Epilogue - Promises (Adora's POV)

by Midnight_Owl2

Summary

Two years have passed since Adora and Catra found Halfmoon and Catra officially proposed to Adora. They've created their own home, had many great adventures together... and today is finally the big day. IT'S THEIR WEDDING DAY!!!

These two lovebirds finally get to celebrate their official union as wives. As the day progresses, all share many special, memorable moment's together both past and present. The next chapter of their lives is about to be written.

Notes

This fic is an extra chapter to my original fic: Finding Halfmoon. To understand this fic, I highly advise reading Finding Halfmoon first, especially with this being the epilogue chapter from Adora's POV rather that Catra's POV (Catra's POV is in the Finding Halfmoon story).

Finding Halfmoon Readers - Thank you for sticking around with me for the conclusion of Finding Halfmoon. I hope you enjoyed it. This fic occurs at the same time as chapter 15 (Promises). It is the exact same plot and story line only this epilogue version is from Adora's POV instead of Catra's POV. By reading both, you can see how both their morning's started and differed, as well as what each one was feeling and thinking before they officially tied the knot. Hope you enjoy 😊

Two Years Later

The warm sun beams through mine and Catra's bedroom balcony window at the break of dawn, illuminating our room in our newly built home. I awake naturally with the singing of the birds. At one time I'd be up and out ready to start today long before now but not anymore. Most mornings, I spend lying in bed with the love of my life, cuddling up beside her.

Besides me Catra starts to stretch far and wide, soaking up as much of the suns morning warmth as possible. She looks so radiant, so soft when she stretches out like this. It's a sign that she is starting to awake but she isn't there quite yet.

Gently, I start to blow against Carta's ears, which is my usually way of waking her up, well that and stroking her forearm stripes. Unfortunately it doesn't get Catra to wake. Instead she groans and turns to face me, burying her head against my naked chest. A soft giggle escapes me, one which is the result of the sensation of her now almost fully grown mane tickling under my chin. I begin to gently stroke though Catra's hair, easing her to awake. When that still doesn't work I resort to gently scratching the lower corner of her ear, something I know she can't resist the feeling of.

Slowly but surely, Catra's amber eye opens as she turns her head slightly upwards to face me.

"Good morning sleepy head."

"Adora, you know I hate getting up so early."

Catra's groans as she tries to nestle herself against me further, forcing me to lie down on our bed. She then rest her head upon my chest in an attempt to pin me down, one which requires very little effort. Giggling softly, I begin to draw sooth circular patterns across her bare back as she slowly wakes up even more. The result, Catra starts to purr incredibly loud.

“I know you hate early mornings but today is a big day for us. I couldn’t get back to sleep once I woke up.”

Catra uses her sarcastic tone to answer me...

“Really? I never would have guessed. I thought I would have tired you out after last night’s antics. Besides, you were the first one to fall asleep afterwards.”

For some reason I start to laugh even harder and my cheeks start to burn bright red. I too am surprised that I am up early after the things we did last night. Last night was something to remember that’s for sure, I have the marks to prove it.

It’s been so much easier to get some alone time now that we have our own place. After Catra proposed to me, which was about two years ago now, we started to get to work on finding some place to call our own. We decided to settle on a small location within the Whispering Woods, more or less in the middle between Halfmoon and Brightmoon. We’re not too far from where Netossa and Spinnerella live and we’re not too far from the local village Elberon should we need to get some supplies.

Halfmoon and Brightmoon have been great homes to us these past few years but we always knew that we were never going to make either our permanent home. Obviously still have our rooms in each kingdom and we’re more than welcome to come and go as we please, but we wanted somewhere that we could call our own, some place we could grow old together and enjoy life to its fullest as just the two of us.

It took about a year’s work to build our new home. We had all the support and help from our friends and family should we have asked for it. It was handy to know we had people to rely on when thing's got difficult. Ultimately, Catra and I made our new home fit to our needs and wants. A large garden with a specifically designed simulation ground like the one back at Halfmoon but on a smaller scale, a stable at the side for Swift Wind should he choose to visit although her prefers to stay in Brightmoon, your basic room aspects such as a kitchen, living room, dining room and a few bedrooms which all come with their own on-suites. I am happy to say that all rooms, particularly mine and Catra's room, are well sound proofed thanks to Entrapta's help. It was something Catra was adamant on having installed.

I'm not sure why.

I knew for a long time that I wanted to live near a waterfall. My reason for wanting a waterfall or river near our home is because the sound helps me to relax when I feel overworked or stress. Catra seemed very understanding of this. I think she too has come to like the sound of running water of the years. Lucky for us, we got exactly that as one flows very close to a nearby stream just outside our house. At first Catra was worried about issues surrounding flooding, all of which made reasonable sense, but after extensive land development plans, we determined that that would be highly unlikely situation to occur due to it's location. However, to be on the safe side, we built our home on a sturdy platform just incase anything changed. You have to be prepared for everything, including the impossible.

After our home was built and decorated, we decided that we could move onto planning our wedding day. A lot of extensive planning, preparations, sleepless nights and silly little arguments have gone into planning our wedding day. I'm proud to say that my planning flow charts came in handy. They were really helpful but after all was complete and arranged, Catra took great pleasure in ripping them part, making sure they couldn't be pieced back together. I would be lying if I didn't say that I also joined in. As much as I love flow charts, it was quite nice to let some stress out on tearing them apart one finished.

When times got difficult or stressful for us, we'd stop our plans and go and explore. We'd go for a walk, maybe go and see Razz, Luna or our friends, but most of all we enjoyed sitting at the top of Halfmoon's mountain watching the stars at night. Catra took me there not long after she told Luna everything about her past.

It was a beautiful evening. It became our secret spot in Halfmoon, just like the watch tower back in the Fright Zone.

It took a while to get everything sorted but we got there in the end. Once a date was set, (specifically set on the date the war ended and Catra and I confessed our love for one another), preparations where finalized, invitations were sent out and necessary alterations concluded, all we had to do was wait for our official wedding day to arrive… today is that day.

"How much longer can we have in bed before we have to get up?"

"About an hour and a half. Maybe two hours because Glimmer has offered to teleport me to Brightmoon and you to Halfmoon. We all know what Glimmer is like for being late… Why do you ask?"

It wasn't until that moment in time that I realised that Catra is now fully awake. She straddles my hips perfectly before prowling her way up my body as if I am her prey. This causes me to blush deeply as familiar urges come back to me at the sight of Catra's naked body over me.

Why does she have to be so sexy and attractive at the same time?

Once we're eye to eye, Catra gently rests her body against mine. She leans to whisper in my ear…

"Because that's ample time to make love to my fiancé one last time. That's if you're up for it after last night princess?"

As I always do when I hear Catra's pet name for me, I start to nervously giggle. I quickly find Catra's lips, kissing her passionately. My legs automatically rubs together slightly, anticipating what I know will soon be happening. Gently, I pull at Catra's shoulders, bringing her closer to me, desperately needing to feel more of her. We only part to catch out breathes. Catra's pupil are blown wide and her tail is swaying in anticipation… I know how to turn her on.

"I'm always ready to have fun with you. But remember not to leave any marks in visible places. The last thing I want is for me to have a huge hickey on my neck on our wedding pictures."

Catra begins to laugh. Knowing her she's probably deliberately thinking about leaving a red bite mark on my neck for all to see. That is the last thing I want. Any other day that's fine but preferably not today. Gently, Catra pecks my lips and looks deep into my eyes. Her eyes where one of the first things I feel in love with.

Catra slow blinks a few times and answers…

"Don't worry. I won't. I promise. At least not today… I love you Adora."

My voice catches slightly before I reach up pull her into a soft kiss… "I love you too."

We spend the next hour in a heated love making session. Heated passion leads to us getting tangled in the bed sheets and blissfully tangled between one another. The sounds that escape us could almost form of song of how much we love each other. It's starting to make sense why Catra was insistent on having our walls sound proofed.

"And done. Okay, you can open your eyes now Adora."

Perfume finishes adding the last flower to my cross-hair braid and confirms that I can now look at the final touches. Whilst Glimmer teleported Catra over to Halfmoon to get ready, I've been here in Brightmoon getting myself ready. Swift Wind, Bow, Perfuma and Glimmer have been with me all morning. I was incredibly nervous about today and how things would turn out so Glimmer came up with the brilliant idea to close my eyes until all the last little touches where done.

Here goes nothing. Three… two… one…

"Wow. I look… I look… I'm lost for words."

Looking at myself in the mirror it becomes difficult to hold by my tears of happiness. I was incredibly worried about today, especially in terms of my dress. Dresses are not something I tend wear unless for formal events such as the Princess Prom and Scorpion kingdom reclaim party. Usually I just attend these types of events as She-Ra as that's who everyone wants to see but not today. I promised Catra that I would go as myself as Catra has always seen me for who I truly am, loved me for who I am. This is our day, our special day.

Smiling at my reflection in the mirror I take notice of the features that make up my dress and hair style. My hair has been let down loose, hanging over my right shoulder, with two individual braids meeting in the middle at the back. Perfume has added small white chrysanthemums to the braids twists per my request. My dress is long, smooth and fits comfortably to my body curves. It's main colour is white but my shoulder straps and seams are gold in colour. My shoes also match in colour. I decide to wear flats because not only are they more comfortable but I can't walk in heels to save my life. Across my waist is a thick, blue band, one that matches the colour of She-Ra's rune stone. It was a simple touch that Glimmer suggested. I quite like it.

It feels strange to see myself in the mirror like this, looking so relaxed, so comfortable, so elegant in something that I don't consider my normal attire. However there is one thing I have noticed is missing...

"Hey Glimmer, can you please pass me…"

Before I can even finish Glimmer hands me the thing I seek. She passes me a small blue box. Inside, it holds something of great importance to me. Removing Catra's engagement gift to me from the box I figure out where is best to position it. Usually I would wear it on my belt like I did with my wing pin, but that now belongs to Catra. Remembering that thought, I decide to clip the pin to my blue waist band, slightly situated on my left hip. It looks nice there and I have no doubt that everyone will be able to see it.

Satisfied that everything is now perfect and complete, I turn to address my friends who are with me here in Brightmoon.

"So… what do you all think?"

As I turn to face Swift Wind, Glimmer, Bow and Perfuma, it becomes as struggle to hold back my own tears when I see that they are trying their best not to cry themselves.

"You look wonderful Adora. Those flowers are a really nice touch. I'm interested as to why white chrysanthemums?"

"Thank you Perfuma. Oh and you'll see why sooner or later. I'm sure it's a story Catra or Luna will be telling later on tonight."

To my side I see Swift Wind swiftly wiping a stray tear away from his eyes before he speaks...

"Oh I really hope one of them mentions it. It's a nice story to listen to too. Luna has told me about it a few times after she discovered that I sometimes take a nap in the flower beds around Halfmoon. They're so comfy. But now back to the motion in the matter, you look stunning Adora. Might I saw I love how the colour of you waist band and my dicky-bow tie match."

"Thank you Swift Wind. Blue really is your colour too. Suites you. A stunning colour for a noble steed."

A sniffling sound alerts my attention…

"Oh come on Bow. Please don't cry. You know if you start crying then I'll start crying and then we'll all start crying."

"I'm sorry it's just… hic*…* you look wonderful Adora. You and Catra are going to be so happy together. You deserve each other."

Glimmer hands her fiancé one of Brightmoon's standard handkerchiefs as she desperately tries to hold back here tears too. She smiles brightly as she speaks herself…

"He's right Adora. You look incredible. Horde scums going to fall head over heels for you before the ceremony even begins. You look beautiful."

Unable to hold back the love any longer, I open my arms silently requesting to hug all of my friends. They all come forward and we share a strong, warm group hug. I'm surprised that I haven't shed any tears yet. Although, I know many tears appear later, mainly happy ones.

All of my friends look wonderful. They've really made an effort to dress up for today. Swift Wind, just like Melog, have opted for something plain a smile. A well fitted bow-tie that matches well with the blue colour on my dress. Perfuma has opted to wear a long, floral dress, colours of blue, red and pink are painted across the material. Bow is wearing a stunning pale blue suit that has a small pink flower attached to his lapel to match Glimmer's dress. He also has his two signature clothing features: a crop top shirt, and a heart emblem that he is wearing on the upper part of his left sleeve. Glimmer, after having many hours of dress debates with her, finally made a decision on a pinkish-purple coloured dress that flows out nicely just below her knees. The sleeve of her dress come down across her chest and hangs off her left shoulder. Perfuma since added a trail of blue flowers there for aesthetics. They all look wonderful.

I'm starting to sense that the colour blue has a hidden secret. Guess I'll find our soon.

"Thank you guys. I love you all so much."

I give my friends, my family, one final squeeze before we part. We have just over and hour left before I'm scheduled to meet with Catra so there's no rush to be anywhere just yet. I know it's against tradition to see your partner before the wedding but Catra and I have never been traditional. We've always forged our own paths, done what we felt was right.

"I know we have a while yet but I suggest in about ten minutes or so we get heading to the ceremony and then I can go and get Catra and the others. Especially considering that I'm teleporting you and Catra to different areas as you want to break a long standing tradition and see each other before the ceremony. Oh, before I forget, has your soon to be mother-in-law said if she has remembered to bring what she said she would."

At Glimmer words I feel a bit of unease, a tightening in my stomach at the mention of Luna becoming my mother-in-law. I have nothing against Luna. She is an incredible, loving person to both Catra and I and I for one can't wait for her to become an official part of my family, but something in Glimmer's words hit me hard. The word mother hit me hard.

"Yeah. Luna messaged me this morning to say she remembered and to ask if I was okay or needed anything ahead of today. She's thoughtful and caring like that."

Moving automatically, I decide to take a few minutes to myself and find myself looking over the balcony of what is mine and Catra's old room in Brightmoon. I always used to come out here to get some air, to clear my thoughts when needed.

A soft voice whispers behind me...

"You three go on ahead. I'll meet you outside in a few minutes."

The voice is followed by the sound of the door softly opening and close. The next thing I hear is the sound of calm footsteps coming up to join me before they stop at the balcony ledge. Glimmer, sensing that someone is wrong, gently places her hand over mine whilst I look out into the distance, letting my thoughts form words…

“I wish she was here Glimmer. I miss her.”

Glimmer's hand gently squeezes mine and she moves to rest her head on my shoulder. Her tiny heels mean that she is now able to do that, to reach my shoulder height. Glimmer moves to hug my arms a little better, where as my free hand holds her hand wrapped around my arm tighter...

“I miss her too.”

No words are said but some tears are shared. Angella was not only a mother to Glimmer, but she was also a mother figure to me. She was there when I needed guidance, a gentle voice of encouragement, support when I felt at my weakest. I know that despite her not being here with us to celebrate today in person she will forever be in our hearts. Angella was like a mother to me. I am forever grateful that I got to experience what that was like.

After a few minutes, our silent tears start to dry up and Glimmer reminds me that it’s time to head towards the next part of my journey. Before we leave, I pull her into a tight hug, thanking her for everything. Shortly after we meet up with the others outside my door, all ready and waiting.

“You ready?” Glimmer asks as she takes my hand in hers.

Teleportation is the quickest way of getting to where I said I was meeting Catra. Swift Wind offered to fly us over here but Perfuma was worried about the wind messing up my hair. Not to mention, Glimmer is now able to teleport better over far distances since her runestone got an extra boost after the magic from the Heart of Etheria was released a few years ago. It made more sense to travel here that way.

Hopefully Catra doesn't get too nauseous from teleportation when Glimmer brings her here from Halfmoon. She's never been great with the sudden 'poofing' as she calls it. Teleportation never bothered me. Of course the first few times it felt weird and strange. It was like your whole body was being evaporated and then bungled up back together. Glimmer has reassured me that that doesn't actually happen but it's the best way to describe it.

Glimmer dropped Bow and I off not to far from where I'm meeting Catra, whereas as Swift Wind and Perfuma went to were the ceremony is happening. Glimmer has since left to go and get Catra and the Super Pal Trio from Halfmoon, which leaves only Bow and I together.

The wind is calm, a gentle breeze flows around us. Birds are singing their cheery tune as we walk through the trees and bushes. It's very peaceful out here, a place where one can clear their mind if needed.

We're not to far from the Crystal Castle, which is were Catra and I agreed to meet. We're not ones for following tradition so the thing about it being 'bad luck to see your partner before the ceremony' went straight out the window. It seemed fitting to go against tradition… so us. Bow and Glimmer have asked us why we have chosen to go against this ancient tradition and in honest truth I'm not quite sure. It was just when Catra suggested it, it seemed right, it felt right. It's hard to explain but Catra understands what I mean. Maybe she has another reason for asking if I was okay with it.

Seizing the opportunity, Bow decides to ask the questions he was burning to ask before…

"So, how you feeling? Any nerves? Worries?"

"I am a little nervous, but I'd be worried if I wasn't. Catra and I are about to make another big change in our relationship and I can't wait to see what adventures await. As for worries, there are none. I know many want days like this to be perfect, to ensure that nothing goes wrong and everything is as it should be, but I don't have to worry about that because all I care about is being with Catra. When I look at her, I know everything will be okay. So to answer your question, I feel… great I guess."

Bow starts to laugh at my choice of words for how I'm feeling. I end up laughing with him too. Great is a weird way to describe how I feel but describing how I feel right now isn't easy. I'm an mixture of emotions, happy emotions. It's literally an indescribable feeling.

"Can you summaries what you mean by great for me please? I may have known you for many moons now but I still need some help when I comes to 'speaking Adora.'"

Bow teases me even further and I push him into a nearby tree. The 'speaking Adora' tease was mentioned by Catra as a joke when the others saw me drunk and only she could understand what I was talking about. Never again.

"Haha very funny. What I guess I mean to say is I am nervous but moreover I'm excited."

Smiling brightly, my hand instinctively moves to stroke over Catra's engagement gift. It's become second nature to me to hold our pin when I'm thinking of her. I often wonder if Catra does the same with my pin when she thinks of me or is missing me.

We soon reach the Crystal Castle. Catra isn't here yet but I have no doubt that she will be here soon. Not to mention I could have sworn that I just saw Dusk, Luna's Etherian Moon Owl companion, temporarily land on one of the near by trees before flying off back in the opposite direction once she saw me.

Looking to Bow, I can see that he is unsure as what to say or do...

“You can go and wait with the others if you want. I don’t mind.”

“You sure? Because I can stay a little long if you want.”

I can tell in Bow’s voice that his considering it. In a way it would work out for both of us. He’d have some alone time with Glimmer before the ceremony and I’d get to speak to someone important before the next journey in my life begins.

“It’s okay. Besides, I think Glimmer is on her way here with Catra. I’ve just seen Dusk fly that way. If you’re lucky you can get some alone time with your fiancé before the ceremony. I’ll see you both up there.”

Understandingly, Bow smiles and pulls me into a gentle hug. He more than likely knows that there is a hidden message behind my words. He's quite good a picking up on stuff like that. This will be the last time I see him before the ceremony.

Once Bow has disappeared into the trees I go in search of the one thing I’m looking for. I know it’s around here somewhere. The vines and plants that cover the Crystal Castle have made it almost impossible to find, but that’s only to those who have no idea that it’s here.

“There you are.”

Carefully, I gently pull some of the vines to the side I find the thing I was searching for. On the left hand side on the front of the castle, not far from the main drop door, lies a She-Ra symbol carved into the panel. When I first saw it I thought it was made as part of the castle when it was constructed. However, on closer inspection, it became clear to me that it had been hand etched into the panel along with the artists name underneath it.

Gently, my hand brushes over it, feeling every initial of their name and living their memory…

“Hey Mara.”

I won’t deny that Mara was no artist, It's not the best of She-Ra carvings I've seen, but then again who am I to judge. I can’t draw to save my life and I have no doubt that it wasn’t easy to cave into metal.

I found Mara's sketch and carved name when I was looking around the castle for a secret escape or entrance, should anything like the time I got trapped in there happen again. Mara’s carved sketch looks different to the ones that are held within the castle, but that what makes it so unique and makes me think for certain that it was made by her. Mara’s She-Ra is unique. It doesn’t follow the idealist pattern of the First-One’s carvings, but instead shows the roughness and beauty of the things she went through as Etheria’s hero.

Sometimes, when things are difficult, I come and talk to her. It’s like Angella memorial, only Mara knows what it was like to be hero that never wanted to destiny laid out for them. Even though neither of them are here with us today, it’s like they’re always listening, watching over us.

“I know it’s been a while since we last spoke but I wanted to see you before today. I wanted to thank you for opening up my eyes back before Catra and I stopped the Heart of Etheria from activating. Down there, back when I was at my lowest point, I thought that that was it for me. You made me realises that there was so much more to me, to being She-Ra, than some sacrifice, some weapon. I had a choice. A choice to make my own destiny. A choice to follow my heart.”

Tears threaten to fall but I refuse to let them fall just yet. I have no doubt I’ll be crying happy tears when I see Catra anyway. I can’t wait to see her and to start the next chapter of our lives together. Taking a few steady breathes, I finish what I want to say…

“You told me that ‘I am worth more than what I can give to others. That I deserve love too.’ At first I thought that wasn’t possible. I didn’t quite understand what you meant… but now I do. Your words made me realise that I was capable of so much more that She-Ra's expectations. You made me see that I needed to tell Catra how I felt about her before it was too late. I mean she beat me to it but your words made me see that what I felt for her was love..."

A faint yet short laugh escapes me. As scary as that time was, the memory of Catra confessing her love to me makes my heart smile. I never thought she felt that way about me. I never realised how much I longed to here those three simple words until that very moment.

"I loved her, I always had. Today is the day I marry her. I get to marry my soulmate. Today we start a new chapter in our lives together. I have you to thank for making me realise that I deserve love. Catra loves me and I love her, more than anything in this world. I'm sorry you didn't get to experience that too but wherever you are now, I hope you release that your sacrifice was not in vain. You are known as a hero, one who gave their life to protect everyone. More than anything, you are loved by many. Thank you for opening my eyes. Thank you for giving me a chance."

A single tear runs down my cheek but a gentle breeze of wind blows it away. I let the vines hide the mystery once more so that it is protected and safe from the outside world. From behind, I hear a soft rustle come from the bushes. I hear the tell tail signs of a soft purr and the almost silent giggle of a sweet yet slightly nervous voice…

"Hey Adora."

As I turn to face Catra a few of my tears start to escape. They start before I can even stop them but I am quick to wipe them away.

Catra looks amazing, absolutely breath-taking. Her suit attire is a mix of white and gold, with a faded blue shirt underneath. Her faded golden open bow tie is a perfect touch. Reminds me of our time at our first Princess Prom many years ago. All her attire and features contrast well and fit perfectly together. Her now fully grown mane is tied up in a low pony-tail, a gold band keeping it together. I am surprised to see that she is wearing shoes, nicely polished with golden seeming and laces. I honestly thought she'd be bare footed. I wonder if they are tailor made? To top it all of is the white chrysanthemum that rests on her blazer lapel, one that I am aware was worn by her mama, Dawn, on her wedding day. Catra was worried that she didn't have 'something borrow' for the wedding and when she mentioned it to her mom, Luna told me that she had the perfect idea. We kept it a secret for a long time. It suites Catra nicely. It also matches with the little arrangement that I have discussed with Luna prior to today. I just hope Catra approves.

In a desperate attempt to hold back her own tears, Catra walk forwards at a fast pace, quickly wrapping her arms around me and pulling me into a passionate kiss. My arms wrap around her shoulders loosely as I return her kiss with just as much force and enthusiasm. When we pull away, simply to catch our breathes, Catra gentle brushes a few of my stray tears away with the gentle stroke of her thumb.

"Adora you look wonderful."

I giggles slightly through my now steadying tears… "You really think so?"

"Are you kidding me? Have you not looked at yourself in the mirror this morning? Adora you are most beautiful sight I have ever seen. Quite possibly the most beautiful sight in the whole of Etheria. Maybe even the whole universe."

"Oh stop it."

"I'm serious."

Catra insistency results in me laughing, which is quickly followed by her own laughter. I can't believe that this person, this beautiful Magicat, my best friend, will soon be my wife. As my laughter dies down I start to fiddle with the lapels of Catra's jacket…

“You look rather wonderful too. You really do suite a suit. You look just as good as the time you wore that red one to the Princess Prom. Do you remember that night?”

“How could I forget it. That dress you wore made me feel things Adora. I couldn’t get that imagine of you out of my head for weeks.”

Ungracefully, I giggle-snort as I relive the memory… “That suit of yours had the same effect on me. Not to mention when you dipped me... I knew what you were doing back then.”

I wonder if she’ll do it again during our first-dance? I was so tempted to pull her into a kiss the first time it happened that I might just have to do that tonight.

Catra smiles at me brightly as she moves to rest her forehead against mine. I hum softly when we make contact and we let time pass by us for a few quite minutes…

“You nervous?” - I asks as I hold Catra close.

“A little bit. Although, I’m more excited about starting the next chapter of our lives together. What about you?”

“Same here. I think it would be wrong if we weren’t feeling a little bit nervous and excited at the same time. Catra, we’re about to get married. We’re about to become wives. Did you ever think we’d get to this moment.”

“Honestly… no, not really. But that's because I didn’t know about marriage until after the war ended.”

I can't help but laughs knowing exactly what she mean. In all truth, my answer is starting to become more or less the same as my nerves start to disappear now that Catra's with me. We only learned about families, relationships and marriage after the war ended. Horde education didn't care to teach you that kind of stuff. We had to figure all that out on our own.

Catra moves a little closer as she finishes her sentence...

"But after learning about all that of, I couldn't wait to spend the rest of my life with you. I dreamed about this moment for a long time Adora. I dreamed about sharing the rest of my life with you. I can't wait to call you my wife."

Leaning in slowly, Catra gently kisses me once more. Compared our last kiss, this is soft, gentle and relaxed. We take our time. We have nowhere to be just yet. This will probably be the last kiss we share as fiancés as the next time I get to kiss her we'll be wives. I hum slightly in disappointment when Catra's lips leave mine. I chase after her but she laughs slightly. Catra take a few steps away from me, temporarily leaving our gentle hold. However, she then before reaches out her hand towards me ready to guide me to our next adventure…

"You coming?"

Tears threaten to fall from my eyes again. We have done this so many times before yet I still fear that it is all a dream. I often dread that when I reach my hand out to hers it will glitch away and I'll wake up from my version of heaven. However, I know that my dream are real, that I am in fact living it. So, like so many times before, I smile as bright as ever when I reach out for Catra's hand and hold it tight in my own. We remain walking hand in hand, whispering silent promises to each other as we venture towards the next chapter of our lives together.

When Catra and I arrive back to where the ceremony is taking place, Melog, Luna, Dusk, Swift Wind, Micah, Glimmer and Bow are all ready and waiting for us. Our ceremony is happening the exact location that Catra and I stood after the magic from the heart of Etheria was released. Only Catra and I know what lies beneath our feet and what happen deep down underground.

We discussed where to have our ceremony for a long time but we eventually settled on this exact location for three reasons. One being because it's out in the open but only those who were there when the magic was released know where to find it, making it the perfect spot for a small wedding with our friends and family. Two being because it's almost in the same spot where Catra and I confessed our love for each other, only this time it's above ground and not underground within the tunnels, which was initially guarded by the First-Ones creature. Finally, three being because the scenery at this view is beautiful and will look incredible on our wedding pictures.

"Oh good you're here and in the nick of time. Glimmer was worry you were going to be late."

"Bow you're not supposed to tell them that!"

"Oh please they're not bothered. Besides knowing you, you'll be late to our own wedding anyway."

"Can't be late to something that we haven't even started planning yet."

Glimmer and Bow start bickering back and forth with the pre-marriage banter. Bow only proposed a few month ago anyway so, speaking from experience, they've got a lot of planning ahead of them.

Swift Wind is the first of them all to greet us before asking me if I can help fix his bow-tie. Apparently it's been wonky after he flew over here and he can't fix it himself because of… well… hooves. Once sorted, he gives me an over the shoulder hug and goes to join Scorpia and Entrapta at the top of the isle.

Dusk flies over to me for Luna's shoulder shortly after and nuzzles up against my cheek. I'm guessing she has already seen Catra this morning as she simply chirps at her before flying away, sitting besides Scorpia on her custom made perch.

Melog rolls their eyes and comes up to my side, nudging themselves against my knee. I kneel down to them, give them a head scratch and straighten their small, light blue coloured dicky-bow tie.

"You look very handsome Melog. That bow suites you. Blue really is your colour."

Mreow

Catra lets me know that Melog says thank you and they say that I look beautiful. Unlike Swift Wind, Melog stays besides Catra as they will be walking her down the aisle alongside Luna.

Luna is next to greet me and pulls me into a warm embrace… "You look stunning Adora, absolutely wonderful."

"Thank you Luna. Oh did you remember to bring the thing?"

"Of course I did. Dusk helped me selected them. Glimmer has them ready for you."

"What thing?" - Catra asks curiously.

I smile and lightly giggle. Catra's confused face looks really cute… "You'll see."

Before Catra has any time to question me further Micah interrupts…

"Well don't you two look smart. I'd love to give you more time together but it will soon be time for the ceremony to begin. I entrust that you have your vows prepared. Adora if you'd like to go and wait with Glimmer and Bow, they're escort you down the isle to Catra in a few moments time. Catra when you are ready, Luna and Melog will walk you to the top. Don't worry, Bow and I have the tissues ready for anyone who might need them."

All of us start to laugh at Micah's words. Catra's been the better one at keeping her tears at bay between the two of us, but I have no doubt that we'll both no longer have dry eyes when we meet at the top of the aisle.

Gently, I squeeze Catra's hand one last time and we exchange whispered words of 'I love you' to each other before we go our separate ways. Our eyes never leave each other until Catra disappears from my vision. When I get around the corner Bow and Glimmer are waiting for me. When they notice my presence their smiles only shine brighter. Even they struggle to hold back tears.

In an attempt to stop my own tears from falling I pull them both into a warm embrace. When we part, Glimmer hands me the little secret that I've been keeping from Catra. When I was looking through some of Luna and Dawn's wedding pictures I noticed that Luna had a bouquet of white chrysanthemums to match Dawn's lapel flower. I knew that I wanted to do something similar. So, after secretly discussing it with Luna, she arranged to have some picked from the same flower bed that she picked her flowers from on her wedding day. She gave them to Glimmer to keep safe but also to hide them from Catra. I just hope she likes them.

"Thank you for agreeing to this. I can't imagine having anyone else walking me down the aisle to meet the love of my life."

Bow and Glimmer where in tears when I ask if they'd escort me down the aisle. I was initially going to walk myself but after Catra asked Luna to walk her down the aisle I knew I wanted my two best friends to be at my side during this momentous moment.

Glimmer giggles to herself slightly...

"Did you honestly think we'd let you walk down there on your own. Someone's got to stop you from falling over your own feet."

We all start to laugh knowing that Glimmer is probably right.

Sensing that it is nearly time for the ceremony to begin, Bow offers his arm for me to take… "You ready?"

"More than ready." - I respond with a beaming smile on my face.

"That's the Adora we know and love." - Glimmer says as she offers me her other arm to link with on my other free side.

Taking a final steady breath, we head around the corner to where the ceremony is about to start. When I get to the end of the aisle, I notice some familiar faces. Everyone who is important to us is here. Members of the Rebellion, including honorary members such as Bow's dads, Castaspella and her wife General Juliette, Madam Razz, Double Trouble, Huntara, Entrapta's robot Emily and Wrong Hordak. Some of the Magicats we have gotten to know over the past year have also come to join in with the celebration: general Jax is one of them. The Star siblings have also traveled far to be here today. Even our first family from back from when we were in the Horde are here to celebrate: Lonnie, Kyle and Rogelio. It means a lot to have them here.

The arch that was made to stand behind us of us looks amazing. It's covered in a mix of blue and gold flowers that dance between white laces ribbons. The occasion red bow has also been throw in to represent parts of our past lives together. Some might say it looks plain and simple, but to me it looks perfect.

However, the most beautiful and breath-taking sight of them all is standing right in front of me, waiting for me to meet her once more. Catra is the only thing I can focus on right now. My best friend, the love of my life, my soulmate, waits for me at the top of the aisle where the next chapter of our lives will officially begin.

After what feels like forever, I finally meet Catra at the top of the aisle. When I pass my bouquet to Glimmer I reach up and brush away her falling tears with the gentle brush of my thumb. She leans into my touch for a few seconds. Only once her tears subside do I take her hands in my own. We rest our foreheads together, allowing silent words to be shared between us. Catra starts to purr incredibly loud. I'll be surprised if the whole Whispering Woods can't hear her. I can tell she is happy, just like I am. I don't think I've ever felt this happy.

"Catra you know if you start crying then I'll start crying."

"I can't help it. You look incredibly beautiful Adora. I'm the luckiest person in the world."

"Well that's impossible because I'm the luckiest person in the world because I'm getting to marry you."

Catra and I giggle to ourselves quietly as we take in the final few moments of peace to ourselves. Her tail moves to gently brush over my bare hand where my ring will eventually be place when we say our vows.

After a moment or two, and after hearing people whisper in awe, Micah clears his throat altering us that he is ready when we are. Glimmer, Bow, Luna and Melog all take their seats with the others. Catra and I separate slightly but are hands keep a firm hold on each other. Our eyes remain completely fixated on the other, looking at them with astonishing amounts of unconditional love and support. I get lost looking into Catra's eyes everytime. They've always been so memorizing, so beautiful. Those eyes made me feel safe in the darkest of nights and loved when I felt alone. It's no wonder it's one of her first features that I fell in love with.

"Welcome everyone. We gather here today to witness the long awaited union of these two lovely people: Catra and Adora. I would have stated their full names but after speaking to them both before the ceremony we decided against it."

Everyone laughs, including Catra and myself. It was something we had discussed long ago but the more we thought about it, the more we realised how stupid our childhood names really are.

However, I will say that I did of a good job of choosing Catra's first name. The 'Applesauce Meowmeow' part can be blamed on my lack of imagination as a kid. Besides, we're not actually sure how many people know our full names. We know the Rebellion members know. Mermista made quite the scene when she found out our full names, it was like she had never laughed so hard before in her life. Anyway, it doesn't matter what our full names are. To many we are simply Adora and Catra.

Micah clears his throat once more and continues to speak…

"Love is one of the most powerful feelings that anyone can experience in their lives. It is also a joy to witness love flourishing and growing in all forms. I speak for many when I say that we have had the great honour of watching the love that these two here have for each other develop over the years. Some had the honour of witnessing their love blossom long before these two even knew what love was. Others witnessed it in times of great struggle and came together to help them power through in times of the others absence. Others have come to watch their love grow more recently, listening to the stories of their times past."

As Micah speaks, Catra and I briefly look towards our friends and family.

First we look to our first family: Lonnie, Kyle and Rogelio. Lonnie used to tease us all the time. Saying that we were blind to see what was right in front of us. Looking back now it makes complete sense.

I then look to Glimmer and Bow whereas Catra looks to Scorpia and Entrapta. The original Best Friends Squad were there for me in the most difficult of times. They gave me a home when I had nowhere to go, they stayed with me on the nights that got lonely but most importantly, they helped me get the love of my life back even though it put them in danger, no questions asked. I also look to Swift Wind who helped me realise that it was okay to talk about my feelings when something was wrong and took me for a flight when I needed a breather.

I then look to Scorpia and Entrapta. They kept Catra safe when I couldn't keep my promise to her. They were there when she was at her strongest and lowest points.

When Micah mentions those who are only just witnessing our love for each other in recent times, I look towards Luna, Melog and Dusk. Melog got to witness the start of our relationship, or should I say our relationship when we started to realise that what we felt for each other was love. We only met Luna and Dusk just over two years ago. Luna has listened to all of our stories, both good and bad, and helped us through some tough times with her help and guidance. Through it all she's seen how strong our love is for one another. How unique our love is for each other.

After a short pause Micah continues...

"I strongly believe that anyone who has witnessed the love that these two have for each other will tell you that there is something very special about them. It's not everyday you find yourself lucky enough to be marrying the person you grew up with, the person who you first fell in love with. When you find that special someone you hold onto them tight and you never let go. No matter how hard things get, not matter how hopeless things feel, you hold onto that person because they are the only thing in life that matters. They're the reason you keep going. They're the reason your love keeps burning brightly. That kind of love is what saves the universe."

Catra and I giggle to each other softly and rest our foreheads together once more whilst we are given the opportunity to do so. It's our way of showing each other how much we me to one another when words cannot be spoken. We know exactly what Micah means by his words, even though only Catra and I know what really happen that day.

Our friends and family look at us with heart eyes. I see Perfuma hand Scorpia a set of tissues from behind at one point and Micah having to clear his eyes as well...

"Now if I was to follow tradition I would be asking at this point in the ceremony 'if anyone objects to this marriage, speak now or forever hold your peace', but I won't be doing that as there is obviously no need for it. It is clear for all to see that the love Catra and Adora have for each other is the most beautiful, most powerful kind of love there is. As well as that I was threatened by the fact my own daughter would disown me if I said that..."

All of us burst out with laughter when Micah jokes about why he won't be following tradition. It's good to know that our friends have our back. Although he does speak truth with the fact that the love that Catra and I have for each other, in it's own way, is unique, powerful and beautiful.

"Now is the time for the exchange of rings and vows. Adora, Catra, I believe you have prepared your own vows and that your friends have your rings at hand. Although, I should mention that your friends actually have your rings on a pillow as neither of your ring bearers have hands. Adora, would you like to go first?"

I smile softly and takes a few steady breathes, giving Catra's hand a firm squeeze to calm my nerves. Catra somehow senses this and starts to purr softly once more and rubs slow circles across the back of my hands. Instantly, I start to relax and I finds the courage to speak from the heart…

"Catra… I will admit that I am quite surprised that we have somehow manged to get to this point today. I often dreamed about getting to spend the rest of my life with you but for a long time it felt like it could be nothing more than a dream. Our paths seemed to have different journeys for us to take. A path that I feared would take me away from you, the person I loved most in my life."

In a way I am not wrong. Our destinies did mean that we had to spend some time away from each other but in true motion, that time a part only made us stronger, more determined to be together...

"However, despite everything, the hardships and the difficult times, we challenged our so called destinies and forged our own paths, a path that led us back to each other. I was scared to fall in love with you because I was scared of not being good enough for you. I was afraid that after everything we had been though, after how hard we had to fight to be together, that we wouldn't be able to rekindle our relationship."

The three simple words 'I love you' can change everything in the matter of a single heartbeat. It can go one of two major ways. It can be the start of something new or the end of a friendship. It's why I kept my true feelings hidden for so long. I didn't want to loose her again. Strangely, love is more powerful than people think. Eventually the true will come out and guide you home...

"Although, it soon became clear that my love for you wouldn't allow me to give up so easily. I had to tell you how I felt about you even if the worst should happen. I have never felt love so powerful, so strong, so wonderful for anyone but you Catra. You are the reason why love is so beautiful. When I found you in that box all those years ago something started to change within me. As we grew, new feelings started to emerge. I wanted to be around you all the time, I wanted to protect you, I wanted to love you for the rest of my life. Back then I didn't know what all of that meant but now I do. All I have to do is look at you and know that I am safe and I am loved. I found my soulmate."

A small tear starts to run down Catra's cheek but I'm quick to catch it before it can fall. I then turn to Swift Wind, who carries Catra's ring on a soft blue pillow. Catra and I purposefully made our own wedding rings simply because we could. They're gold in colour but have a small symbol etched in the centre: the Heart of Etheria. Taking the ring from Swift Wind, I open Catra's hand so I can hold her properly. As I speak, I slides the purposefully made ring onto her ring finger…

"You are my life, my world, my soulmate… my Catra. We made many promises over the years and now I want to add to them all. I promise to love you, cherish you and protect with all of my heart for the rest of eternity. You are my everything and I can't wait to spend the rest of my life with you. I love you more than words can say. When word fails, I'll remind us both our life long promise: 'You look out for me and I look out for you. Nothing really bad can happen as long as we have each other.'"

"You Promise?" - Catra asks, just like all those times before.

"I Promise. I love you Catra."

The struggle of not pulling Catra into a kiss right now is real. I can sense that she feels the same way. I can feel the tension in her hands. I'm only just managing to hold back my tears.

That promise that I said has stuck with us our whole lives. Many believe that we had broken it on numerous occasions, and at one point so did we, but looking back I realise that we never really broke it. When we pushed the other away, we did it to protect the one we love. When Catra told me to stay away to protect myself, I choose to ignore her. I couldn't leave her there, not after everything we went through. I came back to get her, to bring her home. It was later my turn to ask her to leave, to save herself from having to watch me sacrifice myself to save her and the others. It broke me to say that but I wanted to protect her. Nevertheless, she choose to stay, to remain by my side to the very end. If it wasn't for Catra pulling me back, telling me how much she loved me then I don't think I'd be here today. Her love saved me.

Through thick and thin we looked out for each other, loved each other, kept our promise to each other.

Micah turns to Catra, reminding her that it is now her turn to exchange vows and rings. Melog comes up behind her, ring at the ready for her to take when needed. She takes a few deep breathes. I can tells she nervous. Attempting to ease her mind, my thumbs gently brush over the top of her hands. When she looks at me she smiles brightly. Catra then begins to speak from her heart…

“Adora… how on earth am I meant to beat your vows?”

Everyone laughs, including myself. She always knows how to make me laugh. How to make me smile. Stars she means everything to me…

“As you know I have never been the greatest when it comes to speaking from the heart as I never used to be the best at processing my emotion. However, loving you has made what was once difficult much easier, and I am no longer afraid to wear my heart on my sleeve and speak from the heart..."

I smile brightly, knowing exactly what Catra means by this. In the past, Catra was very hidden with her emotions, with her true feelings. Fear of what would happen if she spoke the truth were the cause of that. However, I have loved watched her grow and see her feelings come to life. It's like I'm seeing more of her everyday. A part of her I knew existed but was scared to come out. I find myself falling in love with her more and more each day.

"We’ve come so far from where our story began all those years ago. You gave me my name, became my best friend, showed me the good side of life but most importantly you showed me how to love. If it wasn’t for you saving me that day I don’t know where I’d be right now. We’ve been through a lot together. Some memories are good, others not so good, but no matter what we always came out stronger than before."

Catra's hands start to tremble a little. Some memories still haunt us. After all these years you think we'd be over it but the truth is it's never been that simple. Many moments from our past will live with us forever, reminding us of the things we've been through, both good and bad. What matters now is how we choose to deal with them and how we choose to move on. We'll help each other through every sleepless night, through ever panicking moment, through every argument... no matter what we'll be there for each other, just like we always have been.

Giving Catra's hands a gentle squeeze, she relaxes once more. We're both desperately trying to hold back tears. Her beautiful smiles reflects my own as she continues with her vows...

"The love that I have for you, the love that still grows stronger each day because of you, is the reason I am standing her today. You are part of the reason why I am the person I am today. Adora, I loved you long before I even knew what love was. I was afraid to tell you all those years ago about how much I cared for you because I was scared that you wouldn't feel the same. Being able to love you freely and having you loving me back was nothing but a dream, but then my dream came true. I thank my lucky stars that I now get to call my best friends, the love of my life, my soulmate... my now wife. I know I used to say that everything I did was 'not because I like you.' What I was really saying was 'it's not because I like you… it's because I love you'."

A small tear escapes my eyes and my voice hitches slightly. Catra's hand softly cups my cheek and she uses her thumb to brush my threatening to fall tears away. Instinctively, my hand moves to hold hers against my cheek for a moment or two as I lean into her touch. Smiling brightly, Catra turns to Melog and takes my ring from them. Lifting my hand in her own, she gently slides the wedding ring onto my finger as she speaks…

"Adora, you mean more to me than words can say. You are my home, my world, my soulmate… my Adora. As you said in your vows we have made many promises to each other over the years and I have no doubt that many more will be made in our future together. I promise to love you, care for you, and remind you everyday just how much you mean to me. I will never stop loving you Adora. 'You look out for me and I look out for you. Nothing really bad can happen as long as we have each other.'"

It's now my turn to say the part that almost finishes our promises… "You promise?"

"I promise. I love you Adora. I always have."

Still unable to officially kiss Catra yet, we settle for resting our heads together. In the corner of my eye I can see our friends and family smiling happily and sharing tears of joy. However, I can only focus on the most beautiful sight in the whole of Etheria who is standing incredibly close to me. The evening sun slowly closes in, shining beautifully over the scenery behind us and lighting up the Heart of Etheria symbol etched on our rings.

Catra smirks and decides to speak loud enough for the crowd to hear… "Can I kiss her yet?!"

We all start to laugh. It's like she can read my mine. Not to mention I'm too trembling with anticipation. I will definitely be teasing her about this moment for the rest of our life.

Micah speaks the words that I have waited to hear since the moment I joined Catra at the top of the aisle…

"It is with deepest pride and great honour that I now pronounce Adora and Catra as wives. You may kiss the bride."

Before Micah can even finish his sentence, Catra skillfully yet carefully dips me into the same pose that we did so many years ago back at the Princess Prom. I will admit that I was not expecting it. I thought she would have done this at our first dance instead, but I'm not complaining. Catra start to laugh, noticing how flustered I am, but I quickly cut of her giggles when I pull on her lapel jacket, closing the gap between us and kissing her passionately. I think I caught her a bit off guard but she soon easily relaxes into the kiss and my hands come to rest around her shoulders. Our friends and family cheer as we share our first official kiss as wives.

Catra and I smile into our kiss, momentarily forgetting that there are people around us celebrating our union. When we part, Catra's smile is as radiant as ever, her eyes beautifully memorizing. I giggle-snort when I see how flushed Catra's cheeks are from having her caught her off guard. It's cute.

Catra quietly laughs and whispers… “You’re such an idiot.”

“I know, but I’m now officially your idiot forever.” - I remind her, showing off my wedding ring to emphasize my point.

Catra starts to laugh even harder… “I wouldn’t have it any other way. I love you.”

“Awww. I love you too.”

Leaning up, I passionately kiss Catra once again as she gently lifts us up and out of the dip. When we part our friends and family comes forward and surround us. The first people I hug, besides Catra obviously, is Glimmer and Bow. They have tears in their eyes and have beaming smiles on their face. They both whispers how happy they are for us both. Next I hug Swift Wind who has now began to cry. He wraps his wings around me, holding me as close to him as possible. Micah also comes up and offers his hand out for me to shake. I know this is very formal of him but I take the opportunity to pull him into a hug instead. He laughs slightly as he hugs me back. I thank him for agreeing to host the ceremony and officiate mine and Catra's union. Luna, Scorpia, Madam Razz, Netossa and Spinneralla are next to hug me.

Before we head to the Fright Zone for our wedding reception and meal, we all gather round and have a big family photo in front of the beautiful Etherian scenery behind us.

As the night draws to a close Catra and I decided to head up to our secret spot back at the place where our story began: the watch tower. We decided to have our celebrations back here in the Fright Zone, now perfectly renamed and refurbished 'Friend Zone', as we wanted to celebrate our marriage somewhere close to where our story began. We discussed it for a while, Brightmoon was even suggested due to it glorious ballroom. However, the more we thought about it the more we realised that our very first home was a perfect place to celebrate our marriage.

Many stories were told, tears of laughter and joy were shared. Glimmer was the one who managed to catch my bouquet of flowers when I threw them into the crowd. She joked with Bow that they better get a move on with making plans for their wedding. I wonder what Netossa and Spinneralla will make bets on with their wedding?

Our first dance was perfect, definitely one to remember. Holding Catra close as we let the days events to wash over us was very emotional. It meant the world to us both having the people we care about the most join us, our family and our friends here with us to celebrate. After all was said and done, Catra and I decided to come up to our secret spot to relax for a little while and simply enjoy some alone time.

"Beautiful sight isn't it?" - I says as we look out towards the clear night sky, the stars and moons shining extra bright tonight.

"Yeah. It is." - Catra responds.

The way Catra speaks makes me feel that she is not actually talking about the night sky. When I turn and notices that she is referring to me rather than the midnight sky. She has that loving smile on her lips that make me want to kiss her all over. I can't control the blush that appears on my cheeks and I start to giggle. She so cute when she's like this. I can't believe that I get to spend the rest of my life with her.

Getting a creative idea, my smile soon become that devilish smirk. A hum escapes me and Catra looks at me with curiosity. Taking a few steps back from the rail, I reach my hand out to her…

"May I have this dance?"

Catra ends up laughing as she take's my hand… "Why of course. Just try to not step on my toes this time."

“I didn’t step on them during our first dance did I?”

“No you didn’t, I’ll give you that. But I recon you only managed to not step on my toes this time because of the amount of dance lesson we had before that.”

Catra and I both end up in a state of laughter remembering the many times we had accidentally stepped on each other’s toes both recently and during our dancing lessons back in our youth. The Horde made it a mandatory session to learn how to dance in case we ever had to attend a formal event a go undercover. Catra and I always partnered up together as we felt most comfortable with each other. Really I think Catra just wanted to be close to me, which I didn’t mind. I was always happy when I was with her. Catra was always the better dancer and I always tried my best to impress her. It took me a little bit of time to get this good at dancing.

Gently, Catra rests her against my shoulder, her ears slightly adjusting so she can her my heart beating at my pulse point. She wraps her arms around her waist and holds me close. I places a soft kiss to the top of her mane before resting my head over hers and wrapping my arms around her. We start to steadily sway backwards and forwards. Catra begins to hum a soft tune in time with our steps. No word need to be said. All our words are spoken through our hearts and said through our kisses and soft touches. For now it’s nice to simply hold each other like this and let time pass us by.

Unexpectedly, the night chill hits the exposed area of my back, making me shiver slightly under Catra’s touch…

“Are you cold?” - Catra ask as she starts to remove her jacket. she smiles as she wraps her jacket over my shoulders to keep me warm.

“Thank you.” - I whisper, before softly placing a gentle kiss to her cheek.

Once Catra is certain that her jacket is secure on my shoulders we walk over to the area of the tower that has no safety rail. We sit with our legs dangling over the edge. I gently rest my head on Catra's left shoulder and take one of her hands in my own. Catra places a soft kiss to the top of my head and moves her tail to wrap around my back. Content with the peaceful moment between us, Catra begins to purr. I love hearing her purr.

"How you feeling?" - I ask as the day draws to a close.

"Amazing. Wonderful. Extravagant. I'm not sure one word does my feelings justice Adora. I've just married my soulmate. It doesn't get much better than that. How you feeling? You okay?"

I smile and hum to myself. I give Catra's hand a gentle squeeze before responding…

"I'm more than okay. I've just married my best friend. The most beautiful, amazing, wonderful Magicat in the whole universe. I've married my soulmate. There's too many words to describe how I feel... but maybe I can show you how I feel."

Gently, my hand brushes up against Catra's cheek and I softly guide her in for a passionate kiss. Our kiss is soft, warm and caring. It shouldn't feel any different to when we've kissed before but for some reason it does. It feels like the start of the next chapter in our lives, a new beginning.

When we part, simply because we have to breathe, a soft hum escapes me and Catra begins to purr even louder. We rest our foreheads together, something that happens almost instinctively. At that moment, Catra and I speak the words that have more meaning than they seem and words that I know we will be saying for the rest of our lives.

"I love you Adora."

"I love you too Catra."

We spend most of the night up at our secret little spot, enjoying each other company and letting the fact that we are no each other wives sink in. Tomorrow we will head back home and start this new chapter in our lives. What adventures and challenges lie ahead I do not know, but what I do know is that I'll be able to take them all head on with Catra by my side.

Over in the distance, the silhouette of an Etherian Moon Owl flies above us just like it did all those years ago when made many promises and shared many memories up here at our secret spot.

End Notes

There you have it. Not only has Finding Halfmoon concluded and all the extra content chapters have also come to an end. I can't thank you all enough for liking, following and commenting on my fic throughout this incredible journey. I have enjoyed sharing every moment of this fic (and it's extra parts with you).
