to create, to live, to flourish together

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/32095825.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationships:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Bow/Glimmer (She-Ra), Light Hope/Mara (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), Finn | Adora/Catra Child (She-Ra), Micah (She-Ra), Angella (She-Ra), Murphy OC, Callan OC, Melog - Character, Shadow Weaver | Light Spinner (She-Ra), Mara (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Alternate Universe - Medieval, enby catra, Princess Adora (She-Ra), duke catra, they are royalty, long ass epilogue, Fluff and Smut, domestic wives, Family time, all around happy, I couldnt stop writing, even as i edited i kept adding more, its cheesy, Deal With It, King Catra, Queen Adora

Language:
English

Series:
Part 3 of the duke of halfmoon

Stats:
Published: 2021-06-21 Words: 12,359 Chapters: 1/1

to create, to live, to flourish together

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/32095825.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationships:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Bow/Glimmer (She-Ra), Light Hope/Mara (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), Finn | Adora/Catra Child (She-Ra), Micah (She-Ra), Angella (She-Ra), Murphy OC, Callan OC, Melog - Character, Shadow Weaver | Light Spinner (She-Ra), Mara (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Alternate Universe - Medieval, enby catra, Princess Adora (She-Ra), duke catra, they are royalty, long ass epilogue, Fluff and Smut, domestic wives, Family time, all around happy, I couldnt stop writing, even as i edited i kept adding more, its cheesy, Deal With It, King Catra, Queen Adora

Language:
English

Series:
Part 3 of the duke of halfmoon

Stats:
Published: 2021-06-21 Words: 12,359 Chapters: 1/1

to create, to live, to flourish together

by gaizotak

Summary

the happy couple has discovered peace and can finally focus on building a family together and work through everything that comes with running two kingdoms.

Notes

here we go, epilogue time

See the end of the work for more notes

The pregnancy went about as smooth as any pregnancy could go. Catra had to do a lot of convincing to keep Adora from overworking herself as the due date approached. Adora is not one to sit around, but when Catra told her that the stress made it hard on the baby and on Adora herself, she settled down and started to take it easy. Catra attends more meetings for her and helps her sleep with their purrs and gives her massages when possible.

A healthy breakfast was made every morning for them to start their day off strong and keep everyone in good health. They spar when they have time and set up a crib in their bedroom. Catra instinctually builds a nest for Adora that is covered in their scent. Apparently, their bond to one another is so strong that when Catra isn't near Adora can't concentrate and function. Adora becomes increasingly clingy as the due date nears to the point that Catra cannot leave her side except for the bathroom. Yes, Melog stays close to their side but they aren't Catra, at least not completely.

As annoying as it may seem, Catra is becoming just as attached and needy; their protective instincts taking over to never let Adora out of their sight. They cancel any traveling that requires one of them to leave the castle. Catra had to go to the Scorpion kingdom but hardly made it off the castle grounds before they came sprinting back to a crying Adora.

It's possible the trauma from the kidnapping still being so fresh for the both of them is increasing their need to be with one another, but there is no denying the magical link between them is stronger than it's ever been.

Soon, the baby is here. Finn, they decide is their name. It means Pale Warrior and it’s fitting for how they are the reason they still have each other’s memories. Adora gives birth in their master bedroom in Castle Grayskull. She refused to leave the bed and Catra made sure the nurses and servants complied with the princesses' requests. Everyone but the wet nurse and a couple assistants waited outside until Finn was in Adora and Catra’s arms. Then the doors open and the room is flooded with smiling faces of the people they love most.

Their closest friends and family are there and shower them with gifts and love. Catra’s moms have sparkling eyes as they take in Finn’s scent. Meanwhile Adora’s parents are in awe of how soft Finn is. Each parent and friend gets to coo and hold Finn once Catra bites back on their protective growling. Eventually they all part from the room and give the wives alone time.

Adora snuggles into Catra’s side and looks down at their child. Finn is so small in Adora’s arms as they breastfeed and she still can’t believe she and Catra made something so beautiful. Catra’s pupils have been dilated since they first saw Finn come into the world. Sniffing and licking their face as they purred them into sleep so Adora could rest from breastfeeding. Catra positions their family so Adora is resting slightly on top of Catra while they hold Finn. She falls asleep with an arm thrown over Catra and Finn.

When she wakes Catra is still purring with a vice grip on Finn as they both sleep. She can’t help but smile and cuddle in closer as Melog lays over their legs protectively.

They never use the crib they set up in either of their bedrooms in each other’s kingdom. Finn sleeps between them or on their chest every night until their teething becomes unbearable and their personality shows through. Finn gets quite restless at night and it's exhausting to say the least. Learning to walk was never an issue and soon they are zooming through the house with Catra and playing with Adora.

Finn is about 4 years old when there is an insurgence of strife between the people in the Frost kingdom. Melog is pacing the room and mewling in distress and only making Finn feel more tense.

Leaning down to be eye level, Adora cups Finn's face and rubs their ears. Finn purrs with a confused look on their face as they watch their mom, Catra, hastily pack a bag with two servants at their side. "Hey, baby, mom has to go see a friend for a little while. And you and I are going to take a trip to see Aunty Glimmer and Uncle Bow."

Finn hesitantly looks to Catra and then back to Adora. "Why don't they want to see aunty glim and uncle arrow?"

"Finny, they do!" Adora smiles sadly. "They will join us for play time when they finish some work things, okay?" Finn reluctantly nods and feels their eyes burn. They've never been away from either of their moms for more than a day or two and it makes them nervous. Catra hears them sniffle and turns and stops packing to scoop Finn up in their arms.

"I'm sorry to leave you Finn," Catra tells them with low ears and Finn is quick to hug their neck and nuzzle in. "I promise to be back soon. You're gonna have to look after Mama while I'm gone, alright? Melog has to come with me so it's up to you. Can you do that for mom?"

Finn nods against their neck and purrs as the two scent mark each other.

Catra has their last bag and the servants take the rest of their luggage down to the carriage, leaving the family alone for a moment. Adora is quick to pull Catra into a passionate kiss that Catra eagerly returns. They hold each other tightly.

"Come back to me. To us," Adora demands as she strokes their mane.

"Nothing will ever keep me from coming back to you."

The line makes Adora teary eyed. It's something Adora learned was true when they were attacked and separated. "Be safe, I love you." A slow blink.

"I love you, too, princess." A slow blink back.

()()()

Catra watches out the rear window of the carriage until they can't see Halfmoon anymore. They made sure to mark both pillows on their bed and leave some shirts for Adora and Finn to snuggle with at night. A mother's scent is the next best thing when you don't have your mom around.

Eventually Catra looks forward, petting Melog, and takes in the hundreds of troops that follow them as Catra leads them to the Snow lands. There have been groups forming in the Frost kingdom who aim to overthrow the crown since the new ruler is only 12 years old. Frosta, who has now been crowned Queen, since her father died a couple weeks ago and her mother 2 years prior, is under a lot of pressure to be a fit ruler for her people.

Glimmer has been teleporting there from time to time since they are sister nations, but Glimmer has her own issues to handle in Brightmoon. So, it's up to Catra to take their finest warriors with the thickest fur coats to assess the situation.

Catra planned on visiting to integrate the two kingdoms so as to strengthen their armies in terms of weather adaptation and new skills. The ability and speed of the magicats in partnership with the sturdy defense of the inuit people in the Frost kingdom would make them a terrifying force.

All of this makes Catra nervous knowing that Adora and Finn aren't with them, safe and sound together and protected. But Brightmoon is huge and much more safe thanks to the Whispering Woods all around it, so that helps settle Catra a bit. Adora is She-Ra, yes, but Catra is going to worry no matter what.

It takes a while to get the kingdom, and it takes literal moments for Catra to see how difficult this is going to be. The aggressors are stuck in a frozen barrier, basically trapping them as the new Queen, Frosta, berates them for attacking the crown. It is going to be a long day.

Then two kids, two magicat kids, hop out from beneath the snow and growl with the cutest little roars at those in the ice barrier. “Bow to the crown!” they both shout.

Catra bursts out laughing and. Can’t. Stop.

()()()

Adora and Finn have been having a great time in Brightmoon. It’s been a while since Adora has visited and seen Queen Angella and King Micah. Their parents are all old friends and this is how Adora met Glimmer and Bow. The two got married shortly after Adora and Catra did and have yet to have any kids, but Adora thinks that since Glimmer and Bow have gotten closer with Finn, they are more ready to start a family.

Catra is two days later than they should be, return wise, and it begins to worry Adora. Finn can smell her stress and stays close to her side, remembering what Catra said about protecting their mama. Adora is thankful to have them close, it settles her and calms the tensing magical energy within her. Adora feels no pain from the other side of the link and prays that is a good thing.

The two families are having dinner when they get interrupted by a breathless messenger. Kyle, Adora remembers. He is one of the fleet's messengers with his gift for increased cardio but Adora has yet to see him so shaken from a message. He must have been running faster than usual.

Adora is quick to her feet and Glimmer meets her at the boys side with her teleportation. Kyle is hunched over, gasping in huge breaths of air as his hand shakes, holding up a letter.

"Prin...Princess… Adora," he gasps and stands up more straight to properly bow, but Adora doesn't care for pleasantries when a messenger looks like this. "Excuse me, your majesty, but you have an urgent message from your wife, Du--" she snatches the paper from him before he can finish his words and Finn is quick to climb up her back and tries to read the letter, despite not even knowing how to read cursive yet.

Everyone in the room holds their breath as they watch Adora's face go slack and she folds the letter up to swing Finn around and hold them close to her neck.

“They’re okay-- mom is okay, Finnie,” Adora says with a happy air to her voice. Then turns to give Kyle an exasperated look, who flinches and cowers. “You said it was urgent!”

Kyle flushes and stammers. “C-Catra-- uh-- The Duke said to get this message to you before the end of today, your majesty. They said it was of utmost importance that you read it as soon as possible.”

Adora straightens her posture and feels bad ro the kids now, because he probably got a hell of a threat to his well being if he didnt do as he was told. “Well, thank you.” She turns to the royal family of Brightmoon and says, “Firstly, this boy needs a raise. Secondly, Catra is fine. The tension in the Kingdom of Snows is dwindling and the troops should be ready for departure by tomorrow and Catra plans on coming here to discuss negotiations.”

Now Adora understands the urgency of the message. Catra didn’t want her to worry an excessive amount about their delay like they knew Adora would do. Adora was half tempted to call Swifty and fly there herself over to check on Catra.

The whole room lets out a sigh of relief and agrees on Kyle’s pay increasing.

“I can teleport Catra here?” Glimmer offers. She has been on the receiving end of Adora’s worries for the last couple days and wants to help but Adora shakes her head with a blush.

“I appreciate the offer but I will be okay. Catra loves to sight see and probably has other towns and kingdoms to hit on their way here anyway. Another week won’t hurt now that I know they are okay.”

Glimmer lets out a huge groan. “Thank the gods. You are seriously no fun when you two are apart.” The comment makes Adora scoff and hold Finn closer. She would have come back if it weren’t true. She stutters for some kind of reprieve and gives up with an awkward smile and chuckle.

“Sorry,” she says and sits back at the table with Finn so they can finish eating. Bow shakes his head with a smile.

“Don’t mind Glimmer,” he says. “I would be worried for my partner too if something traumatic happened when you both weren’t together. You want to be there for each other, always.” Glimmer gives a soft ‘sorry’ to Adora.

Angella puts a hand on Micah’s shoulder and looks at him fondly. “I get the same way when Micah and I must part for our duties across Etheria. Adding to this, you and Catra have a very strong bond, Adora.”

Micah nods and covers Angella’s hand with his. “Couldn’t agree more. I am always better when Angie is with me.”

“Stronger together!” Finn shouts with a fork in the air before diving back into their vegetables. Adora ruffles their hair and kisses their ear.

It’s a phrase Adora and Catra strongly believe in and have put it at the top of the list when it comes to things to teach their child. “That’s right, baby.”

()()()

The next four days are brutal but Adora gets through it. She reads to Finn, gives her input during meetings as Finn hangs out with Glimmer and Bow in the gardens. Staying busy is key and helps the time pass, but going to sleep is the hardest part, but having Finn makes getting through it all much more possible. Finn is kneading into her stomach as they slowly drift off to sleep and Adora rubs their twitching tail until her eyes finally close.

When Adora wakes, there is a pep in her step and Finn seems just as energized. She tickles them once she catches them during a game of chase and then they race to the cafeteria for breakfast. The two eat a huge meal and head over to the entry yard to read, relax, and wrestle until Catra arrives. Glimmer and Bow join them and the four have a picnic for lunch under a large shady tree to pass the time and share stories.

Adora is lost in a laughing fit of Glimmer trying to crack open a walnut with her bare hands when she sees Finn's nose twitch and ears swivel. Their head turns and Adora follows their line of sight to see Catra's carriage coming through the woods about 3 miles north of the main castle entrance. The drawbridge over the surrounding lake is down in preparation. Adora can't make out any details but the shine of gold and maroon in the distance is undoubtedly Catra's fleet.

Finn whimpers and looks to Adora with pleading eyes and alert ears. "Mama, c-can I…?" they ask and Adora knows what they want.

"Not yet, Finnie. Let's wait until they get closer. Then, when I can see mom, you can go, alright?"

Finn deflates a bit but nods and settles into Adora's lap as they both watch Catra get closer and closer. Adora will only let Finn out of her sight if she can see Catra. Only then will she know that Finn is safe when away from her.

It's once Adora can see Catra's silhouette exit the carriage, leap onto all four paws, and begin a dead sprint to the Castle, does Adora give Finn a kiss to the top of their head and a pat to their thigh for them to take off. "Go get 'em," she says and they shoot off. Adora rises to her feet and begins walking after her child who is already halfway to their other parent. She picks up her pace when she hears Catra's raspy laughter. And begins running when Catra scoops Finn up by the armpits and twirls them in the air.

Catra sees her and puts Finn on their back and runs up to Adora, meeting her at the edge of the bridge and enveloping her in a tight hug. Adora breathes in their scent and she immediately feels her heart rate slow down as a sense of safety washes over her.

"I missed you," Catra says and pulls from the hug to kiss Adora deeply. "So much." Adora whimpers into their mouth and holds them close to stretch out the kiss. It's been nearly 2 months.

"You have no idea," the blonde said breathlessly and looked over Catra's shoulder as they hugged to see Finn staring off towards the approaching carriages. Catra sees this and turns back to Adora with a blush and worried twitch of their tail.

"Adora, Finn, there are two people I want you to meet. Um-- okay," Catra stammers and Adora strokes their cheek.

"It's okay, you can tell me." Catra nods but looks away.

"So, when we got to the Frost kingdom we were met with more than just a riot. Apparently there was a magicat family there when the Horde attacked the kingdom and it rendered two young magicats as war orphans. And… we decided they should come back to Halfmoon. But… then I got another idea." They sound so nervous and that is very uncharacteristic for Catra.

Adora holds their hand. "Hey, whatever happens-- we face it together, remember? What's going on?"

Then, softly, they ask, “How would you like to have two more kids running around the castle?” Adora goes beet red and Catra rolls their eyes with a flush. “Not like that. I mean we-we take in these two kits, Adora. They… they have no one. And I’ve made a real connection with them. Like a serious connection.” The carriage pulls up to them and stops, waiting for Catra’s orders.

Taking a moment to soak it in. She always wanted more kids and considered adoption with so many lost kids running about Etheria. This was just so sudden. Adora gets her breathing under control and clears her throat and sets her brow. “Can we meet them?” Catra beams and calls out to the carriage.

“Hey little ones, come on out!”

“We are not little!” two precious voices call back and when the door opens, Catra feels Adora tremble next to them.

Catra looks up at their wife to see pure awe and love in her eyes. “Adora… meet Murphy, the older brother, and Callan, the younger sister.” The two are slow to approach and cower behind Melog who mews to them, telling the kids it’s okay, that they are safe.

Instantly, Adora gets on her knees, wanting the kids to make the first move and not be startled as she lets Finn creep up to them and sniff each other. Finn pulls back and looks at their parents and then back to the two siblings. “The blonde one, Adora, she’s mama. Catra is mom.” The two kids nod and look at Adora with wide eyes.

“Mom and mama,” the two test out and Catra sees their pupils abruptly turn to slits as a bright light shines. Catra turns to see Adora glowing with tears in her eyes as a smile splits her face.

“Hi,” Adora greets wetly with a small wave. Catra kneels down next to her and rubs her back as the kids slowly approach her. Adora takes in all of their fur patterns and eye colors.

Callan has dark tan fur that is covered in bright orange and brown stripes that run over her tail and limbs. Her mane is wild with streaks of orange that cups her face to where Adora can only see her lime green eyes and small mouth.

Murphy is slightly taller but is covered in spots, rather than stripes. His fur is a bit lighter than his sister’s and his mane is mid length and spiked in every direction. He has rich forest green eyes and an orange patch over his right eye.

Slowly, Adora opens her palms up and out for them to sniff and get to know her. Finn latches onto Catra and watches with wonder while Catra smiles brightly beside Adora. Her face hurts from smiling as the two kids begin to trill and sway their tails and when Adora hears them begin to purr and she jolts with a quick, happy sob that startles everyone.

“Sorry! Sorry! I’m just— sorry— uh, overwhelmed with happiness, right now,” she says to calm everyone who’s fur has ruffled from the sudden sound. She chuckles with embarrassment and looks over to Catra to see them smiling at her with endearment.

“Such an over-emotional goof,” Catra teases, but Adora’s heart won’t stop swelling. “How are we feeling, kids?”

Adora could cry again. They’re going to have two more kids. Spirits— she’s so happy.

The children stand in front of Adora and, with caution, they nudge up into her hands. Adora has to bite back on a whimper as she begins rubbing their hair and gently scratching behind their ears. Callan leans in further into the touch and wraps her tail around Adora’s wrist. Meanwhile, Murphy is trying to pretend he doesn’t enjoy it.

“It’s okay, it’s okay to want this,” Adora whispers to them when she sees the struggle in their eyes. She can’t even imagine what they have been through. “I’m sorry about your family. But if you choose us… I will do my best to make sure you are both loved and cared for. I promise to never replace your parents, but to continue what they couldn’t. I promise to protect you both.”

Callan is the first to break and begins to cry and wraps her arms around Adora’s neck, nuzzling there. Adora wraps her left arm around her and cradles her close. Murphy seems a bit more reluctant.

“How do I know you really want me? Us?” he asks and Adora’s heart shatters. She continues to rub his ears as she thinks of what to say.

“I am a First One,” she explains. “Much like magicats, we mate for life. Our family is everything, blood related or not. And I feel that link, the one I have with Finn and Catra, I feel it bending to you, too.” It’s the truth. Over the years Adora has come to realize that when she bonds with people, she feels a sense of peace. Like the balance beam of her soul aligns a bit more with each connection. Adora felt it teeter into place the second she saw these two kids. “Will you give me a chance to prove it?”

Murphy stares at her long and pondering. His face scrunches up adorably before it smooths out and he slowly curls into her side and Adora feels him go limp when she holds him. They feel perfect in her arms. She looks at Catra who has tears in their eyes as Finn smiles with excitement.

Catra leans in and gives everyone a kiss on the head before standing. With little effort, Adora follows suit without budging the kids in her arms and turns to see half of Brightmoon watching.

“Oh. My. Gods.” Bow is physically holding himself back from tackling the family; his eyes in the literal shape of hearts as tears run down his face.

Glimmer holds him close with her own teary eye smile. “Just when I thought you guys couldn’t get even more cute.”

Catra doesn’t hiss at that like they used too. Instead, they smirk proudly. Angella and Micah step forward and greet the kids.

“Welcome to Brightmoon!” Micah cheers.

“We hope you both will come to see this kingdom as a safe place. We are so happy to meet you,” Angella greets with a serene smile.

Murphy jumps down from Adora’s arms and steps forward with a twitching tail. “Who are you?”

“I am Queen Angella and this is my husband, King Micah. We are the rulers of Brightmoon, the sister nation to the Frost Kingdom.”

Callan steps to her brothers side with a twitch of her ears and whispers, “We are safe. Adora and Catra feel like mom and dad.”

He grumbles. “Yeah, and they’re gone.”

“Do you really want to be alone forever? Adora is literally She-Ra and Catra has the Mahl’klaw. I think the safest place to be is with them.”

The fight in Murphy goes out like a light. “Okay. I’m sorry.” Callan hugs him tight.

“It’s like Cat— uh, mom said the other day. ‘Stronger together’.”

Catra and Adora walk by and look at the kids fondly.

“You don’t have to come in if you don’t want to,” Catra tells them and Adora nods.

“Yeah, take all the time you need.”

Finn comes up behind them and the two turn to face them. “My parents know what it’s like to be away from each other. They were hurt when I was still in Mama’s tummy. They both fought really hard to keep me and each other safe. Uncle Bow and Aunt Glimmer are also really strong. And there are a lot of fun games inside. Do you wanna play?”

Murphy goes a little starry eyed at that. “Did you say games?”

()()()

The kids were a bit overwhelmed being in a warmer climate since they grew up in a land that never knew summer. When they all got inside the castle, Catra and Adora settled the kids into their guest room to rest in. The wives stepped out of their room to speak at the meeting to sum up what happened with Queen Frosta and the two orphans.

"Callan and Murphy actually helped ease the tension between the two groups," Catra explains fondly. "I stepped in and announced our arrival. The people, after… so much negotiation came to a compromise in the documents I have," they detail and pass the paper around. "After that, it was simple integration of my troops…"

Catra spends the majority of the meeting being the center of attention and Adora takes that as the perfect excuse to stare at her wife for the next 2 hours. The quirk of Catra's mouth tells her that she isn't subtle.

The meeting ends and people begin to vacate the room but Glimer and Bow remain seated with smug grins. Once the room is empty except for the four, they barrage the couple with questions on the children they have come to adopt.

Adora has yet to hear the story so she leans in, a hand on Catra's thigh to ground them.

“Their parents were killed 7 years ago; basically towards the end of the attempted siege in the Frost Kingdom. Murphy was 3 and Callan was hardly one year old. Magicats are instinctually survivalists so it’s not surprising the two made it this far on their own. They are a bit feral, despite hopping in and out of orphanages, the two have kind of only had each other.”

Catra takes a moment to pause and blush a bit before continuing. “And when they met me… they immediately imprinted on me.”

Adora gasps while Glimmer and Bow coo. “They did?” their wife asks with awe. “How?”

“The moment they popped up from the snow I scooped them up and put them in my carriage to get warm. Their fur was damp and frosted in matted areas. I let them sleep in there and when I got back that night to check on them, they were marking my seat.”

“Wow,” Glimmer breathes while Bow looks ready for a group hug.

“I made sure Melog stayed with them the whole time,” Catra continues, avoiding eye contact for being so gentle when they are known for their hard edges. “They really helped the kids settle down and feel safe.”

Adora is beyond in love. “You’re the best person to have found them, Catra.” They blush with a roll of their eyes but smile nonetheless. Adora can’t help but kiss their cheek.

()()()

It’s about mid morning when the wives realize they are entirely alone. Alone for the first time in weeks since coming back to Halfmoon. The kids are with some friends for the day and Catra and Adora both miss their kids, but they have also missed each other.

Adora gets that look in her eyes as she gazes at Catra from across the room where they are getting dressed. Catra knows what she wants, and they want it too. They pause their dressing, and turn to fully face Adora. In a button up and pants, Catra begins to unbutton their shirt slowly as they look over Adora’s body. She’s sitting in the chair at her desk and puts her papers down. Then turns in her chair to put herself on display. Soon, Catra’s shirt is shucked off and they start on their pants.

Adora slowly spreads her legs. She wants to be taken. Then begins to ruffle up her dress and bunch it around her hips.

She’s soaked through her underwear. Catra purrs at the sight—the smell of Adora’s desire flooding the room. Adora slowly glides a hand down and pulls her underwear to the side. Her other hand follows suit and she uses two fingers to spread her steaming pink lips apart.

Oh, she wants to be taken like that.

It's been a while since Catra has pulled out the strap, probably months, now. They haven't been able to get that rowdy since starting a family. But today seems like the perfect time to have some fun and love each other.

"Don't move," Catra orders and Adora maintains her position. Their pants are gone and Catra wastes no time removing their underwear and swiftly opening the bedside drawer and begins strapping up. Catra can hear Adora's breathing pick up when the dildo finally clasps into place.

They walk up to Adora, staring into her eyes as they do and don't break eye contact as they line up their cock and wet it with Adora's slick. Adora's eyelids flutter but she keeps them open as Catra cradles her cheek with one hand as the other guides the cock inside Adora.

Gently, they press the tip in and out of Adora, who sighs softly with each movement. It doesn't take long for Adora to start easily taking Catra into her velvet heat. It's when the toy gets about halfway inside Adora that they pull all the way back out, and slam back inside of her.

Then they just hold that position, letting Adora catch her breath. Only when her breathing is more even does Catra begin to undress Adora. Thankfully she isn't wearing that many layers and they can easily get to her naked body as they remain buried inside her. Once she is free of clothing, Adora throws her head back as Catra finally starts moving inside her again. Catra hasn't heard Adora moan like this in a hot minute and the sounds she makes sends Catra into a frenzy.

"Fuck, I've missed you," they grunt out and tweak her nipples. Adora cries out and spreads her legs wider.

"I bet you have missed me more than this," she challenges and grips Catra's tail at its base. They can't help but groan and pound into her harder. The lovers need more.

Catra pulls out and pulls Adora to her feet. "Bend over the desk. I want every document to smell of you at the meeting today." The words make Adora giggle as she positions herself and shakes her ass a little for good measure.

"Now fuck me, love me, fill me up, oh mighty Duke of Halfmoon." They pull her hair back and ravish her.

Catra fucks Adora until she has cum four times. Catra came twice just listening to her and finally pulls out when Adora collapses against the desk, her legs quivering as she struggles to stand. With all the love they can muster, Catra helps her to the bed and lies her down. Adora makes grabby hands. They smile and remove the strap before curling on top of Adora. Catra rumbles with content as Adora slowly pets their back and soaks in their scent and weight on her body.

A few minutes pass when Adora's hand stops moving and Catra thinks Adora is about to fall asleep when Adora pulls Catra to look at her.

"I still can't move," she giggles and Catra laughs with her. "But I still want to have you. Ride my face?" Adora has missed Catra's taste. She needs it so badly and her excitement builds between her legs again when Catra settles their hips over her mouth.

"Don't pass out on me down there," they chuckle and run their tail over her breasts. Adora's eyes darken. She grabs the base of their tail and clutches their left hip.

"I'm never one to back down, especially when it comes to you, kitten."

And pulls their sweet nub into her mouth as she rubs and tugs on their tail, just how Catra likes and it brings them to the edge once again. Catra rides her face and claws through the headboard. Every thrust of their pussy against her mouth is perfect and thrilling. When they look and see the hand Adora had on their hip is now in between her thighs and rubbing her own clit as she eats them out, they fuck Adora's face even harder. Catra comes with a wail and rides out the aftershocks, twitching into Adora's tongue as she continues to gently lick and drink them up. Adora hear's Catra say the magical words, "My good girl," and it's all she needs to flick her clit a few more times and comes with a muffled scream into Catra's pussy.

Catra climbs down and kisses Adora, licking up her drenched face as they return to cuddling. The two think back to how neither of them ever pictured being this happy. Getting to have what they want and living their dreams.

()()()

A couple months have passed since bringing Callan and Murphy home to Halfmoon now. The two have become best friends with Finn and quite attached to their new parents. Both kids get nightmares and soon work up the courage to talk about the things they have seen while growing up during such a brutal war. After some talking, Callan and Murphy curl up with the moms and Finn when the nights get tough.

They finally don't have to be alone anymore. Adora and Catra are there to hold them through everything and give them little kisses and ear scratches to make them feel better.

One morning, there is a ruckus at the castle gates and Catra is quick to look out the window and sees what the commotion is about. Adora stays in bed with the kids and reaches for her sword as she eyes both the window and the front door to their apartment.

"There is a visitor," Catra explains. "It seems she is urgent to speak with Armstrong."

That makes Adora stiffen. No one calls her Armstrong unless….

"Send her up," Adora tells Catra who relays the message to the men down below. She hops out of bed and begins to get dressed and do her hair. "Kids, there is someone who will be coming up here. Do not hiss at her, she is a friend and can be trusted."

The kids are very defensive of who enters their home, especially strangers. Adora and Catra are too, but less territorial and more cautious now since the attack.

"I'm assuming you know her?" Catra asks and gets dressed as well to look presentable. Adora turns to face her with a beaming smile.

"It's my old trainer, Mara."

()()()

Mara has been working on weeding out loose ends of the Horde's army ever since the war ended. This way, the rulers of the designated kingdoms can focus on their people and land for rebuilding and healing. Adora wanted to go and help but she was essential to the reconstruction for her country and stayed.

The servant fills everyone's tea cups and leaves the room. Mara takes a sip and sighs with a smile.

"This is delicious. I haven't had custom Magicat teas in years. Thank you for having me and speaking with me, Your Grace," she tells Catra and nods to Adora. "You are a hard lady to find, Adora."

Adora sips her tea where she sits nuzzled next to Catra, across the small table from Mara. "Since the war ended there has been a lot of traveling, especially after the wedding."

Mara gets a bittersweet smile on her face. "I'm sorry I missed it." Adora shakes her head.

"You were busy keeping everyone safe. Making sacrifices some of us couldn't afford. I am just happy to see you again. I would have written to you if I knew how to keep track of where you were."

A serene smile crosses Mara's face after she swallows the biscuit she was eating. "These last few years have been very nomadic for me. It's been amazing to see and learn of these other countries. But now that we have reached a, hopefully, long period of peace… I want to settle down. Much like the two of you."

Adora immediately feels a hint of guilt for having a family but stomps down on the intrusive thought. Catra's hand rubs her thigh and it calms her even more. She is worthy of love and happiness, Catra and Mara have both taught her that over the course of her life.

"Something tells me you found the one?" Adora ponders with a glint in her eye that Mara reflects.

"I have. Her name is Hope. She was a prisoner of war who escaped during a siege within the Whispering woods just outside of Brightmoon and hid. She didn't know the war was over until we found her in some ruins. She-- she is the one."

And, oh, how Adora completely understands what that means. Idly, she holds Catra closer. "You have no idea how happy that makes me, Mara. You have worked so hard, you deserve this. Will we get to meet her?"

Mara blushes and takes a larger drink of tea. "Yes, because the wedding is next week in Castle Grayskull."

Adora squeals and rounds the table to hug a blushing Mara.

"Mama?!"

All three adults turn their heads to see Callan poking her head through the bedroom door with worried eyes. Murphy and Finn sprint up next to her side just as frantically. Adora flushes deeply and releases Mara.

"Sorry to scare you kids! I was just so excited, I'm alright," she says with a chuckle. On the chair, Catra snickers.

"Mara, how would you like to meet our kids?" they ask and Melog appears behind the children with bleary eyes from their nap.

Mara's eyes grow to the size of saucers. "I would love to."

Catra waves the three magicats into the room. "It's alright, come say hi to Mara."

"She's a First One, much like me," Adora informs them. "We share a similar power and she used to train me on how to use it."

The kids file into the room and Mara slowly stands and reaches her hand out to shake, but Finn bypasses her hand and leaps into her arms, startling her.

"Oh! Woah--"

"Finn!" Catra and Adora admonish.

Finn purrs, completely unaffected by the commotion they have caused. "You smell like mama."

That settles everyone instantly and gives Murphy and Callan a curious look in their eyes and they approach Mara with sniffling noses. Mara holds Finn close, completely fine with what just happened and smiles down at the other two kits. They sniff, and then their eyes go wide.

"Woah," Murphy says with awe.

"She does smell like mama! Finn was right," Callan tells them and looks up at Mara. "You're taller, though." Catra squeaks with laughter as Adora grumbles at the comment.

Mara can't help but laugh and pet Callan on the head. "And I always will be."

Once Catra gets their laughter down, they introduce the kids. “The one in your arms is Finn, Callan is the one you’re petting, and Murphy has the spot on his eye.”

“It is very nice to meet you guys,” she says and the kids nod with a proper greeting of their own.

Murphy creeps in a bit closer. “Mama says you trained her?”

“That’s right,” she nods and sits back down once Finn finally leaves her arms to go be in Adora’s. Murphy’s question makes it easy for Catra and Adora to see where this is going.

“Murph here wants to be a warrior,” Catra starts. “He wants to learn how to fight. He and I have been training for a couple weeks now and he makes for a fierce competitor, but he seems to take more interest in First One’s techniques than Magicat. Adora has been working with him but royal duties get in the way quite a bit.”

Adora nods her head with a sad smile. “I wish I had more time, but with my parents' health deteriorating, I have to prepare myself to be Queen at a moment's notice.”

Mara nods and looks at Callan. “And what about you? Do you like to fight?” The girl nods eagerly and smiles brightly.

“Yeah! Mama and I play chase all the time and we get to beat up training dummies! I want to be a powerful warrior one day, just like my moms.”

“You sound like you both will be amazing one day,” she compliments and looks at Adora and Catra. “What if I… trained them?”

“You would want to do that?” Adora asks, shocked. “Aren’t you exhausted?”

“I am, but not of fighting. I am glad the war is over. But there is so much I have lost that I think I can get back by working with your kids, if you will let me. My instincts tell me to be in their lives, and I think this is how.”

Adora thinks it over. If there is anyone she can trust to train the kids, it would be Mara. She just doesn’t want to push her too hard after she has worked so hard. But… Adora loves training and playing with her kids. She looks at Catra who smiles at her.

“I’m sure they won’t pick her over us, princess. You can still train with them when you have the time.” Catra always knows what to say. She nods and turns back to Mara.

“You can start after your wedding. In the meantime? I have missed you and want to get to know you again, give you time to decompress, and meet your fiance.”

Standing from her seat, Adora meets Mara halfway for a hug. “Thank you Adora, I needed this.”

“We are so happy to have you back. And let’s not forget about Melog,” Adora says and searches for the magical feline. “Come say hi, don’t be shy.”

Catra makes an indescribable noise and Melog appears from behind the door and enters the room. Mara beams.

“Is this your Krytian?” she asks with awe. Catra nods proudly. “You must have been in a dire situation. That must have been the rumors that I heard, but it’s always hard to believe what gets passed around.”

Adora automcatilly curls up next to Catra and holds their hand.

“Do you know a woman named Shadow Weaver?” Adora asks and Mara’s head snaps up from where she was cooing at Melog.

“What did she do?” she asks with a cold expression and turns her full attention to the wives.

Catra looks at Melog. “Take the kids into their rooms for me, please?” Melog obeys and the kids leave the room.

They tell her everything once the door shuts and Catra has confirmed they won't be heard. One day they will tell the kids, but for now they are too young to know of such terror. As they retell the awful time Mara is white knuckled through the whole story as she does her best to hide her rage.

"She's escaped how many times now?" she asks and Adora holds up a hand of 4 fingers. Mara rubs her temples. "I will personally see to the guards there, if that's alright?"

"Please," Catra whispers and hearing Catra beg like that will always shock Adora. "With the kids now we reinforce her security. But every attempt she makes, every threat we give her, and every new guard we put in, she always weasels out. We have had to catch her and throw her back in more times than we would like."

"We would guard her ourselves but…" Adora says and gestures to the air around them and Mara nods in understanding. "Mara, don't do this when you yourself need a break."

"I will be fine. Shadow Weaver is a menace and a threat, even during the wars. I just want to take a look and see which of my men would be suitable to guard her."

"Thank you," the wives say and feel safer already.

()()()

It’s been 3 years since Mara came back and she and her wife, Hope, have become part of the family. Three years of her training with the kids and helping Catra and Adora manage their life as they prepare for a meeting with both sides of the family in Castle Grayskull. It’s a meeting that they both knew was coming and it leaves them on pins and needles.

Adora’s father cannot handle long distance travel anymore and everyone agreed to meet in Grayskull rather than risk making him travel to Halfmoon. As the family rides the carriage there, an unspoken boat of anxiety floats between the lovers. And when they get seated at the meeting-- the kids are with Mara and Hope in the garden-- Adora doesn’t miss the way everyone, even the knights, eye her and Catra.

Her father welcomes everyone and then looks at Adora with a wistful smile, then to Catra with shining eyes. Catra catches their mothers doing the same thing. They swallow but maintain a composed face.

“I hope the trip was well and easy for all of you,” Randor, Adora’s father, begins and Adora can see how tense the two are. Everyone greets and gets comfortable witht he typical pleasantries when Marlene, Adora’s mother clears her throat.

“Adora, we will speak first, and then Queens Cyra and Sasha will speak with Catra,” her mother tells the table and removes her crown. Adora grips Catra’s hand beneath the table. “Your father and I will be retiring.” Marlena was always great at cutting straight to the center of a conversation, it’s what made her such an efficient queen for 40 years. “We…we do not know how much time Randor has left, but we want to spend it together. I hope you can understand that we do not wish to have duties in the way of that.”

Randor nods and drinks some water to clear his throat. “You have created such a beautiful family, and I’m sorry that I raised you to feel guilty about that,” he says and Adora has to blink back tears. “But I now realize how wrong I was for that. We both are, truly. And we want to be selfish and step down, if you will let us.”

Alright, Adora is a bit bitter, but she is happy for them. All she has ever wanted was to be an upstanding Queen for when the time came. Catra rubs their thumb over the back of her hand. She knew this day was coming and had a whole speech ready, but she didn’t account for the apology. How this should have been her brother’s moment to step up, how she could have had a less strenuous life and not one where she always punished herself… she stops that train of thought.

She feels a bit disconnected from everything thanks to the shocking words that came out of her parents mouths. Apologies and kind words weren’t common in her childhood. So she decides to rip the bandage off with a quick speech and she rises to her feet. It takes everything in her to keep her voice steady.

“I accept the crown, and your apology. I vow to uphold what you all have accomplished and be the Queen my people need,” she announces to the room and she feels a shift in her magic, as if the crown is pulling to her. It feels right and it makes her uncomfortable when it shouldn’t have been hers in the first place. Next to her, Catra rubs her lower back to comfort her. “I hope you both live a long and happy retirement. This at least gives me time to prepare, and is not a sudden, abrupt circumstance. I hope you know that I happily accept this crown, even if it was meant for Adam and not just because I am She-Ra. I swear to uphold the Queen’s duties.” She sits back down and Catra is quick to hold her hand between theirs.

“Thank you, Adora, thank you,” her parents say with a grateful smile. There is so much more Adora wants to say, but she doesn’t think she can get through it without bringing up bad memories. All her life she has wanted to rule and earn the crown. In a way, she is thankful she got the crown because her parents found her fit to do so, and not because they had passed away, leaving her no choice and as if they don't care. Adora can finally see that they do.

After that, Catra's mothers turn to them.

“Catra, I’m afraid your mother and I have similar expectations,” Cyra says and removes her crown. Sasha does so as well.

“You have proven us all wrong and we are so proud of you,” Sasha says with a bit of emotion. “We understand that you are a Duke, but that was a test you exceeded at. You were the only child we both ever wanted, and that put a lot of pressure on you to prove yourself. From what we have seen, you are more than capable."

Cyra nods and says, "We want you to become the ruler of Halfmoon. You took on more duties than any Duke ever should have and you have made a mark in Halfmoon. Even when there were attempts to tarnish your reputation, you bounced back. We feel you are more than ready for this. These old bones can't go much further than a walk in the gardens anymore. Is this something you would be ready to do?"

Catra's breathing has gotten clipped but they remain stoic in front of everyone in the room. Adora squeezes their hand. Standing from their seat, Catra takes in the room. Carefully, and purposefully, they eye each person. For years, all Catra has ever wanted was to show the world what they can do, and that they aren't the immature and brash teenager they used to be and what so many people have tried to exploit them for.

"As you all know, we have 3 children now. Three kids that mean more than the world to us," they state and rub Adora's shoulder. "We want to be the best parents possible for them; and everyday we wake up fulfilling that duty. But there is one thing, one person who keeps me from doing that."

The room tenses at that and hangs on Catra's word.

"Shadow Weaver," Catra continues, "is still a threat. She has had 6 escape attempts since her attempt at the crown. She may be locked away underground, but my family is not safe until she has been dealt with."

Adora's breath catches. They have discussed this numerous times and Adora's fear has only grown that one day Shadow Weaver would escape and hurt their family. Both of them still wake up in a panic about it. But Adora cannot get behind killing Weaver, as much as Catra would like to go through with it.

Catra is talking again and Adora comes back from her panic to listen. "I don't plan on beheading her." Adora sighs gratefully at that. "Instead, I found someone who knows how to rid someone of their magic."

Looking down at Adora, Catra smiles at her and rubs her cheek before facing the crowd again.

"And when her power is removed, then I will happily become King of Halfmoon and hold dual regency with Grayskull." They look at Adora with shameful eyes. "I'm sorry I never told you, Adora. But I didn't want to give you false hope."

Adora is stunned at this solution. She didn't think they would ever come to terms with how to deal with Weaver, but this is something she can definitely get behind. Nodding with a smile, Adora urges Catra on.

“The person who will remove her power is a sorcerer that has been working on perfecting this spell for the last few years. His name is Micah, the former King of Brightmoon. We met a few years ago back when Adora first met Callan and Murphy. He learned that we were victims of Shadow Weaver and told me about what she had done to him. How difficult she is to catch and — and,” Catra gets a bit choked up at the story he told. How she manipulated him and robbed him of his whole life for her selfish need for power. “And how thankful he was to us for subduing her.”

Adora never takes her eyes off Catra. Never stops holding their hand as they speak. She is so proud of them right now.

Catra decides it’s time for finishing remarks. “Ergo, I rid Weaver of her magic, she remains in chains, and our family lives safely and without fear in these walls of what will be our two kingdoms.”

They sit back down and feel Adora press a kiss to their cheek. It is really not the time or place for this but Catra is immensely grateful. Besides, the meeting is between couples anyway and Adora and Catra will happily show off their love when both families spent a long time saying it was wrong and cruel to the people of their lands to be so selfish. Oh, how wrong they all were.

Sasha is the first to speak after a few moments of quiet. “Catra, are you sure the spell will work?”

“Yes, he has tested the spell on criminals and has found it to be fully effective. He is ready to do this whenever we are.”

Everyone nods in agreement.

"I agree with your terms, Catra," Cyra says rather proudly. "And Adora," she begins more softly. "I couldn't have asked for a better mate for my child. I know you both will serve Etheria well. I was harsh on you, in the beginning, but you have become an amazing ruler."

"Thank you, your highness," Adora tells her with a hint of emotion. "I do my best."

Randor chuckles. "You have always worked so hard. But Catra helped keep you put together. Catra, you are one of a kind. And Adora? Keep listening to your heart. It's taken you far, and will take you further."

Yeah, this is way too much emotion for one day.

With that, they discuss dates for Weaver and coronation days. Soon they all exit the meeting and head out for dinner, but Adora pulls Catra aside out of view and wraps her arms around Catra's neck.

"I love you."

Catra holds her close. “I love you, too, princess. Ready to find the kids?”

Adora beams. “I don’t want to start dinner without them.”

()()()

It’s a quick ceremony; taking away Shadow Weaver’s magic. The kids stay with Mara and Hope while Glimmer joins Catra and Adora to watch her father strip Weaver’s magic away for good.

Micah was a victim of her vile attacks when Shadow Weaver tried to eliminate him and Angella in order to steal Glimmer and siphon her for powers when she was young. He steps up to the woman’s cell.

“Shadow Weaver, today you will have all of your magical abilities removed and dispersed back into Etheria as punishment for your crimes against civilians as well as multiple kingdoms and aid for the Horde Army. You are a vile and cruel woman. Cruel enough that I and several other sorcerers worked countless hours to create this spell.” He nods to his fellow assistants who all begin summonings circles above Shadow Weaver’s head. “By the authority of the crown and justice by law, you will be punished now."

Then the light fills the room and everyone watches as flutters of magic escape the woman's body and are relinquished to the air around them. The whole time Shadow Weaver laughs.

"You can take away my magic, but you cannot take away my influence and wit. Those qualities took me much further than any spell ever could."

Catra rolls their eyes at the theatrics and rubs Adora's back when they see how dark her eyes have gotten. Dark with anger. "After this, we will never see or hear from her again, Adora."

Shallowly, Adora nods. Soon, the spell is complete and the prisoner falls into a deep sleep. Micah turns to face everyone.

"She will wake in a few hours. We will up the security here to ensure she never tries anything again. If it settles you, she always relies on her magic to escape and cause damage. I doubt she will be able to do anything now other than wallow in her cell for the rest of her life."

"Thank you," Catra tells him and shakes his hand-- a human custom for gratitude. Beside them, Adora shakes his hand as well.

“We are in your debt,” she says and Micah shakes his head.

“If it weren’t for you guys, she might still be running free. It is because of you two that she is trapped and dealing out her crimes now. I am just happy to have helped.”

Glimmer hugs her dad tight and thanks the two lovers.
“Celebration time?”

()()()

Staring into the mirror, Catra takes in their royal garments. Everything is pleated and adorned with the finest gems in Halfmoon. Adora is in the other room, waiting, most likely fidgeting, as the two await to be called into the auditorium to be crowned King and Queen. Normally their coronations are done in their own castles, but Adora and Catra couldn’t stand to be apart for it. No one was in the right place to argue with two of the world's strongest warriors on how they would make their first impressions and decided to host it in Halfmoon as a statement to the First Ones stepping out of their terrifying walls to keep others out, and stepping into Halfmoon’s more skeptical lands.

“Catra, they’re ready for you,” Scorpia alerts, popping in the room with a squeal and bright smile. Catra smiles back.

They walk out of the room and across the hall is Adora stepping out of her dressing room. She's as beautiful as ever. Impulse takes over and the two close the distance— Adora humming and Catra purring as they link fingers and kiss.

"You're glowing again," Catra points out and Adora snorts.

"I haven't been able to stop."

"My luminescent queen."

"Not helping!"

Catra can't help but snicker and the other knights waiting to lead them down the hall sigh with impatience, but fondly at the antics they have grown accustomed to.

"You ready, gorgeous?" the soon to be king asks and holds an arm out for Adora to happily take with a blush.

"Yes, handsome."

The doors open and the room vibrates with hardly contained cheers. All of their friends and family are here—-

Oh.

Adora falters in her step but Catra pushes forward with a pained, but still stoic, face. Shock fills both of their bones.

"Adam is here," Adora whispers through some emotion to her lover. Catra sucks in a quick breath. No one has seen Adam since he abandoned his castle nearly 15 years ago. Catra wants to snarl right now, but Adora is definitely about to spiral and that's what they need to prevent.

"You aren't alone in the awkward family reunion department. Every side of my family is here."

Adora bites back on a groan. "They really came today and not the wedding?"

Catra sighs, long and tired. A few more steps and then they will be at the steps that lead up to the precious king and queens of their kingdoms.

"Let's show these people what kind of power couple we really are," Catra suggests and can see Adora adjust her posture to a more regal and strong stature next to them. Extending their claws and smiling with their fangs, Catra is going to make sure everyone knows who the alpha is, who they need to respect. A challenge will always keep Adora on her toes and she begins to glow again.

They come to the base of the stairs and kneel, heads bowed and hands clasped between each other.

The rulers rise from their thrones, rapiers and medals in hand. Speeches are made and Adora has tears running down her face immediately. Catra can't blame her but they hold theirs back and remain strong, not wanting to show any break in facade for the magicats to detect and see as weakness.

Swords touch their shoulders and the two stand and have medals pinned to their garments. Adora gets her crown— designed to reflect the magicat's head adornments and shape. Catra gets their crown, and rather than Halfmoon gems, it is flourished with First One stones.

Each crown is covered in runes of one another's ancient language with words of protection and eternal prosperity for love and duty. They don't need words engraved to know everything will be perfect. Only when the two stand and face the crowd does Catra let all emotion out and holds Adora close as the kids run up to them and join in on the hug. Tears are running down their face as the room erupts with cheers. The new Queen and King look at each other and smile.

They did it.

()()()

The party lasts for hours. Adora catching up with Adam, him apologizing, and Adora getting the closure and anger out she didn't know she had within her, but also, getting her brother back. In the end, she hugs him so tightly as Adam promises to visit her. On the other side of the room Catra is praised by their half siblings and it turns out they all wanted to be a part of Catra's life, rather than be hidden because of their mothers love. And Catra couldn't agree more and is elated to have more family in their life after such a long life of loneliness and sense of unwantedness. It fills Catra with emotion to see and hear their family for the first time. Mentally, they note to change some laws in the marriage branch.

It doesn't take long for the two to find each other after being pulled apart to speak with friends and council members. The music changes as they hold one another close on the ballroom floor. Their kids pop up with laughter and squeals, climbing on their parents, pupils wide as they finally get to take in the beauty of their crowns.

Adora laughs and swings Murphy in the air as Callan and Finn wrestle Catra for their crown. Everyone in the room gives them space to own the floor as the family giggles and scuttles across the marble floor as the music matches their energy. They find glasses and raise them high in the air in a toast to family.

()()()

The night ends and the kids are settled in their rooms for the evening and the new rulers of Grayskull and Halfmoon make their way to their bedroom.

Catra sees Adora go to remove her crown but she stops.

“Something on your mind?” they ask and come up behind Adora to wrap their arms around her waist.

Slowly, Adora turns in their arms. And when Catra sees her face, she is blushing up a storm, breathing heavily.

“I… can we… Catra ,” Adora stumbles before taking a steadying breath, cupping their cheeks and leaning in to whisper in their ear. “I want to wear our crowns as we have sex.”

A purr fills the room and Catra’s tail begins to sway. “Mmmm, I like the sound of that, my Queen .” She keens are that. “I’ve been wanting to have you the moment they crowned you.”

“Me too. You look so sexy in your suit and medals. I know you’ll make such an amazing leader.”

“Keep talking to me like that and I’ll ruin this dress of yours.” Adora flushes and giggles nervously.

“Please don’t, I rather like this dress. It doesn’t pinch my waist and crush my breasts.”

“Then I think it’s time it came off.”

Adora steps back and turns around for Catra to help her untie and bring the dress down and off, back into the closet where it will remain clean and safe. She turns back around and Catra nearly collapses. Her pale skin is still lined with marks from the dress, representing the toned and strong physique beneath it. Blonde waves drape down her shoulders and back and she looks at Catra with big, blue eyes that reflect the jewels on their crown.

“Gods,” is all Catra can speak through their dry mouth. Adora smirks at their loss of words. She is beyond stunning— she is ethereal— in just her crown. A testament to her hard work.

Catra can’t wait any longer; they begin to strip, mindful of their claws as they unbutton their jacket, vest, tunic, and unzip their pants and lay them neatly on the dresser. When they face Adora again she looks like a complete love sick dork. Adora’s mouth opens several times but the only thing that comes out is a whine.

Their first time together was soft and gentle as they forged their bond together.

Now?

It is down right feral. The two have achieved what their whole life made them feel was not rightfully theirs. Catra was deemed a failure from their birth and it quickly made them bitter and developed a lack of trust for intimacy. But not with Adora. Never. In their crown, Adora can see how secure and happy and prideful Catra feels and they are magnificent.

Adora is quick and adamant to have Catra first. They let her have this, after being so patient and strong these last several hours. Catra lies back and relishes in the kisses Adora covers them in. All their life Catra has had to prove themself as something more than just a means to an end for two falsely in love rulers. Acceptance was something they had to fight for-- fight against the misconceptions and presumptions everyone already created.

“Perfect and mine. All mine,” Adora whispers against their lips.

“Yours, baby, always.”

With cherry lips, Adora kisses with pure reverence and greed. She makes Catra feel completely and utterly loved and wanted. The crown on her head speaks a million words, and they are all truths to their bond that they had to run through glass to hang on to. Nothing compares to the warmth Catra feels when Adora enters them, licking up their wetness. She groans at the taste and drinks up Catra, filling herself and absorbing their essence.

"Nothing on this planet compares to being with you," she says with shining eyes and dives back into Catra's pussy with her fingers.

Catra comes with tears in their eyes. From their feet to their crown, Adora kisses them until they are only full of pride for their accomplishments and strong will to never give up. Their wife is perfect and so sincere, and Catra needs her. Catra flips them, putting on the strap, and plans on Adora knowing exactly how important she is with every thrust.

She is wearing a crown, but Adora is quick to surrender and it only fills Catra with more power. They prepare her entrance with their fingers, fucking her with purpose. It's when Adora begins to whine that Catra removes their fingers, licks them clean, and lines up their cock.

" My mate, my Queen." Catra pushes inside.

"All yours," she moans with a wide smile.

Adora was burdened with the weight of the crown to a fate she was told would be her only purpose.

Every kiss and bite and thrust into her burning core defies all of that programming. The love Catra pumps into her reinforces every moment of their love that she was raised into feeling ashamed towards. Lying beneath Catra as they push her to the edge is her destiny. To be loved and taken care of and protected from a world that wants to turn her into something she never actually wanted.

“You are the most amazing person I have ever met,” Catra tells her as they continue to pound into her. Adora moans at the words. “This is where you are meant to be.”

Adora cries out, clutching to Catra’s back as they pick up their pace. “I only ever want to be with you,” she gasps out and comes with a high pitched wail.

Much like their wedding night, they go at it for hours. Praising each other and filling themselves with their lovers' taste and magic. Even with these crowns and new duties to their people, they have always only belonged to each other.

()()()

Their children are strong, Melog and Swift Wind are excellent companions, and the kingdoms rule with as much fear as it does with respect, loyalty, and devotion. One day the children will inherit the powers that their parents have been bestowed with. Hopefully, later rather than sooner as they enjoy this new era of peace and companionship amongst Etheria.

King Catra has made the Halfmoon kingdom stronger than it’s ever been. Despite their troops being dispersed across the planet, they are quick to repopulate and gather troops and civilians from other nations to strengthen their relationships in other lands.

Queen Adora has made Grayskull more open to other walks of life. For centuries the ways of the First Ones has remained a delicacy to keep hidden from outsiders. But she is quite persuasive and has opened the Grayskull borders to other lands for the first time in their history.

Both rulers are aware of the anxiety that comes with being so open to the world like this. Hell, they were terrified to open up to each other that one fateful night. But something extraordinary and impenetrable formed from this openness, this willingness to share and connect. It created an everlasting promise of honesty that only further increased the strength and durability of their land's walls and hardened their foundations. Trade is increased and cultures are shared. Everywhere, Halfmoon and Grayskull has become a spectacle and creation for a new status quo.

The king takes their queen’s hand and overlooks the annual summit to celebrate the end of what was the world war so many years ago. Today marks the 20 year anniversary of its end and the peace that followed. Not only is today a celebration, but is also a promise to everlasting prosperity between nations who once feared each other and the breakdown of that mistrust that festered. Below the balcony they stand on are thousands of people of every ruled land on Etheria. Above the civilians are the rulers of those lands. The sun is bright, the skies are clear, and the ground is nourished.

Finn is tasked with this year’s speech with Callan in Magicat garments on their left and Murphy in First One’s attire on their right. A combination of their parents' ancestors, Finn wears what represents unification of culture and trust. The three step forward and Finn speaks out to the crowd.

“We may be here to celebrate the end of a trifling war that has left as many scars as there are stars in the universe, but today is so much more than the damage we have been tasked with fixing. It is on days like these that we must also take the time to look forward. To see where we have grown and excelled in areas we thought we couldn’t. Some of you, like me, were born after the war. We may not understand how horrible it was, but we have seen what it takes to rebuild and overcome such a travesty. It is up to us to uphold the promises and dreams so many sacrificed and fought for. No one ever wants to fight, so let's make sure we only move onward and with positive action that ensures no one feels hopeless again. Peace is always possible, especially when we come together.”

With a soft glance behind to their mothers, Finn smiles and looks back to the crowd with a fierce, victorious grin that shows Catra’s tenacity and Adora’s eagerness. “Stronger together!” They announce it with Callan and Murphy and the crowd repeats it back tenfold.

The wives can’t contain themselves any longer. They scoop their kids up in their arms and hold them tight to their chests and kiss their ears, making the kids fake gag and giggle.

“You guys are so embarrassing!” Finn yelps but can’t stop laughing when they feel their moms tickle them.

“I am the king and can do what I want!” Catra laughs and Adora holds Callan upside down by her foot while Murphy climbs her shoulders to steal Catra’s crown.

“You can’t make the rules if you don’t have your crown!” he yells and Catra ducks out of the way and pulls Murphy into their side to noogie him.

They laugh until their stomachs ache and eat all day with the people dearest to them. The days go on, vibrant with peace knowing that they are ready for anything.

End Notes

this was insanely fun and i couldnt have done it without my muse, whom i love so much. this story was nothing with out you!

i hope everyone liked what i did with this and check out my she-ra twitter @cadecato where i posted some fan art of the fankids with finn! feel free to chat with me there.

i have several... SevErAl more fics in the works! some smutty, some teen rated, and some more for fun with enby catra! see you around lovelies

Please drop by the Archive and comment to let the creator know if you enjoyed their work!