Unexpected Turns of the Events

by MutsisPP

Summary

Since this is an alternate universe, there's no Horde invading Etheria. Etheria is not in a pocket dimension, but its in the wider universe.
As of why the Horde ain't invading Etheria? Well lets just say that sapce octopus is engaging in a bit of tomfoolery and keeping them busy.

Light Spinner has been exiled from Mystacor after an incident that claimed several lives.

Light Spinner however kept in touch with Micah who was to be next head sorcerer of Mystacor.

Years go by and Light Spinner comes by an orphan magicat who claims to be last of her kind.

Light Spinner takes her in and raises the magicat as her own child.

More years go by and the magicat named Catra has grown up into a teen and Micah has become the new king of Brightmoon and her sister takes place as the new head sorcerer.

Our story starts here.

Notes

Hello, this is another story of mine that has been on my mind for a long time. It is not like me to not finish stories, but I simply feel I have cornered myself in my previous story.

This will be a lot more simple, shorter and less ambitious. I also kinda think that my other story kind of fails as SW/Casta story. So here I am trying to correct it.

Sorry for a long ramble.

Light Spinner had spent early days of her exile wandering through Etheria to try and find cure for her curse. Due to a setup orchestrated by the high council of Mystacor, Light Spinner had been cursed by an ancient and forbidden spell that took residence in her.

Luckily for her, only her hand was corrupted and with the anger that followed, she may had gone a bit too far. Several high council members died during her rampage, it was all a setup. Main reason why they had plotted against Light Spinner is that she wanted to reform the old ways of Mystacor and that was a big no-no.

The conspirators behind it didn't expect such a high cost, which made several of them thinking if it even was a good idea.

Only Micah, his sister and Angella knew that Light Spinner wasn't responsible for the curse and destruction she caused. However the councils and Norwyn's tight grip made sure to make Light Spinner the culprit. There wasn't much for them to do.

So now, she's pretty much on her own and can't rely on anyone or anything. Her curse isn't deadly or killing her, but every bit of magic Light Spinner uses will cause the curse to spread.

After two years of searching for a cure, she decided to give up and settle down in the heart of Whispering Woods. It was a great place to settle down, lots of ancient ruins, dangerous monsters and ever flowing magic. Perfect place for her to retire.

It's been several years since Light Spinner's banishment and not much have changed since. Though she had adopted an magicat child named Catra, who had appeared mysteriously on her doorstep.

Raising a child was a difficult task, she had never had one or never thought about getting one and Catra for sure never made it any easier for her.

How could such a small fur ball cause so much mayhem and destruction?

Micah, who had left Mystacor and now Married with Queen Angella, had a child of their own and Light Spinner asked for advice from Micah many times. However, they never had such a trouble maker as Catra.

Castaspella, who had taken the place of Head Sorcerer of Mystacor after Micah, was trying to reform the old ways of Mystacor and bring the more lax and free ways of teaching magic, as Light Spinner had wanted. However with little success since the high council was still influenced by the now retired Norwyn, who still held incredible power on political level.

Years continue to pass by and soon its Catra's 17th birthday, though Light Spinner is quite unsure what's Catra's exact birthday.

From a young age, Catra was quite interested in magic that Light Spinner had and had requested that she'd taught her some.

Light Spinner had agreed to teach Catra and was quite surprised how perceptive and how quickly she grasped the concept of magic and how to cast and channel it.

Anyways today was the day Light Spinner was going to give Catra the ultimate gift. The staff that would complete Catra's journey from apprentice to real sorceress.

Gifting the staff to the apprentice was an old tradition that marked the completion of their journey. And now as 17th birthday, Light Spinner decided it was a great time to give Catra staff of her own.

At that morning Light Spinner was in the kitchen, baking the cake for Catra's birthday. She herself really didn't care for sweet things, but Catra seemed to enjoy them.

As she was baking, she could hear her crystal ball. " Ugh.. who could it be.. at this time in the morning.. " Light Spinner mumbled and went to pick up the crystal ball. She brought it with her to the kitchen and at the other side of the call was none other than Castaseplla.

"Castaspella.. don't you have your duty to fill?" Light Spinner asked with a slightly annoyed tone.

" What? I can do whatever I want in my free time. "

"And you spend all your free time pestering me.." Light Spinner replied.

" You're always so cold, don't you like when people keep in touch with you? Ask how you've been? "

"No, not really." Light Spinner said. "I like to keep it to myself."

" I understand why, but you should liven up a bit. It's Catra's birthday today, ain't it? "

"Yes, it is." Light Spinner replied. "So, did you have something to say or did you just want to waste my time?"

" I had something to say.. oh yes, now I remember. A real First One is coming to Etheria. "

This was something Light Spinner would have never expected to happen during her lifetime. This was really something. "A First One?" She confirmed. "I'm really impressed."

" Yes, they say she's a young princess.. Her name is Adora. " Castaspella said proudly.

"And how did you get all this information?" Light Spinner questioned.

" I promise to tell you, if you agree to a meeting. " Castaspella replied with an persueing tone.

"Blackmailing? Really? How unbecoming of you." Light Spinner said.

" Hey, it's more like asking a favor from a friend. "

"Ugh, I guess my curiosity got best of me.." Light Spinner sighed. "So.. where do you want to meet? Everywhere else is fine, except Mystacor."

" At your place. We've talked a lot through this crystal ball, but I've never been or seen your home. "

"I guess we can arrange that.." Light Spinner said.

" Great, I'll call you back later.. oh and also, tell Catra I wish her a happy birthday. " Castaspella said and hung up.

Light Spinner sighed and shook her head. Castaspella somehow always manages to get the best of her. She isn't sure if she really likes her or not, but she always finds Castaspella's childish behavior amusing even if it is irritating sometimes.

Soon after, Catra came downstairs after smelling the cake in the oven. "Good morning L." Catra yawned.

"Morning." Light Spinner replied. "Happy 17th birthday, from me and Castaspella."

"Thanks.. anyways, is the cake ready yet?"

"No.. it's still in the oven, I didn't expect you to get up so early." Light Spinner said with a chuckle.

"How could I not? It smells so good here." Catra replied.

"I guess it can't be helped." Light Spinner said. "Well I think it's quite early, but since you are awake.."

"Yes?"

"I could give your present earlier than usually." Light Spinner said. "Although, you need to promise that you won't blow anything up. We don't want to repeat the garden incident.."

"Alright, I promise." Catra replied and put her hand on her chest and raised her other arm up. "I promise I won't repeat the garden incident."

"Good, then there's nothing to worry about." Light Spinner said and went upstairs.

Catra was waiting in the kitchen and was quite excited. What could she possibly get this year..

A moment later, Light Spinner came back to the kitchen while holding something long in a gift wraps.

"What is it? What is it?" Catra asked curiously and full of excitement.

"Then open it and see for yourself." Light Spinner answered and handed the gift to Catra.

Catra was ripping through the gift wraps with a gleaming eyes and full of excitement. "It's a staff!" Catra yelled as she saw her new gift. "Really?! For me? A real sorceress staff!"

"It's only appropriate for my young apprentice." Light Spinner answered with a gentle and proud tone. "It's a tradition when the student becomes a real sorceress, to give them their own staff. And you Catra, have earned it."

"Wauwie! Can I test it out!? Like right now, right now!?" Catra asked excitedly with a beaming smile, ears twitching and her tail swinging.

Light Spinner thought for a moment and gave her a serious look. Catra's joy faded and she asked with a careful tone. "Is that a no?"

"You may, but only outside. Use it and practice with it to your heart's content." Light Spinner answered with a gentle tone.

Catra's joy came right back to her and she ran outside thanking Light Spinner.

Light Spinner looked outside of the window and saw Catra running into the woods. " Youth.. " She thought to herself and then she realized that cake had been in the oven maybe a bit longer than needed.

She took it out and placed the cake on the table. It wasn't terribly burnt out, just a little. "Doesn't matter.. it will still be a good cake." She said to herself.

As soon as she was ready to start making the whipped cream she could hear a loud explosion that ravaged through her house. Her ears twitched and she had to cover them, but it was no use. Her ears were ringing now..

" That's Catra alright.. just Catra.. and her reckless acts.. " Light Spinner thought to herself and looked at her kitchen walls. All of the whipped cream had splashed all over them. She let out a deep sigh and shook her head.

What could she do? Catra was just a tiny bit too excited..

Chapter End Notes

Formal Meeting (yeah.. everything but that)

Chapter Summary

The next morning, Light Spinner woke up later than usual. Maybe it was due to Catra's shenanigans, but the girl was happy.. So what could she have done?

When Light Spinner came downstairs, she saw Catra sitting on the couch in the living room. It seemed like she was reading a book about different spells.

"I see, you're studying it seems." Light Spinner said.

"Oh, good morning. You up later than usual." Catra replied. "And you could say I'm studying, but I'm more interested in just finding out stuff."

"Have you ever tried to go outside of Whispering Woods?" Light Spinner asked. "There's a lot more going on all around Etheria."

"I don't know.. never thought about it." Catra replied. "I like it here."

"I don't doubt it, but don't you think you would want to do something else than spend all of your time here?" Light Spinner said.

"What's with these questions?"

"I just want you to meet some other people, get friends, and travel around Etheria."

"Well, it would be nice if you would be there as well.." Catra said.

Light Spinner let out a nervous chuckle. "You do know that I'm wanted in most of the Kingdoms in Etheria.. right?"

"Yes I know that, you've told me." Catra replied.

"I just thought that you would like to do more with your life, you're young.. unlike me.." Light Spinner continued. "You have much to live for, you don't need to keep yourself tied down here."

"Have you been drinking again?" Catra asked, raising her eyebrow. "You don't usually talk about these deep things.. unless you're drunk."

"I'm not drunk! How could I even be?!"

"Well then, can you tell the time?" Catra asked.

"Yes." Light Spinner replied and turned to look at the clock on the wall. "It's half past midday."

"Okay.. I get it. You're not drunk." Catra said. "It's not that I wouldn't like to go to other places... it's just that there's nothing familiar out there. Everything is so strange and uncertain."

"Well.. I'd tip you to go to Brightmoon. King Micah and I have a very good relationship, considering my past that is." Light Spinner said. "He would most likely feel familiar enough to you, as would his sister, Castaspella."

"I know them, I've listened when you have been talking to them.. and I guess you would be right." Catra said. "I guess I could start from Brightmoon."

"That's good to hear, all I want for you is to have a more exciting and fulfilling life." Light Spinner said and went to the kitchen

---

Later during that same day, Catra went outside. She said she wanted to practice more. Ofcourse Light Spinner agreed, but reminded Catra that she was forbidden to do anything that might cause an explosion.

It was evening and Light Spinner heard knocking from her door. She wasn't sure who it was, since Catra never knocked. She looked outside from the window and saw Castaspella standing there with something on her hands. " Right.. she wanted to meet, but she should have told me earlier that she was coming. "

Light Spinner opened the door and welcomed Castaspella. "Evening, I wasn't expecting you so soon."

"Well I managed to get some free time, so I decided to use it for our meeting." Castaspella replied. "Also, I brought some high quality wine."

"I see." Light Spinner said. "Well come and have a seat." She then showed the way on the living room couch. "I'll get some glasses, please have a seat and make yourself as home."

Castaspella nodded and sat on the couch, while Light Spinner was getting the glasses.

She thought to herself that Light Spinner was in awfully good mood, usually she was sarcastic, nonchalant and kind of a bi- well it might be better to leave that word out.

Light Spinner then came back with the glasses, set them on the table and sat next to Castaspella. "So, you promised to tell me about this First Ones princess and how you got that information." Light Spinner asked with a slight excitement in her voice.

"Already tackling the subject?" Castaspella questioned with a teasing tone. "You are that eager to know?"

"Well you should know that I have studied my whole life and I'm always wanting to learn more and gain more knowledge." Light Spinner replied and toned down her excitement. First Ones are still kind of a mystery.”

"To put it quite simply, I was told by Angella that we're going to meet a First Ones princess." Castaseplla said. "She's said to be well mannered and quite pretty and she even holds a great sword that grants her powers."

"I'm quite interested in meeting this princess, but I think it's going to be impossible." Light Spinner said with a hint of disappointment in her voice.

"Well.. there's going to be the New Year's celebration held in Brightmoon this year. And then all Etherians are welcomed there, there's going to be a great ball held there." Castaspella said and winked her eye. "If you were to be my partner there, there should be no problem."

Light Spinner let out a dry laugh, she could not believe what she was hearing. "So let me get this straight, you want me? Me of all the people, to go with you?"

"Well.. yeah. Why wouldn't I?" Castaspella replied.

Light Spinner opened the wine bottle and drank almost half of it in one go.

"Light Spinner! That much is not healthy!" Castaspella yelled in shock and took the bottle off from her hands.

"Don't worry- I have~ a high.. ~ High tolerance for alcohol~"

"Yes I can see that.." Castaspella replied with a sarcastic tone. "Was my idea so bad that you would have to get yourself drunk to continue?!"

"It's not you... it's me- I ju-just.. Ah, forget it!" Light Spinner snapped and slammed her head onto pillows.

Castaspella took a deep sigh, she knew Light Spinner had serious mood swings, but she had no idea that they were so serious. Or maybe it was her bad habit of drinking.

She waited for a bit before she tried to get closer to Light Spinner. She placed her hand on her shoulder. "Light Spinner.. is.. is everything okay? You don't have to decide right now.. if that's the problem."

But all she could get from her was unclear mumbling.

"You are so handful sometimes.." Castaspella sighed.

"No.. you're a handful.." Light Spinner replied.

"Are you seriously trying to start to play the 'no you are' game, because its not working." Castaspella said.

"I'm not playing any games.."

"All I did was to ask you to come to the New Year's ball and suddenly you start to drink and then you begin to blabber something."

"I'm not really that social.. in fact, I hate gatherings of people." Light Spinner said defensively.

"Well I'm not going to force you, but I thought it would be the best way for you to meet that First Ones princess." Castaspella said. "But can I ask you, why don't you like gatherings? Or, why are you so cold?"

"I guess it would be rude of me not to answer.. right?" Light Spinner asked, tilting her head and looking at Castaspella. "Let's just say it's something I developed during my time at Mystacor. It never brought me any good if I opened up, or something like that.."

"Hey, if it's uncomfortable to recall those memories.. you don't have to. I think I've got the gist of it." Castaspella replied.

Light Spinner gathered herself up in a sitting position. "I really don't like to go there.."

"It's okay, I understand. I just wished I knew you better. You are so hard to read sometimes."

"And you are like an open book." Light Spinner chuckled. "Maybe a bit too open."

Castaspella didn't reply to anything, she just took a sip of the wine.

"Did I offend you?" Light Spinner asked.

"No, you didn't. I admit, sometimes I am like an open book. My brother says the same thing." Castaspella replied with a laugh.

Light Spinner thought for a moment and just eyed at Castaspella. She was surprisingly pretty. Her glossy black lips, silky black hair, her big amber eyes and dozens of parfums she probably got from Mystacor.

Light Spinner had never thought about things like this, she never bothered with relationships. Be it with boys or girls when she was young, but now for some reason.. she felt something when she looked at Castaspella.

It couldn't be love, right? Must be the alcohol. But why does she suddenly feel so hot? The burning feeling inside of her is getting unbearable.

"Light Spinner? Light Spinner, you there?" Castaspella asked and snapped her fingers.

"Oh.. ah.. Yes, I'm here." Light Spinner answered with a flustered tone, her face was red and ears twitching.

"You alright? You seem rather hot? Is it because of the alcohol you drank?"

"Must be." Light Spinner replied. Yes, it was alcohol and she pressed her thoughts deep in somewhere, yet she couldn't resist. She had to do something. "Listen.. I thought about what you said."

"Yes?"

"I.. I think I'll come to the New Year's ball." Light Spinner answered. "I think I just overreacted earlier."

"That's so awesome." Castaspella replied with a face beaming with joy. This happiness that radiated from Castaspella was something Light Spinner couldn't resist. "The ball is in two weeks, so you have lot of time to prepare."

"Alright.. I guess.. we'll meet at Brightmoon then." Light Spinner said.

"Great, I promise you.. you won't regret it."

"Oh.. look at the time.. it's pretty late.." Light Spinner said as she looked at the clock.

"It indeed is.." Castaspella said. "I think I should go then.. unless I can spend the night here?"

"Well.. I-I don't know.." Light Spinner hesitated for a moment, but the Castaspella got a crazy idea. She picked up the wine bottle and began to drink all of it. "Hey! Castaspella, what are you doing?!"

"You'll see!" Castaspella answered with a giggly voice.

"We both know you can't take that much al-" And it was too late, Castaspella had emptied the whole bottle and had now blacked out on her couch. "Alcohol..."

" Seriously.. what do I do with this woman.. " Light Spinner thought for herself. She now eyed the sleeping Castaspella, who looked like a princess.. from the old stories..

Light Spinner had a hard time resisting her urges, urges and feelings she had drowned down a long time ago. But she decided against it, what kind of a woman she would be if she took advantage of a drunken princess. " She seriously is a handful.. "

Light Spinner picked Castaspella up and began to carry her to her bedroom. Castaspella was quite heavy compared to Light Spinner, who could be best described as a dead branch.. meanwhile Castaspella was a whole lush tree.

Light Spinner somehow managed to carry Castaspella on her bed and lowered her on it. She tugged her in and left a bucket on the floor and glass of water with some medicine on the nightstand.

Then she herself walked back downstairs and went to sleep on the couch. Not long after that, Catra came back and wondered about the situation.

Light Spinner only gave one word with a very tired tone. "Castaspella."

Chapter End Notes

Yeah.. this is pretty disasterous, am I right?

Unexpected Encounter

Chapter Summary

In this chapter, Catra finally leaves the Whispering Woods. However before she could get too far, she encounters three friends.. and one of those said friends happens to be the mysterious First Ones princess and Catra falls in love with her in the first sight.

Chapter Notes

Three chapters written, I hope I can get the last of them out soon.
Also.. fair warning, Light Spinner has some dark magic in her and it ain't pretty.

It's been a few days since Castaspella had visited Light Spinner and Castaspella felt really embarrassed for what she did. So much in fact that she didn't contact her for a few days.

Light Spinner found the quietness blissful, but at the same time she hoped Castaspella didn't think badly about what had happened. Wait a second.. it was Castaspella who caused the situation for herself, so why should she have to think what Castaspella thought?

"Light Spinner, I'm going outside." Catra yelled from the door. "See you in the evening."

"Yeah, have fun. But don't cause any trouble to anyone." Light Spinner replied.

"Whenever have I caused trouble?" Catra said jokingly, before leaving from the door and slamming it shut. Making Light Spinners' ears twitch.

"Well.. since every damn time.." Light Spinner mumbled.

Catra was a quite carefree person, even if she was an orphan and probably last of her kind. It didn't matter to her that much, maybe it was because she was grown so close to Light Spinner who had even thought her magic.

Though sometimes Catra thought if Light Spinner's way to become a sorceress was legit, since she had been banished because of her ways.. or that's what everyone says..

Catra was jumping from tree branch to tree branch and swinging from vine to vine. She enjoyed how she could traverse through the forest easily, not even needing to use magic to teleport.

Well, it didn't take long before Catra had to stop on her tracks as she heard screaming. It sounded like there were at least three people and one monster.

She usually didn't stick her nose into others problems or things, unless it was a Light Spinner. But maybe now it would be a great chance for her to bring up her good parts and save the day.

Catra headed towards the screaming and found the group of three, their backs against a rock and a giant monster trying to eat them. There was one guy with a bow.. then a girl with pink short hair, who was waving her staff and then.. a blonde girl who held a sword, clearly trying to protect the other two.

"Glimmer can't you do anything!? Bow yelled in panic.

"I can't! I don't have my magic!" Glimmer yelled back. "Adora, you have a sword, you're a princess! Can you do something?"

"I'm trying, but the sword doesn't work." Adora said with a cold sweat on her face and anxiety rising.

It seemed like everything was done for, but then they heard someone yelling. "Hey! You big fat slug! Why don't you pick on your own sizes!"

Monster turned to look at the magicat who had just jumped off from the tree.

"Name's Catra! I'm a magical magicat and now I'm going to blast you away in the name of all magicats!" She yelled smirking and shot a highly charged magic blast at the monster, making it fall on the ground.

Then Catra drew a magic circle that sealed the monster in a magic confinement. "And now for the grande finale!" She said and prepared to cast a high-class magical strike. As and magic circle after magic circle formed above the confinement until there were dozens of them. Catra finished with an enactment. "Magical Disintegration!"

In a swift and loud flash, the monster alongside the confinement was reduced to a large charred crater.. "Aaand gone, reduced to atoms." Catra finished and made a victorious pose.

Three friends were in shock, they had never seen such high-level magic, and were cast by an magicat nonetheless. Only Glimmer's father was known to achieve those kinds of feats.

Catra opened her eyes and saw the three people still looking at her. "Wait.. no applauds?" She asked jokingly and tilted her head.

"Thank you so much for saving us." Adora said with a relieved tone and bowed before Catra. "As a Princess of the First Ones, I'm ever deeply grateful for saving us."

Catra stood there for a while before realizing that the person in front of her was the mysterious princess. "Well, I'm glad to be able to help you." She answered and offered Adora her hand. "What's your name, princess?"

"Adora, it's simply Adora." She answered and took on Catra's hand.

"And the rest of you?" Catra asked.

"I'm Bow."

"And I'm Princess Glimmer."

They offered Catra their hands as they introduced themselves. "Catra, nice to meet you all." She said while shaking both Glimmers and Bows hands.

"So, what brings you three here in the heart of the woods." Catra asked. "I don't think you were on a sightseeing."

"No, we're looking for someone to help Glimmer." Bow said. "We went to explore an ancient ruin and Glimmer fell into a pool and after that she lost all her magic."

"Even I couldn't do anything to it." Adora added. "Though it might be because I'm not familiar with Etheria's magic."

"Well, couldn't your father help you?" Catra suggested and looked at Glimmer. "He is a great sorcerer after all."

"No, I don't want to tell him because-" Glimmer stopped. "Wait, how do you know my father?"

"He's too great to not be known." Catra replied. "So, I take it the ruins you were exploring were forbidden to enter and now you're afraid to tell your parents because you would get into trouble. Am I right?"

"Yeah, exactly.." Glimmer said.

"Wouldn't it be a bigger problem if your parents found out you had lost your magic?"

"Precisely." Glimmer said. "Can you help us by any chance?"

"Well.." Catra couldn't reply right away.

"Please Catra." Adora added. "I know it is much to ask, but could you even consider?"

"Agh, I don't know anything like that." Catra said. "But I might know a person who might know what to do."

"Could you please take us there?" Glimmer pleaded.

"Yeah, could you? Please?" Bow and Adora added.

"Fine.. since you asked so nicely." Catra said with an awkward blush on her face. "Follow me."

They nodded in agreement and followed Catra and after a while, they arrived at the small cottage built into the tree and a lush garden in front of it.

"Wow.. who could set up a house here? Or garden.. for that matter?" Bow asked curiously.

"Someone who's probably wanting to be left alone.." Glimmer replied.

Catra kicked the front door open and the slam of the door dropped one of the plants on a nearby shelf, cracking the pot and spilling dirt on the floor. "Light Spinner, I'm back!"

When Glimmer heard what Catra had just said, she stopped in her tracks.

"For the love of the stars, how many times have I told you not to kick the door!" Light Spinner said with a stern voice as she came from the kitchen. Her demeanor changed rather fast after she saw that Catra had brought what seemed to be friends. "Oh, pardon me and my Catra.. she's troublesome.."

"Uhh.. no.. there's nothing to be forgiven for." Adora said. "In fact, Catra saved us earlier from the giant monster."

"Ah, I should have known that explosion was your doings.. again." Light Spinner said and eyed at Catra with a serious look.

"It was just a bit of show-off, nothing to worry about." Catra replied nonchalantly.

"Anyways.. what brings you three here?" Light Spinner asked, tilting her head.

"Well, Glimmer needs urgent help-" Adora was explaining, but was cut off by Glimmer who whispered to her. " I don't know if this is a good idea after all.. that's Light Spinner.. "

"Is something the matter?" Light Spinner asked. "Did you say her name is Glimmer? Daughter of King Micah and Queen Angella?"

"Uhh yes.. I am." Glimmer answered. "How do you know my parents?"

"I'd say we have kept in touch." Light Spinner replied. "You don't have to fear me, I'm not going to do anything to you, princess."

"So, as I was saying.. Glimmer has lost her magical powers after falling into a pool in the ancient ruins." Adora explained. "Catra said that you could help her. Oh and name's Adora by the way."

"Yeah, she's the First Ones Princess." Catra added. "The very same you were interested in meeting."

"You are the princess? Well I guess it's my lucky day." Light Spinner said she finally got to meet a real First One. "It's an honor to meet you princess, I've always been interested in the First Ones."

"Really? Usually everyone is interested in my sword." Adora said.

"Umm, what about helping me to get my magic back?!" Glimmer reminded me.

"Oh.. right.. pardon me, I got a bit too excited." Light Spinner said. "Please, take a seat, all of you. I'll make some tea and-"

"No need for tea, I need to get this fixed right now!" Glimmer demanded.

"Alright alright." Light Spinner replied. "Take a seat anyways and I'll take a closer look."

As they sat on the couch, Light Spinner walked in front of Glimmer and went on her knees. "So you fell into a pool in ancient ruins? What happened afterwards?"

"Well I lost my ability to teleport and generally lost my connection to my Runestone." Glimmer explained.

"Alright then, give me your hand."

"Uhh.. why?"

"So I can see what's the problem." Light Spinner said.

"Fine.. but no tricks!"

"Why would I even do anything like that?" Light Spinner said and took Glimmer's hand and closed her eyes. She could feel that Glimmer had been infected by old and dark magic, something so old that it's probably forgotten by everyone. "Ah, it's clear."

Light Spinner then released Glimmer's hand.

"So, what is it?" Glimmer asked nervously.

"It's quite simple, you have an elder parasite living inside of you, that's draining all of your magic." Light Spinner replied casually.

"What!? A parasite?!" Glimmer yelled in panic. "Get it off me, right now!"

"Well.. the problem is.. it's probably impossible. You're going to die in a week, if you're lucky you'll survive two weeks." Light Spinner answered casually and shrugged her shoulders.

"What?!" Glimmer yelled.

"You have to do something!" Bow said. "She can't just die!"

"Light Spinner... are you serious?" Catra asked.

Light Spinner let out a sigh. "Well.. there's two options.."

"I don't care! Tell me what they are?!" Glimmer yelled.

"Well, you can only counter dark magic with another." Light Spinner answered. "But that's kind of dangerous.. Second option is, that you tell your father about it and hope he or Angella can fix it."

This put Glimmer in a very tight spot. She didn't want to tell her parents that all of this happened because of her own stubbornness to go into forbidden places, on the other hand.. she'd had to risk using more dark magic and where could she even get that? She then remembered that Light Spinner had gotten herself tangled into dark magic, so maybe that's why she had suggested it in the first place. But does she have alternative motives? Glimmer had no choice. "Alright.. I know that you have been tangled with dark magic before, so therefore.. you can help me.. right?"

Light Spinner eyed at Glimmer, was she seriously going to accept the first option? She had said it so she would go to her parents, but she's really going to choose the riskier one. She surely is Micha's daughter.. "Yes.. I could help you."

"Glimmer no! Think about it." Bow pleaded.

"Yeah, don't get yourself into an even worse situation." Adora said.

"I have decided already." Glimmer answered. "Light Spinner, as a Princess of Brightmoon, I command you to cure this curse. If that is what it is."

Light Spinner looked at her with a dumbfounded look on her face. "If you so wish, princess.." She said and bowed before her. She then pulled up her sleeve, revealing her bandaged arm. "You can't back down from this."

"I know.. so do what you must." Glimmer said.

Then Light Spinner took off her bandages, revealing her arm. It had numerous scars, the tone of her skin there was greyer than her normal skin and there were rotten holes in her arm where black matter spewed forth.

"What the heck is that!?" Glimmer asked with an horrified expression on her face. Bow threw up, Adora almost threw up and Catra just shrugged her head.

"As I said.. dark magic can be only countered by dark magic.." Light Spinner explained. "Now.. give me your arm."

"What? You can't be serious!" Glimmer said.

"You yourself commanded me to do it and now that the dark magic has been let out.. I have to commit to it." Light Spinner said with a serious tone. "Give me your arm, princess."

"Agh fine! But if you have any weird ulterior motives, I promise you that you won't be able to see the next day." Glimmer said with a threatening tone.

"I won't, now.. your arm." Light Spinner said and offered her blighted arm to Glimmer. With a deep sigh and deep breath, Glimmer took Light Spinner's arm and closed her eyes.

"Very good, princess. Now we can begin." Light Spinner said and her grip tightened on Glimmer's hand and she began to enchant something in a tone that none of them had ever heard.

Lights in the room dimmed and the wooden planks began to creak and the ground started to shake. Adora raised her sword for defensive position and Bow grabbed her arms. For Catra this was another Tuesday and she went to the kitchen to get something to drink.

Black tendrils extended outwards from holes in Light Spinner's arm and they squirmed around Glimmer's arm and drew out the old entity that had taken residence inside of Glimmer.

Black tendrils withdrew and slithered back into their holes in Light Spinner's arm. The shadows withdrew and sunlight was filling the room once again. "Now, it is done.." Light Spinner said with a heavy voice. "If you excuse me.. I have to go to my room for now."

"Glimmer, you can open your eyes." Adora said.

"Really?" Glimmer asked, still frightened about the whole situation. She opened her eyes and saw her arm was like before, she could feel the magic return to her and she felt good. "Wow.. I can't believe it. I can use my magic again!"

Glimmer was beyond joyous and both of her friends were relieved. Catra came back from the kitchen, holding a glass of juice. "Everything seems to be okay, right?"

"Yeah.. anyways Adora, tell me what did she do?"

"Maybe it's better I won't describe it.. it was kind of disgusting.."

"And I happened to throw up on her floor.." Bow said with a shameful tone. "I really hope it was worth it."

"I'm sure it was, but now we can go back to Brightmoon." Glimmer said. "And Catra.. you want to come as well?"

"Sure, I've been meant to visit there." Catra replied.

"Then it's decided!" Glimmer said and grabbed Catra's and others' hands. "To the Brightmoon!" And in a bright pink flash, they were gone.. teleported to Brightmoon.

New Year's Eve

Chapter Summary

Two weeks have passed since Castaspella's visit and it's soon time for the greatest celebration in all of Etheria. New Year is the time when people look towards for a bright future.

All Etherian's are invited in the celebration in Brightmoon, this one time of the year.. even if you aren't the one with the cleanest track record, you are still welcomed. You still are Etherian after All.

Light Spinner finds this hard to believe, but as she had already promised to Castaspella that she would go. She could not bring herself to break this promise.

I'm going to publish this before the New Year's eve, but I think its better to publish it earlier rather than late.

Chapter Notes

Also, in this chapter, we are going to meet lots of princesses around all of Etheria. There is nice change here. You might remember certain war criminal from my last story, right?

Well in this universe all is well and good, so make of that what you want.

See the end of the chapter for more notes

Light Spinner spent the whole day recovering from the magic she had used, she might have extended her powers a bit too much and now she was bedridden. It took a day for her to recover and half of the next day before she could fully rise from the bed. It was midday, sun was high in the sky and Light Spinner felt dizzy. She noticed that Catra was nowhere to be seen, but she had left a note on the kitchen table.

" I'm going to stay at Brightmoon for a few days. I noticed that you were still in your room when I came back, I thought you needed time to be alone. So I'm going for now, I could say that I have made at least three friends.. and one of them might be something more.. since I don't understand this feeling I'm having while I'm around her. Anyways, do recover soon so we could see at the New Year's celebration. -Catra "

"I can relate to that feeling.." Light Spinner said to herself and smiled. She put the note in her cabinet and brewed some coffee. As she was sitting there and waiting for coffee to brew, her mind drifted to think about the coming celebration. It isn't that far away."Do I even have a proper dress for such an event?"

She went upstairs and began rummaging her closet. Sure she had lots of clothes, but she hadn't really never used them and she couldn't really see any proper dresses. As she was rummaging, she noticed that her arm was leaking black subsistence. "Agh, not again.."

She quickly went to the bathroom and removed the bandages, she washed her arm and applied some medicine on it. After that she wrapped new bandages over her arm and sighed in deep. "Back to looking for staff."

After a while of looking, she came in a long beautiful dress, alongside long silky gloves that reached over elbow. Would be great for hiding her bandages. This dress was used in important events, traditionally used by her people who now were few and far between. It reminded her of her past and the fact that she was supposed to wear it during her 21st birthday, but seems like it's long past that. How had she even managed to keep it if she never remembered to wear it? Anyways it was a nice and appropriate dress for such an event.

She went back downstairs to drink her first cup of coffee. Nothing beats the first cup of coffee in the morning or in her case, first cup in the midday.

The New Year's celebration was now only one day away and Light Spinner was filled with anxiety, she couldn't fathom the idea of being in a crowded place full of people. But promise is a promise, then a sudden knocking could be heard from her door and she went to look.

It was Adora, who was standing there. Which was weird, Catra was in Brightmoon at the moment.. right? "Ahh, evening Adora." Light Spinner said. "What brings you here?"

"Well.. I have something I need to ask from you." Adora said shyly.

"Alright then, but do come in. It's getting cold at night."

"Thank you." Adora replied and let herself in.

This was the second time she met Adora, more than she had bargained for. Her real reason for going to the celebration was to meet this princess.. but now she had met her before it. Castasplla knew about it and when she heard about it, she became sad since she thought now Light Spinner wouldn't come at all. But to her surprise, Light Spinner had still agreed to go there. Which made Castaspella tremendously happy.

Light Spinner just couldn't bring herself to decline the invitation. This time she wasn't under the influence of alcohol so surely it had to be something else, as much as she hated to admit it. That childish 'princess' had really gotten all over her head and maybe all over her heart as well.

"So anyways.. what brings you here?" Light Spinner asked as she got them both a cup of tea.

"Umm.. it's about Catra."

"Really? She hasn't caused any trouble to you, has she?" Light Spinner asked, raising her eyebrow.

"No.. not at all.. In fact, I've been enjoying her company quite a lot." Adora said. "She's so different from everyone back from my home planet. So I find her quite a nice company.."

"Alright then, if she hasn't caused any trouble. Then what is it that you wanted to ask about her?"

"Could I ask for her hand, I mean- to be my partner during the New Year's celebration?" Adora said as quickly as she could and her face was red from embarrassment.

To that Light Spinner let out a laugh, not a mocking or dismissive one. In fact it was that of joy.

"Did I say something silly?"

"No, not at all." Light Spinner replied and wiped a tear from her eye. "You don't need to ask about my permission, but of course you can take Catra as your partner."

"Well.. she herself said to me that you wouldn't mind anyways, but I just wanted to be sure of it." Adora said.

"You truly are kind and polite, just as I was told." Light Spinner said. "Was that all?"

"Yes, it was. And sorry for bothering you."

"No.. it was not bothering at all. But are you sure you'll find a way back to Brightmoon from here?"

"Yes.. in fact, Catra is waiting right outside."

"Right, I should have known." Light Spinner said with a smile. "Well, be careful on your way back to Brightmoon."

"We'll be." Adora said and bowed in front of Light Spinner before going outside.

Light Spinner watched from the window as she saw both Adora and Catra walking into the darkness of the Whispering Woods, while holding their hands. " She finally found something other than blowing up my garden.. " Light Spinner thought to herself.

It was now the evening of the last day of this month and this year. Light Spinner took a deep breather before heading out. She had dressed in her most beautiful dress, having an emerald necklace on her neck and high heels made out of finest material that was found in Etheria. Now it was time to go.

Light Spinner drew a magic circle on the ground and was readying to teleport herself. She took one last glance of her home before teleporting to Brightmoon.

At Brightmoon, Castaspella was waiting nervously on the balcony of the courtyard, she was looking down to see incoming guests. She was really hoping that Light Spinner would come. Micah saw Castaspella standing there alone and went to talk to her.

"Is something the matter, dear sister?" He asked and placed his hand on her shoulder.

"Oh, it's you, brother.. Nothing's wrong, I'm just hoping she will come already.." Castaspella said and let out a deep sigh.

"I'm sure she will come, Light Spinner has never broken any of her promises.. she has always been stern on one thing and that is not breaking promises." Micah said.

"I hope you're right.."

"She'll come, for sure." Micah reaffirmed before going away.

As Castapella was about to leave the balcony, she saw someone sticking through the incoming crowd like a candle in a dark room. That had to be none other than Light Spinner. Castaspella filled with joy and ran to meet her.

Meanwhile at the courtyard, Light Spinner was walking towards the main hall, feeling uncomfortable being in such a large group of people. She tried to look for Castaspella, but couldn't see her. " She must be inside of the main hall then.." Light Spinner arrived at the doors of the main hall and she didn't even have to step inside before she was met by a loud calling. "Light Spinner!" Castaspella called out and ran to meet Light Spinner.

"Oh how I was beginning to worry that you wouldn't come." Castasplla said with a joyful tone and hugged Light Spinner.

"How could I break my promise.. when you are so persistent and childish, you throw temper tantrums when something doesn't go your way." Light Spinner said.

"Is that how you're going to start this?" Castaspella questioned.

"Yes and to be truthful.. that's what I like about you. I wouldn't want to have you any other way." Light Spinner said with a gentle voice and hugged Castaspella back. That made Castaspella blush, sure this meant she liked her.. but did Light SPinner really like her worst qualities? Such a strange woman.

"Uhm.. anyways.. the ball is about to start soon. Is there anything you want to do before the great dance?" Castaspella asked.

"I heard they serve great drinks here." Light Spinner answered with a smirk.

"Already thinking about drinking? Seriously.. can't you be more.. romantic?"

"Romantic? What wouldn't be more romantic than sharing a glass of the finest of wines with the company of such a beautiful woman as I." Light Spinner said and grabbed Castaspella's hands and began to lead her towards the tables where they were serving drinks.

Castaspella was blushing as Light Spinner led her. She was such a strange woman, but she liked her that way.. But before they could reach the tables, Micah stood up on a stand and asked everyone's attention. It was a tradition that the king or queen held the annual speech of celebration of New Year's eve. Micah had made a short, but a striking speech that filled the room with excitement towards the new year and the unity of Etherian's.

And after the speech, the dance commenced to begin.

"Oh come on Light Spinner, we've got to dance." Castaspella said, pulling Light Spinner's sleeve. "We can drink at the break."

"Fine, as you wish." Light Spinner answered. "But I'll lead."

"What, you know how to dance?" Castaspella asked with a joking tone.

Light Spinner grabbed Castaspella's hands tightly and pulled her closer. She then moved one of her hands at Castaspella's back and pulled her into a tight hug. Then she placed her free arm under Castaspella's chin and said. "I know a thing or two about dancing."

Castaspella was burning inside, she never anticipated Light Spinner to be so forward coming. She felt thrilled about the idea of Light Spinner leading her. "Well then.. show me your way."

"With pleasure, princess." Light Spinner answered with a small chuckle. "Do you know that our people have a traditional waltz that differs from the other Etherian waltzes?"

"No.. I did not know, is it hard to learn?"

"Not at all my dear Head Sorceress, all you need is a fast reflexes." Light Spinner said.

"Then there's nothing to worry about, I'm a fast learner." Castaspella replied and gave a heartfelt smile, which made Light Spinner blush even more than before and made her ears twitch as they usually reacted to such emotions and feelings.

"Well, let's not waste any more time." Light Spinner said and both of them walked to the dance floor. Everyone else seemed to be in the swing of the ball, so they didn't waste anymore time.

"So, it's like a normal Etherian waltz, but it's a lot faster paced than the regular. And it might include sudden moves, but at times like those.. you just let me carry you." Light Spinner explained.

"Doesn't sound hard. Oh how I have looked forward to this." Castaspella replied and then they began to dance.

To Castapsella's surprise, Light Spinner was a lot more talented than she had thought and Light Spinner herself noticed that she was quickly catching on. Then Light Spinner decided to lift Castaspella up and spun her around one time before lowering her on the floor again. "What was that?!"

"I told you the dance involved sudden movements." Light Spinner replied and pulled Castaspella into a tight hug. "Now we go as before.. one, one, two, one, one.. and on and on."

As they danced on the floor, Catra and Adora noticed them. The way Light Spinner led Castaspella was a surprise to Catra. She had never thought she was like that.

"They make a nice pair." Adora said.

"Not as nice as us." Catra added with a smirk on her face. "I know a few tricks myself."

"Hey Catra, let's not do anything too-" But it was already too late. Catra was spinning Adora around and then made a sudden stop and dropped Adora before grabbing her hand again and pulling her up. "You- what was that!?"

"Just a way we magicats dance." Catra replied, laughing at blushing Adora. Then Catra pulled Adora closer to her and now they were face to face. "Wanna kiss?"

"What?"

"I know you'd like to." Catra said, winking her eye.

"But isn't it too-" Catra interrupted her. "You're far too formal, we are now at Etheria and we do things differently here."

"Well.. if you say so." Adora said and then they shared a passionate kiss. A kiss that Adora couldn't have even dreamed of in her wildest of dreams.

After an hour or so of dancing, there was a half break and people were served different drinks and dishes all around Etheria.

Castapella was sitting on a chair and was out of breath, while Light Spinner brought them drinks. "You danced well." Light Spinner said and placed the drinks on the table. "Though you could use a little bit more of practice."

"It's just that you are way too wild.. not that I mind it." Castaspella replied and took up a drink.

Light Spinner took a drink herself and sat on the other chair. She took the whole drink in one go and could feel her starting to burn. "Whoa.. I didn't expect this to hit this hard."

"You aren't supposed to take it in one go, you need to enjoy it, take it in small portions. Like this." And then Castaspella proceeded to take a small sip from the glass. "Mmm, so blissful."

"You know what Castaspella."

"Yes?"

"I didn't actually expect to have so much fun here. Maybe being with you here makes me forget that there are hundreds of other people around us." Light Spinner said.

"Well then I'm glad that I could change your perspective on things." Castaspella said smiling and raised her glass. "Cheers?"

Light Spinner chuckled and refilled her glass. "Cheers."

Then Queen Angella and Micah came to meet them. "Good to see that you made it here." Micah said. "My sister here was getting a bit worried that you might not come."

"Oh Micah, don't come and ruin this moment." Castaspella said. "I didn't doubt it at all."

"Don't worry Micah, I would not dare to break your sister's heart." Light Spinner replied and winked her eye.

"Right. Well, I hope you have enjoyed your time being here." Micah said.

"Of course, your sister is a fast learner, she could keep up with me during the waltz." Light Spinner said.

"That's nice to hear, enjoy this evening."

"This is probably the first time I have seen you, Light Spinner." Angella said.

"Well, in person maybe." Light Spinner answered. "I have to say Micah, how on Etheria did you manage to get the attention of such a being as Angella?"

"Well that's actually a quite funny story-" But Angella cut Micah off before he could finish his sentence. "It was a happy chance." She said, "Right?"

"Yeah, happy chance." Micah answered with a blush.

"Alright then." Light Spinner said.

"Anyways, we have to go to meet other leaders of the kingdoms. So talk to you later." Then Micah and Angella went away and Light Spinner and Castaspella were left alone. "I bet Angella is on top."

"What? What do you mean?" Castaspella asked.

"Nothing.. just an amusing observation." Light Spinner said and took a sip from her glasses.

Glimmer and Bow had gathered with the other princesses and they were quite a merry bunch. "These few weeks have been quite a rush." Glimmer said. "So much happened in so little time."

"I can agree." Adora said, as she came with Catra. "It's been a pleasure meeting you all and experiencing this magnificent planet."

"You have to come to visit Salenias." Mermista said. "It's the greatest aquatic kingdom here."

"isn't it only one?" Perfuma asked.

"But the songs are numerous!" Sea Hawk added, busting in. "That reminds me, should I sing about my greatest deeds as I took down ten pirate ships all alone?"

"No.. no one wants to hear that." Mermista said and facepalmed. "And it wasn't pirate ships.. it was my ships you set on fire."

"Oh.. right.. But how about that time I slayed-" Mermista covered his mouth. "Enough Sea Hawk. You can say all you want, but we all know not even a single one of those stories are true."

"Fine.." Sea Hawk side twirled his mustache and walked away.

"Why are you so mean to him?" Adora asked.

"Trust me, he doesn't mind it." Mermista said. "Besides, if you had to spend a day with him.. you'd understand."

"Alright then.." Adora said and rubbed the back of her head.

"So, you're the magicat." Perfuma said as she approached Catra. "I've heard about your species, but never really seen one."

"Oh, well now you have a unique chance to see one up close and personal." Catra said and made confident poses. "I also happen to be a sorceress as well."

"Oh really now?" Perfuma asked with intrigue.

"Yeap."

"weren't you trained by that hermit lady that lives in the woods?" Mermista asked. "So you're an unofficial sorceress."

"Still sorceress, official or not." Catra said. "Want to see demonstration?"

"It's for the better that you wouldn't start blasting magic here." Adora said.

"Fine then, but if you ever want to see me perform great feats.. you know where to find me."

Then they saw Scorpia coming there. "Oh I'm so sorry that I'm late." She apologized.

"There's nothing to apologize for, the evening is still young." Glimmer said.

"Wow.. a scorpian princess.." Catra said in awe. "I've only seen you in the history books.. and they don't do justice."

"Ahh.. why thank you.." Scorpia said blushing. "You're cute, name's Scorpia. Wanna hug?"

"Catra, sure why not."

Then Catra felt a hug that was clearly more than she expected or bargained for. "Okay.. okay, you can let me down for now."

"Sorry.. I just love giving hugs.."

"So, why are you late?" Bow asked.

"I had a hard time convincing Scratch to come. She doesn't like gatherings of people." Scorpia said. Then Scratch managed to catch up with Scorpia and she seemed to be out of breath.

"Next time.. can we please just stay back at your kingdom?"

"But this is such a big event and you yourself have said you've wanted to visit Brightmoon." Scorpia said.

"Yeah.. but you know I'm not really a social person." Scratch said.

"Anyways, this here is Scratch. I would say she's my lover.. but she prefers the term partner."

"Ah nice to meet you." Catra said. "I'm Catra and I'm quite literally new here."

"Same as I. Name's Adora."

"Well.. I guess its nice to meet you as well." Scratch said with a dry voice. "Do they serve any drinks here?"

"Yes, yes they do.. Unless Light Spinner hasn't emptied all of the reserves by now.." Catra joked.

"Then we got in a hurry." Scratch said. "Scorpia, could you carry me.. my legs are killing me."

"Of course." Scorpia said and picked Scratch up and began to carry her like a princess. Scratch was red from embarrassment, is this how she was introduced to everyone? " Should have just said no... "

Meanwhile, when all of this was happening. Entrapta was observing and taking notes of everyone from the second level of the hall. "I should probably talk to them to get more data. What do you think, Emily?"

Emily just answered with light toned beeps. "Exactly what I meant." Entrapta said and flung herself down from the balcony, while carrying Emily within her hair.

"Oh, it's Entrapta." Mermista said."

"Whose that?" Adora asked.

"She's a princess as well.. though she doesn't have a runestone." Glimmer said.

"Yeah, she lives far from everyone. At the fortress of Dryl." Mermista said. "She's crazy about tech, but talented as well."

"Though her socialization skills are lacking.." Perfuma said. "Poor girl lives alone."

"Well that's kind of sad.." Adora said. "Why's she here then?"

"Probably conducting research about social gatherings." Bow said.

"Hey guys! I'm gathering data on social events and this place has been a great place to do that." Entrapta introduced herself, then she saw Catra and went crazy. "A real magicat? Are you real? They've been said to be extinct, but here is one.. alive."

"Uhh.. yes, name's Catra and I am a magicat."

"I have so much to ask about you? Can I run a few tests?" Entrapta asked with excitement.

"Umm, sure.. if you want." Catra replied.

"Great!"

"Oh Catra.. you have no idea what you've gotten yourself into." Mermista said.

Meanwhile, Light Spinner and Castaspella were still sitting on the chairs, but the noise was getting annoying. Light Spinner's ears were pointing downwards and she herself was curled in.

"Light Spinner, is everything alright?" Castaspella asked, concerned.

"It's nothing, just a bit too loud to my liking." She replied.

"I assume your ears are sensitive then?"

"Yes, yes they are."

"They're pretty though." Castaspella said.

"What?"

"I mean, you're the only one I know who has ears like that. And I find them pretty." Castaspella said.

"No one has ever commented anything about my ears.." Light Spinner said.

"We could go somewhere a bit quiet, like an upper level balcony." Castaspella suggested. "For the time being."

"Sure, I'd like to." Light Spinner replied.

Two of them then went upstairs and headed to a balcony that was far away from the ball. It was at the North West tower and reached far outside. As the moon shone light on the balcony floor and vast lakes and forests opened before them, they found themselves leaning against the railing and looking far outside.

"What a beautiful sight." Light Spinner said. "You can see the Whispering Woods from here."

"Yes, if one thing is great about Brightmoon, then it's the balconies and the breathtaking scenery it offers." Castaspella said.

Now Light Spinner's ears had returned back to normal or this time they were pointing a bit upwards, signaling that Light Spinner felt rather good and calm, maybe even a bit excited. Castaspella so wanted to touch them, she wanted to know how they felt. She gathered all of her courage and asked. "Uh.. Light Spinner?"

"Yes?" She replied and turned to look at Castaspella.

"Could I- I mean.. would it be okay if.."

"Just say it, you don't have to shy away."

"Well, would you mind if I could touch your ears? Just a little bit." Castaspella said with a bright red face.

Light Spinner was dumbfounded by the question, sure she knew Castaspella liked her.. but even her ears? "Are you being serious now?"

"Yes, yes I am." Castaspella affirmed. "Though you don't have to agree."

Light Spinner stood there for a moment in silence, her heart was beating and this was probably the first time that Castaspella had been so straightforward with her. There was no doubt, Castaspella loved her and she loved her as well. This would be a moment that would change everything. Normally she wouldn't have let anyone touch them, but now it was different and also probably because all the alcohol she had been drinking, have probably softened her as well.

Finally she answered. "You may."

"Really? Are you sure you're fine with it?" Castaspella confirmed.

"Yes.. but please, be gentle." Light Spinner said and she sat on the bench next to the outer wall. Castaspella followed her and sat next to her.

"So, I can now touch them?"

"Yes. you can touch them." Light Spinner said and leaned against Castaspella's shoulder.

Castaspella hesitated for a moment, until she finally mustered all of her strength and then she gently touched the tip of Light Spinner's ear and it twitched lightly. "Uwie." Light Spinner let out a sound that was so unlike her, but it was more of a reaction than a word.

"Wow.. that was awfully cute." Castapsella said.

"Don't use the word cute to describe me." Light Spinner mumbled.

Castaspella touched Light Spinner's ear again and this time she gently massaged the back of the ear and then she put her thumb on the top of her ear. Now Light Spinner's ears turned red and they were rapidly twitching up and down, while Light Spinner felt extreme heat through all of her body. Each stroke or pat on her ear made her feel so hot it was unbearable. Suddenly Light Spinner grabbed her veil and threw it on the ground. Her breathing had turned heavy and she finally managed to say a word. "Th-That's enough- Castaspella."

"Oh.. I'm sorry, I guess I got carried away." Castaspella said apologetically and took her hand off of Light Spinner's ear.

"It's okay.. I didn't actually mind it.. it's just.. just.. that I think I'm in love.. or just horny.."

"What? Light Spinner, you don't make any sense."

"Well.. when people are in love or horny.. do they make sense?" Light Spinner said and looked at Castaspella's blushing face.

"You.. you took off your veil." Castaspella said with a surprised tone.

"Well, it was getting too unbearable to wear it." Light Spinner said.

And now for the first time, Castaspella saw Light Spinner's full face. There was nothing wrong with it, it was a beautiful face with dark lips and thick eyebrows, emerald eyes and a scar that was on her mouth's left side. "I don't see why you would have to hide that face?"

"It's a tradition of my people.. to not reveal the face to strangers and before you ask.. yes this scar is normal for us. Some get them on their forehead, others on cheeks or on the nose.. I got it on my mouth or lips to be precise." Light Spinner explained. "We would only show our faces for the special one. The one with whom you'd spent the rest of your days together."

"But.. there aren't many of your people left, so why keep it? Weren't you known for wanting to break the traditions?" Castaspella asked.

"Yes.. but it's a different thing." Light Spinner sighed. "But on the other hand.. I think I've already found the special one."

"And who may that be?"

"Are you so dense? It's you Castaspella." Light Spinner said. "For so long.. I have tried to supress my feelings, thinking they are fake. Thinking that all the love stuff is meaningless. Every single time I have been with you.. you've brought these feelings back. I tried to deny it, but now I'm absolutely sure of it. It is you Castaspella, you are the one I love."

Castaspella was taken back by this sudden confession of Light Spinner. She wasn't wrong though, she herself had always hoped that one day Light Spinner would make a move or waited for a right moment to confess. But now? It seems Light Spinner was the one who was faster. "Light Spinner.. I- I love you too. Far too long I have tried to indirectly try to confess to you.. but I have never gotten the chance."

"Well then.. Do you think this is a chance?" Light Spinner asked, her ears twitching and face still as red as molten rock.

"Yes.. Yes I do." Castaspella replied with a relieved sigh, she could feel like a heavy weight had been lifted from her chest.

"Castaspella, I want you.. I want you more than all of the knowledge of Etheria, more than any power I have previously craved for. You.. you are the one."

"I could say the same thing.. more than the throne in Mystacor or more than the power of the Head Sorceress.. all I want is you."

They leaned in closer, closed their eyes and shared a deep and passionate kiss. Light Spinner had never kissed anyone before, this was the first kiss of her life, first kiss in her over forty years of life. For Castaspella it wasn't a first kiss, but she had never felt anyone kiss so passionately as Light Spinner and she had never felt so much love in one kiss. Castaspella grabbed Light Spinner from her ear and gently tightened her grip around it.

Light Spinner could resist anymore, she grabbed Castaseplla from her waist and pinned her against the wall and continued her passionate kiss.

"Ha, I knew it!"

Castaspella and Light Spinner both jumped and stopped their kissing when they heard Catra's voice. Castaspella was beyond embarrassed and Light Spinner couldn't know if she was now filled with anger, shame, embarrassment or all at once.

"I knew Light Spinner was in love!" Catra said out loud, she now felt like she had been in the right all the long and somehow felt proud.

Chapter End Notes

Well what do you think of this chapter? I had to restrain myself as I think I was getting a bit carried on at the end.

I have one more chapter to make write, but it will be out after the New Year.

New Year, New Beginning

Chapter Summary

Light Spinner and Castaspella are looking forwards for their new life together. (And something more..)

Chapter Notes

I'm writing this from my phone and its almost 2 AM, so there might be more grammatical errors than usually. I'll get them fixed later.. hopefully.

It was a good thing that Castaspella was there to keep Light Spinner in check. At that time all Light Spinner thought was. "Yeet the cat." But didn't act on it, she knew better. She put her veil on again and took a deep breath.

"That's right, take it easy.." Castaspella said. "Breath in.. and then let it out."

"Wow.. I've never seen you like that." Catra said to Light Spinner.

"You should know better, to not to stick your nose in others affairs." Light Spinner said with a stern voice.

"Well I didn't here to snoop around." Catra answered. "I was just looking for you Light Spinner."

"Couldn't come up with a better excuse, hm?" Light Spinner taunted. "Anyways.. whatever.. you ruined the moment."

"Ehh.. sorry? Oopsie.." Catra said.

"Well.. the evening is still young. We have plenty of time." Castaspella said and placed her hand on Light Spinners shoulder and winked.

"Yeah.. I guess so." Light Spinner replied.

They then gathered at the main hall and seemed the second half of the dance had already begun.

"Ah there you are Catra." Adora said as she noticed her with the company of Castaspella and Light Spinner. "You almost made me look like a fool."

Eh.. I didn't mean to." Catra said with an apologetic tone.

"Where were you anyways? Actually.. nevermind.." Adora said. "Let's just go to dance, Perfuma suggested for us to try traditional waltz."

"That's lame.. but I can't say no to you." Catra replied, kneeled in front of Adora and offered her hand to her. "Would you like to have a dance with me?"

"Gladly." Adora said and took Catra's hand.

"Oh look at them." Castaspella said happily. "She's such a well mannered cat."

"I tend to disagree." Light Spinner said. The noice that came from the dancing and the music was way too much for her liking. She had consumed lot of alcohol, so it might have intensified the volume. "Castaspella.. I think I've got quite a enough of this.."

"What? You arent planning on leaving now?" Castaspella asked with a worry in her voice.

"My ears are hurting.. too muvh noice."

"Oh.. I had forgotten.." Castaspella said with a apologetic tone. "I happen to have a guest room here.

"You do?" Light Spinner asked.

"Yes and its at the highest tower, since I have always loved to watch the stars." Castaspella said with a dreamy voice and there was wishful glint in her eyes.

"That sounds lovely, I must say.. I also have always enjoyed the stars in the night sky." Light Spinner replied.

"Then what are we waiting for!" Castaspella exclaimed joyfully and took Light Spinners arm, she then proceeded to lead her into her guest room.

It was like Castaspella had said, the room was located at the top of the highest tower and the rooftop was transparent glass so you could see the night sky.

Light Spinner looked around the room, she looked through the transparent roof and was mesmerized. "You even have a balcony here?"

"Yes, I have and it has quite a view."

Light Spinner went to the balcony and from this tower she could see all the way to the Crimson Wastes. As she looked at the stars once more, she felt like she was surrounded by the universe.

"Do you like it?" Castaspella asked as she walked up next to Light Spinner.

"Do I like it? Castaspella.. I love it." Light Spinner said with a gentle and happy tone, which waa very unusual for her. "I alwys loved the stars.. they made me feel free.. and filled me with hope."

"You didn't enjoy being Mystacor, didn't you?"

"No.. not at all, only reason I ever got as high as I got.. was.." Light Spinner tried, but couldn't get the words out. "Well.. its better if I don't ruin this lovely evening.."

Castaspella could understand what Light Spinner meant, but she didn't want to press her more about it. It was clearly something that had hurt her. So instead, she put her hands around Light Spinners waist and hugged her tightly.

Light Spinner was taken back by this, but didn't resist. Instead she embraced her, because this was probably first time ever someone had really cared for her.

"Castaspella.. I want to ask something."

"What is it?"

"Do you believe in that we could actually be lovers?"

Castaspella didn't expect such a question. Sure she believed in that, if fact she had already assumed Light Spinner had already confirmed it earlier. But then she thought.. she was the Head-Sorceress of Mystacor and Light Spinner on the other hand was an criminal and an outcast.

Then she gave her answer. "Of course we can, like I said.. being the Head-Sorceress means nothing, if I could be with you."

Light Spinner was amsued, here she goes again being her childish self. Clearly Castaspella didn't think about what the concequenses would be if she gave up her crown and went with her.

"What about your duty? What would the others think? What would-" But she was cut of by Castaspella who now had pulled Light Spinner closer to her and they looked at each others faces. "I don't care about them! I don't care about some worthless title, because I only am a Head-Sorceress in name only."

"Casta.. would you be ready to leave your life.. to be with someone like me?"

"Of course I would. Because what would you do with a life if you couldn't follow your heart? If you couldn't love anyone you wanted?" Castaspella said with passion. "I choose you Light Spinner, regardless of what others think."

"Cas.." Light Spinner said, but couldn't even finish her name. She was really choosing her, ready to give up on her life and be with her.

"Shh.." Castaspella whispered. She then took Light Spinner's veil off. "You shouldn't linger on past. New year is beginning, so you should look forward to the future instead."

Light Spinner shed a one tear. "Oh Castaspella." She then pressed her lips against Castaspella's and they shared a deep and intimate kiss.

Castaspella led Light Spinner to her bed and laid her gently on the bed. Light Spinner was confused and looked at Castaspella witha flustered look, her ears twitching from the excitment she felt. "Cas.. what are you?"

"You're so silly sometimes.." Castaspella said and leaned over her. "This will be a night to remember."

Light Spinner realized what was going on and she couldn't hold herself anymore. Last time Catra had interrupted them, but not this time. "I will make sure of that." She replied with a smug look on her face. "Come here, my princess." Then she put her hand around Castaspella's waist and pulled her on top of her.

"My.. didn't expect this." Castaspella said with a excited tone and she was blushing.

"I'm full of surprises." Light Spinner replied playfully and winked her eye.

"And that's what I love about you so much!" Castaspella said then theh shared a long and passionate kiss. After that Castaspella moved her hands on Light Spinners ears and gave them gentle strokes, which made her let out the most cutest and non-like her moans.
