The Final Battle

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/57036298.

Rating:
General Audiences

Archive Warning:
Major Character Death

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationship:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Catra (She-Ra), Adora (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Short One Shot, catradora, Hurt, Not Canon Compliant

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2024-06-30 Words: 816 Chapters: 1/1

The Final Battle

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/57036298.

Rating:
General Audiences

Archive Warning:
Major Character Death

Fandom:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018)

Relationship:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra)

Characters:
Catra (She-Ra), Adora (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Short One Shot, catradora, Hurt, Not Canon Compliant

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2024-06-30 Words: 816 Chapters: 1/1

The Final Battle

by CherryBlossom1127

Summary

Catra fights Adora in battle like normal, but something goes wrong oops! (takes place sometime after season 2 of spop)

Notes

Found this in the depths of my notes app dated July 1st, 2019 and decided to make some itty bitty edits and post it here so it doesn't stay half-forgotten :)
Also! tagged it adora/catra bc I was a day 1 catradora shipper, and this was written before they were officially canon. I wrote it with the intention that they were in love (they just didn't want to admit it yet) <3

See the end of the work for more notes

“ADORA!” Catra screamed. It was the loudest Catra had ever screamed her name, and it was with the most emotion too. However, there was nothing Catra could do.

The Horde and the Rebellion were in one of its most destructive battles yet: the Rebellion finally attempting to capture the Fright Zone. Adora, as She-ra of course, was at the forefront of the battle, leading the armies of soldiers. She and the other members of the princess alliance were fighting on the front lines, preferring to risk themselves before their subjects.

Catra was at the forefront of the Horde’s forces, after finally gaining Hordak’s forgiveness. Catra’s plan was simple: defend the Fright Zone’s borders without killing Adora. That was it. However, like many plans do, this one went wrong.

It was out of Catra’s control. Catra went to separate Adora from the rest of the Rebellion, so they could fight, so Catra could protect her.

“Why are you doing this, Catra?” Adora kept pleading. “Why not join us before it’s too late? The Rebellion would forgive you!”

After Beast Island, Catra realized how truly evil the Horde was, and realized she needed to get out. However, she returned for one reason: to protect Adora. Catra knew if she could regain her lost status, she’d be put on the front lines of the battle, and she could fight Adora. Catra knew she was the only one in the Horde that wouldn’t kill Adora.

“You really dont understand, do you?” Catra spat. “I’m perfectly happy here. I have more power here than the Rebellion would ever think of giving me. People here listen.” It hurt Catra to say that, especially since she now knew the Rebellion would be better in the long run. And if she finally joined, she’d have the chance to truly start over with Adora… But she wouldn’t be able to protect her in the same way anymore.

And so they fought. They fought like they've been fighting for the past year. Catra strategically pulling short or missing in a way Adora wouldn't notice. Catra's whole plan revolved around Adora surviving, even if it came at the cost of Catra's life.

This battle wasn't different. Adora and Catra were fighting like normal, until Catra saw a blur in the corner of her eye. She quickly turned to see a Horde soldier already firing a shot. Catra only had the time to yell Adora's name.

Adora turned, but it was too late. The shot had been fired, and she'd been hit. Adora flew across the clearing they'd been fighting in from the force of the shot. She landed with a grunt and changed from her She-ra form back into her true self.

Catra sprinted as fast as she could to Adora's body.

"Adora!" Catra yelled as she shook Adora's body. "Adora! Are you ok? Please wake up!"

Catra moved Adora so her head was in Catra's laps.

"Catra?" Adora said, weakly.

"I'm right here," Catra said.

"Wh-what happened?"

"You were shot."

Adora moaned in pain, the life in her eyes started to flicker.

"I'm dying," she said, with a strange peace to her words.

Catra started crying. Not sobbing, but just a few tears. She couldn't cry like this in front of Adora.

"You can't be dying. You're supposed to live," Catra said in response.

"It's okay," said Adora.

“No. You were supposed to win. That was the plan. You were supposed to save the day. Please don’t die. I can’t do this alone!”

“I’ll always be with you, Catra. I love you.” Those we’re Adora’s last words. She closed her eyes, and her body went limp. All that was left of her was the trace of a small smile permanently set in her lips.

“Adora?” Catra said. “Adora! Adora, please. Wake up.”

Catra shook Adora’s body, in an attempt to wake her up.

“This is a nightmare right? Or a sick joke? You’re only pretending. Please! Wake up!”

But Adora didn’t wake up.

“Adora! I can’t do this alone! Please, wake up! I need you! This wasn’t a part of the plan!”

Catra started screaming and crying about all of the injustices of the world. That’s when she started sobbing over Adora’s dead body.

“I-I wanted to spend the rest of my life with you,” Catra said, barely more audible than a whisper.

Catra heard footsteps. She recognized Glimmer’s scent. She smelled like ozone when she recently used her powers.

“Wha-“ she started, but her words trailed off when she saw the scene.

Glimmer never liked Catra, and she had every reason to believe that Catra killed Adora, but her intuition told her otherwise. Even if Catra was evil, Glimmer knew that Catra would never kill Adora. Never. So, with tears quietly streaming down her face, Glimmer walked up and sat down next to Catra.

“I’m sorry,” she told Catra. “She’s in a better place now.”

End Notes

hope y'all enjoyed!

Please drop by the Archive and comment to let the creator know if you enjoyed their work!