Into You

by Jingujiwa

Summary

"Hate? Vigor? Animosity? I know, I can hold a grudge."

Adora smiles at her, humming. "I like that in a girl."

"What, abrasiveness?" She looks to the side quickly, maybe a little more put down than she likes. She realizes she has sharp edges, and a lot of not-so-justified anger to those she feels have maybe wronged her in some way. It's definitely not her best characteristic. Still, Adora continues to smile at her like the sun, like there's nothing wrong with that.

"Passion. Decisiveness. Sarcasm," she counters. Catra huffs. "I like someone who's strong-minded, who knows what she wants, and isn't afraid to voice her opinion. Or maybe I just love those things because of you."

Sanctuary Prequel: The Confession

See the end of the work for more notes

Catra’s filing her nails at her desk when Adora finally returns from the gym, opening the door so loudly she jumps in her seat as she’s interrupted from her own spinning head. Adora doesn’t seem to even notice as she strides in, confident, smile growing wider once she sees her sitting at the desk. Catra doesn’t smile back, not yet. All she can think at the moment is that she doesn’t know what happened yet.

"Hey!" The blonde calls as she closes the door behind her, heading into their room and not even checking the wall to see if she left any damage from the door. Catra can swear she can smell her gym sweat as she walks closer to her little corner of the room, duffle slung over her shoulder.

"Hey, how was the gym?" It's tacky, a little too absent as she calls back, but she doesn’t really know how else to talk to her right now. She hopes she won’t notice. Not after what her frilly friend yelled earlier before she stormed away.

“She hasn’t messaged back all day, then when we go to check on her to make sure she’s okay all you are is fucking rude! I cannot believe she’s into you!”

Catra’s eyes go wide, trapping her body effectively in place in its path back inside. Her mouth is moving before she can stop herself and actually think through what to say next. “Wait!”

They both stop in their tracks. Bow stares back at her with wide eyes, hand placed on Glimmer's shoulder like he realized her mistake before she did.

"Adora's into me?"

Adora laughs as she throws her duffle bag down on the floor by her dresser. She can hear the sound of her metal water bottle hitting the wood as it collides with the floor. "Same as usual. Some guy did try to hit on me, though. Then he got all butthurt when I told him I was a lesbian, then said he could out-lift me. Totally embarrassed him in front of, like, four other people," she boasts as she kneels in front of their mini fridge to grab a Pedialyte.

Catra snorts at that. The blonde's cockiness is one of her favorite attributes, especially with how much she tends to downplay herself. "Nice."

"I did help him later because he almost dropped the bar on himself."

Catra groans and rolls her eyes as she drops her head against the back of the chair. "Ugh, Adora! Stop being nice to rude ass people all the time!"

She just shrugs as she takes a giant-sized gulp of her drink. "Being kind makes the world better. I think he learned his lesson."

Catra, reasonably, can't stop herself from rolling her eyes again. "Okay, miss sugar queen," she jests.

Adora doesn't return the jab as she smiles at her and continues to nurse her drink. Catra picks up her nail file again at the same time Adora takes her phone out of her bag and inadvertently watches as she turns it back on. Who the hell turns off their phone to go to the gym anyway?

Almost comically on cue, all her notifications start ringing through her phone and pouring in like a tragic chain of events- but only for popular people, and Catra is bluntly reminded once again just how different the two of them really are. No matter how hopeful she let herself get earlier after her friend dropped that on her earlier, Adora would never actually go for her and mean it. Not really. After all, she has a reputation to uphold as the star player and Captain of her soccer team and miss popular. A ton of other students on campus know who she is and are downright desperate to get her attention. She's seen it. She doesn't want to be seen with Catra. She would've done something at any time in the past few years if she really wanted to and dating your lifelong best friend is weird, right? Childhood best friends don't make it forever. If they do, they get old enough to watch each other marry other people.

Catra quickly realizes she needs to derail her train of thought.

"Oh yeah, your annoying ass friends came looking for you earlier. Literally ruined my afternoon nap," Which they actually did because there was absolutely no way in hell she was falling asleep again after that.

"Bow and Glimmer?" She asks, tilting her head adorably.

Catra shrugs. "If you wanna call them that."

Adora rolls her eyes as she starts scrolling through her messages.

She very quickly gets another sickening feeling- one telling her to be alert as Adora scrolls down through her notifications. After what happened she'd be surprised if her friends didn't text her about it. Actually, if she didn’t have her phone off, would she have even come back? She probably would've seen the message and run as far away from here as possible. She gives it a good solid minute before she shifts her gaze over to where she's standing, continuing to file her nails with the goal to be as discreet as possible, so Adora won't pick up on her waiting for her reaction.

Soon enough, Adora's face turns ghostly white as she reads through her phone, staying stock still as if time just froze in their stuffy little box of a dorm room. Her eyes drift over to Catra's, meeting her gaze before slowly crouching to unpack her duffle bag, as if moving slowly is going to cover the fact that she's now moving like an un-greased robot.

Adora clears her throat awkwardly. The sound echoes in their room. "What, uh- what did you wanna do for dinner?"

Catra folds her arms, leaning back in her chair and feeling incredibly small and hopeless at this moment. "I don't really feel like going to the dining hall tonight," which she frankly never really does because the amount of money they give this place doesn't seem to affect anything.

She notices how Adora's arm momentarily falters in its movement. "Yeah, me either. We could order in?" She also doesn't miss how she breathes in before turning to Catra from where she's kneeling on the ground. "Or I could…leave."

Catra sets her jaw, trying to keep her emotions reeled in. "Do you want to leave?"

"No. I mean, not unless you want me to?"

"Why would I want you to?"

Her hand moves to the back of her neck. One of her nervous tics. "Just…if you wanted space, tonight. Sometimes you do, so. Just an option."

"Why would I need space tonight?"

"I kind of want Vietnamese. Do you want Vietnamese for dinner?"

Catra takes a moment to debate whether or not she wants to keep pestering her about it right now, but eventually, she chooses to follow the change of subject in lieu of food on the other side. They can wait until after they eat to talk about it. If they choose to talk about it.

"That sounds fine."

She exhales, sitting down on the floor and pulling up the delivery app on her phone. "Same place?"

Catra nods.

"Same thing?”

She nods again. "Thanks," she mumbles this time.

Adora glances at her as she scrolls through her phone to get to their preferred restaurant. They don't say anything to each other for a while after that. Adora orders their food in silence before standing and quickly blurting she’s going to take a fast shower before it's supposed to get here, taking her phone with her on the way.

Catra remains at her desk, letting Adora go in silence as she reaches for her black gel polish.

[What do you mean she knows??? How does she know??]

[Well irs kind of a long story]

[It's not. Glim told her.]

[WHY WOULD YOU TELL HER]

[she made me mad and it slipped!! I didn't mean to tell her!! Also anyway WHO CARES. This is your opportunity!! Also, B OW!!!]

[I care! I didn't really want her to know that Glimmer!]

The chat is silent for a moment longer until Bow responds.

[Adora, what are you afraid of? What if she likes you back?]

[And what if she doesn't! We live together! Do you know how awkward that would be living with someone you know likes you like that? And if she doesn't? our friendship is over.

We've been friends for so long you guys. I love you both so much, but she's my best friend. It's always been us since kids.]

She breathes in after she types out her next message, thumb hovering over the send button in a short moment of hesitation.

[I can't lose her]

The chat is silent again. She knows they're with each other right now, probably talking about how useless she is before sending their next message.

[Adora, we understand. But if you don't say something you'll definitely never know. Also, her reaction really seemed to say otherwise. We have our evening lecture now so we won't be able to respond much anymore but we'll try <3]

Adora smacks her head against the bathroom wall as the chat falls silent, standing there and letting the messages from her friends seep in.

" Joder ," she spits. She wants to scream as loud as she possibly can, to just stand in the middle of this horrible gray and white room and let out all of her frustration, but she can't. Not with her virtually on the other side of the door. Catra would obviously be able to hear her and immediately put two and two together because she's fucking smart like that, and she doesn't need to make things worse than they already are. And they are. She saw her watching her from the corner of her eye as she started going through her phone, and she knows it was to wait for her reaction to the inevitable text she knew she was going to get about earlier. She has half a mind to call her friends right now and demand them to explain what happened to even justify why that information would have even come up in the first place, but she knows they won't be able to answer. She'd just be wasting her time and building up her nerves.

Catra isn't hiding from her, though. That's good, right? Sometimes when she's overwhelmed, or when she has one of those bad days and when she just needs a little space, she'll go somewhere like the study room down the hall or somewhere across campus. But she’s still here, still talking to Adora and willing to eat dinner with her. But, It could also be possible that during her time at the gym, in between whatever the hell happened with her and her friends, she ran through her own scenarios and decided she's going to tell Adora that she wants to live separately for the rest of uni, and…

And for the first time since they were kids, Catra might just want space from Adora.

And now Adora no longer feels anger. What she feels now is pure, unaccompanied sadness. Adora could lose her whole world tonight.

As she dwells, she remembers she needs to turn on the shower or Catra will just get more suspicious with the continued length of silence from the bathroom. She tears her gym clothes off and haphazardly throws them towards the shared bathroom hamper before stepping in, letting the cold water flow over her face until she’s pressing her forehead against the cool tile wall and sighing again.

She should have never gone to the gym today.

When she comes back into their room, Catra’s lying on her bed under her favorite dark brown knit blanket, facing the wall and texting on her phone. The UV light she used for her nails still sits on her desk, and her fuzzy black slippers are on the floor beside the bed. She gets a notification that the food is supposed to be there in five minutes, so she quickly throws on a loose tank bra, t-shirt, boxers, and sweatpants before grabbing slippers from her closet. She yells that she's going to grab the food and will be right back before bolting out the door to meet them outside. When she comes back Catra is sitting up with her blanket wrapped around her like a cape, but still texting on her phone. She locks it as she hears her enter and places it to the side, but keeps her eyes low as Adora approaches.

Adora pretends that it doesn't bother her.

She sets the bag on her own desk before ripping it open and handing Catra her food and drink first in which she supplies a whispered thanks. She sits down at her desk with her own and briefly debates if snapping her phone in half would be worth it. "Anything new to watch?" She asks in the most put-together voice she can muster. It’s an attempt at normalcy, at routine. Something to get her mind off what's currently happening to them.

To her surprise, Catra nods as she finishes chewing her first bite of fishcake. She got her extra this time. She wonders if she notices. She hopes she doesn't find it too overbearing. "There's a new ghost-hunting video if you wanna grab my laptop."

Adora smiles, thankful for the small intervention, and grabs her laptop from her black book bag and sets it on the desk, opening it and quickly typing in the passcode for it. She angles it so that Catra can see it from where she's sitting on her bed, and she pushes her desk chair back to sit against her bed frame.

The video is watched in more silence than is usual for them. They typically like to sit and critique everything together. Ghost shows and podcasts tend to be their go-to when they want to watch something, but if there's nothing new they tend to just browse for something that seems interesting. She finds herself missing her cute laughter and the way she'll poke fun at the smallest things- especially when she says she doesn't believe and then stares with interest at each word. It's the type of silence that makes Adora's skin crawl. But Catra is still watching it with her, so she'll take what she can get right now. Time continues to slink by throughout the video, and it isn't until about twenty minutes in that she decides to make the first move.

"Why were they so pushy about finding you earlier?"

"Oh, uhh," she stalls, shoveling in another bite of her food. "They've been trying to figure out their living situation next year," she answers, eyes still focused on the screen in front of them.

Adora's mouth shuts on her fork then, and she turns to look at the brunette who's now staring at her with an empty, impassive stare.

"You're living with them next year?"

Adora feels her stomach drop at the almost perfectly concealed break in her voice and fuck. "No! They've just been asking me about it and I haven't been able to answer them yet," she stands abruptly, almost throwing her food on the floor before she remembers to grab it at the last second. She loses a few bits, but she can't be bothered to care about it right now. "They were probably being so pushy because they need to answer the property manager soon, but I wanted to talk to you first."

She hates how heartbreakingly meek she sounds when she responds. Her chest pulls when she hears her voice. "You don't want to live together anymore?"

"No! That's not it! I wanted to talk to you about it first to see if you wanted to live with them. We've both just been so busy, I... The place has a four-bed apartment option. Two bedrooms are single and the third has two beds. I was thinking, if you wanted to, we could do that one?" She rattles everything off without stopping to breathe, like if she takes too long to explain she'll lose her chance.

Catra huffs, looking to the side. Her freshly manicured nails picking and poking at the holes in her chunky knitted blanket as she thinks. "I really don't think your friends like me after today," she mutters.

She lowers her shoulders as she exhales. "Well, it's both of us or nothing. If they want me, they'll have to get used to you," she pauses awkwardly. "Which they would. You guys would get along, you know. Especially you and Glimmer. It's probably why you fight so much, actually..."

Catra smiles at her timidly, continuing to poke at her blanket as she mulls it over in her head. "This isn't some pity offer, right? You actually want me?"

Adora's shoulders slump, blue eyes keeping steady with hers as she speaks. "Of course, Catra. You or nothing."

A moment longer passes until she speaks again. Her eyes refocus on Adora’s as she lets our a short huff. "I'd love to," she smiles.

Adora smiles back brightly, her mood instantly skyrocketing at her gentle smile. This is good, right? Catra wanted to eat dinner with her and now she still wants to live with her. This is great, actually. "I'll let them know,” she says, whipping out her phone from her pocket before she stops talking. She types a quick message to send to her group chat.

[Catra and I are down for the apartment]

[So it went well??]

And this is just how easily Catra can completely enamor her, how she can completely derail her train of thought by simply looking at her in really any way because she's just that pretty. Adora can feel her nerves slowly creep up on her again as they refocus their attention on the food and the video still playing before them. They missed quite a few minutes, but Catra doesn't seem to mind so she decides not to bring it up at the risk of more uncomfortable conversation. She may have agreed on the apartment, but that doesn't change how she feels now if she feels any type of way. She definitely knows. She prides herself on knowing her tells and looks better than anyone, yet this is one she can't seem to decipher. Gods, everything is putting her on edge tonight.

Adora busies running through scenarios over and over again in her head. One: they move in together. Everything starts fine and they never talk about what happened while Adora was at the gym. Eventually, Catra starts seeing someone and she stops coming home more and more. Adora plummets. Two: they talk about what happened. Adora admits she has feelings for Catra-deep ones. Like, bone-deep , and for however long. Catra is upset she kept this from her, asks Adora to give her space, and eventually drops out of the apartment for feeling like sharing a room would be too awkward. Catra stops coming around. Adora plummets. Three: Adora tells Catra the truth and Catra…Catra…

"You're not even paying attention anymore." Adora jumps in her seat and Catra sighs, seemingly at her reaction, and closes up her food container while throwing her empty drink in the trash.

"I am!" She assures, turning to face Catra. She still has quite a bit of food left on her plate. "Just thinking about the apartment," she laughs awkwardly.

Catra's eyes are sad as she looks at her. "Can you just, say something about it, please?"

"The apartment?"

She refocuses into a glare.

"I…what do you want me to say?"

"Anything! Like, literally, anything. The floor is completely yours, Adora."

"Catra," she laughs awkwardly, looking anywhere else but her, blue eyes scanning the room for anything else to latch on to. "I don't know what you want me to say. I don’t-"

She looks at the other girl now, finally, and she looks furious.

"Are you kidding?" She growls, heat accentuating each word. She stands, throwing her blanket off herself and clenching her hands at her sides, facing Adora as her figure tenses, shoulders raised in anger. "I have been waiting all day for you to come home, to just- placate my fears, explain what your damn friends meant but you've been distant ever since you saw that message and I have absolutely no idea what I'm supposed to do or say here! And now you're here telling me it's you or nothing, all nonchalant and getting me all worked up because that should mean something, right? It should mean something when your best friend refuses to live anywhere without you, when you share everything, and when she knows your favorite restaurants and orders from each of them by heart and share- share everything with! But- but, she looks at you like you mean something, really mean something to her, then is too embarrassed to tell her, or even confirm what her friends said even after she knows that she knows. And it makes you feel so small, and pitiful, and worthless because the best you can do is just let it happen while sitting there like an absolute idiot who continues to blindly love her while she doesn't even-" She freezes, a cold chill washing over like a bucket of ice was just dumped on her. Oh. Maybe she and Glimmer would get along.

Adora, reasonably, looks dumbfounded. Staring at her with clear shock, lips parted and eyes wide like the prettiest set of moons as she stares at her. It takes her a few moments to gather herself, stuttering out her words as Catra remains frozen in her gaze. "You…love me?"

Catra laughs, a type of laugh that almost borders on crying, bringing her hands up to cover her face. She sounds as though she can’t believe it. "You're such an idiot," she mumbles between fingers. Her chest burns. She can’t help but feel embarrassed at her own admission, at her own display of weakness. She can’t stand that she tore her own chest open like that just to bear the insides with the very real possibility of being rejected. She’s never been one to put her heart on her sleeve, yet here she’s done it twice in one day.

The taller girl steps forward, still in shock, gently placing her hands around the brunette's wrists. Just soft enough not to startle her. But Catra could feel her approach and when skin meets skin she lets her drag her hands down just enough that her stunning eyes peak through the tips of her fingers.

"I'm not embarrassed of you, I could never be. God, I- I was afraid that if I told you, you might not feel the same, and the next week you would be gone. I-I was afraid of losing you, Catra."

"Oh, Adora," she cries, letting out a curt laugh. “How could you not think I liked you?"

She stares down at Catra with furrowed brows. She can’t help but simply roll her eyes at her, like this is the most obvious thing in the world.

"We share a hamper and do each other's laundry just because. We know all of our favorite foods and places to eat and all of our tics and little mannerisms and passcodes and give each other gifts and, fuck- Adora, we've laid in each other's beds together to watch videos."

"Friends do that!"

"Adora," she leans in. "We've practically cuddled. Last week my head was on your shoulder while we watched our show. When have you ever seen me do any of that with anyone else?"

Her mouth opens but she stops just as quickly, unable to form the words that are stuck in her throat. When she finally concedes, her expression falls into one born of softness and warmth.

"God, Catra…I think we're already dating."

Catra laughs out loud now, high pitched and a bit squeaky, cheeks turning rosy pink as little tears form in the corner of her shining eyes. Her hands still remain in the blonde's lax grip.

"I've loved you since we were six, y'know. You yelled at that bitch Samantha for breaking my crayons when we were coloring, and when she went and cried to the teacher you stood your ground and said she 'should've been nicer if she didn't want hers broken too' . It was so ridiculous, but it was the first time I had ever seen anyone stand up for me like that. It started to fade as we got older and I thought it was just a dumb, childish crush, but- then it was Adora I knew, and it was a whole new type of love I felt. All of those old and new feelings came back on me tenfold. And every day since then I've kept finding more facets of her that I want to love, and just keep loving." And gods, does she feel like a pile of mush right now.

As she looks up at her shyly, cheeks burning, she recognizes that Adora's crying. Tears rolling down her face and everything. She looks like the victim of a sappy, poorly-written rom-com on the soap channel that got lucky enough to find the most beautiful actress ever. She laughs as she catches her gaze. "I can't believe decades later you still talk about that crayon thing with such, such…" she sends Catra a quick look for help.

"Hate? Vigor? Animosity? I know, I can hold a grudge."

Adora smiles at her, humming. "I like that in a girl."

"What, abrasiveness?" She looks to the side quickly, maybe a little more put down than she likes. She realizes she has sharp edges, and a lot of not-so-justified anger to those she feels have maybe wronged her in some way. It's definitely not her best characteristic. Still, Adora continues to smile at her like the sun, like there's nothing wrong with that.

"Passion. Decisiveness. Sarcasm," she counters. Catra huffs. "I like someone who's strong-minded, who knows what she wants, and isn't afraid to voice her opinion. Or maybe I just love those things because of you."

She blushes. "What is this? I admit my feelings and suddenly you're Ms. Suave?"

Adora leans down closer to her, a cocky smirk plastered on her face. "Or maybe I just have a thing for brunettes."

"Then I better make sure you don't know any."

She leans in closer. "Catra."

"Adora."

She grins. Her face is so close now she can feel the ghost of her warm breath across her skin, the small hook of her nose so close to touching her own. "Can I kiss you?" She breathes.

Her breath hitches, suddenly finding her throat incredibly dry. "Please," she whispers.

Adora's lips are on hers instantly, warm and enveloping and capturing hers in a soft but steady kiss, the kind that makes you feel fully encompassed in the other person's presence. Catra never thought she would ever find herself eager to embrace such a feeling but with Adora, always with Adora, she can’t help but welcome it. The blonde’s sturdy hands snake their way up to the curve of Catra's neck, resting there as she goes back in again and again, gently pressing deeper each time her lips move. Catra quickly feels her head swimming, lost in the feeling of her perfectly plush lips pressing against hers, taking the lead with every move. Every time she opens her lips, every time she presses forward, Catra can do nothing but give in to her. Kissing her feels like a dream, one she's had too many times to count, and if it wasn't for her strong hands holding her head in place she's sure she would've fallen back onto her bed by now. It's the type of kiss that makes you feel delightfully lost in yourself. One that if you know you'll fall, you trust the other to catch you.

She finds herself twisting her fingers into Adora’s t-shirt, searching for something to hold onto as she lets herself succumb deeper into the feeling. She's dreamed of this so many times she can't bother to stop herself and make sure it's really happening. What would she do, anyway? Pinch herself? Her hands start to drift, one moving around the side of Adora’s hip and without meaning to, pushing the shirt up. The other drifting up towards her collar, resting her hand there before sliding it down her shoulder. Adora hums lightly as she takes the opportunity to push in deeper again.

When she presses forward this time they do end up losing their footing. Catra’s knees hit the back of her bed and she falls against it as Adora's arms come down around her sides. The look on her face is nothing short of smug as they part, and Catra very well knows that it was more than intentional.

She can’t help the giddy giggle that escapes her. "Trying to get me in bed already?" It's a playful joust, maybe a little hopeful on her part, but the way Adora's face falls flat makes them both freeze in their tracks.

"I…"

"I want you, Catra. So badly. But I don't want to rush you." She brings her hand up to her cheek, cupping it there as her thumb traces over her cheekbone lightly. Catra feels her body grow comfortably warm at the decisiveness of her words. "I'm happy with whatever you want to do, I promise. I'd rather die than make you uncomfortable. And I-"

"I want to," she interrupts. "I've wanted this for so long. God- you have no idea how long I've wanted this. But… something simple. I want to take our time, do all those little things people do in relationships, explore, and go with whatever feels right in the moment. I want to do all that with you. I've always wanted to do that with you."

Adora smiles down at her from overhead. The light brush of air as she exhales, the gentle underlying scent of her vanilla deodorant, the lingering scent of her lavender body wash, and the size of her compared to her own smaller frame is all incredibly, dangerously intoxicating.

"I'll give it to you," she whispers, leaning back down to Catra's face and pressing butterfly kisses near her eyes that she didn't know were still wet. "I'll give you anything you want. I'll never stop taking you on dates," on her nose. "I'll buy you the prettiest flowers," her cheeks. "Court you." her jaw. "I don't care if it's corny, you deserve it. You deserve everything I can give you and more."

She sighs, angling her head with the press of Adora’s lips. "I-I'm sorry if you had big plans for tonight, I just can't, everything at once-"

"I told you I'm happy with whatever you'd wanna do. I promise you. Also, I never could have predicted we'd even kiss tonight so I have no idea where I'm going with this."

Catra laughs, a high-pitched, squeaky giggle , and Adora's stormy blue eyes fall down to scope her face.

“I've never done this before,” she whispers, eyes still lingering on everything yet nothing at the same time. Caressing her features almost like she’s mapping every single freckle on there.

Catra can't fight the pull in her chest. She can't deny herself that she's happy Adora may not have been interested in anyone else- because she can't imagine people wouldn't be begging on their knees for her with a personality and body like that. Yet here she is with Catra. Wanting her, wanting to be with her in this incredibly personal and intimate way that makes her heart fly and her skin burn. A small part of her wishes, hopes, that Adora was the same as her. That she didn't want anyone who wasn't her. Couldn’t want anyone that wasn’t her.

“Me either. I tried, but…they didn’t come close to you, I guess.”

She hums. “How sappy of you.”

Adora's eyes are hooded again, looking at her with such hunger she can't help but lean in to, craving more.

“Are you sure?” she prods again, and Catra doesn’t mind it. The furthest thing from it, actually. She craves this, the attention, the care, the understanding her best friend always shows her. She said it earlier. Their facets, their tics, and their mannerisms are their own unspoken language to them. Adora will never take more than what Catra’s comfortable with, and Catra will always, always, do the same.

"I just want you, please"

"Soy tuyo,” she exhales, almost like she’s breathing a promise. “Any way you want me, you have me. C’mon," she stands, giving Catra room to scoot back onto her bed as she follows behind her. She pulls down her comforter and blankets for her before she lays back down, head resting on her pillow as she comes to lean over her again, frame moving over her as if to protect her from the light of the room.

Their lips meet once again with Adora taking the lead and Catra falling all too willingly into it. The palms of her hands slide up her neck eagerly, resting just under her ears with her thumbs on her cheekbones and fingers woven into her straw-blonde hair. Which, speaking of…

Without breaking the kiss she moves her hands behind her head. Adora only lets out a curious hum as she finds the band of her ponytail and swiftly pulls it from her hair and transfers it to her wrist before sliding her hands back down. Adora doesn't seem to mind the change, and she certainly doesn't mind the way her mostly dry hair looks splayed over her broad shoulders.

They spend some time kissing after that, how long she doesn't really know- nor care, before she's promptly aware of the hand trailing down the front of her black leggings. Her breath hitches slightly in the middle of their kiss, and too soon is Adora's sweet, perfect lips pulling away from hers.

"Okay?" she asks, the word slurred between their lips.

Catra nods, reaching back up and trying to pull her back down. She manages a quick yes before pulling Adora's bottom lip between her teeth, taking claim on her mouth while she lets out a soft gasp.

Her hand continues the movement from earlier, lightly toying with the hem of her leggings before her hand slips under the band and down, slowly caressing over the fabric of her underwear. She can feel her heart in her chest, beating as if it might explode, filled with glee and nervousness and all the love in the world for this girl above her. Catra wants so, so badly.

Adora remains slow, taking her time as she rubs her hand over the fabric of her black thong. Placing slightly more pressure with each stroke, almost testing the boundaries of how far down she's willing to go. She palms her, rubbing the same area over and over again, each time with more pressure than the last. Her hand is large, strong, and calloused. The pressure she's giving her is enough to put her perfectly balanced on the edge, but not nearly enough to get her where she wants to be. Each stroke avoids the center of exactly where she needs her. After a moment of teasing, Catra groans, earning a huffed laugh from the blonde before she parts.

“Impatient?” She jests, brow cocked in that so annoyingly hot way she does.

“Finger me.”

Her face drops instantly, blush spreading from her cheeks all the way down past the collar of her shirt and for a moment she thinks about ripping it open if only just to see the flush on her chest. Catra smirks, proud of her effect on her. “Y-you sure?”

“Adora, you’ve been kissing and rubbing me for the past hour. I need your fingers in me, like, yesterday.”

The blonde’s gaze darkens, and Catra feels the rise of heat bubble up in her lower abdomen. She leans closer again, pressing a soft kiss against her lips before placing her forehead against hers.

“Let me know if it’s too much, okay? I’ll stop whenever you want me to.”

She smiles, nudging her head up against hers and bumping their noses together. “I know,” she whispers, pulling her lips into another wet kiss. She doesn’t want to stop kissing her, ever. “I know you, Adora. I trust you.”

They’re kissing again, much more slow and longing than before. She feels the gentle slide of the blonde’s delightfully calloused fingers as they slip under the hem of her underwear, pushing the fabric to the side. She only has a second of it in her to complain about the feeling of her underwear twisted on her like that before she glides a finger through the slick, aching folds of her pussy.

Her sigh escapes as a whine, lost in Adora’s mouth as she continues to press her lips on hers. Pressing, pulling, and biting her lips softly but so eagerly as she feels a second finger work its way between the folds. A few moments go by as she traces her. Fingers gliding through, over her opening, and lightly around the bud of her clit but never on. Never hard enough to truly push her over the edge.

Catra sighs, vocals of pleasure escaping her in gasps after Adora briefly breaks away from her darkened lips, eyes meeting hers. She nods, and two fingers press into her.

“Oh, god-” she groans, rolling her head back onto her pillow. Adora descends, kissing up and down her neck as the brunette breathes heavily.

“Good?” the word is muffled, pressed against the skin of her neck.

Catra almost chokes on nothing. “S-so, good. Keep going.”

Adora presses forward, setting a rhythm along with Catra’s gasps of pleasure. Thrusting into her gently but firmly at the same time, like she’s confident in her actions and she absolutely loves it. She lets out a line of moans and hushed gusts of air as the slick sound of her fingers grows louder, thumb pressed over her clit, and maybe she would have it in her to feel embarrassed if she wasn’t feeling like this.

“I-in.”

Adora inhales, coming up from the barrage on her neck and pressing her lips against her jaw. “You sure?”

Catra huffs a laugh, eyes pressed closed as her head rests on its side. “Positive. Any more of that and I’ll cum right now.”

She smiles, leaning back on her haunches. “I think I’d enjoy seeing you cum twice.”

Catra smiles back, eyes hooded as she meets hers. “Maybe not tonight.”

Thankfully, Adora gets her meaning and continues to watch her like the glowing goddess she is. Something simple . They have time. She grabs hold of the hem on her leggings, tugging and rolling them down far enough until Catra can kick them off her legs. Her underwear remains in place, but she no longer minds. She takes her legs in her hands and props them over her thighs before letting them rest again.

Adora falls back over her again, one hand resting on the bed next to her head, the other shrouded somewhere she can't completely see. But she can hear the movement of fabric, the shift of her clothes as she pulls her sweatpants down and moves her boxers out of the way. She regrets not looking at the outline of her erection pressed against the fabric of her pants when she was leaning on her back legs. She'll just have to take full advantage of it next time.

Her arm moves down so she's leaning on her elbow, body pressed almost directly on hers. "Ready?"

Catra can feel her cheeks burning, almost like her face is suddenly alight as she hears that word. When she woke up this morning she never would have expected in any way shape or form that she would be in her current position. Under Adora, her long-yearned love, half undressed in her own bed.

"Ready."

Adora leans down, pressing her lips against Catra's, softly this time- as if she's trying to convey a sweet message. And she understands it for what it is.

I've got you.

She believes her. Trusts her more than anything else in the world and she's almost afraid of how blindly she does.

She lets herself exhale, lets the air rush out of her body as she sinks deeper and deeper into her bedding while she feels the blonde adjust herself lower, lining herself with the spot between her legs, rubbing there gently almost as a tease. She presses the head against her opening, not pushing in just yet, and looks up to lock eyes with Catra as she does so. She grabs her comforter then, pulling it farther up her broad shoulders so it cascades over the both of them. She knows it probably won't stay in place, but right now she feels too open, too raw. Right now she just wants to be shrouded in their own personal cocoon, something just for her and Adora. Adora's frame shields her from imaginary eyes, creating a small world of comfort that's just their own. One that belongs to them and no one else. When Catra locks eyes again, Adora moves. Her cock slides in slowly, letting her adjust to the size as she does so. Her jaw falls lax, letting out a shaky moan as she feels the welcomed stretch of the blonde pressing into her.

"Oh, Catra . Te amo," she chants, hips pressing closer to hers. Adora lets out a low, guttural groan as she slowly slides into Catra, setting a gentle pace as they both get their bearings. As soon as she’s buried to the hilt, she pulls out, setting a gentle pace in motion. Her legs resting over her wonderful thighs rock each time she pushes back into her.

Catra’s head is absolutely swimming right now, filled with a million different emotions. Happiness, nervousness, restlessness, eagerness, giddiness, bliss, love. Goddess, so much fucking love.

All she feels is euphoria as their bodies move together. She can't even find it in herself to respond as her head lolls back into her downy pillows once again, mouth ajar and eyes squeezed shut as she lets herself just feel . All she can focus on is the friction of Adora’s movements, the rhythmic pull of her shifting in and out of her, and the sound of her low grunts that are doing wonders for her down there right now. And all at the same time it feels like there's a million butterflies trapped in her stomach, fluttering around with her whole being thrilled by the realization that Adora is actually fucking her. Her dream has somehow miraculously materialized overnight and she's doing it so, so much more lovingly than she ever could've hoped for.

"'Dora," her name slips out between her lips like a secret prayer, a moan without meaning to.

She draws closer, humming and butting her nose up underneath her jaw before hastily pressing a multitude of kisses there like she's trying to bring her back down to her.

"T-te amo."

Adora leans back slightly enough to smile brightly at her, pressing more kisses against her cheeks and under her jaw and chin mere seconds later, leaving a burning trail in her wake. "Mi Vida," she laughs airily. "Your accent is horrible."

"Shut up," she groans, pushing her face away from hers. "I'm taking it back. I hate you."

"Aww. But I really like you," she coos.

"Too bad. Fuck you."

"Catra," Adora keens. She moves down her neck again, nipping and kissing all over her skin. She can feel the gentle use of her teeth as they lightly tease the sides of her neck, stopping at the center of her throat each time she crosses to press lingering kisses and attention there. Catra swallows, craning her neck up instinctively to provide her better access. She can feel her lips spread into a smirk as they stay pressed against her skin. "Yeah?"

She lets out a whimper on accident as she tries to speak and immediately feels a blush crawl up her cheeks.

"Hm. Cute."

Adora noticeably becomes more feverish then. Her lips move faster, leaving trails across her throat that chill in the air of the room and more pressure with her teeth, almost pinching her skin. She absolutely loves it.

"Can I mark you?"

When Catra opens her eyes to peer down at her, Adora's eyes are dark, filled with an insatiable hunger that drives her wild knowing she caused it. Catra feels like she's floating, caught up in her best friend's clear desire for her. She uses what space she has to nod as words fail her. She likes the thought of Adora wanting her, wanting people to know she has someone and the thought of Adora being possessive over her sends a whole new wave of heat down between her legs. Adora is still inside her but has momentarily stopped in the process of switching focus to her neck.

She lets go with one hand left gripping her pillow for purchase as the other grabs Adora's collar and accidentally yanks it harder than intended. Adora yelps as she’s pulled down with it, coming face to face with Catra with wide eyes. "Keep moving," she instructs.

Adora smiles, pressing over her as she begins to pump her hips at a gentle pace again. Her hands move down the curve of her bare thighs in tandem soon after, hooking under the crease of her knees. She gives Catra a look, then pushes her legs forward from where they were resting over her deliciously muscled thighs, gently tipping her so that she can swing both her legs over her right shoulder.

Catra is feeling the new angle.

"M-god, 'Dora!" she groans, almost a yell. Both her hands are back to gripping her pillow, the blonde back to her apparent favorite spot which is her neck.

"Do you know how hot you are?" Her voice is deep as she nips at the skin. "Your flexibility, your body, your voice, the noises you make. Fuck, Catra, everything about you drives me insane."

Adora is diving into her now, quickly picking up more speed with each new thrust into her cunt. When her mouth meets her neck again, she bites hard. Catra's lips instantaneously pop open to let out an embarrassing moan as she falls to the mercy of her mouth and hips. She can feel the sturdy hit of each thrust against her backside, and she can feel the intense heat from where she is placing a claim on her neck.

She loves it. She loves the desire she feels right now. Loves the need Adora is expressing for her, the urgency, the praise- Catra is drunk on it all. One of her hands moves further up to grip one of the ugly wood beams of the headboard to keep herself steady as she goes in. After Adora has moved spots a few times, she grows impatient of waiting and nudges her chin against her head, urging her up.

"'Dora," she begs.

The blonde gets the cue and moves to press their lips together as she continues to bear down. She can feel it coming, the feeling building in her gut like a taut rubber band, and needs Adora with her as it happens.

“Keep- Keep calling me that.”

"'Dora, 'Dor, I'm going to-ah, ah " she manages between broken pants and shaky breaths of air.

"I've got you. Fuck, I got you."

Catra breaks then, both her hands shooting down to her broad back and golden hair as she lets out an embarrassingly high-pitched wail. Her nails bite into Adora’s back and the other twists into her soft hair for something to grab onto. She's worried she may scratch Adora since she just sharpened her nails, but finds it hard to concentrate on the thought as her body convulses under the larger woman. The feeling of her pussy tightening around Adora’s dick with each pulse, fully accentuating the length and size inside of her does nothing but edge her through each new, perfect wave. She's never had an orgasm this hard before, but she's also never had such intense, emotionally riddled personal sex before and has definitely never fucked a goddess.

Adora's mouth stays near hers as she cums, breathing heavily as she watches her unfold before her, under her, for her. She is nothing but gentle as she watches her, slowing her rhythm as she guides her through it and singing her a loving line of praises. Her eyes scream hunger as she looks at her like she's the most precious thing she's ever seen. Like she could want nothing else but her. When she gasps, she tightens her grip on Catra's legs as her jaw falls slack with a moan.

When Adora hits hers, she pulls out of the brunette suddenly, pushing her dick through her joined thighs and emptying onto her stomach as she rides it out, a beautiful symphony of low groans and grunts accompanying it. Catra watches the deliciously lewd sight in front of her, coming down from her high as her lifelong best friend spills onto her bare stomach, thrusting between her legs. She looks so beautiful in her orgasmic state. Pretty pink plush lips parted as she breathes heavily, straw hair flowing down her toned shoulders but mussed- and sticking with sweat all over her forehead, chin, and neck. She so badly wishes she wasn't wearing that shirt so she could see her pretty flush all the way down her chest and shoulders. Her tits definitely wouldn't be so bad to see, either.

"Fuck, Adora," she mumbles. "You're so hot."

"You should see yourself," she whispers back after heavy gasps of air. She starts setting down her legs gently, being careful not to stress them as she moves to the side of her. "Are your legs ok?"

Catra hums, a tad lethargic as she lays in her bed and stares back at Adora as she watches her. She looks at her like she means something, like she really, truly loves her, and she's starting to believe it might be real- that she didn't conjure this up in her head. "Please, you know I can stretch farther than that."

It has its intended reaction as Adora's blush somehow grows darker. Catra grins as she attempts to adjust herself on the bed. Her hoodie is twisted on her body and she tries to adjust it before she realizes that she really can't pull it down that far.

Adora stumbles. "Shit, hold on, I'll-" she rolls off the bed, clumsily yanking her pants up in a little jump before rushing over to the bathroom. Catra giggles, hearing her fumbling over by the sink before returning with one of their wet washcloths. She can't help it. It feels so nice to be fussed over. "I'm sorry, this is kind of… gross."

"Worth it. It was extremely hot in the moment," she reassures.

A minute passes as Adora stands there awkwardly, hovering over her as she outstreaches the hand holding the washcloth to Catra. “Should I- uh.”

"I’ll get it,” she laughs, taking it from her. “Can you get me new underwear?"

"Oh! Uh, yeah. I can…do that."

She hums. "Amazing. You just had your dick in me and you're embarrassed about going through my underwear."

“That doesn't- these are your personal belongings! They don't belong to me. I never want you to think I don't respect you or your boundaries. Just because we did it, it doesn't mean I can just-”

“You're the sweetest girl in the world, you know that?”

She makes a petulant noise. “I think it's just basic decency.”

She shrugs back, a bit apathetic. “Maybe. But you see me, and you respect me. You don't take more than I'm willing or able to give and I really appreciate that, Adora.”

She laughs. “I almost folded you in half.”

“And it was hot. If it was anyone else… I don't know. I don't think I would've been comfortable with that. But… I feel good when I'm with you. I feel safe.”

A soft look falls onto the blonde's face. Her eyebrows arch slightly and her features gentle as she looks at the brunette with unabashed waves of affection. “I love you.”

And yeah, she believes her.

“I love you, too. Now come here.”

Adora grins, jumping back onto the bed and cradling Catra onto her chest after she switches her underwear. Catra falls into the crook of her arm and shoulder, taking in a deep breath as her familiar scent surrounds her, hand curled into her chest.

“God, Catra,” she exhales. “I think you might drive me crazy."

"In a good way?" She practically purrs.

"In the best way,” she brings her hand up to her cheek, gently smearing the bead of sweat stuck there. “I never want it to end.”

“Good. Don’t count on it.”
