Imitation Is Flattery

by vagician

Summary

Adora and Catra are up in the vents in their favorite hangout spot when they glimpse some questionable activity taking place in one of the utility rooms.

Or: Adora and Catra spy on two cadets making out and are too sexually repressed to know what it is they're watching. Curiosity getting the best of them and clueless to the implications, they decide to imitate what they're eavesdropping on and see what all the fuss is about.

Notes

I'm sorry but the "lets fuck without even realizing it" trope is too good to pass up on. 😅

What in the hells?

Adora squints through the grated window of the circulation vent, trying to get a better view of what's just caught her attention. Up until this point, she had simply been waiting for Catra to join her up here, since this vent in particular had become a hangout spot they frequented during the precious hour of free time horde cadets were allocated between the end of morning drills and the beginning of lunch.

It was a secluded little corner of sanctuary that nobody but the two of them knew about, where the both of them could just have a brief moment of reprieve from the weight of the world. They had all of the essentials secretly stowed up here, everything from blankets and pillows as well as a stockpile of stolen ration bars they've managed to accumulate over time.

It was easily their favorite place to be, a modest little corner of the Fright Zone they could truly call their own. It ensured that they could goof around and enjoy each other's company without being bothered or reprimanded for it, but today Adora couldn't help but catch onto some unusual activity taking place through the grating that offered a view of the utility room below them.

The majority of everything in there was just different pieces of spare equipment like battle bots and training dummies that needed to be serviced or were just past their prime altogether and were waiting to be salvaged, so the room didn't receive a lot of traffic to begin with.

Two other cadets had just slipped hand in hand into the room in question, and for the life of her, Adora couldn't figure out what they were up to. At first she had assumed they were simply horseplaying with each other when one of the cadets had walked the other back into one of the training dummies, but when the girl who'd been shoved made no effort on her end at retaliation, Adora assumed her initial guess hadn't been the case.

As she continues to observe, she watches closely as the cadet traps her friend against the dummy, her hands for whatever reason now on the cadet's waist. This clearly was no part of training Adora had been made aware of before, becoming another layer of puzzled when both girl's faces gradually near the other as if they're about to let each other in on a secret.

Only that's not what happens.

Adora cluelessly tilts her head when she witnesses their lips of all places touching, trying to wrap her brain around what she's currently peeping on. Every time Adora thinks they're going to separate and give the other some personal space, they just keep the bottom half of their faces pressed together, oddly mouthing at the other's lips in a way that made Adora's cheeks heat up for no apparent reason.

Even though she feels lost and totally out of her element towards what's going on, something in Adora continues to tell her that she's spying on something private that she shouldn't be seeing. The occasional vocalized gasps that fill the room only has Adora growing more flushed as she is bewildered.

It sounds just like she and Catra would sound after a rigorous sparring session, only she couldn't figure out why it was happening now. The two clearly weren't winded over sparring and had no reason to warrant the gasps they were sharing in, so it was hard for Adora to make any sense of the entire thing.

All she knows is that the two women seem to be thoroughly enjoying whatever it is they're doing considering their unwillingness to separate from the other, and the intensity behind the looks they were reserving for one another was enough to have Adora's heart rate steadily increasing on her.

She's so enraptured on the peculiar activity that she doesn't even notice Catra's finally joined her after her quick detour to the bathroom, Adora's brows creasing more as she fails to rationalize what the two could be doing with each other down there.

"What are you looking at, you weirdo?"

The additional voice startles Adora enough to bang the crown of her head on the top of the circulation tunnel from how high upward her body flinches, ungracefully falling backwards from her crouched position as she rubs the ache out of her head with a pained groan.

The pair of cadets she'd been spying on down below immediately whirl their heads around in alarm to try and identify the source of the noise, though once they eventually realize the coast is still clear, they go right back to pressing their mouths together.

“Keep it down, will you? Otherwise they’re going to know we’re up here!” Adora hushes Catra in a panicked whisper, still trying to get her bearings after her unintentional collision with the ceiling. Catra rolls her eyes in annoyance at being told what to do, though she shoves her irritation aside when she glimpses for herself the unusual events Adora had been eavesdropping on.

The magicat’s eyes narrow in perplexed suspicion, evidently unable to make any rhyme or reason of the situation either. “What are they even doing down there?” Catra finally asks, being sure to keep her voice low as Adora eventually rejoins her by the grated mesh they’re peeping through.

Adora answers her with a clueless shrug of her shoulders. “Your guess is as good as mine. I thought they were playfighting at first by the noises they’re making but the other girl isn’t even trying to get away from her or retaliate. It’s like she’s given up and just wants the other to win or something..”

“What a pair of weirdos.. The only thing they’re getting out of being that close together is smelling what the other had for breakfast..” Catra speculates, her tone skeptical and disapproving.

Still though, when one of the cadet’s beneath them fists their fingers through the back of the other’s hair and guides their mouth to press against their neck instead, Catra can’t ward off the heated blush she makes beneath her facial fur.

“I don’t know.. Whatever it is they’re doing, they seem to be enjoying it..” Adora idly comments in return, downing a dry swallow when teeth get thrown into the mix. The girl pinned against the training dummy goes from a gasp to a groan the moment her neck gets bitten, the fashion in which the sound comes out causing Adora to suppress an involuntary shiver.

Curiosity has Catra cocking her head to the side, her tail picking up a subtle lash behind her. “Think we should try it and see what the fuss is about?”

If Adora hadn’t been flushed before Catra’s suggestion, she most definitely was now. She has no idea why she has any reason to feel this way, but something about the idea of her and Catra mimicking what the two cadets were up to was enough to have her heart skipping a beat or two.

“Y-You mean like you and me? Adora questions, unsure and needing the clarity of a more straightforward answer.

Catra gives her an eye roll that ends with an unimpressed snort. “No, you and Kyle.. Of course I mean you and me, dummy.”

Adora grimaces at the mental image Catra’s sarcasm gifts her thoughts with, shaking the unwanted picture out of her mind. She worriedly chews her lip in indecision, taking a minute to mull it over. “I’m not sure, what do you think?”

"I mean, I don't see the harm in it. Like you said, it looks like they're enjoying it and I'm always game for any chance of breathing some fun into this lifeless place." Catra casually reasons, finally tearing her gaze away from the grating to look at her bunkmate.

Adora fidgets with the sleeves to her compression top, eventually returning the magicat's gaze with a bashful one of her own. "S-Sure, why not?"

Determined to get to the bottom of this phenomena and hopefully rid her of some of her boredom, Catra takes the first initiative, shuffling closer to her bunkmate so they're face to face. Despite her initial interest, she's grown a bit timid as she begins to unhurriedly lean her mouth towards Adora's, their lips gently brushing across each other when Adora becomes emboldened enough to meet her halfway.

It's just the briefest of contact, but even that short window is enough to have both of their breathing pick up in unison, each mirroring the same dazed expression when they pull back just enough to take the other's face in.

The air seems to thicken in the narrow space between the pair, growing heavier as they both try to sort through the foreign sensations making a home in their bellies. Adora can still feel a ghost of a tingle against her lips even after they part, the rise and fall of her chest growing just as active as Catra's lashing tail.

“I don’t get it.. Why does it feel so nice?” Adora wonders aloud, her gaze dropping southward towards Catra’s parted lips as she does so.

Catra doesn’t have any informative answer waiting for her, though it’s clear that she already wants to test it out again by the way she wordlessly leans towards Adora’s mouth for a second time.

They both let their lips linger for longer this time, exhaling breathily against the other's mouth. A whirlwind of strange sensations gather just below Adora’s navel, and by the way Catra’s lips press against hers more insistently, Adora thinks she must be feeling a similar way.

Adora recalls on what she had just witnessed earlier, drawing a hand upward to cusp the side of Catra’s cheek, letting her fingers tentatively brush against the fine fuzz of her facial fur. The action has a purr kickstarting in the feline’s sternum, and when Adora can feel the sound traveling up the magicat’s throat and vibrating against both of their lips, she lets out a sharp hitch of breath.

Catra instantly pulls back to check in with her, her cheekbones dusted with a blush similar to the one Adora’s sporting now. “What’s wrong?”

Adora blinks dazedly, her lips parted in a light pant as she struggles to get a hold of herself long enough to answer her. “N-Nothing.. It just felt really good, that’s all..”

The admission has Catra's lips twitching up into a smug smirk that does little at all to calm Adora's heart rate. "Then why'd you stop, dummy?"

"You're the one who pulled back first!" Adora indignantly reasons, averting her gaze elsewhere when Catra's becomes too much to handle.

Unable to argue with her logic, Catra's ears flatten sheepishly, her expression turning defensive. "Was just checking to make sure you were okay is all.."

"Yeah, m-more than okay.." Adora admits shyly, unknowingly running her own tongue across her bottom lip when she still feels it tingling. Catra immediately zeroes in on the action, unblinking eyes addressing Adora's lips more than the face above them.

"Wanna do it again?" Catra asks, though she already seems to be moving closer before Adora can give her a proper answer. The blonde worries her lower lip between her teeth.

"Yeah, definitely.." Adora agrees a little too eagerly, her curiosity heightening when Catra props one of the pillows beside them up against the wall of the vent.

"Lean your back up against that." Catra instructs, placing a clawed hand on Adora's shoulder to gently nudge her back towards the pillow.

Still confused, Adora does as Catra orders, her legs leaving their criss-crossed position to lay flat now. Her blush deepens to a deeper pink when Catra takes it upon herself to board her lap in a straddle, getting settled in a position that was undeniably more intimate.

"Easier to reach your mouth this way.." Catra timidly reasons, the excitable tail behind her now occasionally thumping against Adora's leg.

"G-Good point.." Adora stutters out, more than on board with the change of plans. Silence ensues between them as they stare the other down for a moment as if searching for something in the other that neither had the words for, gradually closing the distance once more with each second that passes by.

Catra's lips are already somewhat parted when their mouths connect as one this time, her breath coming out in uneven bursts that continuously blanket across Adora's lips. Her hands settle onto Catra's waist somewhere along the way, deciding to test the waters a bit to see if what she was about to do would be well received.

The next time their lips drag against the other's, Adora lets the faintest hint of her tongue swipe along Catra's lower lip, the fingers at the feline's waist lightly flexing when Catra releases a muffled trill in response.

Adora subtly whines when Catra's mouth widens to invite more of her in, the magicat's arms draping loosely over her shoulders now. One of her hands slides up the back of Adora's nape, carefully threading her fingers through her hair to hoist Adora in closer.

"H-Holy crap.. Why aren't people doing this all the time?" Adora breathes out the question directly into Catra mouth. She feels so warm and inviting perched on top of her lap like this, her hands no longer idle as they cautiously stroke Catra's sides from rib to hip.

They both gasp in unison when it causes Catra's hips to flinch forward instinctively, the clawed fist in Adora's hair noticeably tightening. It brings pressure to an area Adora's never really payed much mind to until now, and she quickly decides that she likes the unfamiliar sensation that unfurls just below her navel.

"Because our superiors tend to suck the life out of anything that can be remotely considered fun.." Catra counters in an elevated pitch, her voice somewhat wavering on her.

Adora's certain her voice isn't faring any better on her end, immediately understanding why the other two cadets were panting so much earlier. Maybe they weren't winded like they would have been if they were sparring, but the activity they're invested in is so all-consuming in intensity that neither of them can help the way their labored breathing mingles with the other.

Adora turns her head to refill on air at the exact same moment Catra chases her lips for more, resulting in Catra's lips mouthing against the square of her jaw instead. The low moan that rips from Adora's throat at the new placement has Catra stilling against her, though the magicat makes no attempts to pull back, her parted mouth staying pressed directly against Adora's pulse point. Her fingers anchor into the body suit at Catra's sides to try and pull her impossibly closer.

Taking it as a wordless invitation when Adora's head tilts back, Catra presses an open-mouthed kiss just beneath her jaw, letting her lips drag along the exposed column of Adora's throat before they finally settle at the crux of her neck and shoulder.

"C-ah-tra.." Adora groans her name out in a broken whisper, unsure what she was even asking of her. All she knew was that she needed more of it. Catra's midway through fulfilling her plea when the lunch bell suddenly sounds.

Catra huffs, reluctantly rolling off her lap so they wouldn't be late for count. "See, what did I tell you? They take the fun out of everything!"

"C'mon, it's not like we can't do it again tomorrow." Adora compromises, a pleasant ache birthing in her chest when Catra's ears perk up considerably at the implied invitation.

"Guess I'll finally have motivation to get through drills quicker now." the magicat says with a wry grin as they both crawl single file back down towards the vent entrance. Following behind her, Adora's grin is equally as giddy.

Lunchtime proved to be quite the spectacle. When Adora's inquisitive nature got the best of her and she risked asking Lonnie if she had ever pressed her mouth to anyone else's before, she was at last handed a minor dose of clarity. Once the fellow cadet pieced together the situation and the fit of cackles had conceded, Adora had been graced with a definition to what she and Catra had been doing up in the vents.

It was called kissing, apparently. Something two people did when they really really liked each other. No wonder she had enjoyed doing it with Catra so much. The fact that it was something they weren't supposed to be doing and could get in serious trouble for if their superiors caught them made the entire act of it that much more thrilling.

Catra seemed a little disappointed that there was a name for it and that it was more common amongst cadets than either of them had initially realized, but she seemed relieved to hear Adora tell her that there wasn't anyone else but her she wanted to do it with.

The rest of the day went by painfully slow, and by the lingering glances they continued to cast towards each other, it was clear that getting to kiss each other again was the only thing on their minds now. Adora grew lightheaded everytime she recalled just how amazing it felt to have Catra in her lap pressed flush together and kissing her dizzy, and she honestly didn't know how she was going to get any sleep tonight.

Her hands had felt so good gripping and squeezing at Catra's sides that now she just began to wonder how much better it would feel if she got the chance to feel the fur hidden beneath her body suit. Catra apparently had similar ideas, because when it was finally time to go to the locker room for showers, Adora hears the privacy curtain to her stall being pulled back.

Her head turns away from the steamed stream of water she'd been enjoying, blushing all the way down to her chest when she's hit with a fully naked Catra. Adora's fluster is noticeable enough to have the magicat smirking, tail flicking nefariously behind her as Adora fails to break her gaze away from the unfairly tempting fluff of fur at the center of her chest.

Considering they had to dress out daily for drills, neither were unused to seeing the other naked by now, but those had been fleeting glances for the sake of offering the other a modest amount of privacy and certainly weren't the blatant and unapologetic staring session they were serving each other right now.

"Hey, Adora." Catra suavely enunciates her name, the smirk above the breasts Adora's presently zeroed in on only lengthening until it threatens to border on insufferable. Adora swallows thickly, forgetting to return the greeting altogether as she feels her nipples harden into stiffened tips.

"H-Hey, Catra.. Did you um.. need to use the shower or something?" Adora's nerves have her playing dumb, as if they both didn't know the exact reason why Catra just popped into her stall out of nowhere.

Catra wasn't the biggest fan of showers, and would more often than not settle with just giving herself a tongue bath most of the time. But on the rare occasions she did bother with a full on shower, she certainly never needed to enter Adora's stall to get it done.

"I think we both know why I'm here, Adora. And it has nothing to do with getting clean." Catra returns, seemingly on the prowl as she confidently struts up to the blonde. Adora's back collides with the tile wall as Catra reaches out to wordlessly turn off the shower head.

"Gods, I can't stop thinking about it, Catra. All I can think about is kissing you and it's driving me up a goddamn wall." Adora blurts out, the close proximity between them no doubt the catalyst to her rushed out admission.

"Why else do you think I cornered you in here, dummy? We only have fifteen minutes until lights out and I plan on getting my fill of you until then." Catra reaches for both of Adora's wrists, guiding the blonde's arms to sit over her shoulders as she leans in to blatantly plant one on her without a second thought.

Catra swallows down the moan of surprise Adora releases against her mouth when their chests graze against each other with no obstructions this time. Although they had done it much in the same fashion as they had earlier in the vents, something about there being no clothes in the way this time just amplified the experience. The magicat doesn't shy away from deliberately licking into her mouth, the coarse tongue Adora feels against her own nearly having her lose her balance altogether.

A furred knee slips between her thighs to try and keep her upright. It was by all means an innocent adjustment to simply prevent a potential fall, but the pressure it ends up applying between Adora's legs is like a high voltage shock straight to her nervous system. The flood of pleasure it brings to the area has her breaking off the kiss with a strangled cry that would have absolutely gotten them caught if it weren't for the sounds of the other running showers dampening down her noises.

Mistaking the noise for something else and thinking she's hurt her, Catra pulls her knee back instantly in alarm, though she drifts over to thoroughly confused when Adora's hands fly away from her shoulders down to her ass to immediately hoist the magicat closer and keep her knee exactly where it is.

Catra looks down with wide and reverent eyes when Adora begins grinding her core against the furred surface of her thigh, her nostrils flaring with the scent Adora's body is giving off now. "W-What are you doing?"

"D-Do -ah.. y-you want me to stop?" Adora asks in a conflicted whimper, no part of her wanting to stop but clearly willing to still her hips if it was truly making Catra uncomfortable.

“That’s not what I asked you.” Catra counters, still unable to tear her eyes away from the sight of Adora’s dampened curls leaving a trail of wetness against her furred limb.

“I-I don’t know.. When your knee pressed there it just felt really good.” Adora sheepishly explains, just as clueless on the matter as Catra was as her words come out in a labored pant.

“Really?” Catra questions, appearing very intrigued over this new tidbit of information.

Trusting her voice no longer, Adora vehemently nods against her shoulder, deciding to shift her leg just enough to provide Catra the same pressure she’s currently enjoying.

The response is immediate.

“H-Holy shit..” Catra mutters out in a strained whimper, and it’s in such a broken way that Adora immediately decides it’s the most delicious thing to ever grace her ears.

“I-I told you..” Adora tells her, the words coming out more moaned than spoken. Far too preoccupied with being able to keep up the kiss any longer, both foreheads fall against the other’s shoulder, devoting all of their attention to syncing up the movements of their hips as they share in this new and strange pleasure they’re providing one another.

"A-Adora.." Catra speaks her name in a way she's never spoken it before, the raw amount of need put behind the single word having Adora shiver from head to toe, her knees momentarily buckling beneath her.

"I-I don't know why this feels so good.." Adora pitifully whines out, nosing into the fluffed out fur against Catra's neck as parted lips press a heated kiss to the region. She vaguely recalls the other two cadets from earlier this morning and how one of them had bitten the other in the same area Adora's lips were tending to right now.

Acting on instinct alone, Adora carves her teeth against the crux of Catra's shoulder before giving the region a firm bite. Whatever resolve left in Catra instantly crumbles the minute Adora's teeth get involved. Adora's hips still, sucked into a trance when she pulls away to witness the moment Catra breaks against her, the magicat's back arching inward as her whole body stiffens.

She lets out a yowl that Adora immediately covers up with her hand before it can echo off the walls and get them caught, making sure the feline still has enough room to breath through her nose as Catra's hips gradually roll to a stop, lax limbs sagging against the blonde currently holding her up.

"W-What.. What the fuck.." Catra weakly breathes out in delighted conflict, easily just as lost to what just happened as Adora was.

"W-Woah.. Are you okay?" Adora checks in with her, smoothing out the fur at Catra's back as she uses her upper body strength to continue supporting the boneless feline's dead weight.

"I think so?" Catra answers her question with a question, sorting through the aftershocks and seemingly unsure herself.

The uncertainty doesn't really help quell Adora's sudden fit of anxiety. "Are you hurt?"

"No, far from it.. I don't think I've ever felt that good in my life. Holy fuck, Adora.." The assurance in Catra's words instantly has Adora's anxiety melting away, a dose of pride making a home in her chest at the revelation that Catra was feeling so good because of her.

It also has Adora eventually reminded of the own unsatisfied ache still radiating from her legs. It's impossible to ignore now, but she wasn't about to keep grinding against Catra's thigh when she was still recovering and still barely able to keep herself upright.

Without thinking much of it, Adora shifts Catra's weight onto her other arm so she can snake a flattened hand between the two of them to park it between her own legs, the pleasure she's hit with having her breath hitch sharply enough to catch the magicat's attention.

Catra lifts her head away from Adora's collarbone to look down at the new activity taking place down south. Whatever she sees is enough to have full awareness coming back to her, easing some of her weight off Adora but still keeping her close. "C-Can I?"

Adora's brain breaks at the question, her resistance nonexistent when Catra gently pries her hand away from between her legs to replace it with her own. Adora's hips twitch forward violently, striving to increase the tempting pressure she feels.

"Fuck, Adora. You're so warm.." Catra gives the slickened lips her fingers are lying against a testing rub, the jerk Adora's hips give in return jostling them enough to partially press against her entrance.

"Ah! Fuck, Catra stay right there!" Adora sounds a whole new degree of feral now, her hand flying down to clamp around Catra's wrist to keep it locked right where it is as she desperately grinds against the tips of her fingers. When Catra curls them just barely to make it easier for her to hump against, Adora finally meets her own reckoning.

Whatever pleasure had been coiled in her tummy sets off like a flash grenade, lighting up every nerve ending she's capable of registering. She's not sure what kinds of sounds she's making, but by the way Catra quickly covers her mouth with her free hand in the same way Adora had done earlier with her own, she can only guess the noises were loud enough to be condemning.

Catra eases her through it, soothing her with a gentle purr as Adora goes from rigid right down to lax, sliding down to the floor of the shower as a pair as Adora struggles to wrap her head around what her body just experienced.

The brief moment of silence is enjoyed in the others arms, breathing patterns of their counterpart falling into sync before the call for lights out eventually shatters the moment.

Adora huffs out an inconvenienced sigh, the back of her head thudding against the tile wall. "They sure do know how to ruin a good time."

Amused, Catra hits her with the same set of words Adora had hit her with earlier, doing a poor and mocking imitation of Adora's voice. "C'mon, it's not like we can't do it again tomorrow."

"You guys fucked in the shower and didn't even realize it?" Glimmer chortles at the baffling news, clutching her sides in her fit of hysteria as Bow offers the two a painfully forced smile of support. It didn't take a rocket scientist to deduce that he could have happily lived out the rest of his days without this unwanted insight.

Adora's face flushes violently, almost regretting telling her friend's the story of their first time at all. "It's not like we had the luxury of any sex ed back in the horde, Glimmer. We had to figure it out on our own." she mutters back defensively.

"And figure it out we did. As a matter of fact, I'd say we were and still are figuring it out at least three to four times a day. Isn't that right, princess?" Catra boasts proudly, her devious grin anything but innocent.

"Really, Catra?" Adora chastises her wife in a hissed whisper, now sporting a third degree blush as she covers up the magicat's mouth before she could out their private affairs any further. Catra, being the signature little shit she is, licks the hand covering up her mouth as Adora tears it away with a surprised shriek to pointedly wipe her palm on her leg. She retaliates with a halfhearted glare of disapproval. "You are such a brat!"

"Yeah, but you're into it. Otherwise you wouldn't have married me. Says more about you than it does me, really." Catra declares with the utmost confidence, shifting sideways in the seat she's made out of her wife's lap to steal a greedy kiss that Adora couldn't ever hope to resist.

Tonight marked the night of their fifth anniversary, and even with those timeless moments they shared back in the Fright Zone now long behind them, Catra never failed to make Adora feel like she was young and eighteen all over again, more alive today than she was yesterday and hopelessly smitten for this wonder of a woman in her lap.

Glimmer can be heard making mock retching noises somewhere in the background at the shameless pda, but her best friend's complaints are the furthest thing from Adora's mind as she gets lost in the very same lips her younger self had all those years ago.

“I love you.” Adora murmurs when they break for air, propping her forehead against the feline’s to give her a gaze as devoted as it is reverent. Catra’s mischievous expression ebbs down into something undoubtedly softer, a contented purr blooming in her chest as she gives Adora a slow and meaningful blink in return.

“I love you too, dummy.”
