Catra was snuggling up next to Adora on her couch. After years of friendship that was never close enough and fighting that was never far enough, they were finally together.

"So Princess, how are we going to break it to Sparkles and Arrow , since you know, they hate my guts?"

"Bow does not hate you Catra, stop being dramatic. But yeah Glimmer really does not like you. She'll have to suck it up though. Can't have my best friend hating my girlfriend."

Catra smiled. "Your girlfriend? Getting pretty ahead of ourselves, are we? You haven't even taken me out on a date yet Grey ."

Adora sputtered, "What? But I thought-"

Catra put her finger on Adora's lips to silence her. "Shh, dummy , of course I'll be your girlfriend. I just wanted to tease you a little."

Catra shifted her head to lie against Adora's neck as they cuddled. She could feel Adora's pulse slow down as Adora processed what she said.

"Oh. Okay ."

"Okay , that's the best you've got?"

"Ugh, shut up, Catra! You know how I get."

"I do." Catra's tail wiggled, betraying her amusement.

"You did make a pretty good point earlier. What are we even going to tell them? They'll never believe us!" Adora was starting to work herself up.

Catra hugged her, and looked Adora in the face. "Relax, Princess, I've got an idea. It's definitely something they'd buy ."

Catra held her arms across her chest as she passed Adora and her sparkly friends in the hallway. Her ears were low, and Catra was doing everything she could to radiate 'angry bitch energy ,' as she liked to call it. She didn't want to give away her hand too early .

"Can people stop being gay? Cut it out," she said.

Adora whirled on her. "Fuck you," she shouted.

Adora's voice, at that volume and with such hostility, stopped her heart and chilled Catra to her bones. She schooled her expression, turning around with a caustic smirk. Behind her, Catra's tail positively wriggled.

"What are you? Gay?" Catra put her hands on her hips.

"You fucking wish. You just wish you were me," Adora spat back.

Catra leaned in, far enough to make Adora take a step back. "Oh yeah? Oh yeah?"

Adora put her finger on Catra's shoulder and pushed hard. "Yeah you fucking stubborn asshole."

Catra really loved hearing Adora swear. Her girlfriend was great, but she could do with loosening up a little. Catra shoved Adora towards the lockers, before grabbing Adora and pulling herself close. Catra kissed Adora, long and passionate.

"Huh," said Glimmer .

When Catra turned to face her, Bow's face was in his hands and Glimmer looked as if her mind had just been blown.

"I'm sorry , did you need something you homophobe?" Catra said as Adora continued to try to make out with her.

As soon as Catra finished telling the story, Glimmer stood up furious.

"Are you fucking kidding me? All this fucking time, and you let us believe that you two got together from an argument in high school? I fucking hate you Catra."

Catra, for her part, was doubled over laughing. "I can't believe none of you ever figured it out. I thought maybe Bow would've figured it out, but man."

Catra shook her head and looked down at her fiancé - no, her wife - and smiled. Adora was so beautiful, today especially so. Adora's white and gold dress was amazing, but what truly shone was her happiness. Weddings didn't really mean much to Catra, but seeing how it made Adora feel made all of it worth it.

Catra sat down next to her wife, satisfied, and snuggled against her side.

End Notes

I'm sorry I was late, today was a chaotic mess! This one has been floating around in my to-post list since early August, but I was always so uncertain about this one that I just kept procrastinating posting it.

Once again, thanks to everyone for reading! I'mma go curl into a ball for twenty hours now.
