Winner Takes All

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/37260871.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationships:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Catra/She-Ra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Catra (She-Ra), Adora (She-Ra), She-Ra (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Post-Canon, Nonbinary Adora (She-Ra), Lesbian Adora (She-Ra), Lesbian Catra (She-Ra), Service Top Adora (She-Ra), Bottom Catra (She-Ra), Porn with Feelings, Light BDSM, Size Difference

Language:
English

Series:
Part 3 of Yield Under My Hands

Collections:
SPOP Flex Smut Swap

Stats:
Published: 2022-02-20 Words: 7,339 Chapters: 1/1

Winner Takes All

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/37260871.

Rating:
Explicit

Archive Warning:
No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationships:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Catra/She-Ra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Catra (She-Ra), Adora (She-Ra), She-Ra (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Post-Canon, Nonbinary Adora (She-Ra), Lesbian Adora (She-Ra), Lesbian Catra (She-Ra), Service Top Adora (She-Ra), Bottom Catra (She-Ra), Porn with Feelings, Light BDSM, Size Difference

Language:
English

Series:
Part 3 of Yield Under My Hands

Collections:
SPOP Flex Smut Swap

Stats:
Published: 2022-02-20 Words: 7,339 Chapters: 1/1

Winner Takes All

by EloyGray

Summary

The reaction Catra gets when she walks out of the locker room washes away all of her anxiety. Adora's jaw drops, stuttering words falling from their mouth as they try to form a coherent thought. Their eyes are wider than she's ever seen, but the cherry on top is that Catra can smell how instantly turned on they are.

She doesn't even try to hide her smirk as she walks up to them, her hips swaying with every ounce of power she can muster. Circling them like a predator about to pounce on prey, she makes sure to tease their abs and chest and between their thighs with her tail, letting it run up and down Adora's body. They try a few times to get a sentence out, each attempt cut off by Catra running her claws gently over their exposed skin. Eventually, they're able to manage, "I— I didn't expect us to be doing that today."

Her hands find Adora's biceps, and she lets her fingers dig into the rigid muscle. She feels Adora flex for her and laughs; even when Adora is trying to be sexy they're still a dork, which is one of the many reasons Catra loves them. But the war drum beating in her head demands something else.

"I think it's time to bring out the big girl, handsome."

Notes

Adora uses they/them pronouns because even though this is a gift, I'm still letting myself be a little self-indulgent (and also to make my life easier as the writer).

See the end of the work for more notes

It’s to the sound of familiar footfalls that Catra is pulled from the array of official documents needing her signature and back into the real world. She knows who it is even before they get to the door; Catra did spend her entire life with this person after all, though she’s more than memorized the footsteps of every person in Brightmoon Castle by now. When they push the door open and Catra sees those two steel-blue eyes she fell in love with all those years ago, there’s nothing in the whole galaxy that can make her suppress the shudders that jolt through her body.

“Hey Catra! I’m going to go do my workout, want to join?” It takes Catra a moment to adjust to her beautiful spouse, standing in the doorway with the daymoon’s light cascading over their form like water, the light making the golden highlights on their red jacket and white pants dance. Adora’s dorky smile is still all teeth despite every other part of them having grown into the thirty-something adult that they, and Catra, have become in the decade since the war ended. Their hair, now closer to the cut Catra had towards the end of the war than anything else but still pulled into their signature ponytail, frames their face and the three, golden scars across their left cheek.

A raised eyebrow and them questioning ‘Etheria to Catra?’ forces her to remember that she is, in fact, gawking at her gorgeous spouse. Wrestling with the need to play off being caught staring as intentional, Catra crosses her arms over her chest and leans further into the chair. “What kind of workout are we talking? I’m pretty busy helping Sparkles plan the ten year anniversary for the end of the war, and I don’t know if I can afford to go running off with every hot jock that comes knocking at my door.”

“You just called me hot.” There’s that dumb smirk again, the same one that has lit up Catra’s life for, well, for forever. Their entire face lights up as if this is the first time Catra has ever complimented their appearance instead of the daily occurrence that it is, filling the room with such an earnest joy that Catra is sure she feels herself fall in love all over again.

It's a magnetic attraction, the need to be within Adora's orbit at all times, that pulls Catra from her desk and towards the doorway. "I know, it's such a travesty that someone like you is my type." She doesn't plan to keep up this game for much longer, so instead of letting Adora finish whatever banter was going to come out of their mouth, Catra kisses them. The intent was for it to be quick and light, but then Adora's teeth find Catra's lower lip and refused to let go, showering her mind with sparks and dimming the world around her. When Catra comes to, Adora's lips are kiss-swollen and she can already feel a warmth growing between her legs.

"Or," Adora says, drawing out the syllable, "we could find another way to burn off some steam?"

Catra's still in Adora's space, the rise and fall of their chests pushing them together, unifying them in their mutual want. Her hands are on Adora's hips, feeling each time their lungs fill and deflate, the barely there drumming of their heartbeat, all the reminders that Adora is a living, breathing person and not some figment of her imagination. Catra tilts her neck upwards so she can meet Adora's eyes, looking past their ever-present azure glow and seeing the love beneath. It takes every ounce of her willpower to cut through the lust-filled haze in her mind, "Actually, I like the idea of a workout. Let's skip the weights and go straight to sparring though."

"You finally want to break your losing streak?"

"It is not—" Catra wants to continue her argument that she does not have a losing streak, but the rose red dusting on Adora's cheeks and the laugh that comes from deep within their lungs and fills the room cuts her off. It's not fair she's married to someone so breathtaking. "Yes, I want to break my losing streak. I'll grab out stuff and meet you in the locker room, okay?"

Another kiss, this one actually featherlight and short, dismisses Adora, leaving Catra behind in their now very lonely bedroom. She starts to go through her clothes to find her workout gear, before a small, rectangular package hidden in the back corner catches her eye. It’s contents are something her and Adora have talked about, and it’s something they both want, but the opportunity has never presented itself.

Well, until now, that is.

In the decade since the war ended, Catra has more than gotten used to the perks of living in Bright Moon. It was difficult at first, being surrounded by people she used to call enemies, her system constantly in flight or fight mode, ready to be kicked out, or worse. Her anxiety forced her to plan for contingencies of contingencies, going so far as to hide a bug-out bag in the corner of her and Adora’s room. With time, and Adora’s endless supply of patience at her side, she was able to adjust to living inside the castle, as well as calling her old enemies new friends.

Therapy helped too, of course, even if she won’t admit it to anyone outside the Best Friend Squad. She also won’t admit that she calls them that.

She’s come to love being surrounded by her friends, by people she can trust innately and know in her heart that they mean her no harm. She always has access to work that needs to be done as Glimmer’s Royal Advisor, or one of the six other titles she holds now that the war is well and truly over. There are smaller things that Catra has learned she can’t live without, like there being food whenever she wants, as well as unrationed clean water and a soft bed, even if it took some convincing to sway Adora on the last one.

Stars, of course there’s Adora too. Her sun, the largest star in her personal orbit, and the reason she’s alive at all. Adora has never once darkened Catra’s skies in the decade they’ve been together, instead their smile always serves as a lighthouse during the worst of Catra’s internal storms, their words a tether to bring her back to reality. She’s her own person, of course; a major component of her therapy was learning to live without Adora, without the constant need to compare herself to them or to feel better than them. Those issues still rattle her mind from time to time, but with access to infinite love and support, she managed to properly bury those traumas years ago.

Her favorite little thing about living in Brightmoon though? The royal sparring arena that her and Adora have unlimited access to. If it wasn't for them, it would just gather dust since it's built around melee combat. With Glimmer focusing on magic and Bow being a ranged fighter, her and Adora are the only ones who get to enjoy it. It's their own private arena built underneath the castle itself, illuminated by crystals embedded in the wall, the sounds of a natural spring and waterfall muffling whatever combat takes place on the mossy grass and flowerbeds.

Letting the sound of running water fall away behind her, Catra pushes into the significantly more sterile locker room. Placing both bags onto the benches, she catches Adora sitting nearby, clad in matching white and gold leggings and a compression top that does nothing if not put their entire body on display. They're radiating confidence as the light glints off the golden rivers running down their body, the ones that have scars as their riverbeds. They're rolling that old blue worry stone between their fingers, their face a mix of deep thought and concentration, the entire story of their mind told by the tip of their tongue peaking out from between their lips. Despite all the love and anxiety it's seen, that stone she gave Adora so long ago hasn't lost its luster, and the reason why makes Catra's heart want to explode with ardor.

"I can't believe you shoved so many feelings into that rock you made it your own fucking Runestone."

Adora whips their head around to see Catra, and the fact that they didn't jump doesn't escape her notice. It's a testament to Adora's therapy; they used to be the nervous person Catra knew, with even small sounds like a dropped mug or a door shut too hard pushing them to the precipice of panic. Now, though, Catra watches the anxiety melt off their expression. "Listen! This was all I had from you when the war was going on! I carried this with me everywhere I went. It's not my fault Etheria decided to make this She-Ra's new Runestone."

"Whatever you say, dork," Catra fires back with her usual teasing cadence, nudging their shoulder to point them to their bag. Instead, she finds Adora looking up at her with a smile large enough to nearly pour off their face and hearts in their eyes. They shove Catra back, and it's not long before their impromptu grudge match turns into the two of them rolling around on the ground laughing and playing. Adora's hands are on her flanks, fingers digging into the soft skin and tickling her. Catra tries to fight back, and her efforts are valiant, but in the end Adora has her pinned to the ground, a leg between her thighs and her hands high above her head.

"I thought we were—" her sentence is cut off by her breath hitching on a moan as Adora presses their knee into her harder, but Catra forces herself to keep going, "—we were planning on—fuuuck—sparring, Ahh— Adora?" Despite her best efforts, there is more arousal in the taunt than she expects, her real intentions betraying her. Adora pushes her knee higher between Catra's legs, feeding the fire in Catra's core and forcing a moan from her lips. She can feel blazing coals of desire start to smolder like fresh metal in a forge, her instincts screaming at her to bear down on their leg and grind against it, but Adora pulls away before she can find any real relief.

"I mean, we could spar, if you really want to." Which Catra does, for one very specific reason, even if she also wants Adora to pin her to the floor and fuck her until she sees stars and her throat is raw from screaming their name.

"I do want to spar, but how about we make it more interesting?" Adora's interest is piqued at that, one of their eyebrows shooting upwards in the tell tale sign that Catra has their attention. "Winner takes all?"

The blush that crosses Adora's cheeks tells Catra everything she needs to know. They normally play-wrestle for who takes the more dominant role in bed, so having it be fully on the line like this is certainly enough to keep the stakes high.

"I'm always up for a good chall—"

"And I want you as She-Ra."

Adora pulls up and off of Catra slightly, their eyes wide. The gears in their head are clearly turning as they try to process what she just said. It's a gamble, but Catra is hoping it pays off.

"Yellow, Catra." The use of one of their safe words catches Catra off-guard, but it doesn't worry her; Adora only wants her to slow down and explain, not stop. Adora fully pulls themself off of Catra before reaching an arm down to help her up. They both sit down on the bench, Adora straddling the seat while Catra pulls one knee to her chest. Catra's been married to Adora long enough to parse whatever they're thinking, and it's clear to her that Adora isn't upset, just… confused, though that doesn't do much to quell the growing fear in Catra's heart. Did she push them too far? She doesn't want to make Adora uncomfortable, but this certainly wouldn't be the first time she's sparred against She-Ra, even if it's a rare occurrence. Catra can't stand not having the answer.

"Adora?"

"Why do you want to spar with She-Ra?" There's an unspoken part of that question that Catra can read just from Adora's expression. 'You normally don't want to spar with She-Ra.' Which, to be fair, she normally doesn't. Even a decade on, fighting against She-Ra can trigger bad memories, especially if they work on unarmed combat or if Catra's had a rough day. It's gotten better in the last year, and she and Adora have started using She-Ra more often, though it's still been marred with difficulty and Catra needing to use their safe words more than she would like.

Unsurprisingly, her relationship with She-Ra has been through lots of ups and downs. After Adora revealed her true She-Ra form, Catra never wanted to be uncomfortable around her. Still, it took almost three years of therapy and bitter work for her to be comfortable being intimate with She-Ra, and another two for her to let herself be submissive with the demi-goddess. It’s been empowering, which Catra never expected, but it's that very feeling that’s made her want to do this. Being more open about her wants and Adora still accepting her on the other side has brought her so much comfort.

“Honestly? Because I think I finally have a way to beat her,” which is true, she does, but there’s more to it than that and if Catra wants to keep healing, she needs to say it. “Also, I think it’d be hot.”

Adora perks up at that, sitting up somehow even straighter as that familiar, dorky smile spreads across their face, any worries they had banished by Catra’s openness. There’s still a hint of uncertainty, not one based in their own discomfort but instead in worry for Catra.

Thankfully, she knows just the solution.

Pushing off the bench, Catra leans over and into Adora’s radius before carding her fingers through their short golden hair. Catra doesn’t stop though, and soon she’s pressing their back into the bench, her legs straddling Adora’s hips. Her teeth find Adora’s neck, pulling at the skin and leaving behind love’s watermarks as her fingers dig underneath the fabric of their sports bra. Adora exhales hard as Catra finds one of their nipples, her fingertips brushing against the sensitive skin. She rolls the tip between the pads of her fingers and another sharp noise drenched in ardent need escapes Adora.

Pressing a final kiss to Adora’s lips, Catra feels their tongue chase after her even as she pulls away. “I want this, Adora. I promise.”

A sharp spank against her ass is all the answer Catra needs to know that Adora is comfortable with this too.

“Well, in that case, I’ll meet you on the field. I’m excited to see what your anti-She-Ra strategy is. Something left over from the war?”

“Something like that.”

Holding such a visceral reminder of the person she used to be is more overwhelming than Catra thought. It’s been, well, years since she has laid eyes on the bodysuit Entrapta made for her after Adora and their– no, and her friends risked their lives for Catra in the stupidest suicide mission in recorded history. When Catra learned Adora didn’t have access to She-Ra, she almost threw them out an airlock then and there, Etheria and the wider galaxy be damned.

The black and red synthetic material bites into the pads of her fingers, bringing her mind back to reality. It's softer than she remembers, the synth-leather feeling pliable and warm instead of rigid and harsh like her mind thinks it should. Maybe it's the years she’s spent away from her position as Force Commander that makes this easier, or maybe it's the therapy, Catra isn’t sure.

What she does know is that she wants this. She wants this more than she’s wanted anything in a long, long time.

Slipping into the bodysuit is like climbing into a second skin, the fabric molding and morphing to take her shape. It still hugs her hips and sits proud on her chest in the same way that drew her to its design over a decade ago, the weighted feeling of ceramic armor plate and kevlar weave serving dual purpose both to protect her, and to ground her. Back then, Catra chose this to reinforce that she was in command, that she was powerful and strong, but now—

Well, it's actually the exact same reason.

This isn't the same bodysuit of course. Her body has changed so much in a decade, mostly because she’s actually eating well now, but also because she’s learned to take care of herself. Her sharp edges are softer, weathered down by love, both external and internal, though beneath her muscles still remain powerful, even if they go unused most days. She loves this body more than the old one she was never able to call home, and being in this outfit reminds her of that love in a way she didn’t expect.

Wearing this makes her feel powerful, but not in the way it used to. Before, it was a shield, armor she hid behind. Now, it's a pedestal, something to lift her up and allow her to reclaim another part of her past.

That reclamation can’t be complete without one final piece, though.

Pulling it from the linen bag, the cold scarlet metal is heavier in her hands, weighed down by trauma and sorrow. This is the same mask Adora gifted to her when they were teenagers, the same one she wore every day for nearly a decade of her life, not a replica like the suit that covers her body. She had found it during one of the many post-war exploration missions on Prime’s ship. Something Catra couldn’t name had led her to it, it’s final home sitting proudly in the trophy room Glimmer told her about.

Except it had been broken in two, right down the center.

It was fitting that in the same place her old mental mask was destroyed, her physical mask suffered the same fate.

It’s also fitting, then, that she had fixed it because of Adora.

A single, golden line runs down the center now, a place where the weld has been highlighted for the world to see. It’s something she took from Adora, the idea of wearing your scars for everyone to see. They’ve long since gotten all the scars Catra gave them tattooed over in a halcyon gold, both as a way to memorialize their damaged past but also as a way to be proud of what they had survived, and what Catra had survived, what they had both grown beyond. She has no desire for anyone to see the scars that litter her body, the ones she's forced to wear from decades of trauma. But this one? She can choose who sees this.

And right now, she's choosing Adora.

The reaction Catra gets when she walks out of the locker room washes away all of her anxiety. Adora's jaw drops, stuttering words falling from their mouth as they try to form a coherent thought. Their eyes are wider than she's ever seen, but their cherry on top is that Catra can smell how instantly turned on they are.

She doesn't even try to hide her smirk as she walks up to them, her hips swaying with every ounce of power she can muster. Circling them like a predator about to pounce on prey, she makes sure to tease their abs and chest and between their thighs with her tail, letting it run up and down Adora's body. They try a few times to get a sentence out, each attempt cut off by Catra running her claws gently over their exposed skin. Eventually, they're able to manage, "I— I didn't expect us to be doing that today."

"No better time than the present," she shoots back, drowning her words in the same raging fire that is starting to dominate her mind. Catra doesn't fail to notice that Adora's blush doesn't just cover her cheeks but also trails down her throat and disappears under the neckline of her top as well as spreading over their shoulders. The ruby tint Adora's skin takes when they're turned on makes Catra feral, burning need to wrap her fingers around their throat or splay them across their abs surfacing in her head. "Assuming you're okay with this, of course," Catra adds, doing her best to make sure that Adora is actually using their brain. She is springing a lot on them without any warning, and she needs to make sure Adora is comfortable with this.

"Yeah, I'm— I'm more than up for this, it's just—" Adora's sentence is cut-off as Catra looks at them, her anxiety nothing more than a distant memory. "Yeah, no, I want this too!" They quickly add, their voice half an octave higher. Catra can't help but roll her eyes at her adorable spouse. Adora takes a deep breath, correcting their posture before adding in a more serious tone, "I mean it Catra. Green."

Hearing that word is all Catra needs to know that Adora is being honest.

Her hands find their biceps, and she lets her fingers dig into the rigid muscle. She feels Adora flex for her and laughs; even when Adora is trying to be sexy they're still a dork, which is one of the many reasons Catra loves them. The war drum beating in her head demands something else though.

"In that case, I think it's time to bring out the big girl, handsome."

Catra knows Adora doesn't need to say the words anymore, but the silent look in her eyes is more than enough to tell them that she wants to hear them say it.

"For the honor of Grayskull!"

Catra steps back, watching in awe as Adora grabs the pale blue runestone hanging from their neck by a golden cord. Prismatic light envelopes their spouse, burning away the shadows in the rooms and nearly blinding Catra. She wouldn't cover her eyes for the world though, not wanting to miss a second of Adora turning into her most self-actualized form. Her body expands, gaining over two feet in height as muscles shift like water. The transformation takes less than two seconds, but at the end of it She-Ra is standing before her, clad in the same workout gear Adora was wearing, wavy platinum hair still pulled back into a small ponytail, with the addition of her own mask modeled after Catra's.

They flex and at the sight of Adora's massive, rippling muscles Catra knows she's probably soaked through her pants, especially since she isn't wearing anything beneath them. "Like what you see?" Adora states like Catra's attraction to them is some rule of physics, their voice an octave deeper and rattling Catra's bones. It takes all of her willpower not to falter then and there, her mind barely able to function at the sight of She-Ra.

"About as much as you like me in this," she's able to shoot back as her mind finally catches up with her mouth. Adora tilts their head just a little, letting their eyes trace every inch of Catra's body. Being inspected like this used to scare her, but now it just makes her want to pin Adora to the wall, or get pinned to the wall.

"You sure you still want to spar?" There is a cautiousness in their words that Catra doesn't miss, and it makes her heart soar.

"I'm sure. Ready when you are, big girl."

Catra hears the ground crunch beneath Adora's feet as their stance changes, and she's already moving as they push off the balls of their feet towards her. Dodging to the left, Catra can tell from their form that this isn't a real spar; it's something closer to play-wrestling, or their own version of foreplay.

Adora turns on a dime, somehow able to wheel She-Ra's bulk around fast enough to catch Catra off-guard. Not one to already lose a point, Catra leaps up and over Adora's charging form, but not before she taps them once on the forehead while she's in the air.

As she lands and rolls, Catra hears Adora groan and say something about them being rusty under their breath. Crouching, she can't help but be mesmerized as Adora turns around, cracks their knuckles, and smirks.

Her mind is so clouded with horniness that Catra doesn't notice Adora leaping at her until it's too late. Two fingers make contact with the golden weld of her mask as she leaps backwards, putting the score at one-to-one. Two more for her to win, or to lose. She can do this.

"That was a lucky shot!" she calls out, the banter bounced back at her by Adora's deep laugh sending her heart into overdrive. Like a hammer slamming into bright metal, her heartbeat gives her want form, turning it into the drive she needs to win this competition.

Her ear flicks at the slightest noise of Adora shifting their bodyweight, and Catra bounds forwards on all fours. They lower their stance, ready to catch Catra's jump and toss her aside, but they're too slow as Catra leaps through their arms. She plants both of her feet against Adora's chest, knocking them backwards but not before she taps their forehead again.

Kicking off their chest, Catra lands half a dozen feet away. It feels good to be wearing this uniform again, feeling the armor plates shift with each move like they're a compression shirt and not something designed to take a lethal blow. The tension in her arms is relieving as the compression sleeve keeps her focused on what's ahead, instead of letting her mind wander. The feeling of taut fabric against her thighs and shoulders only serves to fuel the storm surging inside her, the pressure against her breasts closer to lightning arcing over her skin and through her veins.

It's also enough to make sure she can't dodge Adora's next strike in time. Grabbing her shoulders, Adora pins her to the ground and smirks, but not before one of their hands taps her forehead. Massive hands press into Catra's body, flooding her senses with the need to feel them against her bare fur or inside her. Another wave of desire crashes across her mind, and judging from Adora glancing downward and their eyes going wide she's more than soaked through her leggings at this point.

Two-two, each of them a point away from winning. Time to do something bold.

Distracting Adora by biting down on their neck hard enough to pull a moan from their lungs, Catra's hand finds the zipper on one side of her torso and pulls it downwards. In a single motion, she uses Adora's arms as a springboard to shove herself between their legs. It's a clean getaway, and it's pride that fights for control of her heart as she watches Adora stand up, still holding hertop.

Their eyes go wide when they notice Catra's tits, completely on display.

"Well that just isn't fair!"

"All's fair in love and war princess," she shoots back, the smirk on her face making it hard to speak. She cocks one hip just for good measure once she notices the growing wet spot on Adora's own leggings, letting her tail flick back and forth as she prepares for their next move. "If I'd have known this is how you'd react, the war would've been over a lot sooner."

"You say that like you weren't also staring at my biceps while we were fighting." Adora has a point, even if they're being smug about it. Half the time she fought Adora was spent trying to drown her own arousal, and that was only made worse when Adora was She-Ra. Being able to joke about the war like this is nice, helping to calm the jagged edges of Catra's nerves each time her past, their combined past, comes up.

The growing hunger in her core snaps Catra out of her daze, and the look on Adora's face betrays that they're feeling the same thing she is; this needs to end and one of them needs to get fucked now.

Adora charges her, tossing Catra's discarded top aside. Catra readies herself to dodge to the left, but the glint in Adora's eyes stops her short. She tries to leap over them, but at the last second they stand up, using their strong arms to wrap Catra into a hug before spinning and pinning her to a nearby wall. One of their arms drops under her ass to hold her up while the other paws at one of her breasts, enveloping it beneath their hand, but not before tapping Catra's forehead one last time and making her lose the match.

Catra opens her mouth to protest, but all that comes out is a moan of release as Adora's lips find hers and their fingers twist her nipple just enough to send pleasure shooting through her body. Catra wraps her arms around Adora's neck, allowing them to pull her leggings off of her in one, smooth motion,leaving her completely exposed except for her mask, sleeves, and thigh highs. The feeling of having only the most vulnerable, intimate parts of her naked while Adora is still clothes makes her clit throb, demanding her attention. Needing some kind of release, Catra wraps her legs back around their waist and drops a hand to her dripping core, the pads of her fingers already rubbing over her clit. She can feel that she's wet enough that the insides of her thighs are soaked, but that doesn't stop Adora from winding her tighter by spanking her.

Each smack pushes a breathy moan or a high pitched cry for more from Catra, and each one is separated by Adora's fingers digging into her ass at first, getting her ready for the next strike. Soon, though, they're alternating between light hits and harder ones, pushing Catra further and further into subspace with each blow. Wanton lust and the primal need to be filled floods her mind as Catra rubs herself faster until need overwhelms her and she uses her other hand to push two, then three, fingers inside of herself, trusting Adora entirely to keep her from falling. In the distance of her mind, she feels the warmth of healing magic keeping her tender enough that she can keep going but sensitive enough that each spank hurts the exact right amount.

Catra's mind can barely focus through all the noise, her senses dulled from Adora's tongue wrapping and winding around her own, overpowering her and taking complete command of her mouth as her fingers dance across her clit and push against her g-spot. She is yielding everything to them, letting Adora take as much as they want, and they do. Their teeth find her lips, pinching them as Adora's hands conquer her body, claiming her tits and her ass and just all of her as Adora's to use as they see fit.

And yet, there is an undercurrent of love powering the possession. Catra never feels safer than when she's in Adora's arms, and this is no different, even if they're in a different form. In her mind, there isn't a difference between She-Ra and Adora anymore; they are, no matter what, her spouse and she wouldn't change that for the world.

Adora breaks the connection between their lips as healing radiance flows Catra, soothing her aches and keeping her stable. Catra's eyes go wide as she watches the familiar sight of Adora's tattoos, still on proud display as She-Ra, shine with luminous intent as magic is focused through them, the sight only turning her own more as another wave of pre-cum flows from her and onto her hands. Catra keeps fucking herself as she notices Adora staring into her eyes, their cheeks flushed red from straining amorous need, their chest rising and falling to try and catch their breath. Catra isn't doing much better; she's wet enough that she is actually dripping down her wrist, her nipples are screaming for attention, her ass is tender and red from Adora's 'punishment', her mouth is hanging open, and fuck does she need Adora inside of her as much as she needs air in her lungs.

As if Adora can read her mind, Catra feels one of their hands rub against the longer tuft of fur above her crotch, their fingers cutting through tawny fur. At Adora's beckoning, she pulls her hands out and away from herself; she knows what's coming next. Her eyes go wide and her whole body quivers as Adora finally touches her, a single finger running through her wet folds, gathering up more than enough of her pre-cum on it's tip.

Catra notices a smirk crack Adora's facade of the hard, relentless domme as they see just how fucking turned on Catra is for them. Catra wants to say something witty, to try and take back control, but the urge is never fulfilled as Adora presses that finger past her lips and into her mouth.

She-Ra's fingers are large enough that she can only take two at a time, no matter where they are. The taste of her own pre-cum, warm and slick in her mouth, is another fuel-soaked log on the fire. Catra's mind is pushed further into subspace as their finger rubs against her teeth and presses against her tongue.

She gets no time to breathe when Adora pulls their finger out as they move southwards, finding her entrance and pushing inside. Adora filling her only tightens the grip of her need to get fucked senseless, the action pulling a gasp-filled moan from her lungs as her eyes arescrewed shut by pleasure. In less than a second Catra's begging for another finger, every primal urge in her body screaming that she needs to be filled completely.

Adora is more than happy to help, pushing another finger inside her, filling her completely. The burning stretch of being so entirely full is divine, and it's on instinct alone that Catra bears down on Adora with all she has, squeezing around their fingers, trying to get them deeper inside her despite Adora being hilted to their knuckles. They started finger-fucking her in earnest, their fingertips pressing upwards against the inside of her clit, drawing enough wetness from her that she's sure Adora is soaked past their wrist and down their forearm. Catra couldn't care less though, not as she chases down what she knows to be one of the strongest orgasms of her life.

"Fuck— Adora, please— I'm so close!"

As her moans turn to screams, it's with an endless amount of care and affection that Adora takes their fingers out of her. Want and emptiness fill the place that desire and fullness once held. Opening her eyes, Catra starts to protest Adora's treatment until she sees how their expression is painted with love. Their eyes are locked onto her mask, the familiar weight having dissolved into the scenery. Their now free hand traces over the golden weld, and Catra feels the need to hide start to blossom in her chest. She pushes against it, fighting back and reminding herself that this is the whole point, that Adora loves her regardless. It's overwhelming, seeing Adora look at her like this, but she forces herself to stay, reveling in the want behind the initial fear instead.

Their hand travels downwards, following the edge of the mask and then her jaw until gentle, wet fingers hold her chin and guide her eyes to Adora's. Their thumb rubs over swollen lips before pressing inside, forcing her own wetness that had spilled onto Adora's hand into her mouth. Catra is sure she looks desperate, her pupils blown out beyond recognition, the need to be fucked and filled and claimed written on her face and all over her body. She's so exposed like this, her legs forced apart and her body laid bare for Adora to carve into their memory, and she couldn't care less. There isn't any fear or embarrassment and anxiety in her heart—

It's just love.

"Does my prince want any of her toys?"

"Stars— fuck Adora," is all Catra can force out between her gasps for fresh air and more of Adora's scent, musky and filled with the heat of passion and the safety of magic and iron. It's a whimper full of need, one that betrays just how desperate she is.

"Be good for me and use your words," is what Adora commands, but what Catra's brain comprehends is another burning coil of lust wrapping around her entire being, muscles bearing down on emptiness with the screaming need to be stuffed full.

It takes everything Catra has left, but she's able to whimper out a "Please," between moans. The runestone hanging from Adora's neck glows the same bright blue as their eyes do as the familiar feeling of magic fills their air. All of Catra's fur stands on end as the feeling of frisson overpowers her arousal for just a moment while the air turns electric. The familiar weight of handcuffs, a blindfold, and something else filling Adora's hand press against her skin.

In the back of her mind, she wants to make a joke about Adora putting the ability to summon multiple objects to good use, but then Catra feels something rutting between her folds, gathering her slick onto it's head. It's warm but not like skin, and the texture is smoother and with different contours than something more organic. Adora presses the toy into her; Catra feels her muscles release and yield to the insertion as it fills her, inch by inch pushing further inside.

“That’s my good girl,” Adora whispers, the baritone rumble of their voice filling Catra’s torso and forcing a cracked moan from her throat. The sensation of being so thoroughly full drowns her senses as the toy hilts inside of her; a harness forms around Catra’s hips to keep the dildo in place, the pressure against every inch of her constant and unyielding.

Adora continues, “You’re taking everything I have and begging for more,” their words brimming with pride and working to ground Catra. Their hands continue to press pathways into her body, slightly calloused palms running over her breasts, down her flank, across her stomach. They worship her, each movement something closer to a prayer made physical than an act of desire, each touch filled with the need to please. “I’m going to move you now,” they whisper as two hands find the bottoms of her thighs, fingertips digging into taut muscle.

In an instant, Catra is lifted higher in the air, her back is pressing entirely into the cool stone wall. She can’t help but let out a moan at the movement, the toy inside her determined to make even the slightest twitch drowned in pleasure. Even through livewire nerves and boiling pressure, Adora’s hands on her ass are enough to ground her senses so she can feel her legs being placed on their shoulders. On instinct, she grabs the edges of She-Ra’s mask, fingers wrapping around the metal, claiming it as her lifeline as her handcuffs are pulled taut.

What comes next is the feeling of wet warmth against her clit as Adora presses their tongue into her, blinding her mind with cresting passion. Her thighs bear down on Adora’s head, her grip tightening around the mask, it’s dulled edges doing nothing to cut through the fire devouring her mind. Catra can’t help but scream in pleasure, expletives mixed in with Adora’s name running her throat raw.

“Fuck— Ado— Adora fuck I’m—”

She doesn’t get a response, not one she can parse anyway between the pressure of Adora’s tongue against her clit and their fingers against her ass, fingertips toying with her asshole. There is a need in each of Adora's actions, one that translates into Catra's mind as she feels her wetness meld with Adora's spit. Their moans, muffled by Catra's cunt, join in with her own to create a harmony designed only for their ears.

Their fingers carve deeper valleys into Catra's ass as Adora rocks back and forth, their own desperate need for relief not lost on Catra. There's nothing she can do though but hold on as Adora pushes her to the edge.

"Fuck, Adora, I'm so close!" Catra is on the precipice of the amazing, blissful nothingness of orgasm when Adora pulls away again. She can feel their smug fucking grin against her legs and she knows what they're doing, even if that doesn't stop her from begging.

"Adora I swear to the gods if you don't let me fucking come I'm go—" her thought is cut off by the feeling of Adora against her pussy again, their tongue tracing new pathways of pleasure into her body. Every neuron in her brain is firing, each nerve set alight as pleasure flows through her body like fire through dry brush, burning away each ounce of her being as Adora brings her back to the edge only to pull away.

Catra can't take it, not after Adora does it a fourth and then a fifth time. The pressure building within her core is too much, like an explosion that can't be contained, cracking the walls of her body and demanding to be let free. Blazing lava has burned it's way up Catra's spine and into her mind, turning every inch of skin into a conduit for her ardor. Every single one of her muscles is coiled with tension as Adora finally, finally, pushes Catra over the edge of the abyss and into the most powerful orgasm she's ever had.

The world shakes apart as she comes, the foundations of her entire being rewritten as the atoms in her core split apart. Her body becomes nothing more than a vessel for nuclear fission, her cries carving Adora's name into the arena as her leg muscles squeeze so hard they could break bone. Catra's entire world is searing radiance, scalding her with its power.

When she opens her eyes again, the blindfold and handcuffs and toy are gone, and she is cradled in Adora's, not She-Ra's, arms. The next few minutes blur and mix together like water from multiple streams into the same pond. Catra feels Adora's naked body against her own, familiar hands running up and down as the warm water from a shower cascades over her. She hears the gentle affirmations Adora praises her with; "You did so good for me," "You were such a good girl, taking all of me like that," "I love you so, so much," "I'm so fucking proud of you Catra." The emotions of being taken care of are almost overwhelming, but she trusts Adora with everything. She knows they'll take care of her, no matter what.

It's that comfort that lets Catra relax into the feeling of Adora scrubbing her fur down with soap as she comes back to the real world, finally landing with shaky feet on solid ground. Adora is smiling at her, that same smile that she fell in love with so long ago.

The emotion building inside of her isn't dissimilar from the arousal she felt before, but it has it's differences. This one is dull while the former was sharp, this a comforting warmth like a fireplace and not a demanding heat like a forest fire. It's a feeling Catra ran away from for years, too scared that it would burn her despite it's promise of safety. She knows better now, and there is no hesitation as she opens her heart to it.

"I love you too, Adora."

End Notes

Hope you enjoyed!! I have Many Thoughts:tm: about She-Ra being used in bed and I want to expand on them in later fic. Why are there so many fics I need to write? Who let me do this?

I want to give a massive thank you to my betas Ri, Emilee, and Jamie! Taking part in this challenge was an absolute blast, and to the person who this was written for, I hope you enjoyed it!!

Please drop by the Archive and comment to let the creator know if you enjoyed their work!