Comfortable on my shoulder

by dres_l

Summary

Catra insisted she wasn't too tired for a movie night. Lovedumb Adora would of course let her sleep on her shoulder for the entire movie, what else could she do?

Notes

See the end of the work for notes

Catra had picked the movie but had still fallen asleep first. Adora didn't blame her, she had been studying for her exams all week. Adora had offered they hangout another night, but Catra insisted she wasn't that tired.

The two of them sat on Adora's twin bed with her very plain white sheets and a dark blue comforter over their legs. Her side of the dorm was decorated with a couple of posters and some Polaroids of her friends. The dorm lights overhead are way too bright so she has a small lamp on her desk and a string of star shaped lights, that Catra had given her as a move-in present, giving the rooma softer glow. Her roommate and new friend Glimmer is out tonight with the rest of their friend group. Adora had been asked to join but she already had movie night plans with Catra which sounded much more appealing than whatever frat is throwing a party tonight. Glimmer's side of the room is much more extravagant than Adora's, a large colorful tapestry is the center piece surrounded by posters and photos. On the first day, her mother helped her install a headboard to the dorm bed before she added a mountain of pillows and extra fuzzy blankets that Adora still doesn't understand.

Catra sat on the side of the bed closest to the wall while Adora had grabbed her laptop. Adora had climbed in after her and tried to leave a little space between them on the impossibly small bed without falling off the other side. As she opened her laptop on her lap she accepted that their shoulders would be touching and tried to ignore the warmth the small touch was bringing her. With both of them settled under the covers, Adora started scrolling through their watch list, "What do you wanna watch?"

Catra watched her scroll down "Adora's" watch list which was like 70% Catra's recommendations at this point. "Hmm what genre are you in the mood for? There's still some on here that neither of us have seen," Catra said as she saw a few titles that she barely remembered the trailers for.

Adora continued to mindlessly scroll through the list and began, "I don't know maybe something with ro-"

"Ooo this one! I forgot about this movie I've been dying to make you watch it. You're gonna love it," Catra interrupts, quickly leaning forward and jokingly moving Adora's hands away so she can click on the movie. Adora laughs and holds her hands up in surrender as Catra finishes turning on subtitles and increasing the laptop volume. "I don't get why you keep your volume this low when your speakers sound this good," Catra joked as she leans back against the pillow she put against the dorm wall, satisfied with her movie choice.

"Well only one of us is going to have hearing loss by the time they're 30 and we both know it's not me," Adora joked back as she settled the laptop on her lap, turned so they could both see. Adora hit play and leaned back against her own pillow. She once again feels warmth where her shoulder is pressed against Catra's but it's comforting as she settles in and watches whatever movie Catra chose.

Maybe 30 minutes into the movie, Adora didn't dare move to check, she felt Catra shift beside her. She at first thought she was moving away but then she felt a head rest on her shoulder. Adora felt herself freeze, not wanting to move and risk Catra moving away. Catra didn't say anything, just settled herself against Adora and continued watching the movie. Adora was no longer paying attention to the movie and was solely focused on every point of contact between them.

An eternity (15 more minutes) passed with Adora trying and failing to watch the movie before she heard Catra's breathing get softer and felt her relax even more against Adora. Adora finally allowed herself to look over and saw her best friend sleeping comfortably on her shoulder. She smiled, thinking about how she will get to say "I told you so" later. But for now, she enjoyed the comforting feeling of being a safe place for Catra to rest and she was finally able to relax and watch the movie.

Catra was right that Adora would love this movie. The fantasy setting and the brave hero haunted by a dark pass are things she has loved since they were little, she is surprised she hadn't watched it before.

Another hour had passed with Catra still sleeping and Adora focused on the movie. The hero was in the middle of a tense fight when she felt the arm of her sweatshirt being tugged on. She without thinking relaxed her arm so it could be moved. Catra, while still asleep pulled Adora's arm against her chest and nuzzled her head against Adora to get into a comfier position. Adora swears she heard a soft purr as Catra settled back into sleep, not letting go of Adora's arm.

Adora was no longer watching the movie. The warm feeling spread from her arm all through her chest and all she could think about was her love for Catra. She was enjoying the feeling of Catra needing her closer, not letting go of her and she wanted to fall asleep like this every night. Adora didn't let herself think like this often, trying to protect herself and their friendship but Catra had never pulled her closer like this and Adora can only be so strong when Catra is this adorable.

"Did this mean Catra wanted to be closer to me too?" Adora thought. They'd been best friends since they were little. They both came out to eachother in middle school and they had stayed best friends this whole time all the way to freshman year of college. Thinking about how Catra might feel was something that occasionally kept Adora awake at night. Worries about their friendship and fear of rejection often working their way in to her thoughts too.

Adora puts all those thoughts aside, she will have time to think later. She wants to enjoy this feeling before Catra wakes up and pulls away, taking the warmth with her.

The movie has maybe 10 minutes left when she feels Catra begin to wake up.

"Hey sleepyhead, I told you you were tired from your exams," Adora says when she looks over and sees Catra's eyes open. Catra hums a response that Adora knows means "whatever" but to Adora's surprise she doesn't move.

"I missed the final battle? You should've woken me up for that part I love that part," Catra says, aimlessly running her one hand up and down Adora's forearm.

"H-ow, how was I supposed to know?" Adora stumbles over her words, her mind racing. Catra's hand doesn't stop moving and the light touches feel like Adora is being set on fire.

"You should've guessed it, everyone loves a final battle," Adora swears she can feel Catra's breath through her sweatshirt as she continues, "Plus, you know I love making fun of bad special effects, like his arm getting cut off looked so stupid."

Adora laughs, and is about to answer when she feels Catra's hand still. She looks down at where Catra left her hand on her arm, releasing a breath she didn't know she was holding, before she hears metal clatter to the ground and realizes that the movie is still going. She watches to see the hero knight dropped their helmet for the first time to reveal herself to the princess she finally saved. The knight kneeled, asking for forgiveness for lying to the princess about her identity but the princess tells the knight to rise. Doing as told, the knight rose but still looked away. The princess reached up and gently pushed the knights chin up so that she would meet her gaze. "Thank you my brave knight, may I?" The knight's eyes go wide but nods anyway and the princess wastes little time before reaching up and pulling the knight's lips against her own. The pair kiss as the camera moves further away and eventually fades to the credits.

Catra hasn't moved away from Adora but Adora can feel that something has shifted.

"You were right, I did love that movie," Adora says, not sure if she should move just yet. Catra hums in response and Adora feels her start to lift her head off her shoulder. Adora misses the contact and warmth the second Catra moves so she turns to look at her. Adora didn't realize Catra hadn't moved that far away yet so their faces are closer together than she expected but neither pull away. She looks into Catra's eyes and she sees Catra look down before meeting her gaze. Adora can't help it and she feels her eyes drift down to Catra's lips and before she can even look back up, Catra has closed the distance and her lips are against Adora's.

Adora lets out a surprised sound before her brain catches up and kisses Catra back. Catra is still holding onto Adora's arm so she brings her other hand up to hold Catra's face as they kiss, stroking her cheek with her thumb.

Adora pulls away just enough to breathe, opening her eyes to look at Catra. Catra looks just as out of breath as Adora feels and Adora is trying to commit every detail to memory.

"Hi," Adora says getting a laugh out of Catra who leans her forehead down against Adora's shoulder.

"Is 'hi' really your best line? I can't believe I fell for you," Catra says still leaning against Adora. Adora's heart is pounding and her mind is trying to understand what Catra just said.

"Wait wait, fell for me? You like me?" Adora feels dumb but she can't believe what she's hearing.

"Adora I've 'liked' you since the 7th grade, I'm so glad you noticed," Catra looks up at her and the playful sarcasm isn't hiding the nervousness in her eyes. Adora is looking back at her with the biggest most genuine smile that Catra can't help but smile back.

"My 7th grade beanie phase really did it for you huh?" Adora joked. Catra shoved her and called her an idiot while Adora laughed. "I love you too, for the record." Catra reaches for Adora's laptop, closes it and pushes it by the foot of the bed out of their way.

"Love?" Catra asks as she places one leg on the other side of Adora's lap so she can sit facing her. "Not just 'like' me?" Adora realizes what she said but has no brain capacity to be embarrassed with Catra straddling her lap and looking at her like she always dreamed she would.

Adora nods as Catra leans down and they're kissing again, harder than before. Catra has one hand on Adora's cheek and the other on the back of her head holding her close. Adora's hands come up to hold onto Catra's hips, almost trying to bring her impossibly closer. They kiss like they never want to stop, like they never thought they'd get the chance. One of them would smile and interrupt the kiss which would lead to the other laughing before their lips would meet again. And again.

End Notes

Never written a fic before but I had the pulling her arm in her sleep scene in my head and had to write something. This was written in like 2 hours on my phone so forgive any errors.
