“Breathe easy, Catra,” Perfuma said softly and sweetly, watching as her friend sat in the same meditative manner as she did.

Catra exhaled slowly, trying her best to calm her thoughts and relax. "Am I doing it right?"

"Yes, don't worry, meditation is very easy when you get the knack for it," Perfuma reassured her.

It had been a few weeks since the war had ended and Catra had gladly taken up Perfuma's offer of helping her work through her issues. Though Perfuma wasn't exactly a qualified therapist, she knew enough about one's mental wellbeing to begin to help Catra untangle the many mental knots she'd been trapped in for much of her life. It was the least that Perfuma could do for the woman who had helped bring Scorpia back to her. So now here they were in Plumeria, Catra taking her first big steps towards a better mental state and becoming a more healed person.

Inhaling and exhaling more, Catra did her best to clear her mind of everything and relax... but she wasn't going to lie, this was harder than it looked. But she wanted to do this, she wanted to better herself... Especially since she had Adora as a girlfriend now. Adora deserved to have her at her best. And suddenly Adora's image filled Catra's mind and the felid was suddenly thrown off her concentration.

"Ugh, I can't," Catra grumbled.

"You can, Catra, I promise you can. Just clear your thoughts."

"Even the ones about Adora and how much I love her?" Catra wondered, opening one eye.

Perfuma giggled. "Well, I'd be lying if said that thoughts about how much I love Scorpia don't fill my mind too when I try to meditate... but it is important for you to fully clear your mind. Once your mind is empty, you can start to feel yourself getting in touch with your inner peace and tranquillity. You become one with the whole universe in a spiritual way."

"Okay, okay, okay, I'll do my best not to think about... anything."

"That's good, Catra," Perfuma replied, smiling sweetly.

However, at that moment, Adora then walked over to the two of them, having also been visiting Plumeria with Catra that day. As the blonde noticed her girlfriend sat on the ground before her, she smiled. "Are you meditating there, Catra?"

The felid grumbled. "I was about to... before your interrupted."

"Yes, Adora," Perfuma insisted. "Catra needs no distractions while she tries to concentrate. It's important for her to clear her mind."

"Ohhhhhh yeahhhhhh... I get that. I'll leave you two in peace then." But as the blonde turned away... her signature smug face formed on her face as a very mischievous thought came into her mind. She remembered back when she and Catra were in space and Adora was trying to figure out how to transform into She-Ra again... and Catra decided to distract her in her usual teasing ways.

And Adora could never pass up the chance for some payback.

"Breathe, Catra," Perfuma said again, guiding Catra through the meditation. "Breathe and relax, empty all thoughts and concentrate on the blank space in your mind."

Catra silently followed Perfuma's instructions, slowly inhaling and exhaling again, doing her best to clear her mind. But then, Adora then leapt over to Catra and plopped into her girlfriend's lap with a smug grin on her face.

"Yeahhhh Catraaaaaaa!" Adora teased, gently scritching Catra's chin, mimicking when Catra had distracted her before with her tail. "Concentraaaaaaate!"

With a low growl and her ear twitching from Adora scritching her chin, Catra tried her best to ignore the blonde, but she was making it very, very difficult.

"Adora, what are you doing?!" Perfuma demanded, glaring at her.

"Helping her concentrate!" Adora remarked sarcastically, still scritching Catra's chin.

"ADORA, GET OFF HER NOW!"

"LOOK SHE DID THE SAME THING WHEN I WAS TRYING TO BECOME SHE-RA AGAIN! I'M ONLY GETTING REVENGE!"

"YOU ARE INTERRUPTING HER STATE OF TRANQUILITY!"

"Yeah, so get off me, dummy!" Catra snapped back, pushing Adora onto the floor.

Adora sighed. "Look, can you blame me if it's fun to mess with you? You do it to me all the time!"

"Yeah well, do it sometime when I'm not trying to meditate , idiot!"

Perfuma then had a thought. "Adora... if you want to spend some time with Catra, would you like to join us for some meditation?"

"Me?" Adora asked, confused. "Wh... I don't need to meditate! I'm the definition of perfect mental health!"

Perfuma shot Adora with a knowing look. "Really? Because I have made a mental list of all the issues you struggle with. You would definitely benefit from a little help too."

"Uhh... what issues… I don't have any issues!" The blonde tried to excuse but an embarrassed redness was creeping onto her cheeks.

The Plumerian Princess stood up and placed her hands on Adora’s shoulders. “Look, I know you and Catra went through a lot in the Horde and, if you like, you can share your feelings with me. You have my word, what you say won't be shared with anyone.” Perfuma’s voice was gentle and soft, making Adora feel at ease.

“I also know how much a toll the war took on you mentally, especially near the end. And I hope you don’t take this the wrong way but I do know that you clearly have issues with your temper and your anxiety, likely stemming from your trauma. You deserve help too, Adora. And I want to help you.”

Perfuma beamed at Adora with those adoring eyes, big and wide and ones the blonde could never say no too. "Okay, okay, you win," Adora said, giving in. "Yeah... I guess a bit of therapy and meditation wouldn't hurt."

Catra smirked. It was nice to see Adora brought down a peg, especially by Perfuma.

Perfuma's sunny disposition returned. "Good! So why don't you take a seat next to Catra and we'll begin!"

Perfuma's sunny disposition returned. "Wonderful! So why don't you take a seat next to Catra and we'll begin!"

Adora nodded and sat down between Catra and Perfuma, crossing her legs in the same position as the two of them. She then followed what Perfuma had been saying earlier and started to breathe easily. She had to admit.... doing this was actually helping her a lot. For the first time in a while, Adora could feel like she didn't have the weight of the world burdening down on her, that she could feel at peace.

As all three women were soon completely in sync with their breathing, Catra found that Adora doing this with her had actually helped her to relax even more. She then opened one eye and then noticed that Adora still had her eyes closed. A little mischievous smile crossed on her face as she then leaned in close... and gave Adora a kiss on the cheek.

The blonde was startled out of her trance-like state, gasping a little, before she then looked at Catra. "Catra."

"What, I'm not doing anything?" the felid said in the exact same tone she had when distracting Adora the first time.

Adora smirked, gently cupping Catra's chin. "Thought you could steal a kiss did you?"

"Maybe," Catra purred as Adora started stroking her fuzz-covered face.

"Well then, if that's what you want," Adora said flirtatiously, before she then tilted Catra's chin up and started to pull her closer.

Catra's eyes shot wide open as she felt her face inch closer to Adora's, her cheeks flushing red and her tail sticking on end. "H-Hey what are you-" Before Catra could finish her sentence... the gap had already been closed between them and Adora was kissing her girlfriend with all the love in her heart.

Giving in, Catra sighed and slowly kissed Adora back, letting the blonde kiss her. She wasn't going to deny... kissing was just as healing as meditation was. Especially when she was kissing Adora. The warm feeling on her lips, Adora’s hands holding her, the blonde knowing she never wanted to be apart from Catra again… to Catra, this was what paradise felt like.

Perfuma opened her eyes and for a moment, thought about interrupting the two of them... but decided otherwise. After all, she was a big believer in the power of love.

It was then that Scorpia arrived. "Hey WIldflower how's Catra... Oh wow." She blushed, seeing Adora and Catra kissing softly. "Should I just uh..."

"No, you can stay my love," Perfuma reassured her girlfriend as she sat down next to her. "It seems those two just have their own little way of healing each other."

"Yeahhh..." Scorpia swooned. "Melts my heart everytime."

Perfuma then smirked and gave Scorpia a kiss as well. "Just like you melt mine."

"Oh gosh..." Scorpia mumbled, blushing bright red, before Perfuma gave her another passionate kiss.

End Notes

So ilikeyoucatradora have been reposting a bunch of their old comics and art lately and I saw a really funny one with Adora messing with Catra while she's meditating and I HAD to adapt it into a fic. I also took a bit of inspiration from an old comic by mondaykilly too. Also a little bit of dialogue came from my girlfriend Cheese too.

Based on a prompt by ilikeyoucatradora

If you liked the fic, please be sure to comment!
