Catra the Boy Remover

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/65323036.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationships:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Adora & Catra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Alternate Universe, Alternate Universe - Modern Setting, Alternate Universe - College/University, Alternate Universe - No Powers, Smut, Fluff, Anal Play, Strap-Ons, Trans Female Character, Trans Adora (She-Ra), Boyremoval, Gender Dysphoria, Sex Work, Sex Worker Adora (She-Ra), Adora Needs Therapy (She-Ra)

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2025-05-06 Words: 6,709 Chapters: 4/4

Catra the Boy Remover

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/65323036.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationships:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Adora & Catra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Alternate Universe, Alternate Universe - Modern Setting, Alternate Universe - College/University, Alternate Universe - No Powers, Smut, Fluff, Anal Play, Strap-Ons, Trans Female Character, Trans Adora (She-Ra), Boyremoval, Gender Dysphoria, Sex Work, Sex Worker Adora (She-Ra), Adora Needs Therapy (She-Ra)

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2025-05-06 Words: 6,709 Chapters: 4/4

Catra the Boy Remover

by peachpeachpeachpeachpeach

Summary

A depressed sex-worker and her roommate finally discover their mutual feelings and attempt to express years of sexual tension all at once.

Notes

This fic is not related to the Untitled Trans Adora Series; this is an entirely separate AU. I'm not sure if I will create any more stories in this Trans Sex Worker Adora AU, but if I do, I will likely add them as additional chapters in this story rather than start an entire series because I suspect this will remain a one-off.

This fic was written at the suggestion of SpilltheKatea! The suggestion was quite old but it took awhile to figure out a scenario where it worked.

I wrote this fic back in 2021, back before Elon bought Twitter and the US descended into a fascism, so if it feels a bit on the older side, that's because it is. It's been sitting in my final drafts for far too long, so I decided to just publish it as-is, before this website gets declared illegal for being too gay.

The Prequel

Chapter Notes

> This chapter takes place around two years before the succeeding ones. You can skip it, in fact you can skip ahead to chapter 3 if you're just here for the smut, but I think the buildup is worth it.
>
> Some pharmacology/HRT terms you might helpful when reading this fic:
>
> - Progestogen - a medication producing effects similar to those of naturally-produced progesterone; can be natural or synthetic.
> - Progestin - a synthetic progestogen.
> - Antiandrogen - a medication which blocks the effects of androgens (testosterone, dihydrotestosterone, etc.).
> - Drospirenone - a progestin commonly used as a progestogen-only birth control that is sometimes used for its antiandrogenic effects, marketed under the brand name Slynd. It is also frequently paired with various estradiols in combined oral contraceptive pills.

See the end of the chapter for more notes

As the train pulls away, Adora fiddles with a blister pack and pops a drospirenone pill. They weren't her birth control pills, but Catra found someone willing to pawn them off in exchange for weed money, and given that this was the closest she had to HRT for now, she wasn't about to argue over it.

In three months, on her 18th birthday, she would be getting a PO Box and ordering estrogen pills online using some Bitcoins she mined on the computers at school and their group home years ago, but for the past year, these pills had been her lifeline. It was only a progestin, so it just nuked her testosterone without providing any estrogenic effects, but it helped keep her suicidal thoughts manageable, and for that, she was grateful. She certainly didn't want to leave Catra to fend for herself in this horrible world.

"Thanks for getting these," Adora says as she puts the pills back into her backpack, being careful to place them where they wouldn't risk getting crushed.

"My pleasure," Catra sarcastically responds as the train driver toots the horn ahead of a grade crossing. "But seriously, you really need to stop thanking me. You deserve so much better than this, it's the least I can do."

"The next stop is East/West station, with bus connections to routes 10 and 25," an automated announcement declares as the two friends gaze out the windows. "Please check the bus schedule for available service."

Though Adora had much less energy overall on drospirenone and had to deal with hot flashes and night sweats, she certainly didn't run as hot overall, which was great since she worked the fryers at Chick-fil-A (though the hot flashes that occurred during work were absolutely brutal as a result). While Catra got to enjoy the cold air of the refrigerator and freezer doing food prep, she was stuck sweating her butt off as the HVAC system struggled to keep up in the winter and was entirely inadequate during the summer. Not that prep was easy with all the catering orders they got, but at least Catra got to stay out of the heat.

Working for a homophobic company wasn't what either of them particularly wanted to do, but it certainly paid better than stocking shelves at Harris Teeter, and they got free food (far better than the slop served up at their group home). Technically they were only supposed to get one free meal per shift, but their manager took pity on them and let them take home a second as long as the operator wasn't around.

They didn't have a ton of stuff to spend their money on (in the group home, anything that couldn't be locked away in their chests or hidden in a backpack was liable to be stolen), but as soon as Adora moved out, she was going to work on replacing her wardrobe, and moving to California would increase their cost of living quite a bit, so it was important to build up their savings.

Even though their sob stories had gotten them full ride scholarships, they still needed to find their own housing. Since Adora would be 18 when she graduated, she would be on her own after that, and though she had figured she would find somewhere cheap to stay until they could move into the dorms in the fall, Catra insisted they find a place together rather than see Adora be put into the men's dorms until she got her documents changed. It was comforting knowing her best friend would be there every step of the way, but she couldn't help but feel guilty knowing Catra worried over her a lot because she was trans.

Catra, for her part, couldn't help but worry about Adora. Adora had been put on a lot of anti-depressants over the years before eventually lying and pretending it was going away to stop the cycle of being ramped up and then weaned off of new cocktails of drugs that just brought new side effects and no real relief. It was entirely resistant to treatment (or rather, every treatment besides HRT, which she couldn't get legitimately), but the doctor who visited their group home (the lowest bidder on the contract) didn't believe being trans was a real thing and was more than happy to be rid of a mental patient, even if he was fairly certain she was lying.

Catra was the only one who Adora was ever truly honest with, who knew just how fucked Adora's mental health was. If Adora was honest with the doctor, she would probably be sent directly to a psych ward, and after hearing from one of the other kids what those were like, they wanted to avoid that at all costs. Now, at least, she wasn't a major self-harm risk, but Catra wasn't going to risk letting her best friend go it alone in this world.

"This stop is East/West Boulevard station, please exit right."

As the doors open, Catra looks at the nearby construction sites and marvels at how much progress they've made. "Give it ten years, and this place'll be just as expensive as NoDa," she remarks.

"Yeah, it probably will," Adora concurs as the car's remaining occupants depart, leaving only them inside. "Not that I ever plan on coming back to see it myself, as long as the GOP is in power."

Though she would certainly miss Cook Out, Bojangles, sweet tea, and Cheerwine, the politics of the state were something she would be glad to leave behind for good. She just didn't have it in her to stay and fight — even if trans healthcare became easy to access, realistically, her vote wouldn't count outside tight presidential, senate, and gubernatorial races, as the rest of the races would be determined by the NCGOP's gerrymander.

"Please stand clear, doors are closing; train is about to move," the automated woman warns, and Adora does her best to imitate it, though with how little time she had alone to voice train, it doesn't even come close and just makes her dysphoric. "The next stop is New Bern station."

"I can't wait to leave this shitty state behind," Adora mutters as the train gets up to speed. "I'm so fucking tired of being in the closet."

"And I can't wait to meet the real you, unconstrained by this rubbish."

Perhaps it was just the progestins talking, but Adora can't help falling a little bit more in love with her best friend over that statement (she had such a way with words). Best friend, Adora annoyedly thinks, not a lover. She would never love me, I would ruin everything if I ever let her know my feelings.

"Yeah, that'll be nice," Adora replies. "I just hope the real me passes someday."

"I know you'll pass," Catra reassures, though Adora certainly has her doubts. "Pinkie Pie promise."

"Well then, I hope you're ready to wash frosting out of your eye," Adora depressingly jokes, suicidal thoughts bouncing around in her head.

Adora looks on at the mess of new construction all around as they pass through more grade crossings. God knows how much these places will go for when they're complete. And to think that none of them would be here without this train…

Although Catra was looking at the window, she was more looking at the reflection of her best friend than the construction passing by. She had long known she was attracted to Adora, and even though those pills shouldn't be having any feminizing effects, she could swear Adora's features were beginning to soften slightly, making her even more beautiful (she also seemed to smell better, now that the testosterone was out of her system). Perhaps it was just placebo, but either way, she has to put a hand on her tail to keep it from jumping around as she takes in the view.

"You know, we don't have to go home right after work," Catra says as the train begins slowing, hoping her friend would take the hint that she meant more than just doing something together as friends. Of course, doing so would vindicate all the rumors that had been spread about them over the years, but she didn't care (if anything, she appreciated them since it prevented anyone from speculating about her sexuality, even though that involved misgendering Adora). She had wanted to be with Adora for a long time, especially since she came out, and hated having to settle for this.

"And risk Weaver's ire?"

"Fuck Weaver. She yells at us the same regardless of if our bus back is five minutes late or five hours. We should do something fun, just us."

"Like what?" Adora asks, oblivious. "This city basically closes at 10 if you're under 21. Unless you got better fake IDs than last time…" Suspicious, she asks, "Wait, you didn't buy more, did you?"

"This stop is New Bern station. Please exit right."

"No, forget it," Catra sighs as the doors open, realizing her intention had flown over Adora's head. "Every bouncer at EpiCentre probably knows my face by now, anyway. And Chaser's isn't worth the bus fare…"

The times they had gone out with the fake IDs Catra acquired had been somewhat enjoyable, with alcohol helping to numb her dysphoria, bringing some life into the beautiful blue eyes normally stuck looking off into the distance, unable to enjoy anything before them. The Scorpio in particular was great, being filled with fun queer people that they went back to repeatedly, but after a series of stings by police cracking down on nearby venues not checking IDs closely, the bouncers had stopped them at the door — their business was no longer worth the risk, no matter how well they tipped.

Chasers, another gay bar they could easily get to by bus, was much less inviting, being patronized almost exclusively by white human cis gay men who were very vocal in how they only respected other white human cis gay men. Even though they didn't get carded the one time they went there, there was a reason they didn't go back.

Then they tried their luck at EpiCentre, but after a few weeks, their fakes were confiscated at Howl at the Moon, a dueling piano bar, thus putting an end to their late-night escapades.

There were the movies, of course, but nothing good was showing right now, or rather, nothing good enough to justify the time it would take to get to a theater where the buses would still be running after midnight. So now, when they finished closing, they just went straight home, where they would have less than an hour before being separated by their AGABs at lights out.

As they deboard the train, a black Nissan Altima with no bumpers, no license plate, a demolished trunk, and a spoiler secured by duct tape and prayers drives on the sidewalk to avoid the lowered arms of the crossing guards, too impatient to wait 30 seconds for the train to clear the grade crossing.

"Fucking Altima drivers," Adora scoffs as they cross the tracks. "Why are they always like this?"

Chapter End Notes

> That Nissan Altima encounter was only a minor exaggeration — I've actually seen that happen, minus the spoiler. But I have seen a duct-taped spoiler on another, unrelated Altima.

If you recognized where this chapter took place, you've probably seen similar Altima behavior, too.

A Hard Day's Night

Chapter Notes

> Time skip: This chapter takes place around two years after the last one.

Adora sighs as she sits down at her vanity and goes to work removing her wig. Work had been rough today. Another private show where she had to keep her voice in a clearly masculine register and do humiliating acts had taken its toll on her.

"The things I do for money," she mutters, returning her voice to her preferred register and inflection.

Adora is a sex worker, doing cam sites and OnlyFans, and had carved out quite a profitable niche doing celebrity impersonations. She didn't limit herself to mere drag caricatures of celebrities, no, she went much further than that — she would not only dress like them and do makeup to look like them, she studied them and tried to emulate their mannerisms, their styles of speech, the whole nine yards.

It had all started out as a joke, acting like Lady Gaga one April Fools' Day, but the spike in viewership was obvious, and it soon became a part of her routine. It was fun cosplaying as famous people and characters, but soon morphed into something else entirely when she started offering private shows where she went all-out, being a puppet for her audience in exchange for a hefty fee. In the past, her biggest spenders were the foot fetishists who would pay her $100 just to point a camera at her feet and hold still for ten minutes, but they were chump change to her now.

(Not that she didn't indulge anymore…it was always nice to get a paid break.)

Earlier that year, a clip of her dressed as Joe Biden wearing a cock ring and a buttplug talking about how Donald Trump should "man up and fuck my bussy already," followed by her scolding a finsub regular for not making it happen with his "pitiful campaign contributions," had been posted to Twitter with the caption "Chaturbate is fucking wild…" It instantly went viral and did rounds on every platform that allowed NSFW content, with her view count quintupling when she went live the following day, and demand for her private shows skyrocketed.

Private shows required a lot more work. Not just because she went all-out with costumes, props, and makeup, but because she always devoted several days to character study, reading interviews, watching speeches, researching voting records and campaign promises, and trying to find all their subtle quirks to emulate.

Today, she did a private show for a few very wealthy viewers, starring as Ronald Reagan, portraying what her audience wanted to pretend really went on inside the Oval Office.

It was always a challenge. Making herself look like an old man trying to look like a woman was not easy, both physically (having to bind and be extremely detailed with her makeup) and mentally (making herself into a clocky old trans woman was dysphoria-inducing), and then having to study such a terrible man to imitate him…she couldn't wait until she graduated and got a decent-paying job where dehumanization wasn't in the description.

It was these acts that made her paranoid of getting doxxed. She had registered with her old ID with her dead first and last names and group home address, funneled money through a faceless law firm-registered LLC, used a VPN whenever she was working, and she always wore colored contacts, wigs, etc…but still, the threat was ever-present. Good luck getting a professional job with that kind of a reputation.

But despite the mental toll it incurred, it certainly paid well. While her public shows paid her bills, her private shows…well, if she lost her scholarship, she could finish without taking out student loans. In fact, if she could get FFS and SRS covered in the same year by her crappy student insurance, she could easily pay the out of pocket maximum.

There was a lot she could do with her money. She could afford to move out, or at least get a place with a proper second bedroom. Technically, her work room was a second bedroom (according to the landlord), but she was pretty sure it wasn't legally one since there was no window, and it was too depressing to want to use as one as a result.

She had started doing this work because it was a way to explore herself and embrace her exhibitionist side while also getting some money in the process, and quickly became a haven where she didn't have to worry about the stares of customers and intrusive questions trying to figure out what she was, but now she felt trapped. She didn't need to keep doing this per se, but realistically, she needed the money, and this money was hard to come across at part-time jobs that didn't require degrees.

In the distance, Adora hears the sound of keys jingling, followed by the door to the apartment opening as Catra returns for the night.

After checking the lamp whose RGB light bulb Adora had rigged up to turn red whenever she was live, Catra immediately calls out to her roommate, “Are you hungry? Cuz I got leftovers.”

“No, I’m good,” Adora replies as she discards a makeup wipe.

“I’ll put them in the fridge, then.”

After Catra finishes unloading her bag, she knocks at the door to Adora’s room.

“It’s unlocked,” she replies.

“So, how was work?” Catra asks as she walks in, before taking in her friend and seeing her dissatisfied expression. “Not fun?”

“No, I had to play Reagan as a sissy boomer, it fucking sucked,” Adora grumbles. “I wish this didn’t pay so well, then I wouldn’t feel tempted to subject myself to this transphobic trite.”

“You know, if you ever wanted to stop, I could—”

"I know, I know," Adora annoyedly interjects, already familiar with the spiel before wincing at her tone. "Sorry, I just need a moment. Can we talk after I'm done getting all this off?" she asks, gesturing to her makeup and outfit.

"Yeah, we can," Catra replies, dejected, ears drooping, feeling shut out yet again. "You know where to find me."

In the living room, Catra plops down on the couch and lets down her hair. Work had been a doozy, with half the front of house calling out sick and the Friday night crush amplified by it being a football game day. She had been on her toes from the moment she arrived until they finally closed, and despite drinking several cups of coffee, still fell asleep on the bus (by some miracle, she woke up just in time for her stop). But now, she could relax…or at least she could until she saw the state her best friend was in.

She still worried about Adora. Her work certainly paid the bills better than serving coffee ever did, but it took a much larger mental toll whenever she did those private shows. She was also definitely bottling up feelings of some sort, though whether it was related to work or something else, Catra never could tell. Though she had a lot more emotions and expressed them far more freely since starting HRT, she was also capable of hiding things away far better than she used to when she really put her mind to it.

Back in lounge clothes and face scrubbed of every last trace of Reagan, Adora plops down beside Catra. Normally, she wouldn't wear clothes like this without tucking, but right now she was too dysphoric about everything else to care about that.

"I'd love to end the private shows entirely, but it's just—," Adora opens, "You know how much I made today?"

"What, a grand?" Catra asks, thinking back to how much she made after tip-out today due to filling in for multiple sections, coupled with a couple of creepy rich dudes trying to get her number by leaving exorbitant gratuities.

"Try quadrupling that. Actually, after tax and the costume, it'll probably be just three, but still."

Catra's jaw drops. She knew Adora's private shows brought in a pretty penny, but she never would have thought…

"That's incredible," she remarks, wondering how hard it would be to get that kind of a payout if she were to enter that line of work, even though she knew it was largely a matter of lucking into an untapped niche from everything Adora had said about her success.

"Yeah, some rich fucks ponied up to fulfill their fantasy of humiliating a tranny," Adora mutters, "but at least I got paid for it."

“Adora, I didn’t mean it that way—”

“I know,” Adora interrupts, placing a hand over her friend’s. “But I really do need the money. Those guys booked four more private shows already, and I think by the end of the year, I’ll be able to afford FFS and SRS without insurance, and have a good nest egg in case I ever get doxxed and made unemployable for a year or so. Then, I can stop doing the private shows, or maybe pivot to just private shows that I want.”

“I get it,” Catra says, sliding closer, wrapping their fingers together. “Golden handcuffs and all. But if you didn’t have to worry about money, what would you want? Besides surgeries.”

“I just want someone to love me for who I am — a woman — not a man, or woman-lite, or whatever the fuck these people think I am.” After a pause, the blonde dejectedly adds, “Who knows, maybe I am just a fucking man in a dress after all. I sure as shit don’t feel like a woman right now.”

“Adora, you’re not a man, you never were,” Catra reassures, squeezing her friend’s hand. “And I love you.”

“I love you too, Catra, but I didn’t mean platonic. Nobody would ever love love me.”

Catra resists the urge to smash her head into the coffee table. She had long tried to spell it out for Adora, and had just about become convinced Adora wasn't into her, but clearly, she just hadn't been blatant enough before. "No, Adora, I love love you," she says, exasperated. "I've had a crush on you since…I don't even know how long. And it was always so frustrating knowing I was a lesbian but still having a crush on you. When you came out, everything suddenly clicked for me."

Silence.

Back when Adora had decided she could never admit her feelings for her best friend, she assumed they would never be reciprocated. She didn't want to alienate the only person who knew what she had been through, who understood her. Not even Bow and Glimmer truly got it, having been raised by loving (if at times overbearing) parents. Hell, Bow never even had to go through the wrong puberty.

It seems she was very wrong about one of those points. And if Catra was willing to come out and say it like this, chances are she wouldn't be willing to give up their friendship, even if things never worked out romantically.

After a long pause, she finally asks, blushing, "You…really mean that?"

"Yes, dummy," Catra replies, a confused expression on her face, dumbfounded as to how her roommate could see any ambiguity in her words. "Do you want me to prove it?"

“Maybe?” Adora eventually responds, her blush deepening and spreading across her face.

“C’mere then, dummy,” Catra teases, deciding to take a risk as she puts a hand on Adora’s face and guides her in for a kiss, and then another, longer.

Adora had never been kissed before (that she could remember, anyway), and this was…something else. She practically melts from the sensation, desperately holding on to each one as long as she can.

“Enjoying this?” Catra asks, her voice low.

Adora nods.

“It gets better. Just follow my lead.”

Adora does as she is told, and when she feels Catra’s tongue, she immediately goes to pull Catra closer, wanting more, needing more. She never would have thought it felt this good…

“You have no idea how long I’ve wanted to do that,” Catra says when they finally part, Adora’s blush somehow having gotten even deeper.

“Is there anything else you want to do?”

“Is there?” Catra chuckles. “The real question is how far you feel like going.”

Boyremoval

"So, what do you want to do?" Catra asks. "I'm down for basically anything, even if that's just cuddles in bed."

"Honestly? Not much," Adora responds, before realizing how that came across. "Let me rephrase that. What I meant was, like, you know how I have to be the big, bossy top at work? I just want to be able to relax for once."

"So you want to be a bottom?" Catra chuckles.

Adora blushes as she nods, finally admitting, "Yes, that would be nice."

"In that case, is there anything particular you want me to do? Like go down on you?"

"No, I really don't want to be touched down there, not tonight."

"Well, what if I got out the strap?"

Adora's blush deepens as she replies, "I didn't even know you had one, but yes, I would love that."

Catra cheekily grins and goes for another kiss before asking, "In that case, shall we adjourn to the bedroom?"

Adora nods and hops up, stopping in her work room en route to grab her lube.

In the bedroom, after letting Adora select the dildo (a trans colored one that was one of the larger ones in her roommate's work collection) and putting on her harness, she can't help but admire Adora. Even though she didn't watch Adora's streams (Adora's straight girl persona was the least attractive thing she had ever witnessed), she had seen her in various states of undress many times before, but this was different, in the best way possible.

Adora, likewise, had seen Catra naked many times, but she had never allowed herself to actually enjoy it. She had always averted her gaze and felt guilty for ever thinking about Catra naked, not wanting to feel like one of her own gawking viewers. But the fact that this stunningly beautiful woman — this stunningly beautiful lesbian — wanted to fuck her was giving her butterflies in her stomach and breaking down her internalized guilt.

"You look so fucking hot like that, princess," she remarks, smirking as Adora blushes. "Oh, you like that, huh? Well, you better get used to it, cuz you're going to be hearing it a lot, bottom."

“Are you going to keep teasing me or are you going to fuck me? I don’t got all night!” Adora retorts.

“I thought you’d never ask, what with not wanting to be a top anymore,” Catra teases as she gets onto the bed and situates herself atop Adora, wasting no time lavishing her with kisses, feeling her up with her free hand, drinking in her ragged breathing and soft moans.

“You taste so good,” Catra whispers when she’s ready to move on. “I wonder what the rest of you tastes like.”

Before Adora can respond, Catra brushes her hair out of the way and starts leaving kisses across her neck, causing Adora’s brain to short-circuit. She never would have guessed her neck could be an erogenous zone, and her breath hitches with each kiss, star-struck with pleasure.

“God that feels so good,” she gasps as Catra starts gently nibbling on her. She goes to grab onto the nearest thing she can, and ends up ensnaring the magicat’s tail in the process. It bushes up in response, and when she realizes what she’s grabbed onto, she starts loosening her grip.

“Don’t stop,” Catra protests, reveling in the sensation. “You have no idea how wonderful that feels.”

“Sorry! I was worried I was hurting you.”

"Adora, do you really think I wouldn't say something if it hurts?"

"No, I guess not," Adora replies, thinking back to all the times Catra had told off customers for trying to touch or grab her "exotic" (as some called it) anatomy…she was definitely not shy about asserting her bodily autonomy.

Adora takes her partner's tail in her hand again and starts gently stroking it, turning Catra on even more in the process, making the neck kisses more intense, all the while Catra plays with Adora's nipples, extracting more moans from her.

"I could keep just doing this all night," Catra remarks after leaving yet another mark for Adora's audience to be intrigued by. "But if you want to…"

"Yes, I'm ready," Adora pants as she hands Catra the lube.

"Is there a specific position you want to try, or is this fine?" Catra asks as she applies a generous amount to the dildo.

"Let's just start here," Adora replies, eyeing the multi-colored appendage. Somehow, it made Catra even hotter, knowing the power she held while wearing it. This particular dildo was one of the few Adora typically reserved until she was getting ready to wrap up for the day, as its size made it much easier to get off and end the day with a bang, so just seeing Catra wearing it was doing things for her.

"You're so cute," Catra says, seeing how flustered Adora was getting just looking at her lining up. "Ready?"

"Yes."

Catra tries to push in several times, but the dildo seems to have a mind of its own as it pushes downwards, until Adora intervenes.

"Let me help you out with that," she says as she lines it back up and keeps her hand in place. "Now try."

"That in?" Catra asks as Adora releases her hand and lets out soft moan, her face overcome with pleasure.

"Yeah, it is," Adora says, smiling. "You're so hot."

"You should see yourself," Catra remarks as she goes for a kiss, gently pushing further in, drinking in Adora's little noises of pleasure. She had long fantasized about doing this, but her fantasies could never measure up to the real thing.

Adora relaxes her muscles, allowing more of Catra inside her, feeling full in a way she never had on camera, moaning louder, not caring that this room wasn't covered in acoustic paneling like her work room, much less to make her work sounds inaudible except directly outside the door.

"God yes, just like that," she moans as Catra's body pushes against hers, going deeper.

Catra leans down and kisses the blonde, adding to the intensity of each thrust as the squeezing and stroking of her tail grows more intense.

"Good girl," she whispers between kisses, basking in the sounds her partner makes, until she receives a request.

"Actually, could we change positions?" Adora asks, remembering something she read online.

"You wanna get on your knees, princess?" Catra teases.

"Yes, I do."

"Well, in that case…," she says as she pulls out, taking the opportunity to apply more lube as Adora repositions herself. "God, your butt is so cute," she says, biting her lip as she lines up. "Ready?"

“Yes.”

Catra gently pushes in, and Adora moans as she begins to thrust. She was able to get much deeper from this position, and it was hitting just right. Adora instinctively intertwines her legs with her partner’s, locking her in place.

“That feel good?”

“Yes, faster,” she demands as Catra grabs onto a shoulder. She relaxes further, letting Catra go deeper, and grabs onto her pillow.

Catra leaves a kiss on the back of her neck, and it feels incredible, even better than the front. Immediately, she demands more, desperate to feel more of Catra.

“Oh, you like that, huh?”

“Fuck— just shut up and kiss me already!”

Earlier that day, Adora had faked her orgasms. Usually, she could get off on camera, but her dysphoria from the scenarios she was acting out prevented that from happening. But this? This was doing things for her.

With each thrust, Adora slowly felt her grasp on reality slipping, Catra hitting in just the right spot to cause a new wave of pleasure to wash through her every time.

"You're…fuck…so fucking good," Adora mumbles she tightens her grip on her pillow.

"Anything for you," Catra whispers as she leaves another kiss on the back of Adora's neck, reveling in the way she was losing herself to the pleasure with each thrust.

"Faster," the blonde demands as she realizes she's drooling. If she were more aware, she'd try to stop it, but she was beyond caring at this point. That would be a problem for future Adora.

Catra complies with the request, and the waves of pleasure slowly begin to morph into one giant wall of it, making Adora moan louder, not caring that the neighbors might complain to the landlord.

"Catra!" she suddenly calls out, "I'm gonna come."

"Come for me, Adora," the magicat whispers, planting another kiss. "I've always wanted to hear you like this."

As the incredible feelings envelop Adora, she buries her face in the pillow, not caring what she sounds like as every muscle in her body quivers in ecstasy, Catra's continued fucking amplifying the feelings further. She desperately tries to call out her partner's name, but all that comes out is, "Cat— Cat—"

"Keep going?" Catra asks, to which Adora lets out an "mhmm" as she feels another tidal wave of pleasure crash through, causing her whole body to shake.

The blonde mindlessly moans in pleasure, with the increased sensitivity causing Catra's groping of her boobs to feel even better than before, and her kisses to send out mini-shockwaves of pleasure, on top of everything else.

"You c— You can stop," Adora eventually mumbles as she slowly begins coming down from her high and releases her partner's legs. "I want cuddles."

"We can do cuddles all night long," Catra whispers as she slowly pulls out and removes the harness. "Under the covers, or…?"

"Under," Adora responds as she lifts the blankets up and disappears beneath.

Catra follows and intertwines herself once more, with Adora desperately kissing her, not wanting to let go, as if to make up for a lifetime of being utterly touch-starved.

“Adora, you fuck like a woman,” Catra smirks when they finally take a break in favor of just cuddling, enjoying their intertwined bodies. “I hope you don’t feel like a boy after that.”

“I don’t, not anymore. You fucked the dysphoria outta me.”

“Well, that’s high praise,” she smirks. “You know, this doesn’t have to be a one time thing.”

“That’s a relief,” Adora grins as she goes for another kiss. “Catra, I think I’m in love with you.” It was an understatement, but she was still coming to terms with unnecessarily being in denial of her feelings for so long that it was all she could bring herself to say for now.

“Is that in a love way or a love love way?” Catra teases.

“Both.”

What Are We?

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

"Good morning, princess. About time you woke up," Catra whispers as Adora's eyes flutter open, taking in her surroundings and seeing the clothes, harness, and lube on the floor, and realizing she was naked. In bed. With a topless, purring, and probably also naked Catra. Ho-ly shit.

So that wasn't just a dream, Adora thinks as Catra puts a hand on her head and guides her into a kiss, which she eagerly accepts and repeatedly pulls the magicat back in for more until she is planted firmly on top of Adora's member, confirming that she is, indeed, naked.

"I'm uh…not making you feel weird, am I?" Catra asks, realizing the potential for dysphoria in this position. It's not like Adora was hard, but, well…

"A little, yes," Adora admits. "I'll need to put on my tucking underwear if we keep doing this."

"What if we cuddled instead?" Catra says as she rolls back over to her previous position, adding, "I'll let you be the little spoon," as if that was a concession.

"Of course we can cuddle," Adora replies as she turns on her side and lets Catra wrap around her, threading their bodies together. Feeling her partner's body like this turns her on. In the past, they had platonically cuddled a fair amount (especially when Catra was in heat), but she always beat back the horny thoughts as best she could. Now, she let them flow freely, remembering last night, and wanting to get railed like that again.

If only she could have said something sooner, Adora thinks, wishing she could go back in time and ask Catra out when she realized she was a lesbian rather than wasting so much time yearning for someone.

"You know how gorgeous your eyes are?" Catra praises as she leaves a kiss on the back of her partner's neck, causing her to gasp. "You used to have a permanent thousand-yard stare, but now you smile with them. Like a mountain laurel in spring."

"I love you so much, Adora," she continues without waiting for a response, leaving another kiss and earning another gasp. There was something about that spot that just did things for her. "I've been trying to tell you that since you came out. I knew you were a big dummy, but I guess I underestimated just how big of one you are."

"Oh really? Like when?" Adora asks, genuinely curious what she could have missed.

"You really don't know?"

"No."

"Well…"

By the time Glimmer texts them to confirm they're still down for brunch, it takes all the effort in the world for Adora not to facepalm so hard it caves in her skull. Truly, she was a useless lesbian, possibly the most useless lesbian in the history of lesbianism. At one point, Catra had even tried to kiss her, which she wrote off as heats making her do weird stuff.

When their phones buzz, it is a welcome distraction from the loving roast her partner was delivering, and Adora immediately grabs hers off the nightstand.

"'still on for brunch @11?'," Adora reads, and with food suddenly on her mind, her stomach growls at her. She really was hungry, having been too dysphoric to want to eat dinner last night, and knowing where they'd be going, she didn't want to spoil the meal by eating anything now. "We're definitely going to be late, what should I say?"

"I got this," Catra says as she takes the phone and presses the voice input button. "'We will be late comma meet at yours question mark', aaand send."

“Should we tell them? About ‘us’?” Adora asks as a thumbs up emoji appears beneath Catra’s message. “Are we even a ‘thing’?”

“Well, what do you want us to be? I can live with friends with benefits, I guess, but I would prefer to be so much more than that.”

“So do I,” Adora replies after carefully considering her response, not wanting to read too far into Catra’s words. “How about we just say we’re dating, and we can figure out the specifics and labels later?”

“I like the sound of that,” Catra says before kissing the back of Adora’s neck again, reveling in the gasp it triggers. “I think I know how I’d like to tell Glitter, actually.”

“Over text?”

“Even better,” she chuckles as she opens the camera app and takes a selfie of them, cropping out Adora’s breasts but showing just enough to make it obvious they’re both topless. “May I?” she asks, opening the group chat and selecting the picture, Adora with the most gorgeous smile her partner had ever seen while Catra was looking incredibly smug, as if to say ‘yeah, I fucked her, jealous?’

“Shoot.”

Catra hits the send button, and within seconds, ‘Glimmer✨ is typing…’ appears at the bottom of the screen, causing Adora to snicker. Catra quickly turns off the screen and tosses it back to the nightstand, just as their phones begin to light up and vibrate repeatedly, content to troll Glimmer more when they were ready to leave.

“You know, if we’re gonna be late anyway,” Catra says, her voice low and sultry, “we could always…”

“Oh, fuck,” Adora whimpers as Catra gently squeezes her breasts. They had started growing again overnight and were quite sore, but it hurt so good… “I’d love to, but it’ll take too long to shave and shower and prep so we can do stuff. How about after I get off work tonight? It’ll give me something to look forward to.”

“I like the sound of that,” Catra whispers as she leaves another kiss on Adora’s neck, delighting in her partner’s reaction. “You know, if you wanted to save time and have more hot water for shaving your legs, you could always join me in the shower…”

Adora flushes red at the thought of getting touched with warm water running over her. She had dreamed of this before, but until now, it always seemed an impossibility. She wanted this.

“Yeah, sure, we can try that. Just make sure you warn me before you touch me down there.”

“I’ll ask before I do anything,” Catra reassures as she begins untangling herself. “We can do whatever you want, and if you don’t feel comfortable with anything, I’m fine just watching.”

“In that case, I’ll go get the water started.”

Chapter End Notes

Thanks for reading! I really meant to get this out years ago, I just...didn't.

I have some other stories I'm working on, though it may take awhile before they're ready for publication.

Please drop by the Archive and comment to let the creator know if you enjoyed their work!