back through a mirthful grin, the sudden transition from sitting to being upright having her a little disoriented as she sags into Catra's embrace, breathing her in with a hum. When did Catra start smelling so good? I mean she smells great in general but today it's like Adora couldn't get enough of her scent. She wanted to bottle it up and bathe herself in it if such a feat were possible.

"I expect you two will be utilizing this downtime to actually rest?" Glimmer warily asks, suspicion evident in her features. That quickly earns a snicker from Mermista which has Catra throwing a second (and likely far from the last) glare at the mermaid.

When she's finished glaring at Mermista, the feline rolls her eyes at the Queen. "Scouts honor, your majesty," she adds the title at the end with a hint of sass, ushering a giggling Adora out of the room.

"No promises!" Adora gets the last word in, hearing a long and drawn-out sigh escape the queen before the door to the war room finally closes.

A part of Catra really feels like she should be questioning Adora right now, but it's hard to do a bit of anything when she's actively being pinned between the door and one persistent blonde. On any other day it'd be a preferable situation for Catra to find herself in, but with Adora growing a fever and seemingly delirious, bumping uglies doesn't sound like the wisest treatment right how.

But Adora apparently wasn't seeing eye to eye with Catra on this one. Once they made it to their room, Adora all but tackled her. In heated times like this, the feral part of her instincts wouldn't hesitate to pounce on her wife and give Adora exactly what her body is silently begging her for in this moment, but the annoyingly rational part of her knows they need to stop.

"A-Adora.." Catra draws her hands up to Adora's shoulders, doing everything in her power not to bring any attention to the evident rutting she feels taking place against her upper thigh. Despite how improbably hot the action was, this wasn't normal Adora behavior and Catra knows it. This side of her only came out after Catra went with the route of edging her, keeping her on the brink of relief for hours on end but only providing it to her when Adora eventually snaps and takes what she wants from her. Whatever brought this on was something she was still trying to desperately figure out, but it's hard to get to the bottom of anything when her wife's this degree of handsy.

"Adora.." she tries again, stating her name a bit more firmer than the pitiful little rasp she breathed out last time. She finishes the sentence with a gentle nudge, utilizing the hands on her shoulders (as well as her diminishing willpower) to guide her off of her. Adora stumbles a bit with a protesting whine caught in her throat, finally seeming to gain a bit of clarity. Catra's heart shatters on the spot at the look of rejection embedded into Adora's features, looking as hurt as she did embarrassed.

"D-Did I do something wrong?" she asks, her troubled relationship with guilt always making her the one eager to take on the blame. Her voice comes out so small in contrast and it's honestly giving Catra a serious case of whiplash when she realizes this is the same insatiable siren that had tacked her to the wall with her knee mere seconds ago.

"Of course not, dummy. I'm just trying to figure out what has you so worked up. Did something happen?" Catra asks, keeping a keen eye on Adora's body language to make sure she wasn't trying to downplay or minimize her feelings. Deflecting inner conflicts with sex was usually a move that would come out of Catra's playbook before it did Adora's, but she had to be absolutely sure.

Adora has the nerve to innocently blush, like she wasn't just about to fuck Catra straight through the drywall a second ago. Her hands ball up into tight fists at her sides, the muscles in her biceps tensing as if she's fighting a losing war with keeping her hands off of her. It honestly would have been the hottest thing Catra's seen if she wasn't currently confused and worried shitless for her.

Adora chews her lower lip, a stray bead of sweat departing from her hairline as a barely audible whine takes up home in her throat. "I don't think so? I mean I woke up feeling funny and the next thing I know Glimmer's poofing me into the war room.."

Okay, so that's progress at least. But still a little too vague for Catra's liking. Frowning, she reaches for Adora's hand, threading their fingers together. It was meant as a gesture of comfort but Adora's breath audibly catches in her throat at the touch, nearly squeezing the feline's hand in a death grip. Catra ignores the fresh flood of arousal from Adora that's ruthlessly bombarding her senses, swallowing hoarsely.

"Funny, how?" Catra takes the hand that Adora's clearly not relinquishing anytime soon, guiding them both to the edge of their bed to sit. Adora follows her willingly like an adorably eager puppy, jumping at any opportunity to be closer to her.

"I'm not sure.. I just woke up feeling hot and overwhelmed I guess? Like there's just all this energy bubbling up inside of me and I don't know what to do with myself." Adora noses into her neck, encouraging the feline to scent her. Catra does, albeit reluctantly as she tries to process the information coming in.

"And all this started this morning?" Catra doesn't fight it this time when Adora sneaks her arms around her, really nuzzling into her now. Had Adora had any scent glands to work with, it would have been a telltale sign that she's trying to lay claim over her with her scent. She didn't, but the sentiment put behind it was still there.

"Mhm. But whatever it is, it's calmer now that you're here." Adora answers, simply breathing in the feline like she's an aphrodisiac.

Alright, so Adora didn't appear to be in any physical harm, she just happened to be immensely more clingy and horny than usual. Catra could work with this, but she knows she should probably get a second opinion here. "I'm not going anywhere, but I do need to pee. Think you'll be okay while I go handle that real quick?"

In a normal situation, it's kind of a ridiculous question to ask, but Catra can tell Adora's clearly in a fragile state right now, where even a quick trip to the bathroom could potentially induce separation anxiety. Adora's whine shows that she's not on board with that plan at all, but she eventually eases off the magicat, curling into a fetal position with a small nod. Catra runs a hand through the mess of blonde locks splayed out before her, earning a delighted hum which was about the closest thing to a purr Adora's throat could conjure.

"I'll make it quick, princess. And then I'm all yours." Catra reassures her, leaning down to grant a featherlight kiss to the side of her temple. Adora's eyes are closed but she slowly blinks them open when she feels a shift in the mattress as Catra raises to stand.

"Promise?" she asks, sounding so fragile and breakable that the protective side of Catra seamlessly ignites to life.

A light purr blooms in her chest. "I promise."

Adora seems satisfied with her answer, burrowing into the sheets like Catra does whenever they're apart and she's in the middle of missing her. Catra gives her one last lingering glance before she exits to the bathroom. It doesn't take her long to handle her business, but her ear flicks involuntarily when she senses rustling coming from their room. After washing up Catra eventually emerges into the bedroom, stopping dead in her tracks when she catches sight of Adora.

The pillows and sheets to their bed were currently in the middle of being repositioned into a vaguely circular shape, the slight frown in Adora's expression suggesting she wasn't happy with the end result. Catra watches in silence as Adora scurries about the bed to fortify the border of fabric with even more clothes that really shouldn't have been in the bed, and the feeling of Deja Vu Catra's struck with is sobering.

Was Adora nesting?

Catra sits with that thought for a minute, unable to properly digest it. Nesting was a byproduct of a much bigger dilemma that Catra knew all too well. To even humor the thought that Adora -a human - could possibly be in heat sounded absolutely ludicrous to her, but Catra honestly couldn't think of a better explanation.

The sensitivity to sunlight. The shorter than normal attention span followed by a dramatic increase in libido. The ability to be able to smell the remnants of a meal Glimmer had over three days ago when no human nose should have been able to pick that up. Even the fever and being far more affectionate than usual. Every single little detail was starting to slide into place for Catra, but she refused to base all of this solely on assumptions. She definitely needs a second opinion now.

Since Adora hasn't exactly taken notice of her arrival yet, Catra casually slips back into the bathroom, tapping the watch at her wrist. It was a convenient and far more portable version of the trackerpads they carried around that Entrapta whipped up for her, and right now she needed it to track down its inventor. Sure Entrapta probably knew more about robotic anatomy than she did human anatomy, but Catra honestly didn't know who else to call to decipher the level of fuckery taking place right now.

She sends off a quick text that quickly escalates.

Catra [3:36pm]: Can humans go into heat?

Entrapta[3:38pm]: What an interesting inquiry! I've personally never heard anything about humans developing an estrus cycle but that doesn't mean it's out of the realm of possibility. I take it this has something to do with your coitus relations with Adora?

Catra[3:41pm]: Ugh do you have to be so weird about it? It's a yes or no question.

Entrapta[3:46pm]: And I'm afraid it isn't a yes or no answer. I wouldn't deem it impossible but there's so many variables to take into consideration. I'd need more information to work with to give you a definitive answer. Possibly a sample too.

Catra[3:48pm]: If you seriously think I'm going to poke and needle my wife like a lab rat, you have another thing coming. You know how Adora gets around those things. I'd lose my damn arm before I got anywhere near her.

Entrapta[3:51pm]: Who said anything about needles? A simple mouth swab will suffice as a sample.

Catra[3:56pm]: Okay, so let's say I get this sample. How long do I have to wait for answers?

Entrapta [3:59pm]: If you use the upload feature on your trackerpad you can hold up the sample and it'll scan and analyze the data remotely. Once it's uploaded the results shouldn't take more than a few minutes.

Catra thoughtfully eyes the toiletries scattered around their bathroom counter.

Catra[4:02pm]: Would a toothbrush work?

Much to Catra's relief, Entrapta received enough of a workable sample in the bristles of Adora's toothbrush. What took the longest was figuring out how to use the damn scanning feature but after several trials and errors, Catra managed to figure it out. She pokes her head out of the bathroom, silently observing Adora as she waits for the results.

She went from forming a safe space out of their bedding to mindlessly rolling around in the sheets, seemingly content for the moment. When Catra gets an incoming call over a text, her stomach begins to churn with unease. Quietly slipping back into the bathroom, she shuts the door before accepting the call, keeping her voice low.

"Did you figure anything out?" Catra skips the pleasantries in favor of getting to the heart of the matter. She knows she's living on borrowed time since she can only get away with being in here for so long before Adora becomes aware of her absence.

"Your observations are accurate, I'm afraid. My results are detecting that her pituitary glands are releasing elevated levels of oxytocin and estrogen into her system. Females release a minor amount of both when they're ovulating but these levels are highly abnormal for a human to be producing. My conclusions lead me to believe that Adora is currently experiencing an estrus cycle similar to your own."  Entrapta replies through the speaker.

As much as Catra loves being right, she can't help but feel disheartened at the news. Her wife was currently in the room suffering from an ailment her body's in no way prepared to receive, blissfully unaware of her predicament.

All Catra can think about is the injuring fact that somehow she's the one who did this to Adora. Even when she's going out of her way to make up for all the lasting impact her past actions have done to the world, she somehow succeeds in just making things worse. Catra pinches the bridge of her nose, warding off the tears she refuses to let fall. She had absolutely no right to cry when she's not the one suffering right now.

Collecting herself, she opts for getting more information. If she's about to drop a massive bombshell right onto her wife's unsuspecting head, the least she can do is gather any necessary details she might need. "And how does something like this even happen? We've been fucking like rabbits for years and this is just now starting to surface?"

As Entrapta takes her question into consideration, a needy and distant "Catraaa" can be heard through the door. It does little to alleviate Catra's stress levels.

The magicat covers the speaker before responding back with an anxious "Just a second!"

"The only conclusion I can come to is that somewhere in your relations there was an exchange of DNA and that exchange must be the catalyst to the change in her body's chemistry.

Somehow that just left Catra with a lot more questions than answers. "Exchange? What are you even on about? Speak English, Entrapta."

"Well, the most plausible cause would be that she's responding to your DNA being introduced to her own. The most natural way for that to happen would be through a bite." Entrapta elaborates, the call ending when shock and resignation have Catra dropping the device onto the floor, the impact leaving a tiny crack in the screen.

The damage to the screen is by far the least of her concerns at this very moment. Catra didn't even think about taking their incomplete mated status into account until now. Magicats could screw around with suitors to their heart's content and never have to worry about invoking that deep of a bond or commitment with a fleeting lover but once bites were exchanged with one another all bets were off the table.

The bite had to be enough to pierce the skin in order for the bond to be sealed between them so little nibbles and nips that didn't go past breaking flesh were easy enough to get away with. But the night before Catra had left off to the Fright Zone to assist the Horde with reintegrating into Scorpia's new kingdom, the bite Catra bestowed her with was far beyond any sort of nibbles she's given to her in the past.

In Catra's defense, Adora wasn't really helping matters by not only being the sole member of the party who originally asked for the bite but by also being the one to mindlessly moan "harder!" on a continuous loop until Catra finally caved in and obliged to her wife's demands. Catra didn't purposely mean for her fangs to break past the pale and toned flesh at Adora's shoulder, it just sort of happened. With how sharp her incisors are, you can only apply so much pressure to an area that pliable before it inevitably gives way to accept the intrusion.

The bond wouldn't be truly completed until Adora bites her back in return, and she fucking hates herself for how much that thought turns her on. Though that could also just be her own body's chemistry reacting to the uncompleted bite. The feeling likely wouldn't go away until she had Adora's teeth in her. Catra looks down at the abandoned trackerpad when Entrapta attempts to call her back.

She promptly ignores the call, texting a quick "talk later" before setting it down on the counter just as she hears Adora calling for her again. There was no point in stalling this confrontation any longer. One way or another Catra would unfortunately end up being the bearer of monumentally bad news. The most fucked up part of it all is that Catra knows Adora isn't going to react to the news with the slightest amount of anger because that's just how infuriatingly selfless she is.

She knows her spouse will take it all in stride when Adora has every damn right to be livid with her. Dealing with a monthly menstrual cycle was a burden enough on its own, but to have to now somehow juggle a heat cycle on top of that was a nightmare Catra would never want to find herself in.

Yet she just handed the love of her life that very same nightmare on a silver platter.

"Catra, come on! You said only one second and it's been like a million seconds!" Adora's whining pulls her out of her dangerously spiraling thought process, exhaling slowly as she toils to collect herself. Now wasn't the time to go wallowing in her own self-inflicted misery.

Adora needed her right now so the fit of self-loathing was going to need a raincheck. Trembling, she opens the door to brave the sight on the other side.

Adora's at her breaking point. She knows she's supposed to remain good and patient for Catra, but it honestly feels like she's been waiting for her for eons at this rate which only made the compulsion to break down the only door separating her from properly loving on her wife just that much harder to ignore. Adora hopes she'll be able to get a hold of herself sooner or later but right now all she feels is her body buzzing from head to toe, her singularly focused mind reciting an internal mantra that only consisted of Catra's name. It was like her head truly had no room to spare for any thoughts that didn't orbit around her mate.

When her prayers finally get answered and Catra emerges from the bathroom, Adora smiles wide enough for her cheeks to sting, pouring out every endless ounce of love and affection for her into that modest expression. Three years of wedded domestic bliss and Adora still can't stop telling herself just how lucky she is that she gets to be the one to call this otherworldly being her own. Not now nor ever would anyone else get to witness the unguarded sides to Catra she only sees. Like the way she's looking at her now with one of the softest smiles someone as hardened as Catra can muster for her.

"Hey, Adora." the delicate greeting that comes out matches the softness in her expression, oddly sounding wistful. That in itself is enough to have her worried, her smile falling into a frown.

"Catra, what's wrong?" Adora leaves the middle of her poorly made circle of sheets when Catra takes her time with walking over to their bed. Her head is lowered and having a stare off with the floor, two fluffy ears slanting back in what can only be a look of deep shame.

"I uh.. need to tell you something. It's not going to be easy to hear and if it does upset you I just want you to know that you're allowed to be angry with me, Adora. Don't put your feelings on the back burner just because you feel obligated to spare mine." Catra starts, sinking into herself some when Adora's mission to comfort her leads her to the edge of the bed in record-breaking speed. One arm wraps around her torso while the other moves to her ears, gifting the base of both with continuous scritches as she coaxes Catra's head to land in her lap.

"You should know by now that there isn't a single hurdle in this universe or the next we both can't get past. Now, do you maybe want to start at the beginning? Cause I'm kinda really lost right now." Adora's assurance only makes the hybrid appear twice as remorseful, her head turning in her lap so her face is hidden from Adora's view.

"Remember earlier when we talked about you feeling funny?" Catra's opening question catches her slightly off guard, her brows cinching together in thought.

"Yeah, what about it?" Adora inquires, navigating one of her hands towards her neck to donate the same degree of scritches just beneath her chin. When Catra involuntarily purrs under the attention, Adora feels like she just won the lottery. Unfortunately, when Catra goes to clear her throat, it clears away the subtle purr as well.

"Well I had a little chat with Entrapta in the bathroom and we uh.. think we figured out the answer to that.." Catra quietly continues, as if the words are physically paining her to speak.

"Wait, why is Entrapta hiding out in our bathroom?" Adora wonders aloud as her eyes redirect themselves onto the bathroom door with a worried look, prompting a round of exasperated laughter to leave her wife.

"She's not in our bathroom, you loaf. We talked on the trackerpad." corrects the feline, and this time it's Adora's turn to sport a look of sheepishness.

"Oh, yeah I guess that makes more sense.. So um.. what did you find out, exactly?"

Catra grows quiet for a long moment, her expression masked enough to make it unreadable. The eyes that were previously drawn to a close soon brave a glance up at her. Catra follows it up with a sad and heavy sigh. "You're in heat, Adora."

Of all the assortment of words that could have possibly left Catra's mouth, that set in particular had to be the absolute last thing she ever expected to hear. Jaw unknowingly falling slack, Adora's mind blanks on her entirely. It wasn't at all angering like Catra predicted it would be, it was just unbelievably confusing. She shouldn't be in heat yet. Not by what she's read at least.

"Huh. I figured it wouldn't kick in until I returned the mating bite on my end. Guess you learn something new every day." Adora muses under an anxious chuckle, and by the time Catra finally turns to look back up at her, the remorse in her features is swapped out for baffled confusion.

"Wait, you already knew this would happen? How?" Catra questions in disbelief, her gaze unwavering as Adora serves up a culpable grin.

"I might have picked up a book here and there and learned a thing or two about it. Or uh, y'know.. several things, maybe.." Adora reluctantly admits, embarrassment having her quickly look elsewhere before Catra could read her guilty expression just like the very informative literature Adora's been secretly reading in bulk lately.

She couldn't help it even if a part of her wanted to. Adora's always strived to be an overachiever in pretty much all aspects of her life and that stance most definitely applied to the bedroom. If there was any way out there she could learn to better please her wife, Adora was damn well going to find it and learn it.

Catra snorts in return, ducking her head back onto her lap as she mutters. "I swear you know more about my anatomy than I do at this rate."

"Not really. I thought I'd be in the clear until after both bites had been exchanged so it shows you how little I know." Adora downplays it with a shrug of her shoulders, but Catra's ears only flatten further under her gaze.

"And you're okay with it? Going into uh, heat, I mean." Catra wills herself to ask after a moment, blinking one eye open to cautiously peek up at her. Even with the majority of her face concealed in her lap, Adora can tell she's masked with a sea of worry.

"Well, yeah. I'm fine with it. I just hope I don't get too needy on you. I know you have a lot going on already with the restoration of the Fright Zone." Adora starts, her shoulder sagging a bit at the thought of Catra leaving her behind again. Blowing out a breath, she adverts her gaze elsewhere. "Maybe just leave something with your scent on it when you leave again so I have something of yours? I'm sure that'll hold me over until this passes."

Adora startles some when an angry growl fills the room as a result of her suggestion, both of the hybrid's eyes now open and locked in a stare-down. The heat put behind it has an excessive dose of arousal flooding straight below Adora's navel. "If you think for a second I'm leaving you high and dry after how many times you've taken care of me through my heats then clearly your hormones have made you delusional. Scorpia and her kingdom can wait. Right now my wife comes first."

Adora's libido hadn't exactly disappeared throughout their discussion, it simply just simmered down some. But Catra's pledge to her easily has it resurrecting in full force, biting her lip before coyly meeting the feline's gaze. "Coming first, huh? And is this figuratively or literally?"

Catra grins sharply at her. "Oh, princess. It's both."

Catra has to admit she's having fun with this. She'd never be caught admitting it out loud, but the extra attention and sickening affection radiating off Adora is something she enjoys basking in. Their clothes left the equation quite some time ago, and Catra feels like she's out prowling on a hunt. She stands at the edge of their bed, her tail lashing wildly behind her as she eyes the eager blonde waiting for her on the disheveled sheets.

She's already made Adora cum a handful of times, once with her fingers and twice with her tongue. It was pre-gaming as far as orgasms went, working some of the pent-up hormones out of her so they can truly begin to play. She's also excited to discover how many rounds she can get out of Adora before she finally taps out. Normally it's three or four but when you add her heat as an additional factor then who knows what Adora's limit would be. It was uncharted territory between them for sure. Drifting back to the present, Catra eyes her wife appraisingly, flicking her gaze downward.

"No hiding from me, princess. I want to see what's mine." Catra barks orders at her, a touch of possessiveness sitting somewhere in her demand. Adora falls victim to a blush, breathing shakily as she parts the bent thighs that were previously pressed together, revealing the absolute mess covering her center.

The pussy being obediently presented for her is aching and ripe, blonde curls combed back with a generous layer of slick to reveal the flushed flesh of her outer lips. The hood of her clit pokes out through her petaled lips, the sensitive bud swelling pink and standing at full attention. Catra can't help her guiltless staring, taking in the view from her vantage point as she lets her hand wander down her own midriff, smirking victoriously when Adora's eyes immediately snap towards her descending hand.

Adora watches her every movement with the focus of a hawk, instinctively emitting a low whine when Catra's hand slips lower to the prize Adora's eyeing, lazily toying with her clit as she gets an eyeful of her gay mess of a wife. The fact she knows Adora is likely having an internal crisis over not being able to touch her nor herself just turns Catra on more, enjoying the tense power play silently commencing between them. It's not every day that Catra chooses to top, but on the days she does she likes to commit to the role completely.

The role itself is still pretty vague since they're still taking their time experimenting and figuring out what works and what doesn't, but more often than not it always consists of Catra bossing around her wife to her heart's content. With Catra being drawn to holding power and Adora being drawn to please, it was a recipe for perfection.

"Catra, please.." Adora looks to be at her breaking point, fingers twisting tightly in the sheets as Catra lazily plays with herself at the edge of the bed, making no effort to join her just yet.

"Good girls are supposed to be patient. You want to be my good girl, don't you Adora?" Catra questions in a purr, witnessing the moment Adora's eyes glaze over as she tumbles into subspace like an all too willing victim, vigorously nodding her head as a breathy "Yes.." escapes her lips, the quiet affirmation getting lost to the room.

Catra grins wickedly, lifting one of her legs to rest s foot at the edge of the bed so even more of her dripping center is exposed. Adora watches the deliberate adjustment with a crazed look in her darkened eyes, whimpering hoarsely when she realizes Catra is just as wet and ready to be taken.

"Gods, you're so fucking hot.." Adora mindlessly spills her thoughts aloud, and rather than blush like she secretly wants to, Catra goes ahead and goads her a little further, the tip of her tail curling in interest as it playfully flicks behind her. Her hand continues to idly work herself over, deliberately edging herself with calculated and purposeful touches to draw this out as much as possible.

"Hands between your legs, princess. Get yourself ready for me so I can get the strap." Catra bosses her around in the same dismissive manner that always riles up the blonde. Although it's quiet, Adora openly moans at her demand, sliding both of her trembling hands right where they're instructed to be.

But when Catra looks up, the evident indecision she observes in Adora's expression is enough to have her pausing. Softening her face some, she establishes eye contact that's coupled along with a much more tentative tone. "Color?" she asks.

Adora smiles in an instant, but by the minor furrow Catra spots in her brow, she's clearly working through some doubt still. "Green for sure. It's just.. I sort of had an idea just now.." Adora continues quietly, mumbling off at the end as if she's battling on whether or not to bring it up.

Catra perks up in response, a dose of pride settling in her chest. The hand working her hood loses some of its rhythm for a moment, her legs nearly giving out on her as a quiet moan drifts off her lips. Anytime Adora feels comfortable and worthy enough to state her own wants and recognize that they matter is a bandwagon Catra will happily hop on so she can encourage this behavior to the fullest.

"Oh yeah? Well, let's hear it then, gorgeous. I'm all ears." Catra's hand retreats from between her legs, shuddering as she denies her body from yet another orgasm. She's so fit to burst that even a minor gust of air could get the job done at this rate, but curiosity has her delaying that release for just a bit longer so she can hear what Adora's about to say. She crosses her arms over her chest expectantly, her fur fluffed out as her tail throws a fit behind her, clearly having a restless attitude of its own.

Adora looks away, swallows down a blush, then looks back to Catra with deceptively innocent eyes. "Well, um.. Do uh.. D-Do you remember the time I used magic to give SheRa umm, y'know.." embarrassment has Adora trailing off, unable to bring herself to specifically state what she's mentioning.

Catra quirks up a brow at her, already enjoying where this was headed. "You mean the time you gave her a dick?"

Adora flushes all the way down to her chest, biting at her lip hard enough to have it discolor as she nods. Her teeth eventually let go of her lip, exhaling in what can only be preparation.

"Yeah.. Well um.. I've been practicing manifesting with my magic and I learned that I could do the same to you.. Y'know, if you were up for something like that I mean.." Adora informs her sheepishly, addressing the bedding more at this moment than she was her wife.

If she had been looking, she would have witnessed Catra's slitted pupils dominating her irises like an eclipse at the words. A chance to truly experience what it would feel like to be buried inside her wife? Was that even a question that needed to be asked? Down south Catra involuntarily throbs, the mere idea alone almost enough to send her over the edge and right into a contactless orgasm. The only thing that stops it is the doubt and worry traced in Adora's features, realizing she had yet to answer her.

"Aww, princess. You want me to dick you down that badly?" she coos at her, plopping down sideways along the mattress with her chin coyly propped in her hand.

Adora predictably reddens her complexion at the question, appearing embarrassed enough for Catra to actually feel bad for her."W-Well yes, and  y'know uh.. breed me and whatnot.."

Catra grows stiffer than a board of lumber, that one specific term instantaneously awakening something primal within her. It was birthed from the same place that's always screaming for her to protect her mate no matter what the cost, except this time rather than protect, it was screaming at Catra to claim.

She's more than happy to give Adora a fresh reminder of who she belongs to.

Just focus on the image in your head, Adora. You can't afford to screw this up. eyes closed and intensely concentrating, Adora gives herself a quick mental prep talk before setting her attention on what she wishes to manifest. Catra migrated up the bed a bit, furred legs somewhat spread as her back greets the headboard.

At least Adora can say with confidence that bringing up a bit of shape-shifting in the bedroom hadn't been the mistake she'd feared it'd be. Catra looked genuinely excited and invested right before Adora closed her eyes, so it delivers a small reassurance when she acknowledges Catra wants this too.

Adora conjures up the image she's been letting fester in her head for quite some time now, remembering every minuscule shape and curve so the appendage is as proportional as possible. When the magic finally disperses, Catra immediately notices it's nothing at all like the strap they keep on hand, her tail fluffing out and inflating several sizes when she digests just what kind of equipment Adora's gifted her with.

"I-Is this a magicat dick?" she asks the million dollar question sitting in the air, her expression more on the far side of amused than actually upset.

"I wanted it to be authentic.. And I was uh.. curious to what it feels like." Adora shyly explains, trying not to look too much at the glorious end result her perversions have conjured up for her. She fails, obviously, eyeing the flared tip poking out at the top with far too much intrigue.

She really hopes she made the knot right since from what she's studied every written source agreed that it was the most important part of the package, (pun intended) but she won't be able to see it for herself until Catra's cock fully emerges from the furred sheath it's resting in. And by the way it was already starting to harden and lengthen under her gaze, Adora figured it wouldn't be long now.

Catra is in no way prepared for the jolt she feels light up her spine when she holds it in a loose and exploratory grip, likely not used to having this level of pleasure taking place outside of her body when all her past pleasure had always been felt on the inside. Adora was in the very same situation the first time they ever tried giving SheRa a dick. Straps were one thing, but accommodating a living and functional appendage was an entirely different ballpark when it came to the adjustment time needed.

"It's not too much, is it?" Adora dares the question, but it's only relief she feels when Catra shakes her head in wordless assurance.

"No, it just feels so fucking real. Like it's just been there in hiding all along." she tears her gaze away from her hardening length to playfully narrow both eyes at the blonde. "How many pornos did you have to read to get it to look like this?"

Indignant, Adora serves up a pout. "They weren't porn, they were anatomy books meant to be used for educational purposes. And I lost count a while ago."

"And you consider giving me a dick and fucking you into next weekend educational?" Catra ends that inquiry by tightening her fingers around her length, her sheath getting pushed down to the base so she can let more of it free. Adora's never been so envious of anyone's hand in her life, and she quickly decides that Catra's hand has got to go.

In a flurry of motion, Adora gets a hold of Catra's shoulders to roughly push her back onto the mattress, a thigh on each side sliding forward to cage both of Catra's hips as she straddles her. Adora gets the very reaction she's been looking for when her hips fully settle and her weight presses down into the feline's protruding erection, trapping it between both of their bodies. Catra's eyes snap shut with a guttural groan before swiftly tearing open to look at Adora, her surprise dissipating into excitement.

"Make fun of me all you want, but we both know you've wondered what it would be like to fuck like this at least once."Adora illustrates her point with a slow roll of her hips, the adjustment having Catra's cock sandwiched longways along the blonde's outer lips, the pair groaning in sync when the pointed head gets caught against her clit, indirectly tugging away at its hood.

"Don't try to fool me into believing this is all just for my benefit. Otherwise you wouldn't have bothered with the knot." Catra rasp out, her hands migrating to Adora's hips in a halfhearted attempt to keep them active, enjoying the grinding a little more than she's letting on. Her hips jerk down hard at the accusation, the abrupt movement startling them both into a conflicted moan.

"I just got done telling you I wanted to keep it authentic!" Adora protests, her hips slowing down to a stop as she falters for a sec. "And besides, I thought it could be useful.." she quietly clarifies.

"Useful, huh? Is there something you're trying to tell me, Adora?" Catra's hands sneak from her hips over to the swell of her ass, possessively cupping each cheek before she kneads them with her fingers. Her claws are partially out and the pressure they're applying is just enough to pierce that very first layer of skin, every sharpened tip shallowly anchored into her ass.

Adora seems to welcome the mild sting it gives her, continuing to push through and grind down on the length against her with purpose. She falls into a hover to join lips with her wife, the ongoing exertion making them occasionally take a time out to simply pant against the other's mouth.

"You want my knot, don't you?" Catra breathes the accusation out when they part and by the high-pitched whine and violent roll of Adora's hips, she pretty much has her answer cut out for her. Adora tries to get out of answering by taking her length and lifting her hips enough to guide it inside her, but Catra swats her hand away, using her hips to yank the blonde back down.

"Say it or I'm not giving it to you," she orders, claws back out to make sure Adora remains still and doesn't try to pull a move like that again. How the fuck was she topping so well from the bottom? Any power Adora might have thought she held over this encounter gets seamlessly wiped away under the demand, a pitiful whine climbing up her throat.

"I want your knot," Adora begs in a quiet rasp, something feral igniting inside her as she sets to shamelessly rutting against Catra's trapped erection. A preferably positioned push of her hips has Catra temporarily faltering, her jaw hanging parted and low as the varying pleasure has her needing to refocus her eyes.

"Good girl. Now, c'mere." Adora doesn't realize she's being psyched out until she lowers herself and her guard drops enough for Catra to abruptly flip their positions, pinning her body to the mattress before she can even blink. Well, fuck. That definitely wasn't a part of the game plan. The flared head teasing her lips halts any complaints she may have been forming inside her, eyes fluttering to their whites as her head hits the pillow with an audible thud.

Catra runs her hands down Adora's sides to soothe away her whimpers, pressing gentle kisses down the plane of her jaw as she reassures her. "Shh. It's okay, princess. I'll give you what you need, I promise."

Adora's breath catches when Catra finally lines up, checking to make sure she's ready to take her before she slowly sinks inside of her, hungry walls accommodating every single inch of her length until she eventually bottoms out in a groan. They stay locked like that for a while, both accustoming to the array of sensations taking them over before Adora cautiously jogs her hips forward, signaling she's ready to continue.

The strained "Fuck .." Catra hisses out is enough to worry her, bleary eyes opening in concern. "What's wrong?"

Catra tucks her head into the blonde's neck, a move she typically pulls when she's trying to hide her embarrassment. "Shouldn't have edged myself earlier. I don't think I'm going to last long.."

Adora lets out an incredulous, breathy laugh. "And you think I am?"

"Good point." Catra counters with a shaky laugh as well, the tempo of her thrusts growing erratic and aimless as they truly get lost in one another. It's so much different than taking her fingers or even taking the strap. Knowing Catra is registering and enjoying every movement she is gives Adora a feeling of closeness and completion that neither of those options could ever bring to her. There was truly no space separating them anymore, both of their bodies connected at their most sensitive points.

"You want me to fill you up with my litter, gorgeous? Keep you nice and fucked out to breed you at my leisure?" Catra grunts against the shell of her ear in a whisper, the visualization alone jailbreaking a strangled moan out of her throat. Speaking that desire out into the open seems to do it for them both, each trade of hips taking on more urgency as the layer of sweat accumulating between them is increased.

Every thrust has Catra unearthing more parts inside her that were deep enough to remain previously untouched, the curved incline of her cock hitting her front wall at an otherworldly angle. At its base, her knot inflates to its proper size, which Adora now realizes is far bigger than she ever gave it credit for. It definitely wasn't something that could be wedged in with one go, the size of it alone making accommodating it a much more lengthy process. She bites her lip and whines at the thought alone.

But with every slam forward of Catra's hips, Adora can feel it adamantly trying to breach its way inside her, and with how much headway it was making with every return trip, it wouldn't take much longer now. It's too much stimulation to even bother attempting to hold back her vocalizations anymore, an orchestra of broken moans and mindless profanities reverberating off every wall making up their room. Their urgent dance of hips only has them nearing closer to the inevitable, and Catra decides to use her remaining cognition to utter one final request.

"Claim me!" she snarls the demand almost rabidly, pausing between grunts to offer up her neck as a canvas for the blonde's teeth. Adora reacts with no hesitation to it this time, surging up to snare the furred flesh of her shoulder between a set of brunt teeth, biting down until they finally break past the thick barrier of skin, sinking into their target with precision. It's just the breaking point both need to traverse the edge of their peak, tumbling them to the point of no return.

Somewhere along the way, Catra's knot hits its mark, corking inside her with a notable pop to tie them as one right at the moment of climax. Adora's vision whites out entirely at the invasive stretch, the room melting away until the only thing she could register was the seed of her mate warmly painting her insides in excess, filling her as emotionally as it is physically. Adora cums around Catra's knot with a vengeance, her throat strained with dimming cries as her hands drop to Catra's ass, tugging towards her to ensure she's buried to the hilt.

She doesn't release the mating hold until Catra sags limply in her arms, gravity having her collapsing on top of Adora in exhaustion. Adora can taste copper on her lips but Catra doesn't appear in any pain so she doesn't worry too much about it. The aftershocks exchanged at their most sensitive junctions have them sharing the same shudder, each delayed pulse threatening to send them into overstimulation. The knot will likely hold out for a while by what she's researched on it, but to Adora that honestly feels like more of a privilege rather than a dilemma.

She could always just cancel out the magic if they truly wished to separate, but something in Adora tells her neither party is willing to part ways with the degree of closeness they're feeling now. It was weird, but knowing the security of the knot would prevent even a drop of Catra's seed from going to waste had Adora feeling oddly contented.

One round with it wouldn't be enough to satiate her heat-induced hormones entirely, but at the very least it's quelled them some for the moment, allowing the two to take a well-needed breather. Adora lovingly combs her fingers through the fluff at Catra's sides, patiently stroking her fur from hip to rib as a purr begins to start up inside the chest blanketing her own.

Adora permits a giggle to hum in her throat, enjoying the not-so-subtle scent marks Catra was now greeting her face and chest in with excessive force. Adora happily nuzzles her nose against the softer tufts of fur at the start of her ear, pursing her lips to leave them pressed against the area. With her heat resolved for the time being it means Adora now gets to cherish and enjoy the realization that Catra's actually back from her trip and finally home with her now. The one single place the two of them always truly wanted to be.

"So, that was interesting." Catra gets the first word, settling her chin right between Adora's breasts so she can sluggishly gaze up at her with hooded lids. Averting her eyes, Adora turns anxious as she starts to spiral.

"A good kind of interesting or the bad kind?" Adora braves the question, bracing herself for whatever terrifying unknown she might be hit with.

Catra rolls her eyes with a snort, tenderly nipping at her jaw as she sprawls out on top of her, furred limbs loose and lax. "The first one, dummy."

"Hey, leave my extinct race out of this." Adora is too weak of a woman to refrain from making a wisecrack, knowing it hit its mark by the exasperated groan of complaint Catra retaliates with.

"You're ridiculous, you know that?" the feline tuts at her, the broad grin Adora sports having her ward off a condemning smile herself. Adora settles for toying with her, purposely clamping her inner walls down on the recovering length still sheathed in her insides. Lids tearing open, Catra involuntarily stutters her hips at the stunt, another bead of her release as well as a moan being cruelly milked out of her.

"Sorry, I was a bit distracted there. You were saying?" goads the blonde as she meets Catra's pointed glare with an insufferable grin. Deciding she has no fight left in her, Catra denies that a response, choosing to lower back down into the blonde instead, burying her face to hide it against her shoulder.

Adora softens at the action, habitually tightening her arms around her wife to the point where yet another purr rumbles to life again. "I'm glad to have you home. I was really starting to miss you."

Catra curves a smile against the shoulder she's resting at, her purr doubling in decibels. "The feelings mutual, princess."

They turn in unison when the trackerpad beside them gets an incoming text, the magicat reaching for it to haul it over with a huff. There's only one sentence there that greets her.

Glimmer [6:42pm] That doesn't sound like resting to me.
