“Hm… Adora…?” Catra said, sitting beside Adora in the room they now shared. “Are you okay?” They had just recently started the restoration of the towns affected by the war, and were currently on a break.

“We… really did save the world, huh? Wow… N-no, I'm okay, I just… We didn’t even get to rest yet.”

“Well, I would feel guilty if I decided to rest, and you follow me everywhere.” Catra laughed. “But I get you. It would be nice to rest a little.”

“We're sleeping next to each other again, finally.” That word, ‘finally’, took Catra by surprise.

“You… have been waiting for it?”

“Of course I had. I never stopped wanting to feel safe near you. You know… no matter how you would push me to the edge, quite literally most of the time, I couldn’t help but, deep down, feel like that was home, just because I was with you.”

“I guess… that's a little messed up. But I couldn’t give up on chasing after you, either.” They looked at each other. “It feels… good… to not have to pretend I hate you anymore.”

“Yeah…” Adora looked at Catra as if she wanted to tell her something.

"I love you." They said at the same time, and then laughed sweetly.

“You're looking at me kinda weird. Actually, you have been giving me this look for a while.” Catra risked stopping their laugh with that.

“Because I love you?” Catra blushed, but brushed it off. She had a love-hate relationship with how blunt Adora could be.

“T-that's not it. Surely, you have that silly face of yours, but… you look different, Adora. Like, are you hungry or something?”

“I'm sorry… I think you figured it out. I can't keep restraining myself for much longer.”

“What do you mean?”

“...” Adora gathered her thoughts. “I want you so bad.”

“I'm here, Adora! We're never… ever… going to be apart again!” Catra promises, holding Adora’s hand.

“That's so sweet of you.” Adora kisses Catra's forehead. “But that’s not exactly what I mean. I guess we’re not on the same page yet. Well… let’s rest for tonight, okay?”

“Wait!” Catra held Adora’s hand tighter. “Tell me. I want to know it all, Adora. I want to know you.”

“Ugh… it's kinda hard, and you're gonna get mad.”

“I swear I won't.”

“Why of all nights did you choose this one to be so sickly sweet?” Adora caressed Catra's face. “I love you, Catra.” With that, Adora went for a kiss. She started it sweet, calm, but slowly started bringing Catra to the same edge she was on, deepening it while still trying to not be too rough. “This is what I mean, get it now?” As the realization set in, Catra made a troubled face. As much as she wasn’t disgusted, she was… a little annoyed.

“Seriously, Adora? That's what have been on your mind lately?”

“Pretty much since I brought you back, yeah. And back then when we were fighting, too.”

“You’re disgusting.” Catra joked, derisively.

“Come oooon! We’re grown-ups!”

“Yeah, and when you put it like that, you sound like a kid! Seriously, this look you have been giving me meant that ? Like… in front of everyone?” Catra blushed again.

“It's not like you to be this embarrassed.”

“You know I'm not good with this. I always hated to talk about this stuff.”

“And everything else.” Adora joked, but Catra made an unpleasant face. “Sorry, I couldn’t help it. And… yeah, I’m sorry for thinking about these things, I guess. I won't bother you with that, I swear.”

“Adora, wait. Ughh… listen to me. I'm not mad, or disgusted. Not being good with this doesn't mean I don’t feel it… well, maybe I feel it less than you, but… I have these thoughts, too. I just had other stuff in mind, like saying sorry to over half of the world.” Catra tried her best to be strong and voice her feelings properly. “What I'm saying is… I'm not against it. If anything, I'm happy. I just… don't really know stuff.”

“You don't have to worry, I'll lead you.”

“Huh? Adora, don't tell me… you've done this before with someone else?”

“Pffft… of course not! How in the world would I be able to? But, you know, I’m She-Ra! I can do anything!”

“Well, its's not like… you need… strength… I mean… y-you could but also… Adora, shut up!”

“You’re the one who's talking, though.”

“I can hear your thoughts! Argh! This is weird.”

“I suppose, yeah, but… we're, you know… a couple now.”

“Don't look so smug.” Still, Catra smiled. “What exactly are you planning on doing, Adora?”

“Improvising? Seriously, I have no idea yet, but I just want to do it so bad…”

“You’re annoying.”

“I know. But… it sounds fun, right? It doesn't have to be today, though.”

“Hm, actually… tomorrow, we're… f-free, so…”

“I can't believe you're being this cute.”

“Shut up, Adora! Seriously, do you want me to be nice or to get mad?”

“Either way I win.” Catra playfully looks to the opposite side, but Adora pushed her to the bed, kissing her again. “You're so cute I feel like I'll die anytime soon.”

“I might just kill you to ease your worries, princess.”

“I wouldn’t mind. I'd do anything for you, Catra. Anything.”

“Me too.” Catra raised her hands to Adora's neck, asking for another kiss. “You know… I don’t hate this. Not a bit. You feel like you were made for me… I wish I had understood that sooner, kissed you sooner… given myself to you sooner. But, as much as I hate admitting it, you were right. What I was doing was wrong. Still, I… couldn’t bring myself to accept that we were equal and the way you were always ‘chosen’ hurt you just the same.”

“Catra…”

“Shh… I know I have wrong you, and everyone else, but you never gave up on me, have you? I couldn’t understand why you would come back for me, and I only saw love as a weakness, but now…” Catra kissed Adora once more, although her kisses were chaste compared to Adora's. “... I see it only made us stronger.”

“I will always be right beside you, Catra. I promise. I won't let you go. Nothing will ever take you from my arms again.”

“Then hold me tighter, princess.” Adora complied, reciprocating Catra's feelings tenfold.

“I love you so much… I promise to make you feel good…”

“Go on, She-Ra. You know… I used to hate her, but even she has grown on me a little bit.”

“Yeah?”

“But I want my Adora right now…” Catra closes her eyes, waiting for another kiss. “I feel so weird, but it's good… I guess… whatever you have has… contaminated me.”

“So, let me apply the antidote… all over you.”

“Adora… you look so… ugh… you look so hot right now.”

“You too… I can't wait any longer, Catra… can we?”

“I don't know why you're taking so long, Adora.”

It was, to say the least, something new for both of them. Obviously there had been aching and yearning all along, but to finally understand those feelings and to feel the heat, skin touching skin… what a nice gift. Adora was clumsy. After all, she wasn’t skilled in this whatsoever. But, as always, she was a fast learner. Even though undoing Catra’s clothes was sillier than expected, Adora had something guiding her, something almost magic-like, that couldn’t only be lust. It was love, expressing itself in the most surprising ways. Catras was cute, above anything else. Her little sounds, the way she was trying to cover her face, how her body only felt more and more feverish.

“Just.. do something!” Catra annoyed Adora, already trained by their past fights: she knew she would get her best if she pushed her a little bit more. That, at least, made Adora decide she wouldn’t hold back for another second. Still, she was a little shy, not knowing how tough she could be, not knowing how much Catra could take. She tried starting with kisses, starting at her neck and going down, pampering her kitty with so much love.

Reaching Catra’s breasts, Adora thought about saying something, but she would only panic and could even kill the mood at this point. She decided on doing her best: show, not tell, a wise decision at last. With Adora’s tongue touching Catra’s skin, there was no way the latter could hold herself back either. She tried, honestly, to not let Adora win her so easily, to show how hard she was feeling the simplest touch, but it was useless to try. She was soon overpowered and didn’t feel like complaining at all.

Finally, Adora had given in for the warmth and stopped thinking too much. She was doing what she felt like doing, sucking, play-biting, kissing… still, there was some shyness lying there, as she kept her eyes closed. When Adora finally took the courage to open them, she was met with Catra’s melting eyes, her mouth lying open and yet trying to not make louder noises.

Adora felt like teasing Catra, so bad, but she could barely keep herself put. Catra looked hopeless and Adora wondered if she was giving the same look. Not deciding to waste another minute, she went for Catra’s lips, this time, more ferocious than before, while she had her right knee (almost instinctively) between Catra’s legs. Something had switched in her. Maybe it was the heat acting up, maybe it was the look Catra had given her, maybe it was just Adora finally indulging herself. Either way, it worked for those two.

“C-Catra…” Adora panted. Before she could ask for anything, even if she couldn’t make it into words properly, she was met with Catra’s own request.

“Please… touch me, Adora.” And she acted quickly. She replaced her knee with her own hand, her delicate fingers slowly made their way through that fabric. Adora was met with that slick wonderland, slowly going up… and down… up, and down… trying her best to not hurt her lover. Even though Catra was clearly falling apart each time, she was Catra, which means she would always find the courage to be bratty about something.

"Come on, Adora…" Her face had totally changed. Of course, her sweet, vulnerable girl was there, but Adora could now see another side of her, someone that was only hers… which only made everything even more perfect. Catra was filled with lust, and, honestly, so did Adora. "... aren't you She-Ra? This is the best you can do ?" After so much time fighting Adora knew she couldn't give in to such words, but that was different for sure.

Still, Adora decided to not reply anything. She would show Catra was wrong, and make her happy and satisfied with that. Maybe she didn't have practice doing it on someone else, but, damn, she knew what felt good. She kept fingering Catra, but, still, not as tough as she wanted to go as to not hurt her. Even though Adora did that with the greatest intentions ever, Catra's hold on her arms and bold moans and purrs told her she should give that up. Making up her mind, Adora suddenly stopped, but before Catra could complain, she took her underwear completely off and lowering herself near her pussy.

"What are you…?"

"Don't worry about it." Adora said bluntly, aiming for her most sensitive spot. Yeah, Adora had finally hit the jackpot. Even though she lacked technique, there was so much hunger, will, lust… it all powered her through it. Catra was quickly losing it, with her claws making a mess of the sheets and mattress and her legs moving in a sweet agony. Adora didn't have to teaser her, or make her beg. Catra was calling her princess' name over and over, asking her to do it harder, and it all sounded so beautiful to hear.

Adora felt frisky. Way friskier than before. She wanted to try something. Little by little, she entered a finger inside Catra, without ever stopping to taste her.

"You take it so well." Adora said it, finally, and felt Catra tighten. Her moans sounded each time sweeter, and Adora felt like that was a sign to go even harder on her. Another finger went in, and Adora only doubled her efforts on Catra's bud.

Catra felt her mind go blank, if she was doing it herself she would surely had stopped by now, not being able to take it (even if she wanted to). But it was Adora taking control over her, taking her to wherever she wanted to. It was too good, too sweet, too much for her to take it. With many more cries for Adora and a few rushed "I love you"s, Catra came and, slowly, her body went still. Adora couldn't help but let out a grin, she had won, after all.

Adora waited for Catra to rest, breathe, take control over herself again.

"I don't really… know what to say." Catra was still panting when she tried to voice anything.

"It's okay, you… already told me everything I wanted to know." Adora kissed Catra again, but much sweeter than last time.

"You do know how to overwork me, don't you?" Adora laughed in response. They kissed once more, going slow again.

"That was nice."

"Was?" Catra smirked. "Oh, Adora, you thought I was going to let you have it your way, didn't you?" She pushed Adora down. "Your problem is… I don't like losing."

"W-wait, this is not a fight! It was love! Just love!" Adora panicked.

"Well, then… let me give this 'love' back to you tenfold."

Catra was a woman of her word and made it a long night. The next day, they were heavily scolded by Glimmer because of the loud noise all night.
