Kingdom Come

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/32126098.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationship:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Smut, Fluff and Smut, Filthy, Strap-Ons, Knotting, Vibrators, Daddy Kink, Praise Kink, Sugar Daddy, former sugar daddy Catra, Inspired by Twitter, Choking, choking but only a little bit really, Alternate Universe - Modern Setting, Tooth-Rotting Fluff, absolute filth, am I allowed visitors in horny jail?, Light Dom/sub, honestly take me to church, One Shot, Mommy Kink, Nonbinary Catra, Alcohol, Masc Catra

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2021-06-23 Completed: 2022-06-11 Words: 17,422 Chapters: 2/2

Kingdom Come

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/32126098.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationship:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Smut, Fluff and Smut, Filthy, Strap-Ons, Knotting, Vibrators, Daddy Kink, Praise Kink, Sugar Daddy, former sugar daddy Catra, Inspired by Twitter, Choking, choking but only a little bit really, Alternate Universe - Modern Setting, Tooth-Rotting Fluff, absolute filth, am I allowed visitors in horny jail?, Light Dom/sub, honestly take me to church, One Shot, Mommy Kink, Nonbinary Catra, Alcohol, Masc Catra

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2021-06-23 Completed: 2022-06-11 Words: 17,422
Chapters: 2/2

Kingdom Come

by cabbageboy

Summary

Somebody tweeted "whose gonna write the fic where catra gets called daddy for Father's Day" and I was like you know what?

me

PSA: This is NOTHING like my Mother's Day fic, please do not be fooled

Notes

This is absolute filth, it really is.

Our Father who art in Penthouse, Catra be thy name

Chapter 1

Adora sat on the couch of the spacious living room, a wall of glass overlooking the twinkling lights of the city that never slept, sipping tea and waiting for the bacon in the oven to finish cooking so that she could carry out her grand romantic gesture.

It wasn't a holiday for them, not really, but it was still fun to pretend and to lean into some of the more stereotypical aspects of their relationship. At least the relationship they used to have before things got more serious between them.

Their arrangement hadn't started out like this. Getting feelings, moving in together, having a real relationship beyond what they outlined in their first meeting, was never part of the original plan.

Adora needed the money for school. Catra had the money. They were insanely attracted to each other. It was business mixed with a little bit of pleasure and that was supposed to be it.

Catra had taken it a little further, taking her to a few nice restaurants and on a vacation or two, buying her cute dresses and a little bit of jewelry. None of it was overly ostentatious, mostly at Adora's insistence. She'd been truly uncomfortable about the idea of taking advantage, as silly of a notion that was. It was hard to take advantage of Catra when all she wanted was to spend money on her anyway.

Because one of Catra's favorite things became doting on Adora and making sure she knew that she was worth it. She was worth the help with tuition, the help with rent, and every other kindness that Catra had insisted on giving her.

She'd grown quite used to the feeling of being the one on Catra's arm when they walked into ballrooms, her in a floor length gown, ever the picture of the princess that Catra liked to call her. Catra would be wearing a matching suit, tailored perfectly to her frame, with an undone bow tie and enough buttons free for anyone to see what had happened to her neck mere moments before in the limo. There wasn't a person at any of those events that wasn't jealous of her for having Catra, the youngest and most successful CEO that the company had ever had, and also happening to be the first woman to hold the position. She oozed power, and her words were sharp and cunning. If some poor soul was fool enough to test her they'd be on the receiving end of the tongue lashing of a lifetime, words tinted with the ghost of her mother's accent.

And fools they were. One such person had approached Adora at a charity event with an outstretched business card with their personal number written on the back. That was when Adora learned that as jealous as they all were of her for having Catra, they were equally jealous of Catra for having her.

It's a wonder that they were even able to wait so long to get together, but stubborn pride kept either from admitting that they'd fallen a little harder than intended for the other. That, and, the disbelief that 'someone like her could love someone like me' nonsense.

Adora still thinks back fondly to the moment that the romantic aspect of their relationship really started.

They were on vacation in the Florida Keys, on a moderately sized yacht that Catra had rented for the occasion. Sipping mimosas in the summer breeze. Salt curled hair whipped in the wind as Adora lounged on a crisp white cushioned chair on the bow of the boat. It glided effortlessly through the surf, bouncing and rocking gently. Crystal blue water glittered below and the large sunglasses on her face somehow deepened the already vibrant colors. There wasn't a cloud in the sky, and as the sun continued it's ascent she felt truly at peace.

She was still on her first drink, but the combination of excitement at the sheer beauty surrounding her and the memory of the night before tinted her cheeks pink and warmed her chest. Bringing her hand up to toy with the diamond necklace that hung low between breasts that were barely covered by the scooping neckline of her bikini top, she can't quite place what this feeling is.

But she soon gets her answer.

Catra appears next to her in a white, silk, short sleeved button up, though it's barely buttoned. As it billows in the wind, she's greeted with a black lace bra and the freckles that dot along her collar bone. The shirt is tucked into high waisted jean shorts that reveal her smooth, toned thighs, right down the vine of English ivy winding down to a pair of white slip on vans.

She's grinning that triumphant smile, looking at Adora like she was the only woman on earth. Catra looked at Adora with affection and adoration, but with a tint of something more possessive, like she was a prize that Catra had won. She always looked at her like that, but Adora could tell that this was more somehow. This was real, as real as anything, the closest a feeling could get to being tangible if she'd only reach out and take it.

This beautiful woman, who'd taken care of her needs in every conceivable way, financially, physically, and even emotionally she was realizing, was in front of her staring at her like she'd never seen anything more beautiful.

Which is a strange thought because the sight of Catra was enough to dampen her white and gold bikini bottoms, and she's sure that Catra would have had to have looked in a mirror this morning getting ready.

"Fuck I love you."

The words are out before Adora can register that she'd spoken, the compulsion turning to a desperate plea.

It makes Catra freeze.

"You… you what?"

A beat, and there's silence. There is no ocean, no breeze, no seagulls, no sails of their catamaran billowing. All that exists is her and Catra and their two hearts beating as fast as they ever had.

"I love you."

"I love you too."

They didn't spend much more time above deck that day, and the crew left them alone in their grand and lavish suite. They'd all taken to staying above deck to give the two privacy, sending the greenhorn to knock on the door and drop off trays of food lest any of them incur the wrath of the two lovers.

Because, now that they know that they were truly making love, it wasn't likely to stop any time soon.

Catra stroked praises with her tongue, bathed her with all of the love and pride she'd been capable of, and though it never felt like she'd get enough, she took and gave all that Adora could handle until the sun was rising again.

And then it was Adora's turn to push and suck and grind her body into Catra's, touch and feel like she was finally breathing, finally living, for the first time in her life.

By the time they collapsed into a heap of limbs and pulsing nerves, there wasn't much 'day' left. Their night was spent half asleep, half awake whispering and giggling, while the stars glittered just a little brighter and the moon looked just a little closer.

The next day they'd talk, really talk. They'd change their arrangement and start anew with the knowledge that their love was returned.

The kitchen timer chimes, and Adora wipes the ghost of a tear away as she gets up to take the bacon out of the oven. The sun is just peaking over the horizon, and while she knows that Catra prefers to sleep in, she also knows that it would do no good for her sleep schedule for work the next day.

Plus she was pretty excited about her plans, and there was only so long she could wait. She'd held off until the sun was coming up at least, and that was going to have to be good enough.

Chalk that up to another aspect of Brat Adora and her Master Plan to "Fuck around and find out." Though she was also filled with a gentle and timid excitement at her plans. It wasn't even that she thought it was particularly bratty, not yet at least. Sure, things always swung that way when this was the mood she put herself in. What was more was that it wasn't really that much of a joke to her.

When she felt small and anxious and needed someone to tell her that she'd done something right, someone to make her feel like she was worth it, Catra was there to make her feel loved and protected. Catra soothed her worries and made her feel like she finally had someone to put her first.

She's still asleep when Adora slips into the bedroom, taking care to place the tray on her bedside table before sitting down on the edge. She runs her hand up and down Catra's back, sleep warmed and bare. Her chest rises and falls in steady, deep, breaths. Adora just watches for a moment, content to observe the peaceful smile gracing her dark lips even in sleep.

Pressing her hand a little harder with each pass up and down her spine, Adora coaxes her partner back to the world of the living from her deep state of unconsciousness. She's greeted with a groan when it finally works, and has to bite her lip to contain the giggle threatening to break out.

"Mmmm… wuryou doin?"

"What's that baby?" Adora teases, reaching around to tickle under Catra's chin.

Catra snorts, laughing slightly as her eyes peel open, “What are you doing weirdo?”

Adora barks out a laugh, “Ha! Is that any way to talk to someone that made you breakfast in bed?”

She catches sight of the tray next to her and smirks up at Adora.

“No, I guess it isn’t.”

Adora gets off the bed and slides her hands from Catra’s shoulders, down her arms, and to grasp tightly at her hands. She pulls her up with a dramatic heave, grunting in a way that makes Catra laugh.

“Come on, I know you’re stronger than that.”

“I’m weak from having to wait so long for breakfast. I was up hours ago. I already got my workout in.”

Catra rolls her eyes and says, “Well why did you wait for me dummy? You should have eaten something.”

“I couldn’t eat without you! Today is special!”

Without another word she picks up the tray and lays it on the center of the bed, walking to the other side and climbing in to sit back against the headboard. Catra doesn’t waste any time snuggling up against her, laying her head on Adora’s shoulder and yawning into her neck.

“Why is today special?” She asks, picking up a slice of bacon and biting off a mouthful. She lifts the other half up above her head and feels it slip out of her hand when Adora takes it between her teeth.

“Let’s have breakfast first and then I’ll tell you the special part,” Adora manages to mumble out around the mouthful.

With a shrug, none too worried about Adora's little secret, Catra continues taking bites of their shared breakfast and sipping her cup of coffee. They banter back and forth about how much better Catra thinks pancakes are and how much Adora prefers waffles. They discuss which soccer game they should get tickets to because Brightmoon would be playing Frighton in the next few weeks, but would be facing off against Salineas the following week. They talk about the book they'd both decided to read at the same time, and Adora judges Catra heavily for relating to the villain more than the hero, while Catra judges Adora for finding the description of the villain and her dialogue significantly more attractive than she finds the heroes.

Adora makes a big show of bending over to pick up the tray, pressing her arms in on her chest to accentuate her cleavage in her low cut shirt, and quickly takes it to the kitchen to grab the real surprise. She giggles again, excited jitters aiding the smug look on her face.

She takes the box, the card, and heads back to the bedroom.

She places both on the bed, and Catra raises an eyebrow. It wasn't her birthday, and as far as she could tell by the already cranking AC, it wasn't Christmas either. The neat wrapping paper on the box isn't particularly seasonal in decorations, just tiny flamingos and rainbow beach balls, so it doesn't give away exactly what Adora thought she was celebrating.

She reaches for the card, because every time she reaches for the package first, Adora gets fussy about her opening the card.

But this time, Adora puts her hand over hers and guides it to the box.

"I think it'd be better if you read the card after," She whispers with a wink.

The box doesn't feel too heavy, but it certainly isn't light either. She's terrible at estimating sizes, especially with no frame of reference, but she'd say that it's larger than the custom chef's knife she'd gotten for her birthday and smaller than a coffee maker. Those are the first two things that come to mind, at least.

She isn't sure what she expects it to be, doesn't really expect anything, but when she tears off the wrapping paper and opens the box it is the exact opposite of what she'd expect.

It's longer than the rest of their collection, and girthier too. It's a sleek purple with swirling sparkles just below the surface, ribbed in all the right places, with a knot just above a base that looks like it was made to fit into her packing underwear.

Her mouth goes dry, but other parts of her are already wet thinking about getting to use it on Adora.

She looks up in question to see Adora's smug expression, the one that reads 'troublemaker' but with the filter of innocence that she used when they played in a very particular way, and doesn't have to wait long for her stern eyes and raised brow to demand an answer.

"Open the card."

So she does.

It reads: Happy Father's Day

What the fuck?

Adora leans in close, taking Catra's ear lobe in her mouth and biting a little before releasing it and whispering in her ear.

Hot breath fans over her face and neck, and Catra shivers.

"Happy Father's Day, Daddy."

Catra's jaw drops and Adora giggles.

Her face is bright red, blushing furiously and unable to really speak at the way Adora had just all of a sudden, right out the gate, first thing in the morning, brought up her most secret and also profound kink.

Adora takes her momentary silence as quite the achievement, and lays it on a little thick with a much softer, much higher pitched voice, "It's your special day, Daddy, so I got you a present."

Catra's hand slams itself into her forehead at the actual audacity of Adora to get her Daddy a Father's Day present, and at herself for already falling into the trap her baby girl set.

"Why are you like this?"

Adora reaches forward and wraps her arms around Catra's neck, draping herself over her shoulders.

"Do you knot like your present?" She giggles, clearly pleased with herself.

"Dear God, It's me Catra. I know we haven't talked in a while-"

She shrieks a laugh as Adora pushes her down to the bed and the wrestling match begins.

"-but I just thought I'd lodge a complaint-"

Adora presses open mouth kisses on her neck, taking dramatic turns between sexy and playful as she blows a raspberry just below her ear. Catra's laughter grows wild, and she's struggling to contain herself at the assault, but manages to get the upper hand and pushes Adora onto her back. She holds her wrists, pinning them to the bed.

"-because you really didn't have to make my soulmate so fucking ridiculous-"

She's cut off again when Adora thrusts up, lips meeting hers, and she can't help but melt into it a little bit. She lets go of Adora's wrists, dragging her fingers delicately down her forearms. It makes her shiver and stutter out her next words.

"Don't even try to pretend you don't love it."

Catra reaches out to stroke her thumb along Adora's cheekbone, taking in the flush of her cheeks and her plump, glistening lips. She stares into those grey blue eyes, so full of warmth and love, and thinks that, while it was absolute torture sometimes, she really does love her gigantic dork.

"Yeah I guess I really do love it."

Adora smiles.

"But that doesn't mean I like it."

The smile falls off her face, replaced by a pout.

"Oh sweetheart don't look at me like that. If you wanted Daddy so bad you didn't have to act like such a little brat, a tease."

Catra's free with her toying laughter as she dips down to bite along Adora's chest, taking the delicious flesh there into her mouth and soothing it with her tongue.

For her part, Adora fights through the gasps and groans to get to a coherent sentence that she actually thinks might serve as a decent argument, if she didn't know she'd already lost.

"Don't tell me you've changed your mind, because if I remember our arrangement correctly you wanted a little bit of a brat."

Catra's laughter takes a dark turn, deepening into something dangerous, something sinister. It makes Adora shiver with want and need before she even speaks, but she knows that whatever Catra is about to say is going to send her well on her way to being completely destroyed for her. She slides her knee up between Adora's muscular thighs and just barely makes contact with her center.

“You know what I think?” She asks, kissing along Adora’s neck, leaving bright red marks and dark bruises along the column of her throat.

Fuck it, Adora worked from home. She didn’t need to look presentable tomorrow.

“I think you like pretending to be a brat, because when I-“

She threads her fingers in Adora’s hair and tugs, pulling her head back with a gasp to allow her more access to her neck.

“Treat you like one, I always turn you back into a ‘good girl’ after.”

She grins, feeling Adora’s pulse quicken below her lips. Her whimpers grow louder and it’s all she can do not to lose herself entirely while Catra is still talking.

Her words are punctuated with firm, sucking kisses.

“Such... a... good... girl.”

Adora has long since lost control of her hips, thrusting up to grind against the knee between her thighs.

“And what you really like is being my good girl, right princess?”

“Yes.”

“Yes what?”

“Yes Daddy.”

“That’s right baby girl.”

Adora’s whimper is devastating, breathy and desperate in a way she had only ever gotten once she got together with Catra.

Something about the way Catra treats her like she’s small and vulnerable, like Catra’s going to corrupt her and turn her into a filthy tease and then back into the good girl she so loves being, makes her wet at the mere thought. So before Catra even really gets them started she's grinding and thrusting herself on Catra's thigh, biting her lip to hold back the moans in an attempt to hold off the moment Catra truly has her.

Fingers sliding along her forearms back down to her wrists, the warm palms holding her there tightly, makes her open her eyes and stare into Catra's.

"Hang on for me sweetheart, we have some business to get up to."

She presses their mouths together in a kiss, sweet like honeysuckle, delicate like dandelion fuzz, passionate like jet trails across a clear blue sky, and Adora almost fucking cries when she pulls away.

She stands up slowly, letting Adora feel her body sliding away so it isn't too jarring, and turns to her nightstand to look at the toy.

She bypasses it, however, to open the second drawer down and Adora instantly knows what she's reaching for. She presses her legs together to try to gain control of herself, but can't help the flood of arousal that weeps from her when she catches sight of it.

Catra, for her part, isn't trying to be cruel. Adora knows that. At least she thinks she does. But it's just so easy to see the torture of it all as Catra slides the vibrator into Adora's underwear to rest against her clit.

She stands up straight to survey her partner, her love, her wanton slut, laying on the bed staring up at her.

"You wanted Daddy, and you wanted to be a brat, so I'm going to treat you like one. Now, I'm going to go unbox and clean off our new toy, and you're going to keep your hands on the headboard the whole time for me. You're not going to let go, you're not going to touch yourself, and you're absolutely not going to come without my saying so. Understand?"

Adora nods, wordlessly. Some deep spark of mischief in her knows that it isn't going to be good enough for Catra though.

Catra raises her eyebrow and looks, smirking. She didn't even have to say it, because she'd wait all day if she had to. No, Adora knew better, and she was only prolonging her own torment if she didn't follow what she knew to be one of Catra's rules.

"Yes Daddy, I understand." She puts her hands up on the headboard.

"Safeword?" Catra asks, holding the remote in her hand.

Adora smiles. Catra always checked in, no matter what they started with or where it was going.

"Sword."

"Good girl," She says, turning the vibrator on. It's not the lowest setting, Adora notices, as it jolts to life. She counts herself lucky that it isn't the highest.

Catra takes the box and walks into the attached bathroom and makes loud work of tearing into the packaging. She turns the faucet on and Adora can't tell if Catra gained the ability to read her mind or if she's just that unlucky, and feels the vibrator slowly crank up another notch, and another, and another. It slowly and torturously drives her mad, drawing noises out of her that she'd be embarrassed about if she wasn't so turned on.

Just as she's getting close, Catra shuts it off. Like, completely and entirely turns the vibrator off, leaving her hanging, hovering right at the edge in painful disappointment. She hears a low chuckle from the bathroom and rolls her eyes at how smug she already is, this soon into their activities.

The vibrator screams to life on her clit and she's shouting in surprise.

"I saw that. Don't roll your eyes at me princess."

Catra must take pity on her writhing form and, not waiting for a response, turns it back down to a manageable hum. It's a strangely comforting sort of vibration, but on her sensitive body she's starting to feel painfully in need.

Soon enough, when she's sure she's soaked through her panties, shorts, and the sheets while she's at it, Catra returns from the bathroom.

She nearly cries again, this time from how beautiful and sexy and authoritative she looks, strutting up to the bed with swaying hips and the dildo swaying at the front of her packing underwear. It's not enough but it's too much and all Adora knows to do is murmur out a, "please," as she lay helpless under the wrath of the vibrator and Catra's ruthless gaze.

"Alright baby I think you've had enough for now," She says, turning the vibrator off and placing the remote on the nightstand. She leaves it in Adora's underwear for now, climbing onto the bed and placing one hand on her chest. She slowly leans down, agonizingly, like Adora is waiting for molasses to drip from a spoon and it feels like she won't survive waiting another moment right up until the nanosecond that Catra's fingers wrap around her throat and their lips brush.

"That's it, there's my girl," Catra breathes out, breath fanning Adora's face.

Adora is dizzy and drunk, completely surrounded by Catra. Catra's fingers, Catra's lips, Catra's body, Catra's smell, Catra's breath, Catra's heartbeat against Adora's chest.

All she sees and feels and is is wrapped up in Catra and she isn't going to make it. God she isn't going to fucking make it if she has to lay here and take this without getting to touch her too.

"Please," She whispers out, not forming the real question but saying all Catra needs with her flexing arms and tightening fingers.

“You want to touch me sweetheart?”

Adora nods.

Catra grins wider, teeth glinting in the midmorning light. She slides down Adora’s body, sitting upright, and looks down at her.

“Touch me how you want.”

It takes a second for Adora to register the words, but when she does, she springs up and wraps her arms around Catra, dragging her that little bit down to slam their lips together. She works her with her lips and teeth, tongue peeking out to ask, always ask, and Catra parts her lips and lets Adora have her.

It’s sloppy in her desperation, and Adora cringes a little as their teeth click together, but she finds a rhythm that has them both sighing into each other and she calms enough to run her hands up and down Catra’s sides. Her smooth skin pebbles under Adora’s touch and it’s thrilling at the same time that it’s endearing that she reacts to Adora’s passionate touch like it’s the first time all over again.

Soon she’s reaching up to run her thumbs over Catra’s nipples, and the soft skin tightens with a gasp at her touch. She pulls away from her and turns her attention down to those lovely breasts, the ones she spent her days thinking about and her nights touching, and it’s all she can do to fight back her giggle as she leans down to kiss across Catra’s chest and take one into her mouth.

She sucks, working her tongue around it, biting ever so gently and pulling away to blow at it and draw another gasp from Catra’s mouth. She gives it another kiss, light and caring this time, before dragging her nose across Catra’s chest to the other nipple. All the while as she sucks and bites, licking and coaxing those noises out of Catra, she kneads at her sides with a bruising grip. The motion jolts her back and forth on Adora’s knee as it rests just under where the dildo rests on her clit. The stimulation rocks the toy against Catra's clit, soaking her packing underwear through. On the other side, though, it's found a natural resting place right between Adora's legs and she can feel the dildo that's about to fuck the life out of her rubbing against her inner thigh.

When she feels the knot press into her clit she pulls away, a quiet, "ah!" escaping her lips.

"Alright princess, you've had your fun. Now it's my turn."

Adora nods, letting Catra push her onto her back.

She's splayed out on the mattress, a golden halo draped over the pillows and sheets, looking as angelic as she has ever looked. Catra smiles fondly at her princess, because that's exactly what she was.

She helps Adora lean up enough to take off her shirt, and she gives extra attention to her nipples as she kisses her way down her body. She's hot to the touch, feverish and ready. Catra knows she can't wait any longer, so it's with a few parting bites and soothing kisses that she leaves Adora's nipples behind to kiss further down the taut muscle of her abdomen.

Adora fists the sheets in her hands, tensing her entire upper body, as Catra kneels up to work Adora's shorts and panties down her legs. The vibrator, coated in her slick, falls to the mattress and Catra picks it up.

Adora watches as she gives it a cursory lick, relishing in the taste of her partner's wetness. That isn't her goal, however, and she's losing patience herself.

This is her day after all, Adora said so. So she puts it on the nightstand and draws a finger up through Adora's wetness to her clit, giving it a few gentle circles with her finger.

"Oh all this for me?" She asks.

"All for you. Everything is for you."

With that admission, just the way Catra likes it, she pulls their bottle of lube out of the drawer. She absolutely doesn't think they'll need it, but they don't have any toys as big as the knot on this monster cock, and she doesn't want their maiden voyage with the thing to be painful.

She doesn't think Adora's cute little cunt would put up much resistance anyway, but it was the principle of the thing. She had to know that she was careful, because when Adora was like this, when she was small and trusting and needed to be protected and cared for, Catra was always going to be a little extra safe.

She spreads the lube around, stroking the big purple cock up and down to make sure it was coated well enough, and tosses the bottle down on the bed next to Adora's leg where she could easily reach it if she needed to.

The sentiment that 'less was more' absolutely did not apply to lube.

Catra's eyes shift to Adora, to her partner, her girlfriend, the woman that she planned to make her wife, and most importantly in this moment, her baby girl.

Her grey blue eyes are shimmering up at her, and she's biting her lip in nervous anticipation. She bought the damn thing, used it to tease Catra earlier, but it was fair to be a little skeptical when it was quite a bit larger than the rest of their toys.

"You sure about this princess?" She asks.

Adora nods slowly, "It's big."

"Yeah baby. We can stop if you want? You can always stop us."

The reminder seems to put her at ease and she's nodding more sure this time.

"I'm ready."

“Safeword?” Catra asks.

“Sword,” She says, a little smug. She sure was a nerd.

“That’s right baby, just say the word and we’ll stop. Now, are you ready for me?”

She takes a deep breath, wiggling her hips to scootch down so the pillow under her head is at a better angle, and raises her knees up so her feet are flat on the mattress. It’s more comfortable, and it feels like a more active position.

She never did like getting participation points for attendance. She’d much rather raise her hand in class.

Catra’s chuckle at her eagerness dies in her throat as she looks down, taking in the swollen pink labia and Adora’s clit throbbing from where it peeks out from under the hood. Everything about Adora was beautiful. Her arousal is leaking down her legs, dripping from the source, and Catra can’t resist backing up for a second to lean down and lick a firm strip right up her center. She circles her tongue around the clit, bringing her lips together to suck gently, and then moves back down to tongue at her clenching hole. It would never stop astounding her just how wet Adora got for her, just how aroused she was at their love making.

She’s sure Adora is close, having gotten quite worked up from the vibrator while she took her sweet time playing with her and cleaning off the new toy. It’s a wonder she’s been able to hold off this long, and Catra rubs her clit furiously with the pad of her finger.

“Come for me, princess,” She says.

Adora’s body reacts before she’s even registered the words, and she’s flooding the sheets below her with her cum. Catra works her mouth over Adora’s slit, guiding her through her orgasm with tenderness. It’s music to her ears, to hear Adora say her name like that, like she’s going to die without it, or maybe because of it.

She pulls away to sit back up on her knees, crawling forward until the tip of the dildo is millimeters away from Adora. Catra grabs onto it and shifts her hips forward to make first contact with her clit, tapping it firmly in a playful motion that makes Adora shutter again. She's still sensitive, coming down from the high of her first orgasm of the day, and Catra would wait a little longer to make sure she'd recovered from it if she wasn't just so ready to get her cock into Adora.

She runs it up and down, spreading the lube with Adora's own wetness, until the silicone is warmed up enough to really start.

Pressing forward, ever so gently, Catra starts working the dildo inside of her partner. She starts slowly, getting Adora used to being penetrated, and as each ridge works its way into her, Adora's breathing grows more erratic.

"How's that my princess? That feel good?" Catra asks. She's leaning over Adora now, just far enough away to keep a good look at her and just close enough to feel her heated body radiating up into her own.

"Fuck, yes, so good," She responds, keeping one hand wrapped in the sheets and bringing the other up to tangle in the hair at the back of Catra's neck.

Catra is nearly there, just an inch or so more and the knot would be pressing right up against Adora's entrance. She continues forward, with Adora showing no signs of discomfort and every sign of wanting to be fucked into oblivion. Catra keeps up the motion of her hips, thrusting forward and drawing back a half thrust before pressing forward again in a rocking that would soon have the entire cock inside Adora. She brings her head down to kiss and bite wherever she could reach. Adora's throat, jaw, ear, breast, collar bone, lips, nothing was safe from her wandering and possessive love marks.

The sudden resistance alerts her to the fact that she's just reached the end of the length, right before the bulbous knot, and she stops to look down at Adora.

"You look so beautiful for me like this," She says, running a hand from Adora's stomach, up between her breasts, and just barely to the base of her neck before returning down.

"My beautiful princess."

Her hand reaches Adora's neck once more, and this time, she winds it so her palm is brushing the front of her throat and her fingers and thumb can feel the pulse, the racing of her heart, beneath them. The pads of her fingers are alight with the kinetic energy, drawing power and excitement from the way Adora looks up at her, completely content at the prospect of what Catra's slow, gentle movement was asking to do.

"Say it baby, you know what I want to hear."

Adora doesn't need to think about it.

"Take me, Daddy. I'm yours."

That's all Catra needs to press a little firmer, not really choking but keeping up a constant comforting pressure. For Adora it's grounding, in a way, to have those hands she trusts so much somewhere so vulnerable. It's enough to make her head go a little light, for just a few seconds, while Catra starts moving again.

She thrusts in and out, working up to a moderate pace. She's careful to watch Adora's face, counting the seconds to make sure she doesn't go too long and monitoring the strength of her hand to make sure it isn't too hard and she isn't cutting off too much.

Adora is lost, but that's ok, because she loves being the beacon that brings her back. Catra's drunk with the power that she has over Adora, the power that she gives her willingly.

She releases her grip, not all the way, but enough for her to regain some clarity, and starts a brutal pace. She thrusts into Adora, slamming her hips forward and back. The noises their bodies make slamming together are lewd and erotic, while Adora's gasps and uncontrollable moans are the only thing tethering Catra to this earth as she rockets her hips, driving Adora's very soul into another fucking dimension.

The dildo moves easily, Adora's arousal and the lube more than enough to glide through her folds and into her clenching cunt. Her legs try to close around Catra, but something deep within her needs to have Adora spread out below her. Without interrupting her fucking, she brings her hands to Adora's inner thighs and runs them up to her knees, spreading them apart and pushing them down toward the bed.

Adora was very impatient, which made her bad at yoga, so it took quite a lot of work to get to the point where her legs could rest against the bed, but it was well worth it for the way her lips looked spread tight around the phallus and the unobstructed view that Catra got of it. The position arches Adora's back and forces her breasts up, and Catra is treated to the sight of a lifetime as they bounce back and forth to the motion of her hips.

She starts going a little further, eyes flitting back and forth between Adora's face and their joined bodies as she starts pressing the knot in. It makes Adora whimper, a scared and nervous noise, though her hand doesn't loosen in Catra's hair.

"You're gonna let Daddy get this knot in you, right princess? You're going to give me everything, let me take what I want, right?" She asks.

Adora nods frantically, desperate to please Catra, to let her use her body and to bring her pleasure along with it.

"You're gonna have to use your words sweetheart, Daddy wants to hear you."

God, Catra didn't have a right to be so smug when Adora wasn't sure she was on any planet, much less earth.

"Please Daddy, knot me."

Catra pushes forward the last little bit, and the knot, huge and imposing, stretches the last little bit between Adora's lips until she can feel the 'pop' of it lodging itself into her.

Her hips slam forward too, knees closing around Catra's waist and arms wrapping around her neck. She's so close, too close, but she doesn't know what she needs.

Catra does, though.

Adora is small and lost and she needs Catra right now, and Catra knows exactly what Adora needs from her, exactly what to do to bring her to her climax.

She reaches over and turns the vibrator on, bringing it down below herself to touch the base of the dildo. It doesn't make contact with either of them, but they can both feel it through the toy itself. She's close too, and knows that if she doesn't make them both come soon, she's going to absolutely lose her mind. She brings her other hand up to squeeze once more at the sides of Adora's throat and whispers hot words in her ear.

"Daddy's got you princess. Be a good girl and come for me."

Adora's orgasm hits her all at once, instantaneously, and the ferocity and violence of it makes Catra come too.

Adora is spiraling down as she gasps and moans, hips jolting and cunt clenching down where it stretches her open and the knot holds firm. She's falling, deeper and deeper, losing more of herself while all she feels is pleasure.

But Catra holds her. She holds Adora and there isn't anywhere in the world that is more safe than right here in her arms.

A tear drips down her cheek, one that Catra kisses away as she holds her. They don't move while the knot is still in place, letting Adora process how it feels right now rather than remove it and make her fall all over again.

Catra whispers praises in her ear, runs one hand through her hair and pulls Adora's head into her neck

She lets Adora come down a little more before pulling back, slowly watching the knot reappear and slide out, while the rest of the dildo follows easily behind it.

Catra gently, with all the tenderness she can muster, turns Adora onto her side and helps her scoot up to rest her head on a pillow. She's still breathing heavily, shaking, and Catra lays in front of her, pulling her close and wrapping her in a tight embrace.

She kisses the top of Adora's head, wiping damp blonde hair off of her sweaty forehead, and whispers her love with feather light kisses.

"That's it baby, you're so good for me."

Adora shivers harder, sniffling. She burrows further into Catra's arms, feeling warm and safe but at the same time too far gone to voice that she's ok. She can't bring herself to say anything, but in moments like this, when she's just so totally Catra's, when she belongs to her Daddy she doesn't need words. Catra knows what she needs, what she can't say.

"I've got you princess, Daddy's got you."

Another round of kisses, pulling the sheets up over both of them, and Catra's whispering more praises in her ear.

"I love you so much."

Their bedroom is silent, except for the hum of the air conditioner and Catra's whispered words, though eventually Adora calms and relaxes enough that she feels she can stop. They lay like that for some time, Catra continuing to cradle Adora close and will her to feel with each stroke of her fingers, each butterfly kiss to her forehead, that she loves her and cherishes her with everything that she is, everything that she has to give.

She'd give Adora anything, has given Adora everything, and she isn't sure she'll ever get tired of giving her girlfriend the world. She doesn't think she'll ever grow tired of the way it feels to see her love shining back at her in Adora's eyes, hear her name gasped desperately through those lips, feel hands digging into her as she brings Adora to her peak over and over again.

She especially doesn't know why she deserved someone like her, someone who trusted so willingly, someone who let Catra have her way with her and play her body so willingly in all the ways she longed to love someone. Because this, laying in bed after and holding Adora tight, was just as much for Adora, to make her feel loved and protected, as it was for Catra. Her heart soared at the trust that Adora had for her, the way it felt to have Adora let her care for her.

"Mmm," Adora murmurs.

Catra looks down and sees that her eyes are opened in narrow slits, slowly coming out of the state she'd been in.

"Yeah baby?" Catra encourages, pressing her fingers in a little harder and scratching at the back of Adora's neck.

"Mmm, love you too Daddy," She whispers.

Catra reaches over to the glass of water on her nightstand and brings the straw to Adora's lips. She takes slow sips, soothing her parched throat.

"Want to lay like this some more? Or do you want to take a bath?" She asks, turning over to place the glass back down.

Adora's eyes open a little more and she seems to perk up a little.

"Bath? With bubbles?" She asks.

Catra grins, "Yeah sweetheart, with bubbles."

Adora nods and Catra withdraws slowly, pulling herself out of bed to stare down at her girlfriend.

Adora's body is a sight to behold, deep purple hickies already littering the column of her throat and along her breasts, with her nipples still a little brighter pink and her lips still swollen.

She tears her eyes away to go to the bathroom, running a bath for the both of them. She pours in a little bit of Adora's favorite bubble soap, but leaves a selection of bath bombs in a basket next to the tub. Adora did like picking her own, and she especially liked the explosion of fizz when it made contact with water. She then grabs two towels, one for herself and one for Adora. She places her towel next to the bathtub, but runs across the hall to put Adora's in the dryer. Later, when they were finished, Catra would use her towel to dry herself enough to grab Adora's for her, and the fluffy material would be warm and comforting. She'd guide Adora back to bed and, if she had her way, they'd stay there for the rest of the day.

"Alright my love, you ready?" She asks when she gets back to the bedroom.

Adora nods, and Catra links their hands as she pulls her out of bed and to the bathroom.

She's blessed with the giggle and the sparkle in Adora's eye when the pink and blue bath bomb whirls around the tub, and then again at the moan when her legs slip into the water. Catra crawls in behind her and draws her closer, tickling along her stomach as she pulls Adora back into her chest.

"You know something?" Adora asks, breaking the silence with her first real sentence since she dropped.

"What?"

"I know it's kind of a joke… but I mean it. You love me and protect me and make me feel so special and I just… Even though it's not what the day is really for, it feels like you do everything I could ever need. So I meant it. Which I know sounds weird but I've never had a father to celebrate so the holiday doesn't mean anything to me, you know?"

Catra mulls it over, because, while it seemed like a joke at first, it still made a lot of sense.

"I know baby, and really, when it comes down to it… I kind of loved it."

Adora giggles, wiggling her butt against Catra.

"Only kind of?"

"Ok, I really loved it," She says, leaning down to kiss the tendons in Adora's shoulder.

"I love you Daddy," Adora breathes out, resting her head back on Catra's strong shoulder, letting Catra pamper her and love her.

"I love you too, Princess. So much."

Chapter 2

Chapter Summary

sigh you know I had to do it to em

Because maybe Catra wants to please their mommy for mother's day

Chapter Notes

Ummmmmm I added a chapter, it's the mother's day fic I didn't finish in time to even make it into the month of mother's day oopsies

The obnoxious and incessant vibrating coming from the nightstand jolts Catra out of a peaceful slumber. Reaching over, they realize two things abruptly that bite back the bitterness at such a sound. The first is that it’s not a phone call, it’s an alarm. The second being that it was the day they’d been waiting for. A surprise they hoped to gift Adora for a day they really had no business celebrating, but there was nothing wrong with commandeering it for themselves and creating their own special meaning. It was the same way that Adora had celebrated Father’s Day every few years with a surprise of her own.

And Catra hoped to make Adora feel as special as she made them feel.

So, Catra resists the urge to groan as they climb out of bed, withdrawing from warm arms into the chilly apartment air. They don’t bother tugging a shirt on, instead deciding that the refreshing coolness might serve to help them awaken further. Leaving Adora was never easy, but it’s with one last longing look at the sleeping beauty that Catra turns around and heads to the bathroom. After swallowing two little pills and brushing their teeth, they head out to the kitchen through a narrow hallway that secludes the bedroom from the rest of the apartment.

From here, Catra's morning routine became more ritual than anything. It was easy to sink into, and it set the tone for the rest of the day. They'd tried everything possible to lower that blood pressure a little bit, to cut back some of the stress that being the CEO of one of the city's largest companies came with. Meditation was never something that they thought of, convinced they couldn't just sit and think of nothing if they tried, but after learning a little bit more from their therapist they'd given it a try and had been pleased with the way it improved the way they felt.

The morning light is still dim, low streaks spattering the floor with the spotty shadows of plants out on the terrace. Melog jumps down from his spot in the corner. A series of shelves and little carpeted bridges wind their way around the living room and kitchen close to the ceiling that Melog used to travel around the apartment. It came in handy with Swift being so energetic, giving the cat a chance to escape to a safer vantage point when the dog got the zoomies and couldn't be controlled.

It wasn't his fault the apartment was small.

Well, small for a penthouse apartment in the city, bigger than any apartment they had ever lived in before. Still, though Catra and Adora took the dog out many times per day to try to get out some of the energy, sometimes he was just a little too much for Melog. It had started with shelves, and then watching him barely make a jump caused Adora to fashion a bridge between them. After that, making little pathways for the cat to traverse the perimeter of the room had become a fun project for her.

The dog raises his head as Catra passes, and she reaches down to scratch behind a fluffy ear and rub his belly when he turns over, but he lays back down and stares at them with a huff. Though they would get up when Catra slid open the glass door, it wasn't time to get up just yet.

"Yeah, me too buddy," They whisper, completely agreeing that it was too early and that sleep is where everyone in the apartment belonged.

But the plans for the day had Catra excited now, and there was only so much time before Adora woke up to take the dog out. Catra wanted to get the coffee ready to greet her so that they could join, a rarity they hoped wasn't too suspicious.

It's a quick process to get the coffee maker going, once they plug in an extension cord and take the electric burr grinder outside so the noise doesn't wake Adora. It feels silly, but there were weirder things to see in the city than someone operating a kitchen appliance outside on their patio, and Catra makes quick work of it so that they can go back inside.

The bitter essence, along with all of its complex notes, do well to brighten Catra's mood and work away some of the sleepiness of the morning. They pour a cup for themself, going back out to the terrace and letting Swift out with them.

Wide square stones, the bluish grey of slate, are cool beneath their feet. The herb garden jostled in the breeze sends the scents of lavender, thai basil, and parsley to Catra's nose. It's floral and fresh, and Catra thinks that it might be time to harvest some of that lavender to make simple syrup for iced coffee.

Sipping their morning brew, the peace surrounding them, makes Catra think of all that had happened in the years since they met Adora. She was a constant refreshing presence, but with a weight and warmth that made Catra shiver with excitement as well as soothed them to sleep. After that day on the yacht, the catamaran out in tropical waters where they had professed their love, their relationship had progressed smoothly.

It wasn't the falling feeling that Catra thought. They thought it would be a dramatic shift, a drop in their stomach when Adora walked out the door one day and Catra wanted desperately for her to come back. Those feelings happened, but falling in love didn't feel at all like they thought.

Falling in love felt like coming home, it felt like warm summers with fireflies and the burning smoke of a campfire, with a drink that tingles lips with it’s sour fruitiness and a s’more to turn it sweet.

Catra smiles, stomach growling.

So that’s why it turned to food thoughts all of a sudden , they think, bringing the mug to their lips and sipping the coffee.

Perhaps it was the late May turn from dark and overcast to sunny and bright. April Showers and all that.

But one thing that's certain? Is that falling in love was something unlike anything Catra had ever felt before.

And they knew that proving it to Adora was one of their very favorite things.

They sit there watching the sun start to reflect off of the buildings, glancing down to watch the volume of the coffee mug decrease with time in a trance that doesn’t allow them the worry of what time it is and what there is to do. They drink in the warmth and let it bite back the chill in the air, doing nothing but drinking coffee and enjoying it. But the sun starts to warm them, settling the hairs on their arms, and it’s time to get up and head back inside. Swift stays on the terrace, laying in a bright streak of light passing through the buildings across the street, and it’s with a pat to his side that Catra heads back in.

Pausing at the shelf by the TV to check on the flowers they’d been pressing, they carefully peel back the layers of parchment paper to peek at the buttercups from their evening walk last week. Finding that they’re not quite ready, Catra replaces the parchment and gingerly closes the book, putting the small marble statue back on top of it to weigh it down.

Moving to the next book, they’re allowed the simple pleasure of seeing that this batch is ready. This time they’re irises, a vibrant purple from the elderly woman in one of the brownstones a couple of streets over. She grew them in planters on her front porch, and she'd given one to each of them a few weeks ago when they passed by.

When the woman stopped them, she had handed a flower to each of them and had told them that love was something beautiful, and they should never hesitate to share it. That slowing down and showing it when they still had time was worth a lifetime of memories. And most of all, that when all was said and done, they'd remember the love they had for each other above all else.

That was a piece of wisdom that Catra had held on to. They never, over the course of dating, engagement, and marriage, held back when the urge to show Adora love welled up in their throat and made their heart beat faster.

And as they press the dried irises into a picture frame, hiding it to hang in Adora's office later, they think that Adora is worth every moment of love Catra gives her.

Catra is up to something.

Adora could tell from the moment she woke up to the gentle 'clink' of a coffee mug being set down on her bedside table, speakers from the kitchen softly thumping that Lofi Animal Crossing playlist she'd been enjoying. A hand winds around her side to rub lightly at her back, warming the exposed skin where the blanket had drifted down to rest at her hips. She senses the shadow through her closed eyes just as a kiss lands on her temple.

Soon, Catra is climbing back into bed, resting on the headboard and pulling Adora up to lean back against their chest. It's bare too, the cut of their pecs pressing between her shoulder blades as she lets her weight fall into strong and sturdy arms. They wrap around her, pulling her tighter to their chest.

Catra leans their head down on her shoulder, kissing up the muscle to her neck and back down again. She reaches for the mug, taking a sip.

“What are you doing up so early? And with coffee?” She asks, reaching up and scratching the nape of their neck where the fade tapers down to bare skin. Catra’s head leans back into the feeling, groaning as her cold fingers scratch and soothe the heated skin.

“Wanted to make sure you got your coffee before we headed out,” Catra responds, the gravel in their voice deepening with the tired whisper.

And Adora can tell that they’re still tired, and would still be asleep if they hadn't gotten up on purpose. She remembers a vague buzzing about an hour ago, but it was quickly silenced before it had a chance to coax her awake too.

Catra is not an early riser. They made themself get up early when Adora was taking classes and had a 7:30 lab followed by back to back lectures, because they knew that the only way she’d remember to eat breakfast and take lunch was if they handed it to her on the way out the door. But they’d body slam the mattress before the elevator doors from the penthouse even closed.

Work involved its fair share of early mornings, but as they grew more comfortable in their role as CEO after the merger, and with the help of a particularly worried girlfriend, Catra was far past the point in their career where it was necessary to be in the office and putting in the kind of hours that got the company running all those years ago. Early mornings and late nights were a common occurrence in those first few years where they were trying to prove themself, the hours draining and long. But they’d settled into a much more healthy routine lately. There were emergencies, meetings with the board that would not be a good idea to sit out, but other than that, they took most Zoom meetings shirtless from the terrace with the camera off.

And it was all thanks to a sugar baby turned concerned girlfriend, who quickly became the kind of person that had Catra thinking about ‘forever’ and dreaming of a sparkly ring to put on her finger.

Nights and weekends with Adora turned into long vacations on the yacht, sure, but more often than not they were lazy days in bed showering each other with praise and kisses in a lull of sleep.

So, unless there was something planned, there was absolutely nothing that could get Catra out of bed this early on a weekend.

Adora takes another sip, the caramel and currant notes of this morning's brew curling her lip into a smile, and sets the cup down. She turns into Catra's chest, bringing a hand up to rest on one of their pecs. Her thumb draws a soothing path along the scar she finds there. It was comforting, to love someone that trusted her enough to be themself around her, trusted her enough to share their transition with her.

She was there when Catra started buttoning their shirts a little higher, when they started wearing a binder, when they started hunching in on themself and shaking at the thought of being naked around her. When they turned from enjoying her touch and attention on their naked chest to shivering at the thought of it. She was there when Catra finally decided it was time to tell her about it, and she was there to call Catra the different pronouns they were trying out.

It was so much more than what their relationship was supposed to be at first, so much more powerful of a feeling than anything Adora had felt before. This love, this need to protect Catra with her life and to be protected in return. To cherish someone, to worship someone, and have them feel just as strongly that she deserved the same.

So, as she lays there, cupping their pec and running her thumb along the slightly darker line of their scar, she counts herself lucky that when she hears a heart beating in Catra's chest she knows that it's hers.

And their heart beats in her chest too. It had since the moment they met.

“Where are we going then?” She asks.

Catra runs their fingers through her hair, scratching at her scalp and then brushing through her soft tresses gently.

“Well we’ve got a dog to walk, and then I thought we’d get brunch,” He shrugs.

Adore narrows her eyes, tucking her head into his shoulder to hide her suspicious smile, and nods.

“I think that sounds wonderful.”

Though they normally preferred to indulge in the sunset strolls with Adora and their little monster instead of the early morning walks, Catra has to admit that there’s a certain peace and quiet that comes with being out this early, before everyone else has a chance to greet the world with them.

It’s even worth it to see the smile on Adora’s face when they let Swift off leash in a part of the park that would normally be too busy to let him splash through the creek. He gets absolutely filthy, sprinting out into the bushes and then darting back in to jump at the water, splashing with all the grace of a two year old, 80 lb golden retriever. Mud cakes the fur along his belly, his snout covered in a damp mess of brown with grass stuck between his teeth. It’s with a wave that they drop him off at the salon/daycare across the street, with a promise to pick him up in a few hours and a generous amount of cash stuffed into the tip jar.

“He had so much fun! Did you see his little face?” Adora gushes, swinging her arm and making their joined hands swing with it.

“He sure did. I didn’t know you let him off leash in the morning,” Catra says, turning and walking backward while tugging Adora along by the hand.

She jogs to catch up, kissing them on the forehead and putting her arm around their shoulder. Catra turns around, leaning into Adora a little bit, with a hand draped around her waist and a thumb through one of her belt loops. They trade little shoves between them, a playful, joyful kind of bubble tickling the back of Catra's throat and stinging their eyes.

"Have I ever told you that I love you?" Adora whispers, squeezing Catra's hand. It's warm today, the sweat sliding between their hands. It might be gross, but there isn't anything that could get Adora to let go of Catra's hand right now, or ever for that matter.

Catra rolls their eyes, but they stay on the ground, that little smile doing all it can to bring Adora to tears at its tenderness.

"Yeah, you have," They say, eyes shifting to meet hers.

"And I love you too, my princess," They say.

And for a second, Adora's mind flashes to the part of her that likes being small for Catra, that likes it when they're in charge, when they take care of her.

But she had a feeling that isn't what today is about.

The conversation drifts away when they get to the restaurant, and Adora raises an eyebrow at the crowd outside.

"Want to put our names in and then head to that antique store down the street? I've heard it's at least an hour wait," She says.

But Catra smirks at her, and does the sexiest thing she's ever seen.

They walk up to the hostess of this packed restaurant and say, "I have a reservation. I called a couple of weeks ago. The name is Catra."

And they say "Of course, Mx. Grey, right this way."

Getting to walk past everyone in line, everyone waiting in the lobby for the hostess to call their name, is something that Adora allows herself to indulge in as she walks behind her spouse to their table outside. Call her a bit of a snob now, but having Catra as her sugar daddy for all that time before they became official had given her a taste of the finer things in life, like bypassing a wait in line. It only got worse when they got together, and now that they were married? All the privileges of getting to call herself Catra's wife had lifted a great weight off of her shoulders.

The restaurant is a cute, French inspired cottage kind of place. It's got the vague familiarity of being a restaurant by the beach, with giant glass windows and doors that provide a view out to the bay. There were white linen tablecloths, a tiny vase of lavender and rosemary at the center of each table, and wicker wooden chairs scattered across the dining room.

Exiting the door, there's an intimate patio with bistro tables and umbrellas. They're led to the furthest one, a secluded spot near the edge of the water. A lattice privacy fence with creeping vines protects them from view of the boatyard on the other side.

Catra holds Adora's chair out and helps her in, getting to their seat and picking up the menu.

"So brunch is kind of a set dish for most courses, but they do have a choice between mimosas and bloody mary's, and there's different pastries we can add if we want to sip coffee or tea for a while after," They say, reaching over and taking Adora's hand, rubbing their thumb along the back of it while reading the menu.

She tilts her head, looking at them for a moment.

The wind ruffles the open collar of their button up shirt, round shoulders under the tight fabric. A pair of sunglasses ride just far enough down their nose for her to see those eyes, amber and blue staring back at her with manicured brows and a tooth biting down on their lip. Smoldering eyes rake down to the open front of her own shirt, where they can see below her tight cropped tank top. There's a darkness in them that she recognizes, a burning desire that she would recognize anywhere.

Catra looks at her like they're thinking something filthy, and it's one of Adora's favorite looks on them.

It's with a shake of her head and a deep breath that their lips have curved into a smirk, and Catra is looking at her like she's the one that was caught staring instead of the other way around.

"Mimosas?" They ask.

She nods, the strained lump in her throat making it hard to voice her agreement.

"You alright there baby? Need some water?" They say, placing down the menu, never letting go of her hand as they pull themself to stand and lean over the table. As they pour the pitcher of water into a glass for her the shirt falls loosely, letting her see right down to the little wispy hair around their belly button.

Catra knows that Adora is obsessed with their belly fat and hair, and she knows that they're doing this on purpose.

But she also knows what this day is, what it's about, and what Catra needs. So Adora narrows her eyes.

"Showing off for me baby boy?" She whispers, and it wipes the smirk off of Catra's face so quickly that she nearly fist pumps in triumph, if it weren't for the sweet little smile that graces their face a moment later.

"Alright! Can I get you two started with a drink?" The sudden appearance of the server makes Catra look away, and Adora turns to speak to her.

"We'll both do mimosas," She says confidently.

And this is where things shift.

Because even though this was Catra's plan, she knew what they wanted, what they'd finally let themself want. It was the part they always anticipated, when Catra would let go of their cool confidence and let Adora steer, let Adora treat them like the sweet boy she loved simply because she wanted to.

What Catra wanted more than anything was for Adora to take what she wanted, and for the thing she wanted to be them.

“Of course, I’ll get those drinks right in for you and we’ll be out in a bit with your first course,” The server says, bright smile matching the fresh, sunny morning as she walks away.

“You really thought I wouldn’t notice?” She asks, leaning forward over the table, grabbing their hand.

It’s hot, the late spring day and the walk warming them.

“Notice what? I’m not doing anything”

It’s a weak lie, but Catra knows they’re caught regardless of any deflection, and they’ve been waiting for this part all morning. Still, it couldn’t hurt to play it up a little bit.

Part of the fun was having her drag it out of them, anyway.

Adora shakes her head, the palm on Catra’s chest holding them firmly to the door while her other hand hooks the belt loops on Catra’s shorts. Brunch went by with cheerful conversation, but with that undercurrent of something more, something that made Adora fiercely protective and gentle when it came to the softness that Catra let out.

“You got up before the sun to make me coffee,” Adora starts, tickling her fingers along the collar of Catra’s shirt and continued.

“Went for a walk before you would normally consider getting up, had reservations for Sunday brunch at a restaurant so busy we don’t even go there, and it happened to be mothers day?” Adora rattles off, pulling Catra closer by the hips and moving to whisper in their ear. Puffs of breath tickle the fine hair over their neck and ear, the gentle bounce of their curls as they fall to the side when Catra's head turns to let her closer.

Catra throws their arms over Adora's shoulders, letting her weight hold them with all the steadiness and warmth that they need from her, had always needed from her. It's a pressure to be held in place like this, by someone whose hold they always wanted to be in, whose warmth they always desired. The serenity of their morning together was nothing compared to the way it felt to have her alone, for her to have them alone.

"Oh that?"

Adora's shoulders rise and fall in a deep laugh.

"So innocent, you almost sound convincing," A kiss to Catra's cheek, wet and loud, makes them roll their eyes as she pulls back. The sharp pinch to their side prevents a retort, though.

And they look like they want to. Catra's face flushes in a burning, radiating heat that enriches the warm undertones of their deep skin, and Adora can feel it even inches away.

"So there's really only one question," Adora says, nudging Catra's jaw and then running her nose along the throbbing artery in their neck. They let her, head lolling to the side to allow access to whatever parts of them she wants, whatever she desired.

Catra's gone, really and truly in a place where they needed Adora to guide them through.

So Adora asks the question that had been on her mind, the one that would finally put a familiar name, a familiar definition, to this feeling.

"Are you gonna be a good boy for Mommy?"

A shiver rakes down Catra's spine, shaking them to the core. It's the unparalleled need to have Adora, but for her to have them the way that she wants. There wasn't anything that Catra loved more than being desired, than being the thing that Adora wanted. It was their favorite part of their intimacy, the way that Adora proved with her words, her touches, her mouth, just how much she'd always wanted Catra.

They'd do anything to get her to steer things toward the bedroom.

"Yes," They say. It's shallow, but that's just how Catra could manage to get the words out.

Adora takes a deep breath, laying her head on Catra's shoulder, and for a second they're the strong one, the one who can hold her in a rigid grasp and steady both of them. She tickles at their sides, the tips of her fingers digging into softness at their hips, and Catra has to shift to get out from under her grip. Just as they manage to turn away, Adora reaches up and cups Catra's chin, rubbing her thumb along the curve of their jaw.

"Come on lover boy, don't keep me waiting. Yes, what?" She whispers.

Catra looks up at her and rolls their eyes. She just looks so smug, the version of Adora the most unbearable but the one they couldn't live without, the one that they needed on rainy Sundays or on late, cold nights. It was the Adora that they needed to be strong when they just couldn't anymore, to be soft when Catra needed someone to wear away at their edges. Catra needed this Adora when they had bad meetings or when they remembered something they'd rather not have.

It was the version of her that they needed now, on a beautiful weekend morning where they felt like being a little bratty and they also needed Adora to be in charge.

"Yes mommy," They say, watery eyes batting up at her. A tooth catching swollen lips. They're gorgeous like this, when they play up the small, needy side of themself just for Adora to enjoy.

“That’s my good boy,” Adora whispers, pressing her lips to Catra’s forehead in a long, wet kiss. It was hard to get them to say it sometimes, but once they let go, said their most secret words to each other, the tension melted away and they were hers.

Warmth bubbles up in Catra’s chest, not a burning heat but a soothing kind. It’s the sun breaking through cloud cover on a winter morning, or the steam from a hot coffee tickling their nose. It’s a warmth that means she loves them, a warmth that means they can be vulnerable for her. It's the feeling that shows itself just when Adora looks at them like they’re precious to her.

Which was often, to be fair. But she looks at them like it’s even more so, like they’re delicate.

A whimper escapes their throat, a deep gravelly one that has darkened into something sensual and needy. It’s just loud enough for Adora to hear, to pick up on the way they’re already putty in her hands.

“Lets go to bed, huh babe? Then you can show me what a good boy you are,” She says, a strain in her own voice.

It’s their eyes, that glassy look that tells her all she needs to know about how long they’d been planning this, how much effort they put into making it special for her.

She was their sunshine, and they wanted her to feel loved and cherished. Catra had always taken care of her, sought to be the one to protect her and deliver upon her needs with a firm, authoritativeness when they felt like it, as much authority as there could be around the giggles of their bedroom. It was one of the things they loved about being her daddy. But this is different. This is the need to show her trust by giving her the thing that they had once feared losing the most; control.

She’s going to reward Catra greatly for their efforts, and it’s with another stroke of her thumb along their heated cheek that Adora is coaxing Catra to the bedroom. She pulls them gently, holding tightly to a warm hand and tugging while running the pads of her fingers up the other arm. She walks backwards, tripping over the carpet and letting them catch her with a giggle that soon has them shoving and stumbling toward the bedroom. It's the cute, playful way they had teased each other since they met, that carefree sort of interaction that made their relationship refreshing and deep all at once.

Hands touch and grab wherever they can. Catra's index finger scratches down Adora's stomach to hook in the front of her shorts. They pull a little, her hips following to smash into them. Adora cups their shoulders, the firm, rounded muscle dimpling under her touch.

She squeezes, running her hands down over the curve of biceps and up again.

"You're so fucking handsome," She whispers, leaning forward to press their lips together. She tugs on Catra's bottom lip with her teeth, softly working her mouth against theirs. It starts soft, so gentle that they think they might cry with the way she treats them. But then they both grow bolder, turning the kiss into something heated and needy.

Adora puts her hands on Catra's shoulders, just holding them for a second while they kiss. But she puts pressure on them, pushing down and back with enough force for Catra to follow her direction but not physically making them. It's more a suggestion, one that she knows they want to follow but she needs to make sure they want to.

Catra looks into her eyes as they slowly sit back onto the bed, right on the edge and awaiting instruction.

"There we go baby, I've got you," Adora says, wrapping her arms around them and pulling them into her. Catra buries their face in her stomach, sighing in a relieved and relaxed breath. Adora rubs Catra's back, holding the back of their head into her stomach, and just stands there for as long as they want, as long as they need.

It's for a few minutes that she sways slightly, back and forth as Catra breathes into her shirt and rubs their fingers along the backs of her thighs.

When they pull back, Adora sees the mist in those beautiful eyes.

“Ok?” She asks, running her thumb along a swollen lower lip, dragging it to show teeth before letting go.

Catra nods, the little relaxed half smile making Adora’s heart soar.

“Yes mommy.”

Adora drags her hands along their shoulders to the collar of their shirt, fingers trailing down their chest to the first button that remains closed, and begins unbuttoning the shirt. She kneels down in front of them to see each new inch of skin reveal itself to her greedy, hungry eyes. Catra’s fingers grab at the sheets, their chest rising and falling rapidly as Adora kneels in front of them..

When the last button slips through its hole in the shirt, Adora pushes it back to see Catra’s entire torso. The softness of their stomach gives under her fingers as she presses in, winding her hands to their waist and feeling heated flesh on her finger tips.

Adora then drags her fingers slowly down to the waistband of their underwear where it peeks above the denim shorts. Her fingers slip under it, and she runs them back to the front to play with the button.

She looks up at them in question, not speaking, but pausing and looking pointedly. When they were like this, Catra didn’t always say what they needed, and Adora would never risk something that wasn’t safe for them when they were trusting her and relying on her. So she waits until Catra nods, slowly with their mouth agape, and she keeps going.

The gasp that erupts from Catra’s throat when the button gives under Adora’s twisting fingers is something that Adora, for as long as she lives, will never forget. It's the most erotic sound she's ever heard, a true, wordless sign of how much Catra needs her.

And she's determined to answer the desperation with ferocity of her own.

"Up," She orders, pulling Catra's shorts off when they lift their hips. She lunges up to cup their chin in her hand, kissing them as she lets go of their shorts and they fall to the floor. The other hand comes to the other side of Catra's face, and she cradles warm cheeks as she kisses them. Thumbs stroke gingerly across cheekbones, and hands come up to wrap around her wrists.

Catra pulls back, breathing heavily as they stare at Adora, and she taps lightly at their shoulder and gestures back with a tilt of her head.

"On the bed, Cat."

They shuffle back, in boxer briefs and that open button up shirt, letting it fall away as they lay back with their head on the pillows.

Adora moves to put her knee on the bed by their feet, but Catra speaks up, voice croaking with the strain and tension of desire.

"Can…" They start to ask, biting their lip and pausing to look up at Adora.

She can't see anything other than the cute little smile, the bashful and embarrassed haze in their eyes, and she softens even further.

"What is it?" She asks.

They nod at her.

"Can you come up here?" Catra asks, opening their hands, palms up, to receive her.

Adora looks at them, that vine of English ivy winding up their leg, the smattering of roses across their chest, the beautiful dark scars that run the line under their pecs, and she can't do anything other than concede to Catra's request. She'd never be able to do anything that wasn't giving Catra exactly what they wanted.

She nods, reaching to remove her shirt and bra to get comfy, and then slides up Catra's body to lay on top of them. Her chest meets theirs, her breasts pressing into Catra's supple, round pecs, and she shivers at the feeling of being this close to them. The light cushion of their belly below her makes a warm and comfortable bed to lay her own stomach, and their hips cradle her in the space between.

"Like this?" She asks, nuzzling into Catra's neck and kissing lightly.

They nod

"Yeah just… like this for a while?"

Adora hides her smile in their neck, though it's not necessary.

"Of course, sweet boy."

And Adora lays there, her weight a calming presence on top of them. Catra can feel the warmth radiating from her body, the pressure on their chest, and thinks that this is probably the most relaxed they have ever been.

And, Jesus, was being married to this woman astounding.

"You ready?" She whispers when she feels Catra's hands go from running up and down her sides to firmly planted on her waist.

"Mhmm," Catra murmurs, reaching up to hold Adora's head in the crook of their neck for a little longer before threading through her golden tresses to tug lightly.

"Oh you're in a mood today aren't you?" She whispers, pulling back enough to plant a kiss to their lips, heated and rushed, before crawling back down the bed and reaching to unbutton her shorts.

“You want to be a good boy for me?”

Catra nods frantically.

“Yes,” Their strangled choke is enough for her, and she pulls down her underwear and crawls back up Catra’s body, kissing her way as she goes, until she is kneeling over their face.

“Fuck,” Catra chokes, turning their head to nuzzle into that soft flesh of Adora’s thigh where it rests right next to their head.

“Is that the kind of language you’re supposed to use when you’re with mommy?” She asks.

And Catra has very quickly gone back on ‘bratty’ and landed on being an absolute baby, because bashful, heavy eyelids bat up at Adora from their spot between her legs and it’s all she can do not to coo at how cute it is.

She reaches down and brushes a few curls away from their forehead, whispering as she runs her fingers over their skin.

“I love you,” She says, and it’s emotional and fevered. Like she sometimes can’t believe that someone like Catra loves her, like she couldn’t believe she was this lucky.

Catra feels the same, like Adora was an angel, sent to them in a time in their life when all they did was work and worry, just to bring them the kind of happiness they didn’t know they needed.

And then she’s lowering herself down, aching and needy cunt received by Catra’s slick tongue. Slow movements at first, a timid testing of the waters to see how ready Adora was, where they needed to start to work her up and bring her to her peak the way she deserved.

They work over her labia, sucking at her lips and running their tongue through her folds. Adora shivers at the feeling, the way Catra lavishes her with their tongue and kisses her like she’s the most beautiful thing they’ve ever seen. It would be unfair to say that Catra was the only emotional one, but their vulnerability shows in the way that they enthusiastically worship Adora, lovingly eating her out in a way that was different from when they were in charge.

Daddy ate Adora out like she was a prize to be won, like the ferocity and intensity could defeat her demons and ascend her to heaven with their tongue and teeth. They sought to bring her to the kind of climax that could destroy her, but instead chose to bring her to life.

But Catra? Adora's baby boy? They ate Adora out like they wanted her to feel, with each stroke and bite, each clever movement of their lips, each thrust of their hips behind her, where they move along with her and put their whole body into the action of bringing Adora pleasure, that she was their goddess. She was Catra's shining star, their sun, their flickering candle in a foggy night, and Catra was going to worship her at the altar of her hips.

Tradition would have them kneel, drink her in on parched lips like she was the last thing they'd ever taste. Their very last meal. But this position, held down by the weight of her over their shoulders, makes them feel like she's taken every part of control from them, and they like it. They like being caged in her hold, trapped under a weight that they'd come to think of as comforting and soothing instead of restricting.

They never would have before, insecurity and fear of being hurt always managing to creep up in their throat, but Adora had long ago proven to be the type of person that wouldn't dream of hurting Catra.

Catra works small circles around Adora's clit, her shuddering thighs bringing her further down over them. Wide, open palms grab at the flesh of her thighs, tracing the shallow lines of the stretch marks near her hips and the fine yet coarse hairs on her thighs. Cherishing this most intimate place where Catra got to see up close every time just how much Adora desired them.

A tiny bite to the inside of Adora's thigh has her gasping, looking down at Catra with a shake of her head that reeks of fake, amused disappointment.

"And what was that for?" She asks.

Catra gives another bite, harder this time, and says, "Your eyes were closed."

The simplicity of the statement gets Adora right in the heart, and it clenches with uncontrollable desire.

Adora softens, smiling down at Catra with nothing but love and affection in her eyes.

"You wanted to see my eyes?"

Catra looks to the side, nodding.

"I needed to see them."

Adora melts all over again, the cute way they still look so shy but in a coy kind of way. It's the truth, but with a little something to butter her up and make her feel special and needed.

It works perfectly, and she blushes and swoons at the thought that Catra was so in love with her that they needed to see her eyes while they made love.

But before she has a chance to point it out, to say anything else, Catra is diving back in with a speed and ferocity that has Adora grabbing the headboard and gasping.

And beneath her, Catra's sly smile buries itself in her cunt.

Oh, they're in a mood today alright , Adora thinks to herself as the last coherent thought that could cross her mind.

Their tongue moves quickly, dragging up through her labia and teasing at her opening before working up to her clit. Flicking back and forth teasingly, Catra's own pleasure comes from the way Adora's thighs tighten around their face, her breath coming in soft gasps and deep moans. It spurs them on, wrapping their lips around her and sucking earnestly at her clit.

Adora starts rocking back and forth, grinding her hips down to thrust into Catra's mouth. They hold her hips steady, wrapping their arms around her thighs in a tight grip and holding themself against her. She gasps as the pleasure courses through her, the feeling of those biceps flexing to hold her in place, and her eyes shift down to make contact with Catra's.

She could cry, they look so beautiful. There's a haze, a single minded need in their eyes, and the hyperfocus on their task is making it clear that they were deep in that headspace where she was everything to them.

The pleasure takes her, and she rocks gently as she keeps falling, far past the ledge where her orgasm started. It's almost unbearable, the sensations wracking her body as Catra doesn't let up, takes her with them..

Adora catches her breath though, holding on to the headboard for a few moments while Catra backs off and lets her go. As she collects herself she whispers praises and love to her wife, her partner, her spouse, and all of the other words she gets to use to describe just what Catra meant to her. She looks down at the breathless person below her, their swollen red lips, and thinks that they deserve a reward more than anyone.

"You want to go pick out your favorite strap to fuck me with?" She asks, and Catra's eyes light up at the thought.

It's the kind of enthusiastic excitement that makes Adora giggle as Catra flips them over, throwing Adora to the side on their spacious bed and lurching off to the closet. Adora watches them go, propping her head up on one hand and running the fingers of the other across the sheets.

Though they've disappeared into the walk-in closet, Adora can feel the energy radiating off of Catra. It was that sweetness, that need to please her, that made Adora shiver with excitement. Though Catra was still that strong, determined person, when they were like this they were soft and needed Adora to be soft too.

It was so different than the way that they were when Catra was feeling hot and passionately in charge, when they were feeling like they needed to be in control. This was so much different, even though the love they shared was the same.

Adora doesn't know that she could explain the difference if she had to, because it boiled down to just being a feeling. It was a shift in the air when Adora grew bolder and Catra lost that edge that longed to challenge her. It was that undercurrent of need to please, but with the added drive to be praised.

Catra, above all else, wanted to please Adora.

"Can… can we use the feeldoe?" Catra asks, peeking cautiously around the doorway.

It wasn't always their favorite, and its lack of harness meant that they had to go a little slower to keep it in place, to keep the smaller end stimulating Catra while they thrust into Adora. It was for times that they both needed to go slow, to let their bodies move together. It was for moments when Catra needed the grounding pressure to connect them to Adora, to associate their pleasure with Adora's.

Adora loved that it was what Catra reached for when things took this kind of turn, with Catra being small and vulnerable and letting Adora be comforting and protective.

There was a secret control in letting themself lose it for Adora, a conscious choice to be like this, and it was something that Catra hadn't felt with anyone else.

"You want to feel me like that?" Adora asks, getting up out of bed to saunter over.

Catra gulps, nodding quickly as Adora approached.

When she gets to them, she drags a single finger down the expanse of their stomach, tickling their belly with her fingers to make them giggle. Once the air is a little lighter, the seriousness gone, she puts a hand to their cheek once more and directs them to look at her.

"Of course, my prince," She whispers.

It's so quiet that they have to strain to hear it, but they'd always had better hearing than most people, and the softness of it tickles that part of their mind that really just needed Adora to be careful with them.

All of her movements are careful, from the way she leads them back to bed to the way she gingerly lays them down and crawls over them. She's delicate in her removal of their boxer briefs and feather light when she runs her fingers through their own labia. It takes a couple of fingers to get them ready for the portion of the dildo that would go inside of them, and she slowly works her fingers in while she kisses them through it.

They're wet enough, but she reaches over to the nightstand where they'd set a bottle of lube and pops it open to pour some on her fingers. Catra shivers when she applies it, and she hushes them with a gentle whisper.

"I know it's cold baby, but I just want to make sure you're ready ok?"

Catra nods, and the lube is already warmed up from Adora's fingers and the heat of Catra's body.

Some gentle prodding gets them ready, and Adora picks up the feeldoe to slowly slide into them. The tightness gives way with some soothing whispers, touches that have them relaxing under the pressure and slowly letting it in as she pushes. Once it's there, Adora jerks it lightly to get Catra used to the feeling of its movement.

They gasp, and she grins.

“Want me to suck your cock? Get it wet for you?” She asks, though she has a feeling that she already knows the answer.

Catra opens their mouth, but words are a little harder than they can muster, but Adora wants to play with them a little.

“What was that baby? You’re gonna have to tell mommy if you want her to suck your cock.”

“I- ,” They struggle, swallowing a gulping breath and whining.

And for a second Adora thinks that she’s pushed it a little too far, because Catra did not like being toyed with when they were trusting her like this, but they choke around another whine and respond.

“Yes mommy,” They say, and she’s so proud of them for going out of what their normal comfort zone would be with this kind of thing.

“That’s my good boy. Color?” She asks.

"Green," Is Catra's immediate response, and Adora is soon leaning down to take the dildo into her mouth.

Catra’s reaction is instant, a long sigh leaving their lips as their head tilts back and Adora sinks down. She works slowly, making sure the movements on it aren’t too much for her partner all at once, but enough to stimulate them as much as it could.

Long, nimble fingers thread through golden tresses, Adora moaning at the feeling of the warmth against her scalp. Catra scratches gently, massaging as Adora bobs up and down on their cock.

A sharp gasp works its way out of Catra’s throat when Adora reaches the base, choking lightly on the tip and puffing warm breaths through her nose on Catra’s skin. It curves the smaller side up into the soft wall of their cunt and leaves them gasping again when she slides back up and the feeling backs off.

Adora looks up at them, the relaxed look on their face almost serene, and she realizes that they're really feeling it. Catra had issues with arousal and stimulation ever since they'd been prompted by a doctor to start antidepressants, and it wasn't unusual for them to prefer giving instead of receiving. It wasn't often that they came at all during sex, a fact that used to make them feel guilty.

But Adora was there to ensure that as long as Catra was enjoying themself, as long as they poured their heart into every second of their love making, their soul into the love they shared, Adora wasn't bothered by their body's natural reaction to the medication that they needed.

It was the same as her own anxiety, the time that she took her medication in the evening and then fell asleep halfway through sex, they hadn't treated her any differently. Maybe made fun of her a tiny bit to lighten the mood, calling her an old lady and watching her snort-giggle along with them.

Nobody was going to hurt anyone's feelings over the changes to their sex lives that resulted from an improvement to their mental health. And neither of them was going to be upset by the natural changes.

"You feeling good baby?" She asks to be sure.

They nod, opening their eyes and looking down at her.

"Yeah. Feels nice," They whisper quietly. It's a whisper that shows Adora the kind of need they have, and it's a need to be pampered and cherished the way they deserve, which Adora is all too willing to give them.

She wraps her arms down under their thighs, bringing their knees up near her head and scooting up so their cock is right in front of her face. From here she can see how small it is, its purpose to make them feel connected, while Catra clearly had no interest in pushing Adora to her limits.

Adora kisses around Catra's thighs, biting lightly and soothing with her tongue when they gasp and she thinks it takes a turn into more pain than they can handle like this. Backing off from the playfulness of it she instead kisses slower and deeper, pressing her fingers into their skin and letting them grab her hair tight enough to cause her eyes to water, but she doesn't let them worry about it.

"How about you fuck me now? I want to feel close to you."

It's a request that's met with an enthusiastic nod, a frantic motion that is joined by a quivering lower lip and a needy whimper. Catra loved feeling close to Adora when they were skirting the edge of something taboo but sensual, something they needed even more than they wanted, which was quite a lot as it is.

Adora shifts up again, letting Catra sit and turn over so that they're on top of Adora. Though they have the upper position, the control is still all in the way that Adora grabs Catra's hips and directs their movements. It's in the firmness of her hold but the soft press of her fingers, it tells Catra that she's taking what she wants but that they're safe while she does it, that it's just as much to make them feel good as it is to make her feel good.

"There we go my prince," She whispers as Catra takes the direction and shifts forward. They enter her gently, slow movements as they watch the head of the cock part her labia and enter her. Adora gasps at the feeling, but doesn't close her eyes, doesn't take her sight from the vision of Catra above her, looking intently at the place where their bodies meet and concentrating with a focus that makes her giggle.

Catra looks up, offended, and Adora placates them with a soothing coo.

"Sorry baby you just look so cute when you do that," She giggles.

Catra rolls their eyes.

"I'm not cute."

But that was a lie that they both knew, because there was a polaroid of them the last time they fucked like this in the drawer of Adora's nightstand and even Catra had to admit that they looked very cute.

Adora rides them softly, the rhythm slow. A motion of her hips that rocks gently against Catra, the dildo inside both of them. Her thrusts are met with Catra's, timing their own to fuck her with the same gyrating motion that she's fucking them. Catra can feel each clench of Adora's muscles down on the cock, each tiny quiver of her cunt. And Adora can feel the way that Catra tightens down on it when they clench to keep it in place, when they thrust up and let go to relax when their hips meet the mattress again.

Its slow and erotic, sensual and hot, passionate and comforting. It's all of the things that Catra needed, all of the things they loved getting from Adora and giving her in return. It's all of the ways that they loved to be loved by her.

And even though they love the way it feels eventually when they slow down, it still feels good. Catra's timed thrusts turn to incoherent jerks, and then again to slow, throbbing motions that are nearly imperceptible, except Adora can feel everything when she's pressed up against them. Her own riding turns to jolts as well, but eventually she finds the rhythm that Catra had set, and she lays against them.

Adora kisses Catra's lips, slanting together in a hot and slow motion. It's languid, slow like molasses, like they're drunk and their lips tingle but it's still smooth.

Catra exhales, the motion of their hips slowing to a halt, and they wrap strong arms around Adora to pull her closer to them and guide her head into their neck.

“Did you like that baby?” Adora asks, rubbing her hand across their chest, playing with the buttons of the shirt they’re somehow still wearing.

“I love you,” They say, the only thing they need to say.

And while there were certainly words to describe how they felt, monumental, earth shattering prose that could bring Adora to her knees with a brush stroke of color to give a name to the feelings that she awoke within Catra, all they really needed to say to show her how they felt was ‘I love you.’

Because Adora, while loving to hear it, was able to fill in the rest easily.

Time passes differently after they’ve been intimate, marked by the shadows creeping across the floor and trips to the restroom, and to the kitchen for water and snacks. Being wrapped up in each other creates a warm bubble, a soothing cocoon of comfort that they have little will to break.

There’s a push to get out of bed to pick Swift up from the doggy daycare, and it drags Catra out of the apartment long enough to jog across the street to pick them up while Adora orders dinner in and opens a bottle of wine from the wine closet. It was one of the more ridiculous additions to the penthouse apartment, but it was full of a selection of wine that Catra had been holding on to, gifts from investors and holiday presents that they usually saved for special occasions. She chooses a spicy red to go with their dishes and by the time Catra gets back the delivery notification pops up that the order is on its way.

It’s just as Adora is ripping off a piece of naan and using it to scoop up a healthy bite of meat and rice that Catra looks across the table and stares. It’s not unsettling or weird, but Adora does always wonder what they’re thinking when they look at her like that. It’s like they’re starstruck, like they’re frozen in place because of something they see in her.

The room shifting to amber, hands of the clock pausing, an old newsprint picture almost, is a familiar feeling. She'd gotten that nostalgic sort of timelessness in the way their shirt billowed open in the breeze or the veins in their hands stood out when they were doing pottery at the studio.

"What?" She asks, smiling once she'd swallowed her bite.

Catra is jolted from their intense gaze, and they look away.

"Don't be embarrassed baby, tell me what you were thinking about," She urges gently, and Catra looks back at her.

"No one's ever loved anyone as much as I love you."

Please drop by the Archive and comment to let the creator know if you enjoyed their work!