Summary

"Really, the library? That's your dream place?"

OR: Library sex. Filthy, mouth-smothering, leg quaking library sex, surrounded by books, creaking shelves, and the heart-pounding possibility in getting in oh-so-much trouble.

MxSinshine/Yoursfemmely collab with amazing art from Tara, @TaraCandyCorn !!

Notes

Oh, hey, look! It’s a collab from MxSinshine and Yoursfemmely. If you’ve read either of our works, then you probably know that we’re both filthy as hell (okay, fine, also sappy), so it was bound to happen eventually. By our pervy powers combined: Enjoy ;)

See the end of the work for more notes

"Really, the library ? That's your dream place?"

“I didn't say dream place!" Adora protested, crossing her arms over her chest defiantly in response to the chuckles. Catra’s mirth only grew over the gesture, the corner of her eyes crinkling with mischievous delight. Who gave them the right to be that adorable; all smirks and sass for as long as Adora could remember? It was rude, quite frankly, how even when they were being supremely obnoxious, Adora still wanted to plaster herself to them.

Adora couldn’t even say how they’d gotten onto the subject exactly, but after a moment of chewing on her bottom lip, she relented with herself. This was just Catra; she could tell them anything and really, compared to some other stunning moments of their salacious past, this was downright tame.

“It’s just a place for me and not the only one,” she grumbled with a playful scowl. “But I mean, think about it!” Adora leaned across the cafe table towards Catra, hushing her voice, regardless of their—thankfully—unshared surroundings on the patio of the deli they’d stopped at for lunch. “You’d have to be really quiet and there’s usually other people around, but also all these little hidden nooks and pretty private places. So, yeah, I just think it would be hot to get fucked in a library,” she tacked on, trying to sound cool and collected, but giving away her paranoia of eavesdroppers as her eyes shot to the side. Sure, it was completely empty, but someone still could, who knows, pop out from a bush or something, unannounced.

At the definitive conclusion, Adora returned to eating her sandwich, mulling over an infinite number of questions she’d one day spring on her partner to hopefully—but annoyingly unlikely—ruffle them in public. Catra tended to be the one that left Adora a sputtering, incomprehensible mess, but her cocky counterpart wasn’t entirely unshakeable…

“You bring up some good points, princess,” Catra said, finally breaking the companionable silence that had fallen over their shared meal. They were a flustering picture of ease as they languidly sipped their iced tea, before continuing. “Things I hadn’t considered yet. So, I guess I just have one more question for you.”

At the honeyed rasp of her partner, Adora quickly chewed around the massive bite she had just taken, swallowing almost painfully so that she could answer as quickly as possible. There was something about Catra’s tone that instantly and enthusiastically had Adora’s attention; she’d heard it enough times over the years, a sultry lilt in their voice that made a steady beat pulse between her thighs and her cheeks instantly heat to a bright, rosy red.

“Wanna head to the library?”

The reality and weight of Catra’s question didn’t hit Adora until she followed them through the revolving doors of the main entrance to the library. As they entered the building, all the sounds of the city were swallowed up by the high ceilings and smothered by the rows and rows of tall shelves, then replaced with the quiet rustle of pages and faint clacking of keys as people across the library worked diligently on their laptops. There was a feeling of restraint throughout the venue—an agreed-upon social covenant to be on one’s best behavior when in the pursuit of knowledge and mutual enjoyment of the written word. The landscape of hushed sounds made Adora’s stomach tighten; even speaking at a normal volume was verboten in such a place. Sounds would be certain to carry, alerting all patrons to their exploits, whatever it was exactly that Catra had concocted in that devious mind of theirs.

The thought made Adora tremble.

Catra hadn’t offered much in the way of details as they made their way to the library beyond a smug reminder that Adora was going to have to keep quiet—something they both were aware was not her strong suit—but Adora also hadn’t asked much, either. She trusted Catra to respect her limits while, in addition, providing a realm for them to be expanded upon, all in a way that would be comfortable for her. And obviously hot as hell, too; things always were with Catra.

A tidy librarian at the front circulation desk eyed them for a moment as Adora and Catra appeared, but offered nothing more than an incline of her head and a friendly smile. Adora returned it with a weak, nervous grin, awkwardly staring until Catra's hand gently settled on the small of her back, softly guiding her past the worker and further inside. Adora was certain the message inherent in their light touch was not just in her head; it was the unwavering affirmation that she could pause her footsteps, shake her head, and that Catra would immediately lead them back outside, no questions asked. It was Catra's steadiness that kept Adora's feet going, a silent assurance in their coordinated footfalls that this was on Adora's terms entirely.

It only made her want them more.

Catra led them up the stairs with no hesitation, so certain of where they were headed that Adora began to wonder if this particular fantasy had crossed her partner's mind before. Their easy confidence was compelling, to say the least; the warmth of Adora's legs from climbing three flights of stairs was nothing compared to the burning cauldron brewing between her thighs.

The level they arrived at was sparsely populated, though by no means empty. While Adora had frequently visited this library when she'd been in school, she'd seldom ventured up to this floor, given that it primarily housed thick research texts and dusty periodicals fit only for the most stringent of scho -lars . Regardless of the dense subject matter, though, there was a small section of tables and open seating available for those hardy, brainy folk who preferred the semi-archaic surroundings. At least a few of them had settled there this afternoon from what Adora could see, although the presence of tall dividers between them and the adjoining tables made it impossible to tell whether others might be hidden on the other side.

Catra scanned the floor quickly, taking in the sea of shelves and, from what Adora could tell, outdoing her paltry sense of sight and counting the number of people that their much more efficient, delicate senses of smell and hearing could detect. Finally, their left ear gave a satisfied twitch, their shoulders relaxing, indicating that their level of company was acceptable. They turned to Adora with an arched brow and a low voice that had very little to do with "proper" library conduct, and everything to do with their endless quest to make Adora want them every second of every day. "What you're looking for is this way, princess."

With a nervous chuckle, Adora flashed a large grin at them before averting her gaze, the years they'd been together not preventing her from still being bashful at the sight of those stunning, mismatched eyes. The tightness in her stomach was sinking lower, deepening and crystalizing into a now frantically beating thrum between her thighs. Adora knew what might happen—what was likely going to happen—but she also didn't know . Not the where, not the how, not the when .

"Show me," she whispered with an ardent nod.

While the trek up the stairs had been one with purpose—illustrating a definitively set direction in Catra's mind that Adora was only happy to follow—now Catra's pace was slowing as they wound their way further and further from the scattered people that had set up camp here on the third floor.

With each new aisle they approached, Adora expected Catra to round on her, sweep her up in a rough kiss, slot their thigh between her legs so she could ride them between the shelves. Her mind was a flurry of anticipation and desire, honed in on every move that Catra made in hopes one would soon be made against her. She could only imagine how she looked, stumbling so eagerly behind Catra's ambling gait, unequivocal want written across her face. Their tail swished lazily about in concert with their hips, its slow sweep hypnotizing Adora forward.

Catra was seemingly fixated on everything around them, save for Adora. It was enthralling and maddening all at the same time, a slow game of chase set to Catra's languous pace, all while they remained completely unaffected by how Adora trailed after them like an obedient yet clumsy puppy.

It was only once Adora stumbled and just barely avoided face-planting into a shelf—far too focused on the sashaying before her to pay mind to where she was walking—that Adora caught the barest form of attention in the shape of a small, entertained smirk. The simple flicker in their expression was enough to make her almost trip all over again, the potential of being freed from suspense threatening to rid her of any remaining shred of balance she had left.

Adora wouldn’t say she was typically demanding of Catra, though in this moment, her cunt would surely claim a different story. She ached for their touch. The steps between them couldn’t hinder the way she could already feel their hands upon her. Her vivid imagination was making this meandering walk nearly torturous.

No doubt Catra knew it too.

Hooking their fingers loosely with Adora’s, Catra led her down a long, particularly dimly lit row. While sauntering ahead of her, they abruptly paused, leaving Adora scuffing her feet against the old, thick carpet. Without acknowledgment of Adora’s confusion, in which they were surely delighting, they glanced ostentatiously at a few offerings on the shelf, running their fingertips absentmindedly down the spine of a particularly lucky book. Adora swallowed as she watched the deliciously trailing finger, an involuntary shiver running down the back of her neck.

Looking over their shoulder with a vixenish delight sparkling in their eyes, Catra flicked their wrist, tugging Adora’s hand in a way that sparked an obedient impulse to fall towards them, their steady arm gripping around her waist once the two collided.

“Hey, Adora,” Catra purred out, the pinpoint prick of a single claw running down Adora’s arm from elbow to wrist, Catra’s gaze steady and controlled as they regarded what a mess a single finger could make of her.

After several seconds of only being able to produce breathy huffs, Adora’s thick tongue managed to form actual words. “Hey, Catra. S-something you wanted to check out here?”

Catra raised a brow, the corner of their mouth crooking upwards along with it before settling into an affectionate scoff. “Check out? Been planning that one this whole time, princess?”

Adora blinked, Catra’s arm still wrapped around her waist, pulling their bodies flush against one another, making it exceedingly difficult for her to focus on anything else, especially conversation. However, her determination to use the opportunity to weasel in some more cheesy humor managed to pry its way to the surface, ever the dork.

A number of witty follow-ups flashed through her mind—remarks on Catra being overdue since they had ‘fine’ written all over them, a comment on how they really should be in the fantasy section for this…but before Adora could utter another word, Catra mercifully shut her up with a deep, drawn-out kiss.

It wasn’t long before Catra’s hands wandered—a glint of fingertips up Adora’s shirt, the ghosting trails of their claws across her lower back, their tail grazing the back of her neck. Adora savored each sensation, no matter how minute. Each touch was cobbled by well-practiced hands, intimately familiar with her structure, no bend or stretch previously unexplored—only known . Then their hands became more focused, hooking into Adora’s belt buckles and gripping the outsides of her hips. Adora began to gasp into Catra’s mouth, lips forming a barely whispered, “please,” against theirs.

“Patience.” The silky reproach feathered over Adora’s lips, an ache filling her at the loss of the heat of Catra’s mouth against hers.

She instantly chased after them, determined to fulfill the demand to remain patient by keeping her lips, tongue, and teeth busy.

Ever benevolent, Catra met her eager mouth, hands rising up from Adora's hips to brush a thumb across her hardened nipple through her shirt. Even though the obnoxiously obtrusive layers of cotton and lace were blockading most of the sensation, Adora's back arched in response, overcome with arousal at even the concept of Catra finding their way underneath layers. A small moan burst out of her against Catra's mouth, only further confirming just how much they were riling her up.

"Shhh, princess. Gotta be quiet, remember?" Catra hummed seductively against her lips, Adora feeling a smug smirk pressed against her, a hint of mischief buzzing through it. "Wanna get all your slutty dreams fulfilled, right?" they added with a small growl, their fingers matching the confronting nature of the words with no longer a graze of her nipple, but a few quick, slightly rough swirls of their thumb, and then a pinch.

"O-oh…" Adora gasped as Catra pulled back slightly, obnoxiously springing their mouths apart before she could respond. Firmly pressed thumbs dragged down her hip bones and, before she knew it, Adora had stepped back so far that she was flush against the tall shelves, the spines of so many weathered and worn volumes pressing into her, supporting her as the rest of her body melted.

Catra dove back into their heated kiss with a sharp nibble to Adora's bottom lip, bringing out a deep, wanting, riskily pronounced moan that they undoubtedly knew would occur in response. Adora choked it back as best as she could, though just barely. Maybe if she was overheard, her titillated noises would just be shrugged off as those of one particularly dedicated bibliophile? However, that was highly unlikely considering the moans and pants that were surging in her chest, dying to escape and make her pleasure known; in their fully manifested state, those sounds would be hard to camouflage as anything but carnal.

Catra’s hands returned to her hips, but then one trended inwards, introducing the teasing presence of their middle finger to trace along Adora’s inseam—the barely-there touch more than enough to send her thighs parting involuntarily. Fuck. They just did that to her, Adora couldn’t help it, never really wanted to resist, even if she had no idea what torture Catra was concocting next.

A second finger joined the caress, more insistent and pointed in requesting unobstructed access. Adora startled at the increase of delectable pressure. Her elbow smacked right into a book, sending it crashing onto the floor with a clumsy, but resounding thud. Someone cleared their throat at the loud noise, clearly irritated, and while Adora assumed they must be in the distance based on their earlier survey of the floor, it was impossible to detect how close they truly were with how the sound carried between the shelves and along the high ceilings.

“Catra! Here? I mean what if someone sees—” Adora hissed in a whisper.

“Mmmm, when has that ever stopped us?” Catra cut her off with a smirk, not yet withdrawing their hand from where it was now toying with the button on Adora’s jeans. “Remember the park? Or how about that alley behind the coffee shop; anyone could've come around that corner and seen us.”

Adora chuckled nervously at their past indiscretions, only superficially irritated by the fresh wave of wetness the reminder brought on. Fine, okay, maybe they’d had their share of daring risks, but this one in particular seemed to be really upping the stakes. Yes, this wasn’t front-and-center of all the main shelves on the floor, but it also wasn't like they were backed into the safest , farthest possible corner, either, in this very public place!

Gods only knew how many other people were just mere steps away or potentially closing in with the excuse of pursuing knowledge. It wasn’t likely that two thrill-seeking lesbians living out their fantasies in row, uh, who-fucking-knows was listed on the particular reference numbers for the books in this section (although to be fair, if they were, they'd probably be gaining a lot of company). But hey, almost every fact worth knowing could be found online these days, so how much of a risk was it, really ?

"Quickly," Adora answered with a short huff, closing her eyes. Within a moment she opened them again, a sly smile creeping across her face, "But not too quick."

"Of course, princess," Catra agreed with a teasing edge, Adora's zipper already down far enough that their hand could easily slip lower. "Stay quiet."

"Yes," Adora moaned quietly as Catra's fingers met the waistband of her soft cotton panties, tracing the outline with teasing, tender touches. The hum of Adora's affirmation melted into a long shuddering exhale, her head tilting back as Catra's fingers explored.

"Mm, you're so hot," Catra said with growling admiration, "but give me more. Say it."

"Say what?"

"Oh, don't play coy, Adora," Catra chided.

"Psh—I-I'm not—" Adora sputtered defensively, her hand awkwardly gesticulating as she dreaded having to fulfill any challenging demands like speaking.

"So convincing," they said, snorting and rolling their eyes before rehardening their face into a salacious stare. "Tell me you want me to fuck you. Right now."

"Yess, Catra. Ugh. Yes, fuck me, please. Now," she hissed under her breath.

From the way Catra's nails scratched down Adora's lower stomach, blissfully sharp against her skin, it seemed they were satisfied with Adora's enthusiastic permission to proceed. Their fingers outlined the top of Adora's underwear once more, dipping below the material just long enough to brush against her curls. Every time that Adora was certain they would travel further down, sink their hand against her wet heat, finally bring relief to her dripping cunt…Catra would retreat, unrepentant, regardless of Adora's increasingly agitated breathing.

"Catra…" Adora sighed out in frustration after being denied the plunge she desperately craved yet again.

With a puckish grin, speaking volumes of satisfaction from hearing their name delivered so roughly, Catra teased the front of Adora's underwear with their fingertips, tracing down the center of the ever-growing dampness on the fabric. The featherlike strokes were delivered with such familiarity that Adora's eyes momentarily fluttered shut. Her awareness centered on those tender brushes, her need not waylaid by them, but instead stoked by every swirl of Catra's fingers against her. They wordlessly gave permission to let go and surrender herself to Catra's confident care, making Adora all too eager to comply with whatever whims of theirs might follow. The trust conveyed by her softening didn't go unnoticed either, for right as she dropped her shoulders, Catra deftly hooked the stretchy cotton to the side and sunk between Adora's drenched lips.

At the intensity of Catra's touch, Adora's shoulders went rigid once more and she sucked in a breath to stifle the keening "Fuuucck" reverberating through her mind.

"Gods princess, you're so wet for me," Catra rasped, their praising tone almost as good as their touch.

Adora bit down hard on her bottom lip, letting a shuddering sigh of delight escape slowly out of the side of her mouth. It had already been a challenge to not cry out—so caught up in the feel of Catra's middle and ring fingers slipping through her wetness, the way they shifted up to circle her needy clit, the sharpness of their claws as they gripped her hip in place—that she frankly deserved a medal for keeping her reaction as quiet as she did. However, rather than fine metals forged in the shape of a medallion, her restraint was awarded with an approving smirk and rumbling purr—and it was all just too much. Before she knew it her teeth lost their grip, a broken whimper setting itself free before she could choke it back, and Catra's eyes widened in reproach.

"Adora," Catra mouthed with a barely heard, but still highly reprimanding tone, fingers mostly stilling, but continuing to show their charge through the tiniest of thrums. Catra opened their mouth, likely to continue their admonishment, when—

Squeak, squeak.

"Shit," Catra swore under their breath with a sharp flick of their ear. "Someone's coming." Seamlessly, they slid their hand out from Adora's pants, sucking off their fingers with two wet smacking noises, and turned to examine a few volumes on the opposite shelf of where Adora had just been pinned. Caught up in the bliss that came from the swipe of Catra's fingers, Adora barely registered the warning, only jumping into action at the thump of Catra's tail against her calf. She scrambled to grab a book, any book she could, burying her bright red face into it, heart pounding in her chest.

"You're holding it upside down, dork," Catra laughed quietly, "Real smooth."

"Shut up," Adora said with a mild scowl, quickly righting the book, eyes glazing over the words and mumbling, "did they see anything?"

"Nope, walked right on by," Catra said nonchalantly, clapping the book closed in a way that both sent dust flying and Adora's heels blipping up from the floor in an automatic fear of drawing more attention.

Dust settling, along with her heart rate, Adora gave a hefty sigh of relief and set the shield—err book—down, taking a moment to rest her head against the cool, smooth wood of the shelf. How humiliating that could have been, caught like horny teens, unable to control themselves. They would have been banned for life at best, and how would Adora have been able to live with herself if —"Oh, fuck…"

"Shhh," Catra purred out, hand returned to its place between Adora's thighs, resuming the tight circles that made her legs threaten to give out. Catra's entire hand was now down the front of Adora's underwear, the material soaked and doing nothing to stop the drip down her thighs. "Mmm, someone liked that quite a bit, didn't they?"

Adora nodded eagerly, her head thrown back so that it rested against Catra's shoulder, Catra's front molded to her back. Her teeth sunk into her bottom lip as Catra's fingers swirled through her abundant slick.

Catra's breath came hot against her ear. "And since that pretty little mouth of yours almost got us caught…" Adora whimpered as the hand not currently gliding through her soaked folds came up and delicately traced the outline of her lips, with only the barest graze of pressure applied. "I'll have to make you stay quiet, slut."

As Adora's brain short-circuited from being put in her favorite, rightful place, Catra's hand clapped over her mouth in full. Adora jerked backward, only kept from crumbling to the floor by Catra's hands being pressed so tightly against her mouth and cunt that they pinned her place. She breathed jaggedly into their palm, labored huffs temporarily smothered.

@TaraCandyCorn

Adora’s hips jutted in time with the touches, haltingly and unsynchronized at first, but soon finding that Catra could meet even her most haphazard of rhythms, the fact in itself righting her into a harmonious tempo.

Under the skilled flick of Catra's fingers, Adora's legs slackened even more, threatening to buckle without something more than Catra's body to brace. Scrambling her hands forward, she forcefully huffed with relief against Catra's palm when she found the edge of the shelf before her, securing her balance.

Adora lost herself to the sensations, coming in and out of cognizance of their surroundings. Each return of recognition that yes they were here—the place only previously lived out in her mind—brought on a fresh zeal and enthusiastic thrust of her hips against Catra's dedicated strum.

Catra's rasp against her ear soothed as much as it incited, a feverish current driving their fingers, sending every last ounce of Adora's worries crashing away along the rocks of a torrenting river. Catra's longest finger dipped down to Adora's entrance, teasing through the wetness, and Adora angled herself into the touch, rocking against it just enough for it to push ever so slightly in and out.

If she'd had use of her mouth, she'd beg Catra to fill her, but she hoped her persistent thrusts were enough to convince Catra inward instead.

Ever the gentlethem, though, Catra hummed thoughtfully, their hot breath vibrating against Adora's ear, before delivering a request for confirmation. "You so turned on that you want to be that slutty for me, Adora? Fill you right here?" They pressed themself to the first knuckle at the last word. Here. That exact location of their finger. Here. Their exact location in the stacks. The answer was a resounding yes to both and she nodded her head forcefully into Catra's hand.

Catra's hesitation had come with good reason. Adora's request was bold, and far more daring than she ever allowed herself to be in these public outings, but her cunt ached for the feel of Catra inside her.

Catra's finger took painstaking caution with its entry and while Adora appreciated the conscientiousness of their initial slow movements in and out, she clenched down, impatiently rutting her hips against it. She typically wanted that gradual, gentle approach, allowing her to relax into the sensation before really taking off, but right now she just wanted Catra buried inside her.

"Wow, Adora. You really—" Whatever smug taunt Catra was about to deliver was covered up by their own gasp as Adora thrust down harder against their hand, their bodies syncing into their own intuitive language, facades be damned. The world became lost around them, only leaving the scent of Catra's skin peppered with that of aged books, the barely present creaking of the wooden shelf in front of her, and the sumptuous engulfment of heat. Adora felt herself tremble more and more with each rock of her hips, Catra gliding in and out of her with just the right friction.

Along with the depth of Catra's thrusts, the heel of their palm rapidly slid against Adora's clit and she tried to tilt her hips downwards for more precision, straining to increase the intensity against her. She kept getting achingly close to the level she craved, but then just missing the mark. Catra's finger inside her was amazing, it truly was, but evolving needs want what they want, and Adora's were voraciously desiring a shift.

Forcing one fairly numb hand off from the shelf, Adora dropped it to Catra's, stopping them in a tight grip. Frame immediately softening, Catra halted and began to pull their hand away but Adora firmly shook her head no, gripping them in place. A low, wanton growl emanated from Catra as Adora slid their hand out of her and immediately pressed their fingers up higher, against her clit, then nodded, rocking firmly against their hand.

"That's my good slut, showing me what you need…"

The affirmation made Adora's jaw tremble, a whimper resonating in her throat that turned into a palm-muffled pleading of Catra's name.

Catra's purrs at her back began to vibrate more intensely and a tantalizing fang pulled along the side of Adora's neck, causing her to fall deeper into the pressure of Catra's hold.

Adora's hand scrambled forward again, re-gripping the edge of the shelf in front of her once found, her nails boring tiny crescents into the wood. Three of Catra's fingers pressed down with flat, firm circles against her and Adora gasped, ragged and burning with want. Catra's name burst from Adora's lips again, smothered and wet with desire dripping from her mouth onto Catra's palm.

"Fuck, Adora," Catra said in a low tone of downright awe, compelling Adora's body to shift from heavy and uncontrolled, to practically made of clouds, floating away on the tenderness of her partner's affections. "So desperate to let go and be taken," they coaxed as their fingers began to speed, exactly like she was craving.

Adora's hips seamlessly met the pace Catra set, her own instincts easily overridden by their unyielding control, her body taking over as Catra took over it. The more Catra sped, the more Adora felt herself nodding frantically . Yes, yes, yes— the words that matched the irrepressible nods—remained contained behind her restrained mouth…but that didn't stop their shape. Sharp, staccato pitches, as quiet as she could muster, kept dying in her throat, squeaky as a swinging hinge. She was as wild and free as any gate left open in the wind and no amount of force from Catra's hand on her mouth could fully submerge her noises back to their depths.

That's when she began to start trembling, her voice finally strangling itself quiet as she temporarily forgot to breathe. Then over the heady silence brought on by her halted breath, she could only hear two things: the rough, rhythmic noise of her jostled denim, and the speed-driven sound of her wetness, slick and impossibly loud…and fuck, had there ever been anything as delicious as those slippery sounds? She wanted to scream. She needed to…fuck. She was so fucking close…

"Come for me."

Adora's eyes rolled into the back of her head at the huskily-voiced command, the built-up clenches between her thighs both expanding and tightening all at once, lifting up on her toes, ass pressing firmly back against Catra for purchase as her hips violently flinched.

She shifted from foot to foot for a moment, until the outer edge of her sneaker dug into the carpet, her calf tightening while grinding into—practically pummeling—Catra's hand as she rode out the releases bursting through her.

Adora was left shuddering and panting as she flinched through the aftershocks. It seemed Catra even deemed her quiet enough to not be overheard, as indicated by the way they dropped the hand from Adora's mouth and landed their arm with a tight grip around her shoulders and chest. Their swift, firm hold caught Adora as she threatened to fall forward, arms slinking off the shelf before her, then into the embrace.

Still gripping Adora tightly, Catra turned them both around so that their own back pressed against the shelf, and dappled kisses on the back of Adora's neck. "Good job, babe," they whispered reverently. "You're so beautiful. Breathe. Nice and slow." They gave their own example, deeply inhaling and squeezing her harder. "You did so good," they repeated softly as Adora let the back of her neck fall back gently onto their shoulder, turning her head into a kiss that Catra held against her cheek.

Attention: the Downtown Erelandia Public Library will be closing in ten minutes. If you have any materials that need to be checked out, please proceed to the front circulation desk now.

While Adora did feel Catra flinch against her at the sudden intrusion of the loud voice, their embrace remained unbroken throughout the announcement. There wasn't much that could truly startle her at this moment. She was nearly boneless in Catra's arms and way too delightfully tingly to have a care in the world outside basking in their own perfect bubble.

Adora's mind was a high school mixtape of gratitude for Catra. How had she been so lucky to find someone she melded with just so right? It was one thing for her to babble about her fantasies in usually-failing attempts to make them blush, but entirely another for them to join her in bringing them to fruition. Then to do it on no more than a whim? Fuck. She loved them. Unequivocally. She loved being their good slut, their fumbling dork, the one lucky enough to hold them at night when they curled at her side, too vulnerable for the rest of the world to see. She loved them in every single other way possible.

Before Adora could turn to proclaim her sex-drunken reminder to Catra of this love, the speakers overhead rumbled to life once more, beginning with a pert clearing of the announcer's throat.

And as a friendly reminder, please remember to keep quiet at the library. While enthusiasm for literature is encouraged, excessive noise is not. We thank you for your continued, respectful patronage of the Downtown Erelandia Public Library.

As the voice crackled from existence, the intended silence of the library slunk back in. Adora and Catra became equally as quiet, Adora stiffening in their arms before they both promptly broke down in giggles. It was so joyous and unrestrained that it ended with both of them shushing one another back and forth, so as to not threaten bringing on an even more direct, bordering on curt, reminder to be quiet, blared from above. Called out over a loudspeaker, quite literally put on blast, now that was truly a new level, even for them.

Adora flashed a cheeky grin. "Whoops," she said with an amused shrug and playful roll of her eyes, far too pleased with how her afternoon panned out to feel even a hint of embarrassment. Fulfilling a long-held sexy daydream with her even sexier partner? It would take a lot more than some passive-aggressive agenda from a librarian to quell her state of utter bliss.

"I guess we should…" Adora blushed, gesturing weakly towards the stairwell.

"Yeah, dork," Catra said through a chuckle, lacing their fingers together as they began their journey back downstairs. "Think we've overstayed our welcome."

As they headed towards the exit, Adora was relieved to discover that the same librarian that eyed them upon walking in was far too engaged with handling the last few checkouts of the afternoon to pay them any mind. She couldn't be sure, but the librarian definitely looked like their voice might match the one they'd heard over the loudspeaker, so exchanging any sort of eye contact or general acknowledgment of mutual existence was something she was happy to avoid. It wasn't as if any amount of stink-eye could ruin her delight, but Adora also didn't have the best track record of keeping her cool under a situation that involved even a hair of tact.

Exhaling blissfully once they were in the clear, Adora's mood was lifted even higher when a light breeze swept through the automatic doors, softly inviting them back into the outside world. Regardless of reality starting to be restored, the magic of their foray still seemed to be following them, coming in the form of sending errant leaves dancing over their feet and warm afternoon sunlight pleasantly warming Adora's cheeks.

It wasn't just the elements that washed over her with their comforting glow, but also a feeling of invincibility. If they could get away with this, what else could they pull off? If she was honest with herself, Adora's confidence in her own ability to keep quiet during such a risky stunt had been pretty dismal. Every other time they'd played with public fantasies had been in places either loud enough to at least somewhat drown her out or secluded enough to provide at least the illusion of security from actually getting caught. Now, with this success under her belt, though...well, it certainly made some of her other discretion-dependent fantasies feel that much more attainable, that's for sure.

As the pair walked back towards the parking garage they'd left their car in, Adora gave Catra's hand a squeeze, giddy when the gentle pressure was returned. "Hey, Catra?"

"Yeah, Adora?"

"Thanks for doing me so hard between the hardcovers," Adora said as casually as she could muster, turning her face with a self-satisfied brow raised. She gritted her teeth both in hopes that it might hold her expression intact and to brace herself for whatever witty quip or shoulder check she had coming.

Catra just groaned, throwing her some serious side-eye. "Really?" they responded in a voice dryer than any of the parchment Adora might try to tell a cheesy joke about next.

However, Adora wasn't dissuaded in the least by Catra's exasperation, but rather encouraged. Doing her best to keep her face even, she continued in the most reasonable of tones, "We should bookmark this to do again some other time."

Catra glared with a small cough, looking away for a moment before returning a steely gaze. "Adora..." they said slowly, putting on yet another performance of ire, but Adora was sure she was so close to getting them to crack.

"Sorry, should we put this conversation on hold?" Adora pressed on with a most winsome smile, more and more amused with herself by the second, and certain her wit was the key to win over her love, soon enough.

"I hate you."

Adora bubbled with giddiness at Catra's scowl. She was definitely winning. "Mm, no. You love me," she singsonged.

Catra scrunched up their face as if further irked but the corner of their lips kept twitching upwards before a small laugh resonated in their throat. They shook their head appreciatively, now smiling broadly. “Get in the car, dork.”

“Admit it,” Adora demanded with a gleeful brand of stubbornness, prodding both verbally and with her actual finger against Catra’s arm.

Catra rolled their eyes without disdain, jutting their chin towards the passenger side door, probably wanting Adora to take a hint. She remained unmoving, staring Catra down until they relented with a low, chuckling exhale. “Ugh, fine, yes, my dorky slut, I love you, happy?

Adora nodded curtly, utterly enthralled with her victory, and stomped towards her door proudly before swinging it open.

“The happiest,” Adora responded once tucked beside them in the car, glowing with the biggest smile, and pulling Catra’s equally-smitten face towards hers before they pressed their lips together.

End Notes

Awwwww. These sweet bbs.

You have no idea how much fun (and how HOT) this was to write.

Yoursfemmely apologizes for being the most distractible queer in the world, especially when it comes to talented as fuck hot butches who want to write porn with them. Seriously loves, I promise I will be getting back to my other porn writing shortly. Fucking hopefully. Unless there are other things we have in store for you and if that's the case, lord help us all.

MxSinshine just offers a smirk at being one of the two hot butches that distracted them with porn. And dear reader, please be totally and completely assured that should the opportunity arise again, I will absolutely distract them again in the future. If Yoursfemmely is writing anything, we're all better for it. Then throw in Tara's fantastic art on top of everything else… To have such talented queers in my life, goodness. I am not just a hot butch, but an exceedingly lucky one. ;)

Twitters: @yoursfemmely and @MxSinshine

Until next time, folks, wherever and whenever that may be.

If you happen to feel like satisfying some praise kink and leaving a comment, you will make some queers smile real fucking broadly.

Also, a million thank yous to lologoblens and VividSeal for beta-ing and taracandycorn for the hot as fuck art!

Please drop by the archive and comment to let the author know if you enjoyed their work!
