Unexpected Heat Cycle Solution

by allthewtf

Chapter 1

Irritated at having basically been summoned by Shadow Weaver in her own castle, Angella considered her response as she moved through the halls. Sure, the woman had been helpful in ending the war against the Horde, and had even gone so far as to help Casta locate Angella out in the void and bring her home after Micah had died in the war, but still. It was irksome. She couldn't just find Angella herself? She stopped outside the door to Shadow Weaver's room and rapped her knuckles on the door, tilting her head when a seal appeared at the contact. The seal disappeared, indicating that she could enter the room. She stepped in and closed the door, watching Shadow Weaver pace at the furthest side of the room from the door.

“You really went so far as to summon me?” Angella asked, watching her pace.

“I didn't summon you, I requested you here.”

Angella rolled her eyes. “It amounts to the same thing.” She frowned. “What's wrong?”

“I need your help to get the things I need to make a potion, since I'm still forbidden to use it here, and no one changed it in the week after the war ended the guards won't allow it.” Shadow Weaver sounded frustrated, her motions were more jerky and less smooth.

“Why would you need to make a potion? What're you up to now?” Angella asked, sounding resignedly annoyed.

“I'm not up to anything!” Shadow Weaver stopped and took a deep breath. “I, you can't just trust me this once?”

“The way you're currently behaving has me a little more worried than I'm comfortable with.” Angella responded calmly.

“I went into heat.” Shadow Weaver stated. “I'm using a containment shield to keep the pheromones from leaking beyond a few feet from me, but it won't last the entire cycle, and I'd much rather try to at least dampen some of the effects. I didn't even realize I could cycle anymore. I haven't since the obtainment.”

Angella raised her eyebrows. As an alpha, she'd never noticed the other woman's scent give off anything to indicate she was an omega, so she'd assumed that like Casta, Shadow Weaver was a beta. “How long ago did it start?” She asked softly.

“Why?”
“Because most potions won't work if you take them after the cycle actually begins, or within about an hour of it. Pain killers will help, but really they only take the edge off.” Angella kept her voice soft. Micah had been an omega, so it was far from her first time dealing with one on a personal level.
“Shit.”
Angella considered their options. It occurred to her that this could actually be a good opportunity to save the other woman's life. The council of Mystacor, spear-headed by the sons and daughters of a few of the sorcerers Shadow Weaver had killed when they attacked her after the obtainment, was attempting to demand that Bright Moon hand her over to be executed for her crimes. Casta was, of course, fighting them on it. But the council could ultimately simply remove her from her place as Head Sorceress and do it anyway. If Bright Moon refused without a viable rationale, it would start another war. However, if Shadow Weaver were claimed by an alpha within the royal family, it would grant her a place as a sacrosanct omega within Bright Moon, legally. She couldn't be handed over for any reason, as Bright Moon would then consider her a protected person, owned by said alpha.
“Would you like me to seal you in and check on you every few hours to make sure you stay hydrated, or would you prefer company?” Angella asked.
Shadow Weaver gave her a startled look, finally making eye contact across the room. “You're kidding. Really, your majesty, that's not funny at the moment.”
Angella tilted her head. “I'm not, actually.”
“Why would you be interested in me? You've your pick of any omega in any allied kingdom.” Shadow Weaver looked at her like she was going senile.
“Partially because I am actually attracted to you.” At the shocked look she received she rolled her eyes. “Oh come now, you really think I didn't notice how well you and Casta have been getting along? Or the way you watch me move when you think I'm not looking?” She raised an eyebrow. “Casta and I have gotten along quite well off and on for years in that way, when the opportunity arose, by the way.” She paused, weighing her choice of words. “In addition, accepting my mark would protect you from the council of Mystacor.”

Shadow Weaver's eyes narrowed. “They want me handed over.”
“They'd like to execute you. Casta's fighting with them over it, but we both know they'll simply remove her from her title and do it anyway. Bright Moon's laws state that any omega 'owned' by an alpha within the royal family is legally sacrosanct. Thereby protecting you from Mystacor.” Angella explained.
Shadow Weaver's muscles visibly twitched, and she resumed pacing. Angella watched her, knowing that she'd stood still for too long, and her body, now becoming increasingly overwhelmed by hormones and adrenaline, had started to flex her muscles to relieve some of the pressure building inside her.
“You have roughly fifteen minutes left to give consent on this, before I won't be able to accept it anymore.” Angella told her quietly.
“What?”
“You're body will be too overwhelmed with hormones for you to actually consent. I'm not interested in rape, so once you're past that point, I'll seal the room and check on you to make sure you don't get dehydrated or hurt yourself.” Angella watched her pace while her mind ran through everything. After several minutes, she stopped and took a deep breath.
“I consent.”
Angella tilted her head, watching her silently for a long moment.
“I do have a requirement though.”
Angella smiled. “Of course you do, dear.” She watched Shadow Weaver shiver involuntarily at the way her voice had dropped a bit in tone.
“I don't want to stop being involved, occasionally, with Casta. I've come to care for her, and don't want her hurt over my accepting your mark.” Shadow Weaver stated, her voice a bit unsteady.
“Deal. Provided, of course, that I get to be involved in some of your liasons, if only to watch.” Angella responded smoothly.
Shadow Weaver nodded, then held out a hand, dispelling the containment shield keeping her pheromones locked around herself. She moved her hand to toward the door, and a stronger seal appeared, ensuring that no one, not even Glimmer, could get into the suite. As she finished the spellwork her pheromones drifted across the room to Angella, who stifled a growl almost immediately as her pupils widened in arousal. She hadn't scented an omega this delicious in some time. Micah had been wonderful, but he'd been the exception. She'd always preferred women. There was just something about them. She moved across the room and trailed her fingertips up along the omega's jawline and into her hair, smiling when she gasped at the contact, then bit her lip on a moan as the alpha's pheromones filled the air around her. Angella caught her chin between thumb and forefinger and pressed down on her lower lip.

"Let go." She demanded softly. She smiled when Shadow Weaver let go of it immediately, her breathing speeding up. "No stifling yourself." Angella ordered, rubbing the pad of her thumb over the omega's now puffy lower lip. The omega whimpered, closing her eyes instead of biting down on her lip, trying not to be completely overwhelmed immediately by Angella's pheromones and touch.

"Good girl Shadow." Angella murmured before pressing her lips to the omega's.

The kiss deepened quickly, Shadow's hands tangling in Angella's hair as she moaned softly, pressing herself against the alpha instinctively. Angella leaned back, breaking the kiss, smiling when the omega whined.

"We both have too many clothes on, dear." She murmured, stepping back and tugging off her clothing as the omega did the same. As soon as the omega was done stripping Angella was against her, pressing her backward toward the bed. Shadow's hands returned to Angella's hair, tangling at her nape and tugging. Angella kept her hands on the omega's waist, so that when her knees met the mattress she didn't collapse, the immortal catching her weight with a raised eyebrow.

"Scoot back." Angella told her, watching as the omega moved onto the mattress and scooted back until she could relax back onto the pillows. Angella followed, dropping down to press her hips against Shadow's before following the omega's tugging hands in her hair and resuming the kiss. She rocked her hips against the omega's, listening to her moan into the kiss as the alpha's cock settled against her core.

Shadow's hips tilted upward into her rocking movement, whimpering. She'd never allowed an alpha into her bed, preferring to sleep with betas and the occasional omega instead. She'd never been attracted to men, and every alpha she'd met for the majority of her life had been a combination of insufferable, stupid, and violent. She'd kept track of her cycles and used blockers to keep them from occurring while at Mystacor, and then she'd cast the obtainment, and no longer had a cycle. So Angella's size, her pheromones, the responses she elicited, all of it was overwhelming Shadow at an alarming rate. If it weren't for the intensity of her own hormones, she'd be panicking by now.
Angella kept her breathing as deep as she could, tracking the omega's scent. The heat was prevalent, but she could also smell anxiety. While the omega couldn't actually have a panic attack in this state, she could easily be traumatized, which was something Angella had no interest in. So she dragged out the kiss, keeping her hips movements lazy and slow as she wrapped her hands up under Shadow's shoulders, letting her fingers curl up and over the slope of her shoulders, restricting her movement away from Angella's hips gently.
The aching inside her was nearly burning as it tightened, creeping toward pain. She whimpered, shivering, and turned her head to break the kiss.
“Please.” Shadow whimpered, her hands flexing in Angella's hair.
“What do you need?” Angella asked, voice somewhere between a growl and a coo.
Shadow shivered under her, groaned as her hips rocked up harder. She shook her head, her eyes squeezed shut. She needed the ache to stop before it became nothing but pain.
“Stop the ache, please.” Shadow managed through gritted teeth, pressing her face against Angella's neck.
Angella shifted to support her weight with one arm, sliding her other hand down the omega's body and sliding two fingers inside her. She'd been right to check first, Shadow was tight, despite the slick now coating them both. She flexed her fingers, curling them up against the front wall inside the omega as she thrust in slowly until she found the omega's g spot. Shadow cried out, her muscles fluttering around Angella's fingers as her head dropped back against the pillows. Angella continued thrusting her fingers, curling and flexing them inside the omega, stretching her slowly as she continued to push her toward orgasm. She added a third finger, pressing in slowly as the omega hissed, her hips trembling. She paused once her fingers were buried, then flexed them before resuming her thrusts. After a few, she increased her force, bouncing Shadow on her fingers, forcing soft cries from the omega under her. She leaned down and caught a nipple between her teeth, sucking and flicking against it as she maintained her pace. Within seconds the omega came, her muscles clamping down on Angella's fingers as her hips shook. Angella tugged the nipple between her teeth, growling softly at the sensation around her fingers. Once Shadow's muscles relaxed she continued thrusting, curling her fingers up against the omega's g spot with every thrust.

Her vision was becoming blurred. Her entire body continually shivered, leaving her able to focus on nothing but the alpha pressing her into the mattress and the sensations she was causing. Shadow moved one hand from Angella's hair to her chest, her fingertips flexing even as she tried not to scratch her perfect skin. She could feel the alpha's heart beat under her palm, and it helped. She felt less lost suddenly, even as her body climbed to orgasm again.

Angella moaned softly as Shadow screamed when the orgasm flooded her senses, ignoring the fact that the omega's nails had broken skin on her chest. She waited until the omega's muscles relaxed and flexed her fingers apart gently to see how relaxed she'd become, and decided she could likely handle her alpha now. She slowly dragged her fingers out, then brought them up to her mouth to clean them off, her eyes closed as she hummed at the taste. She heard a whimper, and smiled down at the omega watching her, then trailed the one remaining finger coated in wet over the omega's lip. Shadow opened her mouth, and Angella slid the finger inside, moaning softly as the omega sucked and rolled her tongue against it. “Good girl.” She murmured, feeling the omega tremble under her in response to the praise. She slid her finger out of the omega's mouth, then kissed her softly, rocking her hips forward again. Shadow moaned, her back arching in response, her hips tilting in clear offering to the alpha above her. Angella could barely smell the anxiety anymore, but wasn't in a rush to cause it to reappear. She broke the kiss, growling softly when Shadow's hand tightened in her hair in an attempt to stop her from leaning back. Shadow stopped tugging immediately, shivering and tilting her hips a bit more in a submissive gesture.

“Check in, Shadow.” Angella ordered, watching Shadow's eyes carefully.
Shadow swallowed, focusing harder on Angella. Her first attempt to speak came out a soft moan as the alpha's cock twitched against her core, making her blush a dark rose from the sudden embarrassment. Angella chuckled, leaning down to nuzzle against Shadow's cheek.
“Try again love.” Angella told her.
“I'm not anxious, just embarrassed.” Shadow mumbled, nuzzling Angella's cheek in return.
Angella hummed. “Think you're ready then?” She nipped the skin over the omega's scent gland, in her neck just below her ear, and the omega moaned.
“Yes” Shadow groaned, her mouth reciprocating, sucking gently on Angella's neck.
Angella leaned her hips back slowly, reaching down with one hand to line herself up with her omega's core, and slowly rocked forward. The omega under her moaned, rocking up to take her, whining when she paused as the omega's muscles tightened around her cock.
Angella growled, mouth pressed to Shadow's ear. “Don't rush me, Shadow.” The omega's head turned, giving her better access to her ear as she trembled. “Good girl.” Angella murmured, pressing kisses to the shell of the omega's ear, feeling her writhe a little. She'd have to remember just how sensitive her new omega's ears were.
Shadow whimpered, her hips still rocking a little even though the alpha was holding still. Angella waited until the omega's muscles relaxed around her before rocking forward the rest of the way slowly, then holding still to allow her body to adjust.

Shadow panted, her eyes closed, barely controlling the urge to beg Angella to fuck her. The instincts in her were becoming deafening. She could feel her muscles pulling at the alpha inside her, even as her hips shook with the effort not to move. It couldn't have been even a minute before she caved, whining softly.
“Angella, please, please move.” She turned her face just enough to kiss Angella's jaw, remembering it as a nearly perfect gesture of submission she'd been taught when she presented.
Angella kissed her cheek in response to the gesture, then leaned up on her hands and rocked back slowly, watching the omega under her writhe as her hips tried to follow her alpha's. She rocked back in a little faster, bumping Shadow's cervix and forcing a soft cry from her as her head tipped back. She sped up gradually, increasing the force of her thrusts until she was properly fucking the omega under her, jolting her with her thrusts and forcing cries from her with every breath.
She'd thought Angella's fingers were overwhelming, but this, she couldn't even think. Couldn't bring herself to even care about anything but the alpha fucking her, and how she never wanted it to stop.
“Such a good omega, taking my cock so well.” Angella told her.
Shadow whined, the sound nothing but desperation.
“You want my knot?” Angella asked, smirking as she increased the force further, her pace nearly brutal.
“Yes!”
“Beg for it.” Angella growled, keeping pace and watching the omega under her flush an even deeper rose color beneath her as the orgasm approached.
“Please, Angella please, please.” Shadow didn't even care that under any other circumstances she'd hate herself for it, she begged, her voice breaking.
Angella leaned forward a bit, further tilting the angle of her omega's hips under her, and continued to pound into her until Shadow came, screaming as the orgasm overwhelmed her. Angella ground against her, using the angle and the mattress under them to drive her knot into the omega, feeling it expand the rest of the way inside her.
Shadow panted, her instincts ignoring the brief pain and rocking her hips up, taking as much of her alpha as possible as the knot expanded, tying them together. Angella moved onto her elbows and growled. The omega under her immediately turned her head, giving Angella room to mark her, whimpering nearly every breath. Angella bit down, her teeth breaking the skin as she came. Shadow cried out, her entire body shaking as she felt the alpha's cum stretching her impossibly further, her fingers digging into the skin at Angella's waist and nape.

Once she stopped cumming, Angella let go of the skin between her teeth and licked carefully over the wound. Shadow still whimpered under her, shivering.

“My good girl.” Angella murmured, kissing her ear gently. “Mine.”

Her omega nodded, then turned her head to nuzzle against her jaw, her breathing beginning to slow as exhaustion caught up with her.

Chapter 2

Shadow woke up on her side, Angella's arm around her, her face against the angel's throat. She blinked a few times, nearly panicking, as her mind caught up with her and reminded her what had happened. She took a few deep breaths to keep herself calm, listening to the other woman's, well, her new mate's, deep breathing and heart beat. She frowned a little, her mind uncertain. She'd never intended to take a mate, of any type. She'd periodically slept with a few betas, and a couple omegas over the years, but never intended to have kids, nor take a mate. She'd cast the obtainment once it had become clear that the council of Mystacor wouldn't step down off their little sanctuary to help the people when the war started, endeavoring to gain enough power to destroy the Horde in a single go. She sighed and closed her eyes. That plan had gone spectacularly off the rails almost immediately, and left her with a demonic possession to fight with for years. She'd never actually thanked Adora, for literally killing the thing inside her. Not that Adora had intended that, she'd only been intending to heal Shadow; she likely didn't even know she'd killed the demon that night. But Casta had noticed within hours, cornering her about it, and then Micah, and now, clearly, Angella. She couldn't imagine that an angel would've offered to keep her as a mate, thinking she was demonically possessed. So, now what? She was still in heat, would be for another day or so. Would Angella allow her to take contraceptives afterward? Would she require it? She did already have a grown daughter, now the Queen of their country, after all. She didn't need another child, so maybe she wouldn't actually want to go to the effort of raising one. Something in her hurt a little at the thought, making her wonder why. Did she actually, after all this time, want a child of her own? That was ridiculous. She'd taught dozens, then raised two, and babysat dozens more. She huffed a little, irritated that her mind wasn't agreeing with her emotions properly.

"You're thinking awfully hard, considering the intensity of your scent right now," Angella murmured. She'd been awake before Shadow, and had been tracking her scent to make sure that if she woke panicked, as was fairly common for an omega in heat, that her alpha could help her get it under control.

Shadow tensed, startled, then huffed a little and took a deep breath. Berating herself a bit for not realizing that Angella was awake, she answered softly, "My thoughts aren't exactly being helpful at the moment."
Angella hummed. "Not a surprise, knowing you. What's weighing on your mind at the moment?"
"It's nothing," Shadow answered immediately, unwilling to bring up any of the thoughts currently circling in her mind and have them confirmed while her emotions were still so difficult to control. It'd be easier to not be upset once her heat cycle had ended.
Angella raised an eyebrow, then rolled, putting the omega on her back under her. She calmly ignored the palms now pressing against her chest, knowing Shadow was likely a little panicked by her movement. "I can tell you're upset, and you just gave away how very important it actually is. So let's try this again, since I'd rather not bully you into telling me, and I had hoped that you wouldn't require me to break you." She watched Shadow's eyes widen a bit, pupils contracting at the threat as the hands against her chest began to tremble slightly. "I know it's common practice, among my kind, to ensure our personal omega's absolute obedience, but I rather like you as you are, and actually look forward to you occasionally pushing back a bit, instead of being ever so perfectly obedient. So, prove that I can require it of you, without breaking you. What's bothering you?"
Shadow studied Angella's eyes. Even without the demon, she could still read intent in those around her clearly, and Angella wasn't just threatening her, she was promising. She closed her eyes and took a few breaths, trying to calm.
Breaking an omega could be done a variety of ways, which was used depended on the omega's personality and what they could take physically. Generally, the end result was that all or most of the bits inside the omega that allowed them to feel safe, anchored, and stable, broke. Once they did, the alpha simply realigned those pieces of the omega's personality at the core, ensuring that those feelings were directly linked to the alpha, and only the alpha. It left the omega willing to be completely obedient and subservient, if only to feel safe. Most deity and immortal races used it as common practice, especially among the higher ranked. It allowed them to have a single person in whom to confide without ever needing to worry about their loyalty, making the long years and difficult decisions a little easier to take.

"I was considering how things might be, now." Shadow opened her eyes, making eye contact. "I'd never intended to take a mate, let alone to reproduce, which led me to wondering what your intentions are, regarding me." She answered as simply as possible, without omitting anything. She'd much rather be obedient when Angella required it, than risk being broken by the immortal.
Angella rested her hips against Shadow's, noticing the way her breath hitched just a little, and dropped to her forearms. "You mean whether or not I want another child?"
Shadow nodded a little.
Angella's eyes narrowed. "The other question is?" She'd seen it, there was at least one other concern there, regarding her intentions.
Shadow swallowed, frowning. "I don't, I hadn't thought out any other questions." She hadn't, she'd openly answered as to where her mind had gone.
"There is one there; find it, now," Angella demanded softly, her voice not quite her growl.
Shadow blinked, letting her mind run. "Are you intending to keep me under the same restrictions I was already under?"
"You mean as something of a prisoner, or in this case, a pet?"
"Yes."
"Not necessarily, no. I'd hoped you'd be obedient enough, and open enough, by the end of your cycle with me that I could trust you not to do anything that would require me to break you to ensure it. I'd much rather you have your freedom." She watched Shadow finally take a full breath under her and smiled as she raised an eyebrow. "As to a child, well, I'm not the one who would carry, am I. If you'd like to keep, after the cycle, and see if it takes, then that's your decision really, not mine."
While she'd like another child, she did acknowledge that as an alpha, it wasn't her body that would change, feel pain, and possibly die as a result. If she enjoyed her own bodily autonomy, then she had to acknowledge it in those around her.

Shadow studied Angella, surprised by her answers. She'd have expected that to be allowed her freedom, she'd have to be broken, after Angella had mentioned it. Being allowed the final decision as to a possible pregnancy wasn't something she'd expected regardless, she'd assumed that whatever Angella's preference was, that's what she'd have to go with.
"You're surprised," Angella murmured after a moment, admittedly a bit amused by Shadow's response. It was a rarity, to see the omega left silent by an answer to a question like this. Usually her snarky, sarcastic demeanor had a quip or two prepped.
"I am, yes," Shadow responded quietly, her hands dropping to the bed beside her.
"Why?" Angella shifted her hips a little to accomodate her omegas own hips flexing up under her. Likely Shadow hadn't noticed it yet, but her hips were beginning to rock upward just a bit against her alpha's. Shadow gasped softly when she moved, eyes closing for a couple seconds as her head pushed back a bit against the pillows under her at the sensations.
"I'd expected to be confined, unless you broke me, and that whatever was your preference regarding children was what would be expected of me. I didn't realize I'd be given final say," she managed after a few seconds, regaining enough control to re-establish eye contact.
Angella hummed and rocked her hips with her omega's movements, watching her pupils dilate as she whimpered. "Good girl."
Shadow panted immediately in response, brow furrowing as she tried to maintain any control at all. Her hands moved from being relaxed to clenching the bedding beneath herself. She watched Angella raise an eyebrow a little before her hips pressed harder into the rocking motion, forcing a strangled whimper from the omega under her. The move startled Shadow, and confusion flitted over her face.
"Let go of the control, Shadow," Angella murmured, her voice lower than before. "I'm aware that you feel you need it, usually, but we both know that you don't at the moment." She watched as confusion, panic, worry, and the omega's stubborn nature showed on her features briefly. Demanding the omega relinquish control periodically was something she knew she'd need to do, if she didn't want to break the omega outright. So she waited a long moment while Shadow realized her intent, and why.

Angella was trying to push her to relinquish control, and part of her became nearly homicidal at the realization. She closed her eyes to try to hide it, and think it through. It made sense, in a way. The immortal was forcing her to prove that she didn't need to be broken to be obedient and loyal. She could do that, she knew she could. Part of her even wanted to, but, the other part was making it a struggle. After several seconds of fighting with herself, she opted to go for a willing show of submission. She couldn't just let go, part of her wouldn't allow it, and she knew it, and trying to do it only to have it fail, could result in Angella choosing to break her outright rather than risk her disobedience. Especially with her track record. She opened her eyes and slowly moved her hands up to Angella's. Angella tilted her head a little, then shifted her weight and lifted one hand out of the way since the omega"s hand were now touching her wrists. Shadow laid her hand down, her wrist where Angella's hand had been, and waited. Angella frowned at her new omega.
"You can't simply let go of the control, can you," she growled. Shadow shook her head a little, not bothering to hide it. "I can't. I know you want me to, but I can't."
"So you're offering me a substitution, hoping it'll be enough."
"I can't let go of it, but I can offer it to you to take, yes."
Angella considered it, her eyes narrowing as she set her hand down slowly over Shadow's wrist. She watched the energy in the omega under her, noting that while part of her seemed completely willing, the parts of her that weren't warred with it. She shifted her weight, lifting her other hand and waiting while Shadow settled her own in place before setting her hand back down over the other wrist. Once she'd settled, she could scent panic in the omega under her. She waited while Shadow took a deep breath, then rocked her hips down against the omega's, effectively pinning hers to the bed. The omega shuddered, a soft sound leaving her before she started to pant, her hips trembling briefly. The panic faded in her scent, replaced by a more intense arousal scent. Angella's eyes widened, though she contained the impulse to laugh out of surprise. Her new omega had a rather intense subspace trigger, it seemed. No wonder part of her refused to relinquish control, if any part of her knew that the immediate result would be such a vulnerable state. She'd never actually heard of any omega being able to hit subspace so quickly, it'd appeared to be a nearly violent transition within the omega under her, the way she'd shuddered. It usually took hours, and a good deal of rough-housing and orgasms, to push an omega into subspace.

"Good girl Shadow," she cooed through her growl, letting just how pleased her omega had made her become audible as she leaned down and nipped Shadow's throat.

Shadow heard herself moan softly, but everything had gone hazy and soft, the sensations overwhelming everything once more. She was fairly certain she couldn't even speak at the moment, not that she wanted to. She felt Angella move, lining up and pushing inside her, felt her body stretch to take her alpha, and cried out as her back arched.

Angella growled softly as her omega came under her, back arching as the softest cry she'd heard yet escaped her. She waited until Shadow's muscles relaxed just enough, without letting the orgasm fade completely, then thrust forward hard, forcing the orgasm back up in intensity. Shadow screamed, writhing involuntarily. She growled and leaned down, catching the edge of her omega's ear in her teeth, and her omega's voice broke as the sensations overwhelmed her entirely. She let go with her teeth, sucking gently as she held still, letting the orgasm end and begin to fade, listening to Shadow whimper softly as her body finally let her stop writhing. She kissed her way across her omega's cheek and growled softly.

"Good girl, cumming so beautifully for me," she murmured.

Shadow opened her eyes, her breathing still ragged, as Angella leaned up a bit. Everything throbbed, her vision was blurred. She felt completely overwhelmed, but somehow still felt sure she'd die if Angella didn't knot her soon. A soft whine left her as her hips rocked up against Angella's.

Angella smiled softly, enamored with her omega being lost in subspace beneath her. She'd never actually considered how gorgeous this particular woman would be in this state, skin flushed, hair a mess, her cunt fluttering on her alpha's cock as her hips rocked up, wanting more. She wondered if Shadow actually reached perfect obedience this way, and decided to check. Like the ease with which she'd been thrown into subspace, perfect obedience without a break was rare enough to consider it impossible, but...
"Cum for me, now," she demanded softly, jolting her hips a bit against her omega's.
Shadow cried out, her eyes shutting as her back arched and her hips shook. Angella moaned as her omega's muscles literally sucked at her cock. She ground her hips against Shadow's, nearly lost in the sensation, and her knot popped home and began to swell inside her omega. She growled a moan as it caused her omega to cum even harder, the muscles around her spasming in a wave, pulling on her even harder.
"Fuck yes, such a good girl," Angella moaned. She came hard, snarling in her omega's ear as Shadow trembled under her. The pressure from her cum forced the omega to orgasm once more, her voice breaking almost immediately, before she lost consciousness.
Angella settled over her, moving her arms next to Shadows, keeping her hips in the best position possible to make sure the pressure didn't cause pain inside her and blew gently on her face. She smiled softly when Shadow's nose wrinkled a little before she took a deeper breath and her eyelids fluttered. She felt the omega tense as she came to, and kissed her cheek.
"Easy, Shadow," she murmured.
Shadow panted and blinked up at her, and her breathing slowed a bit. Her eyesight was less blurry, the haziness dissipating from her senses. Angella tilted her head slightly, seeing that Shadow was able to focus.
"How was subspace?" she asked softly.
Shadow frowned a little. "What?"
Angella smirked. "You didn't know?" When Shadow didn't respond she smiled softly. "The sensations were overwhelming, you could maybe describe it as hazy, and your vision blurred, but somehow it wasn't enough?"

"Yes."
Angella nodded a little. "You were in subspace. Your scent indicated it almost immediately once I'd pinned you."
"That's what that is?" Shadow asked, looking a bit shocked.
Angella hummed, looking amused. "You let someone else pin you and didn't realize what it was?"
Shadow looked away and grumbled. "I didn't let anyone, Casta's just sneaky."
Angella laughed and kissed her cheek. "That she is, dear, she just hides it well most of the time."
Shadow felt herself blush a little in response to Angella's laughter, though it was, admittedly, a wonderful sound. She took a deep breath, or at least tried to, and was immediately reminded why that wasn't going to happen right this minute. It felt so intense, compared to the times before. She glanced down herself and her head dropped back to the bed almost immediately.
"Easy," Angella murmured in her ear.
"How did you, fuck."
"Your fault, not warning me you'd go into subspace like that. So fucking sexy, my good girl," Angella cooed, nuzzling her cheek. She was well aware that with as aroused as she was, added to the fact that she was knotting a cycling omega, she'd cum more than usual. The result was that there was a visible swell in her omega's lower belly that would stay there until her knot went down and she was able to help her omega to alleviate the pressure.
Shadow glared at her, huffing a bit at the nuzzles. "Blaming me when I didn't even know about it," she groused.
Angella chuckled. "There's my little brat." She nipped her earlobe, enjoying the groan that escaped Shadow in response. "I figured you weren't aware, but it does explain the inability to simply give me control, if you respond so intensely." Shadow hummed thoughtfully after a few seconds, while she continued to trail kisses over her omega's cheek and ear.
"It's probably also partially due to being possessed for years," she finally answered quietly.

"True."
Shadow moved her arms, her hands tangling in Angella's hair. Her nails scraped Angella's scalp and nape, eliciting a soft groan from her, right in Shadow's ear. The sound prompted Shadow to gasp, and continue the actions that had caused it.
"Good girl," Angella cooed softly.

Chapter 3

She panted, arms trembling holding herself up. Angella leaned forward behind her and she moaned. She was beginning to wonder if her body would ever adjust to the size of the alpha that had claimed her, of if it'd always be so intense at first. Her cunt stretched, taking it as Angella pushed forward, pausing with her hips pressed against Shadow's ass. She noticed the omega's arms trembling and smiled. She laid her hands on her omega's shoulders and pushed gently.

"Down, omega," she ordered.

Shadow moved after a second, her front dropping down onto the bed, her hands by her head. Angella moved once she'd settled, leaning forward further over her, bracing her own hands next to Shadow's head on top of the omega's hands, effectively pinning her. Shadow moaned as Angella's hips ground against her own, the head of her cock pushing a bit past the omega's cervix. Normally that wouldn't ever happen, but the cycle dilated it to take as much cum as her body could hold, increasing the chance of pregnancy. Angella growled, feeling it. The instincts inside her rose sharply, making her want to be rougher with her omega in response. The urge to wreck her, to ensure that she knew without doubt to whom she belonged, was intense. She exhaled slowly, suppressing it. It was a natural response, but unreasonable. Her omega was already obedient, she already knew where and to whom she belonged. There was no reason to be rough about it. She rocked her hips slowly, listening to Shadow whimper as her hips pushed back, letting Angella fuck as deep as her body could take. The whimpers leaving the omega became more desperate as she writhed, scent indicating subspace once more.

"Such an obedient little pet for me, aren't you," she cooed.

Shadow moaned, her cunt flexing immediately at the praise as the sensations intensified. Her instincts drove her to crave the praise, in the moment. To please the alpha using her, to make sure Angella would keep her.

"Good girl, mine," Angella growled.

She nipped the ear below her mouth, tugging a little. Shadow cried out, cumming immediately, her cunt milking the cock buried inside her. Angella moaned in her ear, hips flexing, prolonging the orgasm and it's pleasure for several seconds.

"Inhale, Shadow," she growled the demand, noticing that the omega had stopped breathing from the intensity of the orgasm. She heard her gasp and struggle to inhale, sobbing as the pleasure refused to dissipate.
"Good girl, do it again."
It took a little more encouragement, but the omega managed to breathe a little better despite the intensity. Angella waited a few breaths, then slowly started to drag her hips back. Shadow moaned, her hips moving, struggling to keep her alpha as she pulled away. Angella chuckled, her voice far lower than usual, eliciting a whimper and trembling in the omega beneath her.
"You look amazing, struggling under me, Shadow. Keep doing it," she demanded softly, her voice staying low.
Shadow panted, a broken sound leaving her as her entire body shuddered. Her back arched hard, tipping her hips as far as her body could take and putting herself in the most instinctively submissive presenting position possible. The movement brought Angella back inside her a couple inches, making Angella moan aloud as the muscles around the head of her cock shivered and fluttered. She studied her omega, a bit surprised and far more aroused than she could ever recall being before. Not a single omega she'd ever fucked had ever put theirself in this position. The only one she'd made do it had needed a lot of coaxing and foreplay to willingly do it, in cycle. She leaned forward, dropping her hips back down completely, moaning through her growl as she did. She felt the head of her cock meet the inside of her omega's womb, and pushed the last inch further, forcing the omega's body to take her. She snarled possessively as broken sobs left her omega, the body under her trembling. She'd have begun to worry, if it weren't for how hard Shadow's cunt was pulling at her cock. She put her mouth next to the omega's ear, all of her weight trapping the omega under her against her hips and hands.
"So perfect, mine." She sucked at the tip of Shadow's pointed ear, moaning as she cried out, the orgasm making the omega pulse around her.

"Inhale, omega. Good girl, again." She waited while Shadow took a few breaths. "Now cum."
She repeated it, over and over, until every breath leaving the omega under her was a broken sob. Until her entire body shook and writhed and struggled beneath the alpha holding her down. Angella kept cooing, moaning, and growling in her ear the entire time. Her cock swelled further, nearly painfully hard as it forced her omega open that little bit more. She dragged back and dropped down, repeating it, keeping a fast, hard rhythm. She felt the struggling ease in her omega, felt her muscles relax a little as the movement met part of the need inside her. She counted the orgasms, and after two more she let herself stop holding back so hard. She snarled and pounded her omega's cunt a few times while her knot swelled. It tied on the third thrust, locking them together and swelling fully. She groaned and felt her omega's cunt gush, her own wet adding to how full she already felt as she came with a soft sound, shivering as her back popped from how hard it was trying to writhe under Angella.
"Fuck, so perfect." She leaned forward completely, keeping her omega arched with her position and knot. "Cum hard for me."
She heard her omega sob as her body came almost violently around her cock and followed her, coming with the sensations. She growled through her own cries and moved her hand to pull at Shadow's nape.
"Inhale, Shadow."
Shadow obeyed involuntarily, gasping and sobbing as tears left her. The intensity was at the border that turned pleasure into pain, and she couldn't control it, couldn't make it stop. Angella pressed her lips to the pointed ear beneath her and let out the softest moan Shadow had ever heard, distracting her from her panic and the blurring of pleasure into pain. Her body trembled, her breathing suddenly a little easier, despite the sobs and tears still leaving her. Angella kissed her ear.
"You're so amazing, my good girl, fuck you cum so hard for me."
She sobbed a little harder, unable to process everything.
"Easy, omega, breathe for me."
She closed her eyes tight and made herself breathe. Gradually it got easier, even as she realized just how full she was. Her cunt spasmed, disrupting her breathing with moans and broken whimpers. Her body fought her, trying to flex and writhe, struggling to move despite the weight and knot keeping her completely pinned beneath her alpha. Every involuntary struggle tightened her on Angella's knot, reinforcing that Angella was now very much in possession of her, making broken sounds leave her as something in her started to really feel safe. She gasped, eyes opening as she realized that that was the emotional pain. She hadn't felt safe in so long, and now she did. She closed her eyes again, refusing to lose enough control to cry, ignoring the tears. Her breathing slowly leveled out, and Angella's knot finally relaxed. Angella lifted up and pulled out of her with a low groan and dropped to the side of her. She groaned and let her body drop, staying on her front, twitching and whimpering as Angella's cum flooded from her cunt, relieving the pressure. She panted, then shivered and realized she was cold as Angella moved the blanket over them both and pulled Shadow onto her side. She curled around the omega, tucking Shadow close against her front and kissing the back of her neck softly.

"Sleep, love."

When she woke again her cycle felt less intense. She looked around and realized it had been more than a full day and night, so her cycle was ending on time, at least. She'd been uncertain, since she hadn't had one in years. For all she'd known the entire thing could've been completely abnormal. She stretched, having to shift a bit to do it, since Angella was wrapped around her. The angel growled softly and pulled her closer again, nuzzling against her shoulder. She relaxed, a little. Her hips had begun to rock, and when she tried to stop it the muscles had started to ache. She sighed. The cycle was tapering off, but not enough for her to relax while awake yet.
"Still making you twitchy, hmm."
"Yes." Even to herself she sounded whiney.
Angella chuckled softly. "So pouty, love."
She sighed, deciding not to argue about it. She had sounded a little pouty. She felt Angella harden against her ass and closed her mouth on the groan that rose in her throat.

"No stifling, Shadow."
Angella moved one hand up her front and caught one dark mauve nipple between her fingertips. She twisted suddenly, tugging, and a sharp cry left the omega. Shadow jerked back, writhing, barely stopping herself from trying to pull Angella's hand away. Instead her hand pressed Angella's closer, stopping some of her movement without struggling. She almost begged and caught it. A muffled whimper left her instead as she turned her face toward the bed, her breathing ragged as her hips trembled and her back flexed, tipping her ass toward Angella's hips. It'd hurt, and the arousal had spiked almost violently in response, leaving her feeling vulnerable and unstable. Angella moved her hand, letting go of the nipple and instead cupping the breast in her hand, squeezing and tugging a little more gently. She'd heard the almost beg that Shadow'd caught partway through, turning it into a muffled whimper. She focused a bit more, tracking scents as the omega calmed.
"Try again," she demanded softly.
Shadow turned her head a little, confused. "What?"
"You almost said what I wanted to hear in response to being reprimanded, love. Try again, or I'll have to continue."
She heard the omega swallow hard as she turned her face away again and flexed her fingers, pressing her nails against the breast in her hand gently. Shadow's breathing sped up, the hand over Angella's trembling noticeably.
"Please." Her voice was muffled and barely audible, but it was there.
"Please what, Shadow?"
"Please don't."
Angella hummed. "Convince me that you understand why you're being reprimanded."
"I didn't do it on purpose Angella, I promise," she murmured. She kept her eyes closed, trying not to think too much. If she did, she'd end up fighting herself.
The angel's nails pressed a little harder, making her pant. She opened her mouth, making sure she couldn't inadvertently stifle any sound that left her if Angella did something suddenly. Angella noticed, and moved her hand back, tugging at the still hardened nipple between her fingertips. Shadow whimpered, arching softly at the sensation as Angella twisted and tugged a little harder.

"Good girl," Angella cooed.
Shadow shivered, her back arching further, making her pant harder as the hormones began to overwhelm her yet again.
"Fuck," she murmured.
Angella moved onto her elbow and pulled on her shoulder, rolling her onto her back.
"What's wrong, love?"
"N..." she sighed, realizing that responding with nothing would again create a problem.
Angella's eyebrows rose, impressed a bit despite herself at how quickly Shadow was applying lessons. She was still in cycle, her hormones wrecking her ability to hide her emotions or control her own body's responses, and yet somehow still caught herself.
"I'm overwhelmed, is all. The cycle is lasting about the time it should, but it still feels like forever."
Angella waited for Shadow to open her eyes and see the soft smile on her face. She leaned down and kissed her softly.
"Good girl, mine. I'm so proud of you for catching yourself there." She bumped her nose against Shadow's gently in response to the omega's breath catching at her praise. She kissed her again, the contact just as soft. "Thank you for starting to trust me," she murmured against her omega's mouth.
Shadow's eyes widened. She stared at Angella as she leaned back from the kiss. She hadn't expected ever to hear that sentence, nor the one before it. Angella tilted her head a bit, studying her facial expressions. Shadow watched her, feeling emotionally overwhelmed. She knew Angella, she'd known her for longer than she'd known Micah. Angella and Nigella had visited Mystacor multiple times while she taught. So, how had she failed to notice so much? She shook her head and closed her eyes, taking deep breaths. She didn't need to be emotionally overwhelmed in cycle, especially not when the cycle was already so difficult.
Angella saw it, and her tone immediately gained a sharp edge.
"No, omega."
Shadow exhaled hard and shuddered involuntarily, wrecking her tiny sliver of progress and triggering her temper enough to make her snap at the alpha over her. "Damnit Angella, let me regulate it the little bit I can."

"No, Shadow. Let it process properly."
Shadow glared up at her, ignoring the tear that trailed back over her temple. "It's just overwhelm, I can process the thoughts attached later."
Angella shook her head, giving Shadow a look. "It's not just overwhelm, or you wouldn't be fighting it so hard. Either let it process, or talk to me about it, but choose one."
"You're making this hard, I can change focus for now, and work through it later when I'm calmer."
Angella raised an eyebrow. "It wasn't a suggestion, Shadow. Choose one." Her tone hardened and lowered, warning the omega.
Shadow shivered involuntarily and closed her eyes to stifle the urge to argue out of frustration. She turned her head to the side and returned to the thoughts about Angella's personality that she'd been trying to set aside. She didn't want to talk about it, so she'd process it at least enough for Angella to leave her be about it. More tears escaped, trailing over her face and onto the blankets under her.
She hadn't considered that Angella might actually care, beyond having a new omega to use. She'd assumed that Angella had truly loved Micah, and wouldn't bother to put effort into caring so much for Shadow. Accepting claim had been logical. it'd protect her from the stupidity of the council and allow Casta to keep the title that she was so proud of. Logically, she'd been trading the use of her body for safety and to help preserve Casta's happiness. She'd known that she'd likely enjoy the sex, but hadn't been so naive as to count on it. She hadn't anticipated being praised, being cuddled, being thanked. She hadn't anticipated being claimed. Most alphas claimed an omega in the same way someone might purchase a pet. Training to them meant hurting them until they changed their behaviors to what the alpha wanted. Angella wasn't doing that. The two things she was pushing thus far were specifically to encourage her omega to trust her, both with things that aroused so she could continue and with things that hurt so she could help. The little bit of pain she'd caused hadn't been upsetting, it'd been arousing. So she knew where the line was, and was seeking more to push than to hurt. She realized she was breathing hard, almost really crying, and that Angella was kissing her cheek and temple softly. She moved one hand to the back of Angella's neck to pull her down and turned her face to tuck it against her mate's neck. The scent helped a little, and she started to calm back down. After a few minutes she took a deeper breath.

"Good girl," Angella cooed, her voice soft.
She huffed softly, brushing it off as much as she could.
Angella hummed. "I know. Act like it's nothing, so it doesn't make you cry again that I'm so pleased with you processing your emotions." She kissed Shadow's ear. "But I am, very pleased with you. I'm sure to you this was a logical decision, and to me a bit as well. I didn't anticipate how beautifully you'd respond to my requirements of you, nor how quickly you'd adjust and begin to anticipate what I wanted of you." She chuckled. "I also didn't ever consider just how gorgeous you'd be in subspace under me, skin flushed and hair a mess under me. How did I not notice all of it in you when we met years ago?" She paused as Shadow's breath caught. "Maybe if I'd taken you away then, everything would've been a bit different," she murmured. Her voice took on a pained edge as Shadow struggled not to cry again. "I'm sorry I didn't, love. I should've looked closer."
Her hand slapped, lightly, against Angella's side. When she spoke her voice was rough and thick, making it audible how hard she was fighting not to cry.
"Don't be stupid. There's no point apologizing for not noticing something you'd no reason to nor responsibility for noticing."
Angella smiled a little and nipped the edge of her ear. "You did not just slap my side, omega."
"I did, and I'd do it again. Don't apologize for stupid shit," Shadow retorted stubbornly.
Angella hummed. "I think you'll have to do the extra work this time then, since you've the energy to be stubborn and ornery suddenly."
She rolled onto her back, pulling Shadow with her so the omega landed with her upper body draped over Angella's. She blinked at Angella, startled.

"Are you serious?"
"Yes." At the anxious look on her face, Angella smiled. She didn't know her omega's experience in bed yet, but that told her that her omega likely had a distinct preference for women, especially considering she'd been sleeping with Casta.
"Just explore, Shadow. The cycle will push you to do what feels good, and I'll direct as you go. Alright?" She cupped the omega's cheek in one hand, fingertips trailing over the shell of her ear, making her shiver as the sensation spiked arousal inside her.
"Explore," Shadow repeated skeptically.
Angella hummed, watching Shadow move onto her knees. "You doubt that I'll let you?"
"I'm wondering how far you'll let me get before you take over."
Angella gave her an amused look that relayed 'challenge accepted'.
She took her time, losing herself a bit in the sensations under her mouth and hands. The soft sounds leaving the angel under her lit up her nerves as she moved down her body. Tugging a nipple in her teeth made Angella arch for her, soft moans leaving her throat. Sucking made her groan, her hands tangling in dark, unruly hair. Fingertips pressing between ribs made her writhe and pant, her wings flaring out to the sides. Teeth closing around the curve of her hip made her cock twitch against her lower belly. Licking the bead of precum from her tip made a strangled moan leave her throat, which made Shadow smile a little. Licking from base to tip along the underside made her groan and clench her hands in the bedding. She took the head of her alpha's cock in her mouth, her tongue automatically flicking at the underside and Angella's hips rocked up toward her mouth. Shadow moaned immediately, feeling wet trickling out of her in response. Angella growled softly at the vibration, her hands moving to her omega's head, tangling in her hair. Shadow's hands moved to the bed next to her hips as she moved down a bit further, taking more in her mouth. Angella moaned, keeping herself from applying pressure with her hands, instead tugging at Shadow's hair, making her moan around the cock in her mouth.
"You're making me wonder how much you can handle, omega," she growled softly, watching as Shadow moved a bit further, halfway down the shaft. She felt the head of her bump the back of her omega's throat and felt her gag briefly.

"Easy, omega." She tugged a little harder.
Shadow backed up with the tug, then growled around her cock and stubbornly moved back down against the tugging. She swallowed as it reached the back of her mouth, pulling it into her throat. Startled, Angella cried out and her hips rocked up suddenly, thrusting into her omega's throat. She gritted her teeth and rocked back, holding her hips against the bed as they trembled and pulling Shadow up and off of her. The omega moved with her, pausing to lick the head of her cock instead of allowing Angella to continue to move her. When the angel groaned and her grip relaxed, she sucked around the head, flicking her tongue. Angella snarled, twitching in her mouth, and Shadow moaned, eyes closing as she writhed a little on all fours involuntarily. She let go when Angella yanked at her hair, moaning softly.
"Little shit," Angella growled. She pulled, enjoying the way the omega crawled carefully up over her. "I should flip you so your head hangs off the bed and fuck your throat until you're too hoarse to moan for me while I rail you into the mattress."
Shadow panted, blinking as her pupils dilated further, her hands clenching in the bedding beside Angella's arms suddenly. She whimpered softly, teeth closing on her lower lip as her mind pictured it.
Angella smiled a little, letting her own sense of sadism show a bit. She was seen as something divine because of her lineage, because most people didn't realize just how normal the race really was. So she hid her more...unsavory...preferences under most circumstances.
"You want that, don't you," she cooed, her voice low.
Shadow whined softly, her eyes closing as she shivered.
Angella's eyes lit up, realizing how lucky she'd gotten with her new omega's kinks. "Little masochist. You want me to use you for my own pleasure? You get off on watching me enjoy myself with your body?"
The shivering became trembling as she dropped her hips down onto Angella's and rocked against her cock, moaning aloud.
Angella moved one hand to her throat, holding it loosely.

"Answer me, omega." She rocked her hips up in tandem with Shadow's, enjoying the wet heat sliding against her cock.
Shadow focused on her eyes. "Yes."
"Yes what?"
"Yes, I get off on the image of you enjoying yourself with my body." Her voice was breathy, despite being able to speak clearly. The imagery in her mind had her ridiculously aroused, her cunt flexing on nothing as wet left her and coated her alpha beneath her.
Before she really knew what was happening she was right where Angella had threatened to put her. Her head hanging over the edge of the bed on her back.
Angella motioned with her fingers and a series of runes appeared made of light, then spun to form a circle.
"I'm using a spell on you, to allow you to breathe even with your throat full, and to inhibit your gag reflex. If you need to stop, push against my hips. Understand?" Angella asked, crouching so she could see Shadow's eyes.
Shadow looked a little surprised and eyed the spell before responding. "Yes."
"Good girl."
She stood and wrapped the hand holding the spell around her omega's throat, loosely at first, then tightening her grip for several seconds as the spell set. She smirked as her omega's hips shifted, writhing as she squeezed her throat. She loosened her grip and set the tip of her cock against her omega's lips.
"Open."
She opened her mouth, pressing her thighs together in a vain attempt to ease the ache as Angella rocked into her mouth. She moaned, eyes closing as her alpha fucked her mouth, twitching against her tongue. Her hips rocked and trembled on the bed as her clit throbbed and the ache increased.
"Look at you, trying to ignore how aroused you are so you can focus for me. Such a good little omega, aren't you," Angella cooed.
She leaned forward over Shadow and pushed one hand between her omega's thighs. Shadow's thighs opened immediately as she rocked forward harder, feeling her omega swallow just in time, and thrusting into her throat. She moaned as Shadow swallowed around her cock, her throat contracting in a wave and pulling at her length. She growled as she withdrew, watching as the hips beneath her face lifted in response. She slid two fingers inside her omega's soaked cunt and flexed up, rubbing her gspot as she continued to fuck her mouth. Shadow's hips started to shake, her moans vibrating her alpha's cock in her mouth as she sucked, swallowing around it. Angella moaned and started a slow rhythm of deeper thrusts, fucking her omega's throat. She paid attention, making sure she was breathing through her nose. Once she was sure, she leaned forward and sucked her omega's clit into her mouth. She felt Shadow scream around her cock as she came, hips rocking up against her alpha's face. Angella refused to let up until one of Shadow's now trembling hands moved from the bedding by her own hip to push against Angella's face. She let go and flicked it with her tongue as she resumed her pace. She felt her omega struggle to focus enough to swallow as she moved forward and moaned against her clit. Shadow's hips shook immediately, her body writhing in response. She leaned back, cupping her palm over her omega's clit and mound, fingers still flexing inside her hot, soaked cunt. She focused on herself, her pace speeding up a bit, looking down and moaning at the sight. It didn't take long before she hardened further, twitching nonstop. "Swallow it, omega, all of it," she growled, wrapping one hand around her throat.

She fucked forward into her throat and moaned as she came, spurting down her omega's throat repeatedly, her hips jerking against her face. She rocked back as she finished and Shadow gasped, breathing fast to catch her breath, her eyes still closed. Angella smiled, watching her. Shadow was sweating from the exertion, her skin flushed all the way to her waist. Angella's eyes traveled down her throat to her breasts, then down her abdomen to her cunt and the fingers still inside it. Angella leaned a bit and shoved her fingers knuckle deep inside her omega's cunt suddenly. Shadow cried out, arching immediately as her cunt clenched around them, reminding her of how intensely her body was responding. She'd crossed the border from pleasure into pain at some point and hadn't noticed, since she'd been so focused on how much she was enjoying what they were doing.

"So needy, hmmm?" Angella cooed.
"Pl please Angella, please."
"Please what, pet?" She slid her fingers out and moved back, then lifted the omega's head in her other hand, watching her eyes.
"Fuck, Angella don't tease, please, it hurts so much."
Angella's eyebrows rose before she lifted Shadow forward onto the bed, following her. She shoved her onto her back roughly, grabbed her hips and pulled her close, then shoved inside her in one hard thrust forward. Shadow's back arched as she moaned, her hips relaxing so quickly it almost felt like she came apart. Angella leaned forward onto her hands as the omega reached for her and Shadow's hands moved to the back of her neck and shoulders, holding on. Angella held still as soft sounds left her omega's throat, her scent thick with arousal, clear indication that she'd thrown Shadow into subspace a bit hard this time. Within seconds her omega started to move, rocking herself on her alpha's cock, her back arching a bit as soft moans and whimpers left her. Angella watched, keeping still, as her omega worked herself up and came, crying out in the softest, most feminine tone she'd ever heard escape the darker woman's throat. Nails broke the skin on the back of her neck before her omega dropped back to the bed, struggling to inhale.
"Good girl, Shadow, do it again," she demanded, her voice low.
Shadow whimpered as her hips rocked, opening her eyes and watching Angella's over her. Her cunt spasmed, pulling and clenching, making her whimper and groan. Angella smiled a little and rocked forward. Shadow whimpered, her back arching immediately as her cunt sucked at her alpha inside her. Angella moaned, but kept the pace Shadow had started. Her omega's hips resumed it within seconds. Angella continued the pace until her omega came again, then started to fuck her into the mattress. She sped up a bit with every orgasm Shadow had, until she was railing her into the bed. Her hips slapped against Shadow's, forcing cries from the omega under her.
"Cum."
Shadow's voice broke as the orgasm flooded her body, wet gushing from her cunt around Angella's cock as she continued without pause. Her pace roughened further as she snarled, chasing her own orgasm as promised. Her cock swelled further and she shoved herself as deep as she could, grinding against her omega as her knot swelled rapidly. She cried out as she came, her hips jerking Shadow's under her as her omega continued to cum, her own orgasm forcing her omega's orgasm to rise in intensity as her belly swelled. Angella blew on her face and she gasped, then sobbed, struggling to inhale.

"Breathe," Angella growled.
Shadow's hands flexed on her shoulders as she struggled to do it. It took a few seconds before she managed it well enough to really count. It didn't help that Angella was still cumming, making her swell further.
"Fuck, Angella."
Angella's hips shook a bit against Shadow's and the omega immediately moaned, head tipping back as she came again, hands clenching on Angella's shoulders as her alpha's hips jerked her own.
Angella moaned and leaned her forehead against her omega's. She focused on her own pleasure and growled softly as her cock throbbed. It felt like she came another entire round before it finally tapered off. Shadow whimpered under her, trembling. Angella opened her eyes and glanced between them, moaning softly at the sight. She'd definitely cum twice. There was no way that was only one load, her omega was so swollen with her.
"Fuck you'll be so sexy pregnant," she growled softly.
Shadow whimpered softly, wanting to huff at her and unable to do it yet. Angella kissed her forehead and settled over her on her forearms to wait out her knot. She nuzzled and left kisses over her omega's face, encouraging her to breathe. Once the knot relaxed she dragged back and watched as her cum flooded from her omega's swollen cunt. She groaned softly and heard Shadow whimper in response. She leaned back over her and smirked.
"You're too damn hot for your own good."
Shadow huffed at her, giving her a look.
"You are. My cum flooding from your cunt just makes it more intense."
Angella watched her pant, her pupils dilating immediately, and smiled. She leaned down and left soft, wet kisses on the omega's lips between statements as she continued.

"Exactly. My good girl, fucked full, cum flooding from your cunt, panting and whimpering under me. Try and tell me that's not far too hot for your own good without it sounding like absolute bullshit after I just put two loads in your womb after the one down your throat."
Shadow groaned, eyes closing as her head tipped back. She inhaled as slowly as she could before speaking. "That's not even a little bit fair of you."
Angella chuckled. "Here I thought you knew me better, dear. Neither of us play fair very often." She moved back. "Come on, let's go get cleaned up."

Chapter 4

It'd been almost two months since her heat cycle. She'd opted not to take a contraceptive, having thought it through. She did want the child, if it took. In addition it looked good, to the people of Bright Moon and as an argument against the council, if they pushed and sent a warrant.
She was leaning back against the wall, sitting on the floor next to the toilet, having just thrown up for the fourth day in a row. She groaned softly. She hadn't even eaten anything this morning, deliberately attempting to stave off enough of the nausea to avoid puking. It hadn't worked. She was pretty sure it actually made it worse, since this time she'd thrown up mostly bile, which hurt her throat more. She heard the door open and shut in the entry, and thinking it was Angella, didn't bother to move.
"Well I see this wasn't exagerrated by my niece, who was the ONLY ONE to tell me," Casta snapped from the doorway to the bathroom.
Shadow flinched a bit at her tone, too tired and upset by the nausea to hide it.
Casta frowned. She'd never actually seen Shadow flinch before. She moved over and knelt in front of her, one hand moving to the darker woman's forehead.
"Are you alright?" she asked, her tone softer. When Shadow looked a bit surprised she smiled wryly. "I'm sorry, I shouldn't have yelled. I'm sure you don't feel well right now."
Shadow blinked. She'd expected far more yelling than that. "I'm fine."
Casta gave her a look. "Then why does your voice sound like you gargled sharp pebbles. That was the shittiest lie I've ever heard you tell, idiot. Tip your head back so I can heal your throat."
She waited a few seconds while Shadow tipped her head back, wincing a bit, then cast the spell and held it against the front of her throat carefully. Once it was done she moved Shadow's hair so she could see the mark Angella had left more clearly. The mark scarred well, showing a clean bite. Angella hadn't been cruel about it, and it looked like Shadow hadn't tried to pull away, or there'd have been tearing around the mark. Widened teeth marks from digging into the bite or tearing from trying to pull away might've indicated that Shadow hadn't given consent and that a struggle had occurred. She took a deeper breath, her eyes moving to Shadow's.

"I'm sorry I didn't send word," Shadow murmured. "I knew what you were dealing with, and Angella had said you wanted to try to get them to see reason. Since I wasn't entirely sure about the pregnancy until I started throwing up a few days ago, I thought sending the information would cause more stress."
Casta sighed and looked away. "It would've, yes." She wiped a stray tear off her cheek and cleared her throat.
"She's treating you well, right? I don't need to go pick a fight with her over anything?" she asked, returning her attention to Shadow determinedly.
Shadow smirked at her protectiveness. "She's treating me better than I expected, actually."
Casta frowned, then rolled her eyes. "You made the decision logically expecting that she'd treat you like a pet or slave, like most alphas do."
"Yes. She doesn't though, as I'm sure you're aware."
"Of course. Doesn't mean I feel any less protective though."
"Good, because Shadow made her relationship with you a part of the deal, and I don't want to have to argue with you constantly when I'd much rather watch you two naked in bed," Angella responded from the doorway, her tone amused.
Casta blinked at Angella, startled. She turned to Shadow. "You, you what?"
Shadow tilted her head a little, frowning. "I didn't want to end my relationship with you to accept her mark. I've come to care about you, and I didn't want my accepting her mark to hurt you."
Casta stared at her for a few seconds as the tears started, then moved forward and pulled her into a hug. Shadow relaxed her leg so Casta could straddle her thigh, letting her be as close as possible. After several seconds Casta looked over at Angella. "Who said you get to watch?"
"That was my demand to agreeing to her terms. That I get to be involved, at least on occasion, if only to watch," Angella answered calmly, smirking a little. "I didn't think you'd mind, since you've been in bed with both of us separately."

Casta gave her a look, then leaned back and gave Shadow one. "What'd you tell her?"
"Almost nothing," Shadow answered.
Angella chuckled, which got her another look from Casta.
"She let slip after I tossed her into subspace by pinning her that she hadn't known what it was. I asked why she'd let someone else pin her if she hadn't realized what was happening, and she informed me that she didn't let you do it. You're just sneaky," Angella explained.
Casta chuckled. "I am, yes. I wanted to pin her so badly I could almost taste it, and took the opportunity once she was distracted." She looked thoughtful. "To be honest, what I wanted was to play with the ropes, but I wasn't sure how she'd respond."
"She's right here. You could quit talking about me in third person." Shadow gave her a look.
"You could use healing spells on your own damn throat when you puke," Casta retorted.
Angella moved over and crouched, her hand cupping her omega's cheek. "How many days?"
Shadow sighed and let her head relax against the wall. She hadn't told anyone, Angella included. "Four."
Angella hummed. "You said you weren't hungry this morning. That made it worse, I assume?" Micah had tried that, too.
Her omega sighed and gave her a look. "Yes. I'd hoped it might alleviate at least some of the nausea a bit, which it did. Just not enough to avoid puking."
"So you puked bile, which is worse than juice." Angella stood back up and moved to the sink, filling a small glass with water and returning holding it for her.
"I'll be back with some toast and tea," she told them both, then turned and walked out.
Casta settled next to her on the bed after bullying her into moving.
"So you're visiting because Glimmer sent word?" Shadow asked.
"Glimmer sent word over a week ago," Casta responded. "The council situation has escalated lately. A few of those goading it all on have demanded my resignation, which actually caused more generalized yelling than anything as most of the council turned on them immediately." She sighed and leaned back against the headboard. "Although now it'll all have to stop. Even the majority that're inclined to push me to demand your arrest will quiet, since none of them will deem it worth attempting to go to war against Bright Moon."

Shadow hummed noncommitally. She'd known that would be the outcome once the information was brought to the council.
There was a tap on the door and Adora walked in, closing it behind her. She stopped at the foot of the bed and tilted her head, studying Shadow silently.
"Adora," Shadow murmured.
Adora frowned. "You didn't eat this morning, and yesterday you were a little pale. Are you sick, or pregnant?" she asked.
Casta's eyebrows rose a little before she caught it. "You've become more observant."
Adora smiled a little and shrugged. "Catra bullied the apothecary herbalists weeks ago into admitting that she didn't take a contraceptive. Glimmer did a little research and came back with something like, 'unless there's a spell that's just not listed at all, she didn't use any sort of contraceptive spell'. So we've all been paying attention, since she hit six weeks about nine days ago, and usually that's about when morning sickness starts."
"I haven't done the spell to confirm it, but I assume pregnant, since the nausea is only once in the morning," Shadow answered quietly.
Adora nodded a bit. "Glimmer said the family waits until about four months to announce it to the public." She shifted her stance a bit, obviously considering something.
Casta lost patience almost immediately. "Oh out with it Adora. You know I can't stand it when you drag it out like this."
"I'm not dragging it out, I'm deciding if I wanna know." Adora frowned at her, glaring a little, then sighed. "Catra won't ask, because she's just like you, and you're both stubborn assholes," she stated irritably, returning her attention to Shadow. "Are we considering the kid our sibling or no?"
Casta inhaled slowly. She hadn't realized...she'd always assumed the girls knew that despite everything, Shadow actually did love them both. She just hadn't ever been able to show it properly.

Shadow blinked, a little startled, and studied Adora. The blonde was clearly uncomfortable, even anxious.
"I suppose that's up to you two," she answered softly.
Adora watched her closely. Since accepting Angella's mark, they'd all noticed a few things change subtly in her demeanor. Specifically in how she responded to and treated Catra. They'd butted heads less, and she'd been far slower to take the bait when Catra was snarky or defensive, even keeping her voice calm to try to alleviate whatever insecurities might've been causing the need to be defensive. It was creepy at first, and made them both very distrustful and wary. She'd always had a reason for her behaviors, and it was always manipulative. But as the weeks continued, they'd begun to wonder if, maybe, this time it wasn't.
"You're not being manipulative this time, are you," Adora murmured. Her tone caught Casta's attention, and Angella's as she walked in. There was surprise, but the pain under it hurt them both to hear.
"No, I'm not. I know why you'd thought it, over the last several weeks, and can't really blame either of you for it. So what you consider them is your decision, since I can easily assume that I earned it, at least in some small part, depending on what you decide."
She'd been aware of how her changes in behavior affected the girls. It'd been incredibly difficult to handle, but it was her own doing. So it couldn't be avoided.
Adora turned to Angella. "What'd you do to her to get her to change?" she asked calmly. "You didn't leave marks, aside from the claim, and I've a hard time believing that you'd be better at interrogation techniques than Catra is."
Angella's eyebrows nearly hit her hairline. "You assumed I beat her into obedience?"
"We didn't know what to think, except that it was creepy as fuck at first. Even Glimmer wasn't sure what you did, though she was confident you didn't resort to anything physically violent."
Angella blinked at her, then frowned, clearly upset. "Adora, you could've said something sooner. I didn't hurt her, I don't enjoy hurting anyone." She moved around and handed the bowl and mug to Casta to pass to Shadow before turning back to Adora. "I take it Glimmer brought up my family's traditional tendencies regarding their omegas."

Adora nodded.
Casta frowned. "What tendencies?"
"The royal families keep the tradition of breaking their omegas," Angella answered calmly. "I didn't break either of mine. I did warn her that if she couldn't be obedient when I did require it, that she wouldn't be leaving me a choice, but you and I both know that she has enough self-control to make herself cooperative when required."
Adora half-shrugged, acknowledging the statement.
"The only requirements I've set have been specifically regarding the way she treats herself and that she not hide anything from me," Angella answered Adora's question finally. "I haven't done anything else. But I did notice something else that I think everyone missed." She turned to Shadow. "Adora's magic killed it, didn't it." She watched Shadow's eyes widen.
"How did you know?" Shadow asked. She'd guessed that Angella had noticed, and she knew how Casta had known, so she was curious.
"Your behavior actually changed a bit, right after Adora healed you. Even your voice, in certain tones, wasn't the same," Angella answered.
"Killed what?" Adora asked.
"The demon that was summoned during the obtainment spell. It cut it's way into the body, which resulted in a constant fight between it and the original soul for control. You could hear the difference if you paid close enough attention."
Adora blinked, then glared at Shadow. "Why didn't you tell me?"
Shadow sighed. "Would you have believed me?" she asked softly.
Adora looked hurt. "I wouldn't have, if I were you. So there was no point to trying, since it's easy to assume you'd think I was manipulating you."
Adora took a deep breath, then turned and left. Shadow rubbed her forehead with one hand silently, trying to calm the stress that was now causing a headache behind her eyes.

"What was that all about?" Angella asked, settling in front of them both.
"She wanted to know if Shadow was sick or pregnant, since the girls noticed. After confirming that information she wanted to know if she and Catra were supposed to be considering the baby a sibling," Casta answered softly.
Angella frowned. "Is the answer not yes?"
"I told her it's their decision," Shadow answered. "I don't get to decide that, given the implications."
"You mean you don't think you get to tell them you consider them your daughters?" Casta asked, confused. "Except, they are. You raised them."
"Not entirely," Angella murmured. "You're leaving it to them because you've begun to remember the things the demon did when you weren't able to control it."
Shadow sighed heavily, dropping her hand and looking up at the ceiling. "Yes, though I wasn't aware that you knew of any of it."
"Only a few small things via Glimmer. Mostly observations that give away trauma responses." Angella tilted her head. "Sip the tea, dear, you're dehydrated."
"They didn't know that before though, they thought it was always one person." Casta looked at Angella, clearly upset. "Now they know that wasn't the case, that should change things a bit, shouldn't it?"
Angella shrugged a bit and Casta glared at her. "Trauma doesn't logic, Casta. It may take time for them to feel ok with trying again."

"Wait, go through that again," Glimmer demanded.
Catra got up and moved to sit on the windowsill next to Bow as Adora repeated the information.
"That's a lot to process," Bow responded calmly.
"Yeah, wait, what does that mean?" Glimmer asked, sounding upset suddenly.
"I don't, what?" Adora asked, confused.
"If they were fighting for control of the body, then, does that mean that when she'd lost for a time that she could see what it did and just couldn't make it stop?" Glimmer asked.

Adora paled. "I didn't ask."
Catra huffed, turning to look out the window.
"What was that sound for?" Glimmer asked, her tone a bit sharper.
"How do we know she's not manipulating us?" Catra asked, tone neutral. "It's what she does."
"I don't think she is," Bow answered softly. When they all looked at him he shrugged. "I've been watching, too. Her behavior has consistently changed, and there have been moments when she was interacting with you and I was off to one side. If you looked away, irritated or wary, there were a few seconds before she hid the pain and upset that I could see it clearly. I think, given what I've read of magic in the materials Glimmer's been studying, that it's possible she couldn't see the demon's actions before, but since it's death whatever it used to prevent her from accessing it's memories will have begun to fade, allowing her to see it. I think part of this is guilt for not having been able to stop it from manipulating and hurting you two. If you look at it with those observations, her telling you that what you consider the baby, and her, is your decision, it's really her telling you that she doesn't feel she has the right to say she's your mom. She feels like she failed you."

Catra couldn't sleep. Her sleep cycle was always off anyway, but now she was stressed, too. She paused, hearing footsteps in the hall ahead, which was odd. She was heading back to the suite she shared with Adora, in the family wing. This time of night, there were guards stationed at the ends of the hallway some distance away for privacy. Not right next to the suites. She crept closer, listening intently, and heard a sigh. She peered around the corner a little and relaxed. Shadow was leaning on the half-wall that was the outer wall of the hallway overlooking the bay. Catra could see the stress and upset easily enough, especially since she wasn't hiding anything, thinking she wasn't being watched. After a minute or so, she decided she may as well just get it over with, and moved out of the hallway to talk to her.
"Can't sleep?"
Shadow inhaled sharply, the closest Catra had ever seen her to jumping, and turned. "No. You neither?"

Catra tilted her head a bit. "Bow thinks you're not being manipulative, because he's managed to be observant when you weren't paying attention to his presence."
Her eyebrows rose a little. "I suppose I shouldn't be surprised."
Catra studied her for several seconds before exhaling and looking away, moving to lean against the railing with her hip. Shadow returned her attention to the bay, letting the movement of the waves calm her. It was a few minutes, before Catra spoke.
"Do you remember when we were playing in the black garnet room?" Catra asked, returning her attention to Shadow, noticing the brief tension before the other woman hid it.
"Yes."
"Did you used to, or is it new?"
"It's new. Angella asked me about it some time ago. I could remember the demon's rage, and struggling with it, but not why it was angry. It filtered through a couple weeks ago." Shadow moved one hand to her temple, rubbing for a few seconds. "None of the memories are appearing in any sort of order, so I keep struggling to try to figure out when things happened. Your age helped place that one."
Catra studied her. She hadn't lied. Catra had managed to hear the tonal differences when she'd lied, finally, during the end of the war.
"Where did I come from?"
Shadow blinked at her, surprised. "I, I don't know. If that's something in the memories, I'll tell you when it surfaces."
Catra nodded and looked out at the bay. It was a while, them both watching the water, before she spoke again.
"Were you ever going to tell us?"
"Is there any point at which you would've believed me if I had?" she asked softly.
Catra's ear twitched at the difference in her voice as she turned and frowned. Her ears moved, facing the other woman.
"Say something in that tone again," she demanded.
Shadow frowned a bit. "Am I supposed to say something specific?"
Catra's ears barely moved. "You sound completely different. What,

why?"
"Since you're aware that I'm the only one here, I didn't think it was worth the effort of continuing to maintain a voice that wasn't mine to begin with."
A few different things clicked in Catra's mind, recent memories and the glaring distinctions finally becoming obvious. Angella's influence had pushed the other woman to stop hiding the differences, if only a little at a time. She took a breath, then huffed an exhale and rolled her eyes.
"Alright, fine. The baby's a sibling, but I'm not changing diapers."
Shadow chuckled almost immediately, both startled and relieved. Catra tilted her head, smiling a little as she realized that she enjoyed the sound. Angella leaned on the doorframe silently, smiling softly at them both.

Glimmer knocked on her aunt's door first thing in the morning, then walked in without waiting for a reply. Casta gave her a look as she walked out of the bathroom, towel drying her long hair.
"Bit rude for first thing in the morning, Glimmer."
"The fuck?" Glimmer asked, holding up a document.
"I can't exactly see it."
Glimmer handed it over and waited impatiently as Casta looked over both the warrant for arrest and the letter. Casta sighed and dropped it on the bed, then turned around and walked back into her adjoining bathroom still drying her hair. Glimmer followed, irritated.
"Well?"
"I only got here yesterday. I confirmed what you'd told me, and intended to send word back to the council regarding it this morning. The letter's half-written on my desk. Since I haven't had the time to send it, you can assume that they were waiting for me to be out of the way long enough to push that nonsense through."
Glimmer growled and threw glittery sparks at the wall.
"That won't actually help, though I can sympathize," Casta responded calmly.
"They want me to hand over my mother's new omega, who's pregnant," Glimmer raged quietly.
"Yes, but they don't know about all that yet. Any omega belonging to the royal family of Bright Moon is sacrosanct. They can't actually make that demand, they just don't know it yet." Casta made eye contact with her niece in the mirror. "Go take it to Angella, she'll know how best to word a response without starting a war over it."

Glimmer eyed her carefully. "You're both calmer, and far more pissed off than I expected. How're you doing that?"
Casta sighed heavily, pausing to close her eyes and lean on the counter. "I am, actually, quite good at my job, and that requires it more often than not." She looked up. "You knew I was sleeping with Shadow?"
Glimmer shrugged, more or less confirming that she did.
"She made it part of her deal with Angella, that she not be required to break our relationship." Glimmer's eyes widened. "I didn't know it, so I was very upset, at first. It made sense, especially given, well everything. When I got here Angella told me, and Shadow answered my questions by letting me know that she'd come to care for me, and didn't want me hurt over her accepting Angella's claim." She stood up and turned, folding her arms and leaning back against the counter. "So I'm exceptionally pissed off. My council undermined my authority, overstepped their boundaries, and forwarded an arrest warrant that, without my seal, is technically not even legally binding between our countries. In addition they're targeting someone I care very much for. So I have my own letters to write, and don't have the space in my head right now to figure out yours." She tilted her head as Glimmer did. "Make more sense?"
"A lot more, actually." Glimmer sighed as she turned back to the sink and started to comb her hair to untangle it. "You don't think they'll be stupid enough to show up, do you."
Casta glanced at her in the mirror. "For their sake, I hope not. Angella's always been far more patient than she should, but no one's ever attempted to push her on that personal of a level to my knowledge. I'm fairly certain she has no patience whatsoever in that regard, and don't actually know what would happen."
Glimmer took a deep breath, turned and picked up the documents on her way out. Casta rubbed the bridge of her nose. She'd known this was possible, so she shouldn't be surprised. It wouldn't matter anyway, as Bright Moon had a far larger military, far better training, and far more resources. Mystacor's council couldn't possibly be that stupid.

Angella glanced up at Glimmer, then took the documents she was holding out. She frowned, reading them, then sighed and set them down. She'd left Shadow asleep an hour earlier and settled in the family dining room to get some paperwork done before the day began. Glimmer settled across from her with her own cup of coffee and waited.
"I can help you word the response. We need to send it right away, before someone does something stupid."
"Casta seemed to think similarly. You don't really think they'd be stupid enough to," Glimmer's question was interrupted by a loud, resonating boom, echoing down the corridor from the family's suites. They were both up and moving before either realized it. They arrived at the suites to see nothing amiss, except a shield, along the outer wall. Shadow was standing in the bedroom doorway studying it.
"Shadow."
She turned in response to the tone Angella used, her eyebrows raised. "I didn't do it."
Angella huffed, smiling a little. "I wasn't accusing you." She moved one hand to her mate's cheek gently. "Are you alright?"
"I'm fine. I was trying to figure out how that appeared." She gestured to the shield visible just beyond the parapet. "That was almost definitely the cause of the sound, but I've no idea how it got there."
"It's a preset shield on the family's suites," Angella explained, looking it over. "Micah installed it during the pregnancy with Glimmer, and I supplied most of the power for it."
"Seriously?" Glimmer asked, stepping up to the parapet. "That's amazing."
Angella hummed softly. "It's only triggered by a direct attempt to encroach on someone in the family while that person is in the suites. The one encroaching could be anywhere on castle grounds, but it effectively announces to the family that something isn't right. It'll remain up until the situation has been handled, then it'll return to it's dormant state." She turned to Shadow. "No one else was here, when it went off. Glimmer and I were at breakfast, and I saw both Adora and Catra with Bow earlier on their way to work with the guard captain on a few strategies. Casta's using her preferred suite, outside the shield's range. That means someone is targeting you, so you'll stay inside the shield, understand."

Shadow's eyes narrowed a bit, her defiant nature rising as her anger at being threatened shortened her temper. Already nauseous, again, her amount of patience was too limited to hide it. Angella's hand moved to her nape, her fingers twining through dark, unruly hair and beginning to tug in warning. Glimmer's eyebrows rose a bit as she watched the temper virtually disappear from Shadow's features, replaced by an unmistakably submissive, tired expression.
"Fine, but I want updates. I can tell something's already happened, before the shield," Shadow answered. Her voice wasn't loud, but she did manage to maintain an edge, despite the tugging pushing her to be submissive.
Glimmer huffed a soft laugh. The other two gave her curious looks, and she smiled, shaking her head.
"How you managed to hold a stubborn edge while looking that submissive, I'll never understand, but I also can't say I'm more surprised than I am amused," she told Shadow.
Shadow blushed a bit, but smirked and tilted her head as Angella chuckled.
"It's natural to her, she's always been that way," Angella answered.
"Wait, always?" Glimmer asked, immediately noticing. "How long have you two known one another?"
Shadow took a breath as Angella sighed.
"Several years longer than I knew your father." Angella watched Glimmer's eyebrows rise again. "Nigella and I visited Mystacor regularly, both to keep track of the sorcerer's progress in magical arts and to visit the hot springs. Micah was a child when I first met him, and nowhere on my radar, obviously. But Light Spinner was noticeably ahead of everyone around her in education, despite the obvious dislike of her teachers. So Nigella and I both noticed her, and, I suppose you could say, pushed a bit, about her treatment and educational opportunities." Angella shrugged a bit as both of them stared at her. "It didn't go any further than that, as she was also not an adult yet. She moved from her own education right into teaching, which is how she became your father's instructor."

"Pushed," Shadow murmured, her eyes narrowed. "You're how I suddenly ended up being given the opportunity to test on things they'd been refusing me for the year or so before that."
Angella hummed softly, smirking at her. "You set records as a result, neither of which have been equalled yet to date, despite several attempts."
Glimmer looked from one to the other. "You mean the tests for knowledge base and the practical exam that grades based on competency? Those are the two I know she has, most knowledgeable and most accomplished, based on ability, right?"
"Yes. She was so far ahead of every instructor, and the Headmaster at the time, that Nigella and I required she be allowed to take her finals a full two years ahead of schedule. When she passed those with a perfect score, we required that she be allowed the opportunity to teach those with the greatest potential." Angella shrugged at both of them. "There's no point having someone so qualified to handle something and not allowing them to make the attempt to prove theirself."
Glimmer laughed, leaning back on the railing. "Fuck."
"Fuck what?" Adora asked as she and Catra came down the hall.
"Our family and it's history. What're you two doing up here?" Glimmer asked.
"Heard there was a loud boom, came to check it out," Catra answered, tilting her head at Shadow and Angella, then at the shield. "I take it that's what did it?" she asked, pointing.
"Yeah. So Shadow's grounded to the suites for now, since it only activates if someone in our family's suites is being targeted by someone now on castle grounds, and she was the only one here at the time," Glimmer answered.
Both girls eyes narrowed and Catra's tail bristled, poofing up.
"I did notice that I haven't been given the update yet," Shadow stated calmly, watching Angella.

"The council of Mystacor sent a warrant for your arrest and a letter that, while carefully worded, is still very obnoxious. Casta had intended to send word informing them of the situational changes this morning, and someone rushed things before she could," Angella answered.
Shadow's eyes narrowed and she shook her head. "A warrant from Mystacor isn't legally enforceable without it's Headmaster's seal. Did they think you wouldn't know that? Or that Casta wouldn't be here?"
"They're sending it as a precursor to a war declaration, trying to bully Bright Moon into caving," Catra responded. "It's like diverting Adora so I could wreck part of Bright Moon's territory. If they tick Angella and Glimmer off enough, they should both be elsewhere, away from you, dealing with it. That allows whoever they sent to find you to handle things the way they want, before the rulers notice it." She glared out the window. "A useable tactic, sure, but not if people you're targeting already know about it."
Shadow smirked. "You can breathe, it's not like I'm exactly easy to get to in here."
Catra growled a little at her, Melog mrrowing to one side. Catra turned to him, her ears moving, then she nodded and he vanished.
"He's going to go scout, see if he can figure out who triggered the shield," she informed the others.
"Good plan," Glimmer agreed. She turned to Adora. "You and Bow handle the guard rotations, change things up so the timing's aren't what they usually are, and make sure ONLY the guards know about it. Have two added to the usual amount stationed on the family's suites, positioned between so it's not obvious. Catra, do what you do, just avoid being noticed if possible. We'll go find Casta and start on our end of this nonsense."

Casta stopped by the kitchens and grabbed a few things, taking from the general storage rather than accepting anything already prepared. Last thing she needed was to take something that'd been drugged or poisoned to give to Shadow. She moved down the halls with some speed, nodding to the guards as she passed through the shield and into the family's halls. She tapped on the door before going through it and closing it behind her. She set the small bag down and moved to the bathroom doorway, then knelt in front of Shadow.

"Doing alright?" she asked, moving her hand forward to heal the other woman's throat again.
Shadow avoided snapping at her by not responding right away, instead taking a few breaths to calm herself down.
"I'll take that as a no, then," Casta murmured. She moved her hand to the darker woman's cheek. "The nausea is being quite stubborn, isn't it."
Shadow sighed and grumbled a bit, rubbing her temple. "Yes."
"I brought some food with me. Tea things from my own stores, fruit, bread and cheese from the kitchens." At Shadow's look, she explained. "I didn't want to risk bringing something prepared, it'd be easier for whoever snuck onto the grounds to add something dangerous to it."
"Ah."
Casta hummed softly and stood, offering a hand to help her up. "Why don't you go get comfortable. I can make tea to soothe your stomach a bit."
While Casta returned to the main room of the suite to make tea, Shadow dropped her outer clothing in the hamper, leaving her in the lighter weight shift she had on under it. She moved out into the main room and settled on the audoman, relaxing back and taking deep breaths. Casta came back and set the mug on the small table next to her, sitting down by Shadow's feet on the audoman.
Casta hummed softly, eyes narrowing as she watched the darker woman stuff her upset.
"You shouldn't stuff it when you're upset like that, it'll only make it more intense."
Shadow huffed, glaring at her a little before closing her eyes again. "Stupid hormones."
Casta snorted. "Uh huh."
"My existence might start a war. I think I'm allowed to be upset, especially when you add the hormones to it." She responded without opening her eyes.
Casta moved, turning so that she was facing the other woman, and lifted one foot onto her lap. She worked over the muscles of her calf gently, paying close attention as it worked and Shadow began to relax a little.

"Would you prefer that I continue this, or distract you for a bit?" she asked softly after several minutes.
She didn't mind either way, but knew that Shadow's mind wasn't easily distracted once she was upset. It was part of why she'd wanted so badly to pin her when they'd had sex in the forest that night. Her instincts had known that doing it would effectively reduce her partner's stress levels, and it was what she'd wanted most at the time.
Shadow huffed softly, smirking a little. "You just want to tie me up, Casta. You're not fooling me."
Casta chuckled. "Considering I wasn't trying to fool you, that's fine."
Shadow opened her eyes just enough to see Casta, though Casta continued to work the muscles of her calves, rather than make eye contact. "I can tell how angry you are, you know," she murmured.
Casta glanced up at her, then smirked. "That just means that you know I'm offering it to distract myself, too."
Shadow hummed, then hissed as Casta found a knot in her upper calf. Casta adjusted her focus a bit, carefully coaxing the muscles to relax so she could work out the knot. The muscles tensed a bit, so she used her magic. It soothed the area and a soft, breathy sound left Shadow. Casta glanced up, surprised, and smiled.
"Better?" she asked, letting her magic drift a little. It trailed up the other woman's thigh, causing a tingling sensation as it moved.
"Bit determined aren't you," Shadow murmured.
Casta smirked as her magic moved over Shadow's inner thigh, increasing the sensation.
"If you'd rather I stop, say so," Casta responded softly, tilting her head a little as her hands began to move up, following her magic.
Shadow raised one eyebrow a little, giving her a clear look that said she'd no intention of doing that. Casta moved, one hand gliding up her thigh beneath her shift, the other bracing her weight against the audoman next to Shadow's head as she initiated a kiss. She nipped, tugging a little at the darker woman's lower lip as her hand guided her magic, making her partner moan as her lower body shivered. Casta groaned softly against her mouth as Shadow's hands tightened around her sides, then slid two fingers inside her slowly. Shadow's hips moved up against Casta's hand as a whimper left her throat.

"So wet already," Casta murmured. "Missed me, hmm?"
Shadow huffed, then moved her hands to Casta's nape and tugged her back into the kiss. Casta's fingers flexed, her fingertips easily aligning with her partner's gspot, flexing rhythmically. She continued the kiss as her fingertips made her partner's focus falter, listening to her whimper and gasp as her hips rocked. While in their previous liasons she'd managed to push Shadow to whimper, it'd been far more effort. She could tell the effect Angella was having on the omega they both favored so much, and was finding it incredibly addicting. She increased her magic a little more and Shadow cried out, her hips shivering almost nonstop as the tingling overwhelmed the nerves in her clit and gspot simultaneously.
"Cum," Casta ordered softly.
Shadow's head tilted back as her body arched, her hips shaking against Casta's hand. Casta smiled, enthralled, and maintained the rhythm and flow of magic. Shadow writhed and sobbed, her nails breaking the skin at Casta's nape.
"I didn't say you could stop yet," Casta answered softly. "Chase it. I want to watch you come undone."
Something popped a little in her energy field at the demand, and everything became hazy and soft as Shadow reached subspace suddenly. Casta's breathing became panting as she felt her partner's energy soften and swell around her, felt the cunt around her fingers do the same. She moaned, her fingertips rubbing in a circle instead of flexing. Shadow cried out immediately, dropping against the audoman, exactly as much of a whimpering, overstimulated mess as Casta wanted her to be. Her hips reached for the overstimulation, making soft cries continue to leave her throat as her hands tangled in Casta's hair a little.
"Perfect," Casta murmured. She nipped Shadow's ear, then sucked on the tip gently.
"I see you're enjoying yourselves," Angella murmured as she knelt next to them both.

Casta hummed as Shadow whimpered, making Angella smile.
"Subspace so quickly, hmmm. Good girl, Shadow," Angella cooed.
Shadow's eyes closed, the praise adding to the pleasure, heightening the subspace until everything was completely euphoric. Casta groaned softly as wet gushed from Shadow around her fingers.
"Fuck, yes. Do that again," she demanded softly.
Angella leaned up, her mouth against her omega's ear, and growled softly. The effect was instantaneous as Shadow screamed and arched up once more. Casta moaned as her body responded, an orgasm rippling through her in tandem to Shadow beneath her.
Angella leaned back and watched them both, then stood and moved around behind Casta, pulling her hips to move her back a bit before pushing gently between her shoulders.
"You may as well enjoy the overstimulation you caused. Make her cum again, while I make you cum," Angella told her, enjoying the moan that left the beta as she moved backward, moving her knees apart and bending forward.
She held Casta's hips, dragging her gown up while she watched Casta holding her omega's thighs, the beta's mouth on Shadow's cunt. The omega writhed, broken sounds leaving her throat as Casta moaned. Angella thrust forward slowly, giving Casta just enough time to adjust before fucking her properly. She kept her hips up, supporting her position so she wouldn't fall. Casta's back arched, her hips tilting perfectly, and Angella groaned as she moved harder, jolting both of them by moving Casta against Shadow. The sounds leaving them both synchronized and Angella smiled, continuing to use enough force to maintain it. Within seconds Shadow's hands were tangled in Casta's hair as her voice broke completely. Angella growled and slammed her hips forward, making Casta scream her orgasm against Shadow's cunt, forcing the omega to continue to cum as she emptied into Casta. She stayed buried, making the beta take as much of it as possible, forcing her orgasm to continue as her body swelled to accomodate the amount of cum inside her. Since she didn't knot, some of it gushed out around her, trailing down the beta's thighs, but enough stayed to have the desired effect. All three of them stayed where they were, slowly coming down from their highs. Casta moved a little, her mouth against Shadow's inner thigh as she panted and whimpered. Angella enjoyed the view, rubbing small circles over Casta's hips and ass slowly. She'd been wondering if she should offer to mark Casta as well, but had decided against it because of a combination of Casta's desire to maintain her independence, and her title and position. This made her want to offer it anyway, though. She waited a while, enjoying the cunt flexing in light spasms around her cock as all three of them came down from their highs slowly.

"Here I thought I'd come back to find Shadow tied up," she chuckled. "Too impatient to make the effort this time, hmm?"

Casta huffed, making Shadow shiver at the sensation against her inner thigh. Casta groaned softly and moved her mouth, sucking lightly, which made the omega moan and twitch.

Angella tilted her head a little, hardening as she watched the omega writhe and shiver. Casta moaned, feeling the alpha swelling and twitching inside her. She felt so full, which was a rare occurance for a beta, and it was keeping her more sensitive. Her hips raised, tilting a little and rocking back toward Angella's hips.

Angella raised an eyebrow and watched as Casta shivered, her muscles instinctively tightening and putting her in a presentation position. Not as perfect as Shadow had done in cycle, but closer to it than she'd have expected any beta to do. Betas could be amazing partners, but lacked the instincts that pushed an omega to be so submissive physically, so they didn't tend to put themselves into presentation positions. She smiled and leaned forward over Casta, one hand moving Shadow's thigh up and back with her weight to hold it there, the other wrapping around the back of Casta's neck.

"So well behaved for a beta, Casta, presenting for me. You deserve a reward, don't you." She paused as Casta panted and flexed around her at the low, growling tone in her voice. She moved her other hand to Shadow's other thigh, using her grip and weight to hold the omega open and in position for the beta between them. "There, now you can easily indulge while I rail you, making you swell with my cum as a reward."

Shadow whimpered as Casta moaned, her breath puffing over the omega's core. Angella moved, her forward thrust pushing Casta's mouth against Shadow's cunt, making her shudder and cry out softly. Shadow's thighs flexed, trembling against Angella's hands involuntarily. Angella smiled at her and leaned further, forcing her thighs to stay where she wanted them. Shadow whimpered and arched, her hands tangling in Casta's hair once more. She was so sensitive and Casta was so incredible at this anyway, that she felt like she was burning and drowning at the same time from the sensations.

Casta focused enough to push Shadow to orgasm once more, her hands holding onto the darker woman's hips and ass. Angella sped up inside her, making her writhe involuntarily as her hips tipped, rocking with the alpha's thrusts. She'd had Angella inside her before, but for some reason this time she felt so much more sensitive, she felt like she was floating.

Angella growled softly, controlling herself. Casta was more swollen than before, her cunt absolutely soaked. She almost felt like she was fucking a cycling omega, from the soft, silken heat and amount of wet gushing from her as Angella continued to move. She felt Casta cum, heard it as she moved her mouth to the side and screamed, her hands clenching so hard her nails ripped the fabric of the audoman. Angella moaned, caught off guard as Casta's cunt pulled at her hard enough to make her follow, slamming her hips into Casta's ass. Her knot inflated inside the beta under her, something she'd never done to Casta before, deliberately. Casta shrieked and struggled, panicked by the sensation.

"An, Angella!"

"Easy," Angella snarled, her hands moving to Casta's nape and shoulder, forcing her against the audoman. "Stop, Casta, relax."

Shadow sat up, focusing as much as the euphoria of subspace would let her. Realizing what was happening, she moved her hands through Casta's hair possessively, tugging sharply at her nape when Angella moved her hand to give her room. The familiar pattern worked like a charm and Casta moaned, the sound one of the most erotic Angella had heard from her. Shadow smiled softly and leaned down to kiss the beta's forehead.

"So beautiful, Casta," she murmured. "Relax for me, focus on her twitching inside you." Casta panted, eyes squeezed shut. "You're milking her, aren't you. So obedient, wanting her so badly."

Casta whimpered, overwhelmed by Shadow's ability to make her respond with nothing more than her voice.
Angella relaxed, reassured that Casta wouldn't panic again and hurt them both in her attempt to struggle. She leaned forward enough to kiss Shadow's cheek, then rocked against the beta under her, focusing on herself, and moaned as she came.
Shadow tightened her hold a little as Angella came, keeping Casta in a submissive state enough to stop her from panicking. She cupped Casta's cheek in her other hand, her thumb trailing back and forth slowly.
"You look amazing, Casta," she murmured. "So erotic, watching you take her like this."
Casta sobbed, the pressure forcing her into orgasm even with the panic attempting to rise against Shadow's hold of her. She felt Shadow's lips on her forehead and the panic dissipated, the arousal overwhelming it.
It took a few minutes for everyone to calm again, and Shadow finally relaxed her grip, letting Casta drop her head onto the audoman. Casta panted, putting an obscene amount of effort into not struggling. Being knotted, tied to the alpha over her, was an unnerving sensation. She knew not to struggle, not to move. If she did, she could do serious, even fatal damage to them both like this.
"Good girl, Casta," Angella cooed. "I can feel you controlling the urge to struggle, and appreciate it."
Casta huffed. "Fucking warn me next time. Asshat." She tried to sound irritated, and failed. Her voice came out far too breathy.
Shadow smiled softly and ran her hand through Casta's hair. "It's unnerving you?" she asked.
Casta swallowed, clenching her jaw and taking a breath before giving up. "Yes, it is."
Shadow hummed, glancing up at Angella, then back to Casta. "Does it help to know that the sight alone is making me ache?"
Casta shivered immediately, stifling the groan that tried to rise. "Fuck, Shadow that's completely unfair."
Angella chuckled.

"No less true, even if it is unfair," Shadow murmured. "Try to relax, focus on my hands in your hair and on your skin." She kept her touch gentle and steady, and watched as Casta's breathing leveled out in seconds. "There, that's better, isn't it. Focus on me, Cas, just on me."
Angella smiled as Shadow's voice lulled the beta between them. A few minutes later her knot relaxed and she moved back, dragging slowly out. Casta whimpered, pressing her face into the audoman under her, panting. Angella kept her hands on Casta's hips and stood, looking down just in time to see her own cum flooding out of the beta's swollen, reddened cunt. She groaned at the sight.
"Fuck, Casta. You're so swollen," Angella groaned, her hand moving to tease, trailing down to her clit and rubbing slowly.
"Ah, fu, fuck," Casta writhed, whimpering.
Shadow tugged at her hair, lifting her onto all fours. She pulled a little more, encouraging Casta to move up over her as she reclined back. Casta followed, whimpering and shivering. She relaxed against Shadow, Angella following and continuing without pause. Shadow nipped and sucked at Casta's neck, her hands roaming slowly. Within seconds Casta cried out, her body jerking against Shadow's as Angella pushed her to orgasm.
"Perfect." Angella smiled, watching as the beta came once more. Casta writhed, one hand moving down to push Angella's away.
"Ca, can't, stop."
Angella hummed and moved her hand to Casta's ass, rubbing gentle circles. "Breathe, Casta."
Casta whimpered, nearly sobbing from how overwhelmed she felt, and let her head rest against the audoman next to Shadow's. Within seconds she realized she was feeling a vibration coming from the omega, but it wasn't magic. She blinked, trying to figure it out, and realized it was purring. Purring. Omegas could purr, she'd read, but it was rare that it actually happened. She'd never heard one do it before. She huffed a soft laugh, still shivering, and felt Shadow tilt her head a little.
"Casta?" Angella asked.
"She's purring," Casta answered.
Angella's eyes widened. "She is? No fair! I wanna hear!"

Shadow blinked, startled, as Angella moved forward over Casta and nuzzled herself close to both their sides.
"Oh my gosh she is!" Angella murmured, voice muffled.
Shadow sighed and rolled her eyes. "I don't know what you're both on about."
"You're purring!" Angella stated, smiling at her. "I didn't know you could purr! It's amazing, it's such a resonant sound."
Shadow blinked at her, realizing they were serious. "I'm, really?"
"It's so soothing," Casta murmured, relaxing. "I'm never moving from here, you're stuck with me."
Shadow huffed at her. "I'll lick your ear," she threatened.
"Will not," Casta argued.
"Will too."
"Children," Angella threatened them both. "Stop that shit, neither of you is my kid." She slapped Casta's hip lightly and heard her laugh softly. "Come on, let's go get showered off, both of you."

Catra padded the halls with Melog, staying invisible and moving silently. They'd been at this for a few days now, watching everyone and everything. They still hadn't found whoever had set off the shield, but it was still up, which meant whoever it was hadn't left. She paused in the doorway to the kitchen and looked around. There were a few people there, but one wasn't dressed like kitchen staff. She watched while he joked with the cook and maid, then dumped a vial into a small pot on the stove the second their backs were turned. The empty vial went right back into his pocket, and he continued to joke and banter as though nothing had happened. She tapped Melog, and they left the area.
"You follow him, don't let him see you. If he tries to leave grounds, bring him in. Kill him if you have to, but don't let him leave. I'll let everyone else know, once I've warned the kitchen staff," she murmured.
He remained invisible, allowing her to become visible as she walked away from him. She waited in the dining hall, leaning by a window and looking out over the grounds calmly until he'd left, then warned the cook and maid. She ordered them to set the pot aside and not allow anyone to touch it until Casta had seen to it to determine what exactly he'd dumped into it.

"Where?" Glimmer demanded.
"Melog's following him, and won't let him leave the grounds," Catra answered.
"Then we'll find him, now." Angella stood up, her wings flaring open. "You track Melog, and signal when you find him. I'll stay above, to make sure he can't run."

It didn't take long to find him, he hadn't gone far. He didn't have any reason to flee, thinking he had an hour or more before his target would be poisoned. He likely also knew that running would look suspicious, and that it was better to go slow and stay calm. Catra gave the signal and watched as the guards closed in on him. He started a spell and Angella dropped from above, slamming him into the stone path. Catra's eyebrows rose in surprise as she heard bone break and a few of the guards backstepped. One even turned and yanked his helmet off to puke. Catra smirked. Poor guy had probably never seen battle, let alone heard bones break like that before.

"Well no wonder Aunt Casta hoped no one would be this stupid," Glimmer muttered next to her.
"No shit," Adora muttered back.
Glimmer sighed and folded her arms. "She's damn well helping me with the paperwork for that. I'm not attempting to explain to Mystacor's council why their associate has several broken bones, if he survives."
Catra chuckled. "Definitely 'if'. You forgot that we're still gonna wanna know who sent him."
Glimmer walked out toward the guards, muttering under her breath. Adora turned to Catra, who shrugged.
"Ok, well, I'll go tell Casta and Shadow, since I'm not needed here."
Catra nodded. "I'll let you know if anything changes."

Adora tapped on the door and waited.
"I thought you were out trying to find whoever triggered the shield?" Casta asked her, stopping next to her in front of the door.
"We got him, I was coming to tell you both."
The door opened and Shadow raised an eyebrow at them both, then walked back into the room, leaving the door open. Casta closed it behind them, then turned to Adora.
"Well?" she asked.
"Catra and Melog watched him poison the broth the cook was making for her." She gestured to Shadow, who was still having some trouble keeping food down, and had requested broth once a day for the time being as a result. "Melog trailed him so we could find him more easily, and Catra told the rest of us after alerting the cook so that the pot could be sealed and set aside, so you can test it to see what he did." Adora looked a bit frazzled, and ran one hand over her hair. "He tried to use a spell when the guards closed in and uh, Angella didn't seem likely to do, well that, before now."
Casta sighed heavily as Shadow tilted her head.

"You mean she killed him?" Casta asked.
"Well, he wasn't dead when I left. She dropped out of the sky on him, we could hear bone break from the parapet," Adora answered.
Shadow chuckled and sat down. "I'm not surprised."
Casta shook her head. "I hope Glimmer makes her do the paperwork for it. She could've stopped him without maiming him."
"Why am I the only one surprised?" Adora asked.
Casta gave her a sympathetic look. "Because she's careful not to allow most people to see that side of her nature. She does have a nasty bit to her nature, and can be quite violent, she's just very controlled, particularly for an alpha of an immortal race. Most of them don't bother much with her level of control, since they're seen as 'greater than' by most mortal races, they get away with whatever they want most of the time. I've never seen the results of anyone pushing her so far in a personal way like this before, so while I wasn't sure what she'd do, I did know it'd be past what she normally allows people to see of her."
Adora frowned and folded her arms. "That makes sense, I guess. I'll go check in then, and let you know if we get any information from him."
Shadow nodded and waited while she left before tilting her head at Casta. "Any plans for what you'll do to whoever sent him?"
"Aside from removing them from any position of authority or instruction whatsoever permanently? Hold a hearing to decide whether or not their actions require further discipline, since it'll give me full authority to go through their correspondence, records, and personal items in case there are more involved," she answered almost absentmindedly as she sat down.
"Are you remembering to factor in that Angella or Glimmer may require a hearing in Bright Moon as well for attempted murder?"
"No, I wasn't. Good point." She sighed and leaned back on her hands against the bed, staring at the ceiling. "Then, likely, agreeing to hand them over. I should go check what the poison actually was."
"Or you could bring it here, since I can't leave the shields. That way I can witness, if not assist."
"You doubt my ability to cast a simple toxin decipher?" Casta asked, giving her a look.

"No. I'm taking into consideration that if this was tasked by a council member that they may have taken into account your ability, and taken steps to hide the toxins appropriately." Shadow answered calmly. "Do you know how to cast those combined spells so that it doesn't destroy the contents?"
Casta's eyes narrowed. "I don't like that you're right here. Fine, I'll bring it back."
It didn't take long to ascertain that it'd been tasked by a council member. The decipher read nothing at all in the broth. Casta added another layer of shielding, just in case, and nodded to Shadow. She watched the darker woman focus, creating spells that layered, then linked, and adjusted them carefully to make sure they formed correctly. When they were released they lit up in a particular pattern, then disappeared. A few seconds later another pattern appeared above the pot, revealing the toxic contents.

Casta was almost out of the shower two months later when she got nauseous, again. She muttered to herself, irritated. She was sure she wasn't getting sick, this was just too weird. And she couldn't be pregnant, she hadn't slept with a man in... Her eyes widened. Angella, she'd slept with Angella and Shadow. Had she used the contraceptive afterward? She couldn't remember.
"Oh no, no, no."
She rested her forehead on the tiles under the water. She couldn't be pregnant, she couldn't. Angella hadn't even asked to claim, and she hadn't asked her to, either. She knew if she was, Angella would feel that she had to claim, it was a cultural thing with the angelic race. If one of them sired offspring, they claimed the birth parent. It was a responsibility to them, it ensured that the birth parent knew they were safe and would be taken care of, as would the child. She couldn't ask Angella to do that. Besides that, she was still Head Sorceress.
"Fuck."
Shadow tilted her head at the very intense cuss from Casta and padded into the en suite bathroom. Casta had only just come back to Bright Moon after being gone for almost three full weeks after dealing with the assassination attempt. Instead of going to the suite she usually used, she'd come straight to theirs, and gotten in the shower after a brief hello. Shadow padded over and cracked the shower door, concerned. She eyed the beta leaning against the wall for a few seconds.

"Are you alright?" she asked, watching Casta jump. Her tone changed as her concern heightened. "Casta. What's wrong."
"Nothing! I'm fine, why're you, what the fuck, Shadow?"
Shadow's eyebrows rose. "You don't jump like that, Cas. What's wrong?"
Casta shut off the water and pulled her towel down. "Nothing, Shadow. I'm fine."
Shadow's eyes narrowed and she didn't move, barring Casta's way out of the shower. "No, you're not. Don't lie to me, Casta, you know you're horrible at it."
"Move."
"No."
Casta took a breath. "Shadow, for fuck's sake!" She finally made eye contact with the omega and saw the hurt in her green eyes. She reacted so intensely, so quickly, she turned around.
Shadow frowned harder. Casta hadn't turned fast enough, she'd seen the tears. She stepped into the shower and wrapped both arms around the beta's waist, pulling her close.
"Talk to me, Cas. What's wrong?"
"Nothing's wrong, I'm just tired." She sighed. "I'm sorry I snapped at you."
"Cas, you're a shit liar. Please talk to me? I might be able to help."
Casta huffed and leaned her head back against Shadow's shoulder. Several seconds passed. "Can you remember, did I take the contraceptive after?"
Shadow blinked and trailed her mind back through her memories. "I don't recall seeing you do it. You were fertile?"
"I don't know. I've been nauseous the last few days, on and off, and I don't think I'm sick. I was wondering what it was, maybe stress or nerves, because I hadn't been with a man, and remembered, Angella knotted me."
"She came in you twice, actually."
Casta huffed, breathing harder as her head moved forward again.

"Fuck, what am I gonna do?"
Shadow frowned a little. "Well, first you dry off. I can do the spell to check for a pregnancy, and we'll go from there. Alright?"
She stepped back, letting Casta dry off, then following her into the main room of the suite. Once Casta was laying down, she focused and created the spell. She turned it, settling it on the other woman's lower belly, and released it. It immediately lit up brightly, confirming that Casta was pregnant. Angella paused, having just opened the door in time to see it light up. She took a breath and calmly closed the door, which both other women heard. Shadow looked over as Casta moved to get up.
"Don't, Casta," Angella ordered calmly, though her tone was sharp.
Casta froze, then growled and stood. "Knock it off, Angella, I'm in no mood for you to pull that tone."
Angella looked a little amused, then used her wings. The added speed landed her in front of the beta, startling her and making her stumble back onto her butt on the bed.
"Damnit Angella!"
"Easy, Casta. Don't act like I didn't see the spell light up. There're only three that commonly do that, and the only one that you'd use on a woman's abdomen is the one checking for a pregnancy. Did you sleep with anyone else?"
Casta inhaled sharply. "Why would you ask that? You just assume I sleep around?"
Shadow took a deep breath, her mind speeding ahead, trying to determine exactly why Casta was being so reactive, aside from hormones, of course.
Angella frowned. "No, I don't. You know why I'm asking."
Casta attempted to glare at her, though she knew her eyes were too wide to accomplish it. "Don't you dare."
"You don't want my claim?" Angella asked softly, watching Casta closely.
"I don't need you to claim me as a responsibility or duty, Angella, fuck off," she snapped.
She stood abruptly, anger and upset combining to make her fail to control herself enough, putting herself in Angella's space as she did. Otherwise she'd never have worded it so callously, knowing it'd try the other woman's temper.

Angella's eyes widened. "A, fuck off yourself!" she growled, shoving the beta back against the bed and kneeling over her. "You think I feel so little for you I'd claim out of duty?"
"You've no other reason to do it!" Casta growled back at her, scooting away a bit.
Angella snarled at her and grabbed her thighs, pulling her closer again and leaning down over her. "I've been considering it for over a month, you ass! I didn't ask because I thought you'd feel it was an encroachment on your independence!"
Casta panted, her hands pushing up against Angella's chest as the immortal leaned down over her, clearly pissed. Angella's eyes and skin glowed with her power, a solid indication that she'd pushed her too far.
Angella took a few breaths to calm her temper, watching Casta's dark caramel eyes. "I love you, stupid. You're important to me and you know it."
Casta huffed, irritated that she was beginning to cry. "That's got nothing to do with it."
Angella snorted, growling once more. "It has everything to do with it."
Shadow exhaled slowly. "You're not a duty, nor a burden."
Angella glanced at her, then watched Casta. She'd squeezed her eyelids shut and was trying to slow her breathing.
"I considered asking you to take mark while you were between us that afternoon," Angella murmured. She watched Casta's breath hitch. "There's plenty of validity to doing it, especially given both of our positions. It's easily the most perfect form of alliegance bond possible between Mystacor and Bright Moon. It allows you to more easily maintain your title, as it's far more difficult for your council to displace you when you're the one tied to Bright Moon in securing the alliegance. It also keeps you with us, where you really want to be, far more often. I just wasn't sure it was what you wanted, and didn't want to push you."
Shadow waited silently, only joining them on the bed once Casta began to cry. She laid down on her side next to Casta, tugging her close when she rolled over and buried her face in Shadow's shirt.
Shadow kept her breathing level and as deep as she could, focusing on keeping her energy field relaxed and soothing. She wasn't particularly great at this, it wasn't something she ever really worked on, but she did know the premise and basics well enough that it should work. Healing magic just hadn't ever been her main focus, she'd applied herself to illusions and vibrational frequencies. The basis of healing magic was, however, very similar. Within a few minutes Casta began to calm and tipped her face up a bit, making it easier to breathe as her face was against Shadow's throat instead of her shirt.

"You're remarkably good at that," Casta murmured. Her rather extensive experience as Head Sorceress meant that even upset and crying, she'd been easily able to recognize it as Shadow's energy field began to actively soothe her own.
Shadow hummed softly, kissing Casta's forehead as Angella settled behind Casta. She scooted close, her hand resting on Shadow's hip, and waited silently.
After several more minutes, Casta took a somewhat ragged breath. Angella wasn't wrong, about any of the political advantages, or that it would allow her to stay in Bright Moon the vast majority of the time. She'd never intended to have kids, never really wanted to. The pregnancy itself was early, she could still miscarry, could cause a miscarriage and abort it. If she accepted claim, though, would Angella require she shield and protect the pregnancy, rather than allowing her to terminate it? Did she really want to accept claim? Or abort? She didn't know what she wanted, in any direction, right at the moment. She felt so tired and wrung out.
Angella looked over at Shadow as Casta drifted off between them. The omega was still focused, her eyes closed.
"Awful focused, for simple vibrational realignment," she murmured.
Shadow smirked. "You really think that's all I'm doing, hmm."
Angella's eyes narrowed a bit as she focused, paying more attention. As an immortal, she could see the flow of energy just as she could magic, it simply required her focus. Shadow's magic wasn't just maintaining a soothing frequency, it was healing Casta's body, alleviating her nausea and slightly increasing the flow of blood to her head, relieving the headache that had been building as she cried.

"I didn't know you'd bothered to study healing magics."
"Only enough to understand and apply the basics. I didn't feel that I'd need anything more, and for this, at least, the basics are enough," she murmured.
There was a tap on the door and Angella carefully got up. She opened it and stepped out, rather than inviting Glimmer and Adora in, closing it behind her quietly. Glimmer frowned immediately.
"What's wrong," she demanded, though her volume was quiet.
"Casta was upset. Shadow calmed her, and she dozed off. I just don't want to wake her up, since she seemed really tired," she answered calmly, keeping her expression open.
"Why was she upset? What'd you do?" Glimmer asked, eyes narrowing.
Angella sighed at her, giving her an annoyed look. "You can ask her later. What did you need? I thought that meeting was the last bullshit for today."
Adora's eyebrows rose. Angella didn't usually swear so casually.
"Alright, nope. You're hiding something." Glimmer set her hands on her hips, staring her mother down. "What happened. I will wake her up if you won't answer me."
"You'll be risking Shadow's temper, doing it. She just used a fair bit of skill to calm her."
"Do I look scared of your omega?"
"Ok, let's all take a breath," Adora interjected, her hands up between them. "Casta's safe here, remember. At most, something upset her, and it can't hurt her at the moment, ok?" Glimmer glared at her. "I know, you're protective of your aunt, despite how annoying she can be to you when she's excited and bouncy and stuff. Just take a breath."
Glimmer did it, exhaling it as a low growl as she paced away a few steps, folding her arms. After several seconds she turned back around and leaned back against the railing, waiting for them to join her further away from the door. Once they'd both moved over, she glanced down the hall, making sure no one was within range.
"Something's off, about the asshat that Casta found to have arranged the poisoning. I had Catra do some digging, and he has no connections whatsoever that she could find to anywhere that has that plant readily available. There are two others that do, and both are on Casta's sitting council in Mystacor," Glimmer answered quietly. "I don't think it's over, and I don't think she's actually safe there anymore."

Angella's wings flared a bit, then settled as she thought. There were two who'd been on the council for some time, since the beginning of the war, and both of them were from the eastern regions, where the plants were originally from. She considered it, frowning slightly. Neither of them was actually loyal to Casta, as a few of the others openly were. It was possible that they'd seek to remove her from her title to continue their agenda without so much interference. The question was, what was the agenda? They now knew that getting to Shadow was far more trouble than it was likely worth. She frowned and turned to look out over the bay, letting her mind follow the histories of each individual insofar as she knew them. The trade routes. Both families had been hit hard by the trade routes falling when the war started, and both had immediately sought to reopen those routes once it ended. However, Casta had flatly refused to do it without proper research, investigations, negotiations, and regulatory procedural requirements. All the standards typically followed when opening trades with another territory to ensure an open, cooperative agreement that would benefit both parties involved. She turned back to Glimmer.
"You're likely right. I'll speak to her when she wakes up about it."
"What did you know?" Adora asked.
"I assume you mean Kriller and Roynan?" Angella asked.
Glimmer nodded.
"Both are from the eastern lands, those outside the five kingdoms. That area had thriving ports, trading towns, and trade routes before the war. Their families profited nicely from all of it, even running a fair bit of it, particularly the routes. They immediately sought to reopen all of it after the war ended, via Mystacor, and Casta required all of the standard procedures be followed and met to do it. I recall them being indignant, and the families have dragged their feet, so none of it is open, still. It's possible that killing Shadow was a side quest, so to speak, and that the trade routes are the actual focus. They'd have known that Shadow and Casta were involved, so eliminating Shadow would've been a setback, knocking Casta off balance, possibly even out of her title, allowing them to move it all forward without her interference," Angella explained.

Adora took a breath as Glimmer growled again, then rubbed her forehead.
"Have Catra stop digging, in case. We don't want anyone to notice and realize that we know," Angella told her. "Casta can easily fill in quite a bit of relevant information about them, if we need it. In the meantime, we want them unaware that we know."
Glimmer nodded to Adora, who walked away to handle it. She turned to her mother again. "Why was she upset?"
Angella sighed at her. "It's a private matter, even to her niece. So you'll have to speak with her about it yourself. I won't go telling her secrets like that."
"Fine. Let me know when she's up, then."

Casta woke up with a jerk, startling both herself and Shadow, who was still holding her. She panted, closing her eyes and trying to relax. Shadow didn't say anything, instead studying her carefully. She'd panicked, it appeared, but she'd made no sound in her sleep, and hadn't moved, either. It was a bit odd, to startle so hard without giving any indication of it in the moments beforehand.
"Sorry. I'm not sure what that was."
Shadow raised an eyebrow at her, not entirely buying it. "Take a guess."
Casta snorted, glaring at her, and got a benign look in response.
"I'm really not sure, jerk."
"Alright. Feeling a little better otherwise?"
"I think so? Wait, where's Angella? How long was I out?"
"No more than a half an hour or so. She stepped out, someone knocked," Shadow answered calmly.
Casta frowned, sitting up. "She couldn't have had another meeting this late in the day."
"Not likely, no, but occasionally Glimmer does want to talk to her privately. It's not unusual for her to step out in the evening for a bit." Shadow sat up and watched Casta fidget for a couple seconds before she walked into the bathroom.

She realized she was fidgeting and walked into the bathroom to comb her hair instead. There was no point being anxious, Angella would be back when she was done. Besides, feeling abandoned was ridiculous. She was in Angella and Shadow's suite, she'd been curled up against Shadow the whole time. Shadow'd even been holding her, in her sleep. She should feel safe, reassured. So, why didn't she? She set her hands on the counter, closing her eyes and taking deeper breaths, which made her aware that she'd been nearly panting.
"Damnitall," she muttered.
Shadow raised an eyebrow, watching as Casta nearly worked herself into a panic attack before catching it and beginning to regulate it. She frowned, again wondering why Casta was so reactive. Her hormones weren't so escalated yet, she'd checked. She padded over and took the comb from Casta's hand, silently working out the tangles in her long, thick hair. Casta let out a shakey breath at the contact, trembling for several seconds before it stopped as she clenched her hands hard around the lip of the sink. Shadow noticed, and again, said nothing. Much as she wanted to, she knew that Casta's stubborn streak rose sharply when she felt unstable. Pushing her right this minute would get Shadow nowhere fast, so she was better off waiting it out. She finished getting the tangles out and braided it back, using a simple spell to tie the end of the braid so it'd hold. She tugged at Casta's shoulder, encouraging her to turn around, and Casta let her, sighing heavily as she leaned back against the sink.
Casta opened her eyes, realizing it was a mistake as she noticed the worry in the green eyes studying her own.
"I don't know why I'm so anxious," she murmured.
"Do you not want to accept the claim? Could it be that you're worried about her reaction, if you refuse?"
Casta choked on her own breath, tilting her head back to look at the ceiling. "That's not it. I, I think I do? I just," she took a deep breath, "I don't know. I don't know about anything. I don't know if I want to abort, or to keep it, or," she rubbed her face. "I never planned to have kids. I have a niece, I don't need a child. What if..." She sighed hard and gave Shadow a pained look. "What if I'm a shit parent? What if I don't abort, and something goes wrong anyway after I've gotten my hopes up?"

"What if you stop worrying over things that haven't happened, and just answer the present question?" Shadow asked in answer. "You're letting your mind run ahead and make you afraid, when there's nothing to fear in the present. Focus, Cas."
Casta glared at her. "Don't you use the instructor tone on me, Shadow."
Shadow smiled softly, her hands moving to cup Casta's cheeks. "Close your eyes."
Casta huffed, earning herself a distinctly instructor-ish look. "Close your eyes, Cas. Now." She paused while Casta did it, albeit petulantly. "Now focus on the question I asked you. Let go of the spinning chattering in your mind, and picture what you actually want. Let your emotions guide you to form it, and answer the question properly."
Rarely had she instructed anyone to let their emotions guide them through a difficult question like this. In magic, emotions held a great deal of power, but it was more the development of control over them that dictated a spell's formation and output. Emotions, running rampant, disrupted everything about spellcasting. However, the question's answer was truly dependent on what Casta wanted emotionally, for her life moving foward from this point.
It took her a minute to do it, to ignore the spinning thoughts enough for them to quiet. It was less an image and more a feeling, but it was there all the same. A sense of longing, of happiness, filled her chest slowly. Images flowed past, of seeing the baby Shadow carried, of helping look after it, of being there, being involved. The heat and passion she felt in bed with them both, the intense sense of belonging. She exhaled slowly as it all stopped, and felt Shadow's thumbs brushing the tears off her cheeks.
Angella quietly leaned on the bathroom doorway, having overheard Shadow's instructions. She'd paused at the tone, recognizing it, and smirked in response. She watched the tears trail down Casta's cheeks, though her breathing stayed deep and even; waited as Casta took a few breaths once she'd opened her eyes before tugging Shadow into a kiss. She tilted her head, amused, as Casta deepened the kiss, a soft groan leaving her, then a whimper when Shadow complied. She watched as Shadow gave in, her hands moving, fingers circling her partner's clit, making her whimper and cry out softly into the kiss.

"Cum, Cas," Shadow murmured softly.
Casta's head tipped back, her eyes closed as her body shivered hard, her hips rocking against Shadow's fingertips. She whimpered, almost afraid by how quickly she was so very close. Her hands wrapped around the back of Shadow's neck and upper arm as she leaned her head forward, setting their foreheads together. She panted, soft cries leaving her. So close, so close it almost hurt.
Shadow's other hand moved up and tugged at her nape, a soft, low, possessive growl leaving her throat as Casta shivered. It was enough to make her partner cum, her hips shuddering as she screamed and her body shook. Shadow moaned and continued, refusing to allow the orgasm to end right away. When Casta's hand dropped to her forearm, wanting her to stop, she adjusted, slipping two fingers inside instead, rocking them front to back gently. Casta cried out as her body clenched down, cumming immediately. Her eyes rolled back as her head tipped backward, her breath leaving her in broken sobs. She heard Shadow moan again, felt the hand at her nape open to support her head, pulling her forward as the fingers inside her stilled. She clung to her partner, barely able to even feel her own legs, sure she'd collapse if Shadow stepped back. Shadow pressed her tighter to the counter behind her, giving her the support she needed, and left soft kisses over her face as she came down from her high.
"Perfect, Cas," Shadow murmured against her lips. "So perfect. You're so beautiful."
Casta huffed a broken, disbelieving laugh, her eyes fluttering open. "You're full of it."
They both heard Angella chuckle. "Hardly. She's not wrong, that was gorgeous to watch." Angella stepped over to them, smiling softly. "You came perfectly for her, so obedient to her will, when you want to be," she cooed.

Casta blushed hard, then huffed at her. Shadow hummed and Casta shivered involuntarily, proving Angella's statement true.
"Not fair," she managed, giving Shadow a pouty look.
Shadow only smiled softly and flexed her fingers, still inside her partner, against her gspot gently. Casta whimpered, trembling immediately as her hips rocked, all but offering herself to her partner.
"No one ever told you I was fair, Cas," Shadow murmured, her voice low. "Answer the question I asked you, and I'll make you float in euphoria as a reward," she cooed.
Her fingers didn't stop, flexing over and over as her body against Casta's kept her in place, her thigh behind her hand preventing Casta from making her lose her place. She watched Casta struggle with it, hands clenching at Shadow's nape and forearm.
"You can't leave this spot, Cas, not unless I let you. For now, you're my pretty little plaything, pinned against the counter, naked and flushed, wet coating my hand and thigh as you rock on my fingers." Casta cried out, shaking, as she came, just as Shadow knew she would. "Now answer me, Cas. Let me carry you up into the eurphoria, my obedient little plaything." Her growl crept into her coo, telling Casta how possessive she felt of her.
Casta choked on a sob, her mind already beginning to float, she was so close to subspace. Her hips shook, rocking desperately, her cunt all but milking her partner's fingers, begging her for it.
"Yes, I want it," she managed, her voice nothing more than a moaning whimper. She opened her eyes just enough to make eye contact. "Please, please," she added, voice breaking on the desperate, whimpered plea.
Shadow smiled softly, possessively, and stopped flexing, instead rubbing her partner's gspot without pause, pinning her tighter to the counter, knowing the little bit of pain would send her completely. Casta screamed, her voice breaking as her nails broke the skin on the back of Shadow's neck and forearm as she shook, sweat appearing on her darkly flushed skin suddenly. Shadow maintained it until Casta's energy field swelled and began to float, telling her that her partner was fully immersed in the euphoria of subspace. Her fingers stilled as she moaned softly, ridiculously aroused. Casta moaned, her hips rocking, riding Shadow's fingers languidly, dragging out the pleasure as she floated in subspace.

"Good girl, Casta," Angella growled. She smiled as Casta moaned softly in answer, watching her move without pause over Shadow's fingers.
"So perfect, Cas," Shadow murmured, thoroughly enamored.
Casta whimpered, leaning forward and kissing Shadow, panting softly between gentle, light kisses. She felt so blissful, so loved, she never wanted it to end. It was always like this, when Shadow put her in subspace. No one else had ever managed it before.
Angella smiled, enjoying the view. She was ridiculously turned on, as was Shadow, from the scent, but for now she knew that Shadow wasn't about to stop indulging in Casta. It was the right choice, too. She could easily predict that Casta would crash, if Shadow's focus changed before she came down enough, which wasn't an acceptable outcome. So she waited, enjoying watching Casta languidly riding Shadow's hand, soft whimpers and moans leaving her as she panted between soft, wet kisses. She'd never seen Casta so flushed, or in subspace. She'd never seen her cum so hard before, either. Shadow could clearly play her body as smoothly as a pianist played a piano, and it was fucking gorgeous to watch. She was very, very glad she'd made that part of the arrangment that day. It didn't take long for Casta to come down enough to want to reciprocate, her hand moving from Shadow's forearm to between her legs. Shadow groaned.
"Bed," Casta whimpered. "My turn."
Angella smirked. "Can you even walk yet?" she cooed teasingly.
Casta whimpered again and Shadow smiled, raising an eyebrow.
Angella moved closer, waiting until Shadow removed her fingers to pick Casta up and follow Shadow to the bed. She set Casta down, stripped out of her clothes, and settled against the headboard to watch, enjoying being able to study the dynamic between them.
Casta pinned her immediately, using magic to anchor Shadow's hands above her head to the bed beneath her, then moved down and lapped at her cunt. Shadow whimpered, her hips beginning to shiver within seconds as Casta indulged, her pace dropping from nearly frantic to slow and teasing, now that she had Shadow where she wanted her. She appeared for all the world to be completely content to stay there all night, kissing and lapping like a cat that had gotten into the pantry and found the fresh cream. She moaned against Shadow's cunt and Shadow cried out quietly, her back arching. That had almost been enough, and a desperate, frustrated sound left her when it wasn't. Casta smiled, then continued, humming again, making Shadow writhe, nearly struggling as she began to pant and whimper almost nonstop. Angella's eyebrows rose. She hadn't realized just how cruel Casta could really be, in the right frame of mind. She'd never have dragged it out even this far, but fuck, was it hot to watch her omega writhe like that. The spells weren't so powerful as to truly restrain her, and Angella knew it. Which meant that Shadow was allowing Casta to hold the power here. Another thing she wouldn't have actually expected to this extent.

After a few more seconds of indulgently kissing Shadow's entrance Casta moved up, dragging her tongue, circling it around her clit until Shadow's hips shook, lifting off the bed. Casta growled softly, moving up and biting down on her mound, pressing against it, forcing her parner's hips down against the bed as she whimpered, her entire lower body shaking visibly. Once her ass was against the bed, Casta growled once more before letting go, and immediately resumed teasing, circling her tongue around Shadow's clit. Shadow turned her face to her upper arm, clenching her hands, panting as she struggled to stay there, to endure the teasing. Casta's nails dug into her inner thighs and Shadow's body language abruptly changed. Her entire body relaxed, her desperate whimpers dropping into moans, her thighs parting fully, hips tilting to present to the woman between them. Angella nearly came in her pants as Casta all but purred a moan and sucked at Shadow's clit in reward. Shadow's hips rocked at Casta's pace, the pitch of her voice rising as Casta continued, flicking her tongue nonstop over the clit in her mouth. Within seconds Shadow's voice broke as she came, shaking, though her body stayed where Casta had nonverbally ordered her to keep it. Casta resumed sucking, her hands cupping her partner's ass, her eyes closed. The orgasm dipped just enough, and she resumed flicking once more, driving Shadow straight into orgasm in seconds. She repeated it, over and over, until Shadow's voice was nothing but a plea, her hips shaking as her upper body writhed once more, completely overwhelmed and overstimulated. Casta dug her nails into Shadow's hips, forcing her to keep her lower back bowed, not allowing her to rock at all, controlling her hips entirely but for the shaking. This time, when she came, Casta refused to let up at all, making the scream that left her almost all pain right before Shadow's energy field became visible, and expanded into a soft cloud. Her voice became a soft breath as she exhaled and Casta moaned against her clit, making her shudder, hard. Her trembling hips reached for Casta's mouth. Now that she'd been forced into subspace, her body wanted the overstimulation. She whimpered, her voice higher in pitch and softer in tone as Casta rewarded her, kissing her cunt as though it was her entire world in that moment. She laved her tongue over her partner's swollen, raw clit, then kissed her way up Shadow's body, settling her hips over Shadow's, weight on her forearms next to Shadow's arms, and kissed her, deepening it immediately. Her tongue filled Shadow's mouth, letting her taste herself, enjoying the soft moan it elicited. Gradually she lightened the kiss, moaning as Shadow's hips rocked, coating her lower belly and mound in wet.

"Fuck yes, Shadow," she murmured, her voice significantly lower than usual. "Such a good girl for me, letting me indulge enough to hurt you."

Shadow whimpered softly, her hips rocking a bit harder.

"Not done yet, hmmm?" Casta asked teasingly. "But your clit is so raw, pet. If I keep indulging, you might even bleed," she cooed, smiling as Shadow moaned and shivered.

"Fuck, you two are gonna kill me," Angella growled.

Casta glanced over at her, smirking. "You might be right, from how hard you are." She turned back to Shadow. "How 'bout it, hmm? Should I hold you open, laying over you while she uses you?"

Shadow shuddered and moaned, the sound a definite yes. Angella didn't need more prompting, moving over to them as Casta shifted forward more, her thighs keeping Shadow's back and up, her knees toward her ribs. Angella smirked at how soaked they both were and slid inside her omega, groaning at the feel of her this soaked and ready. She smiled at the moan that left her omega and soft chuckle that left Casta, then slid two fingers inside Casta's cunt, making a startled moan leave her, too.

"You didn't really think I wouldn't be taking such a perfect opportunity," she growled.
She kept her pace steady, gritting her teeth a bit, and pressed her fingertips against Casta's gspot constantly, rubbing harder than usual. Within seconds Casta cried out in orgasm, and she sped up, cumming hard. She lightened her pressure, but kept it up as she flexed her hips forward and back slowly, dragging out her orgasm. Casta gushed around her fingers, shaking a bit as she moaned in tandem with Shadow under her. Angella looked down, watching as her cum gushed out around her, the creamy mess coating her front and trailing down her omega's ass.
"You two are far too hot for my sanity."

Chapter 6

It took a while for them to all wind back down and get cleaned off. By the time Shadow followed Casta out of the bathroom Angella had stripped and remade the bed. Angella smirked as Casta all but collapsed onto the bed, a soft groan leaving her.
"Still tired, huh?" she asked, following them both onto the bed.
Casta sighed softly, then realized that Angella hadn't marked her, though she'd answered. Maybe it hadn't been clear, though, since she hadn't been there when Shadow had asked the question.
"Did you understand my answer?" she murmured, glancing up at Angella.
"I didn't hear the question, so no."
Shadow hummed and nuzzled against Casta's shoulder, jostling her a bit when she hesitated.
"I said yes, as in yes, I want you to claim me," she murmured.
Angella frowned, laying down facing her. "Are you sure? You were in a bit of a haze when you answered."
"I had the answer before the haze." Casta's eyes opened enough to focus on her face. "Unless you've changed your mind."
Angella snorted. "Since when do I do that?" She pulled Casta closer to her. "Confirm the answer one more time, Casta."
She panted, nerves warring with rising arousal, despite the exhaustion. "Yes."
"Then relax," Angella murmured.
She trailed her mouth over Casta's neck, leaving open mouthed kisses slowly, feeling the beta shiver. Casta groaned softly, and her muscles relaxed. Angella took the opportunity, knowing drawing it out would make her tense back up, and bit down sharply, holding the bite when Casta tensed and cried out. She growled lowly, letting the possessiveness and dominance she felt toward Casta become audible, and Casta whimpered as her eyes rolled back. As Casta relaxed Angella let go, and Shadow healed the wound with the spell she'd already formed. It scarred cleanly, and Angella laid back down as Shadow scooted close to Casta once more. Casta panted, a soft whine leaving her as Shadow kissed her shoulder.

Her hand reached back, landing on Shadow's hip as Angella hummed, and she passed out.

It took weeks to iron out the allegiance deal with Mystacor's council. A few of them were being difficult, about literally everydamnthing. In the meantime, Angella and Casta quietly dug into the two questionable council members. Toward the end of it, what they'd expected finally happened. The two questioned Casta's ranking, citing her absences as rationale to remove the title of Head Sorceress and replace her with someone who'd be living in Mystacor full-time. This caused a fair bit of upheaval among the members of the council, as more than half of them were very much loyal to her, and disagreed. It did mean, however, that they were all very much busy in Bright Moon, and not in Mystacor. Casta, Catra, and Melog padded down the halls of Mystacor, invisible.
"This one," Casta murmured almost inaudibly, pausing at a door. She used a spell to unlock it, and they slipped inside. They went through everything, and Casta made copies of letters, records, and items that were relevant to the investigation in both Kriller and Roynan's rooms and offices, then returned to Bright Moon. Shadow glanced over at her as she stepped into the room from where she leaned against a decorated pillar along the wall. The entire room was still in upheaval.
"Done then?" she asked softly.
"Yeah. Angella was right." She glanced around. "I see I could've spent days gathering that information, though."
Shadow hummed. "Your supporters aren't taking the escalation of things well."
Casta sighed and nodded to Angella, who stood suddenly, which gained quiet from the arguing sorcerers.
"You've information to add?" Angella asked.
"I do." Casta waved a hand, and everything she'd gathered dropped onto the table. "I'd advise you collect Kriller and Roynan, before they can run. I took the opportunity to find out why they seem to both want me gone so badly. This is what I found. I made extra copies of all of the evidence, just in case."
Both sorcerers recognized all of it, and immediately attacked, trying to make a run for it. Their spells destroyed the table and everything on it, but Shadow and Glimmer were too far ahead for them to harm anyone. The shields took the damage, and by that time the other sorcerers were enraged. The combined several combat spells obliterated both Kriller and Roynan's shields and did a fair bit of damage to each of them. By the time it all stopped they were most assuredly dead on the floor.

"Well that got far more violent than I'd anticipated," Glimmer stated, clearly annoyed. "I really expected far better control from all of you. Since when do you fly off the handle so easily?" she demanded of the remaining council members.
"Since this whole fuckin' thing was a bunch of bullshit!" one answered loudly, clearly pissed. "You did notice that every time we spent HOURS arguing over nonsensical logisitics it was one or both of THEM?" He threw his hands in the air. "I missed my kid's birthday party over it!"
A few of the others agreed, just as pissed, while Shadow walked away, hiding her laughter.

They took a break to let the sorcerers cool off, and a few days later it took less than four hours to finish it all. A few sorcerers made optimistic comments about the claiming producing offspring as they walked away, already speculating about the future and possibilities the alliance might create over time. While Mystacor didn't have heirs to it's throne, given that both Casta and Micah had met the requirements to fill the role, it wasn't a stretch to guess that if Casta had children, at least one of them would also be a good fit. Catra watched them leave, leaning on the parapet, listening in. She turned as Shadow joined her, also watching them walk away.
"They seem pretty excited, even without knowing," Catra murmured.
Shadow hummed. She'd also heard a few off-handed remarks about her own child. Those had been cynical, at best. Catra gave her an intense look.
"Our sibling's NOT attending Mystacor, not after those comments. I'll kill you myself."
Shadow raised her eyebrows in surprise, then smirked. "I don't think they'd need to, dear. Casta and I can handle their education quite easily. The few things I didn't specialize in, she did, and vice versa."

Catra relaxed visibly. "Good answer."
Shadow chuckled. "Feeling overprotective, huh."
Catra shifted a bit in how she was leaning, folding her arms defensively as Adora joined them and frowned at her.
"You have been, you don't need to be defensive about it," Adora told her. She tilted her head, smiling softly. "It's normal, they are our baby sibling. We should be protective of them, shouldn't we?"
Catra's ears moved for a few seconds as she considered it. She sighed and rolled her shoulders, releasing the tension. "Yeah, you're right. I think it's just an initial response. Yeah, I have been. This whole thing, all of it, left me feeling wary."
"Not to mention those comments when Angella was talking across the room," Adora added, voice a bit rough as her anger rose.
Shadow focused on her suddenly. She'd been across the room from Adora off and on, the entire time herself. "What comments?" she asked quietly.
Adora glanced at Catra, surprised. "I thought that's what you were talking to her about."
"I told her I'd kill her if she even considered sending out sibling to Mystacor, I didn't specify why.You fucked it up."
Adora took a breath, considering how best to get out of the situation now that she'd gotten herself into it.
"Adora." She frowned as the blonde flinched at her tone.
"Watch the tone," Catra murmured. "I know it's the one that comes up when you get worried and want the info, but it's also the one it used as a warning before we got hit."
She sighed and pinched the bridge of her nose, stifling her emotions before trying again. "Adora, tell me what you heard."
Adora glanced at her, clearly worried. "I can't relay it to Casta or Angella if you don't tell me, and you know you'd rather I be the one to risk both of their tempers than have you do it yourself."
Adora shifted on her feet, then sighed, frowning and looking away down the hall. "The three that we noticed were less loyal to Casta, though still opposed to those two, called them a potential plague."
She exhaled and looked up at the ceiling, containing her responses to the rest. "One mentioned that it may be best if the kid had an unfortunate accident fourth year, since that's when they start more risky magics. The other two speculated on how best to go about it, mentioning falling over the waterfall, drowning on the beach, or drowning after falling and hitting their head in the hot springs when few others would be around."

Catra jumped as Shadow's innate golden magic suddenly burst outward, flaring into sparks around her. Shadow growled and clenched her hands, her eyes closed, and focused on her breathing. The girls watched as it leveled out immediately and the magic vanished. It all happened so fast, they both glanced at one another, to make sure they hadn't just imagined it.
Casta, however, saw it perfectly well as she left the conference room. She moved over and put one hand on Adora's shoulder to avoid startling her, studying her partner. Once it was clear Shadow had regained full control of her magic, she turned to the girls.
"Explain, now," she demanded lowly.
Adora heaved a sigh, stepping away. "Nope. I told her so she could tell you. I don't wanna be here for either you or Angella, with how she just reacted."
"Yeah, I kinda don't wanna die, either," Catra added, though she stayed where she was. She wasn't inclined to move away; her experience had taught her that running attracted Shadow's attention faster than standing still did.
"They're fine, Casta," Shadow stated calmly. She turned to the girls. "Anything further to add?"
Adora shrugged after several seconds. "It went on like that for a bit, but stayed along that line. To be honest, I think I sort of blacked out a bit on some of it. I can't recall ever feeling like that before."
"Thank you. I suggest you both make yourselves very scarce, until tomorrow evening or so."
Both of them looked surprised, then turned and left without a word. Casta watched them leave, then turned to Shadow.
"Awfully calm tone given that I can see the tremors in your muscles right now."
"I won't be repeating this information more than I have to, so it's best we find Angella, and go somewhere that your tempers combined won't be quite so terrifying."

Shadow stayed where she was, watching as Casta's magic got out of hand entirely, destroying the nearby ruins further. Casta screamed, the sound a combination of rage and upset, and the magic began to dissipate as she reigned it all in. A partially fallen tower crumbled the remaining two stories, stones tumbling and rolling over the ground as the dust rose around it.
Angella studied Casta's magic numbly, detached entirely from her own emotions, then returned her gaze to her omega, who was watching her warily.
"You're fine, Shadow. I won't hurt either of you, you know that."
"Yes, but you're giving no response at all, Angella. That's exceptionally worrying."
"I disassociated. It'll come back, eventually. Until then, I'm considering things. I had noticed that those three were careful in how they worded things, and didn't once raise their voices, as the other five did. It may be best that they each have accidents of their own, since that combined with the information you relayed would indicate potential narcissistic or psychotic mental states. Neither of those possibilities should really be tolerated around small children." She tilted her head. "The question is how best to achieve the results."
Glimmer poofed into the area not ten feet from them suddenly, looking concerned. She honed in on her mother.
"What the fuck?"
"Casta got upset. She's reigning it in, it'll be fine," Angella answered.
Glimmer's expression changed, giving away that she knew that tone, despite neither other woman having ever heard it before.
"You, nope. That's how you sounded after we were told dad died the first time. Nope. What happened." Angella frowned at her.
"NO. I'm not doing that whole FUCKING month all over again, mom. Talk. Now."
Angella stared at her for several seconds. She'd never realized how hard it must've been on her daughter. "I had no idea how hard it was on you, me being disassociated for so long. I'm sorry."

Glimmer took a deep breath. "Nope. No diverting. Explain. You can apologize later."
Casta sighed, having heard their conversation. "Apparently a few of the council members want to murder your baby sibling, and Adora and Catra overheard it. We'll handle it, it'll be fine. I'm sorry I worried you, I'm blaming my hormones for that one."
Shadow's eyebrows rose, but she didn't make a sound. She knew better. That had been an entirely warranted response to such a horrific bit of information.
"They fucking what?!" Glimmer yelled, sparks forming around her as her hands glowed.
"We'll handle it," Angella told her calmly. "I'd noticed their expressions when they'd been told, so they were on my list to watch, anyway. Aside from that, both Catra and Adora have decided that if we try to send your sibling to Mystacor they'll kill Shadow, at least. Among the three of us, educating both kids at home should be fairly simple."
Glimmer stared at her for a few seconds. "How do you plan to handle it? It's not like you can just slap them on the wrist and hope for the best."
"I don't intend to."
"I want updated on the plan, when you have it, preferably before I'm blindsided by the fallout." With that statement growled out, Glimmer disappeared in a poof back to the castle, presumably to harass the shit out of Catra and Adora.
"I wasn't aware that you could become so still," Angella told Shadow calmly.
"I didn't want to redirect her outbursts to myself."
Angella huffed a laugh. "Fair."
"I'm gonna go kill them, I'll be back later on," Casta stated, turning to leave.
Angella's rage broke the disassociation abruptly, and she landed in front of Casta without even realizing she'd moved.
"No, you won't," she growled. "You really think I'd let you go attempt that alone?"
Her growl became a snarl so fast Casta actually backstepped, her eyes wide.
"Well, there's the disassociation gone," Shadow drawled. "That didn't take long at all, well done Casta."

Casta glared at her briefly before Angella grabbed her and picked her up. "Angella, calm down,"
"Shut up."
Casta panted a bit, her hands against Angella's chest. "You're going to bruise my arms, Angella. Put me down."
Angella shifted her hold, tossing Casta up and cupping her ass in both hands, keeping her pulled tight to Angella's own front. Casta yelped when she was tossed, then glared at the alpha holding her. "Angella really, we can have a conversation. You don't have to physically hold me to keep me here."
Shadow watched carefully, waiting as Angella seemed to control herself actually remarkably well, given how visibly angry she was suddenly.
"There are a variety of things I could do to you, Casta, be happy I'm controlled enough to limit it to holding you at the moment," Angella growled.
As it looked like Casta intended to argue Shadow spoke up. "I think it may be best if we all take a few deep breaths." Her voice was just loud enough for them to hear, the tone smooth. "This is something that any of us could theoretically handle alone, but it would be less efficient that way. We can easily collaborate and handle it in a far more productive manner together, but to do that you both need to be calmed down, and neither of you is yet."
"I don't suppose you could calm down with me standing?" Casta asked, watching her face.
"Not at the moment, no," Angella growled.
Casta took a breath and shifted a bit, wrapping her legs around Angella's waist. "Fine, then I intend to at least be relatively comfortable."
Angella's hands flexed a little, squeezing her ass in answer. Casta huffed at her, then turned to Shadow.
"I just realized, your outburst was far too short and small for that information earlier."
Shadow frowned, tilting her head. "How so?"
"I fucking lost it, you just had a tiny burst of magic, it was so short I'm certain the girls were glancing at one another to confirm that neither of them had imagined it. How did you control it so quickly?"

"I'm responsible for their viewpoint, I caused all of it." Shadow's expression gave away nothing. "I recognized that it was my fault, and it all fell inward, making reigning it in easier."
Casta looked about to argue with her and Angella interrupted it. "Only in part. The rest is their biased perception relating to your lineage."
Both other women stared at her, confused.
"What're you talking about?" Casta asked.
"She's part drow, it was a large part of the hostility toward her when she was young from her teachers, as well. Many other races had issues with them, generations ago. They're a race of deep dark elves, and are very rarely ever seen anymore. A few other races mined, and the mines went deep enough to reach their territory. Their response to the encroachment was to warn them off, somewhat violently, and they didn't take it well. When they refused to stay out of the drow's territories, the drow attacked them, killing a good number and enslaving others. Ever since, there's a certain amount of prejudicial animosity toward them, which was directed at her because her appearance makes it clear that she's at least half drow."
"How is there a race I've never heard of?" Casta demanded.
"They burned the records, for the most part, before Nigella found out and lost her shit."
Casta sighed, annoyed, then turned to Shadow and saw her shock. "Are you ok?"
"I, I didn't, how did you, WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL ME?" She raised her voice, a few tears escaping.
Angella's eyebrows rose. "I had no idea you didn't know."
Casta frowned, watching the tears escaping her unnoticed to trail down her face, and squirmed. "Angella, put me down."
Angella growled softly, but set her down and watched her move over to Shadow.
"Hun?" she asked quietly, reaching up to cup Shadow's cheek.
She froze as Shadow jerked away, then turned and walked away from her. She watched as Shadow moved over to a fallen tree and turned to sit down, her face in her hands and elbows on her knees. She waited a few seconds, then followed, kneeling in front of the omega. She carefully set her hands on Shadow's legs. When there was no reaction to her touch, she moved them up to Shadow's thighs and kept them there, moving her thumbs back and forth.

It all made so much more sense now. They'd hated her from go, as a small child, and she'd always been sure she'd done something. She tried, over and over, to prove that she could be a good student. She'd been obedient, helpful, tolerant. She'd learned everything, she'd excelled well beyond everything expected of her, she'd never even complained. Everything she did, every achievement, only seemed to make them hate her more.
Angella followed them over, realizing her mistake. Drow didn't interbreed. Shadow's mother wouldn't have survived long after making it to the surface and hiding her baby. Of course she wouldn't have known.
"I'm sorry. It didn't occur to me that you didn't know, but it should've."
"It's fine. I'm sorry I yelled," Shadow answered, not looking up.
Angella shook her head. "It's not, actually. I should've realized how you'd gotten to the surface and known that you wouldn't know."
Casta frowned, turning to look up at her. "What?"
"Drow don't interbreed. Any drow found to have done so is executed immediately, as is the newborn. Her mother would've had to run, hide her, kill something else to be covered in blood, and return to the party hunting her to claim she'd honor-killed her own newborn. They would've killed her immediately, and her only hope would be that the child remained quiet enough that they didn't go looking for her after her mother died. Because of the animosity, no one there would've told her who she was, or where she was from. I should've thought of that, and I didn't."
Casta swallowed hard, staring at her. "How could, that's..." she sighed heavily, turning back and setting her forehead against Shadow's knees.
A broken sob left her before she'd even realized it, and she suddenly realized she was crying. She pressed the heels of her hands against her eyes, gritting her teeth to try to stop it.
"Oh hun," Casta murmured, already crying herself. "Let me help."

She pulled lightly on Shadow's forearms.
Shadow let her pull, ending up straddling Casta's knees, her face tucked against Casta's neck. Angella sat down behind her, where she'd been, and gently rubbed her back. After several minutes the crying quieted and Casta looked up at Angella.
"How did she end up at Mystacor then?" she asked softly.
"Another of my race found her. Nigella determined that she had more than enough magic to excel, and took her to Mystacor to live. I remember hearing about it, but didn't actually see her until she was a teenager, when I went with Nigella. I didn't realize the prejudices were having any effect regarding her education until I noticed that she should've tested out, and hadn't been allowed. Nigella tore the heads off the council that night, she was so livid when I brought it to her attention."
"Why was she so angry over it? Most aren't allowed to test out."
"Drow are brilliant, as a rule." Angella answered. "Their culture is incredibly harsh, but the result is that none of them are anything less than well above average magically, and exceptionally brillant overall. Nigella had told them that, had told them that the child should be educated differently based on her intelligence when she'd dropped her off. They'd ignored her orders, relevant to the education of a child that Nigella herself had actually had plans for as an adult."
Casta frowned. "Wait, what were her plans? She never followed through on them?"
"No, the war delayed it all further, then disrupted all of it when she cast the modified obtainment spell." Angella sighed heavily.
Shadow sat back and wiped her eyes. Casta stopped her, using her own sleeve to wipe her face off.
"It doesn't matter," Shadow murmured. "I don't think I want to know, anyway."
"Who found her?" Casta asked. "Not that it matters, I don't even know Nigella, let alone anyone else."
"Aio. He's quiet, and not very social," Angella answered. "But he is one of our best instructors and healers."
"It doesn't matter, it's not like we'd ever meet him, anyway." Shadow sighed and leaned back a bit onto her heels. "Really it only confirms that even if Catra and Adora weren't absolutely adamant about the baby never being sent to Mystacor, that it wouldn't be an option anyway."

"Well, we'd already decided not to send either of them, so that's no big deal," Casta murmured, holding her hand.
"We need to figure out what to do, so we can make sure those three don't cause problems," Angella reminded them both.

It didn't take long to determine a plan, nor to follow it through. Casta appointed replacements to her council, all of whom were far better suited. She appointed various tasks to various council and other capable individuals, and kept track of it all via occasional visits and messages.
Casta padded down the halls, having returned after a week-long stint in Mystacor to get things sorted with her new council members. There was a shallow learning curve to all of it, which regularly required her attention. She'd noticed that it was all smoothing out, though, finally. She sighed as she closed the suite door, then set her bag down against the wall and moved over, collapsing onto the bed.
Shadow frowned from the window. Casta didn't appear to even have noticed her presence, which was unusual. She moved over and sat down, her hand landing on Casta's hair to pull the single hair stick from it's bun. Casta jolted, startled, then huffed at her as she relaxed.
"Fuck, Shadow."
"I was standing at the window, Cas. I watched you walk in, and you didn't even notice?" she asked softly.
Casta sighed, then groaned as Shadow's hand tangled in her hair. "No, but I'm exhausted, so it's not a surprise."
Shadow hummed, the tone easy though she frowned harder, worrying. She kept playing with Casta's hair, watching as the tension in her frame refused to dissipate. After a few minutes, she wound her fingers through the hair at Casta's nape and pulled, gradually tightening as Casta's head moved back, then relaxing it. As Casta's head tipped forward the little it'd moved back, she suddenly tightened her hold, yanking hard. A strangled cry left her and her back shuddered before her body finally began to relax. Shadow leaned down, humming a purr.

"Good girl," she cooed.
Casta whimpered, panting as a few tears left her closed eyes. Her body shivered lightly a few more times as the muscles relaxed, making soft sounds leave her as Shadow continued to play with her hair, the contact soothing. Once she sighed, Shadow tilted her head.
"Better?"
"Yes, thank you," Casta murmured. "I didn't even realize how stressed I was."
Shadow hummed softly, deciding not to comment on it. "We should get you in the tub for a bit and make sure your muscles relax properly. Come on."
Casta sighed heavily, but followed her to the bathroom and stripped as she started the tub. She stretched, her back popping and making her squeak, which made Shadow chuckle behind her.
"Shush you. You're having the same problems."
Shadow hummed softly, watching her as she moved over. Truthfully, she was having some pregnancy annoyances, mainly increased sensitivity and restlessness. However, her body wasn't swelling as she'd anticipated. She was due in a few more months, and while she'd expected to be showing a fair bit more by now, she was only barely showing. She appeared to be about the same time into her pregnancy as Casta did in hers. They both had small baby bumps, but nothing further yet.
"What're you waiting for?" Casta asked her, settling into the water. "An invitation?"
Shadow smirked as she stripped, following her into the tub. Casta's hands stopped her from sitting as they landed on her thighs.
"How, that's such bullshit." Casta glared up at her. "How do you only look this far into the pregnancy?"
"There's no information regarding half of my lineage, Cas. I don't know anymore than you do," she answered quietly.
Casta's expression softened, guilt flitting over her features as her hands moved around Shadow's thighs.
"C'mon," she murmured, not quite tugging.
Shadow settled carefully in front of her. "You don't need to feel guilty, Cas."

Casta sighed, then moved forward and kissed her. The contact started soft, but when Shadow whimpered Casta deepened the kiss immediately. She moved forward, pushing Shadow to lean back against the side of the tub and let Casta lean over her. She refused to go easily, becoming more aggressive in the kiss briefly. Casta growled and bit down on her lower lip sharply, holding the bite as Shadow began to pant softly and leaned back slowly. Once she had both hands to either side of Shadow against the tub she hummed softly and sucked the lip she'd been biting, flicking her tongue against it to hear Shadow whimper. The omega shivered and her hands moved up Casta's sides. One hand stopped at her breast, gently tugging and twisting her nipple, the other cupped her cheek as the kiss continued.

Angella leaned against the doorframe and watched as Casta moved her hand down and slid two fingers inside Shadow. The omega broke the kiss to cry out as her head tipped back. Her brow furrowed as her hips rocked against Casta's hand, soft sounds leaving her throat. Angella moved forward around the tub and crouched, tangling her hand in Shadow's hair and holding tightly to force her to keep her head there. She kissed the omega's temple, then moved her mouth to her ear. She sucked on the tip, using her teeth just enough, and heard Shadow's voice break as Casta moaned.

"Good girl," Angella told her quietly.

Shadow panted, managing not to sob as Casta's fingers maintained their rhythm. She whimpered, struggling noticeably not to give in so easily. She heard Angella chuckle as Casta growled softly and her back arched involuntarily, making her shiver. Her hand moved to Casta's shoulder and held on as her hips lifted and stayed there, making a sob leave her throat. Angella's hand stayed where it was, keeping her pinned between them, making the orgasm drive higher inside her. Casta moaned softly, moving her thigh behind her hand, adding more force to her rhythm and smiling as Shadow's hands spasmed in response, a strangled sound leaving her as her hips began to tremble.

"So sensitive, hmm," Casta cooed. "I'm really beginning to like you being pregnant."

She whimpered, failing to slow her climb entirely. A few tears escaped her from overwhelm as she cried out, the orgasm making her vision go white behind her closed eyelids as Angella growled softly in her ear and Casta moaned.

Casta slowed her pace once Shadow came, knowing the tears were from overwhelm, and gradually stopped moving before dragging her fingers out. She leaned forward and trailed kisses over the omega's throat and chest while Angella left light kisses over her face. She let her hands wander soothingly, trailing over the omega's sides, back, and thighs slowly, enjoying the intimacy and scent of her partner.
"I missed this," Casta murmured.
Angella smirked as Shadow huffed.
"You mean overwhelming Shadow or sex?" Angella asked.
"I meant the intimacy, mostly. There's also always just been something so soothing about her scent. I noticed that I stress out easier without it."
Angella chuckled, relaxing her grip in Shadow's hair finally. She was tempted to get into the tub with them, but had a few other things to do before she could really relax and be done with her day. Not to mention that if Casta's fingers were that overwhelming, it was likely that her omega was far too sensitive from the extra blood during the pregnancy at this point to comfortably take her alpha.
"You two cuddle then, since I'm sure you could both use a nap anyway. I'll be back later on once I've finished things for the day."

Angella walked in that evening, noticing the shield on the doorway. It was intended for privacy, so the kids knew not to open the door. She waited a moment inside the door once she'd closed it, enjoying the view. She padded over, stripping and dropping her clothes on the chair by the table.
Casta whimpered, hands bracing her against the headboard, her knees on either side of Shadow's head. Shadow'd been teasing her for what felt like forever, refusing to let her cum. Angella's hands moved around her body as she leaned forward and bit down lightly on Casta's shoulder. Casta cried out and started to tremble, her whimpers nearly sobs in response as Shadow's grip on her thighs tightened to keep her still.

Angella moved one hand, trailing her fingertips down Shadow's belly, and felt the omega move her legs further apart. She toyed with the clit beneath her fingertips until the Shadow's hips lifted against her hand and started to tremble before adjusting to settle her cock against the omega's cunt. Casta cried out as Shadow moaned against her clit, shaking involuntarily as she almost came.
"Fuck," Casta whimpered, looking down at Shadow.
Angella smirked and moved forward slowly, keeping a close eye on Shadow's body language. The omega's hips trembled nonstop, cunt soaked and spasming around her. She moved her thumb back to the omega's clit, rubbing circles over it as she rocked her hips, keeping her movements controlled as she got closer.
Casta sobbed as Shadow moaned again, then moved one hand down to the omega's hair and tugged. Shadow adjusted, moving from teasing her to sucking her clit gently. The relief in Casta's expression was fantastic. She focused, flicking her tongue over the clit in her mouth even as Angella's movements pushed her closer to orgasm. Casta cried out as she came, wet gushing from her to coat Shadow's throat. Shadow refused to stop, dragging it out until Angella growled and jerked her hips forward as she came, too. Shadow cried out against Casta's clit, pushing her over the edge and into subspace.
Shadow let go of Casta's thighs and the beta let herself fall to one side. Angella smiled a big predatorily and leaned forward, still rocking her hips a little bit.
"Good girl, Shadow," she cooed.
Shadow panted, shivering hard in response to the tone. She gave Angella a look.
Angella smirked. "Little brat. Are you needing a reminder?"
She leaned up and kissed Angella's jaw, lingering in the contact until Angella hummed a low purr growl. She didn't need a reminder, really, and even though having her there felt amazing, it was also starting to hurt, too.
Angella took the hint and dragged back and out of her omega, leaning down to kiss her cheek. Once she moved back Shadow rolled onto her side, moving over to Casta. Casta hummed, barely conscious, and nuzzled up against Shadow's front. Angella chuckled and curled up behind Casta for a bit before she made them both wake up to clean off.
