Glimmer But A Nightmare

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/40059231.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
Creator Chose Not To Use Archive Warnings

Categories:
F/F, Multi

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationships:
Adora/Glimmer (She-Ra), Catra/Glimmer (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), Bow (She-Ra), Shimmer/Glimmer, Original Characters

Additional Tags:
Relationship(s), Violence, Slow Build, Trauma, Angst, Humor, Smut, Tension, Enemies, Twins, Family Drama, Eventual Romance, Eventual Smut, Eventual Relationships, War, Porn With Plot, Angst and Porn

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2022-07-03 Completed: 2022-09-26 Words: 27,163 Chapters: 12/12

Glimmer But A Nightmare

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/40059231.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
Creator Chose Not To Use Archive Warnings

Categories:
F/F, Multi

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationships:
Adora/Glimmer (She-Ra), Catra/Glimmer (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), Bow (She-Ra), Shimmer/Glimmer, Original Characters

Additional Tags:
Relationship(s), Violence, Slow Build, Trauma, Angst, Humor, Smut, Tension, Enemies, Twins, Family Drama, Eventual Romance, Eventual Smut, Eventual Relationships, War, Porn With Plot, Angst and Porn

Language: English

Stats:
Published: 2022-07-03 Completed: 2022-09-26 Words: 27,163
Chapters: 12/12

Glimmer But A Nightmare

by Malbonte

Summary

When her twin sister decides to return to Bright Moon, Queen Glimmer has to take care of bigger problems than the Horde. Because Princess Shimmer is literally a pain in the ass.

Glimmer knew it was a mistake to let her come back. Now, she has to stop her before she ruins her relationships and kingdom.

Notes

What's up party people? Welcome to my newest She-Ra fanfiction.
Let me explain a few things, so you know what kind of things you're going to see through reading this.

- Please pay attention to the tags and make sure you spotted "Slow Build" among them.
If you're here for porn, I supposed you must navigate for the further chapters.

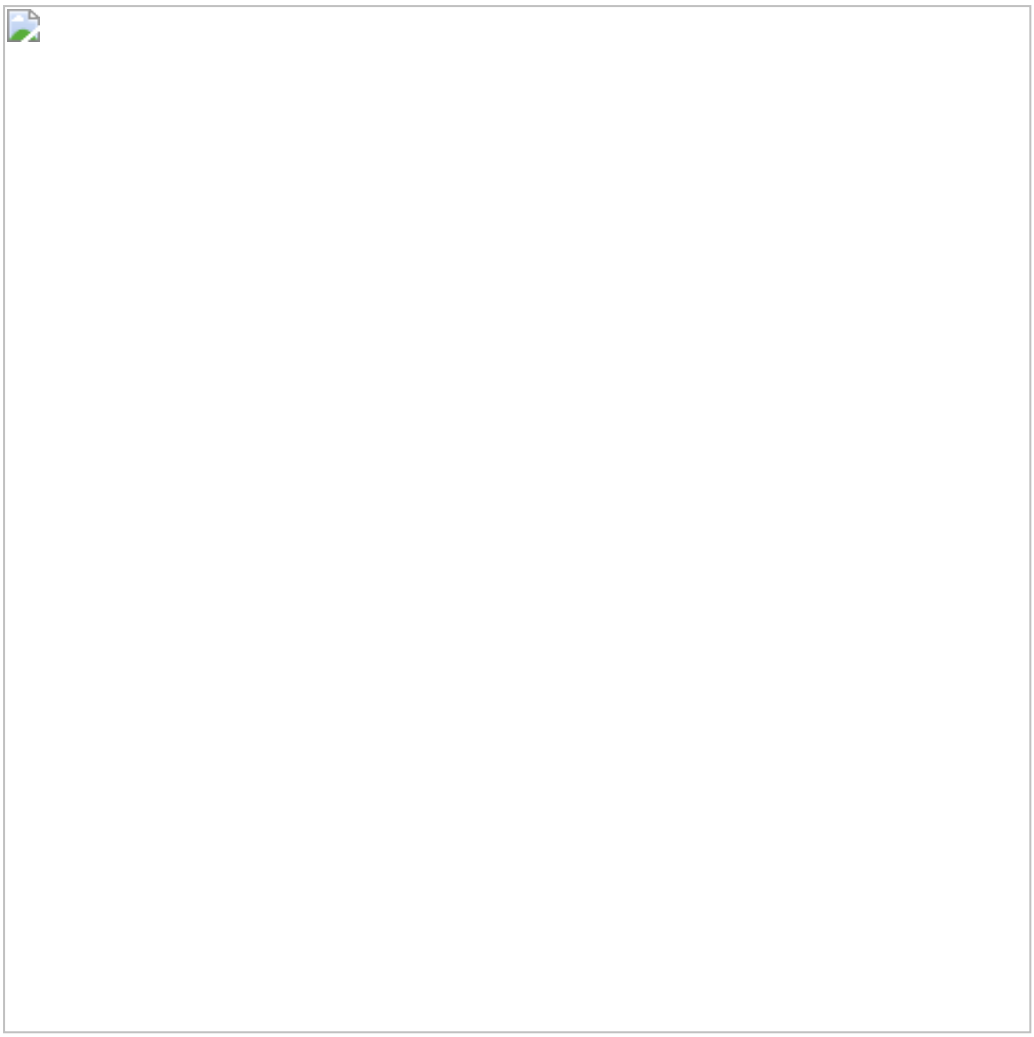

- Glimmer and Bow are married, but this is going to be temporary as you can see in the tags that our main focus is on Glimmadora and Glitra.
- This fic contains violence, detailed descriptions of death, sex, war, and fight. Explicit for a reason. Read at your own risk.
- This fic has BDSM, rough sex descriptions that some readers might find disturbing.
- Angst is woven throughout the story. Whole point of the storyline is about a family drama and harsh feelings.
However, you'll also see that I intended to make this fic humorous to let you dear readers take a break from the drama.

- Adora is for Glimmer, Catra is for Shimmer. So, technically it is both Glimmadora and Glitra at the same time. Sort of.

I prefer not to expose all the details of my story. Just thought of warning you about what kind of triggering scenes this story has would be the right thing to do.

Enjoy!

Feels Like Home

Pace. Left and right. Non-stop. Foot tapping on the ground rapidly whenever she decided to pause, remaining in one spot.

Wind above the curly guy and sparkly girl invited their hair to dance, wiggling them along with the soft breezes.

"Glimmer."

Bow's annoyed voice caught the Queen's attention, only momentarily.

"Would you please SIT DOWN?"

Queen gave him a stern look, her jaw tensed visibly, shoulders went stiff. How could she sit down when the nightmare of her life was coming back from the mission that her deceased mother sent her on?

"Why did she decide to come back after all these years? Every time she's in the middle of something, disaster follows!"

Glimmer spat, making her husband who seemed to be calmly sitting on the plain soil cross-legged uneasy.

After the deep inhale filled his lungs to their maximum capacity, Bow loudly exhaled and it literally took a minute for him to stop this.

"I thought you wanted her to come back."

"No. It was long ago. She made her choice, I did mine. There's no reason to scratch the wound over and over knowing it will rather hurt than soothe."

"Give her a chance," Bow admired the moon, the sole survivor of the reign of the sky's black veil smiling at him from afar. Brightest protector that kept the darkness away from swallowing their world completely. "Maybe it won't be that bad?"

"Her presence here will only bring trouble. I have enough problems in my life and I'm not in the mood for her to be pushing my buttons."

Understandable. Bow nodded as he stood up, making his way to hug Glimmer from behind. Soothing kiss was planted on her bare skin hanging from her off-shoulder, maroon overalls.

Glimmer didn't show any sign of relaxation, though. If the time law didn't apply so differently, she'd just age and turn into an oldie with stretched wrinkles and white hair due to stress.

No one really aged until a certain point on Etheria.

"It's all left in the past. You're grown, she's grown, too. All the things she has done were provided by a childish motivation. Every sibling has a problem getting along with the other."

No, her relationship with her sister was never that easy.

Recalled like yesterday the bitter moments when her sister ruined her homework, broke her favorite weapons, told her friends lies so they would leave her eventually; simply anything that would get Angella to realize she has done a huge mistake choosing Glimmer.

When Glimmer mentioned that, Bow sighed deeply. "All I see is a girl who is desperate to prove herself to her mother."

Angella hasn't been always a great mother. Pressive, had anger issues, obsessed with royalness and discipline.

Glimmer was the golden one of her daughters, the perfect heir to the throne whereas her sibling didn't give a shit about anything.

All she wanted to do was mess around, and sleep with every single body she found esthetically pleasing from the outside.

"Plus, why did you want her to come at this hour?"

"I don't want anyone else to see her, yet. We have things to talk about first. "

They detected a time anomaly a few feet from their location. Pink patch of vortex split the air through. Blinding glow hurt Bow's eyes, whereas Glimmer stared firmly at it as her sister came from that shiny portal.

"Glimmer,"

"Shimmer."

Bow watched the two identical girls staring at each other. About to start the war of sparkles. Glimmer grimaced, all the bad memories with her twin sister reeled in her eyes.

"Missed me?"

"On the contrary."

"And here I thought queens are supposed to be loyal and kind. Look at you. You look nothing like mom-"

"Don't fucking dare to talk about mom. Don't."

The other abruptly stopped talking when Glimmer cut her off. Behind them, Bow's skin grew paler, as if seen a ghost.

Weird to see there were two of his wife standing nearby. Voices were indistinguishably alike.

Shimmer always has been the bitter, independent princess.

Clothing obeyed that trait perfectly. Dressing like a villain; tight shorts and cropped top, adjustable straps around her elbows, wrists, ankles, thighs, and knees, and steel knives were attached to them for her to sharply pull, and skillfully throw.

No one could hit a target better than Shimmer. She hit a bullseye whenever she wanted by giving curved acceleration. Regardless of how far she was, and how bad was the angle.

With an enhanced sense of direction and abilities that allowed her to use her teleportation powers parallel to gravity, she was unrivaled in physical combat.

Sisters completely the same, yet completely different, just like day and night.

"Hi, brother-in-law." Shimmer greeted Bow, waving her hand in the air.

"Hey, sister-in-law." Bow dipped his jaw in a solemn greeting.

"Sorry, I couldn't make time for your wedding."

Bow wanted to reply. Though his wife glanced at him over her shoulder and that was enough for him to get the message. He nodded before leaving the twins alone.

Glimmer's head remained in the same position until Bow was completely out of the scene.

Neck bones sharply swung to the side, allowing Glimmer to face her sister, again.

"You didn't even come to mom's funeral."

"I have been busy with the mission she sent me on. Now that you mentioned... Did she suffer? Before she died?"

Sounded like she was teasing. Tears stung Glimmer's eyes. Pain consumed her. No words would be enough to express the sadness she had stored in her heart.

Nearby stood a dull family member whose strings were poorly connected to their family bond. Shimmer didn't care. Didn't ask.

"Mission... My ass. If you would have bothered to come to the funeral, you would know."

Glimmer turned her back to the twin, clenching her fists.

"Don't cause any trouble here. Or you and I will finish what we have started years ago."

"Of course," Shimmer snickered. "The golden girl of our family. Now the fucking queen. All I have to do is obey and stay in your shadow, right? That's what you always wanted me to do."

Glimmer summoned her staff out of nowhere, which once belonged to her father, and faced her. Seemingly, Shimmer recognized it and let out another chuckle of crimson sorrow.

"I see... You even got his staff. What did I even expect. Who the fuck cares though. It wouldn't save you from my demolition."

Menacingly, Shimmer pulled a heavy, sharp knife out of the holster that was around her left ankle.

Bright pink stroke formed around her skin, glowing.

Staff dissolved. Glimmer's fists as a response buzzed as sparkly balls formed around them. Together, they caused illumination in the wide area.

They stared at each other like a bull and torero, just a breath away from bringing oblivion to their homeland.

Eleven seconds charged forward before their powers faded out, and the thick veil of darkness embraced the era, once more.

Game of death stares was over at last.

"A thousand and two hundred years, Shimmer. I heard nothing from you. Nothing. I wrote you letters. Sent you invitations. It was dad's, then Prince Peekablue's funeral day when you last showed up. Now you can't come back as if nothing ever happened."

Hearing about the former King left a dolorous lump in her throat. Hard to swallow. Hurting. However, Shimmer flashed an ear-to-ear grin at the end.

"Indeed, I got those invitations and letters."

"And you decided to not attend nor respond, despite I begged you to come, to be here with me. But no. You had to leave everything about your family behind. Even our enemies attended my coronation, my wedding, and mother's funeral but you.

My very own sister didn't have the slightest bit of kindness and dignity that even the people we call our enemies had. You still don't."

Queen's back was turned against her once more, once and for all this time. "Now don't expect me to show you love."

Shimmer locked eyes with Glimmer's moving body until it has become nothing but a dot on the horizon.

Sisters by blood. Not by the heart.

Over millennia, surely her room would be assigned to someone else, but Shimmer wasn't expecting to run into a scary lady with a mask that could shape the lady's facial features simultaneously.

Jet black hair seemed disturbingly messy. Claws were not making it any easier to look at her.

Funny to see her having tea time in the middle of the night under a lamp's sepia-toned illumination. A book was accompanying her.

"You're not Glimmer."

"And what might you be?"

"Shadow Weaver."

Shimmer barely stifled a laugh. "Seriously? Is that the best you could come up with?"

"You are connected to the Moonstone. Just like Glimmer. Twins as I may say."

Oh, how could she figure that out when she literally teleported in and she looked exactly like Glimmer?

Clap sounds were a sarcastic reward from the Queen's sister. "Bravo, hawk-eye." She mocked.

Shadow Weaver rose to her full height, slowly approaching Glimmer the 2nd.

"I sense pure negative energy from you. No wonder why no one has seen your face before. You don't belong here. No one understands you."

Shimmer couldn't care less.

"This room belongs to me, Sucker Whiner."

"It used to belong to you. Now it is a cell where my eternal captivity is held."

Laugh of pity came out of her lips when she heard that. Head shook to the two sides. No, even Glimmer couldn't be that stupid.

"A cell. This room. Haha...! Ha. Right."

Her back turned to the scary lady. Brief moment passed before Shimmer threw her head back to only laugh a little more. How stupid was her twin sister. Pure idiot.

"Honestly, what did expect from my fucking sister, anyway. Of course, this would be the way she ruled Bright Moon."

"Perhaps, you'd make a better Queen."

Shimmer's forehead got furrowed, an angry breath came out of her nostrils.

"Perhaps."

Then she teleported.

Very little changed in the room once her mother and father stayed. Nowadays, it was in the claws of her stupid twin and her stupider husband.

Waterfall inside of the huge room still flowed elegantly. Silky odors, shiny furniture, and rare gems decorated the whole area. On the edge, stood a king-sized mattress, big enough for six people to fit.

On the bed's left, there was a gigantic window that was wide open, letting the strong breezes of wind in. Shimmer stood before a frame where she and Glimmer were newborn babies in their parents' embrace.

Strange rustle caught her attention. Could it be Glimmer approaching?

Getting ready to teleport away, Shimmer stood in the middle of the room but stopped dead in her tracks once a 2 meters tall swordswoman in a red cape and white jumpsuit dragged herself inside by the window.

Her long golden hair was tied up in a ponytail. Cape swung side to side, reacting to the wind's impatient thrust. A thin sword she carried, whereas the other hand held an edict firmly.

"Hey, Glimmer. Glad I found you here. Sorry, I wouldn't have intruded if it wasn't urgent."

Countless girls she has slept with, that one completely changed her perspective of beauty. The moment her steel-blue eyes met her lavenders, blood gushed between her legs.

"Where have you been?"

Played along. If that woman could burst into somewhere private, she must have had an important role in Glimmer's game of chess.

The blonde one seemed confused, taken aback by the question.

"Umm, Winter Wonderland? You know, Frosta needed help with re-building a town. Are you okay?"

"I am. Hard day, as usual. What is that you're holding?"

"Frosta's invitation. For Princess Prom."

Stepped forward, to end up on Shimmer's side, putting a hand on her shoulder as a reassuring move.

"Horde wouldn't try anything in Frosta's castle. But... We don't have to join if you feel uncomfortable."

Shimmer gazed into the pair of blue eyes. Processing.

Could it be the goddess had feelings for her dumb sister? They must be close if she could just touch the queen like that. But Glimmer was married to that arrow guy.

Time would show what the deal was here. But already, Shimmer enjoyed the show so far. Should have come back much earlier.

"Oh, sweetie. We're definitely joining."

Bloody Raid

Chapter Summary

> Hordak's intentions don't fit with their deal. Shimmer goes on a raid among Princess Alliance to get a strategic location back from the Horde and Adora realizes she's flawless at martial arts, also at throwing knives.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

"Hey, Adora. I see you're back from Winter Wonderland."

Adora was in her ordinary form when she heard Bow greeting her in a jaded manner. King duties must have worn him out. Usually, he was beaming.

Her body went stiff from carrying lots of responsibilities on her shoulders. Not always easy to be everyone's hero, regardless of wielding the power of a legendary swordswoman.

"Yes. Just ran into Glimmer a while ago. Frosta invited us to Princess Prom and she told me it would be okay to attend."

"Good for her. Glimmer needs to have fun and I'm happy to acknowledge she doesn't mind being under the same roof with Catra."

"I know, right? A couple of days ago she was ready to tear Catra's limbs apart, now she takes it like a grown person. Not that I mean she's not mature, but... you know how she can get sometimes."

Bow's chin dipped low in agreement.

"How did the negotiation with Hordak go?"

Unwell. Clone with a disturbing face thought it was a good idea to raid Thaymor, one of the closest towns to Bright Moon without his elder brother, Horde Prime noticing. Refused to draw off the troops. Bet Catra led the raiding party earlier.

Nowadays all Prime wanted to do was watch black flags his face drawn on it floating in the air elegantly. Peace, order, and unity was his wish, whereas his clone brother defy that will.

"Seems we won't be getting Thaymor back if we don't go berserk. Hordak wants to fight. Surely, Catra is the one who's blurring his mind. Implying he must do this if he wants Prime to reward him."

"If a fight is what he wants, he's so gonna get it. Gather the Princess Alliance in the council room tomorrow."

Adora shut the eyelids heavily, using it as a gesture to point out her agreement. Stifling tension in the air screamed there was something major occurring. Better not ask. Dealing with Bow's wretched mood in the dead of night would be insufferable.

Bow marched forward and Adora simultaneously tracked the opposite path leading to her personal space. Keenly she longed for the deep sleep dreaming.

"Have you seen Glimmer's twin sister?"

King's question stopped Adora. Over shoulder glance allowed the pair of blue rounds to find Bow's tensed posture.

"I haven't."

"Thanks anyway. Night."

"Night."

Feet carried Adora through the hallway. Right before turning the corner, Adora abruptly stopped. Body switched to the other direction completely, although Bow was gone.

"... Glimmer has a twin sister?!"

Emergency meetings at the council room happened too often lately. Glimmer has been tense. Such a tactical location as Thaymor was a big loss in their favor. The most important clause of the ceasefire agreement signed between the Horde and Bright Moon was ignored. New skirmishes lingered at the door. War seemed to never end, regardless of how hard Glimmer tried to negotiate.

"Seems informing Horde Prime about his brother's action won't be much of a help. He doesn't want to be involved in anything Hordak does. Technically, he's respecting the terms of the deal, though Hordak's actions are still impermissible."

Tensed voice of the queen provided a thick tension in the room. All the princesses remained muted. Apparently, no princess was able to focus on today's meeting when there were two Glimmers.

Silence suffocated Adora. Clearing her throat with a few coughs snapped the princesses out of delusion. Now they all stared at her, waiting for a counter-speech. For once their focus wasn't on Shimmer, who sat as far as possible from her sister, uninterested.

"There are neutral zones where the flag of Bright Moon doesn't float. Hordak didn't attack any of those zones but the ones that are officially under the wings of our kingdom. That's why he doesn't raid any other princesses' regions. He wants us to keep our hands away from outside of Bright Moon."

"So, they won't ruin Princess Prom. We can all go and get fucking wasted."

Rude interruption from Shimmer who has been skillfully spinning one of her knives in hand, left everyone speechless, including Adora, Glimmer, and Bow. She was exactly told to keep her mouth shut throughout the meeting.

Under siege of wide eyes, Shimmer pushed her chair back. Knife on her hand went back into its place in Shimmer's elbow holster. Feet insolently subsided into the large round table. Her arms rested on the back of the chair.

"You dimwitted clowns don't do anything fun here?"

Mermista went limp in her chair, throwing her head back to let out a long, annoyed grunt. "Glimmer, tell Glimmer to shut up."

Bonded steed of Adora, an alicorn, spread his wings widely, excited. "No, she has a point. We can get Thaymor back after da parteey!"

"Swift Wind!"

"What? Aren't you bored of yelling for the honor of Grayskull and turning into a taller woman with a sword who jumps around all the time?"

"I don't—what?!"

So, the one they called Adora was that swordswoman she ran into yesterday. Most likely she was dumbfounded when she found out it wasn't Glimmer she spoke to last night. Shimmer would have given her two arms to see the stupid astonishment on her face.

"Shimmer, get out."

"I have a right to be here."

"No, you don't."

"I am a princess, too, am I not? Or do you think I'm not sparkly enough to be the princess of Bright Moon?"

Now she decided to remember the fact she was the princess of Bright Moon. Funny, 'cause Shimmer never attended to the formal invitations they were required to attend. Funnier, that she wanted to attend an important meeting, excusing herself as a princess, part of Princess Alliance.

Their parents have vanished long ago, it would only be fair if the two attended such important events in the name of their family and homeland. Hundreds of invitations from Glimmer, yet thousands of words remained unread, disregarded.

"Oh yeah? Where was that princess when her queen called her to attend places, or just when she needed her?" Glimmer spat furiously. Hot steam came out of her nose and ears. Face was red from anger, serious, menacing. "Not only have you disrespected our family legacy, but you also have tarnished our family name with your tomfoolery."

Bored obviously, Shimmer pressed the back of her head against the chair. What did her sister just say didn't matter to her, neither did her presence.

"Very cool. You done?"

Bow's hand landed on Glimmer's shoulder, soothing her. Anger consumed her whole being, it just wasn't fitting right in front of all the princesses. They didn't deserve to observe the circus act.

A long sigh helped Glimmer's nerves with relaxing before the speech.

"Thaymor is too valuable, militarily important and the locals are our resource suppliers. We can't leave that town to Hordak's clutches."

Queen rose from her mighty chair about to declare her decision. Palms firmly pressed on the wooden texture. Brows were arched down, drawing a serious sentiment over her face.

"Meet me at the Moonstone Chamber. We're going to get Thaymor back."

As long as Princess Alliance stuck together, Glimmer would not have to need any big army. Glimmer alone was strong; together they were undefeatable. No army could match their combined power.

Princesses popped out of a pink vortex that Glimmer teleported them through, right in the middle of Thaymor. One by one, princesses showed off their unique powers.

Mermista suffocated them underwater. Perfuma's living ivies dashed from underground, holding enemies tied, hostage.

"My turn!" Frosta chirped, veneering her fists with ice, her kind of knuckledusters. She literally hammered whoever dared to stand in her path.

Married couple Spinerella and Netossa had their own way of fun. Each time one of them slew a Horde soldier, they counted. One with the highest number of fallen soldiers would win.

War wasn't that serious it seemed since people could host childish competitions like that, thought Shimmer who watched the action from sideways. However, Glimmer was fighting elegantly. Moves were smooth, like a dance. One deadly dance. Teleportation powers carried her to place non-stop, it was hard to keep a track of what she was doing.

"For the honor of Grayskull!"

Shimmer cocked an eyebrow watching Adora transform into the goddess she has seen yesterday. Vigorous, full of power and confidence she had in that form, understandably. Single-handedly she picked up a tank and threw it over a group of Horde scums.

"Ughh, guess it's my turn or whatever now."

The second sparkly one cracked her knuckles. Neck bones crunched for stretch purposes. Shimmer moved smooth and relaxed as if she wasn't in the middle of a skirmish but at a fun patrol. Truth to be told, she was amused watching these amateurs.

Unlike her twin sister, Shimmer used her teleportation powers only when necessary. Physical combat was something she was perfect at. Knives got pulled out of the holsters.

Swing to the side. Dodge, duck, kick. Somersaults decorated her fighting style. Each jab was deadly, knives ended up right in someone's heart or tore them apart completely.

Her back pressed against a body. Felt as hard as a bricked wall. Skull turned half axis to allow Shimmer to see who it was standing right behind her.

"Neat skills." Adora's teeth-exposing grin illuminated her face brightly.

Counter-grin formed upon Shimmer's face as she pulled another knife from the ankle holster. She spun it in her hand swiftly, putting up a whirligig show for the blonde one.

"You have seen nothing."

Wink. The knife flew out of Shimmer's grasp. Defying the laws of physics, it dashed in a semicircle and passed from Adora's side, so near her ear, stuck into the right eye of a soldier who was about to attack her.

Horde scum's lips parted with a soft gasp, in the realization of death. Right side of his face turned into a pool of blood as he fell to his knees.

Shimmer went forward to pull out the knife. Those knives were too valuable to stay on corpses. No knives left behind.

Adora nodded, impressed. Shimmer charged forward, and Adora dashed in the opposite direction, finding opponents to try new skills and moves.

In less than 10 minutes, the flag of Horde was nothing more than a doormat. Crushed, humiliated under the feet of Princess Alliance. Celebrations and banters got going. Everyone was smiling but Bright Moon twins. Shimmer kept her distance away from the others and Glimmer often lost herself in the horizon, engulfed.

A wide trunked tall tree accompanied Shimmer. Her back pressed against the hard texture of wood, lips were dry, hands were covered in blood.

Lavender eyes met one another. Hatred burned in the sisters' years of dissociation. Their poignant silence had a language too, but their hearts perhaps, wouldn't have desired to hear out.

"Best Friend Squad did it again."

"I'll drink to that."

Bow and Adora cheered. Below the couple's roof, hot raspberries of red wine wandered through their throats. Glimmer's mood was soured ever since her twin showed up. The other two thought it would be a nice distraction for her, however, their plan ended up in the failure basket.

"Are you saving your energetic vibes for prom?" Adora joked, attempting to break the disturbing cage of doom around them.

"I'm not going."

"Glimmer, what?!"

"... the fuck?" Disappointment followed Adora's voice.

Under Glimmer's annoyed solemnity, they exchanged anxious glances. All princesses would attend this prom. Rejecting it would be the rudest thing to do, out of etiquette.

"Glimmer... this is the princess prom. Your attendance would mean a lot to Frosta. Very well you know how Scorpia and Catra ruined it hundreds of years ago. Makes this prom more important than ever, as it's her chance to show everyone how much she's grown."

"Will be good for her reputation, too. Please, my love. Consider it. You could use some fun. We can all go together as we did on Perfuma's prom." Bow's dark eyes stopped upon Adora, then on his wife, again.

Queen sighed indecisively. Last time it went pleasant. The three of them danced, got wasted, and sang until no air was left in their lungs. Could be fun and soothing. She owed this to Frosta, her loyal warrior, anyway.

Glimmer could have been able to finally get her mind off from...

"I'm going with Shimmer."

"WHAT THE FUCK?"

Chapter End Notes

Hope you like it!
Feel free to tell me about your opinion if you feel extra generous ^^
Thanks for reading! <3

We Are Going to Princess Prom

Chapter Summary

Glimmer doesn't approve of Adora going to prom with her twin sister. Adora wants to understand why. Though, Glimmer's interfering with her life is becoming annoying. That prom, provides some hidden secrets to reveal.

Chapter Notes

What is this? Author updating regularly?
NO FUCKING WAY! Enjoy, party people!
You can help me improve by leaving comments, thanks folks!

"Adora, you don't know what kind of a troublemaker Shimmer is."

"I don't, because you didn't tell me anything about her properly. What is so wrong with me going to prom with your twin sister?"

Glimmer chewed her bottom lip. A sign of her high level of stress. Shimmer and Adora going to prom together? It would always be the three of them in such events.

Only once when Sea Hawk was away from Salineas, did Adora attend to prom alongside Mermista.

Other than that, she'd always be alone, regardless of how Bow and Glimmer were on her side. She never actually had a plus one. Glimmer had to give a proper reason for forbidding Adora going to prom with a literal partner.

"Shimmer doesn't take anything seriously. All she wants to do is goof around, shatter things and sleep with every person she finds attractive. My mother sent her on a never-ending mission for a reason, Adora. If you don't trust my word, at least think about why mom would send her own daughter away forever."

Adora shook her head to the sides disapprovingly. Golden locks in the tight ponytail swayed sides in harmony.

"This is just prom. And she's a princess, she has a right to be there."

"You don't understand!"

"I do," A hand hung in the middle of the air for silencing purposes. "When we first formed up the Princess Alliance, our motto was No Princess Left Behind, remember? I'll just be her plus one, okay? That's not the end of the world."

Sharp curses burst from Glimmer's lips. Dirty words were unusual and repulsive. Eventually, the queen was soothed by the help of a deep exhale that briefly provided a moment of silence.

"I see, Adora. All I wanted to do was protect you from her unstable states. Well clear that you won't listen to me. Fine, go ahead, try and see for yourself."

No room left for debate. Glimmer dragged herself to the huge bed, pulling the blanket up until it covered her puffy pink locks. Adora's sigh followed that move and she turned toward the door to get out.

Bow tailed her outside in an attempt to smooth things between his wife and best friend.

"Hey, please don't mind her. She's not herself since Shimmer is back."

"I know her, Bow. No doubt she'll eventually realize her mistake but I'd like to not get judged by my decisions. I can take care of myself and I am a grown person."

Bow's head moved up and down understandingly.

"This I agree with you. Don't tell her I said this but I think it would be better to win Shimmer over instead of making her feel unwanted. Maybe then Shimmer can be a part of the alliance as well."

"Oh, she should. Her skills are flawless."

Presenting in Winter Wonderland castle for a formal invitation again after years triggered déjà vu. As if Catra and Scorpia would have just popped up from the corner any second to ruin it for everyone.

Shimmer and Adora fled to the closest dining table lined with faux candles standing in decorative bright candlesticks. They cheered for the beginning of their friendship, toasting.

Adora liked that girl. She wasn't as bad as Glimmer mentioned. Though the flirtatious vibes were confirming Glimmer's words about her sleeping with everyone she saw. Which was fine by her. No harm was in having some fun.

An attractive one was Shimmer. Lots of women and some men who were supposed to be plus ones for the princesses, ditched their partners to just have a drink with Shimmer, the new, famous princess.

"I heard stories about your unending missions. Myths say you killed the cursed dragon of the Death Valley single-handedly."

"I did. Thanks for getting us the drinks, shrimp."

Nope, he wasn't getting into the second sparkly one's panties tonight. Another new name to Shimmer's list of rejected men. Adora watched the man leave in disappointment.

Shimmer's whole attention locked on Adora, again, as she dragged her aside, extending the gap between them and the crowd.

Soft music brought sensorial satisfaction. Tempered glasses carrying the most qualified drinks were often clinked. The solid ice walls delivered pulsating cold breezes.

Alcohol kept them warm, at least.

Adora's eyes carefully followed Shimmer's every move, and she grinned when she finished her glass at once.

"Hard fighter, hard drinker."

"Do you know what else I am? A hard kisser."

"Interesting. Don't mind if I do."

Adora's kind of party it was. Had a moment to remember, also to forget later on. Princess prom was supposed to be a fun party. Free and careless. Where she could do whatever she pleased.

Fun, something Adora aimed to get for herself after a long time.

Needed distraction just like everyone else.

Shimmer got settled on the table by her strong arms. Some of the dirty plates and glasses fell onto the ground, shattering into countless pieces.

Kisses began at a wild pace already, no time to play around as the two desired each other for one night. Well-defined lips detached from Shimmer's to land upon her neck.

Teeth joined the foreplay game, getting sunk into the fresh flesh. Shimmer grinned ear-to-ear, pressing at the back of Adora's head.

People minded their business. No one bothered to look at them while having a blast; dancing, drinking, bantering around, and making out as a preparation for some thrilling sports to perform late at night.

Countless pleadings of Bow paid off. Glimmer made it to the prom with her husband. Frosta was honored to have the queen at a ball she hosted. Still recalled the last time like yesterday. When Glimmer was only a princess back then.

Bow's eye-catching white jacket combined with loose navy pants and brown leather shoes.

Glimmer had a strapless dress in purple, decorated with pale pink straps forming an "X" above her chest and her back. The skirt was puffy and had a layer below colored a few shades lighter than the color of the skirt. A black choker was a cherry on top, completing her outfit.

"Would like to dance?"

"Bow," Glimmer's stare of death consumed him. "You know that I only agreed to come because I don't want Shimmer to cause any trouble. We are, well, I am keeping an eye on her. Don't expect me to do anything else."

A deep, long sigh exposed his disappointment.

"Would you like another drink, then?"

"Yes, please."

After her husband's departure, Glimmer located her arms above the edges of the balcony as her lavender eyes observed the whole hall.

Dozens of couples bantering, and drinking; some of them were making out in public. The scenery wasn't that absurd there with people being too wasted.

Just a breath away from the wild dancers, her lavenders picked up the two familiar figures she hated most in her life.

Princess Scorpia, the half-scorpion figure was at the top of the list of the most powerful princesses in Etheria.

And...

Catra.

Glimmer teleported to Frosta's side who was busy seeing a few of her guests off early.

"Thank you for attending. It was an honor to have you here. Oh, hey, Glimmer. What's with the angry face? Is everything alri __"

"Did you seriously invite them?"

Frosta's brows arched up, curling into a sad confusion. Over the queen's shoulder, she has seen Scorpia and Catra having snacks together. Sparkly drinks were in their clutch.

The two have been doing nothing else other than that.

Winter Wonderland's security measures taken for the party were top-notch. No reports about Horde soldiers sneaking inside were given.

A fact; Scorpia attended both Angella's and King Micah's funeral, as an honorable nemesis and probably she wouldn't have tried anything there just now.

"I invited Scorpia, Catra must be her plus one. Please, relax."

Defying the queen. Nothing new. Glimmer could never reign as her mother used to do. Angella was feared, and respected, whereas nobody took Glimmer seriously nowadays. Not her union, nor her husband, nor her best friend.

"Keep an eye on them."

When she turned back, her heart got struck with a sharp ache seeing Adora, kissing her twin sister out of control. On a dining table. The red velvet dress was lowered from the shoulder straps enough for Glimmer to see the edges of Adora's muscled rounds on her chest.

Forgotten about Scorpia and Catra's presence already, Glimmer watched in bewilderment the way Adora snuck her tongue inside Shimmer's mouth, battling with hers. Hands tightly gripped her hips, squeezing harshly.

Glimmer grimaced, clenching her teeth hard enough to hurt her gums.

Was it anger she felt rising inside? Was it the bothersome fact Adora defied her?

Teleportation powers carried her to their side. Her sudden appearance startled the other two who were already aroused.

All the buttons on Shimmer's black shirt were undone. Belt was loose, hanging from the waistline of her tight, black pants. Those military boots completed her all-in-black villain look. Hardly a suitable outfit for a formal occasion that Shimmer couldn't care less about.

"What? Do you want to join? Aww."

Shimmer teased, wiping the edge of her mouth with her fist as she stared at her twin smugly.

"See, Adora? I told you. That's exactly why they still don't have any children. Arrow boy's dick is broken."

Without a single word, Glimmer grabbed Adora's arm to teleport them outside. Into a devastating blizzard. The breeze was wild, strong enough to hurt their ears. Adora hugged herself and was literally shivering.

"Glimmer... what the hell do you think you're doing?"

"What do you think you're doing with stuffing your tongue into my sister's throat like that?"

"I think I am having fun? Something you need to do."

"Having fun?"

Glimmer turned a cold eye on her, insisting on boring the icy stare into her, making it hard not to back away. Muscles in the jaw flicked angrily.

"Since when your definition of fun is having one-night stands?"

"A while. But you wouldn't know that. You first have to make time and ask me to know things about me."

Arms crossed tightly across Adora's chest. Words came out as furious mutterings under her breath.

"What is that supposed to mean?"

"I don't know, you tell me. As someone who began to act like I don't exist in your life after your marriage, bet it would be easier for you to do it."

Recoiled in horror, Glimmer's breath caught in her throat. Overwhelmed, disappointed, and grieved; pungent anguish devoured her whole being.

The queen stood frozen, her hands dangling from her sides.

"How can you say that?! I-I never distanced me from you. Nothing has changed since Bow and I got married."

Hands waved around in a hysteric rhythm as she raged, gesturing at nothingness.

Adora crushed the bones in her neck, throwing her head back to laugh a bit, in pity.

"You're so distant from me that you don't pay attention to my existence anymore. Glim, you don't ask me how am I doing at all. Have no idea why, but there is a barrier between us now, and you put it there. Now you can't just interfere with my life like that."

Glimmer's jaw clenched visibly. Her lips parted, showing some of her bright teeth which were the new definition of white. She very slowly straightened her back, which had just been bent forward when she spat a moment ago.

"Is that all you have got to say?"

"Stop acting hysterical and realize this... you don't get to berate me for anything. Neither for your stress about your queen duties nor for me about to screw your sister. That's all I have got to say."

The blonde one's chest expanded as her shoulders got pulled back, portraying her as a bigger and more fierce woman walking through the blizzard back to the castle. Leaving Glimmer behind in agony.

Glimmer wasn't mad.

She was jealous.

Especially now that the hidden feelings she had for Adora that she buried deep inside her heart were digging their way out of her ribs.

Hottest Kitty Ever

Chapter Summary

Glimmer has to take care of her wounds from the past whereas Shimmer meets someone who she should not.

Chapter Notes

Hope you like it!
Tell me about your opinion below.

Thanks!
Enjoy, party people =D

Right in where she left her. Shimmer sat at the table, her legs dangling.

“I thought you decided to fuck my twin instead."

“No chance. Come here, you.”

Strong arms covered Shimmer’s whole being. Her curved lips wandered on her neck. A mischievous grin appeared across Adora’s face as she pulled back to look at Shimmer.

“Get us out of here. Frosta has spare rooms upstairs.” Adora demanded.

“Only on one condition,” Shimmer uttered breathlessly. Inhales were swift, sharp enough to make her dizzy. “You’ll turn into that beast while we fuck.”

Adora grinned, picking the smaller girl into her arms.

“I’ll make you scratch the ground for calling She-Ra a beast.”

Horny smirks hung from their lips. Teeth were brightly exposed. Their bodies clung to one another. Adora stood with Shimmer on her lap and Shimmer teleported them into an empty room upstairs.

Glimmer’s lavenders picked that moment, bang on time. Unable to blink, she couldn’t do anything else than stare in fascinated horror at the place where her twin and best friend were last seen. Her agony had faded to a dull throb, replaced with anger.

“Darling, I have been looking for you everywhere.”

Bow literally has wasted a quarter of an hour with a drink in his hand, searching for Glimmer nearby.

Seeing steams of anger rising from his wife's ears, he carefully set the glass in his hand on the nearest table. Soft hands massaged Glimmer’s tense shoulders.

“Okay. What did Shimmer do this time?”

“Adora is fucking my sister right now.”

“Most people are fucking right now, Glimmer.” Bow gestured at the couples in the corners making out passionately. Well, almost fucking.

Furious spin brought Glimmer’s angered face to Bow’s service, startling him. He has seen Glimmer’s anger controlling her many times, however, this one was unlike her.

Bottled up and all red; dangerous grenade that its pin already pulled off and flying to deliver destruction to wherever it decides to land.

“S-since when do you care about Adora’s private life like that?”

“Bow.” Glimmer spat under the dark clouds of anger. “It is my sister she’s fucking.”

“And? What exactly is bothering you with that?”

Arms got crossed over his chest. His eyebrows arched up in a questioning vibe.

“If I didn't know you, I would think you were in love with Adora.”

Rush of adrenaline gave Glimmer headaches. No wings to cover her, protect her from the fact that she denied for so long.

Before the queen duties called, it was only Adora and Glimmer hanging out every single day.

Bow accompanied them most of the time, though, there were some sincere moments they had in private. The moments that caused Glimmer to pick up feelings.

Adora’s kindness was what made Glimmer start to fall for her. They had those sleepovers without Bow knowing, chatting about almost anything. Including explicit stuff.

Glimmer told only Adora about the embarrassing moments of her first kiss. In response, Adora admitted that she accidentally turned into She-Ra out of panic during her first love affair.

Laughter filled the room after their reciprocal confession.

Too loud that Bow heard them, eventually found out about their secret sleepovers. Offended at the fact he wasn't invited, though he eventually realized that long-night gossip had an important place in the girls' world.

“Give me some time alone.”

“But Glimmer—”

“No one takes me seriously! At least, can you?”

Taken aback, startled, Bow’s face instantly fell. Disappeared into the crowd, gathering his shattered pieces of heart into a jar of lament. Glimmer remained in the middle of the hall, unable to make up her mind.

To walk in on them, or not to walk in on them.

That was the question.

Shimmer was having one of the best sex in her life. Rough, passionate, and long-lasting.

She-Ra’s energy seemed to never end.

Brought all the good vibes, found all the sensitive spots easily. Lips refused to leave any bit on Shimmer's clean skin unloved.

Crackling sounds from the bed filled their ears as Adora thrusted her fist inside her, serving her roughly. Each thrust rewarded Adora with long, musical moans from satisfaction.

Often Shimmer whined her name out loud, grinning when Adora choked her. A sign of She-Ra, the glowing beast’s domination.

“Nah, you can’t come just now. Serves you right for calling She-Ra a beast.”

Another denied orgasm. Adora turned her over and forced Shimmer on her knees and palms on the solid ground, pressing her head into the tile.

Harsh smack left a crimson red handprint on her left hip. Shimmer yelped involuntarily, wiggling her hips like an obedient dog.

Adora kept her promise when she bent a knee to give herself a better angle. Thrusting from behind; Shimmer was literally scratching the floor, clenching her teeth with joy mixed with solid pain.

In and out. Non-stop friction carried Shimmer over to the edge. Hoped Adora wouldn't just stop and deny her again which she did not.

Orgasm kicked in hard and Shimmer squirted equal to a waterfall's flow, making a mess in Adora's hand and on the floor.

Adora stood up, sucking her fingers clean. "Thanks for the good time. It was a blast."

"My pleasure."

"Brilliant choice of words."

Minutes dashed forward, bringing the beautiful night to an end. Ballroom was less crowded since last seen. Most couples and partners left.

A pleasant ball it was, thanks to Frosta's royal hosting.

Bow personally went to her side, shaking hands in a dynastic manner. Mentioned how enjoyable it has been, even though he had no chance to enjoy it properly.

"Where's the Queen?"

Hell if Bow knew.

After witnessing her best friend screw her twin sister before her eyes, she teleported off to somewhere. Wanting to be alone, obviously.

In these angered moments, Bow was aware of Glimmer's wish for solitude.

Ultimate hero popped up out of nowhere. Palm gently landed upon Bow's shoulder to make her presence realized.

“Why are you alone?”

“Glimmer stormed off and doesn’t want to see anyone.”

Including him. Harrowing fact had him dearly upset.

Shimmer went downstairs to have one last drink. Couldn't wait to try more of the bitter liquor she had tasted a little before the sex session.

Genuinely a disgusting liquid that left a bad taste in the throat, numbing it down to the windpipe. She didn’t grimace. Tasted much stronger drinks than this before.

Soft, neat fingers reached for another drink. Someone else’s hand also dashed in the same direction. Their palms brushed against each other, leaving a slight trail of warmth.

Intense perfume odor wrinkled Shimmer’s nose. Beside her stood a cat figure in a maroon tuxedo. Black suspenders adorned her formal outfit.

Their looks kind of matched and Shimmer got it as an excuse to get to know that hot stuff.

“Long time no see, kitty.”

Cat arched an eyebrow, her head turning half axis to see who was daring to talk to her. Holding a plate in the air, she stared at the other one dully.

“Get back to your sister. I’m not someone should you mess with.”

“Single glance and you just found out I’m not Glimmer. Perfect.”

“Well, that dressing code defies her sense of fashion and I would recognize her scent anywhere.”

"You smelled my sister?"

Cat's lips lifted up, forming a slight, mischievous smirk.

"My sense of hearing and smell are supernatural. And my sight is gifted. Much stronger than anyone else's."

"I like it."

"Your sister doesn't."

Each word spilled sharply out of her defined lips. Smirk on her face was menacing, silent as if the calm before the storm. Cat winked under her eyebrows before she took off with the plate in her hand, carrying a glass of alcohol in the other one.

Shimmer watched the other one walk to a scorpion figure's side, chatting with her casually.

Whoever that was, she needed to find out.

Adora found Glimmer at the top of the Bright Moon Castle, sitting with her knees pulled up to her chest. Arms were tied around them.

Climbed to the highest peak. Sure, Glimmer would have been here, enjoying the solitude. Or just engulfing between the thoughts.

They used to sit on the roof watching the moon so often, but it all changed. Nothing was the same as before since Glimmer had become the queen after her mother's death.

"Can I come if it's still our secret place to chat?"

"Why are you even here?"

Lavenders remained off of Adora. It was more appealing to watch the artistic bright lines drawn by the dazzling moon across the sky.

"Why wouldn't I be?" asked Adora as she settled herself beside her.

One leg laid along the bright tiles of the roof whilst the other was bent up. Her elbow rested on her knee and she tried to understand what Glimmer was seeing in that motionless moon image over the sky.

"Thought you would be busy banging my sister tonight."

"Why it is that much of a problem for you?"

Head swung in Adora's direction. Threatening eyes contained a trembling trace of her heart raging inside her ribs. Glimmer stood up and stared at her eyes behind a veil of disappointed anger.

"Everyone defies me. Even you, as my best friend and the second in command in Bright Moon, are doing this. Why are you doing this to me?"

Adora was startled by her sudden rise. To align their eyes better, she rose to her height, trying her best to retain her balance on the roof. Not like she had teleportation powers to save herself in case she fell off. In that case, she was unsure if Glimmer would save her or not, if that ever happened anyway.

"Stop, Glimmer." Hand hung in the air firmly. "We both know this isn't the case. You have been drawn away from me the entire time. Now just when I decide to have some fun, you begin to care about what I do. Tell me the exact reason. Why are you like this?!"

Her questioning octave rose higher at the end of each full stop. Eventually, she was growling at her queen. In return, Glimmer hissed, her eyes narrowing.

However, the queen remained silent.

Adora nodded to the sides in disapproval, there she had a pitying facial expression across her face.

"Hah. That's what I thought. You're fucking jealous that it wasn't you, right?"

Schlaack!

Right on her cheek, Glimmer delivered a slap. Hard enough to trigger her nosebleed. Adora's head turned to the opposite side due to the strong blast.

Her lips gaped slightly. A scoff leaked from Adora. When her head was forced to swing to the side, she stared at the first place her eye came across for a while before facing the queen.

"You made your choice long ago..." She wiped her bleeding nose with her fist. Crimson blood left a trail on her skin. "You have chosen Bow, now fucking live with it."

Adora had already begun to take on her legendary warrior form as she tumbled hundreds of meters into the void.

Who got left behind in tears, could only ignore the breaking of her bones under the crushing weight of harsh truths.

"Look who it is... Missed me?"

"Cut the crap, Shadow Weaver."

"Calling me with my name? Oh, what do I owe the honor?"

Shimmer shifted her weight on one leg. A hand rested on her hip. Cynical smirk greeted the scary lady. Eyebrows were playing around, decorating her smug expression by arching up.

"Do you know anything about the cat girl who my sister doesn't like very much?"

Shadow Weaver's hands connected over her stomach. Wasn't visible, but Shimmer could have sworn that the lips of the horrific face curled into a smile behind the mask.

"That would be Catra."

A wildcat named Catra. Pretty original. "Do you know who is she?"

"Someone you must stay away from."

Once Upon a Time in the Horde

Chapter Summary

Glimmer is away for a formal invitation, tsk. It's Adora who has to step up as a leader. Shimmer discovers the connection between Adora and Catra, and well, a way to calm Adora down.

Chapter Notes

Winx Club's Stella of Solaria has nothing to do with our plot, don't worry. XD I was just lazy to come up with an excuse to take Glimmer away temporarily.
As for the porn addicted people, the next chapter is probably what you're looking for, but not with your dream couple perhaps. We still have 1 or 2 chapters to get to the sweet fantasy bits, then I promise to give you what you wanted. :D

Enjoy, party people!
Don't be shy to reward me with Kudos and Comments (more appericiated if you provide feedback so I can improve myself to bring better with every chapter for you -sly smile- seeya!)

Hmm... Mara, Serenia, Jewelstar, Sea Hawk, Bont & Bolt twins, Bayezid, Dino, Abigail, Huntara... A couple hundred or more different names but the same, old stories about them.

Shimmer eyed the never-ending list of the names of the people she fucked with. Divided them into a couple of tiers. Some were incredible, some were nothing more than solid disappointment.

Lames stood for the average people who didn’t go anywhere near satisfying her. Uglies too partook in that tier alongside the disgraced performers.

Ones with bad performance but good face lined beneath Sloppies tier.

Good-faced and intense satisfaction providers were under Stars tier.

And Perfections.

Shimmer gave it a short thought before her fountain pen moved along the page beneath the last tier.

Adora

Who had an important place in Glimmer's kingdom. Second in command, the grand vizier, chief, warlord, or whatever one wanted to call her. Way too valuable; diplomatic and emotionally important figure for the queen.

From what she saw, Adora had an interest in Glimmer in the past, but seemingly they fell apart after her sister married Bow. Her twin was a pure idiot for not picking Adora over that arrow fella.

Shimmer would have picked Adora without thinking twice.

Nevertheless, the commitment would be a trait objecting against her freedom addiction. A daredevil such as her would have never gone into a serious togetherness.

Glimmer's loss though. In fact, she could have kept Adora to herself just to piss her twin off even more. But her time wasn't that insignificant to play serious games around.

The only reason she returned to the kingdom years later was to prove to everyone that Angella had made a huge mistake by declaring Glimmer as regent. Shimmer knew better to rule such a strong empire than her twin. A throne of infinite power could not lift a soft-hearted person who lost focus by being constantly manipulated by her emotions.

Very soon everyone would have seen who was worthy of that throne. Funniest fact would be when Glimmer would have to resign by her own will, due to her embarrassing ruling style. Even before Shimmer had to do anything to gain the throne.

It was what it was. Instead of wasting time thinking about what would happen when the future was as clear as water, she took one last look at the list in her notebook which she was very careful not to show anyone.

Fountain pen moved below Adora's name on the page, unsure. Shimmer squinted her eyes, fingers elegantly moved to shape the letters after a moment of silence thinking about it.

Catra (?)

Time had shown its brutal side, not waiting for anyone who lingered behind. Weeks passed by bringing new memories with fresh wounds.

Glimmer began to dismiss her duties, to be manipulated by her haunting emotions just as her sister had expected of her. Both as a queen and as a wife she neglected all of her obligations. It was mostly Adora who took care of her duties instead and the sexual intercourses with Bow... could have been always better.

When Stella of Solaria sent an invitation to her wedding, Bow and Glimmer had to attend since it would be rude not to.

Adora led the weekly meetings of Princess Alliance in Glimmer's absence. Princesses adjusted to the new order without the queen swiftly since Shimmer looked exactly like her.

As if the queen never left.

"We've been over this. Stop staring at her, Entrapta."

"But she is sooo unique!"

Mermista groaned. "We literally have another one of that girl."

"Can I have a sample of her DNA at least?"

"Entrapta!"

Adora's demanding voice from the high octave provided silence. Palms rested against the wooden texture of their round table. The queen's chair was hers until Glimmer came back. She represented the queen so successfully as a regent that it would not have been odd if she continued to sit in that chair even after Glimmer's return.

"Horde's silence worries me. Not a single day ended without them raiding somewhere a couple of weeks ago. Right now, they act like they are absent, but this silence is just a veil for them to hide the evil deeds they do in the background secretly. Until further notice, I want you princesses to get back to your castles and arrange your armies for a potential skirmish. That way we can avoid them sneaking into your land. If one of you gets raided, use the distress beacon. But only after you make sure it is a real raid. Not a distraction for us to rush and leave Bright Moon unprotected."

Shimmer observed the way Adora's brows arched down as she spoke about something serious. Adora's knowledge of war was impeccable. She thought of every possible scenario and took precautions accordingly.

Worthy of being the second in command. Though, a detail got Shimmer confused.

How did she know about all this stuff?

From what she remembered, Bright Moon has never taught war lore that detailed.

"Hordak and Catra won't hesitate to take over if we stumble. We have to be careful, always vigilant, and prepared. Otherwise, the consequences will be harsh and we'll suffer."

Shimmer scoffed. "Why are you so afraid of her?"

"I'm not afraid of her. I just know her ways."

"Okay, how the hell? Tell me now 'cause I'm literally the only one who doesn't know anything about our enemies. How can you expect me to join your alliance if you keep me out of the things?"

"Right... you deserve to know."

Story was long-lasting but a lot instructional. According to Adora, Horde kidnapped newborn babies from their families and recruited them as soldiers.

Sad fact Adora was one of the unfortunate babies torn away from her parents.

Parents of the abducted babies were killed so that there would be no evidence of their grim sin left. Babies when they grew went into hard training, getting ready for the Horde army.

That was when Adora and Catra met. Together they shone among the other soldiers; instinctively gifted, stronger, and quicker than their peers. Both were quick to react to Shadow Weaver's commands.

"Wait... that creepy folk is a former commander of the Horde?"

Adora's jaw dipped low to justify her claim.

"She taught us a lot. Catra and I eventually got promoted from Cadets to Force Captains, the most authorized people after Shadow Weaver. We did so many bad things under the wings of Hordak's deceiving words. Hordak sent me to a town to stop rebels from forming an army. But it turned out these rebels were civilians. In embarrassment, I left the Horde after I killed a town full of innocent people in my last raid with Catra."

Shimmer propped her chin above her hands, listening closely. Adora's whole life was based on harsh milestones. Torn apart from her parents brutally. Went into bone-breaking training for her whole childhood. A scar through her left eyebrow was there forever to remind her about the pathetic past she had.

After considering the entire tale, Shimmer realized that there wasn't much difference between their lives. Shimmer too was torn apart from her family. One bitter detail, her own mother has done this to her whereas Adora wasn't given a choice since she was a newborn.

"Why did Catra not come with you?"

All widened eyes in the council room landed on Shimmer in bewildernment. Adora's face immediately fell and tears slightly formed in her steel-blue eyes. Struck a nerve obviously. Catra and Adora had a relationship more than being co-workers, Shimmer thought.

Albeit her voice becoming hoarse, Adora kept going.

"Catra was obsessed with power. Always wanted more. Once we got promoted, she aimed for higher places such as Shadow Weaver's. Catra challenged her superior into a battle. Whoever lost, had to resign and leave the Horde."

Fucking hot.

Her obsession and greed prevailed. A legend to witness in a thousand years has happened and the wildcat emerged victorious from the challenge.

Humiliated before Hordak, Shadow Weaver fell out of favor with him and was forced to relinquish all ranks. Catra has taken the spot as the new commander, also became the advisor. Hordak valued her ideologies a lot.

"They had begun to occupy every village, every town that came their way. This was a complete violation of Etheria's laws. Queen Angella stood in favor of solving matters with diplomacy first. If diplomacy did not solve the problem, only then would she decide on war. Hordak turned down her offer about making peace and kept on with the raidings."

Angella and her decisions.

Shimmer scoffed lightly. "Mom never had the guts for war. Everyone knew it."

Adora turned a deaf ear to this unwarranted criticism of the former queen. Her relationship with the queen was not any different from Shimmer's. Queen Angella didn't like Adora either, didn't want her around. Perceived her as an untrustworthy Horde scum. Even Glimmer's insistence couldn't change a single thing.

"Not gonna discuss former queen's ways here. Back to our main topic if I may. Hordak's brother Prime arrived from a long-lasting trip to space. He was never pro-war. Contrary to the lies and manipulations of Hordak; Prime is really standing for peace and order. They defend different ideologies but since Prime is the eldest, Hordak can't defy his wishes."

"I have seen otherwise so far."

"Yeah. Hordak never dared to defy his brother before Catra got Shadow Weaver's place. Now she's manipulating him. Encouraging him to go on with the raids so maybe Prime would love him then."

Enough with the tales and legends. Adora clapped her hands a few times. Eyes closed shut in a tired manner.

"That's enough for today. Don't leave your kingdoms until I tell you otherwise."

Princesses rose to their full height in harmony. One by one they left the huge room whereas Shimmer remained in her chair. Adora propped her body on the table, palms pressing tightly.

"Hey," Shimmer went to her side with steps as light as feathers. "I had no idea." Exposed her awareness about bringing unpleasant memories with her questions. Sorry has been never in her vocabulary though.

"It's okay. You had a right to know."

"That's why my sister hates her, huh? Catra and you have a past. I know how jealous she can get."

A hand waved in the air, signaling Shimmer to drop the subject.

"I am not for any kind of commitment but I would have known better to choose that arrow boy over you."

"It doesn't matter anymore. She has made her choice and it wasn't me."

Was it disappointment hidden in her dull face? Was it the harrowing song of the sweet feelings she stored for Glimmer that were forced to get lost under moss in her heart when she waited for the right time but the right time never came? Squinted eyes piercing through the table angrily were just fighting against the tears trying to break free?

"Is that why you fucked me? Did you want her to be in my place?" No blame was in her voice. What happened between them didn't mean anything anyway.

"Not gonna fool you nor say sorry. Yes, I did. Glimmer and I have never had a chance to get close. I thought... I thought I could soothe my heart when touching someone who looked exactly like her, at least."

"Her loss." One swift hand flicked and her belt around her tight pants loosened before Adora's eyes.

Adora tilted her head, observing the scene with Shimmer stripping seductively. Glimmer was right. All Shimmer cared about was sex, indeed.

Her neat rich-people hands found Adora's white shirt and unbuttoned it as her lavenders were fixed on the blues. Adora's brows were furrowed as she momentarily gazed down to see Shimmer undoing the buttons.

"Let me help you fantasize, then. Demonstrate what would you do to Glimmer."

Virgin of Passion

Chapter Summary

Shimmer doesn't miss an opportunity to turn her sister's life into a nightmare. Nothing will ever be the same again.

Chapter Notes

Hang in there! This is the last chapter before the grand one you have been waiting for. Until then, take care and don't forget to reward me to provide motivation. <3 -please

When Glimmer returned home with her husband a week later, she came up to know all the princesses had retreated to their kingdom under Adora’s commandment.

As Adora saw fit to take such a precaution, perhaps Hordak and Catra were plotting some evil deeds in the background.

“Come, Adora, sit.”

Ash remnants of an emotional breakdown hung on the legendary warrior's face.

If the tears she had shed under the dark veil of lonely nights in Glimmer's absence had a tongue, these would cry out that someone ready to do anything for her beloved no longer even had the strength to wake up to a new day.

Been that way for years. Ever since Bow and Glimmer got married.

For Glimmer, it was happening more often lately. Right after witnessing her twin fucking with her.

When she left for Stella's wedding, the pain in her heart intensified that she couldn’t even enjoy the ball. On the nights when Bow fell into a deep slumber, Glimmer slipped out of bed and watched the moon all night on the balcony of her interim room. Dreaming about Adora; the sweet memories they could have been able to build together if it wasn’t for a rushed marriage.

All because Aunt Casta insisted a queen had to have a king beside her and have children as soon as possible for the continuity of the Bright Moon dynasty.

Barely a child she was when inherited the power of the throne.

Out of blue, she had been forced to become the queen, and all the people prostrated before her.

Shortly after the takeover ceremony, a hurried wedding was announced under Aunt Casta's extreme insistence.

Before she could have a chance to mourn her mother, she found herself marrying her childhood best friend while madly in love with Adora.

Children are the strongest ornament of the dynasty. If you, like your mother, are suddenly forced to abdicate, there must be an heir to inherit the Bright Moon’s legacy.

That was what Aunt Casta said whilst Glimmer grimaced before her. Children when she was a teen herself? No fucking way.

Luckily, Bow wasn’t interested in having children immediately, a relief. But lately, he's been overtly careless when making love. Defied Glimmer's warnings about ejaculating inside many times. As if trying to prove something.

Ever since Shimmer appeared, there has been a change in the behavior of everyone around her and Glimmer didn’t know what to do about it.

“What is it you wanted to talk to me about?”

“Sit. What I want to talk about is extremely important.”

Adora’s brows arched up. “Well? Tell me then.”

“I need to you take care of something. SIT!”

Startled, Adora finally decided to pull up a chair and sit down where their eyes aligned from afar. Lavenders were sparkling but not from magic. Solely from tantrums, frustration.

“You can't solve anything by yelling at those around you. What's the problem? How can I help you if you don't tell me? Oh, wait. Don’t tell me, I know the answer. Shimmer, right? What else could it be... You’re not yourself ever since she showed up.”

Glimmer propped her chin against her knuckles, exhaling into them in an annoyed manner. “It’s not about her. It’s about the Heart.”

Adora fell serious, jaw dipping low as well as the brows curving into a frown.

“What about it?”

“I want you to form the strongest troops around the Heart. It’s restless, sending me a message through the runestone, warning me.”

Rational hypothesis. Everyone would like to have the power of infinite and pure magic. Could also explain why Hordak and Catra hadn't attacked for a long time.

“Heart only gets in touch when something terrible is about to happen.” Adora stated, more like thinking aloud. Her head shook up and down at the end. “I’ll take care of it.”

“For 600 years the Heart has given me zero warning. Would you claim I'm exaggerating if I say this warning has something to do with Shimmer's return?”

Contrary to what Glimmer had expected, Adora remained silent, but her head swung sideways, signaling she agreed.

“Not saying I agree with your sentiment. However, if the Heart warns you, it can’t be in vain. Better we take it seriously or we might suffer the consequences.”

Thenceforth Princess Prom, Shimmer's mind has been on the hot stuff kitty she's seen.

Thinking about what would those mighty claws and fingers do to her.

How would the fangs tear through her skin, make her cry out?

Only if she knew how to reach her. Shimmer glanced at one blonde pacing around the garden absentmindedly.

Adora's workload had increased since the princesses retreated to their kingdom. Glimmer was occupied with tedious paperwork most of the time. Again she came with a scroll in her hand and handed it to Adora.

It was the 3rd letter in a row to send to the Horde this week. Another letter that would go unanswered. Shimmer never knew what wrote in those letters.

After looking at the scroll and nodding a few times, Adora mounted her royal steed Swift Wind. Steed opened his wings wide and covered a large area before taking off to the bright sky.

It had been a long time since she had seen Catra. Shimmer considered sneaking into the Fright Zone by stalking Adora but quickly abandoned the plan since it was unnecessarily dangerous.

But...

Urge to become Catra's obedient slut outweighed on the scales of the verdict.

Glimmer's sudden eye contact caught her unprepared. Stared daggers at her thru the deadly gaze. Soon she teleported off, out of Shimmer's sight in a blink. A few sparkles remained, flying through the air after her takeoff.

Constant feeling of the other pair of lavender eyes on her at all times was tiring and humiliating. Her own sister stood as an enemy.

"Hey, sweetie."

Shimmer's brows went down, drawing visible trails over her forehead. Shoulders tensed visibly. Turned back to where the voice came from, she glared at the arrow boy.

Who loved Glimmer more than himself, cared more than anyone else in the world, but was incapable of recognizing his beloved when looked into her eyes.

Entrusting her love to such a cheap man was foolishness befitting Glimmer.

This dumbass couldn't even tell the difference between the twins. Well, not right away but eventually.

"Oh... sorry, Shimmer. I thought you were—"

"Glimmer? With jet black clothes, holsters, and knives... Are you for real?"

Under the twin's disgusted glare, the desperation etched its way into every crease over the face.

"Your back was turned, I-I thought—sorry. It has been a harsh week for me, I couldn't get the much-needed sleep."

"Make sure you don't mistake Adora for Glimmer next time."

Thick, arched brows of him rolled down, delivering a gloomy sketch over his face. He preferred to avoid coming up to Shimmer with a counter-attack, leaving silently, crushed beneath the hefty truth that he was a pure idiot for mistaking his wife for someone else.

Shimmer watched the strained muscles on his arms in the navy tank top. Sighed once he completely was out of the picture.

Solid dumb. How could Glimmer be so pathetic to keep someone that insensible around herself?

Served her right for everything she had done to her. No, not enough. Shimmer has sworn long ago she'd make her suffer every second of her life one day.

Now it was her chance to keep her vow.

Princess clothes have always been disgusting pieces. Shiny, ratty, and fucked up. Didn't quite fit the masculine style she had adopted since her childhood.

Power of the Bright Moon's runestone splitting the dark veil by blinding light on the horizon, made the moon swaying overhead envious. Stars were already ashamed sensing the sins to be committed, they had almost lost brilliance.

Shimmer gazed at them dreamily. Sole sigh flew from her lips. Head tilted to the side, almost using her shoulder as a pillow as she lost herself in the thoughts.

Until Bow approached her from behind. Arms wrapped around her, pressing her back against his chest.

So what if Shimmer has been lingering in their bedroom? It was the best point in the castle allowing one to observe the most precious landscapes. Whereas that night Shimmer was there to ruin everything her sister settled in her own life.

Swiftly turning to the male, Shimmer locked her arms around his neck, staring into his eyes with her own lavenders narrowed and darkened in lust. Caught Bow unprepared as their lips smashed momentarily.

"O-oh, wow. That's..."

The sentence abruptly ended in the midway when Shimmer kissed him aggressively. Way better than her twin without any doubt, Bow's hungry response verified it.

Downright he yearned for such passion and willingness. So much so that Bow's meaty fingers, in one fell swoop, tore apart the obnoxious dress she wore in an attempt to look exactly like Glimmer.

Shimmer gripped his collar, leading him toward the huge bed. Mounted him, ready to deliver the best sex of his life.

That guy was a virgin of passion. Every desperate move from him made it obvious.

Bow glanced up at her with his lips gaped, eyebrows stretched up in both confusion and curiosity about what would his wife do to him next. Shimmer moved her hand torturously slow, unzipping his pants, and pulling them down to his knees.

Her mouth covered the head, earning a gasp from him. Seriously, Glimmer wasn't taking care of him in that way? She barely stifled a laugh before carrying her head in rhythmic swings along his hardened length.

Male moans came out slightly. Encouraged Shimmer to go deeper. She did not intend to stop until her lips caressed the base.

Poor boy couldn't even dare to touch her fluffy pink locks before Shimmer led his hand on her head. Bow sighed with relief, caressing his wife's head, slightly applying pressure.

Not so long it took for him to come. Despite his warnings, Shimmer didn't pull away and swallowed all the milky layer without thinking twice. As she pulled back, she wiped her mouth into her knuckle.

Before Bow could utter something that would ruin the mood, Shimmer straddled his hips, taking his length into her dripping wet pussy. Melodic moans filled the room, rewarding the desperate husband. Sticky sounds fed the sweet, sensational tension between them.

Hips shifted up and down once Bow's length filled her completely. Head was thrown back, gaped lips allowed her moans to go free. Shimmer propped herself by pressing on Bow's well-built shoulders.

The king's face flushed red. Hands were trembling in excitement. Sweat droplets formed across his face, running along. Bow sat up in the bed, pressing his palms into the mattress from behind.

Cupping his face in her hands, Shimmer locked her lavenders with Bow's dark eyes, her lips were slightly apart and warm, sharp exhales mixed with moans fleeing thru, hammered his lips.

"Come inside me when you're ready."

Bow's eyes widened in bewilderment. The last time they had sex, Glimmer made it obvious she didn't want him to do it. Now she was asking for him to come inside?

"Ah... fuck, Glim~"

"Fuck me senseless."

Demand sounded enticing. Bow gripped her hips tightly before pounding hard into her. At least he could successfully manage to unleash the beast that has been forced to stay inside him due to Glimmer's boundaries.

"Fuck. Fuck! Babe, you feel so good!" Bow literally whimpered and their moans merged.

Pleasure he gathered from their intimate moment drew positive lines over his face. Finally, he got the chance to walk in the garden of the passionate love he had longed for, which was adorned with neat flowers.

Until the door swung open... and Glimmer stepped inside.

Longed Touch

Chapter Summary

Arranged marriage is over at last. Glimmer enjoys a touch of her loved one.

Chapter Notes

Guess that's what you've been all waiting for. Enjoy this smutty chapter dedicated for Glimmer & Adora and don't forget to reward me with some comments if you feel a bit adventurous xD

Dumbfounded, too confused to react to the ignominy. Circus act playing before her lavenders chained her firmly speechless, disallowing her from raging properly. Several gibberish words flew through her lips, but none of them ever made sense.

If asked who knew her best, Glimmer would blindly say it would be Bow. Childhood friend. Hero, emotional support, lover, not the best but a passable partner in bed trying to feed her sexual satisfaction. Now, who was that person trembling silly before her eyes?

“G-Glim, I can explain!”

What word would possibly validate this betrayal, what poetic apology would satisfy the literary hunger and mend the pain she felt in her heart?

Glimmer could only scoff at her husband’s pleading.

“You two have a lot to talk about. Better I leave you alone.” Shimmer’s mocking voice wasn’t making it any easier for Bow. When she left by teleporting off, their marriage was about to end once and for all.

Bow with a blanket wrapped around his bottom half approached her. He had to stop dead in his tracks when Glimmer's hand stood firmly in the air.

"As a queen, one of my most important duties is to ensure the continuity of the lineage. To bless the dynasty with children. When my aunt told me it would be a good idea to marry someone who knew me best, your name was the first that came to her mind. Someone sweet, caring, understanding... the golden boy who has been there when needed."

"Please..."

"I knew I loved you, but never in that way."

"Listen to m—"

"Neither did you,"

Glimmer spun to him, standing close enough to bother Bow's lips with her heavy exhales.

"But you liked the idea. We were always together before that anyway. You thought nothing would be ever different if we sealed our friendship under the burden of marriage. Tried to embrace it. Tried to make it work. Love isn't supposed to work out with effort. It just does it on its own when it is meant to be."

The queen let out a long, heavy exhale before clutching Bow's hands. Eyes locked on their hand connection, jaw dipped low in that matter. Her eyebrows were arched down, lips were slightly lifted from the corners, reflecting a mournful smile.

Bow's fresh tears tapped on their hands soon as he silently looked down to watch their hands, just like Glimmer did.

"We tried hard to love each other, which was our biggest mistake. That's why it never worked for us."

“No,” Bow swung his head to the sides rapidly, rejecting. “No... we can still make it work, together. I love you. It was always real for me.”

Sorrowful smile on her face grew wider and she scoffed lightly, once more. Bow’s red and puffy ones found Glimmer’s dull and unique pair.

“If you really loved me, you would look into her eyes and see it wasn't me.”

Hand connection broke dramatically and Bow acknowledged it was the last sentence Glimmer uttered.

Adora ended her sexual relationship with Shimmer after the incident. She had two reasons for doing this. One, she didn’t have time for this as the workload on her shoulders was heavy.

Two, Shimmer wasn’t worth even being her friend with benefits. Could accept everything; ignore it, maybe even respect the lifestyle, but she wouldn't ignore this disrespect and meanness.

How could one sister hold such grudges that she wanted to ruin the other's life? Adora didn't ask the two sisters why. Whatever the reason, Shimmer had no right to treat Glimmer that way.

However, Shimmer’s fighting skills were too flawless to be ignored thus Adora put her into an important place in her game of war.

“Glim? Can I come?”

No answer. Lingering in the doorway, Adora knocked on the door once again. Her patience soon drained. Adora made her way inside, closing the door behind her, and pressing her back against it for a while.

Found Glimmer sitting on the shores near the indoor waterfall, embracing her knees.

Adora paced forward to end up beside her, sitting down to level their eyes. Gazes met under the faint light of the lamps surrounding the walls.

Lavenders were drained, swollen, and red. Depressive shape Adora has never seen before. They always sparkled naturally, whereas now they were just extinguished.

"I am sorry for what happened."

"It doesn't hurt that much," uttered Glimmer with a dull expression lingering on her face. "You know, I didn't love him that way."

Ostensibly they were good at painting an image that their marriage was a euphoric one. Even Adora, the closest person to them didn't realize it was an arranged one without any real feelings.

Ashamed for not realizing it sooner, Adora's jaw dipped low. Swallowed dryly, unable to wet her parched throat. Dared not to look into Glimmer's eyes anymore.

So all these years she lived in vain in pain, deprived of Glimmer's love she yearned for so long...

"I knew it would be a mistake to marry someone I didn't feel anything for. It should have been you."

Steel-blue pair widened instantly, breath growing thin and ragged. "G-Glim—"

"That's why Bow's betrayal is not that hurtful for me. But we shared years together. Wasted precious time, you know."

Adora pulled her into a warm, safe embrace. The pink, fluffy locks covered half of her face, she felt the hair against her nose and lips. Inhaled deeply, filling her lungs with Glimmer's fresh, rosy scent. Glimmer responded with a soft sigh of relief, feeling safer than ever between Adora's arms.

Death silence was consuming. Eyes met and remained locked firmly. Dangerous as it was, Adora wanted to kiss her so bad. Lost among uncanny thoughts, unsure if it would be the right thing to do though.

But Glimmer loved her, right?

All this time she must have been yearning for her from afar. Right?

Once Glimmer slowly backed away from Adora but arms still were around her, there stood a bit of distance where their warm breaths brushed lips closely.

Until Glimmer cleared the distance between them to kind of encourage her.

Adora frowned, narrowing her eyes to stare down at Glimmer's lips she dreamed of uniting for years.

That was it. Adora finally found enough courage to clear the gap, meeting Glimmer's lips. It was a kiss slow, sensational, and sweet. Adora just realized how good at kissing was Glimmer. She slithered her tongue skillfully, battling with Adora's own to heat up.

Adora didn't hold back. Why would she? It was the moment she longed for. Gripped her cheek firmly, thus Glimmer wouldn't have been able to escape which she did not intend to. Wanted it, asked for more after every passing second. All of her facial features and gestures proved it.

Boldly, Adora rose to her height, picking up Glimmer along with her. Glimmer's legs locked around her waist, arms around her neck tightly. They ended up on the bed, bodies glued to one another. One swift jerk, Adora ripped Glimmer's royal outfit to expose the lovely curves of the queen.

In return, Glimmer gripped the collar of Adora's white, buttoned shirt, teleporting it off of her. Glimmer dissolved all the clothes that have been rudely interrupting them, leaving them both naked.

Kisses became wilder, hitching their breath. The temperature of the room seemed to rise with their uncontrollable sharp exhales.

Glimmer caressed Adora's strong shoulders with fingertips, daring to explore the milky skin from there to the abs, abdominal cavity, ridge, and waist.

"I've waited years for you." Adora declared in a soft whisper-like tone. Realizing tears sparkling in the lavenders, she gently wiped them away with her thumbs and kissed her forehead. Lips landed upon Glimmer's once again, kissing her hard.

Adora felt light and carefree like the world was finally set to rights. Warmth flooded through her. Each cell within her boiled, setting her body on fire. Blood gushed between her legs. She dipped low, dragging her lips over Glimmer's neck and planting soft kisses often accompanied by her wet tongue.

Her tongue soon drew a wet, transparent trail starting from her jawline to the chest. Adora kissed underneath the left breast, then covered the nipple with her lips to earn a moan from the queen.

Moan motivated her to go lower until her head aligned between her legs. Adora pressed her lips against the protective lips, caressing them with kisses and licks. She reached up, clutching both breasts in her hands and giving them soft squeezes.

Glimmer stood on her elbows and threw her head back. Gaped lips leaked timid moans, rewarding the servant. She ran her hand through the golden locks, massaging the scalp tenderly.

Encouraged and proud, Adora unleashed her tongue to draw wet circles around Glimmer's soft bun, feeling her skin relaxing under her touch. Tongue danced elegantly over the clit, sending slight shockwaves throughout the queen's body and earning non-stop, melodic moans from her.

Glimmer grabbed the back of her head to press her further as if signaling she wasn't getting away from the bulge until she was completely satisfied, which was fine by the golden-haired woman.

"Ah, fuck," cursed Glimmer under her breath, sounding like a hiss.

The corners of Adora's lip curled up cheerfully. She moved low, poking her clit with her nose as her mouth completely covered the entrance.

Scene playing between her legs was satisfying enough. Glimmer glanced down to see how seductively did Adora make out with her pussy, her tongue occasionally coming out to complete the never-ending french-kisses. Her breath stuttered and she pressed Adora's head harder into her skin as she felt the shockwaves inside grow insufferably electrical.

Orgasm soon kicked in, leaving Glimmer breathless and all sweaty with her fingers curled around the bedsheets tightly. Long moans of satisfaction flew through her soft lips. Unsure of when did Bow exactly make her come hard like this just by oral sex.

Adora looked from atop her skin just to know for certain Glimmer was fine. More than fine. Proud of herself for serving the queen good, she crawled on top of her, stopping when their faces stood at the same level. Propped herself by her elbows at Glimmer's two sides as she stared into the lavenders lovingly.

Glimmer panted heavily. Some of the sweat droplets ran across her cheek. She held firmly both of the other's cheeks to pull her in, kissing passionately.

"Say it, Adora."

"I love you."

"I love you too."

Lips clashed against one another this time. Glimmer pushed Adora off herself, sitting over her abs to cover them with her slick. Adora moaned at the wet feeling, clutching her hips and sinking her nails into the skin to earn another moan from the sparkly one.

"For the honor of Grayskull!"

Before Glimmer knew it, she was between a goddess' arms pressed against the closest wall. Adora held her with one arm as if Glimmer weighed nothing thus the other one could go wandering the wet folds.

Two fingers brutally went into the already-soaking hole, filling the queen completely.

Glimmer cried out, sinking her nails into She-Ra's back. Adora connected their lips to kiss her passionately, also hard enough to leave her breathless. Fingers moved back and forth in a fixed rhythm and Glimmer moaned into her mouth, struggling to keep kissing her lover back. Entertaining for Adora. Also hot enough to satisfy her.

Adora pumped harder into the smaller woman, her fingers easily sliding into the queen. Wet, slick sounds remixed with Glimmer's sweet moans were music to her ears. She slithered harder after each thrust, inflicting enough blast to shake Glimmer's breasts.

Glimmer's lavenders got crossed as she couldn't help but squirt, delivering quite a mess into Adora's hand who seemed to not care, on the contrary, quite happy about it. She was about to come for the second time in a matter of seconds.

Another one of Adora's fingers found a way inside, delivering thicker friction. She-Ra's jerks were sharp and deep that Glimmer had no other choice than to cry out loud enough for the whole castle to hear as she came hard, shuddering desperately.

Adora pumped a couple of times more to prolong her second orgasm. A large smile was about to cover her face throughout the night as she dedicated this night to her longed lover.

"I'm gonna serve you all night."

Queen & Empress

Chapter Summary

Catra is about to change the whole world. Glimmer wants to take her on all by herself. Who would win?

Chapter Notes

Sup, party people? Enjoy this chapter.
Would appericiate comments, thanks <3

"Why there's still no answers from the Fright Zone? Do you think I have written something wrong there?"

"No, Glim. Nothing you wrote was wrong at all," said Adora who sat with her back, leaning against a big trunk tree. One knee was bent up, her elbow rested on it. Elbow dangled from her knee.

Glimmer was sitting cross-legged nearby, resting her chin over her palm propped from her knee by the elbow.

"Why didn't our messenger come back yet?"

"That I am not sure about. Maybe I should have taken the message myself."

"You were about to get killed last time. I can't put you at such risk once more."

Adora delivered a mild kiss to her cheek after that sentiment.

"It has been so long, Adora. Maybe we should have just raided the Fright Zone and ended them once and for all for the sake of whole Etheria."

Adora shook her head to the sides disapprovingly. "You know we can't do that. That would violate Horde Prime's boundaries. We had a deal. No bloody raids will involve Prime and Hordak's actions do not concern him. "

"Yea, yea, I know. Don't mind me. I speak non-sense lately."

"I know. It is because you need to talk about your feelings."

"I don't need to do anything. Now hush,"

"If you were going to feel uneasy, why did you even let Bow stay here as an advisor?"

"Adora, hush. Someone is coming."

Adora glared at where Glimmer pointed. The two quickly rose to their height, observing one guy in armor painted in gray and smoky color mixes. Horde emblem shamelessly stood on the center of his chest. Four other soldiers accompanied him, carrying two chests.

"Halt!" Adora ordered, "State your intentions."

"I present Empress Catra. From the Fright Zone, I brought words."

Glimmer and Adora exchanged tense glances at the word Empress behind Catra.

The messenger took out a scroll, reading aloud Catra's edict:

I, Catra, declare as the new empress of the Fright Zone that Hordak and Horde Prime brothers are no longer breathing in this world. Both have tasted the deadly poison of my claws and have fallen into an eternal sleep.

Herein, I cancel all previously signed peace agreements and ceasefires between the parties, and no longer have any obligations. From now on, Bright Moon and Fright Zone will never be referred to as allies or ceasefire parties.

Accordingly, the tax rule offered by the queen and accepted by Prime is no longer valid. Fright Zone is not, and never will be a colonial state.

Since you have received this letter, the consequences of any intervention in the lands that we will conquer -and which we are now conquering- will be heavy for you.

As Empress, I urge you to take action regarding the return of Princess Entrapta, who was abducted from our empire, and the complete abandonment of Bright Moon. If refused, we will solve the problems by shedding blood.

Empress Catra of Fright Zone

The envoy raised his head from the scroll, signaling he was done reading. Head turned to the other soldiers and swung, mobilizing them to move the chests forward at their feet. A disgusting smell brought Adora's face a frown just like Glimmer's.

One of the soldiers opened the chests in a dramatic flair. Exposed 3 heads separated from their bodies, staring at their eyes dully, out of life. Hordak and Prime's heads stood in the same chest whereas Bright Moon's envoy they have sent to Fright Zone a while ago was located in another chest.

Glimmer grimaced, turning her head away from the scene slightly. Adora kept staring at their envoy's head, at his dull, lifeless eyes. Perhaps felt guilty for letting him go and deliver the queen's edict.

Catra had killed her superiors, took their place, and now she had sworn to completely change the established order between the parties. Her attempts to manipulate Hordak in that matter proved that this was her aim from the very beginning.

Never wished for peace, liked to shed blood.

"Your empress wants me to abandon my kingdom? I thought she was smart." Sharp scoff escaped her lips. "Tell her, if she wants to have Bright Moon, she needs to have my head as well."

Soldier did not answer that. Instead, they picked the chest containing Hordak and Prime's heads and strode away.

"We need to warn the others and make sure Entrapta is safe." Adora stated before whistling to call upon her loyal steed. Swift Wind appeared out of nowhere, landing near his owner.

Glimmer witnessed her girlfriend transforming into her goddess form, not even flinching against the blinding light illuminating the whole area, only narrowing her eyes slightly.

"Get Entrapta here. I will check up on the other princesses."

Too little too late.

"Great," Glimmer spat furiously. "All the princesses are wounded. Catra's currently attacking the civilian villages and yet best to come, they have Entrapta. Just great." Fingers bent one by one in a counting gesture.

"Catra is coming for the Heart," Adora declared anxiously. "Now that she has Entrapta, soon she'll discover how to get her claws around it."

Bow who sat at Queen Angella's chair pushed up his tracker pad over the table. The device marked Catra's troops nearby the Whispering Woods as dots. Those dots were coming closer each second. Race against time. Had to react quickly before Catra led her troops through the woods and reach Bright Moon.

"Princesses are gathered in the infirmary. Spinerella and Netossa seemed in a good shape to fight but that's it. Our troops are inferior to Catra's. Not sure if we can keep Horde away from our lands for too long. We have to negotiate."

Glimmer's fist landed upon the wooden texture. Loud thud thickened the atmosphere, cutting Bow's voice instantly.

"Diplomacy is what has gotten us into this mess at the beginning. Apparently, my mother's peaceful ways will not work against Catra's everlasting greed. I will solve this problem in my own ways."

Still in She-Ra form, Adora glared at her. "What do you have on your mind?"

"Something," stated Glimmer sharply before turning to her ex-husband. "Can you locate Catra in that tracker pad?"

"No, but I can say she's not with her troops just yet. Just give me a minute. I'll find her location."

Adora pressed her palms into the back of Glimmer's seat, gripping tightly. Knew Catra's ways better than anyone else. Perhaps, Catra had something bigger, thus she wasn't keen on invading Bright Moon just yet.

"That means she's aiming for something else in the background, without us knowing. What about the protection spell you put around the gates?" Question was directed at Glimmer.

"Would hold troops of but I can't tell for certain if they bring those shiny gadgets. Let's hope Catra goes through the gates. The spell will trigger and get her trapped instantly."

Bow rose to his height, gathering the tracker pad as well. "Catra is right there," He put the pad forward for the other two to see the exact location of the wildcat. Glimmer's jaw dipped low and she let out a soft grunt.

"I know you have something in your mind."

"Yes, I do. Tell me one thing. Do you trust me?"

"Wh—of course, I trust you, Glimmer. What kind of a question is that?"

"Good," Glimmer pecked her lips swiftly. "I have to take care of something. Stay here until I come back. Troops can't go through the Whispering Woods, anyway."

"Glimmer, what the f—"

"I love you!"

Sparkles and pink dust glided through the air. What all left from Glimmer's teleportation. It didn't take the genius to find out where she went.

The dot representing Catra's location led her into a freshly painted warehouse. Huge and dark, Glimmer had to form a sphere in her palm to illuminate the environment. Lavenders rolled from side to side, alerted of potential attacks. She could feel Catra's presence nearby as she took steps, observing the area.

"Looking for me, Sparkles?"

Glimmer swiftly turned back, spurting a thick, straight line without seeing anything. One wasted attack earned an evil laugh from Catra, the new empress of Horde. Glimmer faced the direction where she heard wildcat's voice, squaring up with spheres inside her fists. Brows arched down, jaw clenched visibly.

"Come out and face me, you fucking pussy."

"Straightforward to the chase, you say. Fine by me."

Lights cut through suddenly, sketching all the details of the environment she was in. Catra's claws sunk into Glimmer's shoulder, drawing a triple path of bloody trail throughout her whole back.

Glimmer flinched and cried out in pain. Blindly shot electrical stream at the wildcat. Blood dripped, literally forming a pool on the ground. Queen fell to her knees, grimacing. No time to yelp through pain. Glimmer teleported away just before Catra would inflict another blast upon her.

"Who is the pussy now? Are you going to hide like this or actually fight?" Catra smirked devilishly, searching for the sparkly one.

"Right behind you, kitty kitty."

"AGHH!"

Catra was thrown off by a huge stream coming from Glimmer's stretched-forward palms. Wildcat got crashed face down through a tank nearby. Whole body trembled from the bone-crushing blast.

A shiny sound filled Catra's ears and she rolled sideways, saving her body from another blast of magic. She took a backflip, landing on her all fours and bolting toward the queen who sent sphere after sphere.

In order to dodge, Catra moved right and left, bounced, and somersaulted when necessary. The distance between them was erased, allowing Catra to swing her claw into Glimmer's face. Blood gushed out of the fresh wounds over her visage.

Glimmer's breath hitched, her lips parting in a sharp gasp. Catra seized her neck, squeezing tightly to cut her breathing canals. Queen was too weak and in pain to make a sound as she suffocated by the empress.

Savior moves needed to come as soon as possible.

Vision went blurry as she was about to surrender her soul. With one swift jerk, Glimmer pressed her palm into Catra's stomach, blasting her away with a bursting stream. All of her energy was drained. Pain and blood located a heavy load over her shoulders she couldn't even stand on her two feet properly.

Although unknown in whose favor the rulers' quarrel ended, the last time Glimmer saw her, Catra was lying on the ground holding her stomach, breathing heavily, shooting her deadly glances until Glimmer used the last bit of her magic to teleport back to Bright Moon.

"What is that with those goons running around?" Shimmer stared at medics running around, exchanging anxious glances. Some uttered words, but none of them made sense. From what she understood, something bad had happened to Glimmer.

Should have she felt bad about this? Not at all. The exact opposite; Shimmer smirked, feeling happy about this. Feet carried her to the infirmary where almost all the elemental princesses lay unconscious.

Adora stood at the queen's side, caressing her girlfriend's cheek. "You will be okay my love, I promise."

Shimmer moved along, examining her twin sister's state. Glimmer looked terrible. All the wounds, fresh scars, and trails of dried blood... such a mess. An embarrassing state for a queen.

Before she left, Shimmer witnessed the way She-Ra healed Glimmer miraculously. Delivering another sour face to Shimmer. Although healed, Glimmer would have been remembered for such failure and defeat.

"Catra will pay for this." Mermista –now in a better state- growled from Adora's side.

So, Catra was the one who abused Glimmer? Hot.

Shimmer teleported to Shadow Weaver's cell.

"What is it you want this time?"

Shadow Weaver put her book aside, connecting her palms together. Her creepy mask drew a disturbing image that Shimmer couldn’t tell if she was smirking or shooting deadly daggers.

“My strings to the rune stone are not as strong as Glimmer’s, I can’t teleport to Fright Zone from here.”

“And why exactly would you want that?”

Corners of Shimmer’s lips lifted up, exposing a devilish smirk.

“I need to see that wildcat and you’re going to help me.”

Obedient Slut of the Empress

Chapter Summary

Shimmer enjoys the moment she's long dreamed of, if you can call it 'enjoy'. Catra is much more brutal than the so-called, in bed too. Was it worth it? Perhaps. Would she do it again? Yes. Without any trace of doubt.

Chapter Notes

Not in my nature to warn about a chapter but I have to do this.
TW for rough/painal/anal sex themes. You know how cruel is Catra in that fic.
Read at your own risk.

Thought Fright Zone would be cold as fuck. Proven otherwise so far, ‘cause Shimmer was literally soaking in her own sweat as she patrolled through the area. Drilling machines, booby traps, guns, and toxic gases consumed the atmosphere, delivering insufferable heat.

The place was huge. From the domes of the buildings, a sea of blood broke out with vicious waves. Each square centimeter smelled of poison and death. Shimmer’s feet could not drag her any further.

Why bother and waste time searching for the right building?

A soldier with heavy armor strolled from the corner. Shimmer’s lips instantly lifted at the absentminded prey. In a blink of time, she yanked the soldier and removed his mask. Stood a frightened, young feller, trembling before her eyes.

Just a little boy. Not combat ready, not compliant. Trapped in the Fright Zone at an age where maybe he just needed to be around and have fun, just like his peers.

Might not be worth the kill, but Shimmer was definitely going to beat this kid badly until he spat blood and everything she needed to know.

"Okay, sweetheart... breathe. What is your name?"

Between shaky breaths, the soldier's whole face got captured by sweat droplets, dragging themselves across his cheeks. "E...E-Ethan..."

"Ethan..." parroted Shimmer in a melodic voice. Tried to be less scary as possible. "If you want that beautiful face of yours to stay as it is, tell me where can I find your empress."

Ethan gasped, struggling to breathe properly since Shimmer was kind of suffocating him. Fingers around his neck threatened by gripping stronger. A dead man would not be useful. Thus, Shimmer loosened her fingers, letting him speak.

"P-please... I don't even want to be here. They forced me to join the army."

"Declaration of the already known. It wasn't the answer I'm looking for."

Hard pressure on his neck compelled him to let out a desperate grunt. Each attempt to take a breath turned things into a harder situation. Shimmer showed mercy and Ethan knew it was the last time she toleranced him.

"Empress Catra stays in the main building. The biggest one with an antenna and there's a watchtower nearby. Protected by many soldiers and booby traps, also security cameras are watching 7/24."

All she needed to know.

Shimmer tapped on his head as if he'd been a good, obedient dog. If she wasn't in a hurry, who knows, she would have rewarded him with more sweetness than he's probably seen in his life. No time for playing games, though.

"Good boy, now stay here and rest a little bit."

Ethan wouldn't dare perhaps. No harm in getting ready for a potential blizzard, anyway. Shimmer hit the back of his head with her elbow, knocking him out there all alone. Left him somewhere out of sight before she made her way to the building he mentioned.

A huge antenna over the building and a watchtower. Ethan wasn't lying about the high-privileged protection measures. Small problem for someone who had teleportation powers. Single touch against the wall's texture was enough for her to draw an image of the surroundings inside. Couldn't see them, but she knew where exactly the obstacles were located.

Shimmer went through a vortex, leading herself into the building easily. This place was colder somehow. The corridors were long and scary. Obviously, Catra was overconfident that she didn't feel the need to fill the building she was in with security cameras and soldiers.

At least Shimmer thought so until she entered a room too high to see the ceiling after an endless corridor. Thousands of doors, most likely cells. Screams of pain and misery filled her ears, informing her about the cells being fiery pits of hell and soldiers being hellhounds.

Regardless. Had an important mission there. These small details could not drag her away from that purpose.

Purpose of finding that mighty empress who owned her twin sister.

Shimmer found another corridor that seemed different from the ones she took before coming there. Eventually, it led her to where she began. A damned maze it was, and began to annoy the second princess of Bright Moon.

There had to be something she's been missing. Shimmer didn't have time for this. She drew her powers to summon a vortex different from the usual ones. When she went through, she was in a portal that had no sense of time. Meaning the time applied to different laws. A few seconds there were equal to a couple of hours in real-time.

Words from dead Etherian linguistics spilled from her lips, exposing every secret within the place.

The real struggle was with her being so far away from the runestone, but she lived away from it for years. Still, that spell drained too much energy from her, leaving her almost powerless. Was it worth it? Indeed. Now stood a secret passage through the walls and Shimmer sensed a presence at the at of it.

"A rebel! Seize her!"

Fuck it.

Before she could resist, the princess was captured by the likes of hellhounds torturing the prisoners there. Hands were tied at the back of her waist instantly. Few soldiers surrounded her with shiny and harmful gadgets in their hands. One of them stared at her behind his mask and Shimmer literally felt him sending deadly glances.

"It must be our lucky day... this is the Queen of Bright Moon. Empress will be so happy to have you in one of our cells."

Catra sat at the throne that once belonged to Horde Prime who was nothing more than a skeleton nowadays. Fleshes rotted a lot faster in Etheria. Great opportunity to make a collection of skulls. Has sworn to hang the heads of her enemies on the wall one by one. The next addition to her skull collection could have been Glimmer, only if she didn't manage to escape.

Her wounds were still fresh from their most recent fight. Stung too bad and never seemed to get better in time. Now she had struggled with even walking but was recovering, anyway. Perhaps not the way she desired to recover.

Catra heard someone pressing the correct numbers to get her door open. The second in command Lonnie appeared, saluting her by curtsy. “My empress, we have captured the queen of Bright Moon, ready to throw her at your feet.”

Glimmer was there in Fright Zone? Last time she saw her, Glimmer was wounded as badly as Catra was. Skeptical glance pierced through Lonnie as Catra rose to her height, grunting from the insufferable pain.

“What are you talking about?”

“Queen found a way inside. We have seen her through the cameras in the cell hall. She seems so tired, couldn’t even put up a fight against us. Your last fight got her more drained than you think, perhaps.”

Another grunt of pain flew through her lips. Catra held her stomach, dragging herself forward to approach Lonnie. “Only an idiot would dare to come back after getting deadly wounded.”

“Indeed, my empress.”

“Bring her in, then.”

Lonnie gave her a jaw dip before disappearing, just to come back with a bunch of soldiers who seized the queen of Bright Moon. They forced her to kneel before the empress.

Catra glared at the victim before bursting into laughter.

“Set her free.”

Lonnie raised an eyebrow at the command. Disobeying the orders was a big crime there under the new regime. Thus, she signaled the soldiers and they saved her from the grip that has been holding her wrists at her back.

"Leave us alone."

Soldiers one by one, knelt before the empress and left, including Lonnie. Catra carried herself forward, approaching the other one. A smug grin lifted all of her facial features up. Once they were close enough, Catra bent a knee, aligning their eyes. She held her jaw to bring her face up, forcing her to look into her multi-colored eyes.

"Either you're trying so hard for your sister to notice your worth, or you're just stupid to come here all by yourself. I must admit, you are braver than Sparkles. However, the size of your brains is just the same."

Shimmer stared into Catra's eyes, her lips gaping in adoration. Catra's odor, the tone of her voice, and her skin fascinated her. Smiling wearily, she exhaled in a sharp manner, her warm breath brushed her lips.

"What if I told you that I want you to win this war?"

"I would say you are a terrible liar."

Catra let go of her chin abruptly, almost like pushing her head away. Rose to her height after that, glaring down at the weakling at her feet. Shimmer looked more than tired.

"I'm not here to fool you."

"Then why are you here?"

Shimmer let out a soft chuckle. "You still don't get it? I need you."

Catra hissed at the sentiment. "What the fuck is that supposed to mean?"

"It means..." Shimmer found the strength to pull herself up, ending up on her own two feet. Stepped closer to Catra. Put her hands over Catra's chest, dragging them along to caress only to gain a deadly stare from the empress. "I need you."

The Empress' expression softened. She processed all the words carefully, feeling Shimmer's hands caressing her chest in a needy way. Catra was almost about to give in, but she suddenly growled, grabbing her by the throat and smashing her face into her throne.

Shimmer cried out, but soon a giggle came out from her, catching Catra off-guard. Wiggled her ass before Catra's eyes to state her intentions. Nothing more she ever wanted than this. Than her.

Claws came out of Catra's fingers with a metallic sound. These deadly claws tore her pants apart, exposing Shimmer's well-defined ass. Next came a hard slap, sealing Catra's hand as a crimson print.

"Don't tell me a princess has fallen in love with me." Catra hissed under her breath, pressing her face against Shimmer's wet folds. Her long and talented tongue came out to play with hell arse hole, dragging a wet trail to the front hole. Tongue slithered inside the hole, swinging from side to side.

"S-shit! Ah... I never fall in love."

"But you find me irresistible, yes?"

"Fuck yes."

Catra unleashed her tongue into the arse hole, digging through that tiny hole unbelievably. Shimmer cried out, gripping tightly on the armrests of the throne that now belonged to the wildcat.

When Catra got bored of tasting that ass, she sent a finger inside, startling and earning a loud, scream-like moan from the princess. "Ain't easy becoming my slut," declared Catra with a sharp whisper going straight into her ear since she dipped low, aligning her mouth there.

"Please, please, Catra. I need you."

Catra seized a handful of the pink locks. How nostalgic. Felt like beating the queen one. Instead, she got to make the twin whimper at her feet. Shimmer seemed desperate for Catra's touch and she was going to give it to her, yes. With a price, of course.

Tail joined the game, poking her front hole shamelessly. Catra's fangs came out threateningly to sink into Shimmer's shoulder from behind. Shimmer shed tears of joy, savoring the mixture of pain and pleasure.

"A loose pussy we got here. You're gonna take all of me inside, yes?"

Shimmer felt a harsher pressure applied over her scalp. Her face was now being pressed into the throne harder, it hurt too bad. Yet, Shimmer didn't budge. She knew what she was getting herself into.

Never thought it was going to be a torturous experience though. Shimmer gasped, her vision getting blurry. Catra managed to put a second finger inside her ass, pumping hard and painful.

"Ah! Ah! My sister knows—ah!—you're after the Heart!"

"Oh, yea?" As if rewarded, Catra let go of Shimmer's hair and used that hand to caress Shimmer's pussy. "What is she going to do about it?"

"Shadow Weaver knows how to drag the Heart's power out —ah fuck! Catra!"

Shimmer screamed, sensing something inside her ass ripped apart. Albeit, Catra's gentle fingers around her other hole felt sweet. She knew the more she gave info, the better it would be.

"Will that geezer try to attack me?"

"N-not her! Glimmer will take the power and use it against you. Ahh! S-Shadow Weaver will only t-teach her how."

"Good girl," Catra purred against her ear, grabbing the earlobe with her teeth to chew on gently. "What was your name again?"

"Shimmer," the princess hissed sharply. Sweat droplets formed a thick, wet veil on her back and forehead.

"Okay. Then hold on tight, Shimmer. I'm gonna destroy you."

And she wasn't lying about that. When her fist went inside her pussy, Shimmer was desperately squirting for her. Pain switched places with the satisfaction of getting her pussy fisted and ass pierced at the same time and Catra's dirty whisperings were just the cherry on top.

Rat

Chapter Summary

There's a rat among them and they need to find out who is it as soon as possible.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

Catra became a new, deadly addiction for Shimmer.

As her queen sister and her so-called Princess Alliance searched desperately for a plan to protect Etheria, Shimmer was out there in Frigh Zone, banging with Glimmer's nemesis.

Shameless, even proud of herself for doing that. Everything Glimmer hated dearly, did Shimmer just to annoy her.

Now as she screamed under this wild cat until her vocal cords hurt, couldn't help but think how helpless her sister was back in their homeland, trying to come up with a plan.

In a matter of days, she completely ruined Glimmer's life. It wasn't really that ruined because Glimmer and Adora finally got together. Incident with Bow certainly not had the desired effect. Maybe her relationship with Catra would be enough to piss Glimmer off this time.

The Empress grinned at the demand, fangs peeking from her rough lips. Between her strong biceps, Shimmer was being held against a wall, trapped between the rough tiles and Catra's body.

All of Catra's fingers were inside, filling her completely. Fingertips curled, scratching the sweet spot. Catra kissed her hard, disallowing her from breathing properly. Shimmer tried her best to keep up with the harsh kiss until her whiff drained both from moaning and breathing irregularly.

Catra buried her face into her neck, sinking her fangs into her skin deep enough to bring flesh wounds. Blood dripped across her skin, covering her left shoulder. A few drops ended up in the ground.

"My little fuckpet, cum for me, now."

Finally, the moment Shimmer has been waiting for after dozens of denied orgasms. Wildcat's ways were diabolical; most torturing and maddening things, clearly nothing she hadn't experienced before, but Catra's touch felt much more divine.

Shimmer felt Catra's fingers curling around her neck to cut her air passage. Orgasming whilst being choked like this rose all the hairs throughout the sparkly one's body, squirming her in place. She desperately trembled, savoring her orgasm at its peak.

"Get on your knees on the bed," Catra ordered as she went to the other room, gathering some materials that would bring their sexual experience to another level. The next thing she knew, was standing on her knees and elbows on the mattress, like a stuffed chicken.

Belts, cuffs, and ropes; her heart danced in her chest as her wrists and ankles were tied tightly and her eyes were blinded by a black tie. Shimmer could hear Catra sliding the harness up to her hips, adjusting the strings well fit for her curves.

Never knew what was going to happen. That was the exciting part. Embracing the unknown, waiting for the adventure.

An ice cube between Catra's lips pressing against her wet folds squirmed the sparkly one in her place. Fingers and toes curled as she shivered miserably. Fuck, how could Catra still make her feel good when her folds were completely numb?

"Catra, fuck me harder, make me cry. Give me m-more, please~"

How dare she break rule number 3: No stupid dirty talks during sex. No talking during their sex at all, unless Catra said otherwise. Claws protruded with a menacing metallic sound at Shimmer's incomprehensible disrespect. Catra rose on her knees and slashed across the sparkly princess' back as a punishment.

Shimmer cried out in pain. Blood rained on the bed sheets, knitting crimson dots into the soft texture. Catra growled as the ice cube finally dissolved in her warm mouth. Aligned herself perfectly against her hips, fitting perfectly as a missing puzzle piece. The toy slid into her mercilessly and Catra threw her head back, grinning as if she could feel it.

"Don't dare to defy the rules again. Now beg for forgiveness."

The wounds on her back hissed, healing under the benefits of being a celestial princess bonded with the strongest runestone in Etheria. All that was left from the fresh wounds were three diagonal scratch marks. A second later, Shimmer was grinning from ear to ear before obeying the empress.

"Oh, my empress, please forgive me for my reckless behavior. I promise I will be a good girl for you from now on."

A smack landed on her butt like a heavy hammer blow, too hard that Glimmer could almost feel it in every single cell within her. She gasped, a scream-like moan flying out of her dried lips that were covered in bite marks since Catra liked to chew on them.

"And if you dare to hide how close you are, we're stopping."

"I promise I will tell you."

"Start begging."

Catra picked up a pace significantly harder, making sure Shimmer's breasts wiggle back and forth with every thrust. Liked to see how her legs began to tremble before her. The moans were cherry on top, so pleasing, so encouraging to deliver more pleasure.

"Please, my empress, don't stop, please~" Shimmer whined in a needy manner, piercing the bed sheets with her nails. Her head was yanked back by Catra as she pulled her roughly by the pink, fluffy locks.

"That's my good pet," Catra sighed with pleasure, filling her satisfaction bar with melodic moans spilling from Shimmer's lips. Her thrusts became heavier and swift and even Catra began to moan from the exhaust.

Electricity wandered through every single cell of Shimmer. Sweet and small shockwaves fed her delight up to the clouds. The grand finale was near. Shimmer knew what would be the consequences if she came without Catra's approval.

"I-I'm about to..."

Catra leaned over her back, cleared the distance between them so her chest was glued to it now, and pounded slow but heavy. Her mouth stood only a breath away from Shimmer's ear. They exchanged moans, sighs, and cuss words coming out of pleasure.

With Catra's silky voice being so close, it was impossible to stop herself from coming as it poured into her ear and boiled all the blood in her body. As if waking up every thrill throughout her hidden fantasies.

Catra hooked her arm around her neck, adding more to Shimmer's common desires. Shimmer's moans were still audible but shaky and muffled as she was being choked.

The shuddering orgasm got triggered, quaking her legs and arms. One loud scream filled the room, pure evidence of Shimmer's happy ending. Catra kept thrusting to prolong her orgasm until Shimmer collapsed into the mattress face-down.

Catra carelessly pulled the toy out of her. Shimmer got used to that already. How many ever times did they fuck like this? She lost count. Ever since she joined the Horde, it was happening every single day.

Shimmer was surprised how her stupid twin sister couldn't find out about them. They weren't a thing. No girlfriends, no nothing. Declared by two parties sharing a common agreement. Neither of them had a problem with their current friends with benefits thing. As long as Shimmer kept Catra fed with information and, well, sex.

"Go back before Sparkles figures you're missing."

"Don't worry. That girlfriend of hers keeps her mind off me."

Adora and Glimmer's relationship bothered Catra a lot. Albeit she tried her best to seem not to care about them whatsoever, Shimmer knew that she still had something for the legendary warrior.

"Good," Catra spat as she stood up, putting her clothes on without looking in her direction. "You must be there when it happens. Make sure to destroy all the evidence so no one thinks you are a suspect."

"When did I ever disappoint you?"

Catra turned to face her, grinning before dipping low to kiss her lips.

"Never did, my faithful fuckpet."

Glimmer paced back and forth, avoiding her girlfriend's concerned gaze raining upon her. She had a right to be concerned, and so did Glimmer. For weeks, the Horde destroyed their most trusted source of supplies, raided innocent towns that had nothing to do with their war, and attacked the runestones of other princesses to get them weaker.

Princesses were doing okay. However, their powers dried out way too soon, like Glimmer's old state. She used to recharge her powers after using too much. Now all the princesses suffered from the same fate.

Benefits of being a queen. Glimmer was the strongest. Minus Adora, obviously. But Glimmer was unsure if their combined powers alone would help them win this bloody war.

"My love, can you please sit?"

"I can't sit down when innocent people die."

"I'm worried too but forbidding yourself from resting is not going to solve it."

"How are they always a step ahead of us? They knew you were going to be out there with Perfuma, and me in Bright Moon, obviously, and attacked Mermista; knowing I wouldn't be able to interfere in time and you wouldn't get notified by the raid at all. She isn't doing okay. She tries to look tough and act like she isn't affected, but her powers are too low."

Adora sighed, placing her feet on the table wearily. She hasn't slept for god knew how long. Raid after raid, even her powers were drained, regardless of how much she willed to keep fighting for their lands.

"I didn't want it to come to this, but... I think there's a rat among us."

"You might be right..." Glimmer admitted defeatedly. "I don't want to blame anyone."

"Let's keep this conclusion between us for now and keep an eye on everyone around us for a while. That rat will be exposed one way or another."

Glimmer could only nod her head. Adora always had better ways in these tactical situations. Never doubted her. Their current mission was more important than finding a rat now: Delivering vials filled with pure magic to the runestones.

Aunt Casta and Glimmer worked so hard to obtain these. All they needed to do was unleash the magic, thus the damaged runestones would heal.

Bow's voice came out of a tracker pad. A hologram in his image appeared eventually. He said the cost was clear and they were good to go.

Adora rose to her height, crunching her knuckles. "Okay. Let's do this."

They went to Bright Moon's armory where the magically sealed chest that contained vials inside was hidden. Adora approached the chest, kneeling when she saw a dark cloud spurting from the magic seal.

"Uh... are you sure this seal is unbreakable?"

Glimmer frowned before going forward to see what was it all about. The seal was broken. By the forces of dark magic. Glimmer knew the vials were gone but the little hope inside her kept her going for opening the chest.

She was right. The vials were shattered and the magic was released in the wrong place.

"Dark magic... the only sorceress capable of using advanced dark magic is Shadow Weaver..." Glimmer spoke under her breath, her eyes tearing up a bit at the sight of the elemental princesses' hope being gone.

"Why would she do that?" Adora felt a heavy burden in her chest. Shadow Weaver would gain nothing from doing that. It didn't make any sense. But the evidence was clear as a day. No one but her knew how to handle dark magic.

Glimmer stood motionless and silent. Most likely thinking about the proper punishment for the prisoner. She has been too soft. Perhaps that was the problem.

About time people took her seriously as a queen.

Just when she turned away to get out of there, she stood still when footsteps approached them. Her spy peeked their head from the doorway.

"Oh, glad I've found you here, darlings." Double Trouble in She-Ra disguise greeted them before getting their real form back. "Don't look at me like that. You know how much I love cosplaying as you."

"There's no time for that, D."

Double Trouble took offense to that behavior. Their facial features hung down, drawing a figure of disappointment. "What's with the rush? Especially when I have big news?"

"What is it?"

They grinned, walking closer to the couple with their hands placed on their waist.

"Truth be told, darling, I wasn't planning to come back soon. I was spying in the Fright Zone, disguised as a Horde soldier, and believe me, I was performing greatly. But you know, the audience there is pretty dull. Even you did see how boring it was to be there, right?"

"What do you mean?" Glimmer hissed, bored from their thunder.

"Well, you were there yesterday."

Glimmer's one brow arched down skeptically. "Excuse me?"

“I know right? I reacted the same way as you! Then I watched you closely. You seemed to walk around very relaxed as if you belong there.” They dramatically chuckled. “Don’t be stupid now! You still don’t get it? Okay, one more clue. I followed you into that kitten’s room and you seemed pretty busy getting smashed in her bed.”

A brief silence consumed the queen and her girlfriend. They both knew what Double Trouble meant there. Denial kept pressing, trying its best to make them believe it was otherwise what they thought.

But it wasn’t.

“You mean... S-Shimmer is...”

“Bingo, darling!” They clapped. “Your sister is sleeping with the enemy.”

Even in the worst nightmares, Glimmer couldn’t have seen the worse.

“And... scene!”

Chapter End Notes

Hope you like it!
Feel free to leave comments (bad or good, I'm ok with all XD)

Mother's Ashes

Chapter Summary

Glimmer takes her chances with talking to Shimmer.

Chapter Notes

Last chapter before the finale!
I hope you enjoyed the story so far, folks.
See you on the last one!

See the end of the chapter for more notes

"Your Majesty," Glimmer curtsy before her mother respectfully. Just returned from harsh training, one like any other. "What is it you want to talk to me about?"

Angella's stern look pierced her soul. Glimmer felt somewhat embarrassed from the way she stared daggers at her for no reason.

"I have made a decision. I am very pleased with your progress. You have proven yourself as a worthy ruler and fighter. As a queen, I want you to know about the war coming soon. Rise, Commander Glimmer."

Glimmer –who has been standing on her one knee before her mother's throne all this time– slowly rose to her height with flaring nostrils. The war was always a part of their lives. At least this was the case since the day she was born.

Her whole life was spent being scared. Not of war, but of losing her loved ones.

Micah's loss devastated her terribly. Shimmer and Glimmer have been always so close to their father.

Their relationship was tied with strong bonds of trust and pure love. When he was gone, Glimmer lost a big part of her soul, and Bright Moon on the other side; lost its precious king, also the strongest sorcerer and warrior.

Now Glimmer was expected to develop herself in a way that would be enough to fill the void left by Micah.

The queen could deny this fact as hard as she wanted to. Glimmer knew it was her aim from the beginning to make a copy of Micah, using her.

"According to our scouts, the Horde army will soon march on Mystcor. Your aunt needs help. I want you to be there on our behalf, representing our kingdom by leading the army. The generals will provide the necessary support by bringing troops."

"What is the route?"

"You will lead the army from the south. The general will take the side wing. When necessary, pull back all the troops until you meet the other side of the army waiting at the back. The generals will surround them from both sides where you will be able to trap them."

Glimmer dipped her jaw low for once, signaling she got the plan. "Who is going to lead the other side of the army that will wait for me to lure the enemy inside the circle?"

Angella's scary frown popped up. Clearly displeased with the question. Though, that didn't stop Glimmer from going on with her insistence.

"Is it Shimmer?"

"Now go back to your room. Get yourself ready for it."

Glimmer gasped at the sudden realization that her mother didn't even want to hear her sister's name.

“Mom, with all respect, Shimmer’s help would be so useful on the battlefield. When we combine our magic, it is—”

“To your room. Now.”

“She is your daughter, too. How can you shamelessly show solid discrimination? Tell me what would it help apart from making an enemy of your own kin?”

“Your ideas, Commander...”

Angella threateningly walked onto her. Glimmer didn’t take a step back. Stood there with her all might. Didn’t even flinch.

“... you share only when it is asked from you.”

Glimmer grimaced furiously. “She doesn’t deserve to be treated like this.”

“Shimmer is a reckless obnoxious. The destiny of a whole kingdom cannot be entrusted to her ridiculous ways.”

“You don’t get to talk to me about my sister like that.”

The princess squared up, pink bubbles appearing around her fists. Angella took a moment to glance at her daughter settling ready to attack her queen. Her mother.

Angella casually connected her palms to her stomach, staring at her daughter threateningly.

“Do not do something you’ll regret later on.”

Glimmer sent a sparkly stream at her mother. It ghosted the queen’s shoulder, hitting the throne instead. She did that on purpose. The throne crashed into dozens of pieces with her single attack.

Angella flinched, then slowly turned her head to the back, glancing at her shattered throne from over her shoulder. Their gazes met once more in a deady staring contest.

"My sister hates me because of you! Thinking it is I who cause you to lack love! I hate the place you put me in. I hate the way you discriminate against us! If it's what is like to be a queen then sit on that fucking throne as long as you want to. I don't want it!"

As Glimmer stormed off, the queen stared behind her with her lips gaped in shock.

"Glimmer! GLIMMER!"

...

...

"Glimmer!"

Adora's sweet voice interfered with her disturbing nightmare. Well, a vision from her past, was definitely not a blast.

Something she wanted to erase from her mind permanently. Adora's arms were around her and they were in the bed.

"Is everything okay love?"

Glimmer shook her head. "No." Her lavenders teared up. "I'm so scared for her... Still no news?"

"No, love. I'm sorry."

"We need to get her back." Glimmer hurried to get out of bed. Panic consumed her whole being. What if Catra killed her?

Adora held her back tightly, cooing. "Glimmer, babe, look at me. Shh, calm down."

"W-What if she needs me n-now? What if she's screaming for my help but I'm not hearing her?" The panic was increasing vividly and Adora tensed watching her lover in such a state.

“Love, look at me.” Adora demande with a silky voice. Glimmer did, tears running down her cheeks. “You heard Double Trouble. Catra is having an affair with her. Killing her would gain her nothing. I know her well enough. Trust me, she won’t hurt her.”

Glimmer sniffled, meeting her girlfriend’s tender gaze. Her hand was over her cheek, caressing gently as Adora wrapped her other arm around her waist, holding her close.

“But that doesn’t mean we won’t do anything to get her back,” Adora assured. However, she wasn’t sure if Shimmer would like to come back. All that having sex with the enemy stuff must have been her choice after all. Not like she was being held captive or something.

Someone knocked on their door impatiently. Last night was a bit rough and they were still lacking clothes. Adora got up, putting her buttoned shirt and a random pair of shorts she found on the ground, which perhaps belonged to her girlfriend. Glimmer stayed inside the bed.

Adora opened the door. “Yes, Bow?”

“Shadow Weaver said she won’t speak to anyone else but you two.”

The scary lady seemed pretty uncomfortable in the sphere Glimmer formed around her. Adora stood nearby; a frown on her face drawing wrinkles on her forehead, her arms were crossed over her chest. Glimmer shot daggers at her with a deadly stare.

“I don’t see why you need that.” Shadow Weaver touched the sphere with her fingertip. The magical barrier burnt her skin with an electrical zap. She instantly pulled back, massaging her aching finger.

“Maybe because you are dangerous?” Adora spat furiously.

"Dangerous? I literally have done nothing but grow plants in the room you trapped me in for years." Shadow Weaver's tone was rather confused than defending but Adora knew her games very well. Manipulation was her main thing anyway.

Glimmer cut in; her eyes closed shut as she took steps forward, approaching the sphere with a threatening frown. The cape swung side to side gloriously. Once her eyes popped up, Shadow Weaver backed away in the sphere. Glimmer's body glowed with magic as well as her eyes sparkled.

"Cut the crap. I know you're still working for Horde so they destroy me and Shimmer becomes the queen. She doesn't know how to access the heart. A perfect opportunity for you to convince her that it would be a good idea to grant Moonstone's power to you, right? What is your plan next, taking the heart and destroying all the other princesses?"

"My dear queen, I agreed to help you learn how to control the heart's power didn't I?"

Glimmer scoffed. "You Horde are all about manipulation, huh? Hordak manipulated his brother. You tried to manipulate me. Now Catra fucking manipulates my sister." Her voice cracked at the end.

Shadow Weaver shook her head. "I'm telling you. I have nothing to do with these. I would gain nothing from betraying you."

"Oh yeah? I bet you think she would make a better queen than I do because I'm too soft, right? Admit it or not, I just know this is exactly what you think deep inside."

The woman let out an audible sigh. "Mine and your ways are so different, I agree. I find you soft for the spot you're in as a queen. Just thinking you can do much more than that. You could conquer all the planets if you really wished to but you're thinking too small."

"I'm not a sucker for power, do not take me for weaklings who crave it like mad. I have all the power in my hands. The power that is supposed to help me when I bring peace."

"Okay," Shadow Weaver connected her hands on her waist level. "That I can only respect. Seriously, I don't gain anything by betraying you. As a prisoner, you let me stay in a nice room and stuff. After everything I have done for them, Hordak and Prime rejected me as if I was nothing more than a piece of garbage. Why would I help them now?"

"Then how do you explain the dark magic?"

Adora intervened, stepping closer. Steel-blue eyes showed zero emotion, as dull as a stone when she looked at her ex-superior.

The fallen one rejected the claim again. For once, the false mother figure was saying the truth and they both knew that.

Glimmer made up her mind. Talk to Shimmer and resolve this once and for all.

Shimmer was surprised to get an invitation from her sister. Glimmer wanted to have dinner with her. Two sisters only; no staff, no guards, no girlfriends or ex-husbands at all. Just the two of them exclusively. Perhaps she should have been worried about this.

The queen sat on the other side of the long table, cutting her roasted steak elegantly.

Shimmer has seen Angella's disturbing figure in her posture and frowned, looking down at her own piece of meat.

Could it be poisonous? Glimmer hated her, why wouldn't she?

Fork and knife in her hands dropped on the plate, catching Glimmer's attention with the clinking sound. Glimmer rose her chin, arching an eyebrow as she stared at her twin, only to see that she hasn't touched her meal yet.

"Did you seriously think I would kill you on my table?"

Shimmer let out a scoff. "Why wouldn't you? You have all the reasons."

"And what exactly are the reasons we're talking about here? The fact you're sleeping with an enemy?"

When said that, Glimmer was pretty calm and casual that it almost frightened Shimmer. So, she knew the deal between Catra and her, why she did not rage out?

The calm before the tornado, Shimmer could smell it miles away.

Glimmer set her fork and knife down, propping her chin above her knuckles. She groaned as gave it a thought. Was she mad at Shimmer for being herself? Shimmer slept with every attractive person she saw. Would be very surprised if she did not sleep with her actually.

"You know who she is, right?"

"Yea?" Shimmer cocked an eyebrow skeptically.

A silence captured the whole dining hall in its disturbing haze. Shimmer felt like she couldn't breathe properly under Glimmer's gaze; it wasn't blaming, suspecting, or raging but more like empathizing with her which Shimmer has never seen before.

Maybe she has but probably refused to see it.

Glimmer began with a sigh.

"You never listened to anyone in your life but for this once please listen to me. I know Catra for my all life, and so does Adora. She's from the Horde; someone who lives for power only and is not afraid to burn any obstacle, any people that came across her path for that matter. Catra knows how to use people for her own benefit, and she is dangerous. You saw what she has done to me."

Wait. So this dinner was for warning purposes. Shimmer grimaced, her fingers hooking in the edge of the wooden table, trembling.

"This is exactly why I'm with her."

Glimmer's lips parted with a soft gasp at the sudden reveal. "I'm with her," what was that supposed to mean? Slowly rising to her full height, Glimmer pressed her palms into the wooden texture, propping herself tightly.

"Sister. Did you say you're with her or is it just me hearing things out of blue?"

"I did," Shimmer stood up as well, her whole posture tensing threateningly. As if she was intimating her, telling her to back off or she would start attacking soon.

Glimmer wearily took some steps that carried her near Shimmer. Her twin simultaneously backed away until there was no room left to go and her back pressed against a wall. Glimmer stood before her eyes, her warm breath brushing her face.

"You are saying that it is not a manipulation and you're fucking with that cat willingly?!" Glimmer's tone instantly rose, echoing in the empty dining hall.

"Well, duh! When did you ever see me doing something unless I really want it? Oh, wait, no need to answer that. You have no idea who I am."

"No, you have no idea who I am."

In a blink, Glimmer teleported them on top of a windy mountain god knew where. Black clouds raged upon them, striking with bolts of lightning and raindrops. Matter of seconds they soaked, the pink locks on their heads getting heavy and eventually falling across their faces.

Glimmer grabbed her twin by the elbow, throwing her forward. Shimmer staggered backward a few steps away from her, barely maintaining her balance.

“I wanted to believe that you didn't betray me even though all the evidence was as bright as the sun!”

Glimmer sent a thick stream of light at the other. “Everyone said otherwise but I chose to trust you even when your betrayal was obvious!”

Shimmer gasped, and was quick to react that she somersaulted to the other side, avoiding the blast.

Before she could get on her two feet, Glimmer sent another beam, and another, and another... Shimmer had to jump from side to side, eventually using her teleportation powers to get away until Glimmer teleported right behind her, blasting into her chest.

Shimmer yelped as she was thrown away and would have fallen off the cliff if it wasn’t for the thick tree she got crushed into. She fell to her knees and palms, panting.

It wasn’t over yet. Shimmer gained momentum by pressing her palms into the wet soil, throwing herself back just in time before another blast struck her. Now she was on the ground with her back against the tree and she stared up at her sister, gasping for air.

Glimmer approached with two spheres in her hands threateningly growing bigger. She glared down, locking eyes with the other one.

Shimmer spat, tears running down her cheeks. “Go ahead. Burn me to the ashes like you were about to do when we fought before I left!”

Magic in her hands dissolved and Glimmer let her hands fall on her sides, dangling. That however seemed to intensify Shimmer’s tears full of venom.

“What are you waiting for, do it! You’re just like her! Now kill me or fucking banish me!”

Glimmer grimaced.

“What are you talking about?! I did everything to convince her to let you stay!”

Her sister only scoffed at that in pain. A few coughs came out, she eventually spat blood into her palm which she later located on her stomach.

“Don’t stoop so low now, sister. You never wanted me to be mom’s favorite. That’s why she sent me away.”

Tears visibly formed in Glimmer’s eyes. They were full of anguish, full of pain, and desperation about how she could not stop her mother from sending her sister away when they were younger. Indeed she did everything she could to stop that, everything.

“You’re wrong... It wasn’t me who didn’t want you around...”

Glimmer shook her head to the sides very slowly. “... It was never me who wanted it. Mom did a terrible job being a mother. She has been discriminating. Always praised me despite her knowing how it hurt you, and I hated it.”

Tears intensified. The queen barely could stop the hiccups interrupting her sentences as she spoke.

"When she told me about her plans involving you being away from the kingdom, I tried my best to stop her. Shimmer, I attacked our mother for that. I never wanted you to go away, my dear sister. I swear I didn't want it. Mom punished me for rebelling against her."

Very slowly, the queen stripped from her shoulder plates which resulted in her cape falling at her feet.

In her sleeveless bodysuit, she turned around to reveal her back; the spots where she was supposed to have tiny tattoos of two pink wings.

After taking the throne, those wings would grow big and become an inseparable part of Glimmer's body. Shimmer slowly stood up, examining the horrible scars. That was her punishment for rebelling against the former queen; getting her tattoos torn off her skin.

So she wouldn't get her wings once she got the throne.

Shimmer's heart ached when looking at the scars. When she touched them with her fingertips, Glimmer closed her eyes, shedding silent tears of anguish. Glimmer still vividly remembered the pain Angella had them chopped off.

The queen slowly turned around, facing her sister. Her tears seemed to give up on coming out non-stop, now were in a less intense state.

"I know you are mad at her. I held grudge against her too, but never for what she has done to me. I hated her for what she has done to you, sister."

Glimmer's voice trembled at the end.

"Forgive me for not being able to stop her. I couldn't protect you from her wrath back then but now I can do it. Please, sister, let me protect you."

For a moment Shimmer’s face seemed to soften. A couple of seconds later, pure fury took place. Pride would never allow her to show forgiveness. Not today, not ever.

“I would never accept someone who follows mom's footsteps! You are no different from her, you are just as bad as her. Look what you've done to me!”

Shimmer gestured on her own body. Glimmer made an absolute wreck of her.

“Stop calling her bad, Shimmer. She’s still our mother. We shouldn’t be disrespecting her like that.” Glimmer offered a hand to her. “Now come on, I really could use your help against Horde. I know you have no strings attached to Catra. You never commit to someone.”

Under the heavy storm raining upon them, Shimmer stared at Glimmer’s hand in the air, waiting for her to hold and shake it. For a moment, she considered the offer. Pride won another battle though. Shimmer slapped it away.

“Never!”

“For goodness’ sake!” Glimmer yelled angrily. “At least stop sleeping with her!”

“Why the fuck whom I sleep with is your fucking concern?!”

“Because she killed our mother!”

Both of them gasped at the reveal. It was hard to let sink in. One harsh fact they both needed to handle in their stomach.

Even Shimmer; someone who stripped her feelings so they wouldn’t drag her down felt bad about it now. She backed away, tears gathering in her eyes as she turned her head to the side, avoiding Glimmer’s gaze.

“... How?”

Glimmer sniffed, brushing her tears off with her knuckles harshly.

"Catra once succeeded in going through the Whispering Woods with an army. She found the secret passage that allowed her to go to the heart. She was so close to getting it into her clutches..."

"... but mom stopped her." Shimmer completed on her behalf.

"Yes," Glimmer gave her a weak nod. "Catra went into the chamber. The heart began to transfer its power to Catra. But when mother also stepped in, she forced the heart to stop from the inside. The heart's power is celestial and infinite. Mom somehow managed to have the heart spit both of them out of itself. She was so weak and defenseless... Catra rose from the ground with her claws coming out... and she... she slashed her throat."

It was so painful for Glimmer to talk about that. She was so young when she saw that happen before her eyes.

Catra was driven by greed and she killed Angella; didn't even flinch while doing that. She was so mad at the former queen for getting the heart away. For thousands of years, the heart was in a sleeping state, as protection after Catra's attack.

"Now the heart is open again, sister. Catra is very dangerous, she'll do anything to get it. When you are no longer needed, she will dispose of you too without thinking twice. Please sister. Stay with me, don't go to her."

In her throat stood a solid lump that for a moment she thought she was out of breath. Shimmer considered it, the ice around her heart feeling like melting. Was quite disturbing to realize that for years she thought she hated her sister but was actually so afraid of hating her mother that made herself feel better about it by blaming Glimmer.

Glimmer wasn't the problem. Angella was.

Now she was supposed to feel bad for her mother's killer? After what she has done to both of them?

"Bright Moon is her legacy, sister." Shimmer faced Glimmer without a sign of guilt on her face. "The heart, the kingdom, the throne, and everything she left behind. It was all hers and you were the chosen one to protect all of it. I was never a part of it and I'm not gonna be a part of it now."

"Sister—"

"Mom made her choice. She sent me away. You could have come with me that day. But you chose to stay with her. Both of you have made your choices and neither of them was me. Mom chose you. You chose being her shadow. Now I choose Catra."

And she teleported, leaving Glimmer to cry on her knees hugging herself and screaming her name in anguish.

Chapter End Notes

What do you think will happen next?
Remember, it is going to be the last chapter!
See ya, party people <3

Good Riddance

Chapter Summary

War means blood. War means loss.

Chapter Notes

See the end of the chapter for notes

They should have saved Entrapta from Horde's clutches before it came to that. Another cold war between Bright Moon and the Horde; history was all about repeating itself once in a while. Same sides, same reasons, how could it come to a different outcome?

Princess Alliance stood around the Moon Stone chamber. The army stood split into two wings on the shores parallel to the entrance of Whispering Woods. Against a possible double-sided attack, Adora found it appropriate to divide the army into two separate parts and left the arch guards for the runestone's protection alongside the princesses just in case.

Adora glanced at Shadow Weaver who remained silent behind the princesses. They had no other choice than to trust her with safely obtaining the Heart's powers. A power-seeker woman could not be trusted in that matter, Adora knew that. Glimmer knew that; though, what was left to do?

The war was inevitable. At the tip of their noses, right behind their necks; brushing its disturbing breath on their skins. A war against the ones dearly valued by Adora and Glimmer once upon a time.

Catra knew no limits when it came to power. Without a single trace of doubt, she was about to burn every single bridge for it. Today, Shimmer would learn what kind of a character she was, whenever Catra would burn her too for not finding her useful no more.

At least Glimmer hoped so. Still had a beam of hope within her heart about Shimmer realizing the horrible path she has taken and abandoning it once and for all, deciding to fight alongside her sister for their lands, their home, for their parents.

Tanks arrived first. Dozens of Horde soldiers dashed from both sides. Adora easily noticed the freshly upgraded tanks and armor that soldiers carried. Even the guns they instantly began shooting with seemed more dangerous than ever.

Entrapta's touch. She would have recognized that anywhere.

Princess Scorpia and Lonnie came out of a tank. Something seemed off with the corrupted princess. A crimson glow enveloped her body as she sent lightning strikes at the Bright Moon soldiers, devastating them.

Scorpia's runestone was the deadliest one amongst the others. Entrapta –in the name of science if you ask her– must have done much more than just tingling with the gears that soldiers carried.

Perhaps Catra let her modify the Black Garnet and as a geeky princess, Entrapta went nuts with the excitement of getting to play with a runestone. Allowing Princess Scorpia to rage upon them.

"Do you still insist on that 'we will use the Heart's power only at last resort' attitude, or are you ready to use it right now before the Horde crushes us, Your Majesty? Our princesses are weak, their powers are limited! What chances do we have against a highly upgraded army and two princesses at their best?"

Shadow Weaver's hoarse voice sounded too distant as if she weren't even there. Glimmer could only stare at her sister alongside Catra beside one of the tanks.

Sisters by blood, not by heart. Never was and never would be.

“So be it,” Glimmer said under her breath, summoning a sword out of thin air. That thin sword hammered with pure magic of alloy taken from the Moonstone. Once belonged to the previous queen, Angella, who did not have the guts to ever swing it in a battle. Now it was time for Glimmer to give it a shot.

Against her sister and sworn enemies.

Glimmer rose the sword into the air. “Charge!”

Other princesses hopped off the chamber. Only Shadow Weaver and Adora stood there, protecting the Moonstone from the Horde’s rage.

“They are not interested in my runestone. Get to the secret passage to the Heart, protect it.” Glimmer ordered the scary lady. “Adora and I will join the fight.”

“Glimmer, love, we can’t trust her. She destroyed the vials.”

“This is her chance.” Glimmer replied to Adora, her eyes remaining on the sorceress. “Only one princess of Bright Moon will survive today. I have no ddo not doubt will pick the winner’s side and behave accordingly.”

Without waiting for a reply, Glimmer let herself fall into the void, teleporting once very close to crashing into the ground. She landed on her two feet, her hand gripping the sword firmly. Adora’s presence nearby brought strength.

The legendary warrior grabbed her hand, giving it a gentle squeeze. Signaling her that no matter what happened today, it would always be the two of them, nonetheless alive or deceased. Glimmer would die happy knowing Adora loved her till the very end.

“I love you,” Adora uttered, her voice echoing silky.

Glimmer delivered a sincere smile. “I love you too.”

In the middle of the battlefield where bullets, screams, magic, and people bolted near their skin; they shared a kiss as if the rest of the world did not exist at that moment.

The kiss had to end at some point. Adora and Glimmer broke away with their palms interlocked, passing warmth into one another. They exchanged one last bitter smile before parting.

Adora dipped the sword into the water, dragged it forward as she took a few steps to the huge tanks that did not scare her one bit, and drew a semi-circle in the air. A blast in that shape blew the tanks away with the Horde soldiers.

Glimmer's eyes only picked up one person.

Who dared to lay her clutches on her kingdom many times. Who has threatened her people for all these years. Who took her whole family away without blinking.

Catra was going to pay for all the sins she's committed.

Glimmer exchanged glances with her girlfriend briefly. Adora gave her one quick nod before dashing toward Shimmer. The other princess was taken aback but was quick to react. She teleported away just in time before She-Ra's sword could slash her through. Catra jumped back, avoiding the sword. That caused enough distraction for Glimmer to pop behind Catra and teleport her away with herself. Somewhere distant from the battlefield.

Catra fell to her knees, emptying her stomach. An unexpected trip through the dozens of vortexes Glimmer dragged her through did not sit well inside. As Catra coughed, her eyes could pick Glimmer's boots circling her very closely until one of them swung right into her face, throwing her a couple of steps away.

"Not so tough now, eh?

Catra did not answer. Laid there motionless. Face buried into the ground, chest barely going up and down. Glimmer pointed the sword up to seal Catra's fate once and for all.

Before the sword cut through her neck and split it from her body; Catra threw a handful of sand at Glimmer's face. A sharp yelp came out of the queen; she stumbled backward, rubbing her stinging eyes.

Perfect opportunity for her to take over. Catra dashed to her like a bull, hammering her stomach with her fist. Glimmer spat a pool of blood after the blast, falling to her knees, hugging her stomach tightly in pain.

Deadly claws came out to join the game, threatening the queen. From the corner of her eye Glimmer saw how pointy thirsty they were for blood. Catra carried herself forward, a nasty smirk lifting all of her features.

Catra grabbed her by the collar when close enough, raising her up into the air single-handed. The queen swung her feet back and forth in panic. Her sword was already fallen to the ground as she gripped Catra's wrist, trying to break through.

Catra didn't budge.

"Do you think I'm afraid of a bunch of princesses? I killed your queen, remember?"

At that could Glimmer only laugh. "No one cares about your existence, and neither did my mother." She hissed through her teeth, staring into Catra's eyes with a grin. "My mother had no intentions of getting her hands dirty by killing a worthless vagabond."

Catra tried her best to not react. Albeit her efforts, Glimmer could easily spot how her expressions changed momentarily before Catra intensified her grip around Glimmer's neck.

Insufficient effort to stop Glimmer's sharp words. "That's why you're all alone. Even if you get your clutches to the Heart, you'll still be alone."

A heavy punch landed on her stomach, forcing her to spit blood and let out a few coughs. Another bitter chuckle followed. “Do you ever stop to wonder why Adora ran away from you?” Glimmer slowly drew her lips closer to Catra’s feline ears. “... Because you are weak, miserable, pathetic.”

As if a tiger was about to tear its prey apart. Catra growled. Claws popped with a steel sound. Catra’s breathing became heavier. She stared into the sparkly lavenders with her own venomous little eyes, shooting knives into her soul.

Wait for me, mother. I am coming.

“Catra!”

The moment Catra heard a voice behind her, she turned her head around to see Adora glowing nearby; her hair dancing with the wind, eyes squinted and fully locked on her old friend. She shook her head to the sides. “You will never change, will you?”

Catra released her grip. Glimmer fell with a yelp, hissing through her teeth once more. Adora slowly approached her. “I hate what you’ve become.” She watched Catra’s features going up, saddening.

“... I miss the old Catra so much. The one that gallops around, goofing, bantering. The one who only cared about enjoying life once upon a time. Now look at you,” Adora gestured at her, heaving a bitter sigh. “Power craving. Tell me one thing, Catra. Was it really worth it?” A few tears ran from her cheeks. “Are you happy now? That you’re so mighty but there’s no one around you to witness you become a powerful empress.”

Swoosh

Glimmer watched in horror the way Catra killed her girlfriend without even blinking. The same way she killed her mother. Adora coughed, holding her throat gushing with blood. She glitched a couple of times. The thud of her body hitting the grass followed.

Catra backed away when realized it wasn't Adora at all.

"Double Trouble, no!"

Their body would never take any other form no more. It was their last scene. Once and for all. The next moment, Glimmer screamed at losing one of her best soldiers and sent a sparkly stream at the cat. Catra jumped aside, only to be grabbed by the real Adora.

Without hesitation, Adora slammed Catra against the boulder; it split into two instantly, and Catra's scream in anguish filled their ears. Adora drew her sword as she approached the fallen empress. No doubt that lots of her bones were broken and the cat was clenching her teeth tightly, in an attempt to suppress her screams.

Before Adora could swish the sword to split her head off, both her and Glimmer's bodies were enveloped by a dark purple glow that made them freeze in their places. They couldn't even move their lips.

"Is that..."

"Dark magic," Shimmer said, her face lit up with a dirty grin as she approached. "Mother didn't approve of it. That's why father used to practice it when no one was around. I might have spied on him meanwhile..."

The grin grew bigger. Evolved into one that brought chills to the other two. Glimmer wanted to cry so badly.

Shimmer clenched her fingers, resulting in their bodies getting crushed under pressure that almost got their bones cracked. They both cried out in pain. Shimmer dissolved the magic, allowing them to fall to the ground. She moved until reached Catra's side, clutching her chest.

Some strange words spilled from her lips. Glimmer didn't understand what they meant but whatever they were, some runic symbols glowed with electric blue above Catra's chest. Catra gasped, her chest arched forward.

"It wasn't Shadow Weaver who broke the seal with dark magic. I did it. So you couldn't help those weak princesses. We will win this war, sister. Nobody will stop us from achieving victory, do you hear me? Come on, Catra. Let's go get the Heart."

Now completely healed, Catra rose to her full height and they teleported to the Heart. Once Shimmer was gone, both Glimmer and Adora gasped with relaxation now that the dark spell above them dissolved.

"Adora, we need to go now!" Glimmer ran to her, grabbed her by the shoulder, and teleported.

In the heart

"I knew you wouldn't be able to stop yourself, Shadow Weaver. You want the power. You always wanted the power," Catra laughed. "But step aside now.
Or I will finish what I've started years ago."

"Go away, Catra. The Heart won't give you what you're looking for."

"Yeah yeah, stop with that lecture and step aside. I don't want to destroy you."

Shadow Weaver attacked them with dark energy. When they tried to counter-attack, a force barrier protected her from oblivion. Shimmer sent zapping energy balls at the barrier and Catra tried to sink her claws through it.

Shadow Weaver pressed her palms into the sphere, grunting. The barrier was getting smaller and smaller each time the other two attacked.

"Stop it, granny. You're gonna get yourself killed. I know you want the power as much as we do, so stop resisting it now." Catra declared, grinning.

"Leave her alone!"

Catra back flipped before Glimmer's magic could hit her.

"I'm really fed up with you, Sparkles."

From the corner of her eye, Glimmer picked the worst moment; her girlfriend getting crushed by her own sister. Under the siege of the dark magic, Adora cried out in anguish, falling to her knees. Her clutches were on her chest. Soon, her chest began to burn and was pierced with Shimmer's magic. A hole formed through it, blood ran by the edges, and Adora's sight blackened before passing out.

Glimmer wanted to reach her. Wanted to tell her how much she loved her. Maybe for the last time. Adora was still alive. She felt and heard her heartbeat still.

As if the time slowed down. Everything happened in slow motion. Catra dashed at her with her claws threateningly flared up, eager to run through Glimmer's body. On the other side stood Shimmer, squaring up. The dark flames enveloped her whole body.

I can still save everybody.

Glimmer exchanged glances with Shadow Weaver for only a moment.

Then she rose her palm up towards the Heart as if she wanted to hold it from the distance. An earthquake followed with a horrible celestial roar. Chamber glowed with magic the moment Glimmer began to drag power from the Heart herself. Not knowing how. Just following her instincts.

Like her mother.

Only, a little bit braver than her.

Chamber was consumed by the pink flames that brought no harm to Glimmer as she walked through them, approaching her sister. She summoned her sword and walked toward her sister.

"I tried to win your heart, I tried to protect you. I did my best to bring you back to where you belong. Don't blame me now." Glimmer had that bitter smile as she grabbed Shimmer who was paralyzed by Glimmer's celestial powers combined with the Heart now by the shoulder. "I love you, sister."

The sword pierced through her stomach. All Glimmer could do was cry as she watched Shimmer's soul leave her body with tears in her eyes.

Glimmer brought everyone out of the chamber. They were at the runestone chamber where they could see the Horde soldiers and Bright Moon troops fighting, unaware of what was happening between their leaders.

Catra was knocked out. Shimmer was already gone.

And Adora...

"I will fix this once and for all," Glimmer said under her breath. With her new divine powers, a single hand swing was enough to destroy all the Horde soldiers and gears. She healed her own people, Princess Alliance, and her girlfriend. Just a second passed and everyone was fine, apart from the fallen ones.

Double Trouble saved Glimmer's life. Died as a hero.

Princess Alliance did their best to save Entrapta from Scorpia. They couldn't succeed. Scorpia destructed herself, taking Entrapta along with her.

When Glimmer looked at Mermista who cried into Sea Hawk's chest, she knew that he was dead, too.

And Shimmer.

“Find peace wherever you are now, sister.”

It was a month later from the grand war. Many fallen soldiers and warriors whom they held dear deserved a memorial. After everyone left, Glimmer sat at the edge of a mountain, watching the sunset. Legs dangling from the edge, eyes fixed on the sun. Her girlfriend’s footsteps caught her attention from behind.

“Catra agreed to leave. She went to the Crimson Waste.”

“Good. What about Shimmer?”

Adora heaved a soft sigh. “Burnt to ashes. Just like you asked me to.”

Glimmer nodded. Her face showed no emotion. Dull as if she had no soul.

“Till the last moment, I thought Catra would come around. I had that hope.” Adora murmured as she settled herself beside her girlfriend.

“I had, too. I thought my sister would come around. Till the very last moment.”

Adora gently wrapped her arms around the queen, putting her chin above her head. She knew Glimmer was hurt and sad about her sister. Even about Catra, too. But the queen was strong. Glimmer would survive.

“It’s going to be the two of us.” Glimmer said, looking up to see her lover’s eyes. “Just you and me.”

Adora gave a soft smile.

“Just you and me.”

Chapter End Notes

That's all folks. Hope you enjoyed

Please drop by the Archive and comment to let the creator know if you enjoyed their work!