No Love Like the Present

by yoursfemmely

Summary

All Catra wanted was to get off, in attempt to silence her mind and forget this exhausting day. However, as her fingers swirled on her clit, her thoughts kept flashing to the past. No matter how hard she tried, they infuriatingly wouldn't stop reminding her of who she really wanted between her thighs. Then, inexplicably, Adora was in her room, getting on her knees, slipping off her clothes, and begging for forgiveness.

Prompt: Catra and Adora holding hands during sex (while they're supposed to be enemies)

Notes

This is gonna hurt. You've been warned. It's still hot, but Catra is not okay. (see tags)

Catra groaned loudly as she fell into her bed. She was so sick of being in charge. She was so sick of no one ever listening or doing the simple things she asked. So what if the machines were failing? Did she have to fix everything? Her throat was sore from constantly having to scream at everyone all day just to get them to do their damn jobs right. Then they'd had the audacity to talk back and look at her with exasperation and pity as if she were the one with the problem. She scoffed. They didn't know what hard work was. They didn't know what it meant to climb to the top only to be treated with so much disrespect. They didn't know what it was like to be abandoned, all of them frolicking around buddy, buddy and resting their heads on each other's shoulders with stolen smiles between shifts. She used to have that… But now she only had herself and power, power she endlessly tried to keep in her grasp, yet kept slipping out of her hands over and over. Sometimes it felt like the only thing left to hold onto was herself. Sometimes that seemed even harder.

Wrapping her arms around herself, Catra gripped her body tightly, scrunching up her face as the pads of her fingertips dug firmly into her skin. She'd started doing this more and more lately. It seemed to be one of the only ways to silence her racing thoughts and the angry, denigrating things they threw at her. She'd get moments of freedom when she yelled at everyone else, spitting the same words back, but then dashes of guilt would tug at her, only fueling her internally scorching rage. Only one other thing could quiet its barrage for longer. It didn't work consistently, but she kept trying, chasing those fleeting moments where she'd sometimes had success. Fuck, how she hoped today was one of those days where her body would provide that temporary buzz of silence that only touching herself could bring.

With another sigh, full of nerves and desperation for it to fucking work this time, she started to peel off her jumpsuit, leaving herself in just underwear and a bra. Her body felt clammy from the stress of the day and she wanted a shower, but first things first. She wasn't anywhere near ready to move, and hopefully, if things went right, she'd end up way sweatier, so this order made the most sense, anyway.

Casually, she slipped a hand into her bra, softly squeezing her breast, and feeling her nipple harden with tingles as she pinched and rolled it between her fingers. Her resulting sigh was short and breathy, and she nipped into her lip with one of her fangs, careful not to draw blood. She didn't have the energy to deal with the mess.

Drawn to the throb between her thighs, her other hand started to slide down her stomach, slipping under the band of her underwear and meeting soft curls. She lazily let her claws retract as she lowered her fingers enough to meet her clit. Her strokes were languid at first, mirroring how exhausted her body was, and she took in a sharp breath to energize herself enough to find some well-needed precision. It was just what she needed to inspire herself to start making tight swirls, squeezing her eyes shut as she dipped her fingers down to the small pool of slippery wetness at her entrance. She pushed against herself, finding her wanting hole relax at first, then tighten around her fingertips, before relaxing once again. Rocking her hand, she let the heel of her palm work against herself as she pushed in with a small, relieved groan.

Catra softly moaned as she continued, trying her best to only think only of this moment and her own fingers as she clenched around them, not all the times she'd been filled with another's, or the ways her now-enemy used to hover above her, panting out words of praise. Working to stay present and shove her fantasies away had become a constant, exhausting practice whenever she touched herself. She'd try her best to ignore the frustratingly persistent memories of desperation, passion, joy, and care for Adora, begging her mind to chase only the pleasurable endorphins instead. Yet, without fail, the images and associations only dulled, never disappeared, flashes still managing to break through, no matter how hard she tried.

Suddenly, beeps rang at the door with a “Yes!” making Catra’s hand shoot free from her underwear as she swore that the voice sounded just like—“Catra?” Adora said breathily, her voice pitching up with relief and exasperation. Adora, who was standing in her doorway like she belonged there, chest rising and falling rapidly as if she’d been running. She was taking sharp breaths through parted lips that curled into a smile, looking at Catra with a mix of tender longing and trepidation. Then her eyes went wide, flitting up and down Catra’s exposed body and then shooting toward the floor, a deep blush taking over.

“Adora, what the fuck!?” Catra yelled, springing up out of bed and barely missing hitting her head on the top bunk. She still didn’t know why the hell her personal room had two beds, but now wasn’t the time to be thinking of that because, “What the actual fuck, Adora? How are you here?”

Adora darted a look behind herself as if she might have been followed, then noisily banged the red button on the wall, making the sliding door hiss shut behind her. It was just enough time for Catra to lunge forward, slamming her against the steel wall with a thud.

“Wait!” Adora yelped, grasping Catra by the waist. The devastatingly familiar touch was enough to make Catra hesitate for just a moment before pressing her harder against the wall, shoving a knee into Adora's hip to further pin her. However, Adora wasn’t moving to fight back, instead looking at Catra dopily and rubbing her thumbs up and down the front of Catra’s waist with a look reserved for the past.

Catra jolted back, part in shock, part in wanting to get a better look, her mind reeling with confusion as her instincts battled between slashing Adora’s skin or using her claws to tear off her clothes instead. So, unable to choose, she stumbled further backward, lunging a leg forward in battle stance, arms held out in front of her. However, bafflingly, Adora remained standing neutrally, arms resting at first by her sides, then tentatively reaching out her hand while glancing up and down Catra's partially undressed body. Catra almost launched for Adora's hand to slap it to the side, but it was far enough to not be a threat so she remained firmly poised for a fight. She tried to pretend she didn't see that look. She tried to tell herself she didn't care that Adora was here. She begged any thoughts to the contrary to go away. The thoughts told her that tender expression meant Adora wanted her back. She tried to remind herself that it no longer meant anything but pity. It used to mean desire and love, but that changed long ago. Too much had happened. Adora was never coming home.

Yet, out of nowhere, making Catra question every one of her feelings—not to mention her sanity—Adora said in a tone full of pleading admittance…

"I messed up."

Adora stole a beat of fleeting silence as she carefully studied Catra's aghast face, taking advantage of how Catra had completely stopped breathing by adding, "I'm so sorry, Catra. I never should've left you. We're meant to be together. Here.. I know that now. I'm sorry it took me so long to figure out."

"What?" Catra gasped out in disbelief. Did Adora actually want to rejoin the Horde? Did she want… Catra couldn't even finish that last thought. She wouldn't let herself keep entertaining this invasive sense of hope. "What the fuck?" she said again.

"You can't tell me you don't want this," Adora said, moving forward slowly, both enemies of war, yet former lovers and best friends, watching each other's every move as Catra found herself stumbling further backwards, yet again. "I miss holding you," Adora whispered softly, glancing at the floor again with a blush so subtle it might be missed by someone who didn't know her as well. Catra's forehead was hurting from being so scrunched up with confusion, her legs wobbling from how fast her heart was racing.

“I miss what we used to do…here…” Adora added, trailing off, gesturing awkwardly around the room and then haphazardly in the air towards the ceiling, clumsily implying the entire Fright Zone around them. “You know, in the bunks…the showers…the ledge…” There was a question in her eyes like she thought maybe Catra could’ve actually suppressed the memories of each sacred place.

Catra’s heart started pounding in her ears as all the thoughts she’d worked so hard to push away began flashing through her mind, the memory of Adora’s past kisses shivering up her sides. “I can’t keep going on with my life without touching you,” Adora whispered, close enough now that both were holding opposite poles of the bunk, Catra at the head and Adora at the foot.

Catra’s mouth felt like it was opening and closing entirely of its own volition. It wasn’t often that she found herself speechless, but her body was frozen in a dizzying combination of resistance, pure wanting, and utter confusion.

“How are you even here?” she sputtered, using a small twitch in her shoulder as just enough momentum to slightly lean back. She didn’t know if it was an attempt to get away or to encourage Adora to move closer.

Adora did the latter, pressing forward enough for the frame to creak as she kept hold of it, a dash of cockiness shining through her smirk. “Catra, how many times have I snuck in and out of the base with you? It was kinda hard to find this room though…” she trailed off as she looked around the large space, distractible dorkiness returning. “It’s nice. You deserve it,” she said, with an all-too-endearing smile.

Catra huffed in refusal of the affection. She couldn’t let herself trust any of this. It had to be a trick. This was all some elaborate ploy to distract her. Adora must be getting back at her for Princess Prom, and she was so dumb for considering falling for it. She’d probably even end this whole charade with, ‘It was fun distracting you,’ just to show Catra up. So, why wasn’t Catra fighting or interrogating her? She had to take some sort of action, but this was the first time they'd been truly alone in so long and Adora was looking at her like she used to, not with pain or anger like on the battlefield, and Catra would give anything for this to be real. So rather than try to fight or kick her out, dragging her to Hordak with hands bound in rope cuffs, she scoffed. "Like you care," she spit with conviction, finding years of well-practiced coldness, aiming solely to wound Adora with a sharp barb of disdain, but managing to pierce her own heart in the process.

"I do!" Adora insisted. "And you know… I like that it's private…." she said flirtatiously, making Catra take a whistling sharp breath as Adora again offered her trembling hand, pushing off the bar towards her. Before Catra could react further, Adora was touching her fingertips to Catra's arm, making her flinch but not pull away.

"Adora," Catra said, attempting sternness, but remaining firmly planted in place. "What's stopping me from calling a guard in here?"

"Have you ever been able to resist me?" Adora asked coyly, stealing the air from Catra's lungs as she dropped her hand, unclasping the buckle of her jacket with just the flick of her wrist. She let the garment crumple onto the cement floor as she whisked her hand to the back of her grey and white jumpsuit, and Catra heard the slow, tantalizing sound of her zipper beginning to slide down. She felt her mouth water at the familiar noise, a Pavlovian response awakening in her from all the times exactly this had led to their soft lips meeting with passion. She bit the inside of her cheek to hold herself back, still unable to breathe, despite her chest clenching and almost burning with demands for her to fill up her lungs.

Yet, seemingly determined to make it worse, Adora started to pull some of the jumpsuit off with her other hand, exposing her bare shoulder.

"Adora," Catra gasped, a whimper trailing at the end of the word from the way Adora started shrugging off the front of the suit.

Catra sucked in the deep breath her lungs begged for and tried again to steel herself. “Adora,” she said, the name coming out forcefully on her exhale with the sternest caution she could muster.

Regardless of her regular internal protests, Catra’s mind frequently recalled the image of Adora’s breasts, but nothing could make it quite so clear how woefully unreliable the memory was as seeing her incredible, braless chest exposed when she pulled off her sleeves. Catra felt an obnoxious warmth bloom inside her from the familiarity, cursing herself for the way her lips almost curled up into an amused, yet adoring smile as Adora shimmied off the ends of the sleeves. She especially scolded herself for the way her mouth watered with lust, too. No amount of swallowing or unwelcome dashes of affection could save her from being overwhelmed with desire when Adora, now bare from the waist up, slid onto her knees before Catra, tilting up her chin, and pressing out her tits. She looked at Catra with ready subservience like she was offering herself up as a decadent dessert.

Despite the ways she’d regained the barest ability to breathe and speak, Catra’s body was still frozen in shock. However, Catra managed to crack the smallest bit more of her icy exterior by inching her knee forward, making an excited, dopey smile spread across Adora’s face. With all the patience of a scrambling puppy, Adora flung out her hand to grab Catra’s still-bare thigh. At first Catra snapped it back on instinct with a yelp, but her voice was quickly overtaken by a small moan as Adora’s hand, having followed the jolt, settled around her thigh and started firmly rubbing her thumb along the highest stripe there. The motion was Adora’s trademark form of affection, something she’d always done unconsciously when they touched, and the sense memory made Catra press her thigh forward again, pushing herself off the pole.

Adora scooted forward on her knees, darting her tongue over her lips, dragging her teeth over the lower one, taking a slow, reverent breath and exhaling the most tantalizing, whooshing breath onto Catra’s thighs, eyes glued between Catra’s hips.

In all Catra's hesitation and overwhelm, she'd almost forgotten how wet she was before Adora even walked in—or noticed how since then she'd become exponentially more so. Yet now that Adora's face was level with Catra's hips, gusting air all over her soaked underwear, she felt all her awareness return, a pronounced shiver sending goosebumps shooting up her thighs, right to her cunt.

Catra could hear her heart pounding in her ears. So when Adora's hand trailed up, fingertips trepidatiously pulling at the elastic on the outer edge of Catra's hip, and she gave Catra a questioning look, Catra nodded a jagged 'yes.' Then, as Adora started to yank them down, Catra grabbed the other side to swiftly pull them off together, stumbling as they both hurried them away.

Adora dove her face forward, dragging her tongue over the wetness on Catra's inner thigh with a satisfied moan, gripping Catra's ass with both of her strong hands. Catra's tail lashed in both a feral need for more and anger at herself for how much she wanted this, and wrapped it tightly around Adora's upper arm, tugging her forward.

All Catra's turmoil was still brewing under the surface, making her face scrunch up tighter and ears pin back, but each firm lick against her thigh was washing it away with overwhelming pleasure. She let her hand fall onto Adora's head, fingers tangling in her hair and gripping slightly, just the way she knew Adora loved.

Adora moaned needily, using her grip on Catra's ass to spin her and slam it onto the bed, making the metal protest with loud squeaks. Just as quickly, she shoved Catra's legs apart, yanking her forward so her cunt was flush with the edge of the bed. Catra's hands fell behind her, bracing for balance as she panted out "Adora," part in surprise but so much more in pleasured relief. She gripped her hand to the back of Adora's head, fingers carding through her blond hair, gripping tightly with urgency. Every cell in her body was begging to already be cumming on Adora's tongue, and before she could stop herself, she was letting out the most pitifully desperate groan.

Adora looked up tauntingly, a sly grin spreading on her face as she pulled a long, slow lick up the crease between Catra's thigh and outer lips, making Catra grumble in annoyance. Catra tried to yank Adora to her center, and even though Adora momentarily resisted, with yet another cocky look and raised brow showing she was clearly humored by Catra's impatience, she thankfully displayed her own uncontrollable need and surged forward, pressing her tongue to Catra.

Adora's licks were broad and sweeping at first, lapping up Catra's wetness and audibly swallowing it down with guttural 'mmm's then breathy, downright gleeful moans against Catra. Then, before Catra was forced to plead for it, Adora's licks became more precise, still not focused on her clit, but rather all around it. She swiped up each side, then gave focused licks just above the hood, lowering slightly each time to trace her way down to just above the head, then right back up. Catra mewled at the build-up. She'd missed Adora's tongue so much, torturous teasing and all. It was like a familiar game, and per tradition, when Adora quickly circled her entrance, barely dipping in the tip of her tongue, Catra tried to tighten around it as if to capture the plunge, knowing she'd be unsuccessful, but loving the chase. Instead, Adora did as she always used to, swiping it right back up for more circles around the outside of her clit, beginning to close in tighter and tighter.

The first lick that finally met the head of her clit was fast and soft, followed by fervent back and forth motions, and Catra fisted Adora's hair harder, wrapping her legs behind Adora's back as she softly bucked into her face.

Now only holding herself up with one shaking arm and the vice of her legs tightening around Adora, she pitched herself forward, grabbing just below the back of Adora's neck to try and hold on even harder. Adora followed her movement, growling pleasurably in response to Catra's needy grip, likely full of delicious pain from how firmly Catra's hands pulled at her. Catra did her best to control her nails from going too deep, while still raking small scratches against Adora's skin.

It must have been too much, though, because after a minute or so, without stopping her dedicated licking—now including small sucks of Catra's hard clit, Adora's tongue flicking away at the head of it between her pursed lips—she grabbed Catra's hand. Pulling it off her, she pressed it back into the bed, but she didn't let go, instead lacing their fingers to firmly press their intertwined hands into the mattress.

It was an intimacy Catra thought she'd forgotten, and she felt almost unbearable emotions brewing in her chest, a tear slipping down her cheek. She threw back her head to hide it, trying to focus on Adora's tongue but not letting go of Adora's hand. No, she gripped it even harder.

Then there it was again, Adora's thumb, soothingly rubbing back and forth against her, making Catra feel more tears building then falling, streaming even faster. She tried to cover her sobs with moans and groans, hoping she'd get away with them as sobs of pleasure as Adora sped up, moaning and groaning right back into Catra. Within Adora's moans, Catra could hear muffled encouragement of, "yes, yes, yes," pouring out of Adora, becoming clearer between licks when she slightly pulled back for the smallest bit of extra air, still rapidly licking with circles and flicks. The frantic praise sounded like providing service to Catra was giving Adora just as much pleasure as Catra was receiving.

Catra's sobs were getting louder. She hoped Adora remembered that her body just reacted this way sometimes just from the incredible overwhelm of building towards cumming and how she'd told Adora not to stop when she did. Thankfully Adora seemed to either remember or just not notice, and Catra released the hand she'd been holding to Adora's head—not the one holding Adora's hand—so she could throw it behind herself, lifting her ass off the bed and arching back so Adora could hold her up with her free arm. Adora followed her signal as smoothly as flowing water, their bodies as in sync as ever, slinking it under Catra's low back to effortlessly hold her. It was just enough balance for Catra to grip her legs tighter around the back of Adora's head and pull their joined hands to her chest as it heaved along with her thrusting hips.

Panting and loudly moaning out Adora's name, Catra felt herself bearing down with forceful tingles rushing through her, thighs trembling and tightening as that heady buzz she'd been needing so bad roared inside. Her upper body was becoming limp, but Adora took on the work for both of them, holding Catra up like she was weightless. Relieved of the responsibility to support her shaking body, Catra let her wobbling arm collapse, her head dropping to the bed just as unceremoniously. Her other hand still gripped Adora's against her chest, fingers feeling numb from how tightly laced together they were.

As each pulsing shockwave of her orgasm began to burst through her, she got even floppier, but Adora refused to let her down until Catra had to babble out "stop" when she'd reached her overly sensitive peak. Then, and only then, did Adora start to slowly lower Catra's melting body into the mattress, slinking up beside Catra and managing to rotate her lengthwise on the bed as she did. Their hands never disconnected as they moved, only stilling once Adora had pressed them back to Catra's chest, sinking half atop Catra and half curled to her side.

For a moment they just looked at each other, Catra's chest moving as rapidly as her heart rate. She almost couldn't take the pressure of Adora on top of her, but she loved it too much to ask her to shift. Thankfully Adora was at least propped slightly on her elbow to give Catra a bit more breathing room, palm pressed to the back of Catra's head, softly curling her fingers in Catra's mane.

Letting out one of the most unguarded sighs she had in who knows how long, Catra nuzzled her face into Adora's forearm, acutely aware that they hadn't even kissed. Regardless of how intimate they'd just been, a kiss felt a million times scarier. She glanced up at Adora, nervously considering it, finding Adora smiling at her fondly, and she risked wrapping her tail around Adora's upper back to urge her closer. With a dash of nervousness, she tilted her chin back, inviting Adora to her neck, feeling like it was a safer bet than a kiss, more sexual than tender. However, the moment Adora's lips found her skin, pressing long, deep kisses upward from her collar bone to the sharp curve of her jaw, she realized she'd been thoroughly wrong.

Catra turned her face as Adora lifted her head, noses brushing softly, and they held in place, so close that it was mostly blurry. So Catra let her eyelids flutter shut, choosing to focus on the warmth of Adora's breath against her lips, exhales getting faster and faster.

Catra started to realize that if she didn't take this opportunity to kiss her, she might not get another chance. She could almost hear Adora thinking of fleeing, but maybe that was just Catra's fear talking. Maybe Adora really would stay, but either way Catra needed this and tilted her chin up, just enough to close the gap, cunt clenching again and moaning when she felt Adora's lips. For a split second, Adora didn't move and Catra felt a pang of panic, but then Adora was kissing her back, both hands behind Catra's head as Catra flipped her onto her back, straddling Adora and cupping her jaw, grinding her hips needily for more. Adora's hands found her waist, gripping and digging in her fingertips, neck straining to kiss Catra back with pure passion and vigor. Catra held the back of Adora's head, pulling her to sitting, free hand dropping to Adora's still-bare chest and stroking at her breast with just as much urgency.

It wasn't long before Adora's clothes were entirely gone and she'd captured Catra's hand, bringing it to the radiant heat of Adora's cunt with the desperate plea of "fuck me!" right as she impatiently shoved Catra's fingers inside her. Vigorous pumping brought about ecstatic moans as their sweaty bodies rubbed together, Catra riding Adora's thigh as Adora bit her chest, the scent of sex all around them.

After multiple, surely too loud orgasms, their final collapse was full of giggles and nuzzles, warmth blooming throughout Catra so thoroughly that the heat of Adora's body felt like an extension of her own. It was as if the last few years were just some terrible nightmare and they'd been doing this instead all along, running the Horde together like they'd always dreamed. It was as if that top bunk had been for Adora this whole time, merely a requirement to have a bed she'd never use in favor of the one they shared instead.

Catra felt a wet tear slide down her cheek, the slightest tremble to her limbs setting in, making her grip Adora's hand tightly. Then even tighter. She needed to grip onto this moment and never release it.

"Are you gonna stay?" Catra found the nerve to choke out hopefully, swallowing the lump in her throat, feeling more tears flowing, knowing what was next all too well.

"I can't," Adora said softly, pulling Catra to her chest and kissing the top of her head. A sob breached Catra's lips.

No. Not yet.

"I wish I could… I miss you. I really do…"

Please. No. A little longer...

"You have no idea how much," Adora continued, her voice becoming hazy. "Please come back to me, Catra," she added as the weight of her touch began to dissipate. "I love you," was the final thing Catra heard, just barely, like whoosh in the breeze, slipping away into static.

"I can't," Catra sobbed in reply, face pressed into her pillow, staining it with her tears, then wrapping it around her face and screaming into it ragefully.

Body trembling, Catra rolled onto her back, eyes still squeezed shut, refusing to return to the reality of her cold, dingy, empty room. However, with a groan, she finally gave in, forcefully swiping away her tears, ears pinned to the back of her head, her heart clenching in pain as the blurry, ugly gray and green hues returned. Surging with emotions and fury, she slashed the metal of the pole by her head with her claws, thankfully only enough to deeply scratch, not slice it in half. She half hoped the jagged metal would cut into her hand next time she gripped it while getting lost in these pointless delusions. Maybe it would help break her concentration so she'd stop before getting sucked into any more absurd fantasies of what would never be again.

Snatching her discarded underwear off the floor and chucking it into the laundry shoot, she grabbed a towel. She'd previously hoped her shower would simply wash away the stress of the day, but maybe now it could also wash away this stain of heartache, even if surrounded by the tiles they used to press against together as they'd kiss and more. This place was like a haunted museum of their love at every infuriating turn. Someday she'd tear down every piece to build back up into something unrecognizable. Something better. Someday she'd be in control and get the respect she deserved. Someday maybe she could love only her power and forget what she truly knew with every fiber of her being, no matter how hard she pushed it down…

…that she'd never love anything more than Adora.

End Notes

Ooof. Okay, are you breathing? Pls take a nice big breath. Also, I'm so sorry ❤️ Hope that didn't hurt too much.

I want to be clear that this is Canon Compliant!! This is a missing scene and the takeaway is that while it's painful now, the canon ending is still intact. They will be okay!! This is just a very painful time.

With that said, I totally understand if you need to cry at me or speak to my manager for harms caused. Totally fair. I would also love to know if you liked it, brutal ending aside! Your kudos and comments keep me going!

Re: this being "inspired by" Resflower's fic, you may notice that theirs is also "inspired by" mine! It's because these were actually mutually inspired—both fics came from my original prompt, then back and forth ideas bounced between us. Different but related concepts, each with opposite POVs. Def check theirs out if you didn't already!

As always, thanks forever and ever to VividSeal for beta-ing.

OH! Also, there are references in this to my Take Me to the Ledge Series. They're so subtle that I decided not to include it in the series, though. Check it out if you wanna!
