Sweat

Catra wiped her brow, wincing as a bead of sweat ran down into her eye. She reached out with her free hand, deftly catching the towel Glimmer tossed to her and using it to try and dry off - to little avail.

Every breath took effort. Her whole body heaved, her vision wavered. But she didn't give up.

With a growl, she lunged forward.

In front of her, Adora drew her weapon up to meet her. Their swords met, a loud wooden clack bouncing off the walls of the training chamber to echo back at them. Adora smiled, tilting her head in that infuriating way and goading Catra into making the first move as they broke contact again. Of course, she did - a slash, from her lower right side to Adora's left - but just as she was winding up, the blonde suddenly dipped forward, jabbing the point of her trainer squarely between Catra's breasts and knocking her off balance.

It all happened, to her, in the blink of an eye.

As she stumbled and fought to keep her footing, she thought about how it used to be. How she used to be Adora's peer. How she used to beat her in a fight regularly.

As she fell and landed on her back, she thought about how everything had changed after Adora's reconnection - after she'd lost the sword, and learned to summon She-ra from within herself. How, little by little, her wife had learned to tap into that power without transforming.

How she'd made it her own, and left Catra in the dust.

She wasn't bitter, though. Far from it. As Catra blinked and came back to her senses, she looked up at Adora giggling and offering her a hand up with nothing less than complete fascination and love.

After all, as much as she lived to compete with Adora, that could only ever be one small part of her love for her.

"Got me again, huh?" She smirked, clasping Adora's outstretched arm and pulling herself up until they were face to face.

Adora grinned back, raising an eyebrow as Catra drew in close. "You used to be quicker than me. Maybe I should be an honorary cat."

Catra couldn't help but giggle as she closed those last few centimetres of space and kissed Adora's cheek. She was sweating too - she could taste it. She might be magic-powered, but she was still a human; she tired, just as she did.

"Uuuughh. Get a room, you two. I swear, it's every other round these days…" Glimmer's sarcasm-laden voice cut through the moment, stunning both of them back to reality. They both turned to face her with an 'excuse you' expression in almost perfect sync, only to quickly note her wry smile.

"Looks like you two lovebirds are done for now - am I right?"

Catra blushed, dipping her gaze as Adora slung her arm over her shoulder and leant the other on her training sword.

"I dunno, Glim… Think she's tired enough yet?"

Catra wanted to shrink down into an infinitesimally small ball and hide. Flirting was fine when she took the lead, but when both of her wives started flirting about her…

"I mean… I could show you how to really tire her out, but I have, y'know. Queen stuff." Glimmer shrugged, throwing her hands in the air and making increasingly vague gestures as her smile lowered. “Serious, though. As much as I love watching you two, I do have work.”

Catra breathed an internal sigh of relief as she sensed an end to her torment.

“Mmm… Well, I think we can finish up. Catra?”

She nodded, tail flicking back and forth in response to Adora’s question. “Let’s uh… go get changed.”

Both Glimmer and Adora smirked at that.

“Alright… Have fun, you two.”

The changing rooms were just a few doors down from the training spaces, so they left their swords on the rack and took their towels with them.

“You know, I’d probably still be beating you if I used my claws.”

“Probably, but then we’d go through swords even faster.”

“I could wear those little… soft cap thingies. On my claws.”

Adora giggled, squeezing her hand as they walked together. She was slightly ahead, so Catra couldn’t quite catch her expression. “You hate those, remember?”

“Oh, yeahhh…” Of course she remembered - truth be told, she’d probably always remember. She regretted ever trying them. Still, it was fun to imagine being able to beat Adora again - they had a conversation similar to this after almost every sparring match.

As they stepped into the changing room, it was like a wave came over her. “Ugh…”

“You okay?”

"Yeah… just, I think it hit me all at once. Everything hurts…" Catra grimaced, rolling her shoulder and letting go of Adora's hand to reach up and gingerly pull her top off. Her fur hid her bruises, but she felt every single one - and the aching muscles behind them - as she pulled the tight-fitting sports bra up and over her head.

Adora smirked, doing the same and - perhaps predictably - having no trouble with it. Catra had hit her maybe all of three times today, and none of them had been solid strikes.

"That does make me feel better, though."

"I thought it might." Adora smiled, bending over to remove her shorts. She dumped both pieces of clothing on the wooden bench in the centre of the room and stood up, pausing for a moment to stretch.

Catra couldn't help but admire Adora's physique. She was always strong - she'd been fit for as long as Catra could remember - but she'd really come into her prime in recent years. She was dripping sweat, each bead tracing the lines between her well-toned muscles as they ran down her back and thighs.

Of course, 'admiring' Adora meant that she had a bit of a harder time getting her own shorts off - they were tight fitting, and left nothing to the imagination - so even the slightest hint of an erection quickly became uncomfortable.

She quickly moved to pull them off as Adora smirked at her obviously flustered wife and made a move for the showers.

"Gee, you're easy today, Cat…" Adora giggled, twisting the tap almost all the way to the hot side and sighing as the steaming spring-heated water rained down on her.

"No comment." Being a cat had its advantages and disadvantages. Advantage? Fur. No one could tell she was blushing, except for her. Disadvantage? Tail. Probably an even bigger indicator of her embarrassment than any blush could be.

Another disadvantage had to be the amount of effort it took to get dry after showering. But it was worth it to not stink for the rest of the day, so she put up with it.

In Catra's case, she kept the tap squarely in the middle 'tepid' zone. She took her place next to Adora and groaned as the lukewarm water quickly soaked through her fur and soothed her aching flesh.

"You know, I'm beginning to think you might actually like showers." Adora glanced at her, decidedly unable to hide her blush as she spotted Catra's slowly growing erection, now halfway out of her sheath.

"They do have their perks. I'll admit it. But I still hate drying."

"That's fair. I hate drying my hair."

Catra giggled, leaning back to let the water run down her chest as she reached for the soap. "That's really not the same."

They fell silent for a while, both of them taking care of the necessary work of cleaning themselves - all the while 'ignoring' that Catra was standing at full mast, or that Adora was having an increasingly difficult time of staying focused.

It was only when they finally shut off the water that Catra admitted she had a problem. "Ugh… this really isn't going away."

"Want me to… uhh… help?"

Catra nodded shyly, tail swishing from side to side impatiently. "Yeah… Please."

Adora always seemed to become more confident when she was like this - or perhaps it was just her heart playing tricks on her. Whatever it was, Catra liked it.

"Alright. Go sit down on the end of the bench and spread your legs."

She gulped, nodding furtively this time.

Adora smiled warmly at her as she obeyed, taking her place at the end of the bench and carefully adjusting herself so that she was positioned right at the edge.

Catra watched with shameless fascination as Adora casually towelled herself dry, stretching and bending over to make sure she reached every inch - and once she was satisfied, neatly folding the towel and setting it down between Catra's legs.

As an excited shiver ran up her spine, Catra had to admit that saying she 'liked' this was an understatement. When Adora took the reins, she was fascinated - enthralled. It was a side of her she only ever saw on the battlefield - or in the bedroom.

Or, as she reminded herself, pretty much any room in the Brightmoon palace, if the mood struck them.

Adora knelt down, resting her knees on her perfectly-positioned towel and saving them from the hard marble floor. "Ready?"

Catra bit her lip, giving a definite nod. But she knew Adora better than anyone - she'd have to hear it before she did anything. "Yeah."

"Good. Now, don't worry about touching me, or yourself - just lean back, and relax."

Catra nodded again, leaning back slightly and supporting herself with her arms as Adora reached out to touch her.

That first touch - especially after she was fresh from the shower, still dripping wet - it was like lightning. Catra gasped, sucking back her breath as Adora gently wrapped her fingers around the base of her cock, slowly pulling down her sheath to make sure every last inch was exposed. Suddenly, in the cool air of the changing room, away from the steam of the showers, every last bit of exposed skin seemed to tingle, and she found herself wincing slightly as Adora held her grip.

She wasn't cold for long, though. Almost as soon as that sensation began, it was replaced by another - the warm… no, hot touch of Adora's lips against the tip of her shaft. Catra was helpless - her pitiful, embarrassing mewl of a moan echoed what must have been a dozen times back to her as it rebounded off the walls, floor and ceiling.

Within moments, she was consumed by Adora's warmth. The blonde had sucked her off countless times, but each time was somehow different in its own exciting, thrilling way. This morning, they'd been cuddled up in bed, and Adora had laid across Glimmer's lap as she buried her face in Catra's crotch - and that was completely different to this.

Catra's continued moans and whimpers seemed to encourage Adora. She kept her face pressed against Catra's crotch, suckling softly as she began to massage the underside of her shaft with her tongue. It was only once Catra started to twitch and fidget that she began to bob her head up and down slowly.

This again was different - the contrast of Adora's warmth and the cool air only grew stronger as Catra was exposed and re-taken again and again, her saliva rapidly cooling in the open air and making her desperate. It was only once Adora's pace increased to the point where there was no opportunity for that change that the raw pleasure of it overtook every other consideration.

"F-fuck… Adora…" She was good for her. Obedient, like she never could be for anyone else - not even Glimmer. She kept her hands behind her, holding herself up, despite how much she wanted to just grab Adora's head and push it down.

Her trust was always rewarded. That's something she'd had to re-learn, after everything… and it was still a struggle - but when it came to sex, Adora had never let her down.

Today was no different. Catra groaned, and Adora sensed it - even before she managed to get the words out.

“C-cumming!” Catra shivered, claws digging into the wood of the bench as Adora pressed herself as low as she could go. Her whole body seemed to pulse, her cock twitching once, twice - and then it finally hit, as Adora dragged her tongue from base to tip and she came.

She never kept quiet. You could probably hear her from down the hall. But she didn’t care - they were the queen’s consorts, why should she? No, she made her satisfaction well known indeed as she filled Adora’s mouth and throat.

Catra’s cock throbbed and ached, spurting rope after rope of seed against the back of Adora’s mouth almost as fast as she drank it down. She didn’t let up until Catra had given her every last drop - and even then, she only withdrew herself when she felt the gasping, panting feline begin to go soft.

“Feel better?” Adora smirked, licking her lips as she stood up matter-of-factly, towel in hand. She offered it to Catra.

“Y-yeah… Somehow, even more tired than before… but, yeah.”

They both shared a quiet laugh, soaking a moment longer in the bliss of their shared love and passion. It was Adora who shattered that beautiful moment. “C’mon. Time to dry off - we’d better go help Glimmer with her ‘Queen Stuff’.”

“Noooo…”
