Grayskull's Anatomy

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/56744911.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
Creator Chose Not To Use Archive Warnings

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationship:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), And cameos by:, Double Trouble (She-Ra), Lonnie (She-Ra), Kyle (She-Ra), Rogelio (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Fanart, Fancomic, She-Ra (2018) AU, Alternate Universe - Modern Setting, Lesbian Adora (She-Ra), Lesbian Catra (She-Ra), illustrated fanfic, Shrek References, Mentioned Shrek (Shrek), Light Bondage, Light BDSM, Lesbian Sex, Smut, Fluff and Smut, Comfort Sex, Comfort, Lesbian Disaster Adora (She-Ra), Canon Lesbian Relationship, Valentine's Day, catradora, Idiots in Love, First Time, Hymen issues, Virginity, Loss of Virginity, Smut AND Romance

Language:
English

Series:
Part 3 of My Story with that Girl

Stats:
Published: 2024-06-18 Completed: 2024-09-08 Words: 16,459 Chapters: 7/7

Grayskull's Anatomy

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/56744911.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
Creator Chose Not To Use Archive Warnings

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationship:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), And cameos by:, Double Trouble (She-Ra), Lonnie (She-Ra), Kyle (She-Ra), Rogelio (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Fanart, Fancomic, She-Ra (2018) AU, Alternate Universe - Modern Setting, Lesbian Adora (She-Ra), Lesbian Catra (She-Ra), illustrated fanfic, Shrek References, Mentioned Shrek (Shrek), Light Bondage, Light BDSM, Lesbian Sex, Smut, Fluff and Smut, Comfort Sex, Comfort, Lesbian Disaster Adora (She-Ra), Canon Lesbian Relationship, Valentine's Day, catradora, Idiots in Love, First Time, Hymen issues, Virginity, Loss of Virginity, Smut AND Romance

Language:
English

Series:
Part 3 of My Story with that Girl

Stats:

Published: 2024-06-18 Completed: 2024-09-08 Words: 16,459
Chapters: 7/7

Grayskull's Anatomy

by MendhiSamadhi

Summary

It's the first Valentine's Day since Adora and Catra met. However, Catra has had to stay late at her job at the restaurant and she will have to find a creative way to make it up to Adora for that.
A night of movies and snacks doesn't sound bad, but...What if they go further this time? Will Adora be ready?

Notes

This is the third part of the series My Story with that Girl, in which there are the titles The Girl at the Bus Stop and There is no Christmas without you.

In Grayskull's Anatomy we have a reference to the famous television series Grey's Anatomy, but not only because Adora tends to explain certain things using her medical knowledge, but also because this is the special in which things will go up in tone in her relationship with Catra.

So if you think this is going to be a safe read just by having illustrations in the first chapter, I suggest preparing yourself for something a lot more adult, as we'll wander a bit into our student's fantasies and take a ride with lots of steamy twists.

This story includes footnotes for a better understanding of the context. Please, if you are Hungarian or know this culture in depth, I would really appreciate it if you could post an answer to clear up my mistakes.

While I Waited

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

The first Valentine's Day came sooner than they would have imagined. Catra had proposed a visit to Gozsdu Udvar, a boulevard in the center of the city known for its many karaoke bars and other attractions, and then end the day at a nice restaurant. And for the first time, Adora had said yes to a journey like this. In fact, the girl with the glasses was dying to think about how spectacular her all day and all night date with her lover would be.

The irony was that despite Catra trying to trade shifts with a co-worker, to bribe others, and offering herself as a slave for a week, no one at D'Alessio[1] was willing to sacrifice themselves for the poor girl, who had to work. After all...It was Valentine's Day! One of a chef's nightmares.

Instead, Adora took it quite well even if it was another sabotaged date, not to mention that she kept quiet and didn't know how to blame her. She didn't have a bargaining booty against D.T.'s threat of firing. But even so, Catra managed to comfort her with the promise that she would return later, and as a token she gave Adora an early gift—the box of chocolates she had carefully wrapped for the blonde. Catra just left it in her hands and walked away.

Adora came back from the university that day and...what a surprise! Glimmer wasn't home. She and Bow had been lucky, and with a little more luck, they wouldn't be back until the next day, leaving the apartment to Adora and Catra. Of course, as long as Catra arrived.

From that moment on, Adora prepared herself to wait for a call or some sign from her girlfriend. However, the hours passed and the sun began to set, so to kill time she decided to work on some tasks but...she heard it...it was Catra's pretty gift, a red heart, calling her from its throne on the desk. Adora removed the bow of it and licked her lips at the sweet sight. Catra won't be upset if I starts eating this, right? Then she removed a wrapper and took the first delicacy to her mouth...that flavor was definitely of liquor inside a chocolate and she smiled mischievously at the idea. She took another chocolate and it was even better.

For the third bite she decided to sit down, since that way she could professionalize her tasting.

She probably devoured more than half a dozen pieces in less than five minutes, so at that speed and with her little resistance to alcohol, it went to her head and suddenly she had a wonderful idea. She took the colored pencils and her white-leaf notebook, while her thoughts took new forms and she began to dream and dream. Her inspired hands channeled her fantasies through joyful strokes on the paper, until exhaustion and sugar won that round.

* * * * * * *

The door of the apartment opened almost at midnight and the young brunette slipped inside without any fear, because even if Adora's stout friend was there and saw her enter at that hour, Catra had a story about the new key that hung from her keychain, wich would be enough to solve any problem. In fact, Catra was also counting down the days to tell Glimmer that they would start seeing each other more often, preferably to say good morning, every day, after leaving Adora's bedroom. Oh yeah. I can't wait for Cotton Candy to find out I'm sleeping with Adora...I mean, when that happens...someday.

Or whatever...

But that night—in the last minutes of Valentine's Day—Catra rushed to the blonde's room, and the urgency in her voice showed her regret for having worked late. "Adora, I'm sorry I'm so late. D.T. didn't let me out earlier...you know the restaurant is packed on Valentine's Day." Adora was in front of her desk, still silent, back to her. Catra threw her backpack on the bed and approached her girlfriend, wishing she hadn't caused her sadness or anger, but the deep breathing buzz she heard made her doubt. "Are you still...? Slept?"

ADORA, I'M SORRY I'M SO LATE.
D. T. DIDN'T LET ME OUT EARLIER. . .
YOU KNOW THE RESTAURANT IS PACKED ON VALENTINE'S DAY.
ARE YOU STILL. . .
SLEPT?
ZZZZZZZZ
@mendhisamadhi

Her question was answered by seeing the angelic face of the beautiful maiden, who had apparently been defeated by Morpheus—or perhaps by Bacchus—and was lying with her cheek resting on her notebook. The consolation gift was half eaten and several wrappers surrounded the unconscious girl. Catra smiled and reached for the purple blanket that used to be at the foot of the bed now. She covered Adora's back and the girl moved her. Poor thing. Were you studying while you waited? You try so hard...she thought.

POOR THING.
WERE YOU STUDYING WHILE YOU WAITED?
YOU TRY SO HARD...
@mendhisamadhi

And what subject are you studying today? Anatomy? Biochemistry? Catra seemed curious to see the supposed annotations and what she discovered instead was a display of Adora's artistic abilities, whom was projected into the future through a drawing in which they two were wearing wedding dresses and holding colorful bouquets of flowers, under a bridal arch.

AND WHAT SUBJECT
ARE YOU STUDYING TODAY?
our wedding
me
Catia
@mendhisamadhi

Heat rose to Catra's face and an uncomfortable feeling took over her reason. Seeing herself that way was more than embarrassing...offensive.

Adora, you're such an idiot!, she hissed into her mind. Her hand moved on its own and pushed Adora's head forward, causing the girl's forehead to collide with her masterpiece. I'll never wear a dress!, the brunette emphasized, disgraced by the mere fantasy that her girlfriend wanted to see her in pastel clothes.

ADORA, YOU'RE SUCH AN IDIOT!
I'LL NEVER WEAR A DRESS!
@mendhisamadhi

Adora didn’t know which truck hit her at the time. Her table shook from the blow and her pencils rolled across the surface as she stood up. Her sleepy brain did its best to connect, though, before she came back, the poor thing had something important to answer: the question the wedding judge had asked her while she slept:

“I do!” she exclaimed.

I DO!
?!
@mendhisamadhi

Do you want to know if Adora and Catra had a happy Valentine's Day?

They had it. Although, that time was too late to go to eat at a restaurant, it must be for something good that Adora's girlfriend was a chef. Catra made the kitchen her own and in minutes she had a tray ready with all kinds of snacks, both sweet and savory for their respective tastes, that barely seemed to have been leftovers from two days...or whatever that things Glimmer kept jealously padlocked in the drawer of the kitchen cabinet—Catra would have to explain her tricks another day.

She and Adora sat on the living room couch, snuggled under the blanket, preparing to watch a marathon of Adora's favorite romantic story: The Shrek saga. And yes, after almost five months of dating, three failed attempts, a near breakup and a reconciliation, they finally...made love. Do you want to know that story too? Well, just turn the page.

Chapter End Notes

[1] D'Alessio is the name of the restaurant where Catra works as a chef, which is owned by Double Trouble (aka D.T.). If you're curious and search on Google Maps, you might find a restaurant in Budapest, Hungary, which name looks similar...And that's pure...! Coincidence? ↑

Btw...I know, this post is out of date because it's the middle of the year, however, this work is a republishing because AO3 removed the first version of this story due to site policies. In the end I didn't want to wait until the next Valentine's Day to arrive to upload this, so here it is.

Likewise, this first chapter has a different rhythm than a common fic, and is even different from the rest of the work, but the reason is that I wrote it as a tale to fit with the illustrations. The following chapters are more normal and I'll be publishing them periodically.

My Hero

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Isn't there a white knight upon a fiery steed?
Late at night, I toss and I turn
And I dream of what I need...

Adora curled up on the sofa under that warm blanket she used to share with Catra. The clock said 3:00 a.m. or a little more, and despite the fact that the apartment was dark, the television emitted its happy rainbow lights as they watched the second part of Shrek Saga. Or rather, only Adora was looking through her well-placed glasses, while Catra had begun to nod off a while ago and her short, thick brown hair tickled blonde's cheek.

"Hey," Adora chided Catra, nudging her in the ribs. "Don't fall asleep, this is the best part."

But Catra didn't fall asleep because the tale of the green ogre was boring, much less knowing that it was the favorite of her girlfriend. In fact, the young chef had put so much effort into preparing D'Alessio's menu, that what she wanted most was to spend time with Adora. After all, it was bloody Valentine's Day! For all the táltos![2] And Catra still wondered how she had survived all day away from her pretty girl, who had been waiting for her in front of a box of liquor chocolates until she fell asleep, and Adora only came to when the brunette arrived. So well, maybe the student had had time to rest and she didn't see problem in postponing their date for a few hours. Although now her partner needed a better stimulus than a warm nest and fresh snacks to stay lucid.

Catra was a girl of action...

I'm holding out for a hero 'til the end of the night
He's gotta be strong, and he's gotta be fast
And he's gotta be fresh from the fight

"I'm listening," she replied, drawling her words. However, the fairy godmother's song had little magic on her, meanwhile for Adora the thing had a bewitching effect that made her cling to the edge of the blanket, as if she feared that the brave Shrek might fall in battle. Catra caught sight of her out of the corner of her eye and gave a sleepy laugh. "Adora, do you still get excited? You've already seen this movie seven times."

"But you did not. Come on! Pay attention!"

Adora scolded her with a sharp pout, and Catra's smile automatically widened. Somehow, she adored those little childish expressions and appreciated that the girl cared for her, even if it was to not let her miss out on a crucial part of a movie.

Somewhere after midnight
In my wildest fantasy...

Catra only began to wonder if they would really do that all night. Watch movies until dawn? Because when Adora proposed it to her, Catra had to think coldly, since what for most would be an implicit invitation to kiss and get carried away by caresses on another level, in Adora's case, a movie date used to only be...a movie date. Catra wanted to ignore the fact that they had tried to be intimate before, for on those occasions things hadn't turned out as they had imagined. Adora would probably prefer not to risk it again so soon, and Catra didn't want to ruin this either, let alone harass her. But still, it was Valentine's Day. Should she try?

Catra yawned deeply and stretched—surefire trick, after which she dropped one arm stealthily over the back of the sofa, encircling Adora so subtly that she didn't seem to notice. Then her other hand slipped under the blanket and climbed up Adora's thigh, who was sitting in the lotus position. The girl with the glasses felt those curious fingers that began to tickle her and she naively pushed them away while trying to pay attention to the screen, as well as to her partner, whose body felt warmer than usual.

Somewhere, just beyond my reach
There's someone reaching back for me

Catra gazed at her with religious admiration for a long moment, as if she were watching the last sunrise on earth, and her mismatched exotic eyes felt small in comparison. Although it wasn't a very different feeling for the lovely Miss Sunshine under scrutiny, who, sensing the passionate energy around, was forced to say something. "Catra, look ahead." Her face was quickly painted a pretty pink. "You're going to miss the..."

"I had made a reservation at Impulse Fashion," Catra said.

Adora's mouth parted slightly and she looked confused, but she smiled again and wrapped her hand around Catra's. "I know. Too bad we couldn't have dinner there. But it was so late..." She paused and after a few seconds she raised her voice in a jovial tone. "Ugh! If I had D.T. in front of me, I'd twist those pixie ears of them for not letting you leave early! Yuck!" she accentuated, making the gesture of squeezing a piece of cloth...or a leprechaun, rather.

Catra laughed even though her mysterious attitude towards Adora didn't change. "I wasn't saying it for dinner."

"Oh. Then why?" the blonde asked, avoiding Catra's gaze and focusing on the television.

"Adora, the Impulse is a hotel restaurant. So guess louder."

The young American's blush intensified even more, and after a brief silence, she acknowledged. "I know. I'm not so—"

"Naive," Catra completed, earning a sheepish giggle that she mimicked back.

Shyness returned to settle between them and the dis-graceful fairy from the movie continued to fill the air with her lyrics.

I need a hero!
I'm holding out for a hero 'til the morning light

Adora smiled at the mental image of the handsome hero at her side, then stretched out her legs. She removed her glasses—folded them neatly before setting them on the coffee table—and turned to Catra. That Catra so transparent that her mouth trembled when she was afraid, and that was not at all comparable to her habit of being direct and incisive with her words, so the lack of these gave Adora an idea of how difficult it would be for Catra to express what she wanted. Although it was not necessary. Adora wanted the same and she slid her hands over her heroine's graceful shoulders, encircling her neck to cradle her lovingly.

"Well, we lost our reservation, but right now we're here, alone...Bow and Glimmer won't be back until tomorrow."

Catra felt the delicious chill that raised the hairs on the back of her neck and inhaled the ecstasy of her own anxiety. Adora's gesture and that cheeky statement were the signals she had been waiting for, the keep going until further notice. Then, before the butterflies in her stomach had time to disperse, she leaned over to Adora and hugged her passionately.

I can feel his approach
Like a fire in my blood...

Adora smiled in surprise at her girlfriend's fervent kiss, but was soon convinced of the seriousness with which Catra began to taste her lips while their rapid breath slipped between their faces. Adora felt gasping for air despite inflating her chest in a desperate attempt to keep breathing, and instead could only suck in the ferocious waves of agitation each time Catra bit or touched the inside of her mouth with her tongue.

“Go on...” the whisper escaped her like a suicidal act.

The irony was that Catra stopped when she heard her, since, of all the possible answers, her heart had not been prepared for it. That word so demanding and so abstract...How far did Adora want them to go? Catra wanted to pretend that she knew, that she was the master of common sense and clairvoyance, however, looking for clues in her past experiences and realizing that she knew nothing, she pushed aside her enthusiasm to ask...“Did-didn’t you want to see the...the next movie?”

Catra never thought Adora would look so beautiful in the blue light of the screen, bringing out the dewy sheen of her lips and the deep cherry hue her skin had taken on. But Adora was unaware of herself and clung to Catra to force her to put the rest of her weight on her without further distraction. “Bassza meg, Catra! I’ve seen that movie seven times already! Now I want to see you, a fenébe is!”[3]

The brunette, who until then had modestly concealed herself, could no longer hide the blush that set her face on fire and highlighted that cluster of freckles that Adora found extremely cute. “Where did you learn to speak like that?” she questioned between nervous laughs.

“Does it matter?” Adora caught a glimpse of Catra’s lips and unconsciously licked the edge of hers. “You...Don’t you want to do it anymore?”

“Of course I do!” Catra herself put her hand to her mouth when she realized that she had screamed. “I mean...I don’t want you to think that I don’t want...” she clarified almost mortified. “I just wanted to make sure you’re ready.”

Adora’s eyebrow rose questioningly. If it wasn’t for the fact that she was the one who couldn’t read between the lines, she would have believed that Catra was the one not ready to take the next step. Though she wouldn’t be surprised. Because, as much as Catra hissed and was the queen of the world wherever she went, she had to admit that, next to Adora, was the shyest and most insecure kitten of the litter. She always asked if Adora was comfortable, if she wanted to go for a walk or what kind of dessert she preferred for that day. And that wasn't exactly a bad thing, Adora deeply appreciated that her partner thought of her that way. But sometimes, Adora also wished Catra would be more spontaneous and surprise her with one of those wild, impetuous gestures that she boasted about her past. So...What the hell was she waiting for to rip Adora's clothes off right then and there?!

"Catra, I told you I was ready about two months ago," her intonation let out a hint of reproach, and Catra hastened to reply.

"I know, but some things happened and..."

"Don't remember them." Adora closed her mouth with her fingers again and was immediately overcome by the softness she found beneath these. She reached up with her other hand and took Catra's face between her palms. "Let's pick up where we left off, okay?"

Catra nodded, closing her eyes and trusting Adora to guide her kisses to the right places. She dropped once more onto Adora's lips and tried to get her hands under the classic sweater with the university's crest...only that the student was starting to feel uncomfortable because of the lingering spicy aroma that had been penetrating her brain for a while now. Adora wrinkled her nose and pushed at her girlfriend's shoulders, just enough to let her know she had to stop. Catra looked at her strangely.

What the hell were they playing?

"But first..." Adora resumed the conversation with an amused tone, "you have to take a shower, honey. You still smell like the Pörkölt[4] sauce you've been making all day." Catra felt exposed, as if accused of a minor crime, so she lifted her arm to sniff at herself for evidence. Adora chuckled and took advantage of the girl's confusion to give her a sneaky little kiss that would make her feel better. "Don't get it wrong. It didn't bother me while we were snacking. But this is different, don't you think? I'd like to enjoy my girlfriend's natural scent...if possible," she added with feigned innocence.

Catra's chest heaved with a biting giggle. "Ha! Unless you want me to avoid soap and shampoo..."

"Come on. I'll pick up this mess in the meantime. Don't you want us to be comfortable?"

That good girl tone again.

"Okay, okay," resigned, Catra shrugged off and exhaled heavily as she sat up properly.

The blonde tapped her on the knee as she sat up too. "You know where the bathroom is. Use my towel when you go out."

Catra smiled in defeat, and after another long, sad sigh, she rose to her feet. She crossed the room, and just as the narrow door closed behind her, Adora let her breath out. To be ready, that girl was overthinking the subject and no one could blame her, since like all inexperienced—and a little obsessive—girlfriend in love, it was important that everything turn out perfect in her first time. In that way, despite the fact that her nerves were about to betray her, she began to pick up the dishes while a lot of idle ideas increased into her head.

Chapter End Notes

[2] The táltos (Hungarian pronunciation: / ˈtaltoʃ /; also tátos) is a figure in Hungarian mythology, a person with supernatural power similar to a shaman (more information on Wikipedia). ↑

[3] The rough translation for it would be something like: "Fuck, Catra! I've seen that movie seven times already! Now I want to see you, damn it!" ↥

[4] Pörkölt is a traditional stew of Magyar cuisine. It evolves from goulash itself, but many other recipes emerge from this process. This stew has spread through the various cuisines of Central and Eastern Europe. It's prepared with a base of fat of animal origin (although olive oil is currently used more), meat from different sources, onion and paprika (more information on Wikipedia). As usual in each region, house and family, the recipe is unique and even unrepeatable. In the case of our chef Catra (and our story), her recipe is the most famous on the Buda side. ↥

In Front of the White Unicorn

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

First you have to take a shower, Catra growled under the stream of warm water. Albeit, she knew the influence fragrances had on Adora's state of mind, and after recapping the obstacles they'd gone through to get to this moment, it would be worth taking a few more minutes to make it perfect. In fact, that command had been so Adora—adorable—that Catra chuckled at the memory and took her time to thoroughly cleanse every part of her humanity, not ashamed to use a fair amount of that fruity shampoo with the drawing of a white unicorn. The damn thing smelled like Adora, and Catra supposed that if she liked that, it would be fine if she used it too. And meanwhile one mechanical action followed another, her thoughts returned to that last kiss and that blue gaze that had all the power over her.

Catra's hands trembled as she washed her face and it was hard to tell if the heat she felt was due to the steam or the sinful images of that vestal virgin [5] projected behind her closed eyelids. Simply, Adora's chaste body was a concept that turned her on like nothing else in the world had. "I'm so nasty," she told herself with a wry smile, and she was about to turn off the tap when she heard a creak on the other side of the door. The water continued to fall and Catra was enchanted by the slender silhouette that was drawn through the acrylic wall—a shape with the exact pronunciations that made up an elegant athletic hip and strong arms and legs. "Adora?" she inquired, even if the shadow didn't show her classic poof, nor her ponytail.

The answer she heard was another shy question, faint as a sigh, and soft as a feather against her brown skin. “Can I pass?”

Catra’s heart was beating so hard she thought Adora might hear it. She swallowed hard and gaped several times before she could reply. “Su-sure...” she whispered.

At that moment, standing in front of the door, Catra knew the true torture of a portal that opened too slowly for her liking. An ancient hatch in a lost temple would be easier to penetrate than that thin plastic cover, which slid inch by inch, beat by beat, until it revealed the profound mystery of Adora’s smooth, naked body. Her hair fell loose over her solid shoulders, while her skin clung perfectly to her powerful resting muscles. She was a Norse goddess to whom the entire pantheon of deities would succumb. Too perfect to be human.

On the other hand, Adora was also looking at Catra with desire—the beautiful tanned skin, the trillions of drops running over her and between her firm breasts, and the pronounced curves of her hips in which Adora wouldn’t mind dying. Catra’s pubis was also covered in a clump of hair, while the wet mane falling down her forehead made her look wild, albeit in a different way. By now, Catra looked more like a big feral cat frolicking at the foot of a waterfall than the wary kitten that left out of the living room. That was the natural Catra. Her face was clean, stripped of the dark makeup everyone knew her for and her leather clothing. The thick, heavy boots that hid her lightness of foot were far behind. Added to that, Adora could see how the tail of that amazing tattoo that embellished Catra’s back was peeking out, and that until then was the most private detail she had known of her.

Of course, they had seen each other in their underwear before. The first time on Christmas Eve, when the story of how Catra got a tattoo interrupted their caresses and they ended up sleeping. They then planned to try it on New Years, but Catra had too much of a cold to leave the house, so even D.T. gave her the day off on the condition that she would make it up to them when the little elven vermin saw fit. So the blonde consoled Catra by sending her a daring photo session, to which she attached the promise that they would be together on Adora's birthday, and it wouldn't be long before that. But that didn't happen, as D.T. followed through on the first part of them threat and made Catra work double shifts. At least Catra was able to make it up to her pretty girlfriend on that date, with another set of sneaky photos of her wearing nothing more than a kitchen apron and chef's hat—D'Alessio would never have passed a health inspection if it had been done on the next day. Although, that was already past water. Tonight, they were there. Face to face. Without any barrier between the two and without the small pieces of cloth that until then had kept the last secrets of their privacy.

Catra, however, was speechless in front of the perky bosoms and abs marked like a bar of white chocolate. It wasn't until her gaze fell on the soft skin of the mons and she found the hint of that delicate crevice deep within Adora, that she finally let something out of her parted mouth.

"I...uhm...sorry...I should have shaved." She didn't dare say that the sight was beautiful and that she longed with all her soul to touch every bit of skin she could see. Her tongue would surely have snapped in two if she had tried.

"I don't care," Adora pointed out. "I think you look wildly sexy." She laughed and carefully lowered her feet into the tub, where she took Catra's right hand to entwine her fingers.

That was Catra's turn to giggle, though that smile didn't last long when she realized what Adora was trying to do. The blonde had grabbed her wrist and lifted her arm to the middle of her, making sure to open her palm like a blind woman would looking for her way, except Adora was guiding and led her directly to her bust. Catra was barely able to stay on her feet after the electrical shock that ran through her from end to end, beginning with her hand. The same one that she discovered was the exact size of Adora's soft, warm breasts—whose cheeks burned. Catra's thumb rubbed instinctively as she found her nipple, and her tanned face paled as she felt the girl's body shudder.

Adora was being very intrepid despite her inexperience, and Catra was embarrassed by her own lack of initiative. For as bold, intelligent, and persevering as the young student was, Adora needed a hero too. She needed someone brave to guide her first steps towards the love and show her that she would be safe, that for once she didn't have to have everything under control and that she could blindly trust. That made Catra destroy her insecurities and she rushed to find Adora's lips, pulling her to join her under the stream of water.

The force that Catra used, and the skin-to-skin contact, made Adora exhale all the air she had saved and her legs buckled. She was also able to make out the exact shape of Catra's orbs, as well as the heat that emanated from her and turned into an aura that was above the steamy environment that surrounded them. Adora's head fell back, each drop of water adding to the trails of saliva Catra left on her neck. The brunette reached for her clavicle and smiled to herself as she noted the small, tiny puddle that had formed in the crook of Adora's shoulder. She dropped another kiss right there and continued down, beginning to roaming of Adora's chest before reaching the top of one of her boobs, where Catra's right hand was still stalking the hardened pink tip. Adora let out a low moan and Catra went wild, forgetting for an instant that she was exploring virgin lands and took in her mouth everything she could encompass. Then she began to lick and drink from the rill that ran between her lips—Catra, at that very moment, thought she could live like this forever. But...

"Ouch!" She had to break free when the yell escaped her throat, straightening up immediately.

"What was that, Adora?"

Blonde's eyes widened as she realized her fingernails were still glued to Catra's back, where the famous tattoo had been the canvas for the reddened new lines her excitement made her draw. "I...I'm sorry!" she released her and lowered her hands like a soldier would. "I wasn't thinking! I ruin the moment...didn't I?"

Her sincere reaction almost made Catra laugh, but she had the strength to hold it in and she simply shook her head. “Okay, calm down. I just didn’t expect it. I’m supposed to be the one to be careful,” she added ironically, as they had had this joking conversation many times about how deadly Catra’s claws could be, especially in private. One of the reasons she had kept them relatively short until her first meeting with Adora, and so she couldn’t hurt her. So the fledgling’s little outburst was quite a surprise, but nothing Catra couldn’t get used to. “What do you say we take advantage of this intermission to...you know...go to a more comfortable place?”

Adora pursed her lips, embarrassed for having hurt her mate. “My plan to do it in the shower didn’t work out, did it? It seems more romantic in the movies.” The brunette smiled and moved closer to her, holding her hips firmly enough for their pelvises to make contact. “Cat-Catra?”

“If you only watch movies about ogres and princesses, maybe you’re not so wrong.”

“What are you insinuating?!” Adora reproached, forgetting her guilt from one moment to the next. Instead, she gave Catra a small poke to the nose. “You probably say that because you’re the ogre.”

“Oh yeah? And you’re a pretty princess riding white unicorns. Tell me who’s more cringe of us two, huh?” Catra turned to get off the faucet and went back to Adora, still with her playful attitude and ready to carry her princess onto her shoulder just as Shrek had done a pair of hours before. Except that Adora extraordinarily seemed to read her intent and she hurried out of the tub.

“No no...not that, Catra. We’re going to fall!” But Adora was already screaming when she ran naked out of the bathroom. “The floor is wet! Be careful!” she warned her before disappearing into the living room.

Surely that image could never be erased from Catra’s head.

Chapter End Notes

[5] In case you're wondering, the Vestal Virgins (from Latin Vestales) were the priestesses of the Roman goddess of the hearth, Vesta, of the state religion of ancient Rome. Depending on the era, there were between four and six priestesses. They were the only clergy (collegia) totally dedicated to a Roman deity. They tended the sacred fire in the sanctuary of Vesta in the Roman forum and performed other rites associated with the goddess (more information on Wikipedia). I mean...Adora and the gods are almost one and the same...at least in this context. ↥

With the Sword at the Throat

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Catra walked through the bedroom door with nothing more than a small cloth that she rubbed briskly against her hair, though she stopped before she could take five steps. “What’s going on?” she questioned in surprise to find Adora sitting on the edge of her bed, her body wrapped in a much larger towel. And the problem was not that Adora had covered herself again or that she had that mischievous smile on her face, but the nosy cell phone that she was holding with both hands and pointing the flash at Catra. “Oh, Adora, no photos. You know I don’t like them, especially not like this.”

“You sent me photos of yourself last month.”

“That was because that was a special day.”

“Isn’t today special?” Catra pursed her lips, not knowing what to say. Adora had set that trap very well and she gave Catra a huge smile before describing the rest of her perverse plan. “I just want a record of this. Also, it’s not a photo. It’s a video. You should say something for the camera...”

“What?! No! Give me that!” Catra roared and her blood rushed to her neck as she jumped at Adora to snatch the device from her.

The blonde shoved her hand away and then began to fight the tanned girl, frantically trying to keep the loot away from her. Adora tried to feint back and forth, but Catra’s quick reflexes made it difficult for her and she barely managed to break free using her strength. Faced with this display of powers, Adora knew which of the two of them would tire faster and she began to despair.

"No! Catra! It's just for me! I'll never show it to anyone!" She fought vehemently until the last resort and then decided to place her phone between her breasts, believing that it would be safe there.

However, that didn't stop Catra, who suddenly grabbed the edges of the towel and ripped it violently. The item bounced off Adora's thighs and mattress, and it kept rolling until hit the floor. The screen went black and the noise of the impact seemed to wake Catra from her trance—her heart also contracted. What had she done? Why didn't she stop to think a bit? Exposing Adora in such a savage way just to retrieve a small artifact that was perhaps now broken? What a fool she was! Her girlfriend was just playing! Who cared if they had just seen each other naked in the shower, why did she have to scare her like that with one of her outbursts?!

"Uh...Adora...I...I'm so...so..." her apology didn't reach the end when she noticed Adora's deep breath, who remained motionless under the shadow that Catra cast over her. Catra turned her full attention to the woman and suddenly she realized something—arms thrown back, knees apart, lungs swollen with agitation, causing the pale tits to rise sensually, in addition to that reddened cheeks and ears. Is she excited? Catra swallowed as a sharp twinge between her thighs reminded her how they had both ended up like this. "Do you like this?" The question came out of Catra so naturally that she felt guilty, at least until she saw the embarrassed nod she got back.

Catra considered that response and surmised that Adora's anxiety might be due to her prolonged chastity...or perhaps it had just been a knee-jerk reaction of her body. But it was also possible that she liked bed games and she didn't know it yet. Would that be possible? Would it be correct to try it in the first time? The rush of adrenaline made Catra's racing heart, and her leering smile were accompanied by the raising of her fist, which she pointed between Adora's eyebrows before extending her index finger and touching her forehead with the edge of the nail. "You would tell me if something scares you or if you'd rather not, right?" Her demanding and unusual somber tone puzzled the blonde for an instant, after which Catra turned her hand over and lightly brushed the back of her fingers on Adora's face. "I could tie you up, cover your eyes and run my tongue all over your skin. I would find sensitive spots that even you don't know about. No matter what or how, I would find a way to make you tremble in my hands without you being able to do anything about it. You would be completely subject to my desire." Adora's jaw clenched and Catra could see the subtle shudder that shook her body. Then she changed her inflection to a more endearing one, which Adora was used to by now. "But only if you want. We can do this in a more traditional way if you're not comfortable with the idea of...you know...playing."

Adora was breathing hard when she heard that, so all she could do was grab Catra behind her head and pull her into a kiss with such urgency that it ached a little. "Will we have a safeword?" she gasped into Catra's lips.

But what the hell?! Who was this woman and where had she left the innocent and shy student Catra had met on the bus? Well, what did she care? Catra was not going to miss the opportunity to see that other side, and she could no longer ignore the intense throbbing in her crotch. "How about...?" She looked around and went from the computer on the desk to the shelves lined with books that were guarded by the many action figures her partner collected. One of them, a leather-clad warrior with piercing blue eyes and a war grimace, connected with the native Hungarian. "How about sword?"

"Sword?"

"Hey, that's the first thing that came to mind!"

Adora thought about it for a second before shrugging and lunging at Catra. "Okay!"

Only Catra stopped her on the spot, putting her hand on Adora's face before she could kiss her. "In that case, you will do as I tell you—and right now you have to calm down." She took Adora's hands from her neck and clasped them, as if forcing her to pray. Catra smiled to herself when she saw Adora like that. Wow! That was so exciting, so Catra also needed to clear herself up, so she stepped back with a hand on her waist. "Stay like this. I'll find something to tie you up with."

Adora's mouth opened and something moved inside her, something that slid right between her thighs, sending shivers down her spine. "Would you like a tie?" she asked as soon as she got over her surprise. "Look in the closet."

Catra raised an eyebrow but headed to the designated place without asking questions. In any case, the allegory that Adora still kept secrets in her closet left her intrigued. Why did Adora have ties? Was she the type of girl who likes to wear a nice suit once in a while? However, Adora had never worn a tie in front of Catra, and the idea was beginning to be tempting. Oh, it will be another day. Because today...Catra opened the door and barely had to move a pair of hangers to find the one that served as a tie rack. Blue, red, orange—that girl had one for each color of the rainbow, and one more than had all those colors together. When Catra found the one that still had the knot done, she didn't think about it anymore, she lowered it and turned around, tightening the garment with both hands with such force that it gave a strong whiplash.

"Oh, that intimidates me," Adora added, laughing and snorting that Catra wasn't sure if she was being sarcastic.

"Quiet, princess! We have begun."

Catra's tone was strict and her command allowed no playful jokes. Still, Adora pursed her lips and barely contained her nervous giggle as Catra moved closer to her with a suggestive sway of her hips.

“Hey Catra? Did I mention you have a beautiful butt? I think the proper medical term would be anatomically perfect.”

“Right now I’m your mistress!” she corrected her. “And I think I’m going to gag you too. You have a very big mouth.”

“I thought you liked that...”

“Silence!”

Adora’s giggles only made it difficult for Catra to assume her role, so she ran back to the open closet and rummaged carelessly in one of the drawers, pulling out a small scrap of cloth. She looked at it and it looked like it was a purple bikini thong, or maybe it was lavender...whatever it was, it had to be useful. She reached out with her other hand and grabbed a handful of ties, whereupon she was back at her girlfriend’s feet and quickly slid her hands into the knot of the first one, twisting a few more turns so that she was firmly tied. She then grabbed the thong and practically catapulted it into her mouth.

“Wait! What about the safeword?!”

“Forget the word!” the mistress snapped after dunking the garment into her. Adora exclaimed and jerked around trying to say something that couldn’t be understood, so Catra exhaled and calmed down before removing the bikini piece for an instant. Her voice recovered the loving and protective intent with which she whispered—“I’ll treat you well. Trust me,” and waited for Adora to say something, but the student took a deep breath and she only managed to nod. They both smiled at each other and Catra decided to take the time to kiss her gently, conscious of every gesture of pleasure or discomfort that she could perceive in Adora. When Adora showed no objection, Catra simply replaced the thong between her teeth. “I love you.”

I love you. Those three words echoed in Adora’s head and she couldn’t help but submit, due at this point in their relationship, it was increasingly difficult to tell if it was still her private joke or if it had become something more. Adora let herself go and Catra pushed her against the mattress, tucking her neatly into the center of it as her apprentice wondered what her true intention had been this time. Had Catra said it as part of the game or did she...really...did she mean it?

"I'll blindfold you too," said the brunette, who had already lifted Adora's arms above her head and tied them to the bars of her headboard.

Adora nodded once more and the third tie was pulled around her head, leaving her momentarily in darkness. Her body trembled, oscillating between hot and cold every time she felt Catra's skin brush against or away from her. She wasn't going to deny that she was a little afraid—fearful of a new experience, totally and abysmally far from what she had imagined for her first time. But it was also something extraordinary and exciting that made her want more. Somehow, every rise and fall of her emotions had made every cell in her body alert and vibrate so pleasantly that she could become addicted to it. Endorphin, serotonin, dopamine, oxytocin...and oh yeah, good old adrenaline..., Adora smiled to herself as she thought of the usefulness of her theory classes, since, at that very moment, she was putting it into practice. Would Catra know what her erogenous zones were and where to touch her? With how much force?...What the hell?! Even Adora didn't know all that about herself. She had to trust Catra and let her help her figure it out.

"Where did you put that hideous feathered hat you wore on the walk the other day?" The question took Adora completely out of her train of thought. What role did the damn hat play in this affair? If she could have spoken, she would have asked. "Oh, there it is!"

Adora felt the mattress return to its normal shape as Catra pulled away and the silence began to grow unbearable. "Kmha?" she wanted to call her. Ten seconds passed, then twenty, and there was no sign of Catra. "Egh kmha?!" The call was more desperate the second time.

“Calm down, Adora. I’ll be with you soon.”

Uff, Adora’s soul returned to her chest and her heart stopped aching. How nice it was to hear that voice conforting her. And what madness! Anyone would say there was something off about her, but actually that little heart attack had changed her body chemistry for the better. She was hot and her rapid breathing only made her blood pump harder. The bed dipped from the right side of her and tingles of anticipation went up all four of her limbs to the center of her body. That had to be the moment! Catra would eventually possess her and Adora intended to allow her everything. She slightly spread her legs and inhaled deeply. I’m ready.

However, Adora’s skin twitched as the touch of a hundred threads began to run from the contours of her face downward. She shuddered automatically.

“Relax,” Catra instructed, while Adora felt very clearly a pair of thighs against her sides, followed by the brunette’s velvety curls and warm sex as she sat on her pelvis. If it wasn't for the stopper in her mouth, Adora probably would have said a harsh word...but in a good way. “Don’t rush it. Just enjoy it.”

Don’t rush? Don’t rush?! You may not be in a hurry, but I’m the one helplessly tied up! Adora’s silent complaints made her jerk as if she wanted to get rid of her new makeshift rider. Still, Catra clung to her saddle and tried to pin her down by pressing her feet against the blonde’s hips. After one last tantrum, Adora finally resigned herself and softened her body. To be fair, that caress on her jugular, gliding smoothly to her shoulder and back to the opposite side, didn’t feel bad at all. It was pleasurable and made her want to be touched in other places where she could enjoy it even more—her sensitive parts were crying out for it. Then Adora moaned with a distinctly demanding undertone, and Catra clenched her knees, like someone training a horse. From princess to noble steed. What an ogre I married!,[6] growled the blondie, with the complicity of her gag.

"Adora, don't forget who your mistress is. Submit to me and you will have what you want. If you object, we'll talk all night. How long do you think until dawn?"

Oh shit, that's true! We started very late. Catra will have to leave before breakfast and I have an anatomy class at ten...

"You're not going to move anymore, are you?"

"Mmnnh," Adora shook her head.

"And you're going to be patient and enjoy everything I do with you, right?"

That required a little more willpower, but Adora ended up nodding her chin in the affirmative. "Mmh...khey."

"That's my girl. Now I'm going to remove the gag and you will only speak to answer my questions. If you complain again, it's game over."

Another microinfarct. Would Catra really be evil enough to leave her naked, tied up, and unsatisfied? Shit, shit, shit...! She cursed to herself once more because...just because. Because Adora allowed herself to curse in her mind. Where no one else heard.

"Are we clear?"

"Eeah!" Adora squealed, getting a giggle from Catra that she thankfully couldn't see. "Ow...owh..." Her jaw ached due the time it was open, but she didn't say anything else.

Catra took the bikini piece from Adora's mouth and tossed it somewhere. Adora felt a small caress on her lips and identified both the softness and fullness of Catra's—what tasted like a good reset. And as for the caress that had strayed its way to her bust, it found the return passage and began to meander between her breasts, circling them one by one slowly until the thin filaments climbed to the top of one of these and concentrated on the areola, making it even more rigid under the exquisite touch.

"Now do you understand why I said your ugly hat could only be used for one thing? I'm glad you listened to me when I asked you not to throw it away."

So you have taken one of its feathers to use on me. Ha! How smart is my girl. But...could you use it down? Mistress? I'm going to melt...I can't take it anymore. Adora was already hallucinating and biting her lip not to say what her body was screaming. How could Catra not notice the way she undulated desperately beneath her?

"Do you want me to come down?"

Dammit! Perhaps Catra had learned to read her thoughts. If so, Adora would probably have to say goodbye to the shelter of curses and horny thoughts. Thus, just in case, she tried to blank her mind.

How hard could it be?

"Okay. You're doing very well now. I think it's time I rewarded you. But first..." Catra rose from her comfortable seat, and the cool air from the alcove hit Adora with heartbreaking rawness.

No please. Don't go. Adora would have swallowed her dignity to keep from losing that warmth. But she was forced to remain silent and all she could do was tense herself against the rope that held her hands.

"Don't move," Catra ordered, again using her wicked inflection. "If you wanted a record of this day, you're going to have it."

There was a snapshot, then another and another, and Adora recognized it. That sound could not be anything other than the unmistakable camera effect of her phone. The device had apparently survived the fall and was in Catra's hands for who knows what evil purposes. Adora's shyness surfaced at this circumstance and she tried to hide her face behind one of her biceps, while her thighs came together and she turned her waist so as not to expose herself anymore. At that instant, only one thought crossed Catra's head—If Adora felt uncomfortable with this, she would use the safeword, right? Or...did she believe that she had to forget it? To make sure, the brunette decided to ask, although she did it with her very particular style.

"I'm not going to complain, I look very good in the video you took. But this, Adora...This photo session of yours is worth gold. You look so beautiful. You're the most amazing being I have ever seen in my life." Catra lowered the lens and peered over the device, searching for a reaction. Adora seemed to be stifling her moans and her wrists had turned red under the tether. It was probably time to stop. "Adora, the photos are on your phone, you can delete them whenever you want." The blonde didn't say anything, but every part of her body looked noticeably tense. "Adora, you can talk now, do you want me to stop?"

Adora exhaled in pauses, and it was obvious how difficult it was for her to muster the energy to respond. "N-no..."

Chapter End Notes

[6] This is one more reference to Shrek Saga, specifically a mix of dialogues between movies 1 and 2. And it also alludes to the first chapter of this Valentine's special, in which Adora dreamed that she had married Catra. ↑

Said She Loves Me

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Catra was taken by surprise. She was actually beginning to believe that she had overreached and that she had broken her promise not to hurt her, but Adora said no in that weak, hesitant whisper that Catra wasn't sure she understood. What did that no mean? Don't stop? Don't continue? Please finish the sentence! But when the rest of the answer didn't come, the confused mistress got tired of waiting. "So what do you want, Adora? Do you want me to...?"

"—fuck me."

The second whisper left her stunned. "Sorry, what...? What did you say?"

"Fuck me!" Adora yelled, stealing her turn, and she was also quite terse in specifying, "now!"

"By all the blessed táltos! About time!" Catra agreed, throwing herself with her entire body into Adora's existence to try to untie her hands.

"No! Leave them like that!" the blonde implored her. "Or I'll leave your back in tatters!"

"Good point."

Catra gave up on releasing her and focused on her lips to take as much of them as she could. Adora didn't even complain when Catra's fang caught on her lower lip and ended up making her a small cut as she desperately lunged for her throat. Adora shuddered beneath her and was only aware of one thing—that was finally happening. In that country far, far away. In the last room of her studentdormitory. With Catra. Her true love.

"Don't stop. Please. Go all the way." [7]

Oh, for the whole Hungarian, Norse and Greco-Roman pantheon! How could Adora set her on fire when she beg like that? Catra just didn't have the heart not to please her. She lay down on the blonde's right side and placed her thigh between the powerful, trembling legs, where Adora was gathering the moisture of her own arousal. The mistress pressed in and her slave gasped in ecstasy. Immediately, Catra placed a hand over the curve of Adora's left breast and clung to it, molding its shape in firm circles as her thumb worked against the button at the top. Adora squirmed under Catra's weight, who recognized the cues of pleasure that quickly set its own pace as her pelvis began to rise, demanding more strength and speed.

"Not yet," Catra murmured, sinking her teeth into that throbbing vein at the base of Adora's neck.

"Catra, please...please."

Catra smiled against her skin and licked hungrily at the small, dotted mark she'd just left there.

Adora's taste was so exquisite that Catra couldn't wait to eat her completely either. "What I'm trying to say is that the best part is yet to come, dear." She dropped to all fours and secretly gloated when Adora's legs spread open for her. "Good girl."

"Mngh! Catra...what's taking so long?"

Catra barely barked a giggle. "So demanding. But that's okay. You've earned it." She then lowered her head to capture in her mouth the nipple she had previously ignored and her skillful hand trailed up Adora's hard, perfectly sculpted abdomen to the mons where she was solicited.

Adora exhaled in surprise when Catra's fingers slipped into her folds without any resistance. The small moan that the student released was only the preamble to another series of suggestive sighs that were accentuated with each touch, and with each small bite, with which Catra rammed the pearls of her body. Gold and turquoise eyes searched Adora's expression at her performance and lamented that she couldn't see them the same way. Catra enjoyed Adora so much, her Little gestures, the color of her voice swooning for her, that Catra also wanted Adora to see herself inside the jaws of her best and only lover. So she, spurred on by her pride, or perhaps to show her off, reached up to snatch the blindfold from Adora's eyes and toss it to the ground. Instantly, Catra released her bosom and leaned fully to nestle between her thighs. There she slipped her arms under Adora and held her firmly.

"Looks like you're mine now, Adora," the cat-girl purred, burying her face between Adora's legs without another word and fighting to hold back the spasm that rocked her hip. Catra even thought she heard something break, but the blonde's scream didn't sound like pain.

"Ooh! Catra...God!" What fun. The unintentional pun made Catra laugh and that vibration hit the swollen lump of the girl directly. "Mngh...Catra..."

The brunette imagined that if Adora was truly linked to the gods, then the flavor and aroma emanating from her must be ambrosia. Hence, she had to hurry to find out and she moved inland, beginning to brush the margins of the unexplored cavern with her tongue until she came face to face with the great guardian. Catra had never seen anything like it in real life. The delicate membrane covered more than half of the entrance and had only two small holes through which not even a finger could pass without causing some damage. How did she not think of that before? She and Adora had talked so many times about her first time, and Catra had never stopped to ask what Adora wanted her to do with her body. Catra was an idiot. However, she also didn't want to break the atmosphere by stopping to ask, not when Adora was so vulnerable and needy—she didn't want an answer slanted by emotion. The young mistress had to do better than that. So she stopped blaming herself and at that point she opted not to take it all at once, preferring to focus on licking and kissing the rest of her intimacy, which wasn't disappointing at all. On the contrary, Adora's sex did not seem to suffer from Catra's decision and reacted with delight to her mouth. The ambrosia oozed deliciously from inside her temple.

Catra got so drunk on her that she didn't expect Adora to suddenly grab her by the top of her head, clinging to her short hair. Catra could barely look up to see her over her pubes. Adora was looking at her too, her body and her legs curling up stiffly as her meek little lamb face kept that bright crimson color. When had she been untied? Ah, it didn't matter anymore. Catra had no intention of keeping her waiting. She adjusted her lips to the tender cherry that had grown under her attentions and she was quick to devour it, sucking and kneading at the same time. She concentrated on reading the vibration of her muscles, the speed of her breathing, and she knew that Adora was at the edge of the cliff. Catra had to blow her up in the next minute. For, besides, she appreciated her splendid lion's mane so much, she feared it would be torn off by the enthusiastic hands of her...prey.

She's close. I can feel it.

"Catra! Just like this!"

Just a little more...

"Oh!" The moans were getting louder, increasingly urgent.

She's shaking...it's now...

And suddenly...silence...Adora stopped breathing. Her legs went rigid as steel and her body began to arch. The explosion happened—"Aaah!!!" Oh! Catraaaa...!!!" which caused the earthquake that shook every last stone of her precious divine precinct. "More! More!...No! No more!...Fuck it, Catraaa!!!"

What confusing instructions! What was Adora supposed to want at that very moment when she was convulsing? Whatever, Catra had long ago adopted that saying about, It's better to have more than not enough. So she kept holding on to the pulsing bulb despite Adora shaking as if she wanted to get rid of the pests. Was that a good idea? Depends on perspective, as Adora shuddered again and her scream tore at her throat—turning into a strangled scream from lack of air. Catra, for her part, thought for a second that her head would collapse as Adora's thighs overcame her grasp and pressed savagely against her temples. Agonizing moments that after a bit brought peace...finally.

Catra released her hostage and the girl collapsed against the mattress. It wouldn't be false to say that there wasn't enough oxygen for both of them in that room, but Adora resisted and then —overcome by the tingling that still ran through her fibers—she sighed. Catra, meanwhile, was fighting against the beating of her own heart, which seemed to want to leave her to join Adora. In reality, they both longed for that embrace, in such a way that the brunette pounced on the other woman, who received her effusively in her arms and guided her face so that she would kiss her without delay—without giving Catra time or excuses to remove the taste in her mouth. If either of them had wanted to say something, they simply forgot it to give themselves over to the passion that still hadn't completely left them.

After a long and increasingly reassuring kiss, Catra was the first to speak. "Hey, are you okay?"

Adora gave her a goofy little smile and nodded repeatedly. "Catra...that...that was...Wow!" She still hadn't fully caught her breath, albeit she couldn't ignore the wonderful feeling of love and contentment that filled her. "I mean, I...sometimes...I touch myself. But this...this I've never felt before. This was...Oh my god...!"

“Correction, I’m a Magyar goddess,” Catra interrupted, trying to joke. However, Adora’s eyes clouded over and a small puddle dripped from them. Catra hesitated, fearing the worst. “B-but...why are you crying? Did I hurt you? D-you didn’t like what I did? I’ll not treat you like this again! I swear!”

“N-no...it’s not that,” Adora gasped and wiped her tears with one of her wrists, where the knot of the tie was still. She had broken it at any point in her passion and she didn’t even seem to care.

At least not as much as Catra, who took note of the enormous physical strength of her companion—Don’t make Adora angry. I get it.

“I don’t...I don’t know why I’m crying...” the blonde continued. “You are amazing. I just—”

“To much intense?” Catra completed, to which Adora nodded. “It’s alright, calm down. Breathe. This can happen sometimes. Just tell me...” The hint of insecurity detracted from her gallantry a bit, but Catra finally asked the question. “Did you like it?”

Adora whimpered just one more time and glanced at her, gathering the strength to respond with all her sarcasm. “No, I was squirming because I was itchy and you wouldn’t let me scratch it. Plus...you have a horrible butt and you smell like unicorn poop.”

Catra froze at the unexpected attack, but after a moment they both began to laugh and the wave of happiness washed away each tear, as well as the last embers of the fire that had consumed them an instant before. Catra plopped down next to Adora and they both began to gaze at the little granules and scratches on the ceiling, with the same fascination a starry night would cause them. The feeling of complicity between them was totally and absolutely indisputable. They didn’t even need to get into the issue to understand that everything was perfect.

“Did you do that?” Catra pointed to a particularly large notch.

“Yeah.”

“Hammer?”

Adora denied and corrected immediately. “Sword.” The cat-girl widened her eyes and turned to her girlfriend, who smiled back. “Ahm...I don’t mean the safeword. In fact, I have a real sword in the closet. It’s part of my cosplay costume.”

“Cosplay? Can I see it?” inquired the brunette.

Though, Adora smiled in a strange, peculiar and even evil way before responding with a slight hint. “Maybe next time we can use it.” So Catra seemed to cringe as she realized what Adora was doing—the pupil learned very quickly. “You blushed?”

“Agh...No!”

“You did it!”

“I said no! And better sleep if you want to be lucid in your classes!” Catra scolded, as she pushed Adora under the covers. “Also, tomorrow you’ll be sore all over your body. You need to rest.”

“Okay okay. But come here.”

Catra didn’t need to be pushed. She grabbed the edge of the blanket and climbed into bed, hanging onto Adora’s back as if she were her lifeline...her hero. Albeit, Adora saw it differently and smiled at the thought of being the little spoon. In a way, she liked feeling protected by her because she was Catra, her girlfriend, her teacher in matters of love, and perhaps the partner with whom she wanted to write her fairy tale.

Could that be possible?

“Hey Adora,” Catra called, stretching as Adora turned to steal a kiss from her. “I love you.”

Adora’s lips pursed and her eyes filled with emotion. What greater joy was that?! That feeling of fullness that vibrated in her chest and never seemed to stop.

At that very moment, Adora no longer had any doubts. They would live happily ever after.

“I love you too.”

Chapter End Notes

[7] Did you notice? Adora has quoted the title from an old Raspberries song, which you can also find on the soundtrack of the first Guardians of the Galaxy movie (from the Marvel franchise). In fact, for this story, Go All The Way is Adora’s favorite song since she started dating Catra. The blonde couldn’t wait to say that. ↑

So Then I Fallen In Reason

The morning sun had filtered through the apertures in the blind and painted the bed with horizontal stripes, wich twisted between the wrinkles in the sheets where the couple of women rested. Catra's deep, relaxed breathing rippled through the air like waves on a beach. A muffled groan and a faint electronic noise was all it took to wake up the cat that had nested behind the blonde girl's back. Her eyes widened reluctantly, but she soon tightened her arms around Adora's waist, who tensed her body as she realized that her mate had snapped back to reality.

"Hey, Miss Sunshine," the hoarse and particularly sensual voice of the young brunette made the other girl giggle. "You can't sleep?" Catra ran her hand up Adora's torso until she reached her chest, just between her breasts, and found it warm and soft. Too tempting for just one morning. The scent of Adora's body was a mix between the sweat they had exchanged a few hours ago and the sweet musk that still danced in Catra's mouth, and she supposed that if she could sleep so peacefully wrapped in that fragrance, Adora herself would be comfortable too—having chosen to stay in bed instead of taking another shower. So what could have disturbed her dreams? Catra leaned in closer to kiss the part of her neck that peeked out from under her hair and then she opened her mouth more than necessary. "What's wrong?" she asked, and the vibration of the warm breath made Adora shiver.

Then the little blonde filled her lungs with air, like you do when you need the courage to do something daring, only she did it so her voice wouldn't lose strength. "I just..." she cleared her throat, "I just deleted the video I took of you getting out of the shower," she breathed out before continuing. "It sounded good in my head, but I...I wasn't thinking straight. I should have asked you first. And yet...I know you hate cameras. That was wrong. I'm sorry."

Such a radical change in mood squeezed Catra's heart, but she also did not find an argument with which to contradict her partner. In any case, she had to say something that was true for both of them. She flexed the arm she had against the mattress and lifted her body, resting her weight on one elbow so she could lean into Adora's range of vision. "Hey, I don't hate photos at all. I just think that a lot of the time, people take them without considering how you feel. Sometimes they just take a bad angle and you don't want your shitty face to last forever." Adora's jaw tensed in the dim shadow of Catra, who took her shoulder and applied a little pressure to make her turn. Adora flopped onto her back, but didn't dare meet Catra's eyes and instead stared at the ceiling. Catra only cradled her cheek, knowing that she could still hear her. "I should also...you know...a-apologize for the pictures I took of you earlier. I was just trying to play your game. But, I already told you, you can delete them...you have the phone in your hand."

Adora smiled sheepishly. "I don't look so bad. I like the pictures."

Catra's gaze must have been a joke because Adora started laughing. "W-well...I'm not...I...I'm not against you taking pictures of me too," Catra stammered. "Just plan...let's plan ahead, shall we?"

Adora nodded her head several times. She then left the device between the wrinkles of the blanket and turned further as she grabbed onto Catra with both arms to push her back. Now it was the brunette who pressed her head against the pillow, though it wasn't as if Catra had put up any resistance anyway. Adora was looking at her and Catra loved those eyes full of hope that also had a filter that made her see things differently...and no, it wasn't because of the astigmatism. Actually, Adora very rarely judged and when she did she didn't have a verdict like the others. Her opinion was always nuanced, like the rainbow, and even Catra didn't fully understand it. But she loved that.

She loved learning from Adora. The only bad thing was that this filter also put Adora at a disadvantage and made her vulnerable, since she preferred to believe in the goodness and honesty of people despite her questionable acts—Catra was the greatest proof of that. However, the redemption that Adora gave her was the biggest reason why Catra set out to protect her. If the world sucked, Catra couldn't blame her for not seeing it. Instead, Catra would be in charge of pulverizing every rock and dismembering every villain who tried to harm Adora. That was her mission.

Catra closed her eyes and let Adora come closer at her own speed, until their mouths met. The first morning kiss felt a little awkward. Their lips lacked moisture, but Catra solved it by using the tip of her tongue to moisten Adora's before licking her own. That was a peculiar sensation. Was it normal that the essence of their breaths hardly mattered to them? Although, it wasn't an unpleasant fragrance, but a kind of mark of the chemistry of their bodies that they had already become accustomed to. Catra deepened the kiss and then Adora's tongue slipped inside her, imposing. Catra moaned without thinking, and the loss of control made her jerk her head away. Her nervous giggle added to the frank blush already flooding Adora's complexion and her suddenly mischievous grin. Catra glanced at the analog clock on the wall, one with an old japanese writing background from the Neon Genesis Evangelion anime, and she pondered the time.

"Adora, you...Do you want to...? We? Right now? Doesn't it matter that you're late for class?"

The blonde sighed ruefully before she lowered her head and slid under Catra's chin, where she closed her eyes and inhaled her aroma, hugging her waist. Catra's warmth was so comforting, and her bare breasts, soft, perfect, looked like the greatest temptation in Eden. "Mngh...no. We shouldn't," she said primly. "D.T. will fire you if you don't get there before the restaurant opens."

Catra cradled Adora's head and placed a kiss in her golden hair. "We can do it tonight. My mom won't even care if I don't come home two days in a row."

"Oh really?"

“Yeah. I can get off work earlier and we can skip the boring part of watching movies...” When Catra realized that she might ruin it, she hastened to correct what she said. “I’m not saying that yesterday was a dull day! You-your Shrek is very funny, I just want to tell you that...”

Adora began to laugh against her breasts and Catra’s skin prickled as she felt the wind filtering between them. “Okay, relax.” So Catra did it...or she tried to. She exhaled and concentrated on holding the girl in her arms. They were both silent and then Adora found the audacity to place her palm on the brown nipple that was only inches from her face. And though her touch was driven by soft, comforting affection rather than lust, Catra couldn’t contain the moan that was lost in the blonde hair. “Do you really want to see me in my She-Ra cosplay?” Adora asked suddenly, pressing the nipple between her fingertips. “You’ll have to be a good girl if you don’t want me to punish you.”

Catra’s face tightened, as if she hadn’t felt that pang that tugged at her nerves to the center of her soul. “Since when do rabbits hunt tigers? Uh?” she tried to reply.

“Do rabbits and tigers share a habitat? I have to look into that.” Adora returned with genuine curiosity and Catra laughed helplessly. She took Adora’s hand and put it around her waist without the girl resisting. Adora thought that hugging Catra was also nice, a thousand times better than just sleeping hugging her pillow thinking about her. “Hey Catra,” Adora spoke again, this time in a lower tone, almost brooding. “Last night...why didn’t you enter me?” Catra’s laugh stopped instantly and Adora could hear her heart begin to beat faster. She broke free of the brown arms and turned enough to rest her elbows on the bed and lift half of her body. This time her gaze was locked on Catra’s startled, mismatched eyes.

Catra barely opened her mouth, but she was speechless, feeling for an instant as in that interrogation in front of the court prosecutor that had cornered her for three entire days. “W-what are you talking about, Adora?" She had the answer, but she didn't know how to say it.

"What's wrong with me?!" Adora insisted.

"No! Don't say that!" Catra rose up on one elbow, hastening to look at her with the same guilty intonation as her past. "There's absolutely nothing wrong with..."

"Then why?" Adora's doubt was heard as a plea. "I was wondering that before you woke up. Do you also think that I'm not ready for this? That I'm not mature enough?"

"Who says that? Your friend Glitter?"

"My mom." Adora fell face down against the pillow, her voice barely escaping through the pores of the fabric. "She never wanted me to move to Budapest. She said I couldn't fend for myself. She was even afraid that I would meet someone here and that person would take advantage of me. Glimmer tried very hard to convince her that she would take care of me." The girl lifted her head, but she didn't look at Catra, instead she held her face down and tears lingered at the edge of her eyes. "Can you believe it? My mom thinks I need a babysitter, and now...I...I thought someone was finally seeing me as an adult."

"Hey! Adora, Adora...! It's not what you think!" Catra cupped Adora's face with her free hand. "Adora, look at me." But Adora rolled her eyes to the side, unable to comply with the request. When the brunette realized that she was demanding too much of her, she simply reached out to her and hugged Adora to her chest. She did it so firmly, frightened Adora would slip away at the slightest opportunity, that she paid no attention to the way her fingers traced her pale back, or to the whimper that escaped the girl. All Catra knew was that she had to be honest and quite clear on this. "I...I was afraid." The blonde shuddered, but Catra didn't let go. "Even though we were playing to...dominate you...or whatever, I didn't want to hurt you. We never talked about what you really wanted, and I...I just made a quick decision." Catra placed her cheek on Adora's head and nuzzled gently against it as she withdrew the force from her arms. "You're definitely an impressive woman—fearless, self-sufficient and very, very sensual. And I can't wait to be inside you too. But we can always do it another day, when you tell me exactly how you want me to do it, or when we try something different."

Fearless, self-sufficient, and sensual, Catra had said, just the words Adora knew, that Catra knew, Adora wanted to hear. Well, the young blonde wasn't going to underestimate Catra's effort to make her feel better. In fact, it had worked, so she smiled sheepishly and wiped her eyes against the skin of her mate. "Something different?" Adora sobbed with a hoarse voice from her comfortable refuge. "Something like...a strap-on?"

Catra's brow creased and she tilted her head to meet Adora's face, who simply looked at her through pursed lips. If it wasn't for the fact that Adora couldn't lie, Catra would have thought that the above was just a cunning way of getting to this point. Although, on the other hand, Adora knew how to act very well when she put her mind to it, so..."How do we jump from song to song until we get to the strap?"

"It's something two grown women like us could wear, isn't it? I mean, besides dressing up as heroines and tying themselves to bed rails."

Catra chuckled. She was pleased that she had made Adora feel better about herself and put aside her issues with her mother—which she knew was real. However, she was a little unsure where they were going. She took a deep breath and after a moment she took the reins. "Yes you're right. But based on what I saw down there, I think trying to get a mast in there could be very painful the first time."

"My gynecologist said the same thing," Adora replied, and Catra's eyes widened at the unexpected new revelation. So seriously, how far were they going to go if they kept going like this? Until knowing that Adora really did descend from a lineage of immaculate goddesses? Well, whatever, Catra would want to know that story too if necessary. "Although..." Adora resumed, "she also said that I could try it on my own whenever I wanted, and just in case it turned out to be very...uhm...difficult, then I could resort to surgery." Adora took the opportunity that Catra had already withdrawn her forces, and leaned back to see what reaction the brunette might have. At seeing her shocked expression, Adora smiled trying to comfort her. "But don't worry. I'm sure that won't be necessary. We just have to try."

"Uhm, well...it's good that you tell me this now."

Sarcasm or not, Adora knew she couldn't hold it against her. "I'm sorry. I wanted to avoid this conversation so as not to worry you. I thought if you only used your fingers you wouldn't even notice. But...you already know."

Catra took some time to think as she sat up, not caring that the blankets only covered her legs. She looked at the clock a second time and tried to make her voice sound as casual despite the circumstance. "Adora, it's time to get up. We have the 9 o'clock bus to catch and you'll probably want to take a shower before we go."

The blonde sat up anyway and gingerly put her hand on the other woman's shoulder. Luckily for her, Catra didn't pull away from her or show discomfort. "Are things okay between us? Did what I did bother you?"

Catra shook her head, but she bit her lip slightly. "I'm just...taking it in. Could you just take that shower and leave me alone for a moment?"

Adora felt the sting of that response in her chest, even though she only pushed the covers aside to climb down the other side of the bed. Her whitish body under the sunbeam passed before Catra's gaze, who, however, was captured by the shine of her golden strands and the enchanting sway of her hip until the door closed behind her. We're making a real drama out of all this, aren't we? Catra told herself, flopping back on the bed.

She’s my Beloved Monster

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Adora didn’t want to pay attention to the sound of the water crashing against the tile of the bathtub, or the sound of the bubbles of her shampoo bursting against her hair, or those thoughts that were repeated underneath, pointing out how inadequate and stupid she had behaved in front of Catra. Why did I have to say all those things? If I want her to see me as a woman, why am I acting like a girl around her? Despite the fun we had last night, I don’t even understand why I started crying. What a shame...

“I hate being like this,” she added aloud. Then she began humming from the bottom of her throat, trying to get the noise in her head to find some outlet and leave her alone for a while. Soon, she and Catra would have to say goodbye and what she least wanted was for her face to reflect the anguish that was beginning to grow inside her. “Please. I don’t wanna go back there,” she blurted out at that moment, quoting at full speed some of Donkey’s dialogues, Shrek’s friend. “You don’t know what it’s like to be considered a freak...Well, maybe you do, but that’s why we gotta stick together. You gotta let me stay!” she finished wiping her face and she just leaned over a bit so the water wouldn’t block the rest of her lines. “C’mon, princess, you’re not that ugly. All right, you are ugly. But you’re only like this at night. Shrek’s ugly 24/7.”

“Adora? Who are you talking to?” The sudden question left the blonde speechless. But on the other side of the door, Catra understood what was happening and decided not to insist. Ever since they met, Catra always thought that her girlfriend’s peculiar habit of repeating phrases and quotes was too cute to break the magic with her mere presence. “I figured maybe we could shower together, but if you’d rather be alone, I can wait.”

“No!” Adora responded on impulse and realized how desperate she must have sounded, so she cleared her throat and softened her tone. “I mean, it’s late, I’m fine with you coming in.” The door slid between them and they both looked at each other again as if it were the first time. Only this occasion Catra found herself faced with a look that reminded her of a wet puppy, which was not conscious information to Adora, who concentrated on Catra’s agile and precise movements as she stepped into the tub. “I thought cats didn’t like water,” she tried to tease, even if her voice didn’t have enough amusement for it.

Catra laughed anyway. “Well, we don’t mind getting wet if our girlfriend is making that sad face in the rain. Tell me, are you okay?”

“Yeah.” Adora turned her back and made as if she washed her arms. She still didn’t have the energy to hold a frontal conversation. “I’m about to finish, but you can stay for...” Catra’s hands sliding against her abs canceled her action.

“I want to be with you. I want to do everything with you,” Catra whispered, settling herself against Adora’s back and buttocks, who inhaled sharply as she was surprised by that embrace. Catra clung on even tighter. “I want to start again next to you. Learn together. I...” She needed a pause and huffed before continuing. “I’m going to take care of you, not like a kid who needs to be watched over. I’ll take care of you like my mate. So trust me and tell me exactly what you want, and when you want it.”

Adora put her hand to her chest, flattered for the umpteenth time that Catra promised to know more about her and her divergence since their first date, when after talking for over an hour, between Adora’s cappuccino, Catra’s Coke and the black cat that accompanied them, the blonde dropped the bomb—I’m autistic!— And although Catra kept her own secrets at first and only listened, now she was much more open and dared to say absurdly romantic things like that. It seemed only fair that Adora would also be honest and speak her mind, instead of keeping quiet as others had tried to force her to do when she was a child.

“Right now?” Adora asked. Catra nodded her head against her damp hair, indicating yes. “Right now...” Adora continued and placed her hands on Catra’s. “I...” she pushed down until the brunette reached her lower belly, “—I need more.” Catra looked up in confusion, but Adora held onto her right arm and didn’t let her get away. “Just a bit? Please?”

But Adora didn’t even have to ask like that for Catra to grant her every wish. When Catra was able to speak again, she only muttered. “How far do I have to go?”

“Do you promise we’ll get a strap-on?”

Catra wasn’t here to deny Adora anything. Absolutely nothing. “Whenever you want.”

“So...” the female descendant of the gods savored the words as she indicated how she wanted to close out their day of love. “Touch me just on the outside. It will be worth the wait.” Since the brunette had already understood that there was no room for silly questions, she merged with Adora’s body and moved the hand on her own until her fingers rested on the slit that passed between Adora’s legs. That way, Catra stroked back and forth, drawing its length as she located the right place to slip between the folds. Adora’s low moan was the signal for Catra to sink her middle finger and press the small strawberry where the most sensitive fibers of pleasure were concentrated. “Harder,” Adora demanded. “Make it quick...or we’ll be late.”

Catra chuckled against the golden strands, but complied immediately. Adora only managed to cover her mouth realizing that she would start to moan loudly.

“Turn off the faucet or we’re both going to drown in here,” Catra teased, watching the shaky way Adora leaned forward and dangled from the knobs. “Good girl.”

“You...” Adora gasped, “you too...will be...”

“Not today, princess.” Still laughing, Catra stood on tiptoes and opened her mouth to bite the lower part of the Adora’s neck, who let out the first of the screams that soon filled the small bathroom.

* * * * * * *

Cheeks still flushed, Adora took one last look at her girlfriend and she winked before seeing the blonde get off the bus at the Március 15 stop. Hopefully, Adora would make it to her anatomy class on time and D.T. would have died during the night so as not to chide Catra for being late. Although that last part could not be so, since after a few minutes and a short walk to the beautiful wooded area that led to D’Alessio, the great snake emerged.

“Oh look who dares to show her face this morning.” The vermin spat its venom as soon as Catra walked through the front door. Albeit in contrast, the smell of coffee hung in the air and the familiar noise of the espresso machine could be heard in the background, while the dozen circular tables and their pristine white tablecloths were ready to receive the first diners. “And she also has the audacity to enter customer doors,” the claim continued.

“What’s wrong? I thought if you had fired me, I could still come here to consume.”

“Ha ha,” D.T. quipped with her usual reptilian diva inflection. “Is that what you want, Kitten? Get fired? You know it wouldn’t be that easy. You would still have to appear in court to justify your status and you would be forced to serve elsewhere. That is, if they don’t change their mind and finally put you behind bars.”

Catra's mouth twisted in reluctance and she headed down the kitchen hallway next to the poisonous entity. In the end, D.T. entered them office and Catra stepped into her safe zone, where she snorted in relief when she heard the swinging doors close. She rolled up her sleeves and opened the first little closet door to pull out her chef's jacket, which she quickly placed over her tight black blouse.

As expected, the kitchen was one large room in light colors, bordered by long shelves filled with utensils and appliances for professional use, while in the center were a pair of kitchen islands equipped with their stoves, grills, and fryers. Some columns differentiated the kitchen from the dishwashing area and another preparations, where the service room and two refrigerators the size of small closets were also located. As long as the employee area, where Catra was, was just a narrow space with a row of lockers to the side of the entrance.

"Hey, the boss's here," announced the Second Chef, a stocky Caribbean girl containing her dreadlocks inside a fishnet cap, who crossed in front of Catra with a pot nearly full of water.

"I told you!" Kyle snapped, poking his blond head out from behind the farthest islet, giving Catra the impression that the scrawny boy had been hiding, or perhaps was cleaning some mess on the ground. "Catra is never absent. Sure, she may be late, but she never leaves us alone. Looks like you won't have to take care of everything anymore, Lonnie," he crooned brightly, addressing the woman with the pot.

"Yeah, whatever," discarded the girl.

"Wait, I'm not the only one who's late. Where is Octavia?" Catra looked everywhere without finding her, which considering the bulky size of that woman, was the clear sign that she couldn't be anywhere.

"The Station Chef called in sick," Lonnie replied. "I think it was because of the shellfish that she prepared herself."

The vein on Catra's forehead began to swell so strongly that it could be seen from afar. "What about Sans?"

"In D.T.'s office," Kyle hastened to reply, not really understanding what he was revealing. Catra hit her face with the palm of her hand. "And where do we start, boss?"

"What?! Haven't you made the breakfast menu?!" Catra barked. "And am I the only one under D.T.'s eye?! Kyle, have you finished washing the dishes that were left over from last night?! I shouldn't have let you put it off until today!"

"Almost done!" he screeched.

"As for Rogelio, where the hell is he?!" Catra called and the big, muscular man of Latino descent came out of the small utility room with a pair of mops. His stern look and that scowl that curved his mouth down didn't meant nothing to the chef in charge, who just showing one of her fangs made the man lower his head. "What are you doing here?! Take your menu cards and go to the dining room! Customers are not long in coming!"

Rogelio gave a low grunt and dropped the mops, which Kyle ran to pick up. Lonnie walked over to the giant and gave his arm a light squeeze, completely changing the vibe of the boy that nodded calmly and took the stack of books lined up inside its rack on the wall. He then disappeared through the door ignoring Catra, who only narrowed her eyes at her subordinate. Lonnie shrugged and laughed.

"I wish Rogelio knew how to speak Hungarian. Then maybe he would understand what you want."

Catra snorted, rubbed her temples, and turned to her locker for the chef mushroom hat that completed her outfit. "Okay, let's get to work!" she raised her voice, but this time it didn't sound sullen. It was more like the voice a leader needs to wake people up to the start of a new day.

* * * * * * *

It must have been about ten minutes when, just after chopping the vegetables and lighting the fire, a vibration in the back pocket of her pants insisted that she should answer the phone. Catra peered to the sides, and realizing that no one was looking, slipped backwards until she took cover behind a column, where she took the device and typed a message.

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:17 am i can't reply right now but I can text what's going on Adora?

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 11:18 am

all good?

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:18 am

Wow, what a cold response.
After our night of love?
Isn't there a kiss or...something? 😽

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:19 am

i asked if everything is ok and I also send you a kiss and a hug...or whatever you want how are you? you need something?

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:19 am

you feel good???

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:20 am

Ok ok...
That's enough attention already. 😹

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:20 am

I just want to know if we can go shopping.
Pixie Ears gave you permission to go out?

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:21 am

I already checked the store's website and there is soooo much to choose from. ❤️ ❤️ ❤️ We'll have to get there early to see it all. 😉

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:22 am

were you reviewing the catalog in the middle of your class???!!! i thought you were worried they wouldn't let you in

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:22 am

It's a review class.
I already know it all.

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:23 am

you're so weird...

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:23 am

Thank you honey~ 😽

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:24 am

So what do you say?
Do you want to come to the University for me?
Or do we meet in front of the Bad in Bed directly?

"Catra, table three wants to know if they can change their order." Lonnie's sudden request made Catra almost drop her phone. "Catra? Where are you?"

"Hey, here," she replied as she randomly picked up a large spoon and showed only half of her body by the corner of the pillar. Her hidden hand, glued to the phone, was trying to type blindly. "What's wrong with the order?"

“Nothing. Looks like the girl changed her mind. What will you tell her?”

“Let her order what she wants. I’ll cook it right now.”

“The new note is already here.” Lonnie waved the paper and then slammed it against the chef’s table. “I’ll have Rogelio tell them that the food will be ready in twenty because of the change. Do you think it’s fine? That will buy you some time.”

Catra pondered on that. Normally, she would get angry and take Lonnie’s condescension as an insult, plus her pride would make her have the entire menu in just fifteen minutes. However, at that precise moment, the head chef had something much more important to attend to than her work and an exchange of arguments.

“Okay,” she replied flatly.

And though Lonnie raised both eyebrows in disbelief, the fake smile Catra made scared her enough to make her run away. Catra returned to her matter and clicked her tongue at seeing that she had pressed send without realizing it.

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:26 am

muy ghirrlfrgind wwiill nopt b slone un fgronyt yo s sex hop

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:27 am

Sex?! Right now?!
By phone?
Catra, you sure are going fast...

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:29 am

THAT'S NOT WHAT I SAID!!!

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:29 am

😹😹😹

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:31 am i meant that I won't keep you waiting in front of a sex shop exposed to the perverts that pass by i'll go to college for you

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:31 am

Great!
At 5?

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:31 am

alright

CATRA 🦝 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:32 am

i love you

ADORA 🐶 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:32 am

Aww~ I love me too.
💋 💋 💋

Catra smiled and shook her head, giving the blonde credit for her little joke. Although, she could also feel a slight heat on her face that wasn't caused by the burners being turned to full capacity. She felt the embarrassment of that conversation and of all the fantasies she had begun to devise since she and her girlfriend made the pact to buy adult toys. As many toys as their combined finances allowed, since as Adora had suggested on the bus, they didn't have to limit themselves to just one.

The chef put the phone back in her pocket and adjusted her hat to return to her position with all the will to do her job, at least for the rest of the day. She patted her cheeks to shake off the distractions and immediately picked up the note Lonnie had left.

"This is easy," she said proudly.

She bent to grab a clean saucepan from a shelf, just then a jolt to her bottom made her jump in fear. She reached for the phone quickly to silence it, but she automatically opened the incoming message and her eyes went as round as the onion slices that had been floating in the hot broth.

I hope this makes your day easier, said the only text that preceded the series of photos that began to cascade down the screen of the device. They all belonged to the session Catra had taken of Adora during her little bed game. Adora's arms—marked by long and slender muscles—were prisoners of the rope that held her to the bed. Her hair was beautifully tousled by the band around her head, covering her eyes, and her glossy lips seemed to plead for something inaudible. Her precious skin was bathed in a layer of sparkling dew, creating all manner of hues over every curve of her body— shadows and lights that rose and fell between her puffing breasts and her erect nipples, in need of more caresses. It was almost ironic that such an imposing figure should rest on the shy pair of hips that pulled up her legs to barely hide the marble triangle that nestled between her thighs.

Wow, it was hot in that kitchen! Catra even had to undo the top button of her jacket to fan herself with the lapel. Adora had to trust her a lot to put something more than her chastity in her hands. Or maybe it was just part of that trait that prevented her from identifying the danger and exposed her to threats from the outside world. Whatever, of all the evils spread across the planet, Adora had to meet Catra in the finale. I'll look out for you. I promise, Catra told herself. Then she closed the app and incidentally two other browser windows that she had left open, but when she was about to turn off the phone, a new message vibrated in her hand. The screen lit up and the sender's name appeared. Catra pursed her lips as she opened up the chat.

SCORPIA 🦂 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:36 am

hey Wildcat!!!!
I know u're working
but we need to talk...

Catra refrained from answering and simply waited for her friend— her beefy ex-girlfriend in fact, the woman Adora almost broke up with Catra for, to continue texting. She surely would, since she never needed an excuse to blabber.

SCORPIA 🦂 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:38 am

I think you HAVE to go to prison someday... you owe her after everything that happened
What does it cost you to visit er?????
she asked about u yesterday

SCORPIA 🦂 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:39 am

I mean Entrance

SCORPIA 🦂 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:39 am

 ENTRAPTA*

SCORPIA 🦂 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:39 am

I hate the damp autocorrect!!!!

Catra simply tossed a bunch of vegetables into her saucepan and turned on another burner where she placed a notoriously heavy skillet. She went to one of the coolers and grabbed the two fat steaks that were closest to her.

SCORPIA 🦂 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:43 am

Catra????? Are u there????
tell me somethiiing!!!!

The pan creaked loudly as the frozen water hit the hot steel, but Catra didn't even flinch at the droplets that splashed around her. Soon, blood from the meat began to ooze around the edges, as the smell filled the air. In the same way, she took a mixture of spices, salt and other things whose names only she knew, with which she seasoned the roast and quickly changed the appearance and texture of the piece of animal over the fire. Making what came from the sacrifice appetizing and nutritious...that was the job of a chef.

The phone vibrated once more.

SCORPIA 🦂 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:49 am

CATRAAA!!!!!

SCORPIA 🦂 // Feb 15, 2023 - 10:52 am

ANSWER TO MEEEE!!!!!!! 💢 💢 💢 💢

Catra turn off the phone nonchalantly and walked over to her locker for a moment, tossing it inside not caring to see where it landed. She padlocked the door and returned to her island. "Lonnie!" she called. "Did you want to take charge today? Well, you're in luck, because I'm leaving early. You'll handle the closing." Catra forced a smile and softened her voice with a small tone of courtesy. "I'll pay you later."

The Caribbean woman and the blond boy only exchanged a look in the style of—'what bug bit her?'. Nevertheless, Catra continued cooking for the rest of the afternoon, looking from time to time at the hands of the wall clock. Since without planning it, Valentine's Day was not over yet.

Chapter End Notes

> Hey, that's right! This whole fic is a big reference to the Shrek Saga, gods and beasts, as well as light BDSM and the wilderness... and oh yeah... Adora's nerdy stuff (a Christmas tree and this fic could have the same amount of decorations).
>
> As for the title of this chapter, it's an explicit reference to the theme My Beloved Monster, which is also part of the soundtrack of the first Shrek movie. The interpreter is Eels, and it's a song that belongs to the album Beautiful Freak. In fact, this last title says exactly what I tried to do with this fanfic, but since it's not a direct reference to the movie, I had to hold back. Either way, I recommend taking a look at the lyrics. Now you can enjoy the playlist of this fanfic on Spotify —If you find some songs that are not yet mentioned in the first three titles of this saga, take it as a small preview of what I have planned for the future of this series. But fear not, it will have a happy ending.

And if you find Catra a bit out of character here, don’t worry, I’m the same way. However, keep an eye out for future installments of My Story With That Girl series, as we finally get to see Catra’s true dark side—because it couldn’t all be hunkydory.
So far... Thank you for following the adventure of Adora and Catra in Budapest!

See you then!

Please drop by the Archive and comment to let the creator know if you enjoyed their work!