Under the Evening Light

by AstrynSerene

Summary

Adora remembered when she appreciated summers more. When the word ‘summer’ sparked joy and excitement, signaling that the school year was over and she had a few months to be free from school work to spend with her family, with friends, with..

Catra. The name alone would never not make her heart do funny little flips in her chest or fail to bring a smile to her face. The brunette had been her best friend for as long as she could remember, despite how differently they had grown up, despite what other people had thought of their relationship. They didn’t let anything stop them. Growing up together had meant a lot of things. It was nights of curling up under pillow forts to tell silly stories with their stuffed animals as small kids, to sneaking out to go see an R-rated movie as teenagers, to slow dancing under the stars as high school sweethearts at their senior prom.

Now, they were in their twenties living together in a penthouse overlooking Brightmoon.

Notes

Finally posting again! I decided to participate in Tippen's Summer SPOPtacular event this year! A lot of these will be cute little ficlets, and some of them will be a little bit longer, but I hope you enjoy them all nonetheless!

The first prompt we got was "Cuddling"! (The original was different, but this was an alt and I wanted to it instead :))

Catra. The name alone would never not make her heart do funny little flips in her chest or fail to bring a smile to her face. The brunette had been her best friend for as long as she could remember, despite how differently they had grown up, despite what other people had thought of their relationship. They didn’t let anything stop them. Growing up together had meant a lot of things. It was nights of curling up under pillow forts to tell silly stories with their stuffed animals as small kids, to sneaking out to go see an R-rated movie as teenagers, to slow dancing under the stars as high school sweethearts at their senior prom.

Now, they were in their twenties living together in a penthouse overlooking Brightmoon. Adora had a job at her family’s business. Her father had started a research pharmaceutical business that her entire family worked at. Catra was in her last year of college, now just under a year away from getting her education degree. She’d always wanted to be a teacher, to help kids in ways that teachers hadn’t helped her growing up. Still, the two were extremely busy most days, which wasn’t the best thing for a young couple. They spent as much time as they could together between their hectic schedules.

With a sigh, Adora leaned against the wall of the elevator as it rose through the building towards the penthouse. When the elevator doors pulled open, she walked out into the hallway, digging her keys out of her pocket and unlocking the door. She stepped inside, the smell of tuna casserole hitting her nose before she even closed the door. A smile tugged at her lips as she pushed the doors closed, “Catra?” She called, slipping out of her shoes and dropping the keys into a bowl on the console table before making her way into the kitchen. A light blush covered her face as she saw her girlfriend in the kitchen. She had her curly hair tied up in a messy bun, a white apron covering her black leggings and maroon tank top. She was leaning against the counter, scrolling through a recipe on her phone.

Catra looked up when she heard her name, smiling when she spots Adora, “Hey, Adora.” She purrs, setting her phone down on the counter before walking over and wrapping her arms around the blonde’s shoulders, “How was your day?”

“Much better now.” Adora smiles, kissing Catra’s forehead, her hand sliding down her side and squeezing her hip.

With a giggle, Catra stood on her tiptoes and nuzzled Adora’s cheek, letting out a tiny ‘mrrp’, “Still stuck playing your parent’s secretary?”

“Unfortunately.” Adora sighs, “But mom did spend some time showing me some interesting samples today and giving me a few of them to study in my free time.”

“Sounds fun. You should try to get yourself to Entrapta’s department. You’d never be bored again.” Catra laughs.

“That- that is true.” Adora grins, “I’d probably be overwhelmed with information though.”

The magicat chuckled, kissing her cheek before stepping back towards the oven, “Dinner is almost ready. I made mi papi’s tuna casserole.”

“It smells amazing, I can’t wait.” Adora smiles, “Should I set the table or get the TV trays?”

“Definitely the TV trays. It’s been a long day and I’m looking forward to cuddling and watching a movie.”

Laughing, Adora kisses Catra’s cheek before making her way into the living room. She grabs the trays that were leaning against the wall, setting them up next to each other in front of their couch. She smiles when she sees Melog, their cat, curled up on a pillow in the corner of the couch, sleeping peacefully. Humming, she makes her way back to the kitchen, watching Catra fix two plates of casserole. Adora grabbed some napkins, silverware, and two bottles of sparkling water as the two made their way into the living room together, setting up the trays before sitting down next to each other. Catra turned on a random movie channel before starting to eat. Adora smiled after the first bite, “Amazing as always, my love.” She praised, leaning over and kissing her cheek.

“Thank you.” Catra smiled, blushing lightly. The two eat, occasionally feeding Melog a piece of tuna when they woke up and started mewling at the couple.

After eating, the two simply pushed the trays a bit away from the couch for now, wanting them out of the way, before laying down on the couch together. Adora propped some pillows up for her head, getting comfortable as Catra curled up on top of her, gripping onto her shoulder, her tail swaying back and forth across Adora's legs. A purr started once Adora pulled a blanket over them both before wrapping her arms around Catra. Sighing, the blonde started rubbing Catra's back, "I love you, Catra. So much…" She whispered, kissing the top of her head, "I'm sorry we don't get as much free time together as we would like…"

"Don't apologize. We have a lot going on, you have a lot going on, but you still always make some time in your day for me, no matter what's happening. I love you too. You're everything to me."

Smiling, Adora kissed the top of her head again, "I love you, and I promise, we'll take time for a vacation soon. Have some time for just us. We need a week for ourselves. It's been too long."

"That sounds amazing…" Catra mumbles into Adora's shirt, tightening her hold on her girlfriend's shoulder, "I should have some time off once midterms are over…"

"Perfect." She smiles, reaching up and starting to pet behind Catra's ears. The reaction was instantaneous, Catra mewled and her body relaxed as she started to close her eyes.

“Mmm… you spoil me, princess…” Catra mumbled, lightly scent marking her shoulder.

Relaxing herself from the lightly possessive gesture, Adora closed her eyes as well. Before they knew it, the two of them were asleep, cuddled in close and putting their busy careers behind them, even if it was just for that night.
