Working it Out (Catradora)

by dr4cul

Summary

Adora is the new instructor at the gym where Catra teaches yoga, and although they're both interested in each other, they've never really spoken. When they meet coincidentally at a party, drunk Catra confesses her attraction to Adora, and they engage in an intense romantic and sexual relationship.

Notes

Trying to write something longer :) No smut in the first chapter.

Breaking the ice

Catra felt exhausted as she exited the yoga classroom — it was her fourth lesson of the day and in need of some much deverved time off. She enjoyed being an instructor, but sometimes it could be overwhelming, especially in the afternoon when all of the annoying chatty teenagers came.

It was about 9 p.m and the gym was quite empty, only a few of the more avid gym rats were still working out. That's when she saw Adora, the new employee, helping a client out. She was a tall, blonde, beautifully muscular woman who always had a smile on her face. She wasn't really that knew anymore, Catra guessed she had been working there for about a month now, and everyone was obsessed with her. Glimmer, the pole dance teacher, and Bow, the bow and arrow instructor, had befriended her very quickly, and now the three of them were inseparable. It was cute, but their cheerfulness annoyed Catra sometimes.

Adora's blue eyes met Catra's for a second, and the blonde smiled. Catra felt her heart racing and turned around, going to the locker room. She untied her hair in front of the mirror and sighed—it was unsavable, she'd have to wash it. Fine, she thought, taking her stuff from the locker and getting ready to shower. She intended on meeting a friend right after the last shift, it was Friday night afterall.

As soon as she stepped out of the shower, Catra bumped into someone.

"I'm sorry!", she said, grabbing the towel that had slipped down a bit.

"Oh, that's okay."

Catra looked at the person and almost fainted from embarrassment. Adora was smiling at her, obviously. God, she was attractive. And, to worsen the situation, she was shirtless, only wearing her sports bra.

"I'm sorry, I thought it was empty", Adora explained.

She pointed at her ear buds to explain why she hadn't heard the shower, then took them off.

"I'm a little distracted."

“It’s fine”, Catra said below her breath.
Without any more words, she headed to a stall to get changed. Why was she such a weirdo? Adora must think she’s so damn strange. Why couldn’t Catra only… well, look up at Adora and smile back? Just being around her made Catra tingle all over. She took a deep breath before going to put makeup on in front of the mirror and heard some giggling.
Adora was now with a white tank top and jeans, hair loose. Catra had never seen her hair down like that, it was so… shiny! Beside her, Glimmer was being loud.
“Yes, can you believe that?!”
“I really think he’s into you, Glims. I don’t see why you shouldn’t ask him out, you know, just the two of us. I hate being the third wheel and you know that”, Adora responded.
“But I feel so safe around you, there’s no pressure! Oh, hey, Catra.”
“Hey”, Catra said, putting her makeup bag on the sink counter.
“We should invite her! So you won’t be third wheeling, Adora!”, Glimmer explained.
She was a short girl with purple and pink hair, kinda too quirky for Catra.
Adora opened the biggest smile.
“Yes! Catra, you should totally go to the bar with us!”
The idea of hanging out with her coworkers made her shiver.
“Oh, I’m sorry, but I have plans for today.”
“Of course she has plans, it’s Friday. Next time, though, right?”
Catra nodded quietly.
“You should really hang out with us more, Catra”, Adora said. “I’ve bee working here for, like, a month now and I don’t think you’ve said more than five words to me.”
Catra blushed.
“I’m not exactly pleasant”, she responded. “I mean, I don’t think you guys would wanna hang out with me.”
“C’mon”, Glimmer said. “That’s nonsense and you know it.”
“Why do you say that?”, Adora asked. “You seem so nice!”
Catra’s legs trembled a little.
“Thanks, but I know myself. Also, I’m self deprecating.”
“Well, you shouldn’t do that”, Adora advised. “You’re awesome.”

They smiled at each other at the same time. Catra quickly turned away, ashamed.
"Okay, Adora, it's time to go. Bow is ready."
"Finally! Why does he take so much time?!"
"I don't know, honestly, but let's go. Bye, Catra! Have a nice weekend."
"Bye, Catra", Adora said. "See you Monday, right?"
"Yeah, right. Bye, guys."
She looked at her reflection in the mirror and cringed. She really needed some makeup.

Adora felt like saying something more, maybe she could convince Catra, but the brunette didn't seem that interested anyway. As she exited the locker room with Glimmer, the short girl grabbed her arm and make a squeaky sound.
"You're so into her! How did I not notice this before?!"
"What?! No, Glimmer, I'm just being polite."
"Give me a break. Your eyes were eating her alive!"
Adora felt a cold shiver.
"Were they?"
"Ha! So I am right!"
Adora sighed and rolled her eyes.
"Whatever. She's pretty."
"She's very hot! And, like, kinda mysterious, you know… I can see the appeal."
Yes, Catra was hot. She had a lean but defined body, very yoga-like, and wild greyish her, but her most amazing feature was the heterochromatic eyes. One blue, one hazel. She was so unique, beautiful. Adora was undeniably attracted to her, but Catra didn't seem so interested. Maybe she didn't like girls, and that was okay. Not that she had to be straight for not being attracted to Adora, but… yeah… it was unusual. Adora tried not to be an asshole with her ego, though.
Glimmer and Adora met Bow outside, he was wearing his trademark croptop and high waisted jeans. Glimmer and Bow were so in love with each other, it was ridiculous that they wouldn't make a move. And there was Adora once again, going out with them because they were too insecure to ask the other one on a date. Well, that was hypocritical. She was just thinking about not talking to Catra… Maybe the girl was shy, though she seemed to be very secure about herself.

Alright, Adora thought. I should ask her out.

Catra's friend had conviced her into going to a party. She thought they were just meeting up for dinner ou maybe take a couple drinks, but she should've known better. No wonder people called they Double Trouble—they were always up to something.
"C'mon, cheer up!", they said, picking up Catra's arms.
"I'm so not dressed for this, you bitch", she almost growled.
They laughed.
"You look amazing as usual, also you really need to do something fun for once."
"I'm not fun, Double Trouble."
"I know, kitten, you are an angsty teenager."
"Ew, don't ever call me that again."
"Okay, kitten."
Catra rolled her eyes.
The club was full of drunk people and the music was way too loud for her taste.
"Let's get you a drink", Double Trouble said. "To loosen up."
"Fine."
They walked together to the bar.
"Use your lady charm to get us shots."
That's exactly what she did. The bartender ignored all the other people to get her two tequila shots.
Catra and Double Trouble drank them together.
"Oof", she said, shaking her head. "One more please!"

Shit, Adora thought when she realized she had lost Glimmer and Bow. Well, maybe they were together and Adora didn't want to be around when they finally hooked up. She decided to go to the bathroom, then.

It was packed with loud girls waiting on a line.
“What are you doing here?”
Adora turned around and gasped. A very drunk Catra was staring at her.
“I’m with Glimmer and Bow. What are YOU doing here?!”
“I thought you were going to a bar!”, she got close to be heard.
“We were, but then Glimmer saw the club’s instagram post ad we decided to come. Are you here alone?”
“I lost my friend!!!!!!”, Catra shouted, and Adora could smell the alcohol on her breath.
“I’ll help you find her.”
“Them”, Catra corrected.
“Okay, let’s find them, then.”
She grabbed Catra’s forearm and pulled her away from the line.
“Are Glimmer and Bow making out?”, Catra asked. She almost fell, but Adora picked her up. “Oh, shit, sorry.”
“God, you’re really drunk, aren’t you?”
“Double Trouble made me take, like, five shots! And then three more. Maybe four! I don’t know.”
“Your friend’s name is Double Trouble?”, Adora arched a brow.
“It’s a nickname, I don’t actually know their real name!”
“You don’t know your own friend’s name?”
Catra laughed audibly.
“I can’t remember!”
Adora laughed too. She leaded Catra to the external area, where people gathered to smoke. It wasn’t exactly a smokehouse, but no one cared.
“Sit here”, she patted on the dirty old sofa they had out there.
“What does your friend look like?”
“Long green hair, very tall and skinny, wearing a fake leather harness and tight black pants”, Catra said. “Kinda hard to miss.”
“I’m gonna look for them, okay? DO NOT leave. Imma get you some water aswell.”
When Adora turned to leave, Catra grabbed her wrist. She looked down and saw those beautiful eyes looking at her.
“Thank you, Adora. You’re being nice.”
“No problem, I like helping people.”
Catra let her go, but did not break eye contact.

“You’re very, very attractive, did you know that?”
Alright, she wasn’t expecting this. She felt a familiar warmth inside her chest.
“You’re very attractive too.”
Catra smiled, then licked her lips.
“Only guys find me hot. I guess I’m not lesbian material”, she shrugged.
“What the hell, Catra, you’re extreme lesbian material. You’re…”, Adora stopped herself. “Are you gay?”
“Yeah. I fucking hate that people can never tell.”
Adora felt like jumping with joy.
“I’m gay too”, she announced.
“No shit, Sherlock”, Catra mocked while rolling her eyes.
Adora laughed.
“It is quite obvious, I know.”
“I mean, the undercut, the muscles, this tank top. Yeah, I know you’re gay.”
Catra abruptly squeezed Adora’s arm.
“Jeez, I’ve always wanted to do this. Sorry, I didn’t ask for consent.”
“You can touch me whenever you want, Catra.”
The brunette was speechless for a few seconds.
“Is that how you flirt with girls?
“Excuse me?”
“You must flirt with so many girls…”
She did, but Adora wasn’t going to admit to it right now.
“Why are you saying that?”
“Because you are HOT, Adora, you are very fucking hot, and hot masculine girls are always fuckboys!”
“Do you think I’m masculine? No offense taken, by the way, about the fuckboy part…”
“You’re in the middle, I don’t know. I’m gonna regret everything I said when I wake up tomorrow. I’m sorry, I just get really chatty and honry when I drink.”
Adora almost gagged with her own saliva.
“Fine, you definitely need water. Wait here, okay?”
Catra nodded, so Adora headed to the bar. She looked around for Glimmer, Bow, or a tall, skinny, green-haired person. Not much luck. She got a bottle of water and went back to the unofficial smokehouse. Catra was talking to someone. It was the friend, Adora realized.

"Hi."
"Oh, hey, muscles", they said, checking her up and down.
"Here, Catra", she handed the bottle.
"Thank you so much!"
"Wow, taking care of her… Do you guys know each other?", Double Trouble asked.
"We work together", Adora answered. "Nice to meet you!"
"Extremely nice meeting you. Why didn't you tell me you have a goddess as a coworker, Catra? Very She-Ra like…"
Adora laughed.
"Wow, thanks. I'm flattered."
Catra struggled to open the water bottle, so Adora helped her.
"Chug. C'mon…"
"I see my kitten is in good hands", Double Trouble said. "So I'm gonna go back to the dance floor… If you need anything, She-Ra, you know where to find me", they said while slithering away.
Such a peculiar figure, Adora thought.
"You don't need to babysit me", Catra said. She could barely keep her eyes open.
"I think I do", Adora responded.
Not much later, the brunette was sleeping on that dirty sofa. God, someone should take her home. Would it be weird if Adora did that?
She texted Glimmer:
ADORA: Hey, where are you guys? I don't wanna interrupt anything, but I've got a little situation here…
No response.
She texted Bow.
ADORA: Hellooooooo?! I'm in the external area, okay?
His status changed to online.
BOW: Going.
Adora rolled her eyes, annoyed. She decided to sit next to Catra, and the small girl rested her head on Adora's shoulders—that's when her stomach dropped and she felt a strange rush. Catra was so beautiful, it was infuriating.

Glimmer and Bow finally showed up, and they gave Adora a guilty look. Glimmer's purple lipstick was smudged all over her face and imprinted on Bow's lips.
"Sorry we disappeared", the girl said.
"It's fine, but look…"
They finally noticed Catra.
"What is she doing here?", Bow asked, surprised. "Is she with you?!"
"No!", Adora exclaimed. "We bumped into each other. She's very drunk, and I think I'm gonna take her home."
Glimmer and Bow exchanged suspicious looks.
"Adora, the girl is out of herself…"
"Who the hell do you think I am!", she interrupted, shocked. "I'm just gonna drop her off and make sure she's okay. The fuck, Bow…"
Glimmer laughed.
"Oh, this is actually super romantic!"
Bow gave her a funny look.
"What do you mean?"
"Adora is going to take her of Catra and make sure she's okay… That's very romantic. More romantic than kissing in a club", she said the last part in a lower voice.
He opened his mouth to say something, but Adora decided to stand up.
"We're not in a romance novel, Glimmer."
She hugged Catra by the waist and helped her up. The small girl muttered something, but didn't open her eyes.
"I'm going now. You too have fun", Adora said and winked at them, making Glimmer blush.
It was quite a task to cross the club while looking for a tall green-haired elf-looking person, and when Adora finally found Double Trouble, they were making out with someone. She waited a little until they noticed, said she needed Catra's address, but they really didn't seem happy that she'd stopped a make out session. When she got what she needed, she left the club with Catra and waited for an Uber.
"Hey, wake up", Adora poked her. "I need your keys."
The brunette looked around, confused, and let herself be helped by Adora as she got out of the car.

“What the hell, how did we get here?”, she asked, still groggy.
“Your keyes, please.”
When their eyes met, Catra let out a loud gasp.

Catra wasn’t dreaming: it was really Adora there with her. She gasped as the realization came through, almost sobering her up completely.
“You didn’t have to get me home”, she said. “I was gonna sleep at my friend’s house.”
“I don’t think so”, Adora responded with a grin. “I’m pretty sure I saw they leaving with someone.”
Catra rolled her eyes.
“Typical.”
“Well, c’mon. Open the door before we get mugged or something.”
Catra rubbed her eyes, sleepy, and picked her keys out of her purse.
“Welcome… I hope you’re not allergic to cats”, she said, almost falling when tripping on the doormat.
Adora smiled.

Somehow, Catra’s home was decorated exactly how Adora had imagined. Dark, gloomy colors, some moss green, red wine, only a single wall painted light gray. Something touched Adora’s leg and she jumped, but it was just a black cat.
“Oh, he’s so cute.”
“It’s a she. Not that she really cares about that, I mean…”
Catra threw her purse on the sofa.
“The other one is hiding somewhere, he’s very shy”, she said. “Do you want a glass of water?”
“No, but you definitely should drink some”, Adora advised.
“I’m fine, I just need to sleep.”
They stared at each other in complete silence.
Catra was really something else. She was wearing a purple jacket over a slightly lighter purple dress that perfectly adorned her shape. It was almost impossible not to stare at her like that. Her hair was loose, wild as always, and she had black eyeliner on that had smudged just a bit.

“You’re beautiful”, Adora couldn’t contain herself.
Catra looked away.
“I know I said some weird stuff to you at the club. I always say weird stuff when I drink, I’m so sorry.”
“No, it’s okay, it was nice to finally talk to you.”
Catra looked at Adora again.
“Thank you for taking care of me”, she finally said. “Would you wanna… stay?”
Adora’s heart raced inside her chest and she could feel herself blushing all over.
“That was inappropriate, I’m so sorry…”, Catra shook her head.
“No! I would stay, I swear. If you weren’t drunk”, Adora rushed to say, coming closer. “Maybe another time.”
Catra glanced at the floor.
“Yeah. You’re right. That is… nice of you. Thank you again.”
Adora lightly touched Catra’s blushed cheeks.
“We’ll see each other on Monday”, she continued.
Catra walked the gorgeous blonde woman to the door.
“See you on Monday.”

Waking up

Chapter Summary

Catra and Adora talk about the night of the party.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Waking up was… a task. Catra had the most horrible headache and her body was claiming for some hydration. She only truly left the bed when her cats started screaming for food. Damn, it had been a while since she last got this drunk. Catra massaged her head as she headed for the shower. That's when it hit her: Adora was there the night before. God! Her stomach howled in despair and hunger. Oh my God, oh my God… Had they…? No, no. They hadn't, she was sure. But what the hell happened last night, though? Double Trouble totally abandoned her!
After showering, eating and playing a little with the cats, Catra laid on the couch and looked at her phone for the first time that day. She had dozens of Instagram notifications, which made her body freeze all over. Well, apparently she had posted a story taking a shot with Double Trouble, and he had tagged her in a post. Oh, also Adora was following her now.
Wait, what?!
She jolted out of the sofa.
Yeah, there it was:
adora_fitness started following you
Catra followed her back instantly. Most of the pictures were of her posing in the gym, but she also had a few ones in coffee shops. Wow, quite a cliché, Catra thought. This Instagram page was so douchey.
In less than ten minutes, Adora messaged her.

adora_fitness: Heyy. How r u feeling?

Catra felt warm and kinda embarrassed.

c4tra_: hey. im okay, just have a headache. thanks for taking care of me yesterday. i have to confess i don't really remember much, but i do know you got me home, so… thanks.
adora_fitness: It's fine! It was fun talking to u, though.

Shit. What had she said?! Catra messaged Double Trouble.

c4tra_: thanks for abandoning me yesterday!!!!!!
doubletr0uble: Honey, I did, but only because you were in EXCELLENT company.
c4tra_: what the hell do you mean?
doubletr0uble: That majestic She-Ra that works with you – and that I had no idea about, btw – was soooooooo cute towards you. She clearly got a crush and if I were you… oh, yeah, I'd go for it, no doubt!
c4tra_: do you know what i said to her? im sure i humilliated myself.
doubletr0uble: You always do when drunk, kitten, face it.
c4tra_: shit shit shit.

Catra switched to Adora's DMs.

c4tra_: i hope it wasnt too cringey.
adora_fitness: It was just very, very fun.
c4tra_: what did i say?! adora_fitness: I'm not gonna tell u here. Guess u'll have to talk to me in person to know.
c4tra_: of course i'll talk to you.
adora_fintess: Idk, you never do.
c4tra_: i dont really talk to anyone, its not personal. im a little antisocial.
adora_fitness: Well, not with me anymore. Right?

She caught herself smiling to the screen.

Catra's Instagram page had pictures and videos of her doing yoga, but it was mostly pics of her cats. The more Adora went through the page, the more she felt a weird but overwhelming urge to talk to Catra, to be around her, to touch her…
She waited patiently for Monday to come, and when it did, Adora went to the gym a couple hours before her shift as she felt extremely anxious. Not even Bow was there yet and he was always early.
"Hey, Catra".
Adora heard the secretary's greeting. Her body tensed up.
"Hey, good morning", Catra said back.
Adora waited near the yoga room, but far enough to not seem so deliberate. Or at least she thought that.
Catra stopped herself in front of Adora.
"Hey, Adora."
"Hey, Catra. Good morning."
The brunette smiled.
"Good morning. You're early…"
"Well, so are you."
"Actually, my first class today is in fifteen minutes, so I'm a little late", she said.
"Want help with that?", Adora pointed at the giant bag Catra was holding.
"I know my arms are humiliatingly thin, but I'm quite strong, alright?", she snapped back, which made Adora laugh.
"I know, those yoga poses aren't for everyone."
Catra stared at her with a straight face.
"Have you been Instagram stalking me?"
Adora widened her eyes, worried.
"No, I saw some pics, I mean I…"
Catra laughed and then, unexpectedly, lightly brushed her fingers on Adora's arm… and the blonde woman stopped breathing.
"I'm joking. I kinda stalked you too", Catra said with a grin.
She entered the yoga room, and a few seconds later yelled from inside:
"Are you gonna just stand there?!"
Adora smiled and followed her. Catra was plugging her phone to the speakers, then she adjusted the volume. Finally, she took off her jacket, revealing a red-wine top and black yoga pants. Catra streched her body with a lazy yawn.

“Fucking Karens. I had to open a 9 a.m class for them”, she said.
“I hate to admit it, but at least they’re better than the tweens.”
“I didn’t even know tweens could do yoga.”
“Well, if they’re paying…”
The first woman appeared at that exact moment.
“Good morning, teacher!”, she said in an annoying high-pitched voice.
Adora and Catra exchanged looks before the brunette responded:
“Hey, Joan, good morning!”
“Alright, I’m gonna go now… See you later?”, Adora said.
Catra smiled, even with her eyes.

They had lunch together that day. They talked about Catra’s cats, their favorite bands, movies and TV shows… Catra realized that Adora was kinda dorky, but in a cute way. She was kind and warm, with a charming smile, and she seemed so… pure. She really hoped Adora wasn’t messing with her. When Catra let people enter her life, it was intense, and it MUST be real. Sometimes, when she caught herself too mesmerized by Adora’s brightness, she’d look away for a minute, or pretend that she wasn’t that interested, but, in reality, she had a tingly feeling under her skin, crawling towards her throat, clogging it up with emotion. What was about this girl? Yes, she was very attractive, but there was something more. Above it all, Adora made Catra feel safe, and this was indeed very rare.
The rest of the day was calm, not even the obnoxious tweens could put her in a bad mood. The night came, and Adora walked Catra to her car. They were laughing about a silly joke Bow told a few minutes before.
“Hum… well, bye. Thanks for walking with me”, she said.
Adora smiled. That pretty fucking smile.
“Whenever you need”, the blonde responded.
“You never told me what I said to you that night of the party. The thing that was so fun.”

Adora opened her mouth, but didn’t say a word. She looked to the right and scratched her head.
“It’s late. You’ll have to ask me tomorrow”, she finally said.
“Oh, c’mon”, Catra complained. “I feel embarrassed already.”
They stared in each other’s eyes for a long second. Adora’s was a greyish kind of blue. Catra gulped down, nervous.
“Okay, tomorrow then. You won’t escape!”, she said while getting in the car.
“Please, I won’t even try”, Adora said with a funny grin.
Catra’s legs trembled.
“Bye, Adora.”
“Bye, Catra. Drive safely.”
She couldn’t stop thinking about how Adora made her feel that day. Catra even dreamed of her hands caressing Adora’s bright hair, their bare skins touching… It made Catra wake up excited to go to work for the first time the next day.

Slipping up

Chapter Summary

Catra and Adora have a warm encounter in the staff locker room.

Chapter Notes

After over 3 years, I am back. Broke up with my gf and I'm feeling lonely lol
I feel my writing is much more mature now too!

Glimmer was filing her nails as she yammered about Bow.
"He's the cutest in the world, you know, but I'm so worried this is gonna ruin our friendship, 'cause he's my best friend… and we haven't gone on a date yet! He just won't ask me, and it's so frustrating, Adora! Maybe he's thinking the same, though. Do you think we'd work well together? Or should we ignore we ever kissed? I can't wait any longer, I'm starting to lose my hair over this!"
Adora laughed, glancing at herself in the mirror. It was a Thursday night, nearly the end of her shift. She and Glimmer often hid out in the lady's room to talk.
"I don't know, Glims. You both clearly like each other."
"You think so?" Glimmer looked up at her.
"Yeah… It's actually a bit annoying."
Glimmer's eyes shimmered.
"Okay. Good to know."
"He's going to ask you out eventually, I'm sure."
Glimmer set her the file down.
"And when are YOU gonna ask Catra out?"
Adora's blood went cold. She cleared her throat, blushing.
"I—I'm not sure," she said.
"C'mon, you've been spending every free time together for the last two weeks. She must be waiting in distress!"
Adora couldn't help but roll her eyes at how dramatic Glimmer could get.

"Why do I have to be the one to ask her out? Just because I'm more masc? This is lesbophobic."
Glimmer's eyes widened as she turned bright red.
"Oh my God, I'm so sorry, I—"
"I'm kidding", Adora interrupted, laughing. "But seriously, I don't wanna rush anything."
Glimmer sighed.
"It's just a date, not a marriage proposal. She's SO into you, Adora, I can see it in her eyes."
Adora's heart started racing, pounding almost painfully in her chest.
"Fine. Maybe I'll ask her out today. And YOU should ask Bow out if he's taking this long."
Glimmer seemed to consider Adora's words. With another sigh, she exited the room: her next client was waiting.

As usual for the last couple of weeks, Adora waited for Catra's last class so they could walk to their cars together—like they were courting each other in some weird, old-fashioned way. But this time, the gym owner suddenly stopped her. She said there was an emergency with her son and needed Adora to close up for her. It was kind of a big deal—Adora hadn't been working there for long. Still, she agreed and promised to text her boss once everything was done. Figuring it'd be best to get changed before meeting Catra, Adora headed to the showers. She smelled way too much like sweat.
After a quick rinse, she threw on warm clothes and made her way to the staff locker room. Glimmer was the only one there, smiling from ear to ear.
"I asked him out! I mean, why not, right? Why was I waiting for HIM to ask ME? I just did it! And he said yes!" she exclaimed.
Adora grinned. She was happy for Glimmer—really—but she also knew this meant she and Bow were about to become absolutely insufferable.
"That's amazing, Glims! Told ya."
"So… now it's time for your part of the deal, huh?"
Adora felt her stomach twist. Thinking about actually going on a date with Catra was terrifying.

"Yeah, we'll see."
Glimmer shot her a knowing look but didn't push. Instead, she hugged Adora, said her goodbyes, and left for the day.
Alone, Adora started packing up her stuff, but she couldn't stop thinking about Catra. For all her sharp edges, there was a softness to her. It drove Adora insane.
She waited until closing time, then stood up and—"Oh, shit."
"Oh, my God!"
She spun around so fast she nearly fell. Catra stood in the doorway, her only cover being a mere white towel.
"I thought I was alone!" the brunette exclaimed.
"I'm so sorry, I didn't see anything, I swear!"
Catra huffed, amused.
"There's nothing to see, alright? It's fine, Adora. You can look at me."
Even with permission, Adora couldn't bring herself to turn around.
"I'm just gonna grab my clothes…", Catra's voice was slightly husky. It was… unfairly sexy.
"Fine, I'll just… I'm gonna…" Adora let out an awkward laugh, rubbing the back of her neck.
"Are you nervous?"
Adora could fell the smirk in her voice.
And she was nervous. Even more so now.
"I've been having flashbacks from that night," Catra said casually.
Adora could sense her movements. "The night of the party."
Adora's breath hitched.
"… Oh. Really?"
"I told you I thought you were fucking hot, didn't I?"
And THAT made Adora turn around.
Catra stood there in nothing but her bra and underwear. Her tan skin, lean muscles, and defined curves were expected—but still made Adora shiver.
"Well, it's true. I do," Catra continued, unfazed.
Fuck, fuck, fuck…
Adora took three steps towards her.
"I find you fucking hot too, Catra."

She couldn’t believe she was actually saying this.
Catra’s lips curled into a sly smile.
“You haven’t asked me out, though.”
“Neither have you.”
Catra shrugged.
“I don’t ask girls out.”
That made Adora laugh.
“Oh, I see…”
Catra turned to grab a shirt from her locker, but before she could put it on, Adora reached out and gently caught her wrist.
“I really wanna kiss you,” she confessed, her voice lower now.
Catra’s sharp colored eyes widened. She swallowed.
“…Okay.”
Adora’s demeanor shifted from hesitant to completely in control. Before Catra could react, she was pushed against the wall, Adora’s knee pressing firmly between her thighs. Catra let out an uncontrollable moan, and heat flushed through her as she felt ashamed about it, so she bit her lower lip. Adora’s gaze darkened, her blue eyes locking onto Catra’s mismatched green and yellow.
“I like your hetero… heterophobia?”
Catra would have laughed her ass off if Adora’s big hand wasn’t wrapped around her neck.
“Heterochromia,” she whispered.
Adora grinned.
“Yeah, that’s it.”
Catra pressed her chest against Adora’s, their bodies flush. Their hearts pounded, eager for a kiss. She could feel the towel starting to slip.
Then, the blonde flicked her eyes down—to Catra’s waiting lips.
Catra made the first move, fisting the front of Adora’s hoodie and yanking her in. Their mouths collided, desperate and messy, all heat and hunger. Adora pressed Catra harder against the wall, her hands gripping bare skin, roaming, exploring. The towel slipped further, barely holding on.
Catra’s nails raked down Adora’s back, making her shudder. Their bodies fit together too perfectly, burning against each other. Catra tilted her head, deepening the kiss, her tongue teasing, her hands slipping lower—

“Wait.”
Adora broke away, her forehead resting against Catra’s, breath ragged. Her hands trembled where they held Catra’s waist.
Catra blinked, dazed.
“What?”
Adora swallowed hard, her resolve teetering on the edge.
“I want this. God, I want this—but not like this. Not here. Not rushed.”
Catra exhaled sharply.
“Are you fucking kidding me?”
“No, I want to fuck you. Just…”
Catra narrowed her eyes.
“Is this what you tell every girl? That you want to wait? Make them feel special?” she laughed. “‘Cause I’m not every girl, and I don’t expect anything from this, I just…” Catra stopped herself. “Geez, I’m sounding desperate.”
Adora loosened her grip on Catra’s body and caught a glimpse of a nipple as the towel threatened to slip completely. She forced herself to look away, to focus.
“I’m not the type to be messing around with a bunch of girls,” she said. “I just look like it.”
Catra scoffed.
“Oh, save it,” she sounded frustrated and even a little angry.
She turned, letting the towel drop. This time, Adora didn’t look away. She took in the beautiful expanse of Catra’s back, the curve of her hips, and… well, her firm ass. Adora needed a second, so she sat down on the bench behind her.
“You think I’m a stupid fuck boy? This insults me,” she muttered.
Catra, now fully dressed, shot her a pointed look.
“Like you said—you look like it.”
Adora frowned. The tension between them was palpable, thick as the heat still clinging to their skin. Adora ran a hand through her hair, exhaling sharply.
“Ouch. That’s harsh, even for you.”
Catra crossed her arms and tilted her head, her sharp gaze still burning.
“I’m not in the mood for games, Adora.”
The blonde scoffed, leaning back against the wall.

“You think this is a game for me?”
Catra didn’t answer right away. Instead, she studied Adora, her expression unreadable now. The frustration was still there, simmering just beneath the surface, but something else lingered too.
Adora shook her head.
“If I just wanted to fuck you, I could’ve done it. You were right there, practically begging me to—”
Catra’s eyes flashed, and she took a step forward.
“Begging?”
Adora smirked, despite herself.
“Fine. Not begging. But definitely not stopping me.”
Catra’s lips pressed into a thin line, but she didn’t deny it.
Adora sighed, rubbing her face.
“Look, I meant what I said. I want you, but not like that. Not in some gym locker room that smells like disinfectant and dirty socks. You’re not just a hookup to me, okay?”
Catra blinked. Whatever she’d expected Adora to say, it wasn’t that.
The silence stretched between them before Catra finally rolled her eyes. “Ugh. You’re such an idiot.”
Adora grinned.
“Yeah, but you love it.”
Catra huffed, but there was the ghost of a smile there.
“Then ask me the fuck out.”
Adora stood up, towering over her, but this time, there was nothing cocky in her stance—just something genuine, something real.
“Catra,” she said softly, “will you go out with me?”
Catra clicked her tongue, pretending to consider. “…Guess I’ll allow it.”
Adora laughed, the last bit of tension breaking. But as Catra turned for the door, she couldn’t help but add:
“Still not over the ‘fuck boy’ thing, though.”
Catra snickered.
“You’ll live.”
They walked together to their cars in comfortable silence. When they reached Catra’s, she paused and looked at Adora.

“You’re not just a hookup to me too,” she admitted. “But I’m not looking for a full-blown relationship. I just want to have fun.”
“As long as the fun’s with me,” Adora said, smirking.
Catra rolled her eyes.
“Just so we’re clear… You want me. Right? ‘Cause I want you.”
Adora groaned, squeezing her eyes shut.
“Catra—”
“Fine, fine,” Catra teased, beginning to feel breathless again. She pulled Adora back in for one last, lingering kiss—slow this time, torturously slow, which made it even hotter—before finally stepping back.
“Tomorrow? After our shift?”, Adora asked.
Catra smiled.
“Yeah. For sure.”

First date

smuuuuttttttt

Catra left the locker room feeling ridiculous. She hoped she hadn't overdressed for her date. Adora was already waiting by her car, hands in her pockets. She had insisted on driving them to the oh-so-mysterious-restaurant where she'd booked a table.
Adora was wearing black pants and a maroon button-up shirt. For once, she didn't have her hair up in a ponytail—instead, it was down, coloring her shoulders with golden locks. She had minimal make up on.
Catra wore a black dress. She had drawn a perfectly sharp winged liner and put on dark red lipstick. Her heart fluttered with the sight of Adora out of her gym clothes.
"You look nice," she said.
They shared an awkward hug for a second.
"And you smell nice," Catra added.
Adora opened the passenger door for her, and Catra chuckled.
"You don't need to do this."
"Yes, I do," Adora said, grinning. "And, by the way, you look nice too. Very, very nice."
Catra pressed her lips together, trying not to smile.
"So… where are we going?"
Adora didn't answer. She turned on the radio, nodding along to a Sabrina Carpenter song.
"I wouldn't have guessed you listen to pop music," Catra said with genuine surprise.
"I listen to everything," Adora said.
They looked at each other, and their eyes lingered.
Catra smirked.
"Everything, huh? So if I play death metal right now, you'd sing along?"
Adora grinned.
"Yup."
Catra giggled, leaning back in her seat as Adora tapped her fingers on the steering wheel in the rhythm of the song. She looked so effortlessly cool. Catra felt like she wasn't up to par. She was just an annoying yoga instructor with anger issues and difficulty in controlling her own emotions. For now, everything was fine, she was at ease, but what would happen when Adora saw the true Catra? The one she desperately tried to hide from everyone. Years and years of therapy certainly helped her get to where she was—cool and composed. But anything could be a trigger. That's why she didn't want to get involved with Adora beyond having a few fun dates and going home together after a drunken night out. Everyone in Catra's life eventually abandoned her. She didn't let anyone into her life like that anymore.

The city lights blurred past them as they drove, the radio filling the silence between them.

After a few minutes, Catra broke the silence.

"You're not gonna give me a hint?"

"Nope."

Catra huffed dramatically.

"What if I hate surprises?"

"You don't."

The drive stretched on, and before Catra knew it, Adora was pulling into the parking lot of a very fancy restaurant. Catra couldn't believe it.

"I thought we were going on a little date, but you brought me to the most expensive place in the city!" she exclaimed.

Adora frowned.

"I never said we were going on a 'little' date. C'mon. Ready?"

Wait. Things were getting way too real for Catra. That's not what she had signed up for. Adora could sense Catra's hesitant demeanor. She didn't unlock the car.

"What's going on?"

Catra swallowed loudly.

"Nothing. I mean, this is very nice of you. I just…"

Adora exhaled, already reaching for the keys. "It's fine. You don't want to go here. It's okay, we can go somewhere else."

"No!" Catra grabbed Adora's wrists when she tried to turn the car on again. "I just don't want to give you the wrong impression."

Adora leaned back and sighed, her eyes scanning Catra's face.

“What do you mean?” she asked.
Catra started to tremble. Her fingers twitched, demanding her to touch Adora, but she didn’t.
“I don’t do… you know… romance. I know this sounds corny—”
“It does.”
“—but I mean it.” She finally took in Adora’s interruption. “Wait, what?”
“It does sound corny”, Adora shrugged. “What do you mean you ‘don’t do romance’? We’re lesbians. We don’t need to be madly in love with each other to be romantic.” She tilted her head. “I think you’re the one who’s expecting way too much from this. Yesterday, you told me I’m just a fuckboy to you, and now I’m too romantic? I don’t get it.”
Catra didn’t know what to say. Adora was right—she was looking way too deep into the situation. It was just a fucking dinner. There was no reason for her fight-or-flight to kick in like that.
“I’m sorry,” she mumbled.
Adora looked frustrated. Maybe even a bit irritated. There it was—Catra had ruined the mood again. She was such a buzz kill. She should’ve kept her mouth shut.
“I really want to have dinner with you in this very fancy restaurant,” she tried.
Adora didn’t say anything. She just unlocked the doors, circled the car, and opened the door for Catra like nothing had happened. Like Catra hadn’t just downplayed her cute attempt at a date.
They walked into the restaurant in silence, and Adora pressed her palm on Catra’s hips as they followed the hostess to their table.
For the next couple of hours, everything fell into place. They talked like they always did. They complained about their job. Raved about the food. Even shared a dessert. And then, it got late. The kind of late where the world outside had quieted down and only the two of them remained, wrapped in the stillness of the night.
They went back to Adora’s car in silence again—but it wasn’t uncomfortable. Catra felt the need to hold Adora’s hand.
“I’ll take you back to your car at the gym,” Adora said.
Catra hesitated for a second, but blurted out:
“I want you to come home with me.” When she realized how out of nowhere and rude that was, she tried again: "I mean, I am asking you to go home with me. To take me home. And… come inside. With me. Inside my home. You've been inside my house before. So, you can go inside again. If you want to. Or—just drop me off there. I can get my car tomorrow."

Adora was looking at her with both eyebrows raised. Then, she smiled.
"Sure. I'll take you home."
Catra couldn't believe how nerdy she sounded. She liked to see herself as a femme fatale, cold and mysterious. But something about Adora made her act kind of dorky.
The drive to Catra's house was filled with more surprising song choices made by Adora. They stood at the entrance, their eyes meeting in the dim light. Catra leaned against the doorframe, her usual sharpness softened by the quiet.
Adora's heart raced, but not from nerves. It was a slow burn, a simmering heat that had been building all night.
Catra ran a hand through her hair.
"So… are you coming in?"
Adora stepped closer.
"If you want me to."
The words hung there for a moment.
Catra's voice dropped, almost a whisper, her gaze locked with Adora's.
"Okay, so… Come in. Welcome. You remember my cats?"
She stepped aside, and Adora walked in. One of Catra's cats—the black one—trotted over, rubbing against Adora's legs.
Adora smiled, crouching to pet her.
"I remember your cats."
She was more of a dog person, but maybe that was just because she'd never had a cat before. This one was friendly, leaning into her touch. Catra's heart did something weird at the sight—at how gentle Adora's hands looked as she scratched the cat's ears. She swallowed, her lips quirking into a half-smile. Her gaze flicked down to Adora's lips for a brief second before looking away.
"I was hella drunk the last time you were here. I should give you a proper tour," she said.
It was a small but very cozy place. There was a wide, open living room, warm lighting, and yoga paraphernalia scattered across the floor.

Adora raised an eyebrow at a resistance band draped over the couch.
"So this is where you get all bendy."
Catra stared at her.
"Don't make it weird."
Adora laughed— a real laugh, like they'd known each other for a long time. It was the kind of laugh exchanged between best friends or long-time lovers. Adora had laughed as if Catra made her comfortable. This was a weird feeling for Catra. She usually made people uneasy.
Catra caught Adora looking at some books stacked on the coffee table, a half-folded blanket on the couch, and a candle on the shelf. It smelled like cinnamon and something faintly floral.
"I was gonna let you in the kitchen, but…" She quickly shut the door behind her. "I, uh, made a mess trying to bake a gluten-free chocolate cake."
Adora smirked.
"Didn't know you were allergic to gluten."
"I'm not," Catra admitted. "I just like trying new recipes."
She reached for Adora's hand and tugged her down the hallway. "And here's my bedroom."
Adora felt a rush run through her veins, and she squeezed Catra's lean fingers. They both stopped for a second. Then, Catra opened the door to the bedroom. She sprinted to the bedside lamp and turned it on, casting a dim golden light.
"Come in," Catra whispered.
The bed was unmade, sheets slightly rumpled, like she'd left in a hurry that morning. A few books were stacked on the nightstand, one still open, a cat curled lazily on the pillows like he owned the place. When the cat spotted the strange blonde woman hesitating in the doorway, he hissed and went under the bed. Catra laughed awkwardly.
"Sorry, he's terrified of everyone but me," she said.
Adora went in and took a good look around.
"This feels… very you."
Catra huffed, sitting on the bed to kick off her shoes.

“I would’ve made the bed if I thought you were coming. I mean, I knew we were going out, but I kinda forgot that maybe you were coming, so… yeah. Sorry.”
“Sure you would’ve,” Adora humored.
Catra turned her back to Adora, pulling her hair over one shoulder. “The tour isn’t over,” she said. “Can you unzip me?”
Adora swallowed. She could still smell that faint cinnamon scent in the air—or maybe it was Catra herself. She sat beside her, her fingers brushing against the nape of Catra’s neck before finding the zipper. She unzipped Catra’s dress slowly as to savor every second of that moment.
“What else am I entitled to see in this tour?” Adora asked while she was taking her own shoes off.
Catra turned her head. Their faces were very close right now. “Everything you want,” she murmured.
Without another word, Adora closed the distance, her fingers gripping the back of Catra’s neck, pulling her closer. Their lips met in a rushed kiss, making them knock their teeth. They laughed for half a second.
Adora pushed Catra onto the mattress with just one hand. Catra gasped. She grabbed Adora’s waist and pulled her in, deepening the kiss.
Adora’s hand slid gently up Catra’s arm, her fingers brushing the soft skin as she felt a shiver run through Catra’s body. Her touch was slow, deliberate, a quiet question that waited for an answer. Catra’s breath hitched slightly as she responded, her hands slipping beneath the hem of Adora’s shirt, fingertips grazing the warm skin of her lower back.
Adora’s hands traced the curve of Catra’s hips, feeling the smoothness of her skin, the way her body responded to every touch. Catra’s lips parted in a soft gasp, and for a brief moment, they both just paused, breathing each other in.
“God, you’re hot,” Catra said.
Adora just looked at her. This was truly happening. She slid Catra’s dress off, kissing the skin as it was exposed. Her fingers brushed over the delicate fabric of Catra’s black lace underwear. Catra sensed some internal struggle from Adora. She jerked her hips up, wordlessly coaxing Adora to let go. Telling her that she was letting go, too.

"Catra…" Adora whispered, her voice thick with want. Her lips brushed against Catra's thighs as she spoke. "Are you sure?"
Catra nodded fiercely, pupils blown wide.
Adora let out a slow breath, her fingers tightening slightly where they rested on Catra's hips. She pressed an open-mouthed kiss to the inside of her thigh, feeling the way Catra's muscles twitched under her lips.
"You're impatient," Adora murmured against her skin, smirking.
Catra huffed.
"And you talk too much."
She reached for Adora, trying to pull her up, but Adora had other plans. She pushed Catra back down, trailing her hands up her torso, fingertips dragging over smooth, heated skin. She took her time, savoring the way Catra's breath hitched when she brushed the underside of her breast, how her nails dug into the sheets as she squirmed.
Adora finally gave in, capturing Catra's lips again, this time with no hesitation. It was deep and consuming, her tongue teasing Catra's, her hands pressing her down. Catra moaned into her mouth, her body arching up, seeking more contact.
Their bodies moved together, friction building between them, each touch setting off sparks. Catra's hands roamed under Adora's button-up, nails scraping along her back as she slowly unbuttoned it, leaving her in just a black bra.
Adora smirked and leaned down, her mouth moving to Catra's neck, kissing, sucking lightly before biting down just enough to make Catra gasp. She rolled her hips, drawing a desperate sound from Catra's lips, who dug her sharp nails into Adora's skin.
Catra's patience snapped. She flipped them over, straddling Adora, her hands planted firmly on Adora's stomach as she looked down at her. Her hair was tousled, lips kiss-swollen, pupils blown wide with hunger.
"I need to fuck you," Catra whispered, and Adora shivered.
"Then do it," she challenged.
Catra dipped down, her lips and teeth marking a path down Adora's collarbone, her fingers making quick work of the clasp on her bra. She leaned back, taking in the sight of Adora beneath her, skin flushed, breath uneven, chest rising and falling as she looked up at her.

"Fuck," Catra muttered, her voice raspier than before, as she felt Adora's muscles.
She lowered herself again, pressing kisses down Adora's stomach, dragging her nails down her sides, watching with satisfaction as Adora's abs tensed under her touch.
Adora was losing her mind. The way Catra moved, the way she took control, the way her hands and mouth seemed to know exactly how to unravel her—it was intoxicating. She let her head fall back against the pillows, surrendering completely as Catra took what she wanted.
Soon enough, they were both bare skin against bare skin. Catra trailed hot kisses along Adora's inner thighs and breathed her scent viciously. She had been waiting for this moment for such a torturous long time.
She started slow, teasing, dragging her lips on the exterior of Adora's pussy. Then, she stroked her tongue firmly once. Adora grabbed Catra's head and pulled her brown her up. Catra did it again—one single stroke enough to make Adora groan. Then again. And again.
Adora was moving her hips around Catra's mouth, eager for more. Catra slid her arms under Adora's toned thighs, gripping her hips from underneath. She went full in, nonstop, hungry, feeling her own arousal, humping the mattress with all her throbbing hornyness.
Adora arched her back and moaned delicately—not the kind of moan Catra had been expecting from her. She pulled back to catch her breath, sliding two fingers up and down Adora's clit. Then, she started to lower them, but Adora stopped her, grabbing her wrist.
"You're not fucking me with those nails," the blonde said, breathing heavily.
Catra smirked.
"They're press-ons."
Without breaking eye contact, she bit them off and spit them to the side.
Adora stared with utter surprise.

“Holy shit,” she said.
Catra put a finger inside Adora, curling it up, and Adora let out another gentle moan.
“One more?” Catra asked.
Adora shook her head, her breath coming fast.
Catra obeyed and put her lips around Adora’s clit again. She sucked it painfully slow. Adora’s whole body tensed, her grip tightening in Catra’s hair as she pulled her in closer, urging her not to stop.
Catra hummed against Adora’s clit, sending a shiver through her, feeling the way her thighs trembled beneath her hands. She kept her movements slow, precise—driving Adora to the edge but never quite letting her tip over.
Adora let out a frustrated whimper, hips bucking against Catra’s mouth, desperate for more.
“Catra,” she warned, her voice thick with need.
Catra smirked against her, but she wasn’t feeling particularly cruel—not tonight. She curled her finger again, pressing right against the right spot inside her, and sucked harder, flicking her tongue rapidly.
Adora gasped, a strangled sound ripping from her throat.
“Fuck—Catra—”
Her back arched completely off the bed, her body tightening around Catra’s fingers. She was close, so close, and Catra could feel it—could taste it.
She didn’t let up. She doubled down, her free hand gripping Adora’s thigh as she worked her harder, sucking, stroking, relentless now. Adora’s breathing turned ragged, her nails scratching against Catra’s scalp, her thighs clenching around her head.
She moaned aggressively this time, feeling her insides burn up. Her whole body tensed; another long, shuddering moan escaping her lips as her release hit, her hips jerking against Catra’s mouth. Catra held her, licking her through every pulse, not stopping until Adora’s body went slack under her.
She finally pulled back, pressing one last lingering kiss to Adora’s inner thigh before resting her chin against it, looking up at her.

Adora was still catching her breath, her chest rising and falling, eyes half-lidded and hazy with satisfaction.
“I don’t usually let girls top me like this,” Adora confessed.
That made Catra feel very proud of herself.
“You taste amazing,” she said, taking her finger to her mouth and sucking it with pleasure.
Adora let out a breathless laugh, reaching down to pull Catra up, their lips meeting in a slow, lazy kiss.
“I bet you taste better,” she said.
Catra grinned.
“Fuck me, then.”

Daydreaming

Chapter Summary

smut!!!!

Catra spent the weekend thinking about Adora. About her lips, her fingers, her hips, her thighs. At the gym, Adora looked like a tough guy with her undercut, sweatpants, and tank tops that flawlessly showed off her muscles. But at the dinner date, she had been so soft.

Catra thought she had already analyzed Adora to the bone when they talked and had lunch together in those weeks before their date, but she was wrong. There was a softness to Adora that she hadn't noticed before, for some reason. Her blue eyes were kind, loving, warm. Her hair framed her face beautifully. She had a quirky laugh, and she was kind of dorky as well.

How had Catra ever thought Adora would be just another quick fuck? She was gentle and caring and funny and generous—Adora was everything Catra was not.

They texted a little on Saturday and on Sunday, but neither of them brought up the night they'd spend together. By Monday morning, after her first class of the day, Catra just couldn't hold it in anymore. She grabbed her phone and texted Double Trouble. She needed to talk about it.

Catra: hey. do you remember the blonde from that party?

They didn't take long to text back.

Double Trouble: Yeah, She-Ra. What about her?

Catra bit her lower lip and pondered about sending the next text. She was a little bit embarrassed, even though she and Double trouble had always been open about their sex life.

Catra: we fucked.

Double Trouble: GIRL. What! I mean, she is hottttttttt. But don't you two work together?

Catra: yep.
Double Trouble: You just can't help yourself, can you, kitten? I don't blame you. You were indeed flirting like crazy at the party.
Catra: i was out-of-my-mind drunk that day. she took me home and made sure i was safe. nothing happened then.
Double Trouble: I bet you charmed her in the gym. Poor girl. She seemed nice.
Catra: why poor her?!
Double Trouble: My darling, don't you know yourself?

Catra's jaw clenched. That pissed her off. She'd been upfront with Adora—she wasn't looking for anything serious. She hadn't lied, hadn't led her on. She wasn't being an asshole. Not this time. Why did Double Trouble always assume the worst of her?

Catra: this is different. there's something about her, idk. but don't worry, i'm not gonna ruin her or anything like that. i've learned my lesson.
Double Trouble: Okayyyyyy, but tell me more tell me more, like, does she have a car?
Catra: shut the fuck up.
Double Trouble: Jokes aside, was it good?
Catra: best sex of my life.
Double Trouble: There it is, kitten. That's the thing about her. She made you cum, now you're locked in.
Catra: maybe that's it. i'm not into all that romantic stuff. it's just sex.
Double Trouble: Yes, babygirl, 'cause this always works! Especially with coworkers. Have you seen her since?
Catra: nope. but i will in, like, 15 minutes.
Double Trouble: Good luck. Oh, and don't be yourself.

Catra sent them a middle finger emoji and closed the chat. Her stomach twirled at the thought of seeing Adora at work after everything they had done to each other. She sat down for a moment, trying to compose herself, but just the memory of that night made her tremble. Adora made her shiver like crazy.
Catra closed her eyes, unable to stop herself from reliving every single second of it—Adora's sweet moans, her tenderness. Catra's guts dropped. She could almost feel Adora's lips on hers, trailing along her jawline, going lower and lower and lower. Sucking her shy breasts. Licking and teasing Catra's nipples with her smooth tongue while she squeezed Catra's waist with her strong hands. Up to this moment, Catra had thought that it was just fucking. But then, it felt like they were making love. And Catra liked that feeling.

Adora changed. Her gentleness turned into an urgent demand. She licked Catra's lower belly and kissed the folds of her knees. Adora caressed her hips and breathed into her inner thighs for a few seconds. Catra could feel her own wetness. Then, Adora looked up at her and smirked.

Catra let her head fall back onto the pillow and scratched Adora's shoulders. It was like Adora was punishing Catra with her own venom—licking it slowly, making Catra desperate.

Catra's breath hitched as Adora's tongue flicked against her clit—soft, deliberate. It sent a ripple of pleasure through her, making her toes curl, her back arch. She bit her lip hard enough to sting, trying to hold back the desperate whimper threatening to escape. But Adora wasn't having that.

"Don't hold back," Adora murmured against her, voice husky. Catra shuddered, her fingers threading through Adora's hair, tugging slightly, trying to urge her on. Adora smiled against her skin, pressing one last kiss before dragging her tongue down, tracing patterns that made Catra's thighs tense around her head.

"God—Adora," she gasped, her hips bucking involuntarily.

Adora groaned in response, gripping Catra's waist, holding her still as she worked her over with a practiced, relentless rhythm—stroking in ways that sent white-hot pleasure pooling low in Catra's stomach. It was unbearable. She wanted more. She needed more.

She reached down, gripping Adora's shoulder, half-intending to pull her up and flip their positions. But Adora only pressed her down harder, fingers digging into her skin, keeping her right where she wanted her.

"Not yet," Adora murmured.

Then, she slipped a finger inside.

Catra gasped, eyes fluttering shut, her nails clawing at the sheets. Adora didn’t rush—she moved slowly at first, letting Catra feel every delicious second of it. Then another finger, curling just right, making Catra choke on a moan.
The pleasure built in waves, rolling higher, tightening in her core until she couldn’t take it anymore. She could feel it—right there, so close…
“Adora, I—”
Adora flicked her tongue against her clit at the same time she curled her fingers just right—but then, she stopped.
Catra screamed in frustration, which only made Adora laugh.
“Please!” Catra begged.
Adora hovered over her, climbing up Catra’s body to press a sweet kiss on her forehead.
“Sit on my face,” she whispered.
Catra hesitated. She gulped down, then finally nodded.
Adora lay back on the bed, putting her hands under her head, waiting with a smug, stupid smirk on her smug, stupid, beautiful face. Catra positioned herself, placing her knees to either side of Adora’s head, hovering just above the mouth.
“Full weight,” Adora said.
Her hot breath tickled Catra’s wet pussy.
Catra’s heart pounded in her chest. The space between them felt charged with anticipation. Adora watched her with pupils that consumed her whole eyes. Her hand reached up, brushing against Catra’s thigh, and Catra's body shivered at the contact. She was nervous, but it wasn’t fear—it was the vulnerability of being this close, this exposed.
“Take your time,” Adora whispered, her voice low and soothing.
Catra swallowed hard, trying to steady herself. Her hands shook slightly as she placed them on either side of Adora’s head. Catra lowered herself slowly, her lips parting as she felt Adora’s breath against her skin. Adora’s hands found her waist, pulling her closer, guiding her without rushing. Catra's pulse quickened, her body responding to the intimacy. She realized she actually trusted Adora.
“You're perfect,” Adora said against her pussy.
Catra’s eyes fluttered closed, her breath coming in uneven gasps.

She moved with more confidence now. Adora grabbed her butt cheeks and slapped them right after, making Catra moan loudly. Adora's mouth was so damn warm—she knew exactly what to do as if Catra had told her so with words. But she was teaching Adora how to lick her with her own body, moving in circles, then up and down, front to back.

Adora put one finger in again. In that position, it was a little difficult for her to place it comfortably, but the inner pressure was enough to make Catra go faster and faster—while Adora also fastened her pace, putting all her tongue out and shaking her head while letting out moans. This made Catra lose her mind—she was a very sound driven person, and hearing Adora express that fucking Catra gave her pleasure was the end of it for her.

Catra's thighs were burning—she couldn't take it any longer. She was about to collapse. Pleasure washed over her in crashing waves. Adora didn't stop—not until Catra was twitching, whimpering from the overstimulation.

"Stop," she tried to say. "Oh, God!"

Catra tried to climb out of Adora, but she held her there, still applying pressure to Catra's clit with her tongue.

"Adora, please—"

Finally, Adora pulled back, kissing the inside of Catra's thigh, resting her head on it, grinning lazily as she watched her come down from her high.

"You look really hot like this," she murmured. "Like a Goddess."

Catra could barely form words, still catching her breath, her pulse thrumming wildly. She reached down, tugging Adora up until their lips met—slow, deep, messy.

They stayed like that for a few minutes, just breathing together, hearts beating against each other. Catra lay next to Adora and wrapped her legs around her.

"I think this was the best orgasm of my life," she said.

Adora's eyes widened. She smiled and kissed Catra—their sweaty bodies glued to each other.

They looked at the bedroom's door when they heard a faint meow. They giggled together when Catra's black cat jumped on the bed and tried to cuddle with them. Catra gently expelled her from the bed.

“She’s clingy,” Catra said.
“I’d be clingy if I lived with you, too,” Adora murmured.
Catra’s body tensed up. Adora didn’t seem to realize what she had said. Wasn’t that a bit too far from what they’d established? But Catra didn’t feel the need to protest it. She remained silent.
“Water?” Catra asked.
Adora nodded, so she left the bedroom and headed to the kitchen.

Snapping back to reality, Catra opened her eyes when someone called her name. She had been daydreaming for, like, ten whole minutes.
She looked at the tiny person stepping into the yoga classroom. It was Glimmer.
“Hey!” Glimmer exclaimed.
Catra stood up and tried to compose herself.
“Hi.”
They didn’t usually talk, so this was a little weird.
“What’s up?” Catra forced a smile.
‘Glimmer’ was a pretty fucking stupid name, she thought. Not that Catra was all that normal, but Glimmer?! Still, she had to admit, it did suit the small, purple-haired girl.
“So, Bow, Adora and I usually have lunch together, but, ya know, it’s been a while since that happened because…” She stopped herself, eyes widening. Was that a flicker of jealousy in her tone? Maybe because Adora had been spending more time with Catra lately, including lunch time?
“I mean, we want to invite you to have lunch with us,” Glimmer ended up saying.
Was this a scene from Mean Girls? Catra raised an eyebrow.
“I’ll think about it,” she said, shifting her weight onto one foot.
Glimmer gave her a look, like she wasn’t convinced but didn’t feel like arguing. “Alright… See you around.” She turned on her heel and walked off.
Catra let out a heavy breath and ran a hand through her hair. Lunch with Adora and her sunshine brigade? What had happened to the mysterious, unapproachable, grumpy Catra that she loved being? Had Adora really slid into her mind like that and contaminated her with… glee?

And the worst part? She kind of DID want to have lunch with them. Catra didn't have many friends, and it'd be nice to hang out with her coworkers—even if she thought they were annoying most of the time. How could someone be so joyful all day long? And Glimmer had such an incredibly pitchy voice—Catra could hear her from across the gym.
She sighed, gathering her things as she prepared to leave the classroom, thinking about the walk to the bathroom and how she'd see Adora being all hot and shit, training some other girl.
Then she froze.
Wait. Was SHE jealous?
No. No way. She shook her head and stepped out.
But there she was—Adora, in her usual gray sweats and a new red-and-yellow muscle tee. Catra tried to hide behind the gym equipment, but it was useless. Their eyes met, and they exchanged longing looks. They didn't speak.
Adora was actually training a skinny guy.
Catra ran to the staff locker room and sank onto a bench. She had time to kill until her next class, and no one to talk to. Which meant there was nothing stopping her mind from replaying that night all over again.

Three nights before, Adora had been naked on Catra's bed, all sweaty, her hair loose, laughing at silly things and telling unfunny jokes that made Catra giggle against her will. They had stayed close, side by side, and Adora played with Catra's hair.
"So… tell me more about you," Adora said, her voice soft, eyes sparkling in the dim light. "We've been talking a lot, but I feel like I don't really know who you are."
Catra pressed her lips together.
"There's nothing interesting about me," she replied.
Adora rolled her eyes, then pulled Catra closer, making their breasts touch.
"Okay, I'll start," Adora gave in. "I'm from a really small town, and I was raised by my aunt. I never knew my parents. They died in a car accident when I was, like, six months old."
Catra was quiet for a moment. That was so personal. She reached up and placed her palm on Adora's cheek.

"I'm sorry", she said in a murmur.
"It's fine," Adora shrugged. "My aunt was a fucking sociopath, but that just built my character."
Catra felt the impulse to kiss Adora's nose, so she did. Adora smiled.
"Your turn," Adora said, gentle but insistent.
Catra suddenly didn't want to look her in the eye. She felt her body warm up and her throat close.
"It doesn't have to be something traumatic," Adora added, sensing her discomfort. "I just want to know ANYTHING about you."
"Fine", Catra huffed. "I also didn't know my parents," she confessed, voice low.
Adora looked at her with surprise.
"For real?"
Catra nodded.
"I grew up in the system. When I turned 18, I left. I've been on my own ever since," she said.
Adora's brows drew together, like she was sorry for Catra.
Oh, God, no—that's exactly what Catra didn't want. She moved away, pulling back slightly.
"Hey," Adora called, grabbing Catra by the shoulder. "I'm proud of you. Look at where you are now. You're amazing."
Catra gulped. She felt so nervous that even her fingertips were tingling.
"Thanks."
She thought Adora was amazing too, but she couldn't bring herself to say it out loud. Adora didn't seem to mind it, though. She came closer, still gripping Catra's shoulders, and slowly pushed their bodies together. Adora kissed Catra's left temple, then her cheekbone, her ear, and descended to her neck, pressing a long, hard kiss to the sensitive skin.
Catra exhaled shakily, leaning into Adora's touch. She caressed the back of the blonde's neck, pulling her closer.
Catra closed her eyes, her heart racing. There was something comforting about being held like this, something that made her feel safe for the first time in a long while. She could feel the steady beat of Adora's heart against her own, and for once, everything felt still.

Adora pulled back just enough to look at her, her blue eyes soft with understanding.
“You know, it's okay to let people in, Catra,” she said gently.
Catra shifted, unsure how to respond.
“Why are you saying this?” she asked.
Adora froze.
“Nothing,” she replied quickly.
Catra’s chest tightened. Damn it—Adora was getting into her head and under her skin. She felt a rush of rage go through her body, but she contained it. It wasn’t Adora’s fault that Catra was so messed up.
“We don’t need to talk about these things,” Adora continued. “I’m sorry I pushed.”
Catra looked away.
They remained in silence for a while, just breathing in together. Gradually, Catra felt herself going back to normal, where the anger couldn’t suffocate her. She looked at Adora.
“Can you kiss me again?” she asked.
Adora's eyes darkened in response, her lips curling into a small smile before she leaned in, pulling Catra into a kiss that was deep and slow. Soon, Catra was on top of Adora, grinding their bodies in despair. The sound of their wet pussies rubbing against each other was the best thing Catra had ever heard.
She collapsed onto Adora’s torso and put her lips to Adora’s ear.
“Just so you know, I like it very rough,” she whispered.
With a swift motion, Adora slammed Catra on the mattress and went in for another sloppy, sensual kiss. Then, she turned Catra around and made her lie on her stomach. Adora gathered Catra’s hair and pulled it, forcing her to be on all fours. Catra moaned loudly when Adora slapped her butt cheek.
Adora teased Catra’s entrance with a finger as Catra moved her hips, begging. Adora put it in gently. Catra’s insides started to melt like jelly—it had been a while since she had been fucked like that.
Adora thrusted inside her. Then, another finger went in. Catra arched her back like a cat and pressed her left cheek on the pillow.

“How much can you take?” Adora asked.
“Try me,” Catra replied.
Adora put one more finger in. She fucked Catra strong and fast while she still held her hair in one hand, pulling every time Catra started to slip away.
“Oh, my God!” Catra screamed. “Please, don’t stop.”
Adora fastened her pace. Catra could feel Adora starting to get tired, but she was relentless.
“I love seeing you like this,” Adora said with a short breath.
“You’re gonna make me cum,” Catra replied.
“I know,” Adora said smugly.
Catra could even imagine her idiotic expression. But it was too much for her—she reached down for her own pussy and started to rub her clit while Adora fucked her good.
“Don’t stop. Adora. Fuck!”
Catra whimpered and let out a whiny moan.
“Cum for me,” Adora demanded.
Catra pressed her thighs together, making it impossible for Adora to keep thrusting into her. She moaned loudly and fell onto the bed.
Adora rubbed herself on Catra’s ass, moaning too. A few seconds later, she collapsed on Catra’s back.
They both needed a moment to recompose. When Catra turned her head to look at Adora, they simply started laughing.
“Where the hell have you been all my life?” Catra asked, still giggling.
Adora kissed all the extension of Catra’s back.
“In a little town in the middle of nowhere,” she replied.
“You’re such a good fuck,” Catra continued.
Adora gently licked Catra’s shoulder.
“Well, you inspire me,” she said.

A loud thud came from the door—but wait. Catra turned her head. The memory slipped away as she focused on the locker room door. She checked the time—only two minutes until her yoga class started! And she had spent… what, half an hour just staring at the wall, thinking about Adora?! That was crazy!
The thud came again, and Catra stood up. She rushed to the door, but it opened just before she touched the handle. She bumped her head on something stiff.

“Shit!” Catra exclaimed, rubbing her forehead.
Then, she looked up.
Of course, it was Adora, staring back at her, completely terrified.

Kicking out

Adora stood there awkwardly.
Catra groaned.
“What the hell, Adora?”
“The door was stuck! I’m sorry, I didn’t know you were—” Adora gestured vaguely at the locker room.
Catra sighed, stepping back.
Adora frowned, clearly flustered.
“It’s fine,” Catra mumbled.
Before Adora could respond, Catra slipped past her, striding quickly down the hallway toward her yoga class.
Adora exhaled sharply, pressing her lips together as she turned—only to find Bow standing a few feet away, watching the whole thing unfold. He had his hands on his hips, eyebrows raised.
“What was that?” Bow asked.
Adora groaned.
“I have no idea.”
Bow tilted his head.
“But… I thought you two had a good date? You texted the group chat, and we were so excited for you.”
Adora threw her arms up.
“That girl…” She sighed. “Forget it.”
But Adora knew Bow wasn’t about to just forget it. He crossed his arms, giving Adora a knowing look.
“C’mon. Spill.”
She gestured for him to go inside the room, and she shut the door.
“I thought we had a good time,” she admitted. “But after—” She paused, glancing around like someone might overhear. “After everything, we were just lying there, talking, and she suddenly goes, ‘Wow, it’s late.’”
Bow blinked.
“...Okay?”
“It was weird! It wasn’t like, ‘Wow, it’s late, let’s sleep,’ it was like, ‘Wow, it’s late, why are you still here?’”
Bow’s eyebrows raised.

“Oof.”
“Right?! So I figured she wanted me to go, and I left, but…” Adora sighed, rubbing the back of her neck. “I don’t know. It just sucked. She didn’t say she wanted me to leave, but she implied it. And I didn’t wanna make it awkward by asking, so I just… left.”
Bow hummed in thought.
“You do remember she said she didn’t want anything serious, right?”
“Yes, Bow, I remember,” Adora grumbled. “But kicking me out in the middle of the night? That’s—” She huffed. “That’s not just casual. That’s cold.”
Bow winced.
“Yeah… That’s harsh.” He paused. “Did you, like… look upset when you left?”
Adora hesitated.
“I don’t think so?”
Bow gave her a look.
Adora groaned again.
“Okay, maybe I was a little weird. But I wasn’t gonna be all happy about being kicked out!”
“So now you’re both just being awkward with each other,” he said.
“Yeah…”
“Well,” Bow continued, clapping a hand on her shoulder. “You could simply talk to her.”
Adora scoffed.
“Oh, yeah, great idea. ‘Hey, Catra, remember when you subtly told me to get the hell out of your apartment? That hurt my feelings!’”
Bow shrugged.
Adora let her head fall back with a groan.
“This is the worst.”
He went up to his locker.
“She is a little cold, I guess. I’ve worked here for, what, four years now? And I don’t think I had ever exchanged more than a couple of words with her before you two got all over each other. But just to let you know…” He turned around and smiled awkwardly.
“Glimmer asked Catra to have lunch with us.”
Adora barely contained a high-pitched scream.

Bow laughed but seemed a little concerned.
"Hey, she's just excited, because she cares about you. And you're very sentimental besides your whole 'must be perfect' façade," he continued. "If she had known, I bet she wouldn't have asked Catra. But you didn't tell us this last PIVOTAL part."
Adora sat on the bench and put her head between her knees.
"I can't do this, Bow. I can't do casual. I like her. I like her a lot," she mumbled.
"Yeah, no kidding," he said.
Adora groaned into her hands.
"But she doesn't want anything serious."
"Do you even know if she meant that? Or was she just saying it because that's easier than admitting she likes you back?"
Adora lifted her head, staring at him.
"Why would she do that?"
Bow gave her a flat look.
"Adora. You silly little goose. Have you met her?"
Adora frowned.
"Yes, but she acts different with me."
"Listen," Bow said, sitting next to her. "She's weird about feelings. And you're… well, you. You wanna talk about everything, and she wants to avoid everything. That doesn't mean she doesn't care, though."
Adora sighed.
"Then why push me away?"
Bow shrugged.
"Because caring about people means they can hurt you. And I think she's been hurt a lot. I'm good at reading people, and Catra is that type of person who screams that she doesn't care about a single thing because, actually, she cares way too much about everything."
Adora swallowed hard, her chest tightening. That made sense.
Bow nudged her.
"You didn't do anything wrong. She can't treat you like that."
Adora nodded, looking away.
"I gotta go now, but text me if you need anything, okay? And Glimmer and I will be waiting for you at lunch," he said.
Adora smiled at him. Bow was a good friend, even though they'd met less than two months before.

She stared at the wall, confused. She remembered the smell from Catra's house. The smell from Catra's body. Everything was fresh in her mind, everything was raw.
They had fucked for hours, until the birds started chirping. She even had let Catra top her two more times. Adora knew Catra was closed off, but she kind of thought she could change that about her. But the thing she always forgot—and that's why she always got hurt—was that she wasn't all that special. People wouldn't change for her just because she wanted to save them or something alike. Catra wouldn't be different.
They had been cuddling when Catra murmured that it was late. Adora nodded and placed a delicate kiss on her forehead. Then, Catra stared blankly at Adora.
"Oh," Adora realized, embarrassed.
"I mean, I don't want you to get too tired to drive," Catra added.
Adora pulled away, sitting up as she reached for her clothes on the floor.
"Yeah, totally, I get it. I'm sorry I overstayed," she said, hurriedly searching for a missing sock.
She gave up and put on her shoes anyways.
Catra looked uncomfortable too, like she didn't know what to say.
Adora gave the black cat a quick scratch before stepping out of the room.
She came back a few seconds later.
"You have to unlock the door for me," she muttered.
Catra was still sitting on the bed.
"I'm sorry if I'm being rude, I just think that if you spend the night here, things may get a little confusing…"
Adora pressed her lips together and took one last look at Catra's boobs.
"You're right," she huffed. "But what about your car?"
"Double Trouble can pick me up and drive me to the gym tomorrow. I have two classes to teach in the afternoon."
Adora nodded.
"Fine, fine, cool, cool…"
They walked to the door in silence. Adora didn't even look at Catra when she left, only whispering a faint "bye". She couldn't believe that was happening. It was 5 a.m. for God's sake! She drove to her house listening to death metal.

After lunch with Glimmer and Bow— where Catra didn't show up, of course—Adora found herself scrolling back through their conversation from the weekend.
She had posted a story on Instagram—a picture of her breakfast. Catra had liked it and sent her a DM.

c4tra_: that looks yummy.

Adora didn't answer her until five hours later.

adora_fitness: It was.

Catra instantly replied.

c4tra_: maybe you should cook for me one day.

That made Adora's blood boil. What the fuck did she mean? She left Catra on read for the day. By Sunday morning, Catra had sent another DM.

c4tra_: are you mad at me?

Adora spent the entire day thinking about what she could say, or if she even should respond. She decided to send:

adora_fitness: No, why?
c4tra_: idk, you seem strange.

'Maybe because you kicked me out of your house in the early hours of the morning after we spent the whole night fucking like crazy? What am I, just a sex toy to you?'—Adora thought.

adora_fitness: I like to log off during the weekends.
c4tra_: but you posted a bunch of stories of your meals.
adora_fitness: What is this? Are you monitoring my online activity?
c4tra_: no, sorry. i don't mean it like that. it's just that you usually always reply.

adora_fitness: Today I'm busy.
c4tra_: okay.

Adora liked Catra's response and threw her phone into the bottom drawer of her wardrobe. She went for a quick run, and, when she came back, she had another message from Catra.

c4tra_: i shouldn't have told you to leave. i'm really sorry about that. i wanted you to stay.

Adora's heart clenched.

adora_fitness: I wanted to stay too, Catra. But idk, maybe the call is coming from inside the house.
c4tra_: what?
adora_fitness: You're so afraid that I'm such a stupid fuckboy, but maybe you're the heartbreaker here.

A pause. Then:

c4tra_: you're taking things out of context. i don't mind if you are talking to dozens of girls, i just want sex. but i also like talking to you.

Adora could feel her throat tightening. It took her hours to respond.

adora_fitness: I'm not like you. I don't know why you have this vision of me. I don't know what I did to give you this impression. But thanks for being honest with me. I needed that.
c4tra_: what do you mean?
adora_fitness: I can't do just sex. I feel like you used me. I don't think we should hang out anymore.
c4tra_: are you for real? we see each other every day.
adora_fitness: I know, and I'm never going to treat you badly. But it's gonna get messy. c4tra_: it doesn't have to, though.
adora_fitness: You want us to be fuck buddies. I wanted something else.

c4tra_: i was clear about my intentions.
adora_fitness: Yeah, you're right. You were. That's why I'm backing off.
c4tra_: wtf. but okay, if that's what you want.

Adora didn't reply.

Getting jealous

The rest of the week was awkward.
Normally, Catra would spend an hour or two working out between her classes, but now she was locking herself in the yoga room, barely leaving it. She was angry, angry at Adora, at how she hadn't tried harder to keep Catra's interest. People usually bent over backward for her! Not Adora. Why?!
Catra couldn't contain her frustration. Every time she accidentally caught sight of Adora coaching someone, she felt an insistent urge to just go up to her and say she was sorry—that she shouldn't have asked her to leave, that she desperately wanted Adora to stay. But she was scared, so scared, and Adora made her feel at ease—but she was still fucking petrified.
Then Friday came.
Catra was leaving for the day when she spotted Scorpia—big, strong, sweet Scorpia— who, on occasion, tried to flirt with her. It was always a bit much, but that day, Catra didn't mind. In fact, she saw an opportunity.

Catra didn't even think before walking up to Scorpia, swinging her hips. She tilted her head, smirking up at her.
"Hey," she said.
Scorpia's face lit up.
"Oh! Hey, Catra!" she said, a little too loudly, rubbing the back of her neck. "Uh, good class today?"
Catra hummed, stepping just a little closer.
"Yeah… You know, I always notice how strong you are," she said, letting her fingers ghost over Scorpia's bicep. "How much do you bench?"
Scorpia seemed to be panicking a little. She blinked, flustered.
"Oh! Uh—like, 250? Maybe 260 on a good day."
Catra smiled.
"Damn. No wonder you've got the best arms in the gym."
She didn't need to turn around to know Adora was watching. She could FEEL it. And when she finally did glance over, there Adora was, standing by the squat racks, a hand clenched around a water bottle, jaw tight, eyes dark.

Good. Let her stew in it.
Scorpia, oblivious, beamed.
"Aw, thanks, Catra! That's really nice of you to say."
Catra just smirked, trailing her fingers down Scorpia's forearm before giving it a squeeze.
"Well, I say what I mean," she murmured.
She heard Adora drop her water bottle.
Catra was so fucking proud of herself. She turned back to Scorpia.
"I gotta head out, but maybe you can show me some of your lifts sometime."
"Really? Oh, yeah! Totally!" Scorpia said, practically vibrating with excitement.
Catra winked, then spun on her heel and sauntered toward the exit, making sure to pass by Adora on the way.
Adora didn't say a word, but her glare could have set Catra on fire.

Adora wiped the sweat from her brow, trying to focus on her workout. She wasn't looking for Catra—at least, that's what she kept telling herself. But her eyes kept flicking in her direction anyway.
And that's when she saw it.
Catra, smirking up at Scorpia. Then, without breaking eye contact, she placed a hand on Scorpia's bicep and squeezed it. What the fuck?!
Adora felt something hot and ugly twist in her stomach. It was so obvious. Catra didn't even like flirting—she rolled her eyes whenever Scorpia tried to hit on her before. But there she was, practically draping herself over that woman. And Adora knew why.
Poor Scorpia. She'd had a crush on Catra for a while now, and Catra was going to play with her?
Adora gritted her teeth so hard her jaw ached. It was for her. Catra WANTED her to see.
Pathetically, Adora's grip fumbled, and her water bottle slipped from her sweaty palms, falling to the floor. She bent to grab it, cursing under her breath, before yanking her towel over her shoulder and storming off to the locker room before she did something stupid—like march over there and demand to know what the hell Catra was doing.

The door suddenly swung open.
Catra walked in.
Adora bit her lower lip, forcing herself to keep it together. Catra didn't acknowledge her. She just went straight to her locker and grabbed her stuff.
Adora stood up quickly and took Catra's wrist.
Catra froze. They both did. Catra's cheeks burned, like a little kid caught doing something naughty.
"You don't need to show off like that," Adora said, her voice low.
Catra yanked her arm back.
"What are you on about?" she asked, blinking her stupid, pretty eyes repeatedly.
Adora scoffed.
"Scorpia's a human being. Everyone here knows she likes you. Why would you use her like that?"
Catra frowned.
"I'm not using anyone. Didn't it cross your mind that I might find her interesting?"
Adora let out a bitter laugh.
"Please. After months of avoiding her at all costs, now you're interested?"
Catra swallowed hard. She looked away.
"You and I are not a thing, Adora." Her voice was sharp, cruel. "Are you my fucking mommy now? Gonna lecture me?"
Adora flinched. She felt the defeat settle deep in her chest.
"You're right," she said, exhaling loudly. "Do whatever you want."

Not even her cats could make Catra feel slightly okay about what she had just done. She scratched their backs and decided to take a long, scalding shower. Her muscles ached from the tension of simply being that close to Adora.
When she lay down and opened Instagram, she saw that Scorpia had messaged her.

scorpia19: Nice talking to you today!

Catra didn't reply. She groaned into a pillow. How the hell was she falling back into these patterns? The old, bitter, mean, manipulative Catra was clawing its way back up, screaming to be heard. She didn't want to be that person anymore, but it was so easy. It was easy to let herself be angry. Easy to poke at Adora's jealousy.
She knew that wasn't going to fix anything. In fact, she was sure it would just make things worse. Catra curled into herself, shutting her eyes, knowing damn well that she was a bad person.

Adora barely made it through the front door before collapsing onto her couch, head in her hands.
She was SEETHING.
Not just because of what Catra had done, but because she'd let it get to her.
She should be over this by now. She should be able to just shake it off, move on, forget about Catra and her stupid games. But the second she saw her cozying up to Scorpia, Adora had cracked.
With a frustrated sigh, she grabbed her phone and opened the group chat with Bow and Glimmer.

adora_fitness: Catra's being a fucking menace.
adora_fitness: Like, actually, the worst.
glim_glam: What did she do this time?
adora_fitness: Flirted with Scorpia. Right in front of me. Made sure I saw it.
glim_glam: Wow.
glim_glam: I mean… we knew she was a little emotionally stunted, but damn.
bowtie: You okay?
adora_fitness: Not really.

There was a pause. Then:

glim_glam: I say the hell with it. It’s Friday night!!!!!!
glim_glam: We’re going out!!!!!!
bowtie: There’s this new pub we’ve been waiting to go to for agesssssss, and today is the PERFECT day!
adora_fitness: You know what. Yeah. Let’s go.

She forced herself to get ready, pulling on her best outfit

The bar was packed, music thumping, neon lights casting everything in a hazy glow.
Adora was still sipping her first drink when Glimmer, with the world’s most suspicious grin, grabbed her by the shoulders.
“Adora, there’s someone I want you to meet,” she murmured into Adora’s ear.
Adora instantly narrowed her eyes.
“Glimmer…”
But she was already dragging her toward the bar, where a tall, graceful blonde was waiting with a gentle smile.
“This is Perfuma,” Glimmer announced, beaming. “Perfuma, this is Adora.”
Adora turned to her, forcing a polite smile.
“Hey, nice to meet you.”
“You too,” Perfuma said, tilting her head. “Glimmer’s told me a lot about you.”
Adora shot a glare at Glimmer, who was WAY too pleased with herself.
“So you planned this?”
Glimmer just shrugged, clearly unbothered.
“You’ll love each other! Perfuma’s my friend from school!”
She was elegant and soft, but she wasn’t much of Adora’s type. She’d have a serious conversation with Glimmer after that. They stared at each other with awkward smiles.
“I bet Glimmer bribed you to come here tonight,” she said.
Perfuma laughed, sitting down next to her. Glimmer and Bow has left swiftly.
“So, what do you do?” Adora asked, leaning in the table.
“I’m a florist,” Perfuma said. “Glimmer told me you’re a fitness instructor."

Adora nodded.
"That's nice." Perfuma tried to keep the conversation going. "I don't really go to the gym. It kinda scares me."
Adora tilted her head.
"Why?"
"It's always packed with people…" Perfuma hesistated, then shrugged. "…well, with people like you. It's intimidating!"
Adora laughed.
"No one's paying attention to you. Also, I'm paid to look this way," she said with a smug smile.
They spoke for a long time. Perfuma was nice—really nice. She was passionate about her work, had a calming presence, and seemed genuinely interested in what Adora had to say. But still, something felt… off.
It wasn't like they weren't clicking at all, but Adora didn't feel that pull, that electricity. Not like she felt with Catra.
She shook her head to get rid of that thought.
Drink after drink, they got looser, their laughter easier. And soon enough, there was a shift—Perfuma leaned in closer, her touches lingered just a little longer.
Adora let herself fall into it. She was feeling hazy, and when she got drunk, she also got very, very horny. Perfuma was pretty, charming, and seemed interested enough. That was good for Adora.
She could spot Glimmer and Bow on the other side of the bar, tangled up in each other, completely lost in their own little world. Disgusting.
And then, Perfuma tilted her head at Adora, a teasing glint in her eyes.
"They are reeeeeeeeeally into each other, huh?" she said.
Adora scoffed.
"They're unbearable! That's what they are," she said back. "They don't even remember we exist!"
Perfuma, with lazy blinking and getting very close to Adora, murmured:
"So… wanna get out of here?"
Adora hesitated for only a second before nodding.

“Yeah,” she said. “Yeah, let’s go.”
Perfuma grinned and took her hand, leading her toward the exit.
And that’s when Adora’s phone buzzed.
She glanced down.

c4tra_: come over.

Adora froze.
Her breath caught, her stomach twisted, and her brain screamed at her to not do this.
But her thumb hovered over the screen anyway.
She looked at Perfuma, calmly waiting for her outside the bar.
“Fuck,” Adora murmured under her breath.
She looked around.
“Are you too drunk?” she asked Perfuma, who shook her head.
“Why? Are you?” the blonde asked back.
Adora swallowed, forcing a smile.
“Yeah, I think I might be,” she said, running a hand through her hair. “I don’t—I don’t think it’d be a good idea for me to go home with you like this.”
Perfuma frowned.
“Oh.”
Adora could see the flicker of disappointment in her eyes, and guilt immediately settled in her stomach.
“I just—I think I drank more than I realized,” she added quickly. “And, um, I’d rather actually remember our first time hanging out, you know? I’m very sleepy.”
Perfuma studied her for a second, then smiled.
“That’s really sweet, actually.” She reached out, gently squeezing Adora’s arm. “No pressure, okay? We can just talk another time.”
Adora exhaled in relief.
“Yeah. I’d like that.”
“I should find Glimmer, then. Are you heading out?”
“Yeah, I am…”
Perfuma nodded, giving her one last lingering look before turning back toward the bar.
Adora didn’t let herself watch her leave.
Instead, she took a deep breath, glanced down at her phone again, and typed out a reply.

adora_fitness: On my way.

Then, before she could talk herself out of it, she called an Uber, and headed to Catra’s.

Tucking in

Chapter Summary

smut in the next chapter

Catra didn't think Adora would reply. It was a shot in the dark. Then, she did. And she was coming over.
Catra panicked. She put a little makeup on, styled her hair, and got dressed in black lingerie. Was that too much? Yeah, maybe. She brushed out her curls and changed into a less 'Please fuck me' underwear. She needed to seem casual, cool.
Catra paced around her apartment, heart pounding.
She yanked open her closet, throwing on an oversized T-shirt and a pair of shorts, then immediately regretted it. Too casual. Too indifferent. She didn't want to look like she cared too much, but she also didn't want to look like she didn't care at all.
She groaned, ruffling her hair. This was stupid.
A knock at the door.
Catra froze.
She took a deep breath, straightened her shirt, and swung the door open.
There she was.
Adora stood in the dim hallway, hands shoved into her pockets. Her cheeks were flushed from the cold, and her eyes flicked over Catra.
Catra opened her mouth to invite Adora in, but Adora interrupted her with a ruffled kiss, pushing Catra inside and kicking the door shut—then reaching for the back of her neck and kissing her again. Catra barely had time to exhale before Adora was tugging at her T-shirt, hands gripping her waist.
Catra stopped her, breathing hard.
"Hi to you too," she muttered.
Catra looked at Adora and felt her stomach twist—the blonde was wearing a fitted black shirt that perfectly clung to her arms and chest. Her hair was down, and she had some mascara on, that now had smudged from their kiss.
Adora looked back at her, head to toe.

“Hi,” she said.
Catra tucked a strand of Adora’s hair behind her ear.
“You actually came,” she murmured. “Why?”
Adora’s eyes pierced through Catra’s clothes, like she was undressing her with her gaze, trying to remember how she looked underneath the fabric.
“Because you told me so.”
Catra didn’t need another word—she pushed Adora to the couch and climbed onto her, rubbing their bodies together. That’s when she felt a tangly funny taste. Adora’s kiss tasted like cheap alcohol. She jerked up and looked at Adora. The blonde pulled Catra back by her waist, but Catra pressed her palms against her stomach, stopping her.
“Are you drunk?”, Catra asked.
Adora’s eyes were hazy, her cheeks were red, she was acting erratic—yup, she most definitely had been drinking. Catra moved off her, settling onto the empty space beside her. Adora sat up and grabbed Catra’s hand.
“A little,” she admitted with a smug grin.
“That’s why you came,” Catra accused, feeling irritation crawling up her skin.
Adora looked away for a second.
“I don’t know, I wanted to come. I’m not blackout drunk, I’m just…” She didn’t finish.
Catra huffed. She stood up and headed to the kitchen, leaving a confused Adora on the couch. She came back with a glass of water.
“Drink it,” Catra demanded.
Adora raised an eyebrow.
“You taste horrible, I’m not gonna kiss you again,” Catra continued.
Adora accepted the water and drank it all in just a few gulps.
“Alright,” Adora murmured, trying to pull Catra in again.
But the brunette didn’t budge.
“What?” Adora asked.
Catra rolled her eyes.
“I’m sober. We’re not having sex like this,” she said.
Adora groaned, tilting her head back against the couch.

“Come on, I’m fine.”
Catra crossed her arms, unmoved.
“I don’t want to be a fucking drunk decision.”
Adora sat up, setting the empty glass on the coffee table.
“It wasn’t a drunk decision. I…” she trailed off again.
Catra reached for Adora’s hand. She knew what to do.
She led Adora to her bedroom. She could even feel Adora’s anticipation through the way she was squeezing her hand. Catra turned on the dim bedside lamp before opening her wardrobe.
Adora blinked, confusion flashing across her face as she watched Catra rummage through old clothes instead of reaching for her.
“What are you doing?” she asked, her voice low, almost impatient.
Catra tossed aside old band tees and mismatched pajama sets, searching for something soft and loose enough to fit Adora.
Finally, she pulled out a ridiculously oversized hoodie and a pair of sweatpants that had definitely seen better days.
“Here, put these on,” she said, turning around.
Adora frowned.
“Seriously?” She took a step forward. “Getting dressed is the last thing I want right now.”
She grabbed Catra’s wrist and pulled her in again, her grip tight, her breath hot and uneven. Adora kissed her again, letting out a quiet, throaty sound, fingers digging into Catra’s waist. Her kiss was unrestrained—needy, reckless, a mix of longing and frustration. Her teeth grazed Catra’s bottom lip before she deepened it, tilting her head to taste more.
For a moment, Catra gave in, her own breath catching, fingers twitching where they gripped Adora’s arms. She exhaled sharply and pulled back, pressing her forehead to Adora’s, their noses brushing.
“Stop it,” she murmured against Adora’s lips.
Adora let out a slow, shaky breath, eyes flicking between Catra’s, searching, pleading. Her jaw tensed, frustration rolling off her in waves, but beneath it, exhaustion lurked. The alcohol, the adrenaline—it was all catching up to her.
Catra sighed, softer this time, and pushed the hoodie into Adora’s hands.
“Come on, you idiot,” she murmured, guiding Adora to sit down.

Adora huffed but didn't fight as Catra tugged off her fitted shirt and helped her into the oversized hoodie. Her limbs were sluggish now, the fire in her eyes dimming as sleep pulled at her. Catra tried to ignore the fact that Adora's amazing boobs were right THERE.
Then, she pulled the duvet over Adora and lay next to her, being too aware of the fact they couldn't touch. Not like this.
Then, a warm hand slid clumsily over Catra's stomach.
Catra tensed. Oh, for fuck's sake.
Adora nuzzled closer, her breath warm and slow against Catra's neck.
"C'mon," she mumbled. She pressed a lazy kiss to Catra's shoulder, her fingers ghosting under the hem of Catra's shirt.
"You're making this... so difficult."
Catra sighed, prying Adora's hand away.
"You're the one who's drunk."
Adora hummed, pouting. Her half-lidded eyes flickered open, hazy and unfocused.
"You got alcohol here?"
"What?"
"If you drink a little," Adora continued, voice slurring slightly, "then it's fair."
Catra rolled her eyes.
"That's dumb."
Adora huffed, shifting again, her arm draping lazily over Catra's waist.
"Think about it…" She exhaled heavily, like she had a brilliant argument coming. "You're hot as fuck… and you've said yourself you think I'm hot… and we're both hot… so we should just… be hot together or whatever… like, I'm REALLY horny right now… And you're so… you're… I mean…" And no words followed.
Adora just lay there, her breath slowing, her body going still.
Catra glanced over and found her already half-asleep, mouth slightly open, brow furrowed like she was still trying to win the debate in her dreams.
Adora looked surprisingly peaceful. Relaxed. She even looked younger, softer. Her face was delicate and unbelievably beautiful—Catra realized she had never seen Adora out of her smug little attitude, her tough persona. Even when they had sex, it seemed like Adora had something to prove. Now, there was none of that. Catra started to feel a bit desperate. She was being so inconsistent. One moment, she didn't want Adora to stay. The next, she was practically tucking her in. Catra rubbed her temple. She could hear the cats playing in the living room.

Should she sleep on the couch? Was that appropriate? They had been intimate before, but in such a different way. Sleeping next to someone was so… vulnerable.

As she started to spiral, her own tiredness started to creep in. Before Catra could make a decision, she fell asleep right there.

Sleeping over

Adora had some weird dreams. She couldn't recall all of them, but she knew they had been intense. She yawned, eyes opening slowly, expecting to see the ceiling of her own bedroom. Instead, she found herself staring at the dusky walls of Catra's room. She gasped in confusion and blinked repeatedly as the realization settled in.

Turning her head, she saw Catra beside her—fast asleep, lips slightly parted, hair a mess. She started to remember the bar, Perfuma, and… oh, that's right. Catra's text.

She looked around, trying to find her phone, but it was nowhere to be seen. Then she noticed she was wearing funny clothes—mismatched pajamas that must've been Catra's.

Slowly but surely, the memories from the previous night came back to Adora: she had left Perfuma to pursue Catra and tried—unsuccessfully—to sleep with her. But instead, Catra had tucked her into bed?

Shit. What was she supposed to do? Sneak out? Act casual? She wasn't even wearing her own clothes. She shifted, trying to sit up, but the movement made Catra stir. Her eyes blinked open, hazy with sleep. Their gazes met. For a second, neither of them spoke. Then, Catra grumbled, voice still thick with drowsiness.

"What're you doing?"

Adora hesitated.

"Uh… do you have a spare toothbrush?"

Catra blinked at her, then jerked her thumb toward the bathroom.

"Lower cabinet."

Adora muttered a thanks and fled.

Once inside, she leaned against the sink and exhaled sharply. Her heart was hammering. The mirror showed a mess—her hair sticking out in every direction, her mascara smudged faintly under her eyes. She grabbed a spare toothbrush from the cabinet and brushed her teeth with too much force. Her mind spiraled.

Adora stepped out of the bathroom and into Catra's room. Catra was already up, picking the scattered clothes from the floor. She glanced at Adora with one eye half-open.

“Morning,” she mumbled.
Adora opened the strangest smile to ever exist.
“Hey! Good morning! Oh, God, I’m so sorry about yesterday. I… um… where are my clothes? I’m gonna leave, I’m so, so, so sorry…”
“Shut up,” Catra cut in.
Adora gaped at her. Catra looked impatient.
“Adora, just… shhhhhhhh! Help me make breakfast, okay?”
Adora reached for her shirt, but Catra made a sudden movement and yanked it away before she could grab it.
“DO NOT put that shirt on!” Catra practically yelled. Then, she bit her lower lip. “Just… stay as you are.”
Adora had no idea what to do. She followed Catra into the kitchen and watched as she rummaged around, trying to find a clean bowl.
“Pancakes?” Catra asked. “Or do you just eat eggs with more eggs topped with egg sauce?”
There was a snarkiness in her tone that Adora couldn’t quite interpret.
“Pancakes are fine,” Adora said.
Catra glanced back over her shoulder. She looked beautiful that way—no makeup, hair poking out, eyes still droopy from sleep. That was the sexiest she had ever been.
“What can I do?” Adora asked.
Catra pointed to the fridge.
“There’s some syrup in there. Can you also grab a couple plates? And set the table for us?”
Adora frowned. Catra didn’t want anything serious with her, but then she was asking Adora to set the table? Catra seemed to notice Adora’s hesitation, so she got ahead and grabbed two plates from the cabinet above the sink. She handed them to Adora.
“Here. I got it. They’ll be ready in a few minutes. Go sit down and, I don’t know, play with the cats,” Catra said, a little bossy and grumpy.
Adora kind of liked it.
She exited the kitchen, set the plates down on the table, and began searching for her phone. She checked the couch, under it, around the dinner table—she even went back to the bedroom and desperately looked for it, but no luck. It wasn't in the bathroom either.

Glimmer was probably freaking the fuck out by that point. How was Adora supposed to face her best friend and tell her the truth? She would freak out even more. God!
Adora went back to the living room and sat on the couch. The black cat wandered over and rubbed herself against Adora's legs. Adora scratched her back, trying to focus on something other than the fact that she was in Catra's house, wearing her pajamas, after they had—literally—slept together.
The smell of pancakes drifted into the living room, and Adora's stomach growled. A moment later, Catra stepped out of the kitchen with a tower of pancakes on a serving plate. She placed the plate on the table: six pancakes in total, with a neat little pile of strawberries and grapes on the side.
"Come eat," she said, nodding to the seat across from her.
Adora got up and walked over, murmuring a quiet "thanks" as she sat down. The first few bites were shared in silence, not uncomfortable exactly, just unsure. The kind of quiet that follows something neither of them really knew how to label. Adora caught Catra glancing at her once, then quickly focusing back on her food. The pancakes were good—like, actually good—and that somehow made everything feel even stranger.
"Shit, I forgot the syrup," Catra muttered, pushing back her chair. She was halfway back from the kitchen when a faint buzzing came from the couch.
Adora perked up.
"I think that's my phone," she said. "Maybe it slipped between the cushions."
Catra set the syrup down and walked over to the couch, shoving her hand between the cushions. She found it.
Catra took a quick look at the screen…
And she froze.

Adora's phone started buzzing again. Catra was still holding it, staring at the screen like someone would stare at a car crash.

After a second, she shook her head and handed it over without meeting Adora's eyes.
"It's Glimmer," she said quietly.
Adora hesitated. She didn't want to straight-up lie to her best friend, so she decided not to answer at that moment.
Catra was acting very weird, and Adora understood why as soon as she declined the call. There were multiple notifications on her lock screen, most of them coming from the group chat she had with Glimmer and Bow. The last one read: "Where the fuck are you?! I thought you were leaving with Perfuma!"
Right below it, there was a message from an unknown number: "Hey, Glimmer gave me your number. I loved meeting you last night."
Adora's stomach dropped, and she blankly stared at the screen before swallowing slowly and grouping up the courage to look back at Catra.
The brunette seemed PISSED. Her eyebrows were furrowed, her eyes were sharp, and her lips were smashed together in a thin, harsh line. Adora smiled awkwardly.
"Sorry," she finally said. "This is—"
"Who is Perfuma?" Catra asked, voice low and brutal.
Adora could feel her left eye starting to twitch.
"A girl Glimmer introduced to me last night," she admitted. "I had no idea she had planned this."
Catra crossed her arms.
"You were leaving with her?"
Adora offered her another weak smile.
"Well… I came here, didn't I?"
Catra rolled her eyes. Adora didn't know what to say next, so she looked away.
"Whatever," Catra shrugged and started clearing the table—grabbing Adora's plate even though she clearly hadn't finished eating. "I don't care who you talk to."
Adora raised an eyebrow.
"Really? 'Cause it kinda seems like you do."
This definitely triggered something in Catra, because she stiffened, then started pacing between the table and the kitchen, her footsteps hard against the floor, huffing like a little spoiled kid.

“You showed up here drunk, tried to sleep with me, and now your phone’s blowing up with messages from some girl who ‘loved meeting you last night.’ Forgive me if I’m a little thrown off.”
Adora stood up, heart thudding in her chest.
“What? You texted me to come!” she exclaimed.
Catra stopped at the kitchen’s doorway, wild-eyed.
“Who said I wanted to fuck you, huh? Maybe I just wanted to talk!”
Adora couldn’t believe what she was hearing. She stood by the table, completely stunned, arms crossed now too, mirroring Catra’s stance. Was Catra losing her goddamn mind?
“Right… yeah, totally! You text someone you barely know after midnight just to talk—that’s fucking normal!” she snapped. “You said it yourself, we aren’t a thing. I made the stupid decision to come over like a little puppy starved for scraps of affection. You can’t expect me to be forever waiting for your weird little signals.”
Catra didn’t move, but her expression had softened, as if Adora’s words had actually gotten to her. She turned away, lips parting like she had something to say, but nothing came out. Just a heavy silence between them.
She turned back toward the sink, fiddling with a fork. Her shoulders were tense, and she still wasn’t saying anything. Just letting the silence spool out, her back to Adora.
Adora rubbed her forehead. Her anger had already started to cool into something else—frustration, maybe. Or disappointment. She took a slow breath.
“Say something.”
Catra didn’t look at her.
“You didn’t do anything wrong,” she said. “You can talk to whoever you want. You’re not mine.”
That last part hung there—more honest than Catra probably meant it to be.
Adora stepped forward but stopped herself, keeping a small distance.
“Okay… then why are you mad?”
Catra let out a tight breath, almost a laugh, but there was no humor in it. She finally looked over her shoulder, eyes guarded.
“We’re not something,” she said. “We’re not anything.”

It wasn’t an answer. That wasn’t enough. But Adora nodded slowly, understanding what it meant: not now, not yet, maybe not ever.
“Okay,” she said again, quieter now. “Thanks for the pancakes. And for taking care of me. I’m gonna go…”
Catra spun around quickly and grabbed Adora’s arm.
“Don’t,” she said. “Stay longer.”
Adora blinked, caught off guard—not just by the words, but by the way Catra said them. Like she wasn’t used to asking for things she actually wanted.
“I thought…” Adora started, but then she trailed off. Because she really didn’t know what she’d thought.
Catra let go of her arm.
“We can watch a movie,” she continued.
Adora stayed still, her heart beating hard in her chest.
“No, Catra, I don’t think so.”
The brunette’s brows furrowed.
“Why not?”
Adora stepped back just slightly, enough to put a breath of space between them.
“Because you’re weird! You say things and then act the opposite way. You say you don’t do relationships, but you were losing your mind over a girl I didn’t even kiss.”
Catra’s jaw clenched.
“I didn’t lose my mind.”
“It definitely got to you, at least.”
Catra gave a dry laugh, shaking her head.
“I got a little jealous, okay?” Her voice cracked a little, like she hadn’t meant to let it out quite like that. “I just have to face that I like you more than I thought I would.”
Adora stared at her, stunned. Her breath stalled, her fingers curling.
“So… what?” Adora snapped, her voice louder than she meant. “You get to act like you don’t care, except when you suddenly do?!”
Catra’s eyes widened.
“Yeah? Well, I DO care, and I care ALL THE TIME!”
Their voices had risen, but neither stepped away. They were standing too close now, faces flushed, breaths shallow. Adora could feel the hum under her skin, the ache in her chest, her pulse thudding in her ears.

Adora opened her mouth to respond, but she couldn't find the words. Catra's expression was stormy, lips parted like she was trying not to scream.
"And don't ever call me weird again," Catra added, breathing heavily.
Adora couldn't stand that madness anymore. What was she even getting herself into? She felt a deep pull towards Catra, something physical, something emotional—but this wasn't fair to either of them. This situation was already a mess, and it could get even messier if Adora decided to stay—if she decided to play Catra's game.
There was something erotic about that, she wasn't going to lie. The cat-and-mouse thing, the angst, the heated arguments. But she couldn't self-harm like that. Catra had to figure herself out first—she was too fucked up.
"I'm calling an Uber," Adora announced, voice shaky but resolute. She turned and stormed into the bedroom.
Her hands tugged off the ridiculous pajamas, fingers moving fast like she could outrun the whole damn situation. Her heart was hammering. She felt exposed and stupid and furious.
Behind her, Catra barged in with heavy steps.
"I just told you I like you, and you're seriously walking out?" she barked.
Adora spun to face her, half-dressed, her skin hot and flushed. Catra didn't back off. She stood between Adora and the door, arms tense at her sides, looking like she was ready to keep arguing or block the exit if she had to.
Adora's chest heaved. She was close to the bed now, one foot half on the rumpled blanket, her pants only halfway zippered. She just wanted space, a second to breathe, to stop feeling like her entire nervous system was short-circuiting in Catra's presence.
But at that exact moment, the black cat darted into the room, meowing sharply and weaving through Catra's feet.
"Shit," Catra muttered, stepping back without looking——right into Adora.

It happened fast. A twist of limbs, the edge of the bed catching Catra behind the knees, and gravity doing the rest. Catra fell onto Adora, and they both hit the mattress with a thud. It knocked the wind out of them. For a second, neither moved.

Adora's hands had landed on Catra's waist. Catra was practically straddling her, eyes wide, hair falling forward. Her thigh pressed between Adora's legs, and their breaths tangled in the space between their faces.

Neither said anything.

They just pulled each other into a messy kiss.

Not gentle. Not sweet. It was clumsy and too hard, like they were both still furious but had nowhere else to put it. Hands grabbed blindly—at fabric, at skin, at the tension between them that had nowhere else to go. It wasn't romantic. It was painful, unspoken, aching.

Their mouths moved with frustration as much as longing—teeth clashed, breath hitched, fingers dug in. Adora's hand slipped beneath the hem of Catra's shirt, her palm pressed against bare skin, warm and tense. Catra responded like a live wire, arching slightly, her fingers threading into Adora's hair to pull her closer.

Everything felt sharp and blurred at the same time. Their anger hadn't vanished—it just twisted into something else, something darker and more desperate. Like they needed to prove something with every movement: that they could still get to each other, hurt and heal in the same breath.

Catra pulled back just enough to look at Adora, their faces inches apart, her lips red and kiss-swollen. Her chest was rising and falling fast.

"Stay," she whispered, and there was no bite to it. It came out soft, almost breathless. Her eyes were glassy, a little unfocused.

Adora blinked at her, lips parted, heart punching at her ribs.

"Just for today," she murmured back.

Her thumb was brushing softly at Catra's side, her body still arching into the space between them.

Adora's hands slid up Catra's back, finding the edges of her shoulder blades beneath the soft fabric of her T-shirt. She couldn't think clearly—everything felt like heat and motion and the unbearable closeness of Catra's body pressed to hers.

The fight was a distant hum now, replaced by the pounding of her heart and the feeling of Catra's breath ghosting over her lips. Catra tugged Adora forward by the waist, and they stumbled together until the backs of Adora's knees hit the bed. She sat without meaning to, bringing Catra with her. Their mouths never really parted—only shifted, slower now, exploratory. Less heat, more ache.

Catra straddled her, knees on either side of Adora's thighs, her fingers curled around the nape of Adora's neck. Her forehead rested lightly against Adora's; eyes closed like she needed a second to breathe. Adora's hands gripped her hips instinctively, grounding herself.

Catra leaned back just enough to tug her own shirt over her head. Adora's breath caught. Her eyes traveled—slowly, reverently—and her hands followed, brushing up Catra's sides with the kind of softness that made Catra shiver.

Adora kissed her again, gentler now, lips moving like she wanted to memorize the shape of her. Catra pushed her back into the mattress, her body fitting perfectly over Adora's.

The sheets were still messy, tangled from sleep. Catra started moving her hips in slow circles around Adora's pelvis. The roughness of Adora's pants was pleasurable on Catra's pussy. She arched her back and moaned in a low voice.

Adora groaned. She grabbed Catra by the hair with one hand and squeezed her left buttcheek with the other, helping her move it. Sweat started dripping down Catra's back—she was still fucking pissed, and that's why she'd make Adora feel her despair. If she really drove her insane, then now it wouldn't be different. She wanted to hear Adora beg.

Cafuné

smutttttttttt

The morning light spilled in through half-drawn curtains, painting gentle stripes across the hardwood floor of Catra's bedroom. The bed was a mess—sheets tangled, pillows askew, and one blanket half-draped over the edge.
A chorus of impatient meows served as the soundtrack. Catra's cats had taken up strategic positions around the bed. The shy one was trying to bite Adora's heels, making Catra groan and herd them out, locking them out of the bedroom.
When she climbed back into bed, they were quick to be skin to skin, now with Adora on top, kissing down Catra's neck, hands squeezing her hips mercilessly. Catra moaned, grabbing Adora's butt and pulling her in so they could be even closer. Their breasts were smashed together almost painfully, but they didn't stop.
Catra reached for Adora's pussy with one hand and started caressing her soft bush, making the blonde bite her shoulder. Catra flinched, but she liked it. And Adora knew it. Adora's breath hitched when Catra's fingers brushed lower, dipping between her thighs with slow, deliberate strokes. Her hips jerked forward, instinct chasing the heat of Catra's touch.
"You're so wet," Catra said, voice low and smug.
Adora bit her lip, grinding down with an intense whimper.
Catra flipped them over, straddling Adora with her knees pressed into the mattress on either side. Her hair was wild, falling over her face as she leaned down, tongue tracing the shape of Adora's collarbone before she sank her teeth into the spot just below it.
Adora cried out, arching beneath her.
"Fuck... Catra..."
"Say my name again," Catra demanded, grinding her hips down, letting Adora feel the slick heat between her legs.
Adora reached up, cupping Catra's breasts, thumbing her nipples until she gasped and sank lower, their bodies sliding together in a wet, aching rhythm.

“Catra,” she whispered.
The brunette positioned herself, lifting Adora’s left leg and hooking her hand beneath the knee. She made their pussies kiss slowly, intensely. Adora propped herself up on her elbows, chest rising and falling in quick breaths.
Catra moved faster now, making circles with her hips, lubing them up completely. The waves of pleasure made her head fall back, and she closed her eyes—in that position, she could feel her clit rubbing against Adora’s pelvic bone, and the pressure was amazing.
Adora moaned as she started matching Catra’s movements, jerking her hips upward, increasing the pressure. They became frantic. Catra understood that Adora was about to lose her mind.
Adora groaned and wrapped her arms around Catra’s torso, pulling her down. They fell onto the bed, legs tangled, now tribbing in the same rhythm and breathing heavily on each other’s necks.
Adora’s thigh flexed beneath Catra, adding just the right amount of pressure. Every grind sent a pulse of heat through her core, and her nails dug into Adora’s shoulders.
Their rhythm grew desperate, hips moving with purpose, sweat slicking their bodies. Adora tilted her head, lips brushing the shell of Catra’s ear.
“You feel so good,” she murmured, voice broken with pleasure. “Don’t stop…”
“Not planning to,” Catra panted.
She shifted again, angling her hips until their clits aligned perfectly. Adora cried out, arching again as her back lifted from the sheets, pressing harder into Catra.
Catra’s hair stuck to her cheeks as she rocked faster, chasing the crest. The tension coiled tight in her belly, each thrust sending her closer. Their skin slapped softly, wet and hot, and every breath between them was a gasp, a moan, a whimper.
“I’m gonna—” Adora started, but Catra stopped moving. Adora stared at her in disbelief. “You liar.”
Catra smirked.
“Beg.”
Adora lifted an eyebrow.

“What?”
“You heard me,” Catra said. “Beg.”
Adora couldn’t contain a giggle.
“You know I’m stronger than you, right?” she teased. “I think YOU’RE the one who’s gonna do the begging.”
Her raspy voice made Catra shiver noticeably. But she didn’t budge.
“Okay, then. I’m just gonna stay here… like this…” she responded and started moving her hips again. This time, very, very slow.
Adora’s expression showed her despair. Catra was desperate too, but she was committed to making Adora ache for her.
“C’mon,” the blonde mumbled. “Catra…”
“Beg.”
Adora bit her lower lip and shook her head.
Catra gasped.
“Oh, really?”
She stopped again, now just making pressure on Adora’s clit with her own. She could feel Adora pulsating below her.
“Shit,” Adora said. “Fine. Please.”
They stared in each other’s eyes for a long second.
“More,” Catra ordered.
Adora’s grip on Catra’s hips tightened.
“Please, Catra.”
“More.”
“Please!” Adora pleaded, making Catra smile.
“Please, what?”
Adora’s brows were sweating, and her legs were restless.
“Fuck me.”
Catra smiled again, wider this time. She went back to circling her hips slowly. Adora moved with her, cursing in a low voice.
“Faster?” Catra asked.
Adora nodded, breathing hard.
“Then beg.”
Adora closed her eyes and slapped Catra’s buttcheek.
“Faster, please. I’m begging you.”
Catra obliged.
“What do you want, Adora?”
“I want you to… oh, God.”

“Continue!”
“I want you to make me…” Adora held back for a second. The way they were grinding was unbelievably hot. “Geez, Catra, I NEED you to make me cum.”
Catra steadied herself, putting her palms on each side of Adora’s head, lowering her face so they could share a shaky kiss, with sloppy tongues trying to find each other.
“Cum for me, Adora,” she directed.
Adora parted her lips, closed her eyes, jerked her hips up, arched her back, grabbed the sheets with both hands, and dissolved into a sob of toe-curling pleasure. Catra clutched her tighter, grinding through the rush as Adora trembled beneath her, thighs quaking.
Silence settled in, save for their breaths. Catra nuzzled into Adora’s neck, her voice a whisper against her skin.
“I love when you beg.”

Adora couldn’t speak. That must’ve been her strongest orgasm ever. The only thing grounding her was Catra’s weight pushing her into the mattress. She opened her eyes, trying to grasp what had just happened. They were fighting and, seconds later, Adora was cumming hard and thinking about making Catra cum hard.
If she had an ounce more of self-control, she’d leave. God, she’d even move cities to be away from Catra—because she realized, right at that moment, when they were breathing together and the smell of sex filled the air, that she was screwed. As long as she could see Catra, she’d want to be with her. To kiss her, to fuck her, to love her—to have her. Those feelings weren’t going away anytime soon.
Adora's hand trailed down Catra’s back, slow and deliberate, tracing the curve of her spine.
“You’re good,” she whispered.
Catra let out a breathless laugh.
Adora rolled them gently, easing Catra onto her back and settling between her thighs.
“Can I play the same game with you?” she asked.
Catra lay sprawled on her back, her wild hair fanned out against the pillow, damp with sweat and clinging to her flushed cheeks.

Catra's eyes were half-lidded, glazed with need, pupils blown wide. Still, she had a smug smirk on her face. A smirk that turned into a gasp as Adora dipped her head, kissing down her stomach, teasing her skin with kisses.
She didn't rush—she wanted Catra to squirm.
"Adora—"
"Hm?" Adora murmured, lips brushing the inside of her thigh.
Catra's hips lifted in anticipation, her hands fisting the sheets.
"Please."
Adora smiled against her skin.
"There it is."
She dragged her tongue slowly through Catra's pussy, savoring her taste and the way Catra moaned and writhed at just the first touch. She focused on her clit with unrelenting precision—sucking softly, then flicking her tongue in quick, teasing motions that made Catra whimper.
Catra's hand flew to Adora's hair, holding on.
"Fuck… right there…"
Adora didn't let up. One hand gripped Catra's thigh, holding her open; the other sliding up to press flat against her stomach, grounding her as her hips bucked.
"God, Adora…shit…don't stop…"
She felt it building in. Adora's tongue moved faster, swirling in rhythm with the tight, desperate roll of Catra's hips. And when she slipped two fingers inside—slow, deep, curling perfectly—Catra yelled.
Her whole body arched off the bed, a strangled cry ripping from her throat. Her thighs trembled around Adora's head as the orgasm crashed over her, wave after wave, relentless and blinding.
Adora stayed there, holding her through it, slowing only when Catra sagged onto the mattress.
After a moment, Adora crawled back up and kissed her. Catra tasted herself on her tongue, and it only made her groan softly, tugging Adora close. But the blonde didn't let her rest. She slid a hand down Catra's stomach and found her pussy again. Catra tried to protest, but she was soaking wet, and Adora's two fingers went inside with no trouble.

She moaned loudly, moving her hips. Adora sucked on her left nipple with care, nothing like the way she was fucking Catra's pussy with her fingers.
"I can't take it," the brunette said.
"Yes, you can," Adora murmured against Catra's breast.
It was too much—seeing Catra trying to ride the overstimulation was so damn hot. Adora kept her pace steady, curling her fingers, making soft wave movements inside of Catra. She could feel her walls tightening, and Catra's face told Adora that she was going to orgasm again.
"Adora, please…" she mumbled. "Fuck. Fuck, fuck. Oh, my God. Don't stop. Fuck, Adora. Oh… Oh… Oh…"
Catra's hips jerked up high—her thighs trembling, her pussy so tight that Adora barely could thrust into her.
As she watched Catra finish, Adora thought that she could do this all day, every day. If she could survive just by fucking Catra, she would. The moans, the cursing, the expression, the wetness. She wanted to taste Catra again, wanted to fuck her until they evaporated.
That's when Catra let out a loud moan, and she fell back onto the mattress, shaking, legs spasming while she still moaned from the pleasure. Adora tried to continue, but Catra pushed her hand away.
Catra didn't open her eyes for a long time. For about a minute, she spasmed and rubbed her legs against each other. Adora licked her fingers, eager to feel Catra's cum. The bed was totally wet now.
They lay on their backs, side by side, still catching their breath. After a few moments, they intertwined their legs again, this time with a different kind of intimacy.
They just kissed for minutes—lazily, over and over. Slow, gentle, and sweet kisses among smiles and nose bumps.
Adora caressed Catra's hair, running her fingers in between the greyish waves.
"There's a word for this in Portuguese," she murmured.
Catra, who hadn't taken her eyes off Adora's, tilted her head. "For what?"
"This," Adora said. "Stroking someone's hair. Usually someone you care about.”

“What’s the word?” Catra asked.
Adora continued to play with her hair, so she could give Catra a soft kiss on the lips.
“Cafuné,” she said.
Catra laughed.
“What? Are you sure you’re saying it right?”
Adora laughed too, her nose crinkling.
“KAH-foo-neh,” she repeated, slower this time. “There’s no word in English for this.”
Catra’s eyes shifted for a second. She seemed somewhat nervous. But she smiled and kissed the bridge of Adora’s nose.
“Well, it’s a pretty word. Kah-foo-neh.”

Just as Catra was about to kiss her again, a low, insistent buzz broke through the quiet.
They both paused.
Adora groaned and dropped her head back onto the pillow.
“That’s my phone,” she mumbled.
“I know.”
They stayed there for another few seconds, tangled and warm and far too comfortable to move. Adora’s hand was still in Catra’s hair, and Catra had her cheek resting against Adora’s shoulder.
“Are you gonna get it?”
“Nope.”
The buzzing started again. Longer this time.
Catra raised an eyebrow, but her voice stayed teasing.
“What if it’s important?”
Adora sighed dramatically and finally rolled away, dragging herself out from the bed.
“I was busy doing something important,” she grumbled. “You.”
Catra chuckled, watching her with hazy eyes as Adora stood up—naked, glowing, a little wobbly. Her blonde hair was a mess, sticking to her neck and shoulders in soft waves.
“Say hi to Glimmer for me,” Catra called out, grinning as Adora disappeared through the doorway.

Adora's apartment

Glimmer had absolutely berated Adora over the phone.
She and Bow had gone to all the way to Adora's apartment complex because she hadn't replied to a single message. Glimmer even had screamed that she genuinely thought Adora had been murdered and was already mentally preparing herself to watch a video by a British teenager with a Better Help sponsorship, solemnly recounting Adora's untimely demise.
The doorman told them Adora hadn't been back since the night before.
So, yeah, they were actually really, really worried.
Adora apologized profusely, but nothing made them calm down.
That's when Bow confessed he had tracked her location using one of his weird little apps, and they didn't recognize the address.
So, she HAD to be with Catra.
Damn it. Adora's friends knew her too well.
After enduring a whole lecture about making bad decisions, Adora hung up and went back to Catra's bedroom.
The brunette was sprawled out on the bed, playing with the black cat, and smiled when she saw Adora.
"They thought I was dead," Adora said.
Catra giggled.
"You certainly didn't tell them the truth, did you?" she asked.
"Well… not entirely…"
Catra widened her eyes.
"What! That's embarrassing. They must hate the fuck outta me," she said.
Adora shrugged and joined her in bed, nuzzling the back of her neck, sliding a hand across Catra's torso.

"They don't hate you."
Catra shifted beneath Adora's touch, stretching like a cat waking up from a nap.
"Still," she murmured, "maybe next time don't ghost your friends to hook up with your morally questionable coworker?"
Adora laughed into the curve of her shoulder.
"You make it sound so unprofessional."
They stayed like that for a few minutes, only breathing each other in, letting the weight of the previous night settle. They had said a lot of things… Intense things.
Adora shivered as she remembered how Catra's beautiful eyes were shimmering with despair as she confessed that she liked Adora. That she felt jealous, even.
Adora had had her share of complicated affairs, and she really, REALLY didn't want Catra to become just another bitter memory. Didn't want to see her across the gym floor one day, both pretending they'd never said the things they did, never touched like they had.
Adora turned slightly, brushing a strand of dark hair from Catra's cheek. She stirred; eyes still closed but lips quirking up at the corners.
"I don't want to overstay," Adora whispered.
Catra didn't let her go.
"Please, stay as much as you want."
Adora's heart started racing.
"I'm feeling yucky, I need a shower and some clean clothes," she continued. "But you can come home with me if you want. Meet my apartment. It's a studio, frankly. But it's charming. I bet you'd like it."
Catra smiled.
"I'd love that."

Catra hadn't expected Adora's place to be so… neat.
The tiny studio smelled faintly like coconut detergent. A pair of sneakers sat by the door. A little succulent sat on the windowsill—half-dead but trying its best. There was a laundry basket filled with gym clothes, an old mug with "#1 Trainer" written in glitter pen, and a small poster of an unknown anime taped above the bed.

"Wow," Catra said, stepping in and turning slowly. "This is… cute."
Adora shut the door behind them, kicking off her shoes.
"Cute?"
Catra ran a hand along the edge of the kitchenette counter, eyes dancing across the space.
"I like it. Very you. Muscular, even."
"That's not an adjective people usually use for apartments."
"It is now."
Adora tossed her keys into a bowl by the door, then hesitated.
"You want tea? Or water? Or an energy drink?"
Catra grinned.
"Water's fine."
Adora snorted and grabbed two glasses.
"It's nice to not have cat fur everywhere," Catra broke the silence, taking a sip. "I can actually breathe better."
"I like your place," Adora said. "The cat fur is a plus."
They smiled at each other.
"Soooooo…" Adora stretched, her muscles popping under her shirt. "I'm gonna hop in the shower real quick, alright?"
Catra tilted her head, with a playful glint in her eyes.
"Without me?"
Adora's face turned bright red.
"You're… clearly invited."
The bathroom was barely big enough for two people, but somehow that made it better—warmer, closer, like the steam wasn't just coming from the hot water.
Adora stepped under the spray first, sighing as it hit her skin, washing away the night and the tension clinging to her muscles.
Catra followed behind her, wrapping her arms around Adora's waist and resting her cheek between her shoulder blades.
Adora eventually reached back, fingers threading through wet hair. Catra let out a content hum.
"This is nice," she said.
"Mhm."
They stayed like that for a while—close but not hurried.

“I don’t usually do this,” Catra said suddenly, voice barely above a whisper.
“Shower?”
Catra laughed, soft and genuine.
“No. This. Staying.”
Adora turned, placing her hands gently on either side of Catra’s face. She looked at her like she was trying to memorize every freckle, every scar.
“I don’t want you to be someone I had for a night.”
“And a morning,” Catra smirked.
Adora giggled, then kissed her forehead and looked at her again. Catra’s expression faltered.
“I’m scared I don’t know how to be someone people keep.”
Adora kissed both her temples, then her nose.
“You don’t have to know how. You just… stay. And let me stay too.”
They kissed slowly, the kind of kiss that wasn’t trying to prove anything. They rinsed soap from each other’s backs and played with the shampoo foam. And kissed again. And again.
Adora could feel the full length of Catra’s body pressed against her back. Her heart stuttered. She was losing herself in the way Catra’s fingers found the ridge of her hip, slow and curious, like she was learning it by heart.
Adora turned. Catra looked up at her through wet lashes, smirking —but softer than usual. Quieter. She tilted her chin slightly, eyes flicking to Adora’s lips.
She backed Catra gently into the wall, hands bracing on either side of her head, caging her in but not trapping. She wanted Catra to know she could leave. She also wanted her to know she didn’t have to.
Catra’s fingers gripped Adora’s waist, hard enough to leave marks. She tugged her closer, legs brushing, breath shallow. Her body was soft in all the places Adora wanted to sink into and hold.
“Fuck,” Adora whispered against her lips. “You’re… I want you.”
Catra’s nails scraped lightly down Adora’s spine.
“Yeah? Then show me.”
Adora kissed her again, harder this time. Less careful. Her hands roamed: shoulders, waist, thighs. She took her time, but her body ached with want, need curling hot and insistent in her gut.

Catra gasped when Adora dipped her head and kissed her throat, teeth grazing just enough to make her twitch. Her fingers tangled in Adora's hair, tugging, guiding, grounding.
Adora was dizzy with her. Drunk on the scent of soap and heat and something deeply Catra—something sharp and warm and unmistakably hers.
She couldn't think about anything else beside the way Catra's legs parted slightly under her touch. The way her breath hitched when Adora trailed kisses lower. The way her name sounded in Catra's mouth when she whispered it.
"Adora…"
Yeah. She could lose herself in this.
Adora's hands skimmed down Catra's slick back, slow and reverent. Every motion was deliberate now—not rushed, not frantic. Catra's hands were in her hair again, gripping, guiding, but not controlling. She let Adora take her time, let her kiss the corner of her jaw, her throat, the curve of her shoulder.
"God," Adora breathed, lips ghosting over wet skin. "You're so…"
She couldn't finish the sentence. No word felt big enough. So, she just kissed her again, harder, and let her hands speak where language failed.
Catra whimpered as Adora's hands traced the line of her thigh. She kissed the underside of her breast and felt Catra's fingers dig into her shoulders. And their lips met again.
"Let me," she whispered into her neck, asking—not assuming.
Catra nodded, biting her bottom lip, eyes blown wide.
Adora lowered herself slowly, hands sliding down damp skin, feeling the tremble in Catra's thighs as she opened to her.
Adora's mouth was warm, caring. Her tongue was curious. Catra grabbed her hair and pulled her in. Adora smiled against Catra's sweet pussy. She got on her knees and clutched Catra's buttcheeks. Her smell was amazing—musky, salty, coppery. And her taste…
Adora licked Catra's clit and sucked on it. Catra almost collapsed on top of Adora, trying to steady herself, letting out a moan.
"I love how you eat me out," she mumbled, breathless.
Adora looked up and licked her sticky lips.

“I love eating you out,” she said.
Catra let her head fall back and closed her eyes.
Adora was so fucking skilled. Her tongue was warm and soft, but not sloppy—she applied just the right amount of pressure. The wetness of the bathroom walls made Catra’s back slide down a little, but Adora kept her steady, gripping Catra’s waist with avid fingers.
“Oh, God,” Catra whispered. “Faster,” she pleaded.
Adora obeyed. She fastened her pace and gently slid a finger inside of Catra, who had to open her legs even farther.
Catra still had a grip on Adora’s golden hair, now completely wet, and she started to control Adora’s strokes, moving her pussy on the blonde’s tongue, making her work hard. She could sense that Adora was breathless, losing control, thrusting inside of Catra like her life depended on it—and Catra kept moaning louder and louder.
“Fuck!” she yelled, legs trembling, heart racing.
Adora tried to keep going, but Catra didn’t let her.
“You’ve outdone yourself,” Catra mumbled, trying to catch her breath.
Adora smirked, face flushed. She stood up and kissed Catra’s lips, pressing her against the wall again—their breasts and stomachs touched, and this was an amazing feeling.
“I have?” the blonde asked, smirking again.
“Yeah,” Catra said. “I didn’t know I could cum like this.”
Adora’s eyes darkened as she tried to kiss Catra again, but the brunette stopped her.
“My turn,” Catra announced smugly.
She turned Adora around and put her hands on the well on each side of Adora’s head—even though she was way taller than Catra. Adora arched her back with yearn and expecting lips. Catra slid her hands down Adora’s arms, squeezing to feel her amazing muscles, which made them both giggle. Then, she caressed Adora’s breasts, lingering her pointer finger on the left nipple, circling it while she teased.
Adora had her eyes closed, hips jerked forward, lips parted. Catra loved that sight.
Slowly, Catra licked Adora’s nipple—and Adora moaned, pulling

Catra closer, wrapping her body in an intimate embrace. Catra lowered her hand and rubbed Adora's inner thighs, matching her tongue's rhythm, feeling the thick liquid that had slinked down from Adora's pussy.
Catra sucked that nipple, dragging her teeth over it. Adora moaned again, sinking her fingers on Catra's torso. The brunette reached for the other nipple with her free hand and started to fiddle with it, wanting Adora to completely lose her shit.
Next, Catra found Adora's pulsing clit and stroke it gently, in circles, while still sucking on a nipple and playing with the other—both hands occupied, mouth hungry.
Adora's legs were shaking like she was about to collapse. Catra could feel her heartbeat on her pussy, going faster, begging for more.
Catra stopped what she was doing and pinned Adora back against the wall, as they had moved a little. She wanted to be in total control.
"Can I fuck you hard?" she asked, blinking her mismatched eyes.
Adora looked at her like she didn't know what to say. Her gaze was hazy, full of want.
"What do you mean by that?"
"I want to fuck you like you fuck me," Catra answered.
Adora smiled and looked away—was she embarrassed?
"Do whatever to me, baby," she said. "Just know that I'm not used to it."
Fuck—it was an honor to be the one to do that do Adora, Catra thought.
Adora hesitated for half a second. She tensed up, feeling her own vulnerability emerging. She wanted Catra to use and abuse her, but she had a hard time letting her guard go.
When Catra reached for Adora's pussy, the blonde grabbed her wrist.
"Maybe we can go to the bed," she said.
Catra nodded.
After drying up with towels, Catra took Adora's hand and led her to the bed, lying her on her back and climbing on top.
They kissed for a long time, rubbed their pussies together, moaned on each other's open mouths.

Catra licked Adora's lower belly, her pelvis, and made her way down to Adora's pussy. She wasn't clean shaven—she had a dark-blonde bush that she probably had trimmed herself, because it was uneven. But that made everything even hotter for Catra. She loved the way Adora felt on her tongue, how the hairs tickled her chin.
Catra fell right into it, stroking her tongue up and down Adora's clit, nose deep in her skin, hands grabbing her outer thighs. Adora was getting wetter and wetter, and Catra's face was easily sliding on her pussy, creating waves of pleasure that made Adora's legs twitch uncontrollably.
The brunette pulled out and demanded:
"Turn over."
Adora frowned, confused.
"Turn over, Adora," Catra insisted, with a deeper voice.
Adora did as she was told and lay on her stomach, but Catra pulled her hips up—she had to be on all fours.
"I don't know about this…" Adora said, looking over she shoulder.
"We can stop," Catra said back.
Adora bit her lower lip.
"I don't usually end up in this position," she mumbled under her breath.
"I just wanna feel you every way that I can," Catra whispered while she caressed Adora's butt.
The blonde gave a limited shrug.
"Fine."
Catra opened a wide smile and looked for Adora's wet entrance. She put one finger in and thrusted hard. Adora's breath hitched.
"Can I keep going?" Catra asked.
Adora nodded.
Catra added another finger—she thrusted hard again.
Adora's face fell on the pillow, but her back remained arched, her knees sinking in the mattress.
Catra curled down her fingers and started fucking Adora, fastening her strokes. She grabbed Adora's hair with her other hand and pulled her by it, forcing Adora to look up.
"God… Fuck, fuck¬—" the blonde screamed. "Catra, please. I… Oh my God!"

Catra’s forearm was already burning from the effort. She had to admit she didn’t usually top like this — she hadn’t felt this gut-wrenching urge for a long time. But Adora had awakened something in her. A hunger. And she kept thrusting her fingers inside Adora, occasionally dropping her hair to slap her butt.
She wanted Adora to feel how it was to let go, to be taken care of.
“You’re gonna make me cum,” Adora let out with a cry.
“That’s the plan,” Catra said then licked Adora’s back.
She tasted like salt and soap.
That’s when Adora’s legs closed in a strong grip—Catra couldn’t move her hand anymore. Adora muffled a desperate scream with the pillow, and it took her a couple of minutes to go limp, allowing Catra to remove her fingers from inside her.
Catra lay on top of Adora, and they breathed together.
“That was amazing,” the blonde murmured after a while.
Catra smirked and kissed the back of her neck.
“Everything is amazing with you,” she said.

Catra and Adora are lying on the bed, listening to faint hum of the city through the window. It was already dark. Adora shifts onto her side, propping her head up on one hand.
“You’re hogging the blanket,” Adora murmurs.
Catra smirks without opening her eyes.
“It’s my blanket.”
Adora nudges her with a knee.
“It’s my bed.”
That gets a quiet laugh out of Catra. They fall into a comfortable silence again. Adora traces the curve of Catra’s shoulder with her fingertips, and Catra lets her.
After a while, Catra opens one eye.
“You’re staring.”
“Yeah,” Adora says. “You’re pretty.”
Catra groans, pulling the blanket over her head.
“You’re such a sap.”
Adora grins and tugs the blanket down just enough to see her face again. Then, she kisses Catra’s nose. Catra rolls her eyes, but there’s no bite to it. She just settles back into the pillow, letting Adora’s arm drape over her.
Catra sighs.
“Is this gonna be messy?”, she asks.
Adora takes some time to answer.
“I don’t want it to be that way. No games, no trying to make each other jealous, no pretending we don’t care. I like you, Catra. For real.”
Catra’s eyes stay closed for a beat, but Adora feels her relax just a little in her arms.
“You’re really bad at casual,” Catra mutters.
“Yeah,” Adora admits. “I am. I told you so.”
Catra shifts onto her back, looking up at Adora with something between amusement and disbelief.

“So… what? You’re saying we just go for it? No bullshit?”
Adora’s eyes glimmer, and she seems nervous. But, ultimately, she nods.
“Yeah. No bullshit. We talk when something’s wrong. We’re honest. We try.”
Catra studies the blonde for a long moment, then lets out a slow breath.
“Okay. No bullshit.”
“Deal.”
Catra turns on her side, their foreheads almost touching.
“I really like your face”, she says.
Adora laughs.
“Oh, thanks. I thought you only liked my beautifully muscular body”, she says smugly.
Catra rolls her eyes again.
“I like that too.”
They kiss slowly. It feels easy. Feels nice. No more stupid drama. No more hidden feelings.
They linger there, lips brushing in small, unhurried movements, as they’ve both finally decided there’s no need to rush anywhere else. Adora’s hand settles at Catra’s waist, not pulling, just resting.
They don’t talk after that. Adora runs her fingers lazily through Catra’s hair.
And for once, neither of them feels the need to make it more complicated than that.

Catra and Adora lay on the bed, listening to the faint hum of the city through the window. It was already dark. Adora shifted onto her side, propping her head up on one hand.
“You’re hogging the blanket,” Adora murmured.
Catra smirked without opening her eyes.
Adora nudged her with a knee.
“It’s my bed.”
That got a quiet laugh out of Catra. They fell into a comfortable silence again. Adora traced the curve of Catra’s shoulder with her fingertips, and Catra let her.
After a while, Catra opened one eye.

“You’re staring.”
“Yeah,” Adora said. “You’re pretty.”
Catra groaned, pulling the blanket over her head.
“You’re such a sap.”
Adora grinned and tugged the blanket down just enough to see her face again, then kissed her nose. Catra rolled her eyes, but there was no bite to it. She just settled back into the pillow, letting Adora’s arm drape over her.
Catra sighed.
“Is this gonna be messy?” she asked.
Adora took a moment before answering.
“I don’t want it to be. No games, no trying to make each other jealous, no pretending we don’t care. I like you, Catra. For real.”
Catra’s eyes stayed closed for a beat, but Adora felt her relax just a little in her arms.
“You’re really bad at casual,” Catra muttered.
“Yeah,” Adora admitted. “I am. I told you so.”
Catra shifted onto her back, looking up at Adora with something between amusement and disbelief.
“So… what? You’re saying we just go for it? No bullshit?”
Adora’s eyes glimmered; she looked nervous, but she nodded.
“Yeah. No bullshit. We talk when something’s wrong. We’re honest. We try.”
Catra studied her for a long moment, then let out a slow breath.
“Okay. No bullshit.”
“Deal.”
Catra turned onto her side, their foreheads almost touching.
“I really like your face,” she said.
Adora laughed.
“Oh, thanks. I thought you only liked my beautifully muscular body,” she said smugly.
