Summary

Now that Catra has officially joined the best friend squad, Entrapta decides to make Catra some new clothes to wear. (Catradora, Canon, Fluff)

Catra shivered in her room, hugging herself as she waited, starting to grow very impatient. Today, Entrapta had promised her that she was going to make her a new outfit to wear, Catra knowing she was ready to finally start opening up a bit more and not be stuck in these damn quarters all the time.

But Catra had never been a very patient girl. And she was getting really sick of wearing these spare pyjamas of Adora's that she'd been wearing the last few days since being saved from Horde Prime. Anything would be better at this point, even that stupid cultist outfit she'd been forced to wear… okay maybe not that. At the very least, she was heavily considering sneaking off to Adora's quarters and stealing her jacket. Maybe it would finally get Adora to change her outfit for once.

However, Catra knew this was something she had to work on. She should have been grateful that Entrapta was doing this for her as a friend and was willing to be her friend again. After all that Catra had done to the purple-haired scientist, the least she could do was be patient with her.

Soon enough, Catra's patience was rewarded, as finally, Entrapta skipped into the room a few minutes later with a spring in her step. As always, her enthusiasm and excitement was more than anything Catra… or really anyone for that matter could comprehend. It seemed very little would bring her mood down.

"Hey, Catra! Sorry, I'm late, but I have your new clothes ready!" She chirped.

Instinctually, Catra was going to say "About time you got here" but instead, she carefully thought through her response. "Hey, it's alright, Entrapta. And uh… thanks again for doing this for me."

"Anything for a friend!" the scientist cheered. "Oh, I made you a spacesuit as well! Just in case you end up having to do an extra vehicular activity?"

“Extraveh… Oh you mean go outside the spaceship,” Catra realised. “Huh, didn’t ask for that, but thanks for that too.”

“No problem!”

“So… where are my new clothes?”

Entrapta thought for a moment, before her eyes widened… and she facepalmed with one of her hair hands. “Darn, I forgot them in all the excitement! They’re in my room. I’ll just go-”

“Nah, I’ll head down to your room and get them,” Catra replied, hopping off the bed. “Was getting a bit chilly in here.”

“You know you can ask Darla to turn the heat up right?” Entrapta wondered, looking confused.

“I… could?”

“Yeah, I tweaked her voice commands function so now she responds to everyone! Didn’t you get the memo?”

“Apparently not,” Catra admitted.

“Ah, sorry, my bad,” Entrapta quickly apologised. “Well, let’s go get you changed!” She declared, grabbing Catra’s hand with her hair and dragging Catra out of the room and down the hall towards her room. Soon, they arrived and Entrapta headed inside. Catra… was surprised at how messy Entrapta’s room was. Various tools and other bits and bobs just lying around. Unsurprisingly, her bed was tiny.

Catra was about to make a comment, but then again, her room wasn’t exactly spotless either.

Entrapta hopped over to the bed, grabbed the outfit, a red and black garment, and handed it over to Catra. “Here you go! Go and try it on! I’m really excited to see what you think of it!”

Holding it up against herself, Catra blushed a bit in embarrassment. “Uh, where am I supposed to change into it exactly?”

Her friend stared blankly for a moment, before realising what her friend meant. “Oh, right, there’s a changing screen right over there!” She said, pointing towards it.

Nodding, Catra walked over to the screen. “Alright, let’s see what you made for me.” She then went behind it, rather quickly changing into her new outfit. When she was done, she looked over herself, quite admiring the work Entrapta had put into her new attire. If anything… she felt right at home.

Catra’s new outfit looked a lot like the one she’d had during the later stage of the war, a form-fitting black and red outfit, though it lacked the sleeves and felt a bit more casual than that outfit had been. Still, Catra felt comfortable in it and that was the main thing. She was… genuinely surprised at the thought and care that Entrapta had put into it.

Before Catra could say anything, Entrapta bounced over to her, eyes sparkling. “Soooooo what do you think?!” She asked, wanting to hear Catra’s feedback. “Is it to your liking? Is there anything I could improve? I am always open to constructive criticism!"

“It’s uh…” Catra paused a moment, trying to think of a proper response. “It’s… really nice, Entrapta. Thank you.”

Squealing, the purple-haired scientist clapped all four of her hands. “YAY! I’M SO GLAD!” She scooted around Catra. “I made sure the fabric was flexible enough for you and comfortable against your fur. Oh, and I had also had the neckline cover your nape because I noticed you kept trying to cover it with your hair."

A more endearing smile formed on Catra’s face, her eyes dilating. She felt the back of her neck, glad that part of the outfit was partially covering her scar. Entrapta hadn’t needed to go that far and yet she had done. Truthfully told… this was the sweetest thing anyone had done for her in a long time, other than Adora saving her from Prime in the first place.

"Wow um… thanks…" was all Catra could get out, but then Entrapta clung to her, holding her in a warm hug, every appendage of Entrapta wrapping herself around her. Catra's breath hitched, surprised by the hug before eventually, the felid relaxed and hugged Entrapta back. "That… means a lot, you have no idea."

"Actually I do!" Entrapta chirped. "But, I'll keep to myself." She grinned. "You're welcome."

As Entrapta detached from Catra, the door to the room opened as Adora walked inside, both Catra and Entrapta turning to face the blonde. "Hey Entrapta, have you seen…oh!" She smiled at the sight of Catra in her new attire. "Woah, I love the new look, Catra! That's a good outfit!"

Catra shyly chuckled, playing with her tail. "T-Thank Entrapta, she made it."

"Adora actually helped with a few notes!" Entrapta chimed in. "Actually a lot of notes, all of which were helpful! She wanted this to be perfect for you!"

The felid blinked. "You did?"

Blushing a rosy pink, Adora rubbed the back of her head. "It was nothing really, I just wanted to-" Before Adora could finish, Catra rushed over to Adora and hugged her tightly, for a hug that lasted… probably a little longer than it should have, but Entrapta wasn't paying much attention, just stimming with her hair for a moment.

"Thank you, Adora," Catra whispered, still hugging on tightly to her friend.

Adora smiled and hugged back. "Hey, you deserve to wear something nice." She pulled back from the hug, looking at Entrapta and then back to Catra. “So uh, you two hungry? Bow and Glimmer are making breakfast. Glimmer managed to find some bread on this ship and they’re making toast.”

Entrapta looked up, eyes widening. “Oh are they making-”

“Yes,” Adora interrupted Entrapta, giggling. “They’re making tiny toast just for you.”

“Eeeee! Let’s go!” Entrapta cackled madly with glee, zipping out of the room.

Adora and Catra followed her close behind, Catra instinctually holding the blonde’s hand. At that moment she was deftly considering returning the favour and asking Entrapta to design a new outfit for Adora too, but that could wait for another day. She was just glad to be in something more… normal again.

Whatever was going to happen to them from now on, Catra at least knew Adora was going to always be looking out for her, as well as the others that Catra was starting to actually call her friends.
