In Love With A Criminal

by Praxiteles

Summary

When the savior of the universe only ever asks for one thing, you give it to her.

or Catra's punishment hearing.

Notes

this is what I always though would happen if Etheria tried to punish any of the Horde war criminals.

Lol

See the end of the work for more notes

The meeting room was packed, not just with Brightmoon officials and town leaders but with Horde war criminals. The worst of the worst. Those who took down whole cities without mercy. Generals who led the Horde to near victory.

Octavia, general of the fourth battalion. Her army destroyed half of the whispering woods and over twenty-three separate villages.

Scorpia, Force Captain of the Lead on Seige, assisted in the defeat of Selanies and destroyed road ways and supply chains that almost crippled Brightmoon and the rebellion.

Hordak, Leader of the Horde and responsible for the almost destruction of Etheria.

Catra, second in command and brains behind the brawn. It was her expertise that gave the Horde the Edge it needed to ravage Etheria.

All of these generals were captured and imprisoned soon after restoration day. The day She-ra, legendary warrior and protector of Etheria, (and the known Universe) defeated Horde Prime and brought magic back to the planet.

No one knows how she did it. Rumors have spread that she meditated and used the power of the dead sword to reconnect with her magic, giving her the power she needed to take out prime. Others, idiots honestly, believe it was the power of love.

I mean how stupid can you get? Love? Love doesn't do shit.

Tonge Lashor leans back in his generals chair. As the representative of the Crimson Waste he personally cannot wait to see Catra fried. He could care less that she was second in command. He personally hates her because of how she embarrassed him in front of his crew. Like an asshole.

It took him months to get his rep back. Ever since people have been trying to overthrow him left and right. Most concerningly Huntara. That bitch has been growing her own faction for months.

He glares across the room at Catra. The girl looks completely unconcerned. Her hands are tied together but she sits so relaxed in her chair it’s like she thinks she is in a waiting room, not the court that's going to decide her fate.

At least Scorpia has the decency to look apologetic. Her large claws clasped together. Her face in a permanent sorry grimace. She apologizes left and right to the generals around her. Catra reaches over and pats her claw. Scorpia slumps.

The courtroom is in chaos. Everyone yelling out the punishment they most want to see. Boiled alive, community service, punishment wheel? That one is fucking weird. Tongue Lashor is honestly starting to get bored of the argument. He looks down at the knife belted to his waist and considered killing Catra himself.

Just then the door bursts open,slamming against the wall. The entire building shudders. The entire courtroom quiets. You could hear a pin drop.

Standing there, in the doorway, is the legendary She-ra. Her face is contorted into an angry snarl, her hands fisted and trembling. She stocks into the meeting room and looks down upon the generals.

A smile creeps on Catra’s face as she watches She-ra walk into the room. It's like she’s not concerned at all that her basic arch nemesis has entered her punishment hearing. She actually looks pleased.

“I am She-ra " She-ra’s booming voice reverberated around the space with authority. “I saved this world and all of these people.” the generals quickly nod their heads in agreement. Even Tongue Lashor.

What? The bitch is dark and stormy, just his type.

“Without me you would have been chipped and enslaved into Horde Prime’s army” she looks around at the people. Her eyes glow that ominous and magical blue. “Now I want something in return.”

The silent crowd waits. Intrigued and interested in She-ra’s only request. In all the years she has fought for them she has never asked for anything. She-ra hesitates, her eyes dragging across the crowd. The silence permeates.

“I want a war criminal, that one specifically” the crowd remains dead silent. Shocked this time.

It takes Tongue Lashor a moment. He just stares at the general She-ra has pointed to. Catra sits prim and proper in her chair. Her legs crossed over each other and her arms folded in her lap.

She-ra has finally, after years of fighting the feline, saved Etheria from this very Horde general. And now.. Wants her as a fucking pet cat?!

“To eat?” he asks, desperately. It would make sense, She-ra is an alien. Maybe on her planet they eat their enemies or something equally as terrible.

“What? No!” She-ra looks shocked, her authoritative air dissipating. She looks small with her hands fidgeting with each other.

“Then Why?” Tongue Lashor splays his hands on the table.

“Well, that's kinda my girlfriend right there”

The courtroom explodes in noise.

“What!?”

“You got to be fucking kidding me”

“God damnit!”

Tongue Lashor can’t pull his eyes away from the cocky feline. Catra smiles and winks at the lizard. He grits his teeth and whips to the legendary being.

“No! Take literally anyone else. Even fucking Hordak!. Just not her” he begs “Uh ew, no. Hordak is gross. I want that one! “ She points at Catra again and walks over to her with a cheesy smile.

“Hey lover,” Catra says, making She-ra, the other worldly legendary warrior, blush. Tongue Lashor gags.

“No! No, you can’t have her. She literally ran the fucking Horde we can’t just let her go!” He pleads with the people but they look away from him. already accepting She-ra’s conditions.

“I fucking saved you. I can have any war criminal I want!” She-ra rips apart Catra’s bonds and gently throws the feline over her shoulder. The cat sticks her tongue out at Tongue Lashor and rests her chin on her hands.

“Am I the only one who thinks this is complete bullshit!?” he asks, standing from his chair. The crowd just looks away guiltily, as She-ra carries Catra out of the room like a sack of potatoes.

“I want one too!” Princess Perfuma skips into the room like a kid in a candy store. She walks right up to Scorpia, whose face has broken out into a wide smile. The Princess breaks her restraints with a couple of Flowers and pulls the giant woman up from her chair.

“Um, excuse me?” Tongue Lashor places his hands on his head, this has to be a bad dream. “Are we really going to let her take one too?” He looks around the room. The people seem more inclined to stop this act of treason than the last but then She-ra pops her head back into the room.

“And i also want all the princesses to have any War criminal they want too” the crowd sits back down like obedient dogs and Tongue Lashor almost screams. He watches with grit teeth as Perfuma drags the Scorpion out of the room with a smile.

He takes a deep breath and turns to Hordak, leader of the Horde. At least they still have this guy. Ugly as he might be.

“If we are all getting a War criminal, I'm going to have to take one too.” Tongue Lashor freezes and watches out of the corner of his eyes as the tech Princess crawls out of a fucking vent, she fidgets with the recorder in her hand and pulls out a blow torch.

‘Please don't be who i think it's going to be’ is the only thought running through Tonge Lashors mind. He watches as the princess quite literally burns the bonds holding Hordaks hands together and pulls him up.

When the girl drags the Horde ruler out of the room, with no backlash from the courtroom, none. Tongue Lashor growls and folds his arms, sitting back down in his chair.

That leaves Octavia.

“Who even is this bitch?” he asks, gesturing to the octopus. The rest of the courtroom shrugs.

End Notes

Thanks for reading! let me know what you thought.

I have more one shots if you want to check them out.

I also have a full sized fiction going set during the war.
