Your Driver

Summary

Catra drives Adora around for cash… kind of like a ride share without the sharing…
Catra asks Adora out.

Fluff.

Notes

Short fluff… enjoy

See the end of the work for more notes

“Hey Adora.” Catra greets as she pulls up into the blondes driveway and puts the car in park.
“Hi Catra!” Adora responds a little too eagerly with a wave that she’ll chatise herself for later, “I mean, hey Catra.” She tries again as she hops into the backseat and buckles up.
Catra chuckles as she puts the car in reverse, “Same spot as last time?”
“Yes please.” Adora answers, “I’m glad it’s you.”
Catra glances back for a second and sees the sincere look in Adora’s eyes, “I gave you my number for a reason, princess.” Catra replies with a grin, “Figured you’d probably like someone familiar driving you around instead of those creeps you’ve told me about in the past.”
The blonde nods, “Thank you again for that.”
“Eh, I can’t complain when I get cash in hand at the end of the job.” Catra says as she fiddles around with the radio, finding the station she knows Adora likes, “Besides, at least I can schedule your trips and you’re okay to talk to as well I guess.”
“Sounds like you like me…” Adora teases before she leans forward, “I like talking to you too.”
Catra clears her throat not really sure what to do with all of that, so she tries to focus on the road, “Uh, so… are you meeting your boyfriend…”
Adora mouth quirks up into a smile, “No. I don’t have one of those. Boyfriend, I mean.”
Catra nods, trying to keep her eyes focussed on the road, “No? Why not? You’re hot. I’m sure you’ve got guys lining up round the block for you.” Adora shuffles a little uncomfortably in the backseat as Catra realises she may have just crossed a line, “I shouldn’t have said anything…”
“No, it’s not that.” Adora pulls at her fingers nervously.
“Oh, okay. We can drop this… so, there’s a new bar opening up on Friday night. Are you going to go?” Catra diverts.
“New bar?” Adora asks softly, “I haven’t heard of it.”
“Really? It’s right around from where I drop you off.” Catra tells her, “It’s my friend’s Scorpia’s bar and the grand opening is on Friday night. I thought everyone knew…”

“Nope. Guess I haven’t been the most social.” Adora admits with a grimace, “Also about before… I don’t have a boyfriend because well, I’m, uh…”
“Gay?” Catra finishes for her. The blonde nods, “You haven’t told anyone before?” Adora shakes her head, “Oh…”
The realisation hits Catra that Adora has just come out, to her, in her car.
“Is that bad?” Adora asks sheepishly.
“What? Being gay?” Adora nods, “No. Definitely not.”
And once again the blonde perks up, “I don’t know why it took so long for me to… you know…” Adora sighs, “My friends are all queer and open.” She sighs again, “Sorry, I just like, unloaded all of this on you.”
“Nah, it’s all good. I’m honoured that I’m the first one you told.” Catra replies with a soft smile, “So… who is that guy that always greets you with a hug and sometimes a kiss when I drop you off?”
“Oh, that’s my best friend, well one of my best friends, Bow.” Adora answers before narrowing her eyes at the magicat’s reflection in the rear view mirror, “Why?”
“No reason.” Catra quickly replies avoiding looking into said mirror.
Seeing that her driver is not going to give in to this game, Adora leans back and casually throws out, “What about you?”
“What about me?”
“Are you… um… dating anyone?” The question come out shyly as Adora does her best to look calm.
Catra laughs, “You mean between my work as a driver and my busy schedule of sitting around my house afterwards? Where would I find time to go woo a woman?”
Adora’s eye light up, “A woman?”
Catra nods still laughing.
“I’m a woman…” Adora finds her mouth saying before her brain has willed it to.
Catra glances into her rear view mirror, “Yeah… you are.”
There’s a silence in the car as Catra continues to drive as she comes around the corner to Adora’s destination. Catra pulls up into a parking spot just in front of the building and puts her car in park. She sees the blonde hesitate like she doesn’t want to leave just yet when Catra gets out of the car and opens the car door for Adora. The blonde unbuckles herself and looks up to a smirking Catra holding out her hand to assist in getting her out of the car.

"What's with the look?" Adora flusters as she takes Catra's hand and allows her driver to help her out.
"So… You're a woman." Catra starts as Adora looks at her with confusion, "I'm into women."
"Uh huh… I think you've already established that…" Adora can't help but notice Catra still holding her hand.
"What are you doing Friday night?" Catra asks, her shaky voice betrays the confidence she was trying to exude.
"I thought you didn't have time with all your sitting around your house alone…" Adora lightly teases.
Catra rolls her eyes, "You're right. What was I thinking. I have to catch up on all my alone time."
Just as Catra is about to drop Adora's hand, the blonde clings onto the hand just a little tighter, "Sorry, sorry." Adora grins, "You were going to ask me something?"
Catra grins back, "Yeah… uh, do you want to maybe check out this new bar on Friday with me?"
"Yes!" Adora replies quickly, "I thought you'd never ask."
"Hang on, what?!" Catra steps back astonished, "You were waiting for me to ask you out this whole time???"
"Why else would I have gotten your number?" Adora smiles warmly, "I guess I didn't realise how dense you were."
"Hey! Not cool!" Catra protests with a smile, "I thought you just wanted a regular driver that wasn't going to be a creep."
"Well, that was legit though as well…" Adora replies as she tugs Catra back in a step, "Guess I gave you way too much credit if you thought I was straight…"
"But…but… you just came out to me!" Catra argues, "What was I supposed to think when that guy, Bow always hugs and kisses you whenever he sees you!"
"On the cheek, Catra!" Adora laughs, "Besides he hugs everyone!"
"Sure, princess…" Catra shakes her head, "Friday then?"
"Yes." Adora confirms and presses a soft kiss on Catra's cheek.
"Cool. I'll pick you up at 6." Catra grins as she touches the cheek Adora just kissed.
Adora nods as Catra lets go of Adora's hand to get into her car.

Just as she opens the door, Adora shouts, “Wait!”
“Huh?”
“Do I need to schedule a ride and pay cash for this Friday night?”
Catra can’t tell if Adora is being serious or not until the blonde breaks out in laughter much too Catra’s surprise.
Catra shakes her head with a grin, “You’re such an idiot.”
Adora feigns offence as Catra pulls the blonde into her and reciprocates the cheek kiss, “I know…” Adora blushes.
“See you Friday.” Catra says as she gets back into her car, “Gotta clear my busy sitting at home schedule for a gorgeous woman I got a date with on Friday.”
Adora laughs as she waves Catra off thinking, “I can’t wait!”

End Notes

I’m waiting around at work because it’s raining… So what better thing to do than write a short on my phone while sitting in the work van waiting for a truck to turn up…
I still have a few more hours of waiting… So if you’ve got ideas since I don’t have my laptop for my other fic… Let me know so I can start thinking about maybe writing something about it… haha
