One Weekend

by MxSinshine

Summary

"Yeah, yeah. You're both very cute and soooo in love. It's gross." Glimmer says and Adora can see her bestie's fond eye roll perfectly from even over the phone. "So, you two ready to fuck yet or…?"

"Glimmer! Adora and Catra's private life are their own." Bow's voice cuts in.

"Yeah, I think we will." Adora can't even believe how sure of herself she sounds with her answer. But with how easily she and Catra have fit together in just a few short weeks of dating, it just seems right that they might end up in bed together tonight. Especially with Catra staying over at her apartment for the first time... Adora can only imagine what the two of them will do with an entire weekend alone.

For Jezmatron, for the #SPOPSmutSwap, a smut exchange happening from Feb 14th-21st as part of the SPOPCreativeFlex.

Notes

Heya, folks! Already to the week of Valentine's, isn't that somethin'? To celebrate that most romantic (and sultry) of holidays, a few people over at the SPOPCreativeFlex decided to participate in a smut exchange. So from Feb 14th-21st, expect to see quite a number of fiery fics added, not to mention some fantastic art. Truly, it's a gift for everyone as the world deserves more smut, but my exchange partner for this go-round is the one and only Jezmatron!

All right Mr. Wholesome-Wholesome-Love, you're familiar with my work. I don't really do wholesome sex... But I hope that you'll enjoy what I've prepared for you all the same. I believe it'll hit a few of those jars. ;-)

(Side note- Jez, you seriously came SO close to just getting the final smutty chapter of Her dedicated to you because that ticks so many boxes- plot, romantic, [mostly] wholesome sex, etc. But alas, you'll simply have to take this offering instead. Spring break will be over some day...)

I have 95% of this fic written and ready to go and no worries that includes all the smutty smut smut, but rather than give it to you in one huge chunk (I'm estimating close to 15k by the time it's completely done), I decided to parse it out over the week. Sun/Monday, Wednesday, Friday is the tentative posting schedule, but just know it will all be up before the 21st. So for now, enjoy part one and I'll catch you later in the week!

Chapter 1

"You like me?" Adora blinks, so overcome in this moment that all she can do is parrot back the words she thinks she hears Catra say. " Like me, like me?"

"What, is this middle school? Do I need to 'check yes' before classes let out for sixth period? Because if so I'm checking 'dummy' and walking away." Catra retorts, her tone clear that she's joking about walking away, mostly. "Yes, against all common sense and probably my best judgment, I am attracted to you. Like adults are."

"Wow…" Adora draws the syllables out, eyes lidded, and her smile is nothing short of dopey.

"I'll show you wow." Catra challenges with a playful lilt.

Adora is the luckiest woman on the face of the planet that instead of walking away, Catra walks towards her. She places one soft, sweet kiss on her lips, before turning her head to draw Adora in even deeper. A low current runs under Adora's skin as they meet; she cannot believe that Catra is kissing her. Catra, the girl of her dreams, likes her. Catra, the woman that Adora has been pining over for goodness only knows how long, is attracted to her. Her, Adora, the biggest dweeb to walk the streets of Brightmoon. Possibly the entire planet.

Their kiss is completely familiar because it is them and yet it is unlike anything Adora has ever felt before. Her body is tuned to Catra's frequency; she feels the woman's breath quicken as their mouths meet again and again, until the thought of breaking this kiss for any reason other than the sun stopping its arc in the sky is utterly incomprehensible. Catra's fingers tighten around Adora's waist as Catra switches sides of her mouth to kiss her more deeply, immediately claiming more purchase against Adora's hips. Adora is only encouraged by the motion, now pulling Catra closer to her, kissing her fiercely, ardently, and without a shred of doubt in her mind that they were both made for this.

Adora sucks in Catra's bottom lip, rolling her tongue against it, enthralled by the moan that follows when she then switches to light, playful nibbles. She would do anything to hear those noises every day for the rest of her life, to feel Catra's arms around her like this when the sun rises in the morning and to make certain the last thing Adora does each night is to hold this stunning woman close to her chest and thank the universe for allowing their paths to cross and meld. It is their first kiss, one of many more to come should fate allow such sweet grace to stay in her life, and it is everything.

Make sure you come hungry. 🌮 🔥

Adora rattles off the text, sending it quickly and getting back to her preparations. In the middle of dicing the tomatoes, she stops and bites her lip, realizing what she might have said could be seen as a little… suggestive. It is the first time she's having Catra over to her apartment and well, while she really wouldn't be opposed… That's not what tonight is about.

Solely.

Because I'm cooking! Black bean tacos and all the fixings!

Like jalapeños. 🌶 So, um, see you soon!

She’s certain that her rambling messages probably haven’t actually alleviated anything, but she sets her phone down and returns to cooking. Adora knows enough to keep herself alive like any halfway functional adult, but has also been trying to embrace a more plant-based diet. She’s not getting younger after all and her trips to the gym have become more happenstance than regularity. It’s high time she really starts to take care of herself better. Also the person Adora’s been seeing for over a month now largely eats that way and well…

Her phone rings and her stomach drops, but fortunately it’s only Glimmer. Catra has merely sent a thumbs up to her slew of messages, but at least they’ve been acknowledged and she hasn’t bungled things too badly. Adora is thankful for that as she answers the call.

“So another date tonight, hmm?” The voice on the other end of the phone sings-songs, not even allowing Adora the chance to say hello first.

“Yup!” Adora replies excitedly, temporarily halting her knife cuts in favor of swooning in the middle of her kitchen. She can’t help but grin, wild and unfettered as a swoop of happiness washes over her. “Our fourth one! I mean, I guess technically the fifth. Catra still thinks ice cream at the park counts since it sort of led to the whole confession thing, which I mean, sure, but I blew that way out of the water the next day with-...”

“Yeah, yeah. You’re both very cute and soooo in love. It’s gross.” Glimmer says and Adora can see her bestie’s fond eye roll perfectly from over the phone. Adora’s grin only grows more empty-headed at the teasing because it’s true. She’s absolutely head over heels in love and while it hasn’t been explicitly said yet, she is pretty sure Catra is there too. It’s the little things that have sunk Adora so quickly and easily, like how Catra’s nose scrunches up when she laughs, or how her eyes glint at the first sign of challenge, equally matching Adora’s own love of competition.

Catra is hands down the most clever person she has ever met; driven, focused, and enticingly sharp in her words and wit. She is able to infuse Adora with such calm and certainty, so much that even during the times that Adora has allowed her more anxious side to show, they have been blips rather than episodes. The honorific of 'dummy' has never sounded sweeter coming from those lips that Adora thinks about kissing approximately every half second.

So, yeah. At bare minimum she's hooked, she's sprung, she's absolutely smitten. But Adora isn't going to rush things, even if every time she sees the woman, her big, dumb gay brain encourages her to scream out to the entire universe that she's madly in love with one Catra D'Riluth, that everything she has to offer the woman is already hers should Catra ask it, and Adora would go to the ends of the world for her and fight against all odds once there. But that might all be a little much, at least for where they're at right now.

"So, you two ready to fuck yet or…?"

"Glimmer! Adora and Catra's private life are their own. How would you feel if one of them asked you about ours?" Bow's voice cuts in. Adora must be on speakerphone as her friends drive off to visit Micah for the week.

"Damn proud and ready to show off." Glimmer snickers as Bow sighs. "Adora doesn't have to answer, of course, totally their business, but I'm just saying Catra is coming over tonight…"

"Yeah, I think we will." Adora can't even believe how sure of herself she sounds with her answer. It is a far cry from how things first started between them- literally running into one another in the middle of a packed coffee shop, spilled iced mocha soaking into the floor and onto Catra's dry clean-only jacket (on her way to a formal presentation for work no less), Adora near in tears from embarrassment and the scathing comments being shot her way, describing in colorful detail about how Adora's general ineptitude and exceeding clumsiness had highly inconvenienced a perfectly innocent stranger, all when Adora was having a pretty shitty day even outside of unintentionally mowing someone down… But even after the bill for the cleaning was paid, it didn't stop. Catra and Adora began to run into one another everywhere , though fortunately not in a way that split Adora's lip wide open again like the first crash meeting had. So uncanny and utterly bizarre; they lived on opposite sides of a huge city, worked in industries that had no chance of ever crossing, and yet, both agreed to surrender to the serendipity of it all and become friends after about the sixth time of seeing one another out in what apparently was a small world, after all.

Adora chuckles at the recollection; she could never be just friends with Catra. She has always been a stumbling, fumbling gay hot mess in the presence of such a stone cold fox. But now that Adora knows that iced mocha tastes so much better off Catra's lips, having spent the majority of their last (breakfast) date testing that out, and with how easily they've fit together in just a few short weeks of dating, it just seems right that they might end up in bed together tonight. And if not tonight, eventually. She nearly ran them both late the other morning after coffee and croissants, unable to keep her tongue out of Catra's mouth and her hands from moving up her unfairly sexy button up, as Adora had Catra pushed up against some wall outside of the cafe they met at. So Adora can only imagine what the two of them will do with an entire weekend alone.

Adora is brought back to the present from her vivid imaginings when the phone she is holding buzzes loudly in her ear. She startles, expecting it to be Glimmer texting after so many increasingly miffed calls of Adora's name have been ignored, but it is Catra. Catra who says she will be to Adora's apartment in less than twenty minutes. "Shit, I have to go. Catra's gonna be here any second and I'm still cooking."

"Oh, I'm sure Catra wouldn't mind if you decided to eat out instead." Surprisingly it is Bow, using his coy voice, that takes the low-hanging fruit. Adora swears she hears a high five before her two very best friends in the whole wide world break out into a fit of giggles.

"Very funny. Clever and cute. Now can I please go back to making din-..."

"What're you serving up tonight?" Glimmer asks sweetly. "I think you mentioned that Catra is a vegetarian, so guessing fingers and breasts are off the menu. Chicken, of course."

"Okay, now you're just reaching. Also, she's closer to being pescartarian, really." Adora grits her teeth at the 'joke', seconds from just hanging up on them. Except she fears that if she does, they will just call back again and again. She could turn off her phone, but then she risks missing Catra's arrival text. Not thinking about the repercussions of such an answer, even if it is the truth, Adora flatly responds, "Tacos."

There are two full beats of dead silence before the cacophony of cackles erupts. "Oh, wow. Okay, I'm not even going to touch that one-..." Glimmer starts, losing it all over again when Bow chirps in with, "But Adora will be glad to!"

"You two suck. I'm hanging up now- do not contact me for any reason for the next 72 hours. I will not hesitate to block you." It is a mostly empty threat and they all know it, but Adora at least hears the laughs at her behalf being smothered. "Seriously, bye."

"Bye, babe! Have a great time; use protection!" Adora groans and finally, the call is disconnected.

Adora quickly forgoes any attempt at nice, even cuts for the pico de gallo and just works to get the damn thing finished. Fortunately the onions and peppers soften quickly and once the beans are tossed into the saute mix, everything just needs seasoned. Catra has just updated her again about her arrival time, grumping because the Lyft driver takes a route that adds a whole two minutes to the trip. Adora chuckles at the text, warmed that this amazing person is so outraged at any delay to them getting to be together again. Between that and what she discussed with Glimmer and Bow, Adora is practically floating through her kitchen, excited . Catra is coming over tonight and staying for the whole weekend! It's going to be amazing.

With one last shake of the premade spice blend, Adora tears out of the kitchen to make sure for the umpteenth time that she is halfway presentable and her breath is still minty fresh. So far Catra hasn't turned down a single kiss from her since the first one, but she can't take any chances. As she drifts out of her bathroom, Adora smells something sweet in the air. Huh, odd, but now Catra has shared what little remains in her route and Adora can see she's barely two blocks away. No time to think about it, Adora moves to quickly get their dinner into serving bowls and then sprints to her front door.

Catra is barely out of the car before Adora has both arms around her, squeezing. Catra's scent immediately fills her nose; an enchanting blend of cedar, citrus, and lavender that just smells clean . And she gets to enjoy it all weekend. Hers.

Catra chuckles at Adora's exuberant embrace and returns it just as fiercely. "Hey, Adora."

It is only when Adora feels the vibrations against her cheek more than truly hears the greeting that she realizes she has rested her head against Catra's shoulder, instantly nuzzling into the gorgeous woman's neck. A little sheepishly, she raises her head up and meets Catra's eyes. It is a magnificent error on Adora's part; she is spellbound by the heterochromatic gaze and held captive on the sidewalk just outside her apartment.

As much time as they've spent together, romantically or otherwise, Adora still is just awed by Catra's presence. It is more than just the fact that she's breathtakingly beautiful, it is the way Catra carries herself, as if the world itself will part for her. That level of confidence and certainty flows through Catra's whole being and it is the sexiest thing ever. Catra hasn't done anything more than just existed and Adora feels a thrum deep within her, one that demands to be as close to the other woman as possible at all times. Preferably with nothing else between them.

“Catra…” Adora's voice catches as she finally speaks. “Hi.”

Her eyes flick down to watch as Catra’s lips slowly curl into a lopsided little smirk and Adora has to swallow several times. It doesn’t really help; her tongue is still dangerously close to hanging out of her mouth, especially when it becomes abundantly clear that Catra has noticed Adora noticing her lips. The grin turns pointed, devilish, but Catra just moves her arms so they are more firmly holding on to Adora’s waist and softly repeats, “Hey.”

“Come inside? Do you want to?” Suddenly Adora is desperate to not be in public any longer. Despite what the faint pulse low, low in her stomach says, it is not for any particularly sultry reason. She just cannot wait for her weekend with Catra to really start and for the woman to be a part of her home for three blissful days (taking Monday off work was a brilliant idea, Catra truly is incredible). They have nothing really planned except to be with one another and that is the best feeling.

“Sure,” Catra answers easily, her hands relaxed as they rest along Adora’s hips. Everything about the woman is completely at ease, entirely opposite of how keyed up Adora is feeling. “Just one thing first.”

Before Adora can even get one questioning syllable out, Catra sweeps her up in a kiss, sound and unapologetic. Adora inhales sharply at the feel of soft, warm lips hitting her own, glad for how Catra’s hands on her waist move to steady her. Adora is dangerously close to melting into a puddle on the ground, somehow still surprised that kissing is just something they get to do . Catra’s mouth is closed, but with how her fingers twirl into the belt loops of Adora’s jeans, pulling them even closer together, Adora is struck with the irrefutable feeling that any chastity is just for now. The anticipation is delicious, enthralling and maddening, but the more she sits with it, the more Adora wants to languish in it. They don’t need to rush, there is as much time for sweet, gentle kisses as there is for decidedly less wholesome activities. Adora wants it all.

Their kiss comes to a natural pause and after one last stolen peck, Adora insists on shouldering Catra's overnight bag and carrying it inside for her. It's incredibly light, but the gesture is noticed. "Goof."

Catra's voice is near silken with affection and Adora's returned smile is blinding. Adora holds out her hand to lead them and Catra intertwines their fingers. It's a little awkward to walk up the three narrow steps that lead inside Adora's home, but the pair manage, giggling as they cross over the threshold.

"So. I'm finally here at your apartment."

"You are." Adora squeals, eyes wide as she watches Catra casually observe her living room. Not much out of the ordinary- a couch, a chair, a few bookshelves and one modest TV. It is nothing exciting or interesting and certainly after they eat this is where they will end up, at least for part of the night. "Are you hungry?"

"Yeah, I could eat." Catra sniffs the air, a lopsided grin coming to her face. "You baking something too?"

Adora puzzles at the question, because it certainly smells like she is, but even a simple boxed brownie mix either turns out to be a soupy, inedible mess or burnt to an unrecognizable crisp whenever she tries to bake. So if anything, a late-night order of Insomnia Cookies was the extent of Adora's dessert plans, assuming they aren't otherwise engaged by the end of the night. Strange because it smells distinctly like cinnamon, maybe even nutmeg, in her apartment.

With no small amount of trepidation that she unsuccessfully tries to hide under a smile, Adora temporarily sets Catra's bag on a nearby chair and says brightly, "Let's go to the kitchen and see!"

If she weren't holding on to Catra's hand as they walked, Adora might take a moment to pat herself on the back. Dinner looks picturesque, from the bright red of the tomatoes in the pico to the perfect dollop of sour cream laid out on the counter at the build your own taco bar. It is only missing the black bean, onion and pepper mixture, but that is on the lowest flicker of heat to make sure the main part of the meal stays warm. The dessert-like fragrance is stronger here and as Adora turns to her stovetop, brows furrowed, she notices something that maybe might explain a few things.

"Oh."

"What's up?" Catra pipes in behind her, peering into the kitchen. "Need a hand with something?"

"No." Adora's voice is crestfallen. Everything on the counter looks so good , but there is a culinary crime happening in the skillet. "I don't think it can be saved…"

"What can't, babe?"

Adora can't even delight in the pet name; she's too busy running through solutions. She definitely doesn't have enough veggies on hand just to try again and going to the grocery store would eat up too much of their precious time together. Adora swallows and then rushes forward, ripping the bandaid off the fruits of her inattention. "I can order us some take-out, I promise! Whatever you want to eat. And I'm not usually a bad cook, not great sure, but uh, Glimmer, she called me and the containers just look so similar… I'm sorry."

Adora's shoulders crumple forward, but Catra's arms are quick to wrap around her from behind, a solid presence that Adora can latch onto as they navigate this little mishap. Catra's voice is soft as her lips ever so lightly brush against Adora's ear. "Hey, breathing is good for your health. Let's try again here. What are you sorry for?"

Adora hangs her head for a moment and then reaches forward towards her prep station next to the oven, wordlessly snatching up the large jar of pre-made spice blend so that Catra, still standing behind her, can see. The label is blocked by her hand, but the spices inside the shaker are a dull orange color. Before Catra can say another word, Adora detaches herself from the sweet, comforting embrace and bashfully goes to her spice cabinet and produces a jar that is the exact same size and shape as the first, except the contents of this container are bright and rusty.

"I used this one," She shakes the first container, "instead of the other. And well, it's pumpkin pie spice… Not taco seasoning…"

"You made us pumpkin spice bean tacos?"

"… Yes." Adora gulps, searching Catra's face for a reaction, anything that indicates what her guest is thinking at this moment. It is unreadable.

After Adora is certain that these five minutes will be the only time Catra spends in her apartment ever, the woman cackles, shaking her head slowly, warmth crinkling the corners of her eyes. Catra steps forward so her arms are again draped around Adora, this time over her shoulders, and leans in so their foreheads are resting against one another. After a few moments of standing like this amongst the aroma of allspice and ginger, Catra places a tiny kiss to the tip of Adora's nose and smiles widely, "Sounds repulsive. Can't wait."

Adora is adrift in a myriad of competing sensations; she is still positive that she's ruined their dinner, stinging at the description of "repulsive" no matter how apt it might be, but also reeling at the tenderness of the moment. Even when she's feeling bad, Catra can make her feel so good and that's just… great.

Slowly the feeling of being a total screwup lessens, especially once Catra continues speaking, "And not even that bad. This is fixable." As fluidly as if Catra had been the one to set up Adora's kitchen, the woman moves over to the small spice cabinet mounted on the wall over the microwave. She hums as she reviews the offerings stored there, tsking all the while. “All right well, probably fixable with what we’ve got here. Definitely going to Penzey’s as soon as possible. I don’t even see black pepper here, really?”

“It’s icky.” Adora mumbles, a little flummoxed at what exactly is happening to give an answer much beyond that.

“Not even going there right now.” Catra remarks absently as she grabs a few small jars and opens them, sniffing and nodding in satisfaction at her findings. Adora’s approach to spices is whatever is on sale or what Bow leaves behind when the bis come by for the bi-weekly bite. Aside from the aforementioned ground black peppercorns, she’s not picky or all that discerning. Spices make things taste good, Adora knows, but she doesn’t quite have that mysterious sixth sense for what a pinch of that or a dash of this will actually do to a dish. “This’ll work.”

Barely a minute later a few additions to Adora’s unconventional spice blend have been made and the kitchen starts to smell more like a Mexican feast rather than Thanksgiving dessert. Catra hums as she throws in dashes of cumin, paprika, and a healthy dose of cayenne powder, tasting it as she goes and finally shrugging her satisfaction. “It’s really not bad. Cinnamon can absolutely be used in savory dishes and I really like nutmeg as an aromatic. Here- see what you think.”

A spoon is held out for Adora to taste test and while she’s very skeptical, she knows Catra wouldn’t hold back just to spare her feelings over such a small, stupid mishap like seasonings. If it was truly nasty, Catra would say so. And sure enough, it’s not. A little strange, but entirely edible, especially once they get all the other delicious toppings on there. Adora blinks in wonder, somehow even more enamored of this sexy, put-together woman. Nothing bad can really happen so long as they’re together, Adora is sure of it.

“Okay, it’s not bad. Actually, kind of good? Huh.” Adora considers the flavor profile and decides it’s more than just merely edible.

She brightens considerably and any anxiety she was experiencing is swept away. “You’re amazing, Catra. Thank you for fixing up my mess. You just relax now, it’ll only take a few seconds to heat up the tortillas.”

Adora happily picks up the flour shells and prepares to nuke them in the microwave for just long enough to get them warm and pliable for the best taco delivery system. She doesn’t get any further than setting them on a plate before Catra cuts in, “Stop right there, gringa. There’s a better way. Guessing you don’t own a comal, so tongs?”

Tongs and a gas burner are all Catra needs to make the flour tortillas warm and crispy. She lies them directly over the burner for ten to fifteen seconds, flipping them once so they’re golden with only tiny hints of char on both sides. Truly genius and not anything Adora would ever think of doing. But she can taste the difference and will never prepare her soft shells any other way from now on.

They talk over dinner, mostly about their respective days and it’s just so… homey. Adora has been privileged to see many sides to Catra over the time they’ve known one another, but this is an entirely new facet. It strikes her just how easily the woman fits into her space, like they’ve done this countless times before and it’s as natural as if this were their life every night. Adora lightly bites the rim of her waterglass as Catra dips a chip into the guac bowl with a small hum of appreciation at the taste. She used a mix to make it, but had to cut open and mash the weird, pitted fruit so Adora is feeling proud that Catra seems to like it so much. She’d cook for this gorgeous woman every night if she could.

“So I gotta know, why do you even have that big ass jar of pumpkin spice?” Catra asks with an amused grin. “I mean, I know basic white girl, but still…”

“It was on sale?” Adora admits with a shrug. She really only needed it for one pie, a chance to try and replicate Razz’s masterpiece during the holidays, but as she bought it, she reasoned with herself that it would encourage her to come up with a whole host of new and interesting recipes. Adora supposes she succeeded with that one tonight. "The small jar was like $3.49, but the big one was only $5…"

"Economical. And it certainly made tonight's meal… complex."

Catra's golden eye winks at her and Adora just has to laugh. It wasn't half bad, enough that there's barely any leftovers. At least tonight was the only meal she planned on making herself. Adora will happily leave it to the professionals when she takes Catra out for a nice meal the following night.

With dinner finished and the clean up started, Adora shoos off Catra's attempt to help even load the dishwasher. As she works, the smallest tinge of nerves start to settle in. The times they've gotten together before tonight have always had activities involved; mini-golf, hikes, food… What if Catra gets bored and decides she wants to leave? She looks entirely at ease, her shoulders relaxed, one arm draped over the back of Adora's dining room chair, sipping at a sparkling water as Adora bustles through busing and cleaning. Catra also looks… amused in a way that Adora can't place. There's something behind that curious half-smirk and it makes Adora's cheeks burn when she realizes how intently Catra is watching her. Fuck. Why is Adora fiddling around in the kitchen when she's got Catra at her apartment?

Speeding through the last of her tidying, Adora rinses her hands and draws a breath. It's them; everything is fine. "All finished!" She calls out brightly as she walks in from the kitchen. "Unless you need anything?"

"No, I'm fine."

Not for the first and certainly not the last time, Adora is struck by the truth of the words. Catra is fine. Especially with her skintight black leggings and almost unfairly low cut top, the first three buttons left undone so that Adora is left dizzy by the expanse of freckles that bloom across the woman's upper chest. She could spend the next 72 hours kissing each one, working her way down, unbutton yet another button to gain access to just a little more skin…

At Catra's raised brow, Adora stops openly gaping and looks for anything to distract her from just how inherently sexy Catra truly is. She'd like to keep it together for a little while, maintain an ounce of chill, but Catra's gaze just makes her feel hot. Adora is stubborn enough to ignore it for now. She'd hate for Catra to get the impression that she was trying to usher them into bed tonight. Things just need to happen as they happen and no matter what happens, Adora is happy that it happened at all, and oh stars, Catra is still looking at her, lightly tapping her fingers against the can of her bubbly water. She gulps at the sight of three rounded nails on Catra's dominant hand, the rest left sharp and enticing. Catra has always been impeccable with her dress and presentation, but that extra dulled nail is intriguing to say the very least.

"You wanna go watch something?" There, something normal and enjoyable, but also lends itself to the opportunity to be close to one another and cuddle. Adora is proud of herself for the suggestion, even if it's a little cliché.

"Sure." Catra finishes the last of her drink and insists on actually walking the empty can to the recycling bin herself, once she is pointed in the right direction. Adora sheepishly hangs back in the dining room, trying to not hover. She doesn't want Catra to have to lift a finger this whole weekend, but there is also a fine line between "caring" and "overbearing". It's one that Adora has always tiptoed along with the people she cares for and Catra is high on that list.

As they approach the couch, it's like Adora forgets how the furniture works. She stands stock-still by the sofa until Catra takes the initiative and seats herself. It is only then that Adora shakes herself and quickly sits down too, cursing internally when she realizes that she's almost a full cushion away from Catra. What was she thinking with that placement?

Catra wordlessly looks at the gap between them and Adora is fairly certain she sees an eye roll before Catra turns her head away. She most definitely hears a sigh and her worst nightmare comes to life when Catra stands up from the couch, but before Adora can stammer out to ask if she's okay, Catra's index finger presses into the middle of her forehead. "Okay, what's going on up here, dummy?"

"N-nothing!" Adora quickly asserts, her eyes instinctively crossing to look up at the finger pressing so accusingly into her.

"Well, that would be normal for you." Catra smirks, but her finger drops to run lightly along Adora's cheek, her brows creasing together into a point. Adora swallows, her pulse fluttering as Catra strokes so gently down her face, and though Catra's expression remains even, Adora can see a peek of genuine concern behind her eyes. That is confirmed when Catra, low and quiet, asks, "You sure?"

Perhaps it is from how tender Catra's touch is or maybe it's the look she's giving Adora, but Adora means it when she nods yes. She is okay, so long as Catra is here. Adora really is the luckiest person out there.

Catra studies her a moment longer and then relents. She pulls her hand from Adora's face and Adora feels a tiny prick of disappointment once Catra is no longer touching her, but the feeling is short-lived. The woman doesn't quite climb into her lap, but Catra doesn't make the same mistake Adora did upon sitting down. She tucks up close to Adora's side, half resting against her and making the decision for them. They're cuddling now and damn does it feel nice.

Thankfully, the remote is within arm's reach because Adora doesn't want to move for any reason. Catra's scent fills her nose and the press of her back into Adora's side is comforting. She's so warm and the few places where bare skin brushes against bare skin tingle, little pricks that bring Adora to attention and make her want to explore the sensation to its fullest, most pleasurable conclusion.

At least they don't spend much time debating what to watch and it's in part because about seventy five percent of Adora's focus right now is on the delicate slope of Catra's neck, how easily she could just bend forward and place a line of lingering kisses along it as her hands roam freely down the outline of Catra's waist, before moving up to massage her breasts and pull out all the little cries that Adora longs to hear again and again. They turn on some Sci-fi steampunk animation that they've both seen before, but it will be just as interesting to see the inequity between the people of the underground and the topsiders a second time. Watching with Catra is sure to be a whole new experience. And hey, it's gay.

Catra and Adora make little comments as the episode plays, pointing out things that each had missed during their individual first viewings. Catra is way more astute than she is, drawing connections to later episodes that would surely escape Adora's notice even if she were on her tenth rewatch, but Adora loves to watch that beautiful mind at work. Piltover's finest have nothing on her girl.

Barely into episode two and Adora's hand twitches against the back of the couch. Catra seems perfectly content resting against her side like she is, but Adora's arm really wants to pull Catra in a little closer. She can't really place why she's hesitating; at their breakfast date the other morning, agreed to at the last minute because they couldn't wait to see one another again, Adora's hands had no trouble exploring. But somehow in the comfort of her own home, Adora just taps her fingers. Then stills. She taps some more, sort of to the beat of the opening song to the show. Catra's hand reaches up and grabs her antsy, craving fingers, bringing them down so that Adora's arm is now resting about her shoulders. Catra twines their fingers together and the message is instantly clear: Quit fidgeting, dummy.

Adora would feel a little embarrassed by the whole thing except for the fact that Catra also takes this opportunity to rest her head against Adora's chest, stretching her legs out along the rest of the couch. She is in full lounge mode and Adora thinks that's a good sign that leaving hasn't crossed Catra's mind once tonight. Adora relaxes at the realization, it's made all the better once she feels a few light kisses along her knuckles. This is just positively dreamy; a stunning girl in her arms on a Friday night, quality queer media to watch, and oh , Catra's lips are starting to move down her thumb towards Adora's wrist. She's never been kissed on the inside of her wrist before and wouldn't have ever guessed it would be a spot for her, but the flash down her stomach, settling low and simmering there, is a damn good indication.

Adora's breath shudders as Catra continues her kisses, some open-mouthed and all along her wrist and palm. She doesn't quite know what to make of the situation, except that she definitely doesn't want it to stop. Catra only pauses in her mission to map Adora's arm with her mouth to remark on something in the show. The woman's voice is low and throaty and Adora can feel Catra's hot breath as she holds Adora's hand close to her mouth. Adora makes a sound of acknowledgement at whatever Catra has just said, but she has absolutely no idea what that might have been. She is fully focused on Catra with absolutely no brainpower leftover to care a lick about other lesbians.

Catra must notice her distraction because she shifts a little, dropping Adora's hand in favor of wrapping her own arm loosely over Adora's tummy, body half-turned away from the TV. Adora gulps when she feels Catra's fingers trace little patterns along the top of her thigh. The show is just static noise against the thump, thump, thump of Adora's heart. Every pass of Catra's fingers, even through her jeans, is felt so intensely. She twitches and Catra glances up, a curious and playful half-smirk spread across her face, the woman feigning surprise at the fact that inching decidedly towards Adora's inner thigh would make her a bit jumpy .

Unable to resist those soft lips and Catra's lidded gaze, Adora closes the small distance between them with a satisfied sigh. Why hadn't she done this an hour ago? Kissing Catra is the best experience in the world, especially once Adora puts her hands on the small of Catra's back, occasionally drifting lower to cup that perfect, firm ass. It's a little awkward since Catra is to her side and as the kisses just grow hungrier, Adora moves up to slot firmly against the woman's waist, easily guiding Catra into her lap.

"Finally got the message, hmm?" Catra smirks, hovering barely six inches from Adora's lips. Her hands move along Adora's biceps, squeezing as she straddles her hips. "Took you long enough."

Despite the nickname, Adora isn't a dummy nor is she surprised that Catra has been encouraging her along. Catra loves to be chased almost as much as she loves being caught. Still, she's so much more than just someone Adora wants under her for the night. "Didn't want you to think…"

"That you were just trying to get me into bed? Considerate." Catra finishes for her. Adora is focused on the lips in front of her as they draw nearer. She feels more than hears Catra when she whispers, "But did you stop to think that maybe I want to be there?"

"Fuck…" Adora breathes out before crashing their mouths together, giving into the hunger that's been lurking in the background of her mind all night. She's not surprised by the words, but it is still downright exciting to hear. Adora wants Catra in her bed… Catra wants to be in Adora's bed… And Adora's bed is barely twenty steps away from where they are currently wrapped up in one another, lips, tongues, and hands all desperate for more.

What seemed as pretty darn likely during the discussion earlier with her friends is now downright inevitable, particularly once Catra's shirt lands somewhere in the vicinity of the TV. Well, most of Catra's shirt. Those top three buttons may have been undone this entire time, but after fussing with a couple of the others, Adora finally just gives the whole thing a sharp tug, far too eager to wait any longer to undress the woman settled in her lap. She feels Catra growl against her lips at the sound of tearing fabric, her fingers digging into Adora's shoulders encouragingly as the material is hastily slipped off her and discarded.

"You're replacing that." Catra informs her, lightly pulling at Adora's ponytail to accentuate her directive.

The blonde nods weakly, whimpering in satisfaction once the strands go taut. The tiny pricks of pain are enthralling, as are Catra's raspy commands. Despite Adora's fervent desire to drink in every last inch of newly revealed skin before her, her chin is lifted upwards with an even sharper tug. Catra takes the opportunity to nibble at her exposed bottom lip, immediately running her tongue against it to soothe and excite. Adora's rather pathetic whimpers turn into hearty moans, only increasing when Catra's dexterous fingers move again and her hair is let loose about her shoulders, now entirely free. Catra runs her hands through the entire length, from the roots all the way down to the ends, and it feels so good on Adora's sensitive scalp.

As their mouths continue to move, so do their bodies. Catra may have started straddling her lap but now she is firmly over top of Adora's thigh and Adora can't help but raise it up, giving Catra something solid to grind against. It's a tantalizingly slow grind and combined with hard, open-mouthed kisses, both women are left breathing heavily, near panting. Adora can feel Catra's heat against her thigh, a steady, pulsing beat that announces their shared need. Her own underwear is damp, sticking and uncomfortable, but there is a remedy.

"Bedroom?" Adora breathes out, raising her leg a little higher and reveling in the deep groan as Catra unashamedly rolls against it. Her hands guide her hips, thumbing small circles against the prominent points.

"Hell yes." Catra quickly latches onto her lips again, sucking on the bottom and making up for those few lost precious seconds they weren't kissing. Her hands are fisted through the front of Adora's shirt, sometimes pulling her in harder, other times using it to brace herself into a particularly deep roll of her hips. Catra unsurprisingly has astounding control; were things reversed, Adora would have broken long ago, unable to resist letting go while grinding on such an unbelievably sexy woman. Catra though, while obviously enjoying herself if the moans and increasingly rough motions against Adora's thigh are any indication, seems perfectly put together save for how her eyes glint, bright with lust. Adora is sure she looks about the same, so wanting and eager.

Both women are far too stubborn to break their kiss as they rise from the couch and paw their way towards the bedroom, at least until Adora bumps into an end table she swears someone moved on purpose to thwart her. Catra chuckles at Adora's clumsiness in her own quarters and raises a single brow, waiting for Adora to lead the way. At least it's not far.

Chapter 2

Chapter Summary

Adora repeats herself, now decidedly more firm. “I want you, Catra. Lay down on the bed and let me have you.”

Catra arches a brow at that, eyes widening slightly at the unanticipated directness. Adora feels a flash of pride that she’s actually managed to surprise the woman, but it quickly dissolves into unadulterated want once Catra turns and saunters towards her bed and sits. She settles so that she is poised on the very edge, then crooks a single finger in Adora’s direction to summon her.

"Well?"

Chapter Notes

(Like I was really going to wait until Wednesday. And if more of my Real Life Adulting meetings have the decency to cancel, I'll have this wrapped up by Wednesday!)

Enjoy the Smut!

Once in the bedroom, Adora pauses for a moment, letting their eyes adjust to the much dimmer lighting in here. There is only a single strand of fairy lights, mounted up near the ceiling and set on a timer, to illuminate her room at this time of night. They infuse the area with a soft glow, providing just enough light to see by. And as Catra stands next to her, almost half-naked and astoundingly beautiful, Adora is so thankful that she’ll be able to see every detail of what comes next.

She is so sure of herself and what she wants at this moment that Adora turns to face Catra, stepping in close. The other woman smiles softly as she approaches. Adora is drawn to trace the outline of her lips with her fingers, slowly moving against them, intent to memorize them with bountiful, passionate kisses as well as by so many other kinds of touch. As Adora grazes the softness, Catra's mouth parts, drawing in the very tip of her index finger between her teeth and running her tongue against it. She doesn't bite down, but Adora still sucks in a sharp breath. Stars, that tongue…

"Will you lay down for me?"

"Mmm, so polite." Catra murmurs though makes no move to acquiesce her request at this time.

It is clear from how she takes Adora's finger back into her mouth, this time adding a little sucking pressure to go along with the flicks of her tongue, that she is trying to kill Adora. At the very least she's attempting to drive her absolutely mad with desire. It's working splendidly, so much that Adora needs to touch her, to kiss every gorgeous inch of this tantalizing woman's body and turn that teasing grin into breathless, wrecked pants of pleasure. She repeats herself, now decidedly more firm. "I want you, Catra. Lay down on the bed and let me have you."

Catra arches a brow at that, eyes widening slightly at the unanticipated directness. Adora feels a flash of pride that she's actually managed to surprise the woman, but it quickly dissolves into unadulterated want once Catra turns and saunters towards her bed and sits. She settles so that she is poised on the very edge, then crooks a single finger in Adora's direction to summon her.

Adora wastes no time in approaching, raising one hand to cup Catra's cheek. She slides down to hold her chin, now tracing along her jaw. Catra's eyes close reflexively at the touch, but when they open again, they are bright and challenging. "Well?"

Adora does not answer, save to step in so that her leg is in between Catra's thighs, now drawing the woman's chin up. She sees the column of Catra's neck bob as she swallows and feels no small amount of satisfaction that beneath how put together and near nonchalant she appears, Catra is anticipating this just as much as Adora is. Her skin is coppery in the low light, arms braced on either side of herself to support as she leans on the edge of the bed. From this distance, Adora can count each freckle across the bridge of her nose and she cherishes each one for only adding to the beauty and complexity of Catra's already impeccable form. But it is upon seeing her favorite one, that tiny dark speck that resides deep in the golden amber of Catra's left eye that really makes Adora draw in a breath. It would be so easy to overlook, but she knows it's there, having spent so many countless hours memorizing every minute feature of this person she's absolutely head over heels in love with.

And with that thought, Adora kisses Catra, bending so that her loose blonde strands form a curtain around them. She keeps it soft and delicate, infusing it with everything she is feeling in this moment and letting it sink in between them. Catra whimpers at the brush, seemingly more overcome by this kiss more than any of the others they've shared this evening. Perhaps it is because of where they are, in Adora's bedroom, just moments before exploring one another fully. Adora savors it completely whatever the cause, committing every sensation, every feeling in this pristine moment to long term memory. It is hers for always, but more importantly it is theirs to share.

As Adora kisses her a little more firmly, their tongues meeting, sending shivers down her spine, she supports the back of Catra's neck and lowers her down gently. The pair share a satisfying sigh as Catra is laid flush with the mattress and Adora pauses, flushed and overcome by the view below her.

Catra's long, dark curls are fanned out behind her, already tousled and wild from their time spent on the couch. Adora doesn't exactly recall tangling her hands up in that gorgeous flow of hair, but she also wouldn't put it past herself. Catra's lips are slightly parted, her eyes lidded and at ease, seeming to luxuriate in the apt attention that Adora is bestowing on her. Her gaze travels down, a jolt hitting low in her stomach when she realizes the number of dark bruises scattered across Catra's neck, all thanks to her. Adora hungrily skates over the rest of Catra's bare upper chest, before making good on her promise to herself earlier to kiss every freckle at least once this weekend.

Her lips make their way down until Adora feels a new sensation against her mouth- a steel gray bra, trimmed at the top of the cup with a delicate seashell lace. She can see the hardened peaks beneath the satiny material and lightly runs her thumb across over one, watching as Catra's abdomen flexes and tenses by the brush. Adora smiles at the reaction, increasing the pressure slightly, rolling it between her thumb and forefinger as Catra's breath hitches.

Not wanting the other side to be spared the attention it so deserves, Adora lowers her mouth over the stiff nipple. It is still covered by the silky bra, but that doesn't stop her from placing a few playful kisses there, her hand on the other side moving to fully massage along Catra's breast. Once Catra is crying out softly, Adora cannot resist the desire to feel her directly and her hands find their way to the two small clasps in the back, deftly unhooking them.

"Surprisingly smooth." Catra compliments her with a murmur. "For you."

"Thanks. Pretty good incentive here." Adora returns with a matching grin. Though Catra's cheeks are flushed and her voice is a step lower than normal given the highly arousing situation the pair finds themselves in, the woman still manages a heavy, loaded smirk. It is just about Adora's favorite thing, that inexhaustible sass. She can't really think of a reaction that is any more Catra than snarkily commenting on Adora managing not to be an absolute fumbling dweeb while undressing her for the first time; it's somehow perfect and just so them.

Actually, now it's perfect because Catra has raised up to allow the undergarment to be slipped from her shoulders and removed entirely from her person. The reveal of Catra's chest is everything Adora dreamed it would be and yet so much more. Each is a perfect handful, the nipples pert and dusky, and Adora wants nothing more than to run her tongue over them. But she moves slowly and with purpose, carefully showing attention to the entire swell by kissing and allowing her hands to explore freely. It is as much to savor this moment as it is to figure out what feels best for Catra, paying great attention to what each pinch and roll of her fingers or flick of her tongue does to the woman below her.

"Adora…" Catra eventually pleads out with a moan. As Adora has been cataloging reactions, the receiving woman has grown increasingly restless; Catra's breathing is now quite labored, her hips rolling fruitlessly as the area between her thighs seeks out a return to friction. Adora takes all of that as good signs that what she is doing is working and only continues.

"Yes?" Adora runs her teeth directly over the peak, a light rake that only hints at the sharper bite that really had Catra moaning and her back arching up off the bed just moments ago.

"You know what." The woman grumbles, sucking in a breath as Adora flicks her tongue back and forth roughly, then slows to an achingly tender peck.

"Mm, no, you need to ask for what you want." Adora says smugly, perhaps a little drunk on the moment. Catra is practically putty in her hands and as much as she would love to take things a little more southerly, Adora also wants to hear Catra ask for it. She doesn't quite have to beg, nothing quite that intense, but Catra asking Adora to eat her out or finger her would be really, really hot.

Catra predictably goes stubbornly tight-lipped at the direction and Adora busies herself with leaving a trail of marks all along her chest so the woman has something to remind her of their time together in the days to come. She's fully intent on only letting Catra stew just a few minutes at max; it's not like Adora really wants to delay touching her. But before she can act further, Adora feels movement below her, near her stomach. It's a rhythmic, unmistakable motion that shows that Catra, never one to be delayed, has taken matters into her own hands.

Catra gives the most fluttering, utterly delectable moan that shoots straight to Adora's core and stays there, needy and persistent. Her hand is down her leggings, working against herself, body shuddering and eyes closed. She's moving slowly, more teasing than actually trying to get herself off and Adora is certainly caught off guard in the best way. Down right mesmerized is closer to it. " Oh …"

Catra's fingers still, her mouth crooked up into a most satisfied grin. Wordlessly she removes her hand from where it was fingering her own clit and raises it towards Adora's lips, inviting her to take it into her mouth. Adora does without hesitation, moaning at the taste. Catra's smirk grows wider as Adora cleans her fingers with great fervor, murmuring in a raspy whisper, "Good girl."

The salty-sweet taste and those two words have Adora on another plane of existence. Gone is any desire for Catra to ask , no, Adora needs to serve. She runs her tongue over the length of the digits once more, ending with a light, lingering kiss to each fingertip. Catra makes a throaty noise of appreciation, the corner of her mouth turned up into a satisfied grin.

Then playfully, Adora grabs both of Catra's wrists in a single grasp, pinning them lightly above her on the bed. "My turn."

Catra gasps, involuntarily and loud, and now it is Adora's turn to flash her a great, wide Chesire grin. That kind of visceral reaction is definitely worth exploring.

"Oh yeah?" Adora smirks down at the woman in her grasp, only gaining a haughty look in response. She doesn't want to get too tied up teasing Catra, but she'll admit the response has her attention.

"Are you gonna get on with it already or am I gonna have to take care of myself the whole time?" Catra makes a halfhearted attempt to loosen her hand, likely to return to touching herself in earnest, but both know if she wanted to be free, she would be.

Adora chuckles, pressing a soothing kiss to the side of Catra's mouth. "Aw, don't worry, babe. We've got no constraints on our time tonight."

"Clever." Catra answers dryly, rolling her eyes.

"I'm not gonna rope you into anything you're not into, but is this turning you on?" Adora presses. It seems like an obvious question, but also assumptions really have no place in the bedroom.

Catra looks like she's about to argue, spit out something particularly snarky to cover her slight embarrassment at being found out so easily, but then relents. "Yes, it's a thing, but like… not anything I want tonight or whatever. Some day. Maybe. Depends on whether you actually get around to fucking me at some point or not."

The woman raises her eyebrow with a look that clearly states Any time now, dummy and Adora is brought back to the present situation, namely that she has Catra half-naked in her bed, wanting to be fucked. They should probably get a little experience under their belts with getting under each other's belt before kicking up the spice too much. Adora is certainly not disappointed. Exactly where they're at now is one hundred percent perfect. "Of course. Thank you for telling me. It was bound to come up some day-… whoops, that one wasn't on purpose, I promise."

Catra just rolls her eyes again.

"And of course, no pressure! It's not anything I've tried before but I mean, it's interesting. Very interesting." Adora doesn't really know where to begin with any of those kinds of things, but the thought of seeing Catra's wrists tied to the bedframe one day, completely Adora's to… She licks her lips, removing her hands from where they were holding Catra's. "Didn't ruin the mood, did I?"

"No, dummy. Kink talk doesn't exactly bring things down . But if I don't come soon…" Catra warns, grabbing Adora's hips and lowering them so their lower halves are slotted against one another. She cants her hips with purpose and Adora can feel how wet she is even with the layers between them. It is a great motivator, one that has Adora pressing a line of kisses down Catra's toned stomach, occasionally fluttering her tongue against the hot skin, tasting and relishing in the feel against her mouth. Catra's urgent moans only enhance the sensations between them.

Her own core clenches the moment she reaches the top of Catra's leggings, peering up the length of her body to look this gorgeous woman in the face before eating her out. Catra is flushed, chest rising and falling, her hands threaded through Adora's hair, not quite pushing her down but greatly encouraging the descent. Adora hooks her fingers into the waistband and gives a tug, easing the clinging material down over her hips and ass. The scent of her arousal fills Adora's nose, her clit throbbing in response, loudly announcing its great need. That only grows once Catra's thong comes into view- the same shade as her bra, though instead of lace, a tiny bow decorates the article. It is cute and impossibly sexy, just like Catra.

Adora hastens her quest to strip Catra of her leggings, now almost frantically pulling at the stretchy material. Predictably, they get stuck halfway through, gathered around Catra's knees. Catra helpfully extends one lithe leg out so that Adora can more easily slip the bunched material off of her, lifting her hips up to help the cause as well. Adora's cheeks go faintly pink at her struggle; it's not exactly how she imagined her first time removing Catra's pants would go. But from the low chuckles coming from below her, Catra just seems pleased that they're finally getting somewhere and is patient enough to let her dummy have one less than completely smooth moment. Bound to happen eventually, really.

Once freed, Adora throws the difficult garment behind her, eyes never leaving Catra's body. Adora can make out every delectable curve in the low light, but it is the dark spot on the front of Catra's panties that truly catches her attention. She lightly runs a finger over the soaked, silky material, Catra's entire body responding to the graze. Adora is so wound up that even that kind of delicate brush would probably be enough to send her over the edge, but Catra just moves so that Adora's fingers are pressed more readily against her, gently rocking her hips into Adora's hand.

She pushes a little more firmly and Catra responds with a deep moan, biting her bottom lip hard to keep from crying out any harder. Adora's stomach jolts at the sound, utterly entranced by it and feels a new wave of wetness stick between her legs. It dimly occurs to her that she hasn't bothered to get undressed yet, but like hell she's removing her hand from where it's at currently, not unless Catra tells her to. "Is this okay?"

"Mmmm, yes . Feels good." Catra's lips scarcely move, her eyes are still closed, and Adora is motivated to continue her touches, Catra matching the intentional rhythm of her hand. It is a blissful few minutes spent touching Catra's soaked cunt, feeling her body ripple and respond, knowing that she's bringing Catra such pleasure. Adora has moved so that her fingers are right over Catra's entrance, though there is still the silky barrier of her thong between them, her thumb moving in circular motions against her throbbing clit.

"Fuck, Adora…"

"Yes?"

"More."

It is tempting to again ask Catra to elaborate on her wants, but it is also startlingly clear. Adora removes her hand from Catra's abundant want, murmuring reassurances that it is only temporary at the small whines of protest. Removing her thong is thankfully a far easier process than her leggings were and Adora is quickly situated between her legs. She kisses either side of her thighs in equal measure, slowly spreading them further apart. It is a challenge to not immediately dive in, but well worth it when Adora is able to hungrily appreciate the sight of glistening folds before her, slick and swollen with need. Catra is beautiful, easily the most stunning person on the entire planet and tonight, very much Adora's.

Adora licks slowly up her center, tongue flat and broad. She hears Catra moan from the head of the bed and the sound is just as delectable as the taste, dizzying and exciting. In a fit of bravado at already drawing out such a ragged breath from her partner, Adora pulls away from her lave and hovers above Catra's slick core. It is difficult to stop and deprive herself of this moment, but it's all made worth it when Catra whines and spreads her legs open even wider, wordlessly insistent that Adora needs to get back to work.

Encouraged, Adora lowers her mouth once more, but this time blows a stream of cool air directly over Catra's clit, the woman's hips jerking in response to the sensation, her body shivering amongst small, pathetic whines. Adora looks up over the gentle curves of Catra's bare torso, only somewhat surprised to see the other woman half-sitting up and looking back at her, wild eyed. Catra's voice is a low rasp as she accuses, " Tease . You're going to pay later."

"Gladly."

Adora smirks and then immediately goes back in, flicking the tip of her tongue back and forth directly against Catra's needy clit. Catra's head falls back against the mattress at the measured precision, soft cries of "fuck, yes…!" filling the room. Adora follows the cues as she receives them, swirling, flicking, and sucking until Catra's thighs are clenched about her ears, the woman's hands messily thrust through Adora's hair, pulling her closer as Catra rocks shamelessly against her mouth. It's everything that Adora's lusty imagination has been picturing, yet the reality of it is indescribable and amazing.

Adora has always loved to please, but never has she been so in sync with another person so quickly and easily. As her tongue zigzags down Catra's slit, reflexively the receiving woman brings her hips up so that Adora can seamlessly slide her arms underneath Catra's muscular thighs, holding her up so that Adora can dip her tongue directly into the source of her wetness. Catra keens out, high and loud as Adora tongues her entrance, hands falling to fist and pull at the bedding around her. Adora lowers her bottom half only enough so that she can continue to lick and suck at Catra's clit and slide her longest finger directly into Catra's dripping cunt. Catra's appreciation is immediate and vivid, a string of encouraging curses pouring from her. Adora is particularly motivated by the instruction to don't stop, don't dare fucking stop , because Catra is going to come. Her speed and now two-fingered thrust only increase because Adora needs Catra's orgasm more than anything else; she wants it so bad , to be able to bring this stunning, unfairly sexy, and exquisite woman only the utmost pleasure.

With one last pull of her lips, sucking hard while curling her fingers forward to hit that rough spot on Catra's front wall, Catra comes, crying out Adora's name again and again as it washes over her. Her thighs tremble and quake, boxing Adora in tightly as Catra pulses and shakes, the overwhelming tension finally released from her body in one all-consuming sensation.

The impending noise complaint is so worth this moment and all others that are sure to follow during their weekend together. In fact, Adora suspects she'll be far from embarrassed, closer to proud, when she inevitably gets the call from her landlord about it on Monday morning. She'll have spent the weekend having amazing sex; like anything could really bring her down from that.

Adora's fingers still, but she does not remove them, moaning directly into Catra's pussy as she feels Catra clench around them. Her tongue moves, carefully avoiding the highly sensitive bundle of nerves, instead slowly swirling around it, working Catra through every last second of her release.

It is only when Catra's knees fall limply to the mattress and her grip in Adora's hair goes slack that Adora presses one last flutter of a kiss to her clit and gently removes herself. She moves slowly, able to easily slip out with how positively soaked Catra is, but not wanting to cause any unpleasant sensations by the sudden loss of her fingers. Catra moans weakly and Adora is quick to shuffle up to the head of the bed, wiping her fingers mostly clean on the sheets and then gathering the spent woman into her arms, kissing every available inch of Catra she can.

The woman's cheeks, her ears, the corner of her mouth, and even Catra's sweaty brow get an absolute flurry of light kisses interspersed with sweet proclamations of how sexy and stunning and amazing she is. Catra only crooks up a smile at the fevered praise, turning to allow more of her face to be covered with the barrage of pecks and letting her body rest in Adora's arms.

When Adora is certain she's mapped the whole of Catra's face with kisses at least twice over, she switches to just holding her person and gently thumbing through her thoroughly mussed, but still luxurious and silky curls. She sees the flutter of one brilliant blue eye open and Adora's heart seizes at the sigh of pure contentment that Catra releases. This is just… everything.

In a small, quiet voice, Adora greets that sleepy, brilliant iris. "Hi."

"Hey, Adora." The words come out blanketed by fatigue, though Catra now has both eyes open. She makes no move to adjust her position, happy to stay in Adora's arms.

"You're really beautiful." Catra scoffs softly at the compliment, but Adora can tell from the rosy cast that springs up across her cheeks that Catra likes this, a lot. "You are. That was beyond incredible, Catra. I just-…"

Adora swallows, her throat feeling suddenly thick. Truthfully she's feeling a whole host of things at the moment, not really able to settle on one save for appreciation of the unadulterated shared bliss that has permeated her entire room. It is theirs and it is wonderful to behold.

“Mmmm, you’re not so bad yourself.” Catra teases, drawing Adora’s hand to her mouth with appreciative kisses quickly following. “These thick fingers are simply divine. Just born to fuck.”

Adora giggles at the lewd praise, more than a little smug at the assessment. Bringing Catra pleasure is all she wanted to accomplish and now that this stunning person is suitably satiated…

“Where do you think you’re going?”

Catra latches onto Adora’s arm, firmly holding it in place. She had just been trying to reposition, get them into a better situation for sleeping. Well, eventually. Catra should get up and pee first and as reluctant as she is to lose Catra’s taste on her tongue, Adora compromises with herself that if she brushes her teeth tonight, she can just give Catra a very nice wake up tomorrow morning.

“Oh! I just thought, y’know, bedtime-…”

Catra is quiet for a moment then sits up, turning towards Adora. One rounded fingernail is placed against the base of Adora’s neck, near her clavicle, and then Catra slowly drags it down, just hard enough to draw a faint, pink line across her skin. Her journey is impeded by the collar of Adora’s shirt and Catra’s eyes narrow, as if personally affronted by the fact Adora has the audacity to still be wearing clothes in her presence.

With one swift motion, Catra lays the palm of her hand against Adora’s chest, easily pushing her flat against the mattress. “You think we’re done here?” Catra’s voice is low and almost dangerous, immediately sending Adora’s flickering want back up to full-on need . “Oh no, Adora. You’re mine now.” She has breathed the words directly into Adora’s ear, tugging at the lobe with her teeth.

Adora cries out at the sharp, pleasurable bite and clenches down on nothing, goose bumps breaking out over her skin as Catra’s hot breath hits her.

“Off.” Catra commands simply, pulling at the bottom of Adora’s short sleeved Henley. “I want you stripped, sweetness.”

Adora is quick to obey, flinging her shirt over to the same abyss that Catra’s pants landed in. She makes short work of her bra too, tossing it away. It is then that Adora realizes how positively smug Catra looks, not just the cat who got the canary, but also had the cream for dessert. “My, my. Someone’s eager now, hmm?”

Adora finds herself blushing at the assessment, instincts telling her to have some humility and maybe not be so impatient… But she was also just inside this woman, Catra’s taste still coats her tongue, so fuck that. Adora parries back with a smirk of her own, leisurely leaning back on her elbows so that Catra can get a good, long look at her bare torso.

Catra’s eyes are bright and sharp as she pans over Adora’s form, tongue slowly running over her bottom lip as she hones in on Adora’s chest. Her gaze tracks lower, over the slightly rounded curves of Adora’s stomach and hips, and finally on the area between her thighs. Adora still has her jeans on (damn!), but that appraising look makes her feel entirely naked.

Without another word, Catra gracefully crawls up the length of Adora’s body, Adora reflexively laying back so that Catra is parallel over her. Adora swallows thickly as Catra repositions herself, her heart thudding with anticipation. She can feel the heat between their bodies, Catra still entirely bare and at least she’s getting there. As if that wasn’t distracting enough on its own, beginning at her sternum, Catra leisurely traces down Adora’s stomach with two fingers. She feels her nipples harden at the grazing touch, even if most disappointingly Catra has only given a visual inspection of her breasts. Her skin instantly prickles into goosebumps all over, Adora’s abdomen tensing tight in response to both Catra’s fingers and how intently she watches for Adora’s reactions.

Catra's descent is maddening, the gossamer brush obviously meant to tease and tantalize by how slowly and deliberately Catra moves her fingers. They reach the button of her jeans and Adora sucks in a breath as they continue down even further, only stopping once she's right above Adora's throbbing, hot center. Catra murmurs, silky and low, "Gorgeous."

The area between Adora's thighs is insistent that Catra's hand cannot move for any reason whatsoever, while also every nerve impulse near there fires off, begging for more contact and friction . She hears a peculiar, high whining sound and Adora realizes that it's coming from her. She should probably be embarrassed since Catra has barely touched her at this point, but she can't bring herself to care once those fingers move. Catra cups Adora's pussy through her jeans, pressing up and against the heated area with purpose. The whines turn into unabashed moans, choked off suddenly when Catra removes her hand.

"Shhh," Catra soothes, once again lying Adora's back against the bed since she's tried to rise up, chasing after the feeling those magic fingers awaken in her. Adora melts onto the mattress as Catra's tongue meets hers, guided down by one firm, long open-mouthed kiss. Once she is laid out, Catra whispers above her lips, "I'm going to take care of you."

Adora is lost over the words and how every part of Catra just makes her feel so good. She's completely on edge, more turned on in her life than she ever thought possible, and Catra returns to kissing her soundly, her fingers coming up to tweak at one highly sensitive nipple. Adora squeaks at the pinch, but the motions quickly turn into a pleasurable massage, Catra's slender fingers just able to cup over the whole of her breast. Fuck . She's gasping, trying to rock her aching lower half into Catra's thigh, but the woman remains unhelpful, delighting too much in working Adora up into a complete mess. Take care of her… But when?

Catra continues to play with Adora's tits, giving her the same treatment as she had received earlier in the night. It is an exploration of what feels best for Adora ( everything) , but Catra being Catra, it comes with an edge. She runs her tongue against the seam of Adora's mouth, Adora gratefully parting it wide for her. They both moan as their mouths slide together, Catra pulling back only to suck in Adora's bottom lip. As Adora is left gasping at the sharp nibbles of her teeth, Catra's hand wanders between them, lower.

The sound of the zipper on Adora's jeans being lowered is the loudest noise of the night, Catra somehow turning it into an event . Or at least that's how it feels to Adora who just needs Catra's touch so badly; her clit is throbbing, aching for attention, and the woman to give it is making sure that Adora knows it will only happen when Catra is ready to give it.

"Do you know how many times I got myself off thinking about this?" Catra asks, her voice made rough and raspy by her arousal.

Adora moans heartily at the question; any answer, even a short me too , is swept away. Her jeans are undone, but Catra momentarily stops there, working a trail of kisses down Adora's neck. She arches into each, shuddering and gasping each time Catra's teeth rake over her sensitive skin. The other woman's hands are everywhere- Adora's hips, running over her arms, locked behind the base of her neck, Catra pulling so her soft lips hit Adora's with urgency, everywhere save for where they are desperately needed.

"How long I've wanted to slowly undress you, run my tongue over every last godsdamned perfect inch of you…" Catra continues, pulling at Adora's bottoms as she speaks, efficiently and expertly stripping them away, underwear along with the tight denim. "How hard I've had to fuck myself after imagining the taste of your sweet pussy when you come against my mouth."

"Fuck, Catra, I need…"

Adora's broken pleas are ignored, cut short by a sweet, lingering kiss. Catra carries on the conversation, as if she doesn't have a wrecked, panting mess of a woman below her. "I had to go change my underwear before work the other morning, because someone so unfairly hot had me pushed up against the fucking wall. I was soaked through, Adora." The words a stunning vibration against the hollow of Adora's throat. Catra's hand is situated between Adora's thighs, though frustratingly hovering above her slick center, not yet touching her. Adora is left gasping by its mere presence. "I would have absolutely let you ruin me right then, just taken me. Mmm, Adora, if you could have seen how hard I came that night, your name on my lips..."

Catra arches a grin down at her and lightly presses just one fingertip down, meeting Adora's heat directly for the first time. Her finger swirls once clockwise and then lifts away. Adora jerks at the brush, thighs threatening to clench together and trap Catra's hand. She just barely holds it together, that graze a tiny flicker when Adora needs a raging inferno, Catra and only Catra filling all her senses. The woman is all she can see, feel, smell, hear, and touch and Adora doesn't want to go about her life any other way. "Now, I want to make you come, make you mine . Do you want that too, sweet girl?"

" Yes ! Catra, please…" Adora chokes out, canting her hips into Catra's hand, but no matter how she moves, Catra's fingertips seem to still be centimeters away from her and her aching need. "Please."

"You do beg so pretty."

Catra's words are measured, controlled, and so are her motions. She repeats the tight circles against Adora's clit, Adora shuddering and panting as pleasure courses through. She is wound so tight, a rubber band stretched taut, ready to snap at any second that even the featherlight touches make the tension rise low in her stomach, ready to let go. Adora pushes the feeling away, desperate for more than just 30 seconds of Catra touching her like this. Her hands are grasping onto Catra's shoulders, short nails digging in, but that beautiful tease of a woman above her only smirks, seeming to enjoy how Adora clings to her, how one errant flick of her finger is enough to send pulsing ripples of pure ecstasy through Adora's entire body.

Catra's increases the direct pressure against her and Adora unabashedly cries out at the adjustment, incoherent and fevered as the woman's fingers expertly work her clit. She has returned to marking up Adora's chest and neck, ardently flicking her tongue against Adora's nipples, running her teeth over the sensitive skin. Adora is so close and she repeats that again and again, choking out the words, almost begging for release.

It feels so good that she doesn't ever want Catra to stop, but the tendrils of heat are nigh impossible to stave off for much longer. Catra is too good, too perfect at giving Adora exactly what she needs, like some intrinsic sense directs her. Her pace never falters, her motions never slip. Catra is focused solely on bringing Adora over.

Adora surrenders to Catra's expert attention and the buildup of the entire night. She feels the coils deep within her lower abdomen seize together, her back arching up off the bed and hips raising into Catra's hand with a wild frenzy before all her muscles lock tight. There is a moment of utter stillness as the pinnacle is breached, then an explosion of released tension and blistering euphoria pulses through her in wave after wave.

Catra slows back down to the undemanding touches, more a welcome presence than anything else. She kisses Adora soundly, latching onto her bottom lip and pressing hard. Even in her highly fatigued state Adora meets her with just as much passion, overwhelmed and awash with that delectable cocktail of feel-good chemicals that this person has provided for her. She feels Catra cup her cheek and smiles deeply into their messy kiss, the raw emotion of this moment of being alive filling Adora's chest with a tingling burn. She is just feeling so much and it is all so good.

Chapter 3

Chapter Summary

> Adora loves Catra. Catra loves her. Pancakes are tasty. These are just fundamental, accepted facts of life.

The pair lay quietly panting, pressed close and holding one another, as Adora settles back to this plane from the whole other world Catra had just sent her to. Catra is petting through her hair and occasionally Adora can feel soft lips brush her brow. She is so tired, but no amount of sleep in the world is worth missing even a second of this.

Her yawns give her away. “Mmm, did I tire you out?”

“No,” Adora stubbornly insists, “I could take more.”

“Hmmm, I am interested in seeing exactly how much you can take, but c’mon, princess. Bedtime.”

Adora isn’t sure if the endearment is meant to imply that she’s about to be Catra’s pillow princess or if the woman just wants to treat her like royalty, but she likes how it falls off her tongue. It just sort of fits.

“I’m sticky.” Adora’s giggles, grimacing at the feel of drying sweat and other exertions that coat her skin. Catra is right about bedtime, but also the thought of sleep when she’s like this is laughable. Catra chuckles, nodding at the assessment, her own curls frizzed out, wisps sticking to the sides of her face. It's incredibly cute, but if Catra feels like she does… Biting her bottom lip, Adora coyly asks, "Shower?"

Adora is pleased to learn that Catra also enjoys scalding hot showers. She's also vehemently thanking past Adora for springing to get the extra wide, high pressure showerhead so it easily hits them both, even if installing the thing was a damn pain that took both her and Bow's combined efforts and every scrap of handy knowledge they had.

But all that frustration is worth it now that she has someone to join her under the spray, even just for this weekend. Unsurprisingly, actually getting clean is secondary to the sensual slip of their bodies in the heavy steam. They aren't even subtle about it; after a warning to not let the curls she has pulled up into a loose bun wet since they take forever to dry, Adora has Catra pinned against the tiled wall. Largely she just kisses the woman, letting her hands wander over Catra's wet, heated skin, enjoying how it feels to slide over Catra's curves while the hot water does its magic to ease any tension in their muscles. Eventually though, Adora's fingers do find themselves between Catra's legs, making absolutely certain the woman is positively boneless and completely relaxed by the time the water starts to run tepid.

Catra borrows an old t-shirt of Adora's to sleep in that's just a little too large for her and the pair finish getting ready for bed. With everything that's happened tonight, Adora is amazed that she's actually able to fall asleep, wanting nothing more than to hold on to every second of this pristine night. But it is easy once they sink into Adora's bed and Catra wraps her arms around her, placing a light kiss on the back of her neck, just below her ear. Her sleep is deep and dreamless and she wakes with her face pressed into Catra's chest, the other woman already awake, lightly carding her fingers through Adora's hair.

Morning breath or not, once Adora comes into the world, she raises her face up to silently plead for a kiss, which quickly turns into two, three, then an unbreakable chain culminating in Adora laying on her side, Catra behind her, and Catra's fingers buried deep. It is only after Adora is spent, panting and reveling in the pleasurable ache of being so delightfully stretched that she hears how easily she took all three of Catra's rounded nails. There is talk that perhaps some time very soon they use something that might hit a little deeper. Those sultry whispers are just right the ember to ensure things start up again, Adora fulfilling her promise to herself last night to replace Catra's taste on her tongue as soon as possible.

Late into the morning, stomachs growling ferociously, they head into the kitchen. Adora is glad that she made a point to swing by her favorite bakery yesterday morning to grab a number of tasty, quick things to keep them going throughout the long weekend. She snatches up the loaf of brioche, miraculously balancing milk and eggs in the other hand. French toast is simple enough to whip up, filling too, so that they can likely get by with just that before enjoying a more lavish dinner out tonight.

Fortune truly smiled on her that the bakery also had two rose cardamom tarts left yesterday. It is possibly Adora's favorite treat from that establishment, though the lavender shortbread cookies are a close, nearly irresistible second. But the tart sells out almost as soon as it hits the shelves, making it even more special. The filling is creamy and floral, softly sweet, and the band of dried rose petals and crushed pistachio over top make it truly beautiful and, dare say, romantic. At least as far as sweet treats go.

Adora proudly serves the pink-hued dessert to Catra on a small plate, explaining its rarity and how delectable it is. When Catra has taken a bite and a slow smile immediately breaks out over the woman's face, her two-toned eyes closing in delight at the delicate flavors, Adora kisses her forehead and runs off to make the rest of their brunch spread, satisfied that Catra and her hunger are taken care of for now.

They spend the remainder of the day generally being lazy and comfortable with one another. There is some attempt at watching more TV, a short nap together happens as well, but Adora is fairly certain that by 3 PM they've gotten at least a little handsy in every room of her apartment. Not that it's a large dwelling by any means, but the vision of Catra riding her fingers on her couch, her hips grinding down hard as she moaned and gasped in Adora's lap or how Catra's hands and mouth teasingly worked her into such a frenzy in the middle of her kitchen that Adora bodily picked up the smaller woman, carrying her to the bedroom to lay her out and ravage her, those memories will stay with Adora forever.

All in all it is a perfect day and while there is little desire to leave the bubble of their love nest, seeing Catra in her crisp, dark red button up and enticingly well-fitted charcoal dress slacks is so, so worth it. Her person is handsome beyond reason, effortlessly beautiful no matter if Catra is wearing an old, dumb t-shirt of Adora's or in such finery as she currently is. And Adora is absurdly pleased that the simple, sleeveless red dress she picked up with this weekend in mind compliments Catra's outfit so well; it is an accident, but a happy one. They just look like they belong together.

The weather is pleasant enough that they decide to just walk to the bistro, especially since although they've gotten plenty of physical activity today, it's probably a good thing to be outside for a while. Adora is so excited to bring Catra to this place; they are supposed to have amazing seafood and while she's never had the opportunity to eat there, it just seems to scream romance from the sidewalk.

Adora is in the midst of gushing to Catra about all the great things she's heard about the restaurant, unable to contain her excitement, when a voice growls on their left. "Watch it."

Catra stops mid-step. This person has just chucked Catra on her shoulder, hard, as they strolled. The sidewalk isn't that narrow, but since they were walking hand in hand, maybe she and Catra were taking up more than their fair share of the path. Still, Adora can't comprehend that anyone would do that and is even more baffled that this woman seems to have also halted her stride, turning around to face them. She's short, but incredibly handsome, even if Adora doesn't understand the reason for the sneer across her face.

Catra and this other person solidly stare each other down for several charged seconds. Adora feels the panic exponentially rising in her chest, especially when two more people come running up to stand behind this stranger, clearly backing her up. One is a blond shrimp, but the other is tall and broad enough to give Adora pause. He snorts as the much smaller man's eyes dart back and forth between Catra and this other woman, gauging the situation. How did things go sour so quickly… and more importantly, how does Adora fix this?

"You asshole ." Catra eventually laughs, her posture loosening, no longer on the defensive. Adora's head whips in the direction of the laughter, not able to process the last ten seconds or predict the next ten. Instead of having her fists in the air, Catra has one hand in her trouser pocket, the other rubbing her shoulder that's just been hit. "That fucking hurt."

"You've gone soft, Cat." The mystery woman arches a smile Catra's way, arms crossed over her chest and looking supremely satisfied with herself. "I barely knocked ya."

Realization dawns on Adora, though it takes a few more seconds of them bantering back and forth for her to get there. Her blue eyes flick towards all the strangers, how they've come to stand closer to Catra, far closer than any stranger or even mere acquaintance would. "Wait- you know this person? People?"

"Unfortunately." Catra sighs forlornly, running an aggrieved hand over her forehead to massage her temple with her thumb. "Grew up with all three of them. This is Lonnie, Kyle, and Rogelio."

She points to each in turn; Lonnie raises her eyebrow, Kyle excitedly waves, and Rogelio… Stands there, but his brown eyes at least glance her way at the introduction. He doesn't necessarily seem unfriendly or unengaged, just incredibly quiet. Adora swallows, processing this turn of events, and letting her adrenaline fall. It has no use in this situation, since thankfully it doesn't seem likely that a random sidewalk brawl is about to break out any second. "Oh! They're your friends."

"More like they've been following me around since I was a kid and I can't fucking shake 'em no matter what I do. Apparently even going so far as to follow me all the way to the big city. Really, you three?" Catra grouses, but then she winks and pats Kyle on the back a couple times, before pulling him into a rough side hug. The man looks like he's just been handed the moon.

"Sure, Catra. If that's the story you want to tell, we'll go with it." The eye roll from Lonnie is heavily exaggerated, but it's obvious that so is any real rivalry or eneminity between them by the way she smiles after. "Anything to help you sleep at night. And who's this?" She points to Adora.

"This is my…" Catra stills for just a half-second, but it is long enough for anyone who knows her to be noticeable. "Girlfriend? Adora."

Adora is quick to nod with an utterly vapid smile as their relationship is so publicly defined. In fact she's practically lifted up off the sidewalk at the word. Maybe they should have talked about it before, but also… Who cares? Adora is Catra's girlfriend .

"You don't sound so sure there, Cat." Lonnie teases, Rogelio giving a snort that is likely as close as he gets to a full-bellied laugh. She turns Adora's way, adopting a mock serious pose. "She giving you any trouble, miss?"

"Catra's always trouble." Adora answers without missing a beat, before draping her arms over Catra's shoulders and kissing her cheek. Catra flushes at the attention, but any fluster is cooly swept away by swagger once Adora cocks a grin towards her girlfriend's friends and proclaims, "And I'm completely into it."

Lonnie gives a low whistle while Kyle coos, leaning against his tall, silent boyfriend. Adora assumes at least, from how Rogelio's tree trunk arms wrap around Kyle at the reveal of other gays. Her rainbow sense is tingling, at the very least.

"All right, all right. Don't ask me how, but guess you did manage to step out of your league, KitCat. Damn, I'm proud." Lonnie's face softens for just a moment. "Really."

Kyle chirps in about how happy he is for Catra, for both of them, and Catra only scoffs a little at the sentiment. The middle of a sidewalk isn't the best place for a full-on catch up, but now that Catra has learned that the trio from her younger years has moved to the same city as her, phone numbers are exchanged and promises of Sunday brunch some weekend soon are made. Those kinds of plans can be rather nebulous, but from how bright Catra's eyes still shine after they part ways from her old friends, Adora expects there will be follow-through, particularly when so much of their dinner conversation is spent with Catra telling tales of her rebellious youth with the triad.

Dinner was everything that was promised, the restaurant providing the quality and ambiance that Adora was hoping for. The food is phenomenal and the pair eat more than is really good for them, washed down with a bottle of sweet white wine that is just to Adora's liking, but she suspects Catra only agreed to it for her sake. She'll just have to thank her girlfriend for her thoughtfulness the moment they get back home.

The pair show their mutual appreciation for one another several times over once they return to Adora's for the night. Sunday is another blissful repeat, spent much the same as their Saturday had been, though they at least (mostly) watch a movie and play a few board games together. They decide to order takeout for dinner that night and even get dressed to eat it at Adora's dining room table. Though later in bed as Catra slowly rucks up Adora's shirt, placing a trail of blazing kisses starting at her hips and achingly working her way up Adora's stomach to map every revealed inch of her skin with her mouth, Adora suspects they dressed only for the fun of undressing later. She's certainly not complaining.

Monday morning hits and it is a delight to let the world filter into her vision on her own timetable and not by the shrillness of an alarm. Adora wakes up laying on her back, Catra tucked into the nook of her shoulder, the same position that they had fallen asleep late last night. The stillness of the morning brings a peace that is unmatched, made all the more serene with the gentle rise and fall of Catra's chest against her side, Catra's even, deep breathing a warm tickle on Adora's breast as she soundly rests in her arms.

A bubble springs up in Adora's chest as the moment truly resonates with her- she knows their relationship is young, in so many ways untested, but the certainty of her feelings cannot be denied. Adora is in love with Catra. How could she not be?

Adora strokes gently through Catra's curls, considering the realization and all its possibilities. She's known for a while, said it to herself plenty, but for the first time she wants Catra to know. It is one thing to tell the universe, but quite another to tell her.

Her person is asleep, entirely at peace, and even against the enormity of what Adora is feeling currently, she cannot bring herself to disrupt that. So Adora does the next best thing- she closes her eyes and lets the simple beat of Catra's heart against her lull her back to sleep.

Adora awakes some time later and stretches her arms out with a yawn. It takes her a moment to register her surroundings, but the warmth of Catra now laying over half of her body, her arms wrapped around Adora's torso, their legs gently entwined, is a most pleasant reminder. Adora presses a kiss to the top of her girlfriend's head, breathing in her scent and feeling instantly soothed and relaxed by it. Her need to confess has taken a few steps back, but it is still present, like a gentle tug on her heart that matches each slow breath Catra takes.

"I should probably be creeped out that you're watching me sleep."

Adora doesn't even blink at the comment nor does she feel any amount of shame over it. Like she can really be expected to keep her eyes off Catra at any given moment. "And yet you're not…? Huh. You must like me or something. How embarrassing for you."

"I don't like you." Catra punctuates each word with a tender kiss over any bare skin she can reach, which considering they did not redress after the final round last night, there are plenty of options. Fortunately and most unfortunately, she keeps it relatively tame, though Adora's left tingling in the wake of her soft lips.

"Of course you don't. Who likes their girlfriend ?" Adora yawns once more. It is meant as an act of exaggeration, but despite sleeping in, her eyes are still surprisingly heavy. A weekend of late nights filled with lots of incredible sex will do that, but her heart is impossibly light for the exact same reason. The morning rays have crept in between the blinds, bathing them in gentle light. Adora gets lost for a moment in the rich browns and auburns that reside in Catra's hair and how coppery and flawless her skin looks against the soft sunlight. The bubble in her chest inflates a little more, squeezing but not unpleasantly so. The words she wants to say whisper a little louder in the backseat of her mind, a helpful suggestion, but instead Adora strokes down Catra's back and says, "I'll get up and make us breakfast."

"No."

"No?" Adora repeats, the serenity of the morning gaining the tiniest crack, a spiderweb that might end up coloring the rest of her day, if not her entire week. Maybe Catra is ready to leave, maybe yet another day together is just… too much. It stings, but it's also nothing Adora hasn't heard before. Too much is a real thing when it comes to her.

"No, princess. I'm cooking this morning." Catra swiftly rolls so she is now decidedly on top of Adora, Adora giving a small startled, but pleased gasp at the new arrangement. “And you are going to stay right here and relax. Let me take care of you.”

How many times in the last 48 hours has Adora heard that sentiment while Catra has been positioned over top of her? It sends a shiver of anticipation down her spine, almost Pavlovian in nature, particularly since she has a full view of Catra’s naked body. Catra looks faintly amused by the slow creeping blush that rises up under Adora’s skin, tracing her finger along her collarbone as she whispers, “You’re insatiable.”

Adora gulps when Catra’s single trailing finger draws up the column of her neck, her eyes reflexively shutting at the whisper touches, pressure in her lower abdomen building ever higher. Adora is certain that she’s never been quite this… incorrigible with anyone before, but Catra just does this to her. Every touch only makes Adora crave Catra all the more. “Uhuh. With you, yes.”

Catra makes a small hum of approval and stops her quest to work Adora over with a single finger. “Good answer, sweetness. You can show me again right after breakfast. I’ll be back soon.”

The second her girlfriend shifts to leave, Adora’s hands move to stop her, solidly asserting, “I wanna be with you.”

Catra scoffs, but it is full of affection. “Can’t go twenty minutes without me?”

“Absolutely not.”

“So stubborn.” Catra leans down and places a tiny peck to the tip of Adora’s nose, the gesture so achingly tender that Adora is all the more certain that she will be unable to bear being away from Catra until the cruel, cold real world forces her to be. But that’s a problem for future Adora. Tomorrow. Today is good because they are still very much together. “You win.”

“That easily, huh? You really do like me.”

Catra is quiet for a moment, before one corner of her smile curves up into Adora's favorite crooked smirk. "Something like that. Now, this isn't something I'll say often, but get dressed. Burns on your tits would suck."

"Sorry, is that a risk? Is it going to be like performance art while you cook? 'Watch out, she's flipping the eggs!'" Adora mimics what she thinks sending breakfast food flying high into the air might look like, catching the invisible dishes by sticking out her chest and mock wincing. Catra silently watches, looking like she's been caught somewhere between highly exasperated and utterly amused, but Adora is at least pretty sure there's a crinkle of genuine affection at the corner of her eyes. She'll take it. "Sounds dangerous, but I'm sure if anything happens, you'll kiss it all better."

Adora flutters her eyelashes before giving into a heavy fit of giggles. It's definitely a weird thing to flirt about, first or second degree skin damage on a sensitive area, but before she slips on some comfy lounge clothes, Catra demonstrates ardently that she doesn't need to be told twice to kiss Adora anywhere . It only sets breakfast back another twenty minutes or so, but neither of the women really are that bothered by the delay.

After surveying the options throughout Adora's pantry and refrigerator, Catra settles on pancakes. Crepes were a strong contender until eventually Catra shook her head, explaining that to get them right , the batter should chill for at least an hour. As she begins to pull ingredients together for the flapjacks, Adora finds herself just a little more in love with this person who would suggest cooking something that fancy. Of course her girlfriend would just know how to make crepes- correctly, no less.

Adora sits on the counter, watching as Catra throws together the batter. It ends up just being from a premade, boxed mix instead of from scratch, once a now definitely exasperated Catra realizes that Adora doesn't keep vanilla extract stocked.

“Five cans of pumpkin purée in the pantry and yet…” Her girlfriend huffs a sigh, muttering about an overdue Penzey’s trip under her breath. Adora really ought to look into where and what that is at some point.

“It was for pie.” Adora explains with a shrug. “You experienced firsthand what I managed to do with tacos; having spare ingredients was a necessary precaution.”

“Okay, but enough for like eight more pies? Honestly, babe. You’re forcing me to get creative here.” Catra temporarily abandons her mixing bowl to go grab one of the aforementioned cans from the pantry shelf. Adora isn’t quite sure what she’s up to, not at least until Catra pulls out the jar of pumpkin spice from her spice cabinet as well and sends a wink her way. At least pancakes are a far more appropriate vehicle for that flavoring.

Less than ten minutes into the entire process, Adora has moved from sitting on the counter, awaiting their fall-inspired breakfast, to standing behind Catra as she waits for the small bubbles to appear along the surface of the half-done pancake before she can flip them. Adora is cautious as she wraps her arms loosely around Catra’s waist, not wanting to be a nuisance, but her girlfriend only gives a small hum of approval at the contact and subtly relaxes into Adora’s touch.

A minute or two later, Catra pulls off a piece of the light, fluffy cake and brings it up to Adora’s mouth. Adora eagerly takes the morsel, excited to see the set of spices she mistakenly used on Friday put to a far more appropriate use. Unsurprisingly, it is delicious, sweet and spiced perfectly. Adora doesn’t even need syrup; the cinnamon, ginger, and allspice are plenty flavorful on their own. But more than the taste, it is that Catra has made it. Catra. So thoughtful, and sexy, and just all around incredible…

Pleased by the moans the breakfast food has pulled out, Catra returns her attention to the stovetop to finish up and provide them a sizable stack of carbs to munch on before they inevitably spend the entire afternoon working it all off together.

“I love you.” The words are mumbled into Catra’s shoulder, a tiny sprout reaching for the sun. Adora’s throat has gone dry; she has no doubts, but it is such a big moment to confess something like this. As much as she wants to scream it to the entire world and for Catra to finally know, there is that small, susceptible part of her that warns that it is too soon, the moment isn’t right, what’s Adora’s plan when it’s unreciprocated?

Catra continues to cook and Adora fears that perhaps her admission remains unheard or worse, ignored. When Catra turns off the burner, calmly removing pancakes from the griddle, Adora begins to unhook her arms from where they have been lashed around Catra’s torso, inwardly cringing at herself and her sense of timing. What was she thinking? Of all the moments this weekend- under the glow of the moon as they walked home from dinner Saturday night, late last night after mutually skilled fingers had brought them to near simultaneous orgasm, or even earlier this morning when Catra had just woken up and Adora’s revelation was still in the forefront of her dreams, those all would have been perfect. But no, she chooses now, when Catra is too distracted to even hear her. And because of breakfast food ?

Before she can unlace herself, Catra’s hand comes around and presses Adora’s arms back firmly along her belly, the other reaching up to thread through Adora’s hair. Just barely tilting her head back, Catra says softly, but without a shred of uncertainty, “I love you too.”

“Now go eat your pancakes.” With a lingering kiss to Adora’s cheek, Catra sends her to the table with the plate that holds their breakfast. From anyone else, Adora might feel slighted, completely dismissed. But instead she feels the same level of normalcy and rightness that has been there the entire weekend. Adora loves Catra. Catra loves her. Pancakes are tasty. These are just fundamental, accepted facts of life.

After they eat, they end up back in bed, though for now it’s to let the carb-cakes settle in their stomachs. It’s so comfortable; safe and warm, and the pair lay on their sides facing one another, all their limbs wrapped up in a loose embrace. Adora is completely at peace. She breathes in deeply and her exhale comes out as one long sigh.

"Why the sigh, princess?" Catra murmurs as soft as the down pillow beneath their heads. "Everything okay?"

Okay? Everything is perfect , almost unbelievably so. It's positively dreamy; her belly is full, she's in love, and Catra seems to have picked up a pet name for her somewhere. Adora lets it roll over her tongue, finding the honorific surprisingly coquettish and fun. "Princess… I like that. Does that make you my knight?"

Catra flashes a bright grin and Adora swears she feels Catra's bicep flex under her hand. Mmmm. Her girlfriend has the best arms, no question. "If the gauntlet fits, m'lady. Though I woulda guessed that you'd want to be the one with the sword."

"Huh. Good point." Adora is thoughtful for a moment, seemingly examining all sides to the hypothetical situation she's placed them in, but mostly she's just taking a few extra seconds to appreciate Catra showing off her lean, steel muscles. Eventually her brow sets and she nods, completely resolute and one hundred percent serious. "Yeah, I want the sword. A big one. Super magical too."

"Of course you do." Catra chuckles and runs her thumb over Adora's cheek, her fingers lingering, staying to lightly cup her jaw. Even in the light of such a ridiculous statement, Catra is looking at Adora with such open fondness that Adora's big, gay heart can barely process it. "Whatever you want, princess."

"You love me." It is a statement more than a question, though there's a note of wonder in Adora's voice as she says the words. She held it together surprisingly well during breakfast; aside from being completely mooney-eyed over the woman between nibbles of pancake and despite how she felt like a livewire, ready to buzz right out of her chair any second. But right here, right now it really hits her.

Catra loves her .

The corner of her mouth ticks up as Catra confirms with a simple yes. Adora's vapid, utterly brainless smile is instantly back, full force. "Wow…"

"What, did you think I changed my mind sometime in the last twenty minutes? Not gonna happen, sweetness."

Adora is warmed by the steel core and unshakeable ease in Catra's response. In fact she's downright giddy as she admires her very favorite freckle caught in the midmorning sun and how breathtakingly gorgeous Catra looks laying in her bed. It's a crime against the very universe that this hasn't just been their life every single morning.

Almost overwhelmed with easy joy, Adora bites her lip, unsuccessfully trying to fight back a smile, and says, "You might someday."

Catra opens her mouth, likely to argue and argue well, but Adora continues on, "I mean, what if you got offered a job to be a captain of a spaceship and then were sent off to deep space? Lots of alien babes out there. I'm sure you don't want to be held back by anyone still stuck here on our planet."

"Yes, I'm sure my skills in financial analysis and corporate accounting would make me the ideal candidate for… deep space captain." She doesn't hold back her eye roll and her tone is heavy with sarcasm, but amazingly Catra doesn't look at Adora like she's the one from another planet at this sharp left turn without signaling. She just follows the unmarked detour. "They called ten minutes ago and I leave at 3 today, but I'm pretty sure the captain gets to have a say in her crew. I'm sure I could find a spot for a sword wielding princess somewhere."

Adora is bolstered by the fact that her girlfriend just goes along with her supreme silliness. She loves it when she and Catra play ;

it's always been one of the best, most treasured aspects of their relationship, certain to only grow as they do .

Adora doesn't let up from there, running through scenario after scenario where Catra might decide loving Adora was no longer worth the trouble. In fact, as they grow even more outlandish- Catra as a ghost hunter, both of them as nobles in Victorian times (Catra corrected her that Edwardian would be more like the Pride and Prejudice like situation Adora was proposing, but details ), even Adora as a werewolf Viking and Catra as a vampire of all things, and her girlfriend just patiently answers each one, assuring her that somehow, someway, Catra would find a way to love Adora through them all, Adora is left thrumming with the knowledge and unshakeable certainty that Catra really must think Adora is worth all this trouble. Wow .

"You'd love me still even if…" Adora winds up to deliver her last swing, pretty sure she's got Catra with this one. "I was a demon and you were an angel?"

Catra scoffs heavily, finally offended in this strange battle Adora has thrown them into. "Excuse me? You think you'd be the demon in this relationship?" She runs her tongue over one exceedingly sharp incisor, her mismatched eyes glinting, shamelessly broadcasting how devilishly handsome Catra knows she is.

"Well, I mean. You're obviously already heaven-sent…" Adora is left helpless and gay for just a split second, but manages to cap the line off with a flutter of eyelashes, which she hopes will earn her grace and favor despite the cheesiness.

"You're ridiculous." Catra asserts, but Adora feels arms wrap around her considerably tighter. After a moment, Catra's voice comes through impossibly soft, "I would. Through all these things and whatever else that truly ridiculous, beautiful mind of yours can cook up. I love you, Adora."

"I love you too, Catra." Adora barely gets the words out before Catra's lips catch her own.

The afternoon slides by too quickly for either of their liking. Their dinner is once more delivered to Adora's front door and though it's hardly a five-star dining experience, Adora shyly suggests they open a bottle of champagne. She's had it saved for a special occasion and while she's not necessarily celebrating that Catra will be heading to her own home far too soon, such a stunning weekend deserves a proper sendoff. It ends up being not nearly as sweet as the drinks she normally imbibes in, but Catra's suggestion of adding strawberry slices to Adora's glass is inspired. Plus, it looks pretty.

Catra and Adora have been quiet through their dinner, more focused on eating and enjoying each other's presence. Adora is deep in thought, mulling over the weekend and grudgingly accepting that it's approaching its end. She knows that once she leaves for the night it's bound to only be a few short weekdays until she sees Catra again, and certainly they'll be texting the minute her Lyft pulls away, but damn. Constant girlfriend time for three whole days has been pretty fucking amazing.

Raising a bite of vegan curry to her lips, Adora stops midway, a giggle bubbling up in her chest, like the little pops of champagne that still tickle her tongue.

Catra looks at her, amused by this sudden fit of laughter. "What's so funny, sweetness?"

"It's just, wow. We really knocked it all out in one weekend, huh?" Adora shakes her head slowly, pleasantly bemused by life and all its events. "I mean, I knew it was going to be big for us since you were coming over to stay and all, but-

"First fuck, meeting my idiot friends, first time throwing 'girlfriend' out there, and then an I love you to top it all off?" Catra sets down her bowl and snorts, mirroring Adora's disbelief with a single brow raised high. "I see your point. Wow. That's… really, really gay."

Adora agrees; it’s probably the gayest she’s ever been in the span of three days, but it works as well as they do. “Should I clear out a dresser drawer tonight or think we can at least make it to next Friday before you move in?” She’s being cheeky, but it sort of flutters in her tummy and sticks there as she jokes. Not now, that would be completely absurd, but someday maybe.

“Nah,” Catra is quick to decline, but she follows it up with a slow wink. “Why bother? I can just steal all your clothes. Plus something tells me going forward wearing underwear won’t really be a requirement around here…”

Both women laugh heartily at themselves, but Adora feels no regret or unease for how it all unfolded for them. Things happen as they happen, with no set course of right and wrong . And it can all happen in one weekend.

Chapter End Notes

I was really, really tempted to add a strap scene to this one. Don't you think that would have just hit oh so good? (Adora agrees with you.)

Unfortunately, time just wasn't quite on my side to go there since real life insists on dealing me knock after knock this year. That being said, I have quite a bit written involving wrists and rope that didn't make it, a good start to the phantom Chapter 4, so maybe this one will get a revisit some day... And things can get real spicy for our favorites.

Until that time, or whatever the next may be, take care, folks!
