Jacket of All Trades

by Jezmatron

Summary

Adora is feeling melancholy over what her whole look means - the history, the implications. Catra comes up with a novel way to... correct that.

Notes

Welcome! To the FIRST of my prompt-fics.

I have a sheet going, where I'm taking a few prompts to write out some fics over October - intending to do some ACTUAL one shots!

Adora hummed to herself as her thumb creased across the red fabric. She huffed, then laid the jacket across her lap and frowned, her lips pursed in thought. With a huff she glanced up and around her room. Even now, after all of it - the fighting, the rebuilding, the various more subtle changes, it was still pretty sparse. A little bit untidy too.

Her roommate had a tendency to leave items scattered around. While Adora kept things pretty meticulously ordered, others did…. Not.

As if summoned by her errant thought the door clattered open and a pair of loud feline forms tumbled into the room. Catra, cackling, shoved the yowling, purple form of her bonded-cat-alien-pet-friend off of her, before she wheezed, "Nuh uh, I won that one, fair and square."

Melog prowled away, their tail lashing side to side. Their fur flashed briefly to a deeper purple, then to light blue, indicating a mild sulk, before they glanced at Adora. Their fur flashed to an alarmed red before settling to a soothing blue-green. Catra scoffed, before she paused and looked over at Adora, her ears twitching. Adora noted, idly, that Catra's hair was a little longer today, almost a bob, below the nape of her neck. She hummed again as her thumb once more began to stroke at the jacket across her lap.

Catra rolled into a cross-legged position and tilted her head, her mismatched blue-and-gold eyes studying the blonde. Her tail swished gently from side to side as she spoke quietly, "Adora, love?"

The blonde had glanced over to the mirror that stood near one curved wall. Adora gazed, almost sightlessly at it as she chewed at her lip. At Catra's words she looked at her roommate… her partner and smiled, before she frowned again and fixed her blue-grey eyes onto the jacket, "Hey."

Catra slowly stood and padded across the room, where she slid onto the bed next to Adora. Gently she slipped her hand down Adora's arm, resting it above her elbow, "So, I don't need some big-cat to see you've got something going on behind that huge forehead?" her jibe was soft and she smiled with it, a low purr starting in her throat as she gazed at the centre of her universe.

The blonde snorted and glanced at Catra out of the corner of her eye, then looked back at the jacket, "Ouch. Low blow."

"Not really. It's right there, dummy. Hard to miss," Catra leaned in and used her free hand to poke Adora's head, hard enough to wobble the taller girl backwards. With a yelp Adora flung her arms back to steady herself, but Catra was quick. She swung her leg across Adora's lap and plopped down, then retrieved the jacket that was draped over Adora's midriff. She held it up and studied it, then lowered it to stare at Adora, "Alright, spill."

Adora rested on her elbows and pouted up at Catra. Her chest strained against the white-grey compression top she normally wore, but Catra studiously kept her eyes fixed on Adora's. The blonde leaned her head back and let out an exasperated breath, before she then tilted her head back up to stare at Catra. They held each others stares for a moment before Adora deflated first.

“Fine,” she said, although there was no real resignation behind the word. More relief. “I was getting up. Waiting for you to get back from your run,” she glowered at Catra, “Which is weird . When did you become a morning person?”

“Focus, Adora,” Catra chuckled, as she arched an eyebrow. She wiggled her hips a little and Adora gasped, then glared up at her girlfriend, “So, you were waiting and then got…. Moody?”

“Har. Har. No, I was getting ready and then… just looked at my jacket.”

“Ok, gonna have to unpack that one a bit. I’m not Perfuma. Can’t read the weaves of psycho-whatever from how your food stains spell out your innermost desires,” Catra deadpanned. Adora scoffed.

“Of course. I bet you actually helped them, too, right?”

“Yes!”

“Good. Continue.”

Adora huffed again, “So, yeah I was looking at it and got thinking.”

Catra smirked, “Is there a point we’re going to find soon? I feel like we’re in the map-exercise again and we just got past the fifth marker for the fifteenth time.”

“It wasn’t MY fault the map was the wrong way round!”

“You literally had the pad upside down, Adora.”

“And Lonnie wouldn’t let me hear the end of it,” grumbled Adora as she looked away. She grunted and bit her lip as Catra wiggled again.

“Focussss,” purred the feline with a grin, “So, thinking. About… the Horde?”

Adora stared at her girlfriend and nodded slowly, “How’d you guess?”

“Not hard to narrow down,” Catra smiled softly as she said it, “And… you normally blush when we talk about sad stuff from the paaaaast . Now.. now you look guilty.”

Adora smiled at Catra, her face blooming into a goofy grin as she swallowed, “How do you get me?”

Catra’s own laugh was a bit rueful, “Trial and error. I really didn’t for ages, y’know? Or saw only the things I wanted. But I didn’t really see you y’know? Anyway, not about ME, this is about you, dummy.”

She laid the jacket carefully, almost reverentially, across Adora’s stomach, before she followed suit, arms folded over Adora’s chest, chin on her wrists. She gazed at the blonde and arched an eyebrow expectantly. Adora licked her lips, eyes flitting to Catra’s mouth briefly. Catra waggled a finger, then languorously pointed it at Adora and made a small spinning motion with it.Adora sighed and continued.

“So, I was thinking about when we got our proper uniforms. Not the, y’know, basic cadet stuff - the joggers and vest. I mean… the dress uniform,” she gestured at the jacket, “And how proud I was to get it. How I felt like a proper soldier.”

Catra tilted her head and nodded, “You were the only one of us who really wore the officer’s jacket though.”

“Yeah, Weaver kind of… encouraged smartness, y’know. Or tried to,” she smirked at Catra who snorted and shrugged. It was easier to talk about their former guardian and commander. It hadn’t been long since the woman had gone up like a candle in some bizarre rescue or redemption effort. Neither had entirely unpacked it, but the sense of closure had been marred by the whole event. But they were getting there. The ironic shadow she had cast was now gone, so neither really spent a lot of time dwelling on her.

"So, the jacket. Reminded you of being what we were?"

Adora's unfocused eyes zero'd in on Catra and her quiet tone. She sighed, "Sort of. I wore it and was proud. We did well. And all of it was tied up in… us. And what we were. What we did. And then I left and…" her voice cracked and there was a clear lump in her throat. One of Catra's hands moved and rested against Adora's cheek. The feline smiled as her eyes watered.

"I forgive you. Like you forgave me, love," the pair giggled wetly at that and Adora nodded quickly.

"So, uh, yeah, it's… it's been such a part of me. But I went to put it on and I just… just remembered it all. The things it represents, what I was going to do. It's a uniform . Yes, it's me but… but it's the Horde. It was something ugly and cruel and it hurt us and I wear it like… like it's nothing."

Catra studied Adora's face, then sat up sharply. She unfolded her arms and ran them down her torso, "What do you see?"

Adora blinked in surprise, "Uh…. you?"

"No. What do you see ?" she tapped her leotard, then traced a finger down to the leggings, then across her belly, then back up her ribs. She stared at Adora.

"Uh…." Adora squinted, "Your, um… your…" she waved over her chest as her neck flushed red.

"They have a name, babe. You can say tits . But no, not them," she pulled at the cloth and snapped it back, then arched an eyebrow. Adora's mouth curved into an O of comprehension.

"Your, um… what is that called anyway?"

"Fright if I know," Catra scoffed, "It just looked… good. But…" she huffed, "I've worn this. Or something like it… for everything."

Her eyes bored into Adora's, hard, questioning. The blonde frowned and blinked, "Um."

"I wore this. For all the crap I pulled. For the hurt I did. For the pain. I was broken and I broke the world . I nearly sided with a GALACTIC LEVEL narcissist maniac. But I still wear it. Because… it wasn't the clothes, babe. It was me. And…" she swallowed, but ploughed on, "And you still cared about me. So, should I get rid of this? Because you'll still look at me and see what I did? Should I shave my fur off? Where does the bad lie Adora?"

The blonde flushed, her lip trembled, as she half reached for Catra, wanting to console her, but also suddenly worrying that the badness was likewise in her ? If it wasn't the jacket was she the problem as well?

Catra's fingers interlaced with hers and she smiled, "Ok, stop overthinking. Do you think I'm evil?"

"NO!"

"Good. Would really mess with the, y'know… event we're planning," she blushed and brushed the golden wing-pin on her leotard, then focused back on Adora, eyes narrowing, "So, should I get rid of the clothes?"

"Don't you dare," Adora's reaction was a growl. Catra arched an eyebrow, then smirked. Her hips rotated again and Adora huffed, looking away briefly.

"So. I'm not bad. My outfit… in which I did bad things isn't bad. And it's Horde… why shouldn't I get rid of my very recognisable but ACTUAL villain... look? WHy should you ditch this?" she held the jacket up and cocked her head.

"But, well, it's still…."

"A symbol. It's you . Adora, She Ra. People see the jacket and see you . They don't see the Horde. Hell, yeah it's a dress Uniform, but who has even SEEN Horde Officers on parade? We were always on a war footing. Hordak had them because his busted file from Prime had an old listing about auxiliary forces and ceremonial dress !"

Adora blinked, "Really?"

"Seriously, Scorpia found it when we were doing that whole logistical planning exercise when we were trying to take Brightmoon the second time…" Catra winced, "Buuuut that aside, yeah."

Adora huffed and shrugged, "But…"

"Babe," Catra leaned down and cupped Adora's face, "I don't want to diminish what you're feeling. Seriously. You have guilt. I KNOW you do. Hell, I do," she rested her forehead against Adora's, "So… that's what this is?"

Adora nodded slowly. Her feline girlfriend smirked, then pressed her lips to Adora's for a moment, before she pulled away. Adora gasped and chased those lips but Catra just sat up and lifted the jacket, studying it critically. The blonde breathed heavily and whined, "No fair."

"If anything, I should hate this. You've worn it for ages. Never did anything different, so… bland. Never even changed to fight me. Aside from the whole Princess look," she smirked as Adora opened her mouth to object, "Oh? Getting defensive?"

Adora's mouth clicked shut as she frowned. Catra then shimmied off the bed and moved across the room. Adora whimpered in displeasure. The cat-girl turned, before she glanced at Melog. The big cat startled as their fur went a bright pink. Then they dashed out onto the balcony and scampered up the side of the renovated palance. Adora blinked at their sudden departure, then returned her gaze to Catra.

Her jaw dropped as Catra slid behind a changing screen, There was the sound of cloth being rustled, before Catra's leotard flipped over the side of the screen. The Magicat re-emerged clad only in Adora's jacket. She cocked a hip, then started to stalk towards the bed. Adora watched, mouth agape, as Catra sashayed forward. The jacket was a little big on her, yet seemed to just complete the picture. It revealed Catra's sex, but hid her perky chest. The collar drew the eyes up to the woman's gorgeous face, her playful smirk and her twinkly eyes - the colour was sharp against Catra's dark fur.

Slowly, Catra mounted the bed. She knee walked up, straddling Adora once more and stared down, a huntress with her prey at her mercy, "So, it's bad association, right? Bad memories?"

Adora nodded dumbly, "Y..yeah?"

“Hmmm,” Catra purred. Her fingers traced Adora’s jaw, “I know allll about that. And how did you help?”

“G…good memories?”

Catra nodded, “Yeah. You held me. Reminded me of the good times. I reminded myself of the good times, the good memories. You always tried to remind of them. Even when I didn’t listen. When we were in that freaky castle, it kept trying to remind us. Remind me . Maybe that was you, too, trying to bring it up. I tried to remind us both, tried to make good memories when… when I busted the world,” she smiled sadly then sighed happily as Adora trailed fingers over her belly fur, “Impatient….”

“Can… you blame me?” Adora’s voice came out think, full of need. Catra arched an eyebrow.

“Which brings me to my point . I fell back on good memories. And I can remind you of the fun we had. How we nearly crashed in the woods; how we ran through training with that stupid jacket. How you had good times with your weird Best Friend twerps.”

“They’re your twerps too,” Adora smirked.

“Shut up,” Catra smiled down at Adora, then shimmied up the blonde further, “Anyway. I could do that, but you’re stubborn. You’ll try to counter with all the bad things, with your guilt. So,” her fangs peeked out as she bit her lower lip, “I need to stack the deck. Let's make some good memories with the jacket. Now… eyes on me. Can you do that, babe?"

Adora nodded and her voice came out as an excited whisper, "Yes," Catra's tail lashed excitedly as she undulated. Her fingers teased at the jackets front, threatening to reveal more of herself, despite her indecent exposure already looming above Adora. She shuffled closer and Adora's nostrils flared. The blonde's tongue licked across her lips in anticipation. Catra chuckled huskily and raised her eyebrows, "So impati-OH!"

Adora's hands grasped at Catra's rear and yanked her forwards. Catra slumped a little forward, then went rigid as Adora went to work. She let out a low guttural groan as she felt Adora's tongue lap between her folds. That amazing appendage danced and probed, tasting at her core, licking through and around her lips. And then the tip flicked over Catra's most sensitive spot, her clit. She yowled and, with a shocking display of core strength, straightened without pushing off the bed. She leaned back, jacket spilling open, baring her chest. Her hands rested against Adora's thighs as she tried to buck, but the blonde's firm grip held her down. Her stomach muscles flexed as she felt the pressure build.

One of the blonde's hands snaked up and cupped Catra's breast, tweaking at the sensitive nipple there, drawing a low groan from the Magicat. Her hips bucked again and the groan grew into a mewl, then a yowl, then a shriek as her orgasm built, then tore free of her, Adora's tongue lapping with practiced flexes, the blonde's voice humming into her sensitive core. Catra bucked and yowled, her voice an incoherent mess as her eyes rolled into her head and her chest heaved spasmodically.

Adora held her there, tonguing her through one, then another orgasm. Catra's tail twitched and spasmed, before Adora moved her grip to its base and began to squeeze and stroke. Catra sat upright again then fell forwards, claws kneading into the sheets as she grunted and huffed. She bit at the sheets and yowled again as Adora rolled them both over, face still sucking and licking, clamped to Catra's core. Adora shuffled up, until she was kneeling and only Catra's shoulders touched the bed. The jacket sprawled against the bed itself, half off Catra's arms, while the Magicat pawed fruitlessly and gripped spasmodically at the sheets afghan as Adora coaxed another wave of pleasure from her.

After an age Catra's legs stopped kicking in the air and slumped over Adora's shoulders as her relaxed purr filled the room. Adora gave a few soft kisses and gentle licks to her girlfriend's sensitive and now pleasure-swollen centre. Her face was drenched in Catra's excess, but that didn't seem to bother the Magicat who managed to half lunge up and grab the front of Adora's compression shirt, before she dragged her down into a kiss. Their tongues dueled as Catra tasted herself. She growled low in her throat then reached up and tore the shirt open. Fabric split and Adora tried to pull away in surprise.

Catra followed her, her eyes almost feral. Her claw slashed the bra beneath, little more than a pressure band, before her mouth latched to one of Adora's erect nipples. Adora choked out a gasp as she stared down at the half-naked girl who was practically climbing her. Catra sucked and bit gently, causing Adora to surrender and spasm. The blonde placed a hand on the back of Catra's head, holding her there. The fact the jacket, at this angle concealed Catra aside from a tantalizing glimpse of her pert rear, was oddly alluring.

She moved Catra's head to her other breast and sighed as she felt her girlfriend begin to knead at them both. She wore compression bras, but mostly out of practicality. All told, it was nice to let them free and have them… tended to. And Catra did enjoy tending to her.

She felt Catra's free hand slid down her abs and her eyes opened sharply, "Catra wait I can…"

Too late. She felt the faintest trace as Catra swiftly moved both hands and tore a split into the crotch of Adora's pants. The blonde was stunned as suddenly air kissed her bare breasts. Catra growled as she pulled away, then cackled as she gripped Adora's ankles and yanked her to the edge of the bed. The tall girl yelped in surprise at the ambush, off balance and now prone.

"Look at me, Adora, look at what you do to me."

Catra's voice was raspy, hungry, needy. Adora couldn't help but stare at the vision, clad only in her jacket. She was, barely propped up on her elbows, as Catra sank to her knees at the edge of the bed. Her fingers spread Adora wide and the blonde's head lolled back with a whimper as Catra's head descended, "Catra…."

"Look at me, Adora. Look at me. Please."

Adora managed to lift her head. It felt foggy and heavy. But her girlfriend wanted something from her. And Adora would do anything for Catra. She whimpered as mismatched eyes met here, visible over her mons, as Catra licked slowly up Adora's slit. The blonde vibrated and grasped as her saliva-slicked chest and nipples, squeezing and tweaking as Catra feasted. The Cat-girl growled into Adora's pussy, before she slid a pair of fingers in. Her arm pumped, the jacket flexing and fluttering with the Magicat's movements. Adora couldn't help but stare, the action so erotic, so intense. The feeling of Catra in her, the two fingers splitting her open, while that rough tongue danced and teased her closer and closer and closer.

Adora's chest was flushed red, her breathing mere pants as this vision, this goddess, played her like an instrument. Her jacket, her jacket, fluttering, half off Catra's shoulder, those eyes boring into her soul. She felt her stomach tighten, felt her core cramp up in a delicious tension.

"I'm gonna, I'm gonna… I…I…"

Catra purred before she sucked suddenly. Adora squeaked and her legs, still clad in shredded pants, clamped around Catra's head. She squeezed her breasts and pinched her nipples as she bit her lip and grunted through a spasming orgasm. Her body wracked with stomach-rippling shudders as she twisted. Catra's fingers were still in her, coaxing more from her as Adora felt the sheets drench with her release. She rocked, almost twisting onto her side, but Catra held her firm, before a tap against her thigh made Adora startle out of her pleasure induced fog.

She relaxed her legs, which flopped down, uselessly, revealing a smug looking feline. Adora panted, her breaths heaving as Catra crawled up the bed. The Magicat arched an eyebrow and tugged at the jacket, "So?"

Adora drew a breath, sucking in air, and grinned, "I uh… still feel… a little guilty."

Catra's grin was predatory as she leaned into for a kiss, "Well, guess we need to do more to… give you those positive feelings, hmm?"

Bow and Glimmer shuffled through another set of papers on the former-war table. The Princess Council had ended early, given the lack of attendees. Only Spinnerella and Netossa had been there (Frankly, they never seemed to miss any), along with Glimmer's father. The others were in their Queendoms, of course. But the main pair had been conspicuously absent.

Glimmer huffed and slapped a piece of paper, "I know I'm, well… in charge. But grain ? Why am I looking at a receipt for grain ? BOWWWW. Make it go away."

"Babe… you know you don't want it to go away," he grinned at her, "You want CATRA to take it off you."

The pink-haired Queen of Brightmoon huffed, "I know. But, and you can never let her know this, she is stupidly good with the whole… organising thing. I swear, she is a mind reader sometimes."

"I would never ," Bow chuckled.

"Never what, Arrow boy?"

The royal pair glanced up, then blinked in surprise. Glimmer coughed, then bit her lip, before she shook herself. A flush crept up her neck as she managed to stammer out, "You're um, both… late."

"Sorry, Glimmer," Adora smiled. Bow blinked at her, giving her a once over, before he looked at Catra. He looked at Glimmer.

"Are we… did a portal open?"

Catra smirked at the pair as she glanced down at her red jacket, white top and grey pants. No shoes, still, of course, "What? You don't like my new threads?"

Glimmer waved at Adora, "This… what?"

“Hey!” Catra’s voice carried the faintest edge, “Look. No touch,” she smirked, then nudged Adora, who grinned and waggled her eyebrows, before she did a slightly graceless twirl.

“What do you think? Trying something new!” she was wearing a slightly stretched out spare of Catra’s ensemble. It was certainly straining around her well-toned form and was more pronounced in a few areas. As Adora moved, her legs flexed and the fabric stretched even more. Catra had to swallow and clap her hands, returning her gaze sharply to the royal pair.

“SO! I, uh, guess we missed the meeting. We’re um… just heading out for a bit. Don’t wait up!”

With that the pair were gone, leaving a gaping Glimmer and Bow in their wake. The Queen was first out of her trance, “Wait! Where are you going?”

But her voice was lost as the pair ran, giggly, through the corridors of the palace.

“So, maybe we need to give our old room some better memories?” Adora huffed as they ran, hand in hand.

Catra cackled, “Oh yeah… and maybe the tower while we’re at it.”

“It’s a date!” Adora cheered, as the continued on towards the gardens, where a bored winged horse waited in blissful ignorance for two passengers. They dashed on, laughing, towards better memories and a brighter future to come.
