one thing leads to another (and thus i met you)

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/31056245.

Rating:
Teen And Up Audiences

Archive Warning:
Creator Chose Not To Use Archive Warnings

Category:
F/F, F/M

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationship:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Bow/Glimmer (She-Ra), Mermista/Sea Hawk (She-Ra), Perfuma/Scorpia (She-Ra)

Character:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), Bow (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra), Mermista (She-Ra), Sea Hawk (She-Ra), Perfuma (She-Ra), Scorpia (She-Ra), Razz (She-Ra), Light Hope (She-Ra), Castaspella (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Alternate Universe - Coffee Shops & Cafés, Coffee Shops, Alternate Universe - Modern Setting, One Shot, Short One Shot, Fluff, Tooth-Rotting Fluff, Alternate Universe - High School, Lesbian Catra (She-Ra), Human Catra (She-Ra), Lesbian Adora (She-Ra), Lesbian Disaster Adora (She-Ra), Fluffy Ending, Modern Era, another coffee shop AU, catradora, mentioned angella, castaspella is there for like one second

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2021-05-03 Words: 6,119 Chapters: 1/1

one thing leads to another (and thus i met you)
Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/31056245.

Rating:
Teen And Up Audiences

Archive Warning:
Creator Chose Not To Use Archive Warnings

Category:
F/F, F/M

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationship:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Bow/Glimmer (She-Ra), Mermista/Sea Hawk (She-Ra), Perfuma/Scorpia (She-Ra)

Character:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), Bow (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra), Mermista (She-Ra), Sea Hawk (She-Ra), Perfuma (She-Ra), Scorpia (She-Ra), Razz (She-Ra), Light Hope (She-Ra), Castaspella (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Alternate Universe - Coffee Shops & Cafés, Coffee Shops, Alternate Universe - Modern Setting, One Shot, Short One Shot, Fluff, Tooth-Rotting Fluff, Alternate Universe - High School, Lesbian Catra (She-Ra), Human Catra (She-Ra), Lesbian Adora (She-Ra), Lesbian Disaster Adora (She-Ra), Fluffy Ending, Modern Era, another coffee shop AU, catradora, mentioned angella, castaspella is there for like one second

Language:
English

Stats:

Published: 2021-05-03 Words: 6,119 Chapters: 1/1

one thing leads to another (and thus i met you)

by applesauce6

Summary

After moving to Brightmoon and getting a new job at a coffeeshop to help out Razz, things were looking up for Adora. Besides her stubborn and strict boss who was hard on her, things were looking up for the bright-eyed girl. On her first day of work, she meets a quiet girl who immediately catches her eye, especially since the girl had two different colored eyes, you don't see that often! Flustered by the girl's beauty, Adora takes the girl's order and makes her drink, things were going well for her until she spilled the girl's drink all over her. That wasn't the greatest first impression and the girl stormed out of the cafe, leaving Adora embarrassed and ashamed. But, what type of relationship would the two girls make when they find out that they both go to the same school and live close to each other?

Notes

yay new fic! I PROMISE THIS IS MY LAST COFFEESHOP AU LMFAO

See the end of the work for more notes

Humming as she cleaned the counters, the girl grinned to herself, This is great! She thought, First, I move into a new town with Razz and then I get a job at this bougie coffee place! Sure it pays less than minimum wage- wait is that even legal? Whatever, at least I'm getting some money now so I don't have to feel like a freeloader to Razz anymore.

"Adora," the girl turned her head and saw that her manager, Ms. Hope, was calling to her. Hope was a tall woman with fair skin, her hair was shaven and she had a permanent scowl on her face. Adora doesn't think she even saw Ms. Hope smile once yet. The woman cleared her throat. "You have your little 'cheat sheet' of how to make the drinks right?"

Taking out a small notepad from her apron pocket, Adora grinned. "Yep, wrote all the directions of how to make drinks down on this paper. It's all right here!" She said proudly.

Ms. Hope nodded her head and turned away, "Good, try to memorize all the directions by your next work day."

Chuckling, Adora scratched the side of her head nervously, "But Ms. Hope, I'm working again tomorrow ."

"Get memorizing," the woman shrugged before she went to the back room.

After managing to survive through her first morning rush with the help of Ms. Hope, Adora was exhausted and just stood behind the register as she was rethinking her life decisions. Why a coffee shop? This is so hard and my boss is kinda a prick too, Adora thought to herself. I should have applied to the record shop before… She slapped her cheeks hard. Okay! No, this is no time to evaluate your life decisions, Adora! Focus!

The door opened and Adora saw a girl with tan skin and bushy brunette hair walk in. What really differentiated the girl from others for Adora, was that she had two different colored eyes, one ocean blue pupil and another being golden brown. The blonde blushed. Oh shit, she's hot. Okay, let's not lesbian panic right now.

The customer took an earbud out. "I'll just get a latte for here please."

"What type of milk?" Adora asked. Please be oat. Please be oat. Please be oat.

"Oat."

Score! Adora thought, She's definitely gay. I mean, not to assume or anything. But, hopefully she is though.

After the girl paid for her drink, Adora took out her notepad and stared at her notes, “Latte, latte, latte,” she whispered to herself. “Found it!” She quickly brewed a cup of coffee and started to froth up a cup of oat milk, trying not to spill it everywhere. The girl carefully poured the milk over the cup of coffee and tried to make a pretty latte art, like the ones she saw on Instagram, but instead she made a blob.

“This is fine,” Adora reassured herself. “My latte has character.” She placed the cup on a tray and started to walk over to the table where the girl was sitting at, “Here’s your latte-” having the worst luck, Adora accidentally tripped over her own foot and spilled the drink all over the customer. I’m so dead, Adora thought. I’m going to get fired on my first day. I’m sorry Razz.

“Ugh, what the fuck. Seriously ?” The girl stood up, her clothes dripping with latte. She sighed. “This is the worst day ever…”

Running over to the counter to get some towels, Adora laughed nervously. “I’m so sorry! Here, I’ll help clean you up!”

Patting the towel on her clothes, the girl groaned. “Thanks, I guess.”

“I’ll make you another drink!” Adora said. “It’ll be on the house! Please don’t tell my manager about this! I can’t get fired now.” I sound so desperate, but I can’t afford to lose my job yet.

Raising an eyebrow, the brunette rolled her eyes and scoffed. “Do I look like I’m the type of person who would call over a manager just because of a mistake?” She sighed. “You’re fine, and I’ll take a raincheck on the free drink.”

Watching the girl pick up her bags and leave the cafe, Adora facepalmed. “I can’t believe I just did that.”

Lying in bed, Catra rubbed her eyes as she talked on the phone with her two best friends, Entrapta and Scorpia. “Dude, some hot blonde chick spilled my drink all over me when I was getting my daily dose of caffeine,” she complained. “I didn’t wanna look like a fucking Karen and be an asshole about it, so I just left after I cleaned up a bit.”

“ Did you just say hot? ” Scorpia said on the call.

Wrinkling her nose, Catra made a face. “What the fuck are you talking about?” She sighed. “But I swear to fucking god, after that latte incident, everything has been going bad for me, I tripped three times while walking back home and I had to run from a bird. A fucking bird! It’s like the barista spilled some bad omen on me,” Catra pursed her lips. “I was so close to blowing up at every little thing today, but thanks to some of Perfuma’s anger management lessons, I refrained myself a bit.” She let out a sigh, “Anyways, yeah, that’s how my day is going so far, what about you guys?”

" Nothing much!" Entrapta grinned, " I reprogrammed Emily a bit since she was having some technical difficulties, I finished my science project, then went to the bakery to get their miniature cupcakes, tiny food is just so adorable! And now I am currently working on my own personal project!"

Catra blinked. "You call that, 'nothing much?'"

Scorpia laughed. " Oh! Did you guys hear that the new student is going to come to class tomorrow?"

"Who cares," Catra said. "It's just a new student. Don't get your panties in a twist."

" I can't help it! I love meeting new people! Plus, aren't you excited to find out what type of person they are though?" Scorpia asked.

The brunette shrugged, "Nope. Not interested at all."

"Exciting news everyone!" Catra heard her teacher say as she just twirled her pen around her fingers. "Our new long awaited new student has arrived! Why don't you introduce yourself?"

"I'm Adora, nice to meet you!"

“Adora, why don’t you sit behind Catra over there?”

Catra looked up from her pen and her eyes widened in shock. In front of her was the same blonde barista who spilled the latte on her. Catra clenched her teeth. Oh, what the fuck? It’s her?

Drumming her fingers on the desk, Catra turned her head to glance at Adora behind her. Why did she have to sit behind me? Wait, shouldn't I be happy that a pretty girl is sitting behind me- Catra shook that thought away.

She felt someone tapping on her shoulder and turned her head, “What?” She said sourly.

“Catra, right?” Adora asked, “Uh… again, I’m really sorry for spilling your drink on you.”

“It’s fine,” Catra said coldly without batting an eye. Please stop talking to me, she thought, I’m trying to pay attention to not paying attention in class.

Grinning, Adora kept looking at Catra. “I still owe you that drink though! So you’re welcome to come over anytime when I’m on my shift.”

The brunette hummed. “Fantastic,” she said bluntly.

“Catra!” The girl looked up and saw the teacher glaring at her. “Since you’re so talkative today, why don’t you come up and answer number 7?”

Gritting her teeth, Catra gave the woman a bitter smile and spoke through her teeth. “Of course,” I swear to fucking god, she thought, Having Ms. Clumsy sitting behind me will be the death of me.

Holding a lunch tray as she walked around the cafeteria, Adora pursed her lip into a thin line. “There’s no empty tables…” she muttered to herself and sighed. “Should I try to find Catra and eat with her? She probably wouldn’t like that though-”

“Hey, new girl!” A voice called, Adora turned her head and saw a couple sitting at a table. The boy had dark skin and was wearing a crop top, while the girl was short in stature and had bright colored cotton candy pink hair. “Wanna sit with us?”

Having no other option than sitting alone, Adora walked over to the table and sat down, “Hey,” she said shyly. “Nice to meet you, I’m Adora.”

“Bow,” the boy said and looked over at the other girl. “And that’s my girlfriend, Glimmer.”

Glimmer smiled at Adora. “So, welcome to BMHS. How do you like it so far?”

“It’s huge,” Adora laughed. “Way bigger than my last school.”

“Which school did you go to before you move?” Bow asked.

Rubbing the back of her neck, Adora laughed, “Oh, I should have specified. I was homeschooled before I moved here.”

“That explains why,” Glimmer laughed. “I mean, I guess I kinda am homeschool in a way.” She looked up at Adora who was looking at her with a raised eyebrow. “My mom’s the principal,” she laughed. Adora nodded her head. “Yeah and I’m part of the student council, so if you want, I can show you around campus a bit.”

Adora smiled. “That sounds great, thank you.”

Bow looked up and grinned, “Here comes the others.”

“Others?” Adora echoed. She looked up and saw another boy with a thick handlebar mustache, a cocky grin and dark burgundy hair which was held back by a black headband. Next to him was a dark-skinned girl who had deep teal hair and a taller girl who had flowy blonde hair which had flowers in it.

Pointing at each of them, Bow introduced them to her. “That’s Seahawk and his girlfriend Mermista.” He whispered to Adora. “They are in an on and off relationship. Right now they seem to be doing well.” He cleared his throat. “And that’s Perfuma.”

Waving to Adora, Perfuma smiled. “Pleasure to meet you.”

“A new student?” Seahawk said as he suddenly slammed his boot on the table, which startled Adora. “I hope we go on many adventures together!”

Staring at the boy in confusion, Adora smiled awkwardly. “Looking forward to it!”

Shoving her boyfriend’s foot off of the table, Mermista groaned. “ One lunch ,” she said sternly. “I just want one lunch where you aren’t acting like a madman!”

“Of course my dear Mermista,” he said softly, sitting down next to her.

Nudging Adora, Bow grinned. “So, what do you think of the crew?”

Giving a thumbs up, Adora smiled back. “You guys seem so fun!”

Wrapping an arm around Adora, Glimmer nodded her head in agreement. “Glad you think that way! Because, now you’re a part of it!”

“That sounds great!” Adora exclaimed but then raised an eyebrow. “Hold on, say that again?”

Throwing her bag on her bed, Catra slumped on her chair and groaned into her hands. “What a fucking day,” she said. “If that chick looks at me and gives me another one of her disgustingly cute smiles, I’m going to throw up,” She pictured Adora’s grin and shook her head. Get out of my head!”

“Oh hey Catra!” Adora said, biking up to the girl who was walking to school, “I guess we live in the same area, so we’ll be seeing each other often,” she grinned. “Isn’t that great?”

Humming as she walked, Catra took out one of her earbuds. “What was that?”

Laughing nervously, Adora looked away and blushed in embarrassment. “Uh, nothing,” she said quickly. Was she just talking to herself just then?

Glancing at Adora, Catra smiled to herself. She’s such an idiot, it’s a bit charming.

In the next two weeks, Adora would always meet Catra on her way to school and she would always initiate in small talk with the brunette. Even though Catra gave her blunt, one word answers, Adora was pretty satisfied that she was at least making some kind of progress with getting to know her.

Instead of eating lunch with Scorpia and Entrapta like usual, Catra decided to use the key that she stole months ago and go up to the rooftops to get some fresh air. Leaning against the railings, Catra let out a sigh. “Finally, some peace and quiet, far away from the storm…”

“Catra! What are you doing up here?” Adora yelled as she walked up on the roof.

“And… there’s the storm. Damn, I should have locked the door,” Catra said quietly to herself before she turned around. “What are you doing here Blondie?”

Adora shrugged. “When I was walking over to eat lunch with Bow and Glimmer, I saw you head up here and I just wanted to follow you a bit to see where you were going.”

Pointing her finger at the door, Catra agitatedly rubbed the sides of her temples. “Well, now that you have seen where I went, leave.”

Ignoring her, Adora looked around the rooftops, “Woah, it’s pretty nice up here, Glimmer didn’t bring me up here when she was giving me a tour.”

“That’s because this part of the school is restricted.”

Adora gasped. “Wait what?”

Twirling a key around her finger, Catra grinned. “Snatched it from Angella’s office.”

“You should probably give it back,” replied Adora.

Catra rolled her eyes. “Don’t be such a buzzkill princess.”

“I just don’t want you to get in trouble!”

Shrugging, Catra leaned her back against the railings. “That’s sweet, I think, but I don’t need any protection from you princess.” She smiled mischievously. “Plus, Angella isn’t going to be missing this key and I never get caught.”

“Huh. Why is this door open?” One of the teachers, Ms. Castaspella said. The woman looked up and stared at Adora and Catra for a second.

Catra blinked. “I can explain-”

“I can’t believe we got detention,” Catra huffed as she sat in an empty classroom with Adora.

“I am so sorry,” Adora apologized. “I should have closed that door.”

Gritting her teeth, Catra turned her head and glared at Adora. “ Or , brain idea, you should have just not followed me. Look, I go up there to get away from all the shit that happens down here, you following me up there just defeated the purpose of why I went on the rooftop in the first place,” she snapped.

Before Adora could say anything else, Ms. Castaspella went into the room and crossed her arms. “No talking in detention girls, just do your work silently for 2 hours.”

Catra looked up at the time, it was 3 pm, she pursed her lips and took deep breaths, Okay, remember your breathing exercises. This will be fine.

“That fucking sucked,” Catra grumbled, kicking a rock as she walked back home.

“Oh, it wasn’t that bad,” Adora said optimistically. “At least we got a lot of homework done.”

Giving Adora a look, Catra rolled her eyes. “Of course you would think that. You’re a goody-goody,” she sighed, “Anyways, my stop is here, see you tomorrow.”

Adora gasped. “Wait so, you actually want to walk with me to school tomorrow?”

Opening her front door, Catra frowned, “I never said that,” she said quickly. “I’m always going to have to walk to school with you and see your stupid face in the morning, it’s not like I can stop you.”

“Oh?” Adora said smugly, “And here I thought you were starting to like me.”

“I don’t like you!” Catra yelled, her face heating up a bit/ “I hate you! You’re stupid and dumb and get me in trouble!”

Beaming, Adora waved at Catra. “Whatever you say, see you tomorrow!”

After watching Adora happily skip down the sidewalk, Catra went in the house and closed the door behind her. She couldn’t help but smile to herself when she pictured Adora in her head, “I fucking hate her.”

Walking back from school with Catra, Adora glanced over at her, “Hey Catra?” The girl looked over at her. “Sorry if I’m being nosey, but do you live alone?”

“You are being nosey,” replied Catra, she looked over and saw how Adora hung her head and then clapped the blonde on the back. “I’m just fucking around,” she rolled her eyes. “Don’t look at me like that. But no, I don’t live alone, my foster mom is just out on an important business trip right now, so I have the house to myself for like 3 months.”

Adora hummed. “That sounds nice. But you must miss her a lot, do you?”

Making a face, Catra snorted. “No, of course not. My foster mom’s a bitch, I’m glad she’s gone.”

“O-oh…”

Nodding her head, Catra shrugged, “She just puts so much pressure on me and expects me to be like her.”She kicked a rock. “But I’m not going to be scummy like her, I’m going to be so much better than her-” she smiled, “Than everyone ,” she rephrased. “Everyone thinks I’m a slacker in school, I mean it’s kinda true I guess, but I work hard for my future, because one day I’m going to open up my own business and help a bunch of people.” She looked over at Adora who was listening carefully and quickly looked away. “Sorry,” she muttered, “I don’t know why I just told you all of that, I never told anyone that.”

Smiling at Catra, Adora shook her head. “No it’s fine- I mean your foster mom sounds terrible , but it’s cool that you have all these ambitions!” She placed a hand on Catra’s shoulder. “I know it probably won’t mean anything, since it’s coming from me,” she joked, “but ignore all those people who think you can’t do it, because I believe in you!”

Blushing, Catra hid how red she was from Adora. “Thanks,” she mumbled. “And, you’re wrong, it actually does mean a lot,” she whispered.

“What was that?” Adora said.

“I said you’re dumb!” Catra snapped, “Don’t get all sappy with me, it’s disgusting,” Adora laughed and when the girl wasn’t looking, Catra smiled at her. “Do you live with anyone?” She asked.

Adora nodded, “Yep, I live with my foster mom, her name is Razz,” she smiled sadly. “She took care of me since I was little and I’m really thankful for that, but her memory is slowly fading since she was diagnosed with Alzheimer’s last year,” she sighed. “She used to own a bakery in the city but retired because of her health and then we moved to Brightmoon since it’s a fairly quiet town. I’m really glad I got a job at the cafe so now I can help provide for Razz since she’s done so much for me when I was growing up.” Adora ran her fingers anxiously through her hair. “But, I have to admit, it’s difficult balancing my work hours with school life and on top of that taking care of Razz.”

The girl laughed when she looked over at Catra. “Sorry, I revealed a bit too much didn’t I?”

Shaking her head, Catra shrugged. “It’s fine, I blabbed about my personal life back there didn’t I?”

Adora hummed, “Yeah, I guess so.”

Patting Adora on the back, Catra looked at her. “You have a lot on your plate, do me a favor and try to not overwork yourself okay?” Adora raised an eyebrow at her, “Even though people praise others for working a lot, trust me, burnout is not fun.”

“Is that your weird way of telling me to take care of myself?” Adora asked. Catra just shrugged and the blonde grinned at her. “It’s almost like you like me!”

Gritting her teeth, Catra pushed Adora on her side. “Shut up! I’m just sharing my own experiences okay? This is not because I like you,” she scowled.

Adora wrapped an arm around Catra, “Whatever you say, but I know you actually like me.”

Yeah, Catra thought as she watched Adora talk about some of her work stories from the cafe. I guess I do like you. Fuck, I can’t believe I like her.

Pacing back and forth in Scorpia’s room, Catra ran her fingers through her mane. “What the fuck, I can’t believe I like Adora of all people!” She turned to Scorpia and placed both of her hands on her friend’s shoulders. “What do I do?”

“Uh… tell her?” Scorpia said, raising an eyebrow.

Catra made a face, “That’s a terrible idea.”

Scorpia hummed. “I mean, that’s what I did when I found out when I liked Perfuma.”

“Yeah exactly, that’s what you would do,” said Catra. “But what would Catra do?”

Rubbing her chin, Scorpia thought for a second. “Uh… make fun of Adora so she doesn’t find out you have a crush on her and wait for her to like you and ask you out because you don’t want to look desperate and be the one who asks her out first?”

The girl snapped her fingers, “Perfect.”

“Is it though?”

Catra nodded. “If I ask Adora first, she’s going to be all smug about it and I do not want to see her cocky grin.” She shivered, “I can almost picture it.”

Scorpia snorted. “I mean, it works both ways, if you agree to go on a date with her, won’t she be all smug about it either way?”

The brunette hummed. “Yes, but it’ll be fine.”

“This sounds like a terrible plan Wildcat,” Scorpia said.

“Just watch, it always works,” Catra said confidently.

Cleaning up the cafe after some customers left, Adora grabbed one of the leftover lemon loaves, she plopped down on one of the tables while she rested her head on her hand. “Slow day today…” she said to herself. “So far none of the customers have been as cute as Catra…” she muttered. The girl quickly lifted her head. “Oh, Catra hasn’t been coming over to the cafe ever since I spilled her latte and I still owe her a drink,” an idea popped in her mind and she grinned to herself. “Adora, you are such a beautiful genius.”

Sitting with Scorpia and Entrapta in the courtyard, Catra nudged Scorpia. “She hasn’t asked yet,” she grumbled.

“That’s why I said that you should take the initiative this time,” Scorpia replied.

“Honestly, I think you’re right this time,” Catra admitted. She then felt her phone buzz in her pocket and grinned. “She texted me!”

Scorpia gasped. “What’d she say?”

Reading the text out loud, Catra couldn’t help but smile. “‘Hey Catra, I need to tell you something, meet me behind the library?’” She looked up at Scorpia and smirked. “Told you it always worked.”

“You don’t know that she’s going to ask you out!” Scorpia said, rolling her eyes playfully. “She could be asking to meet you about anything.” The girl nudged Entrapta. “Right ‘Trapta?”

Looking up from her tablet, Entrapta blinked. “Huh?”

The girl sighed, “Nevermind.” She grinned and crossed her arms. “But promise me this, if she just wanted to meet you to tell you something entirely different, you have to ask her out. Deal?” She stuck out her hand.

Clasping Scorpia’s hand firmly, Catra grinned. “Deal.”

Leaning against the wall, Adora bit her lip nervously. “Okay, you can do this Adora,” she said, hyping herself up. “You’re just asking her to grab a cup of coffee with you, that’s it! It doesn’t have to be a date, I mean it would be nice if it was…" she muttered. "But still! This is fine!"

"Hey Adora," the girl looked up and saw Catra walking towards her. "Were you on the phone with someone just then?"

Shit did she hear me talking to myself? That's embarrassing… Adora thought. "Uh… yeah!" She grinned. "I was just talking to Glimmer about something, nothing much." Well, time to ask her out!

Crossing her arms, Catra hummed. "Okay, so what did you want to talk about? Hurry up and make it fast, I have things to do." Hurry up and ask me out you idiot.

Shuffling with her feet, Adora rubbed the back of her neck awkwardly. "So… I noticed that you haven't been in the cafe while I was working in a while."

"Yeah sorry," said Catra. "I've been a bit busy."

"It's all good, it's fine," Adora repeated. "Anyways, I just wanted to say that because I still owe you a latte so… wanna meet at the cafe with me tomorrow?"

Raising an eyebrow, Catra stared at the girl. "I thought you didn't work on Saturdays?"

Adora smirked. “Think of it as a date.”

Catra blushed and then grinned. “About time you asked.”

Entrapta hummed. “Wait where’d Catra go?”

Chuckling, Scorpia patted her friend on the back. “She’s been gone for 10 minutes ‘Trapta.” She sighed. “I wonder how her and Adora are doing,” her phone buzzed in her pocket and Scorpia saw a message from Catra.

Wildcat: it worked >:3

Waiting outside of the cafe for Catra to come, Adora tapped her foot impatiently, “Where is she?” The girl said to herself. “She’s not going to stand me up is she?” Adora shook her head. “No way, Catra isn’t like that, plus I’m 15 minutes early, there’s no need to worry. Everything is fine.”

“Looking for me?” A voice called out.

Adora turned her head. “Catra!”

“Hey Adora,” the brunette cooed, walking forward. “Come on, let’s go in,” she tugged on the blonde’s arm as they went into the building.

“Oh, Adora!” Ms. Hope exclaimed as she was wiping down the counters. “You came to work even though I told you I’ll give you Saturdays off!” The woman grinned proudly, “You really are a hard worker aren’t you? I’ll get your apron in the back.”

Letting out an uncomfortable laugh, Adora smiled at her manager. “Uh… I’m actually here on a date.”

Immediately, the woman’s smile disappeared and she gestured her hand to one of the tables, “Have a seat then,” she said coldly.

Sitting down at the table, Catra snickered. “You’re definitely going to win employee of the month.”

“Oh shut it,” Adora retorted. “Anyways, you going to get a latte?”

“It’s the best thing they have here,” Catra shrugged.

Humming, Adora grinned, “Debatable.”

Catra raised an eyebrow. “Oh? Well then, you work here, so tell me, what’s better than a latte?”

“Oh I don’t know,” Adora said. “Maybe the super, super , hot blonde barista that works here,” she said, sticking a playful tongue out. “I think you would agree right?”

Looking around the room, Catra hummed. “I don’t see one, do you?”

Adora rolled her eyes, “You’re so funny, did you know that?” She said sarcastically.

Standing up, Catra grinned. “I already know that, now come on let’s order.”

“Nope,” Adora said, quickly pushing Catra down in her chair. “ I’m going to be the one who makes your drink.”

“Fuck, you’re going to poison me aren’t you?”

The blonde snorted. “How’d you find out my plan?” As Adora went to the counter, she called out behind her. “Just wait right there okay? I’ll come out with our drinks in a second!”

Quickly grabbing the oak milk and brewing some coffee, Adora grinned to herself, Yes, this is going to go great! She thought, I get to show off my barista skills to Catra! I've gotten so much better at making drinks and I haven't spilled a customer's drink on them in a week!

Carefully adding the frothed milk to the caffeine, Adora silently cheered. "Yes, it's actually a leaf this time and doesn't look like a blob. Good job Adora, goob job, you are the latte art queen."

After making her own frappuccino, Adora grabbed both of the beverages and started to walk back to Catra, "I got the drinks!" She said proudly.

"Woah, woah, woah!" Catra said, raising up two hands. "Slow down there Blondie, don't want you to spill more shit on me okay?" Rolling her eyes playfully, Adora gently placed the drinks on the table and sat down. Sipping her drink, Catra hummed. "I'm impressed Adora, it actually tastes pretty good and you didn't act like a klutz this time. 5 star rating."

Drinking her frappuccino, Adora grinned. "I have had some character development since then."

Catra made a face. "This is missing something…"

“Huh?” Adora said nervously, “What’s wrong?”

“We need some like pastry to go with the drinks,” Catra said, looking up at Adora. “You guys have pastries here right?”

Checking the counters, Adora cringed. “We ran out…”

The brunette frowned, “Oh, oh well,” she took another sip of her drink.

An idea popped into Adora’s mind and she leaned towards Catra. “Y’know what we should do?” She said, inches away from the other girl’s face.

Pushing Adora’s face away from her’s, Catra blushed and coughed. “What?”

“We should go to my house and bake together!” Adora grinned. “My place has a lot of baking ingredients since Razz would once in a while bake some pies for us. Plus you get to meet Razz too! Isn’t it just a good idea?”

Catra laughed. “Meeting the parents already, Adora? Don’t you think we’re moving a bit too fast? We haven’t even gone on a second date yet,” she teased.

“Do you want your dumb pastries or what?”

Taking off her shoes as she walked into Adora’s house, Catra looked around, “Nice place,” she whistled.

“Adora dearie is that you?” A voice called out.

“Hey Razz!” Adora said “Yeah, it’s me, I also brought a date over! We’re going to bake if that’s okay with you!”

Walking around the corner, Catra saw an old woman sitting on the couch. She had large, round glasses that seemed too big for her face and had enormously bushy gray hair. “Oh hello there,” the woman adjusted her glasses. “I’m Madame Razz, nice to meet you dearie!”

Smiling at the woman, Catra nodded her head. “I’m Catra, nice to meet you too.”

Turning her head to Adora, Razz hummed. “You’re going to be baking?” Adora nodded and smiled. “Oh, well,” she turned to Catra, “you better keep an eye on Adora, she’s not much of a cook, I’m surprised she even got a job at the coffee shop in the first place!”

“Razz!” Adora exclaimed as she blushed from embarrassment. She quickly grabbed Catra’s arm and dragged the both of them into the kitchen before Razz could embarrass her anymore. Clearing her throat, Adora leaned against the counter. “Okay, so what do you want to make?”

“Coffee cake?” Catra suggested. “I think it’s pretty fitting since we did just go on a coffee date.”

Adora shugged. “Fair enough, I’ll find a recipe online.”

After getting a recipe online and getting all of the ingredients from the cupboards, the two girls were ready to start baking. Since Catra didn’t trust Adora with cooking after what Razz had said, Adora just watched her combine oil, eggs, vanilla, and milk together in a large bowl.

“We need like 3 cups of flour,” Catra said as she was looking at the recipe.

“Got it boss,” Adora said as she measured out 3 cups of flour into a bowl. She got some of the flour on her hands and instead of washing it off, the girl walked over to Catra and tapped some of the flour on her nose.

Looking up from her phone and wiping the flour off of the nose, Catra gave Adora a shiteating grin. “Oh you asshole,” she said, throwing flour at Adora’s face.

Right when Adora was about to grab more flour and throw it at Catra, she heard Razz clear her throat behind her. “I assume you two will be cleaning up whatever mess you make?”

Laughing nervously, Adora nodded. “Yep, we will, no worries.”

The old woman shrugged, “As long as I don’t have to clean it up, feel free to make any mess you want.”

Once Razz left the two girls alone again, Catra immediately hit Adora with a hand full of flour.

An hour and a half passed and while the cake was baking in the oven, Catra and Adora were busy cleaning up the floury mess that they made in the kitchen. “I think you went a bit too far with the flour,” Adora said, wiping her face with a damp towel.

Catra shrugged. “It was a war, what did you expect, for me to go easy on you?”

“Next time I’ll win,” Adora huffed.

Patting Adora on the back, Catra smiled at her. “It’s good to believe in yourself.”

Rolling her eyes, Adora chuckled, “Watch your back,” she walked over to the oven and hummed in delight. “Hey I think it’s done baking!”

“You sure?” Catra asked. “I don’t want to get fucking food poisoning from this.”

Not listening, Adora opened the oven and quickly stuck a toothpick down the middle, “See, it’s done,” she said, showing that the toothpick had no leftover batter on it. “Razz was wrong, I can bake!”

Making a face, Catra put on some oven mittens and took the tray of coffee cake out, “Oh please, I did all the work while you were eating spoonfuls of brown sugar.”

“Okay,” Adora huffed, “it’s not my fault that brown sugar tastes so fucking good.”

Handing Adora a spoon, Catra smiled. “Well, I hope what we made out of the brown sugar tastes better.”

Taking a bite out of the cake, Adora let out a satisfied hum, “It tastes so good! She scooped out another piece and offered a piece to her, “Here you should try some too!”

Blushing, Catra thought, Do I take the spoon from her? Or should I just take a bite? She looked up at Adora and shyly took a bite. “It tastes… good,” she admitted.

“Really?” Adora exclaimed.

“Yeah,” Catra said, taking out her own spoon.“Probably because I was the one mostly making it,” she teased.

Adora frowned. “I helped too!”

“A bit,” Catra looked down at her phone. “Shit, it’s getting late, I should get going.”

“Do you want to take some of the cake home?” Adora asked.

Grinning, Catra nodded her head. “Of course, just a bit though.”

After cutting out a piece of the cake and wrapping it in plastic wrap, Adora walked Catra to the door. “Razz, I’m going to walk Catra home okay?”

Walking slowly out of her room, Razz nodded. “Okay dearie, walk safely.”

Catra waved at Razz, “It was nice to meet you, I hope we see each other soon!”

“Me too dearie,” replied Razz. The old woman walked over to Adora and whispered in the girl’s ear. “I like this one dearie, she’s nice. I’ll try to remember her.”

The two girls walked in a comfortable silence back to Catra’s house, Adora looked over at her date. Fuck… I really wanna kiss her. Is it okay to kiss on the first date or is that too soon?

“Well, this is my stop,” Catra said, she turned to Adora and smiled, “Today was fun, thanks for taking me out.”

Adora nodded. “Of course! We should go out more often!”

Catra smirked. “Are you saying you want to go on more dates?”

“Wasn’t that obvious enough?”

Rubbing the back of her neck, Catra awkwardly gave Adora a hug. "Sorry, that was really sudden-" she looked up at Adora and they met eyes. Oh shit, are we going to kiss right now? Catra thought when she noticed how Adora's eyes flickered down to her lips. Is she going to kiss me? Or do I have to? It's only the first date though. Oh fuck it. Holding Adora's nape in her hand, Catra quickly kissed the girl for a second before she pulled back.

Face flushed, Catra touched her tingling lips and felt like her heart was about to burst in her chest by how happy she was.

" Wow," Adora breathed out.

Snorting, Catra playfully pushed the blonde's shoulder. "Don't ruin the moment."

"Yeah?" Adora said grinning. "Like how I ruined your shirt by spilling your latte on it?" She said smugly.

Rolling her eyes, Catra groaned. "Y'know I don't know if I should be happy or upset that you spilled my latte on me because I wouldn't have wanted to meet you any other way, but then again… I met you," she scoffed.

Adora shrugged. "Isn't that a win-win situation? I'm pretty great if I must say so myself."

Pecking Adora on the cheek, Catra nodded her head slowly. “As much as I hate to admit it, you are pretty great.”

Gasping in surprise, Adora’s eyes sparkled in delight. “Oh my god! Did you just agree with me?”

“Don’t make me regret it,” Catra sighed and then nodded her head. “Fuck, I never thought I would say this, but I’m glad that you spilled coffee on me.”

End Notes

ahhh OKAY AGAIN I PROMISE THIS IS MY LAST COFFEESHOP AU LMFAO I KNOW IVE DONE THEM A LOT BUT I CANT HELP IT OKAY THEY ARE JUST SO FUN TO WRITE! anyways yeah this was just a really fluffy catradora story because i missed writing them and the last two catradora stories that i wrote literally broke everyone so i thought i should make a fluffy one just to heal from the last two haha! this whole fanfic was just really fun to write i have no idea how i came up with the idea of this fanfiction it was probably like one of my 1 am thoughts tbh LMFAO i just randomly get story ideas and then in the morning im like "WRITE THAT DOWN WRITE THAT DOWN!" anyways yeah this wasn't a very COMPLICATED/rollercoaster of a fic but it was fun and fluffy to write and read i hope. anyways hope you guys enjoyed this short story and im going to be coming back next week with another short lumity miniseries AND TRUST ME WHEN I SAY THAT YOU GUYS WILL NOT BE READY FOR IT HAHAHA bc ofc after something fluffy i have to hit you guys with some good ol fashion angst! anyways yeah please feel free to drop a kudos and leave a comment down below i hope you guys enjoyed the story and i hope you all have a good morning/afternoon/evening! :)

Please drop by the archive and comment to let the author know if you enjoyed their work!