A Million Types of Kisses (But my Favorites are the ones I Share with You)
Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/55572508.

Rating:
Teen And Up Audiences

Archive Warnings:
Creator Chose Not To Use Archive Warnings, No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationship:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Lesbian Character, Teen Romance, Teen Crush, Teenagers, Childhood Friends, Childhood Memories, Alternate Universe - High School, Love, Romance, Love Confessions, Fluff, Fluffy, Adorable Adora (She-Ra), Soft Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Latina Catra (She-Ra), Latin oriented, Spanish Speaking, Kisses, One Shot, Short One Shot, Human Catra (She-Ra), Friendship, Alternate Universe - Modern Setting, dancer catra, mentioned background original character

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2024-04-30 Words: 1,872 Chapters: 1/1

A Million Types of Kisses (But my Favorites are the ones I Share with You)

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/55572508.

Rating:
Teen And Up Audiences

Archive Warnings:
Creator Chose Not To Use Archive Warnings, No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationship:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Lesbian Character, Teen Romance, Teen Crush, Teenagers, Childhood Friends, Childhood Memories, Alternate Universe - High School, Love, Romance, Love Confessions, Fluff, Fluffy, Adorable Adora (She-Ra), Soft Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Latina Catra (She-Ra), Latin oriented, Spanish Speaking, Kisses, One Shot, Short One Shot, Human Catra (She-Ra), Friendship, Alternate Universe - Modern Setting, dancer catra, mentioned background original character

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2024-04-30 Words: 1,872 Chapters: 1/1

A Million Types of Kisses (But my Favorites are the ones I Share with You)

by Moonii15

Summary

A kiss; an intimate collision of the lips, a sweet greeting on the cheek, or perhaps, an awkward little peck shared with your crush. None of that mattered to Catra, not when she had kissed Adora romantically for the very first time. It wasn't like sparks or any strange description in the books or movies. No. It was like an awakening. Like now, she was complete. She was home with her Adora.

All of the types of kisses Catra has had since birth!

(Catradora romance one-shot)

Notes

Please enjoy this slightly edited version of a one-shot from my Wattpad from March 22, 2023. PLEASE DON'T READ MY WATTPAD ITS EMBARRASSING!!

Note that there is a lot of Spanish in this fic; translations will be at the end if you're interested!

See the end of the work for more notes

A kiss; an intimate collision of the lips, a sweet greeting on the cheek, or perhaps, an awkward little peck shared with your crush. None of that mattered to Catra, not when she had kissed Adora romantically for the very first time.

It wasn't like sparks or any strange description in the books or movies. No. It was like an awakening. Like now, she was complete. She was home with her Adora.

Catra's first kiss, technically, was with her mami.

She was being born and the bright fluorescent lights unveiled a very pink and puffy baby girl, wailing at the top of her lungs. She had small wisps of brunette waves, and baby-soft skin of course. When she opened her big eyes, taking in the world for the very first time, the brightest multicolored irises made her entire being grow vibrant. One honey amber, and the other a deep azure.

Her mother, in pain but happy as can be, smiling ear to ear with tears flowing down her cheeks as she cradles her newborn baby girl, "Ay, mi nena bella!" She cried before placing a soft kiss right on her rosy cheek. And then, ever since, that's when she learned what a beso, or in her household, besito, was.

The next time she kissed or was kissed by anyone who wasn't related to her was at her dance competitions. It was a simple chaste kiss on the cheek for good luck before they'd perform. All clad in sparkly ballroom dresses and tights with just a bit too much makeup, and hair slick to the skull.

It was Catra's turn to perform; she had the routine engraved in her memory so she'd probably score high as usual. She turned toward her friend Noelle and was met with a quick peck on the cheek. She wiped the bright red lipstick off for her gently before wishing her good luck, "Good luck, Catrina!" And with a bright smile and a nod, she advanced out toward center stage, feeling the luck and adrenaline coursing through her bones.

One day, she met an eccentric blonde who would become her best friend forever. It was in the third grade when Catra had been reaching on her tippy-toes to the very top of the supply cupboard, searching for the best markers. She made one wrong move, and suddenly a bunch of supplies came barreling down. Luckily she was fast enough to dash out of the way, but clearly not lucky enough, because then Catra was on the ground next to a big mess, and she felt the searing pain in her elbow and knee. Her elbow was just bruised, but her knee was scraped a bit.

She usually didn't cry anymore when she fell, but it hurt really badly today. She felt the tears coming as she tried and failed to blink them away. She sniffled and sucked her upper lip in, biting it to try and hold back her tears.

"Hey." A soft voice came above her. A girl, only a little taller than her, clad in a sundress with sunflowers all over it, and long blonde hair in two pigtails with her bangs out, placed a gentle palm over Catra's trembling shoulder.

"It's okay. Here, let me help you." Catra's cheeks reddened as the blonde knelt down with a colorful star band-aid extended toward Catra. Where had that even come from?

"Where does it hurt?"

"Mi codo y mi rodilla." Oops , Catra forgot to use her English in all of her distress, but who cares? It was understood as she pointed to her elbow and knee.

The blonde nodded as she removed the plastic from the band-aid and smoothed it over soft, scraped skin.

"There, for your roe-dee-yah !" She beamed and Catra couldn't help but giggle at her poor, stiff pronunciation.

"Want me to kiss your elbow?" Catra furrowed her brows in confusion. Usually, her mami or abuelita just stroked her cheek and kissed her forehead.

"A besito? Why?" The blonde just shrugged and scooched closer toward the brunette.

"It's what my mama always does when I get hurt." Catra searched her crystal blue eyes, making sure she was genuine, before nodding with a quiet, "Yes please."

So, soft hands wrap around a tan arm, and slowly and carefully, a peck is placed right onto Catra's elbow, and she thinks, maybe I'll keep it there for a while. But she keeps it forever.

With a smile, Adora says, "What's your name? I'm Adora Briar Grey! But you can just call me Adora!"

Catra points to herself as her mami taught her, "I'm Catrina Elizabeth Ariza-Molinero...but you can just say Catra."

"Okay! Let's be best friends!"

Catra smiles back and stands with her new best friend, "I really like your hair! Mine is just straight and boring, but yours twists and bounces!"

What an odd description of curls, but still, Catra ignores that because she thinks no aspect of Adora could ever be boring.

"I like your dress, it has girasoles on it." Catra also likes her eyes, her voice, her personality, and even the feeling of her hand in her own; the way they fit perfectly, even as they both grow and get older.

She clarifies at Adora's confusion, "Those are sunflowers." And as they get older, Catra can basically chisme with her completely in Spanish. She always complains how gossip sounds nothing like the Spanish term, well, of course, Adora, it isn't a cognate.

Catra always hangs out with Adora, and it's not long before they grow older and discover new characteristics about themselves. Like the fact that neither of them likes boys, but instead prefers girls. It wasn't as scary as Catra thought when she first told her best friend in their sophomore year of high school. Especially when said best friend replied after a beat, "Me too," all bright and proud.

She wasn't expecting it, of course, but at least they accepted each other and could now gush over females instead of avoiding males as a topic altogether.

It was then, at the end of their junior year, when they were studying for finals that it happened. Catra was probably over-analyzing her biology textbook by now, but she needed to pass this class, and the only way that'd be possible is if she studied a lot being that the quizzes were already extremely hard for some reason.

She thought Adora was also nose-deep in her algebra study guides, but apparently not because when she looked up to complain about her brain rotting, Adora was already staring at her, big blue eyes magnified by the clear-framed glasses she occasionally sported.

Catra just flopped down beside her on the wooden floor of Adora's bedroom, groaning in annoyance, "Biology makes my brain want to rot. Who even cares about mitochondria if they're working in an office!?"

Catra opens her eyes and quirks a brow at her best friend, "What're you thinking about, Tonta?"

Apparently, that snaps her out of her haze, "Hey! I'm very smart! I'm gonna pass algebra! Right after I figure out these dumb exponent rules." She puffs her cheeks out a bit as she huffs about algebra.

"Algebra's easy, you just overthink everything too much."

Adora removes her glasses and zones out, once again, "But seriously, stop thinking so hard. Let's go eat the brownies your mom made earlier!"

Adora smiles as she blushes a bit and looks away, "You, I was thinking about you...I always am recently..."

When Adora looks up, Catra is looking at her with widened eyes, and suddenly Adora realizes what actually came out of her mouth, "Cat, I- what I meant was-"

"Thinking about me, how?" She interrupts Adora's external freak-out quietly, barely above a whisper.

They're both still as statues, yet their hearts are beating at the speed of light. After searching Catra's face, she realizes that she has to finally tell the truth, even if her best friend doesn't feel the same way, because she deserves to know, "I think of how your hand fits perfectly in mine, a-and how you always smell so nice and just like you . I think about how soft your hair is when I braid it, and how when I first felt and saw it, I wanted to make friendship bracelets out of our hair." They both smile and giggle softly.

"I always think about how your lips would feel against mine though..."

" Bésame ." For a second Adora thinks she just imagined that her best friend just told her to kiss her.

But then they move closer to each other; Adora has her hand on Catra's soft cheek, and Catra has hers on Adora's shoulder, slowly moving toward her neck to run her fingers through the blonde hair just slightly above.

They lean in and look into each other's eyes, and Catra sees all the memories they've created over the years. She sees two kids racing on their bikes to the park, pre-teens dancing together as friends at their first school dance, teenagers taking their driver's tests together, and staying up all night whispering and goofing around. And now, blue eyes looking equally as fond into her own.

Adora only sees a small brunette girl with a hurt codo and rodilla, tears in her eyes as she cradles herself alone.

When they finally close the distance it is like magic, but not the fake movie magic, or the magic in cheesy romance novels. It's soft and warm , and it's like the spring sun between a rainbow and clouds after it rains, or warm hot chocolate on a cold day. It's like home. And it's all Catra has ever wanted, needed even.

When they pull apart they still stay close, clutching one another for dear life, hoping, praying it's not a dream; just staring at one another under the soft, yellow fairy lights.

"And, I love your hair, how it twists and bounces when I run my fingers through it." They laugh at the old memory. Still vibrant and fresh in their minds to this day.

"I love how your smile is like a sunflower field, like a sky with a thousand suns," Catra says softly.

Adora smiles that bright, beautiful smile that harnesses so much positive energy.

"Tesoro."

"Hm?"

"That's what I'm gonna call you because you're my treasure. Y tu sonrisa tiene mucha belleza." Somehow Adora's smile gets impossibly wider.

"Well, I'll call you mi nena queridas. Because you are so dear to me."

Catra pulls away, "I know we've said it many times but, I love you so much, you mean the world to me, Adora."

"You really love me?"

Catra's shocked that she'd even question that, "Of course, I always have."

Adora tackles the brunette, wiping her stray tears, "I love you too." She replies softly.

And Catra will always know her way home because whether she follows the sun, the warmth, the sunflower fields, or even the yummy sweet smell of fresh brownies, she'll always be led to her Adora, her home, her warmth, her tesoro, her querida, her cariño, or her girasol; Adora is her vida, and she'd always smile as long as Adora is there so smile and share the warmth with her.

FIN

End Notes

I'm kind of embarrassed ngl, but I wanted to post more of my older works on here.

Behold the super long translations list (no I did not put the special characters):
Ay mi nena bella- My beautiful baby beso/besito- kiss
codo- elbow rodilla- knee
girasoles- sunflowers
chisme- gossip
tonta- silly/fool (In this case fool lol)
besame- kiss me
tesoro- treasure
y tu sonrisa tiene mucha belleza- and your smile is very beautiful mi nena queridas- basically my dear or my dearest baby querida- dear
carino- sweetie
girasol- sunflower
vida- life

Please drop by the Archive and comment to let the creator know if you enjoyed their work!