The Ties that Bind Us Together

by AstrynSerene

Summary

I literally just wanted to rewrite the episode Ties that Bind if Adora was there and it turned into this cute little fluff. Enjoy :)

Notes

A oneshot? From me?? Unheard of! XD

“What do you mean Entrapta’s alive?!” Glimmer’s eyes were wide as she stared at the archer.

“I couldn't figure out how the Horde was making such big technological advances. But it all makes sense now. They must be holding Entrapta prisoner. I found First Ones tech in this bot. This is what Entrapta was experimenting on before she…” Bow looked away, shame filling his gut despite the fact he knew there was nothing he could have done.

“We didn’t know.” Bow tried, placing a hand on the princess’ shoulder.

“It doesn't matter. We should have gone back for her. We should've tried. She got captured trying to save us. Well, we're not just leaving her there now. We've got to rescue her.”

“How? Just waltz back into the Frightzone? That’s how we got into this mess in the first place!”

“Maybe we don’t have to. Look.”

Bow’s eyes widened when Glimmer pulled up the map, revealing that, “The Horde took Dryl? No..”

“We just got word. The Horde has Entrapta, now they have Dryl. The timing can't be a coincidence.”

“Of course… they’re making her use her own lab!”

“We're going to Crypto Castle, we'll find Entrapta and bring her back. No Princess left behind.”

“What’s going on?”

The two looked up as Adora stepped in the room.

“Adora? I thought you were training with Light Hope today?” Glimmer asked.

“I was going to, but when I passed by I heard something about Entrapta being alive?”

“Yeah.. I realized the reason the bots were getting so advanced was because they’re using First One’s Tech, and there’s only one person that knows how to use that…” Bow bit his lip.

“And the Horde took Dryl yesterday…” Glimmer added. Adora’s eyes widened, looking down at the floor momentarily.

“We have to go save her then.”

“Are you sure you wanna come with us? We’re the reason-”

“-Glimmer,” Adora approached, gently taking her hand, “We’re in this together. No princess left behind, right?”

The pinkette took a deep breath and nodded, “Right. Alright, let’s go then.”

“Any sign of Entrapta in the castle?” Bow asked once Glimmer appeared next to him and Adora.

“Nope. As usual, that place is impossible to navigate!” Glimmer groaned.

The trio flinched when they heard yawning, peeking out from their hiding spot to see Catra stepping out and stretching before looking at a communication pad in her hand.

"Hello? Please say you're on your way back. I need backup! Entrapta's new invention has lost it!"

"Bot #437 seems to be having some sort of existential crisis. Down, boy, down!"

Catra flinched when the scientist cried out, desperately trying to control her bot, "Pull it together, Kyle. You're fine."

"Stop it! Please, why are you doing this to me?!"

Bow quietly gasped, "Entrapta… she's really alive.."

"And they're hurting her." Adora narrowed her eyes, nodding at Glimmer who growled, before charging forward in an attempt to tackle Catra.

"Where is she?!" Glimmer yelled, blasting a sparkle bomb at the magicat, who grunted and swatted her claws at her.

Adora charged forward when she noticed Scorpia rushing their way, clashing her sword with the scorpioni's pincers.

"Guys we need to get out of here!" Bow exclaimed.

“Get them!” Catra growled when she realized Scorpia had been knocked down by one of Bow’s trick arrows. She growled, running over and grabbing Adora’s arm right as the trio teleported.

“What did you just do to me!?!” Catra shrieked when the four began free falling over the Whispering Woods.

The group groaned as they crashed onto the forest floor. Catra immediately jumped up and rushed at them, but Bow reacted too fast for her, “Get back!” he snapped as he shot her with a net arrow and sent her to the ground.

Adora winced as she watched, taking a deep breath before nodding to Glimmer, who stomped over and grabbed the brunette, “Looks like you’re coming with us, Horde Scum.” She sneered, ignoring Catra as she hissed at her. Adora approached, taking Catra’s arms and pulling them behind her after snipping the net arrow, using the remnants to tie her wrists behind her.

“Gh- Adora!” Catra growled, struggling as she was forced to sit on a nearby boulder.

“Sorry Catra. I can’t take any chances.” Adora sighed, before her eyes landed on the Force Captain’s badge pinned to the brunette’s shirt. She gently unhooked it before crushing it in her hands. Catra’s eyes widened slightly, but she said nothing.

“Uhm..?”

Bow's voice gathered the blonde's attention, "The badges can emit a tracking signal. All she has to do is find a way to press it. If we want to trade her for Entrapta then, we gotta get her to Brightmoon right?"

Catra narrowed her eyes, "Can't wait to get rid of me again can you?"

"What? Catra that is not what I meant-"

"- Save it ." Hissing, the magicat looked away, furrowing her eyebrows.

"Let's just, get to Brightmoon then." Glimmer took Catra's shoulder and made her stand, before beginning to guide her down the pathway, Bow and Adora not too far behind.

The squad was quiet as they led Catra down a pathway alongside a cliff. Glimmer and Adora were around five feet ahead, leaving Bow to guide her. She smirked, suddenly throwing herself forward like she'd tripped.

"Are you alright?" Bow asked, helping her to her feet.

“Like you care.” Catra scoffed.

“We do actually. The Rebellion treats its prisoners with compassion.”

“Ugh. You princess types always have to be the bleeding hearts. Everything is about the power of friendship. How’s that working out for you?”

“Come on, I’m sure even the Horde has friends. What about Adora?”

Catra scoffed.

“You two grew up together right? What was she like as a kid?” Bow flinched when the magicat snarled at her.

“Why don’t you ask her yourself?”

“She’s never really opened up about her past. When it comes to herself she’s pretty closed off.”

That sounded nothing like the Adora that Catra knew. She looked towards the blonde, who had been strangely quiet since they started their journey back to Brightmoon.

"Glimmer and I have known each other forever too. She'd teleport to the roof to get my lost arrows when I was learning to shoot."

" Wow , you two must be really close? Sounds like Glimmer would do anything for you, huh?"

"Absolutely!"

"Good to know!" Smirking, Catra shoved herself forward against Bow and sent them hurdling off the cliff.

"Bow!" Adora and Glimmer gasped, the latter grabbing Adora as she teleported.

"Oh hey, princess!" Catra smirked.

"Ugh! How are you such a nightmare !?"

"Eh, years of practice!"

“Can we please discuss this when we're not hurtling to our deaths?!” Bow exclaimed.

“You know what, I’m ready to see if cats really do land on their feet!” Glimmer glared, grabbing Bow and yanking him to her.

“Glimmer!” Adora snapped.

“What!?”

Glaring at her, Adora lunged forward and grabbed Catra before Glimmer teleported them a few inches above the river below.

With her arms tied behind her Catra immediately tried to push herself more against Adora, eyes wide with panic.

“It’s okay, I gotcha!” Adora assured, holding Catra against her as she swam over to Glimmer and Bow, who were both clinging to a log, the princess panting heavily, “Glimmer! Are you okay?”

“Yeah, yeah, just- needed a minute to rest.” She took a deep breath before igniting her power and teleporting everyone to the bottom of the upcoming waterfall, landing them on the edge of the riverbank.

"Are you okay?" Adora asked, the brunette hissing as she shook herself off.

"I'm fine ."

Adora nodded, looking to the others, who were busily drying themselves off, "You guys good?"

"Yeah, let's just get this Horde Scum back to Brightmoon before she causes anymore problems." Glimmer growled, grabbing Catra's arm and forcing her up off of Adora. Bow could tell the action made both girls mad, their expressions a giveaway if one paid attention like he was.

"Glimmer, maybe just calm down-"

"-No! She's the one who kidnapped us, let the Horde and Shadow Weaver torture us!"

Adora furrowed her eyebrows, frowning. She got to her feet, ringing out her ponytail before stepping forward, "Then don't stoop to the Horde's level. Let's just get home."

Catra noticed Glimmer's hold had shifted to her collar as they started walking, and she smirked. She suddenly lunged forward and licked up Glimmer's arm, causing the princess to scream and let her go. She fell to the ground laughing. Adora managed to stifle her own amusement before anyone noticed, “Put more ropes on her!”

“I don't know about you guys, but I'm beat. Getting held hostage is so much work. Almost as exhausting as torturing Entrapta every day!” Catra exclaimed, smirking as Glimmer continued to drag her up the path.

Adora rolled her eyes at the comment. She didn’t believe it even for a second.

“Just..ignore her..” Glimmer told herself, eyes narrow. She gasped when Catra leaped up, knocking her back as she fell into Bow’s arms.

“You’re looking tired too princess. Running out of glitter?”

“Ugh! How did you take years of this Adora!?”

“Well she didn’t-”

“I’m thinking you didn’t run away from the Horde. You ran away from her .”

Catra hissed, “She-”

“- Didn't run away from Catra. She's the last person I would ever want to leave there!”

Everyone stared at the blonde, who was glaring at Glimmer, “Adora-”

“No! You aren’t gonna just lie to her face like that when you don’t even know the truth!”

Glimmer glared back, “She’s a bad guy, Adora! She’s the reason Princess Prom went the way it did! She led the attack on Brightmoon, she took Entrapta! All she’s ever done is hurt us!” She grabbed the magicat and slammed her into a nearby tree. The brunette groaned when her wrists were crushed behind her.

“Sorry to break it to you, princess . But you are the one who left Entrapta behind to die!”

Glimmer cried out, igniting her hand with magic, “Shut your mouth before I-” She shrieked when she was suddenly tackled to the ground. The princess gasped when she realized Adora was the one who knocked her down, “Adora-”

" Stop Glimmer! You aren't going to hurt her! She's been through enough!" The blonde got off of her, turning her attention to Catra, "Are you okay?"

Nodding, Catra just watched, unable to form words.

"Let's get back to Brightmoon, and deal with it there before someone does something they'll regret?" Bow suggested.

"Sure. Whatever." Glimmer grumbled.

Catra grunted as she was pushed into the 'holding cell' of the castle. She looked up at Adora as the blonde sat her down on a chair that was way too soft to be for a prisoner, "Adora…"

"Yes..?"

"I… I uhm…" The brunette looked down at the floor, "Thank you.." She mumbled, "For helping me…"

Adora smiled, "Of course. I wasn't gonna let her hurt you." She reached back and untied the ropes restraining her. Catra looked at her with wide, glossy eyes. Slowly, she leaned against the blonde, curling up against her side.

"I'm sorry…"

"I'm sorry too…" Adora started to gently caress her hair, "You don't have to go back there you know…"

Catra sniffed, "Yes I do…"

"Why..?"

"Because Entrapta and Scorpia are there…"

That made Adora smile, "How about this, we can work with the Rebellion to rescue them? I'm sure we can find a way to meet with them and explain everything. I'm sure they'll come back with you." The blonde was surprised when Catra began to cry. She immediately wrapped her arms around the brunette.

"T-Thank you…!"

"Of course, Catra…" Adora gently bumped her forehead to Catra's, drawing a purr out of the latter, "So… will you stay..?"

Nodding, Catra wrapped her arms around the blonde, “What about..?”

“I’ll deal with Glimmer and Bow okay? Either they accept you, or I’ll- I’ll leave with you.”

That made Catra gasp. She clung to Adora, quietly crying into her shoulder.

Adora wasn’t sure what would happen once she talked to the others, but she knew one thing for certain- she would stick by Catra’s side no matter what.
