Let Me Tell You A Story

by masternoveller

Summary

Catra tells Adora a story in bed.
A story about a princess and a magicat and love and all that stuff.

Fluff only.

Notes

I thought I'd take a break from writing about a homicidal Catra for a bit... haha
But don't worry, I'll be back on the killer Catra fic soon enough!
Enjoy some fluff instead.

See the end of the work for more notes

“Whatcha doing?” Adora asks as she leans her chin on top of Catra’s left shoulder, looking down at what the magicat was currently writing, “You get some inspiration or something?”
Catra pauses her typing and rubs her head against Adora’s face making the blonde giggle at the act, “…maybe.”
“Uh huh.” Adora pushes herself off and plants herself in Catra’s lap to gain the magicat’s full attention, “What are you writing about?”
“You know, an annoying blonde girl who wants to save the world.” Catra smirks and that earns her a shove on the shoulder.
Laughing, the magicat shakes her head, “I’m writing about how everyone wants you but only I get you.”
“Hm…” Adora pretends to think, “Are you sure about that?”
The tease makes Catra growl as she nips at Adora’s neck, the blonde squeals in Catra’s lap, “I better be the only one that gets you.”
Pulling Catra into a kiss, Adora sighs, nodding her head, “Yes. It’s always only been you.”
“Good.” Catra kisses Adora back fiercely, “And it’s always only been you too. For me.”
“I know.” Adora smiles lovingly at the magicat, “So… tell me about this story?”
Catra grins, “Okay.”
“Ooh, can you tell me it in bed? It’s so much more comfortable?” Adora winks at Catra, “Plus… well, you know?”
“Do I know?” Catra raises an eyebrow.
Adora pushes Catra’s face away, “Get your head out of the gutter!”
“I was not thinking that, princess.” Catra laughs, “I was thinking that you’d probably fall asleep while I told you a bedtime story.”
“Oh.” Adora looks away, a red blush on her face at even the thought of… well, doing more than sleeping in bed.
Catra shakes her head with a chuckle, “You are too easy.” The indignant look on Adora’s face makes Catra cackle a little harder before she says in a seductive voice, “I’m glad you’re easy for me…”
A shiver goes down Adora’s spine as she forces herself out of Catra’s lap and pulls the magicat to the bedroom, pushing Catra onto the bed and then promptly climbing on top of her.

"I am not easy." Adora says.
A grin comes across Catra's face as she drags Adora down into her, a purr vibrating from her chest, "No. You're a real pain in the ass."
This time Adora grins, "You're just as bad!"
"Yep. I sure am." Catra laughs, "Anyway, do you want to hear this story or do you want me to do things to you?"
"Can't you like, tell me the story and do things to me?" Adora suggests with a raised eyebrow, "Talk dirty to me."
Catra laughs, "Yeah, no. Not doing that."
Adora pouts, "Am I not attractive to you anymore?"
"Princess, you've worn me out from this morning." Catra admits freely, "Unlike you, I don't have a magical princess inside me…"
Adora giggles as Catra rolls her eyes, "Not like that. I just meant it takes me longer to recover than you just saying your catchphrase."
"It is not a catchphrase." Adora huffs unimpressed, "Besides, I did not wear you out… you wore yourself out by wanting to top."
Catra grins widely then closes her eyes to remember the morning before rasping out, "Worth it."
Adora rolls her eyes at the magicat, letting herself blanket over Catra, "Tell me the story."
Kissing Adora on the forehead, Catra wraps the blonde tight into her chest and breathes her in, "Okay. Are you ready?"
Adora nods into Catra's chest.
"Okay." Another kiss on the blonde's forehead, "This is the story of how the mighty magicat got her princess."
Adora giggles before nuzzling into Catra's furry chest, "Go on."
"The princess was called, Alana." Adora pinches Catra as the magicat laughs, "Okay, okay, the princess is called Adora."
"Better." Adora smiles.
"Anyways…" Catra holds Adora tighter into her chest, "Princess Adora was lonely. Not in the sense that she was alone, no, she had many friends. People were always around her. She was lonely because she hadn't found the one yet." Catra hands move soothingly over Adora's back, "She had no shortage of suitors though. Many of whom were… well, I guess, not to her taste."

Adora giggles, “Nope. Definitely not.”
“So, this is the story of the unsuccessful suitors to the princess that longed for someone else. Someone she didn’t even know existed.” Catra continues, “Anyways, the princess was being put on show by her parents in an effort to have her married off to some prince from a faraway land and then bear some children. Little did her folks know that…” Catra whispers the next part, “their daughter was not attracted to princes, instead her gaze wandered to princesses instead.” Catra sighs, “Unfortunately all the princesses she met had sticks up their butts.”
Adora snorts out a laugh, “Catra! That is so mean!”
“But true.” Catra declares confidently, “Very true.”
Still laughing, Adora shakes her head, “Glimmer did not have stick up her butt.”
“Sparkles definitely had one. So did all the other princesses too.” Catra points out, “But, where was I? Oh, that’s right, the princess was totally gay.” Adora doesn’t interrupt this time apart from the stifled laugh, “So, a very dashing prince approaches the very beautiful blonde princess. He asks the lovely woman for a dance which she politely refuses, holding her full glass in her hand as an excuse. The prince is persistent though, waiting patiently for her to finish her drink. Which she takes even longer as he tries to woo her with small talk. How she managed not to throw her drink at him, baffles me.” Catra laughs, “Still not getting the hint and to make matters worse, another prince comes along.”
“That did not happen.” Adora says with a yawn.
“No, it didn’t. But this is my story, so what I say goes.” Catra replies, “Anyways, the second prince that comes along is tall, muscular and has a full beard, practically pushing the other prince to the side before taking his place in front of Princess Adora. In my opinion, the princess was more in awe of the prince’s muscles, not because she was attracted to him, but more that she wanted to know how he got them.”
“Reminds me of Huntara.” Adora says teasingly as Catra growls back in jealousy, “Oh, shush you. You know I don’t want anyone else but you.”
To prove her point, Adora pushes herself up and kisses Catra on the lips, smiling into the kiss and then sighing happily when they part. Catra mrrps at the act, but allows the blonde to kiss her, "Can you please not mention her in bed?"

"Sorry." Adora grins before she captures Catra's eyes, "I'm serious though. I'm yours. And you're mine. There's no one else."
Catra sighs, "Okay."
"You don't need to feel jealous." Adora rubs her cheek on Catra's, "Because you've already won."
That brings a smile to Catra's face, "Damn right I won."
"You're ridiculous." Adora chuckles as she buries her face in Catra's neck, "Continue?"
"So… This hotshot prince comes up in front of the princess and does his best flex of his biceps to impress her. Mistaking her interest in his workout routine to get those muscles with attraction, he moves in to pull the princess into a very uninvited kiss." Catra grins thinking about the next part, "What the jackass doesn't realise is, the princess really does not like being touched without giving her consent, and she definitely does not like men touching her uninvited. And as the idiot prince puckers up, the princess throws him over her shoulder, flooring him as the crowd around her gasps and a few start laughing at the idiot's expense."
"I like this princess." Adora comments.
"Of course, you'd like a princess that's basically you." Catra rolls her eyes, "She's thrown this idiot of a prince to the ground and he gets up and runs off, embarrassed that a princess got the better of him. The prince that was waiting for her to finish her drink has also disappeared, leaving the princess feeling a lot lighter now that the unwanted attention is gone. But it's not long before another suitor steps up. The princess groans as the new suitor stands in front of the princess, a cape and a mask on over their perfectly fitted suit."
"Mm…" Adora hums, "Sounds like my kind of suitor. Does this suitor also have fluffy fur and soft ears?"
"Hey! Am I telling this story or are you?" Adora laughs sleepily as she shakes her head, "Okay, then. So, this new suitor stands in front of the princess, their suit perfectly fitted and their black cape blowing in the wind, making them look like a superhero."
Adora snorts out another laugh as Catra join in laughing for a little before she resumes her story telling.

“Okay, the cape is a bit much. But the suitor looks really really good in it. The princess blushes profusely at capturing the attention of this new suitor when she realises that this new person has two different coloured eyes staring out from the mask.” Catra grins when Adora presses a soft kiss onto her neck, “Straight away, the princess feels a funny feeling in her stomach. Like there’s butterflies in there trying to get out, or it could be the constant flips inside there.” Catra rubs Adora’s back as the blonde hums back happily, “The new suitor puts their gloved hand out to the princess, a gesture asking for her hand to dance with them. The princess without any hesitation, accepts the hand and the new suitor leads them to the dance floor. The people part as the pair make their way to the centre. The masked suitor bows low and the princess curtseys as the music starts up. They come together, keeping a respectable distance of course.”
“Of course.” Catra can feel Adora smiling against her chest now, “Such a gentleman.”
There’s a low possessive growl from Catra as the blonde just nuzzles into Catra’s chest again, smiling at the affect she knows she has over the magicat, “They start dancing at arms length first.” Catra continues, tempering the growl inside, “But the longer they dance, they find themselves coming in closer and closer until they are practically chest to chest, their breaths on each other as they look longingly into each other’s eyes.” Catra closes her eyes, imagining the scene in her head, “The suitor pulls the princess into her by the waist as the princess wraps her arms around their neck. And that’s when the princess knew. Knew she had found the one. Her one. The music fades away as they continue to sway with one another in the middle of the dancefloor, drawing the eyes of the crowd that has now taken notice of the princess’ obvious choice.”
“Very obvious.” Adora repeats softly with a smile.
“When they part, reluctantly I might add.” Adora giggles a little bit as Catra goes on, “The suitor steps back and bows, low again and removes their mask. The princess gasps.” Catra squeezes Adora’s sides as the blonde makes the noise Catra describes, “She gasps at seeing her suitor is no man. But a woman. A magicat.”
“A very handsome magicat.” Adora corrects.

“Fine. A very handsome magicat.” Catra rolls her eyes good naturedly, “Everyone in the room murmurs as her parents come rushing out to stop whatever was happening. The princess watches, unable to snap out of her dumb stare.” Adora slaps Catra playfully, “As her parents ask the magicat to leave as she is not a prince or any lineage of royalty and thus, not worthy of their daughter.”
This time Adora scoffs, “Stupid parents…” she grumbles under her breath.
Catra cackles, “It’s just a story, Adora. It’s not real life.”
“I know. But still.” Adora argues.
“Can I finish my story?” Catra asks poignantly, “Or are you going to get all up in arms with this?”
“Sorry… go on.” Aodra apologises by rubbing her cheek into Catra’s neck.
“Thank you.” Catra purrs at the feeling of Adora trying to scent mark her, “So while her parents are berating the magicat in front of everyone, the princess finally snaps out of her stupor.” A small pinch, “Ow!” Catra cackles again, “The princess pushes her way through her parents towards the magicat and wraps her arms around her. They stare into each other’s eyes again, the magicat leaning her forehead on the princess’.” Catra demonstrates on Adora as the blonde tucks into her neck, but still high enough for Catra to touch her forehead to the Adora’s.
“Then what happens?” Adora looks up with shining eyes and a cheeky smile.
“Well…” Catra starts as a smile tugs on her lips, staring deeply into Adora’s eyes, “the magicat leans in and kisses the princess. In front of everyone. And the princess kisses her back just as hard.”
Adora pulls Catra into her for that kiss, “Like this?”
“Yeah…” Catra sighs once they part.
“What happens after?” Adora asks, cupping a hand over Catra’s cheek.
“The magicat pulls back and takes the princess hands in hers and with a silent understanding, the princess turns to her parents, declaring her love for this suitor.” Adora grins, “And as per law, once the princess has declared her love, there is nothing anyone can do to change it, not her parents, no one. In the end, her parents understand and welcome the magicat with open arms. They had only wished their daughter had been more upfront with her… preferences."

Adora snorts out a laugh, "Really? Like it wasn't obvious?"
"People see what they want to see." Catra shrugs, "Like I was saying, the princess' parents came around relatively quickly considering their own history of declaring love to non-royalty. So once that was all settled…" Catra smirks at Adora, "The magicat takes the princess back to her place. A small but homely place…"
"Catra, it was a tree house that you repurposed to live in." Adora reminds her, "But you're right… it was homely…"
"Right, as I was saying… the magicat takes the princess back to her place and they spend the rest of the night getting to know each other intimately." Adora hums happily next to Catra, wrapping herself up tighter in the magicat's arms, "And in the morning, the princess finally asks who the magicat she'd just let rail her all night long was."
"Catra!" Adora shrieks with protest, "That is not what happened!"
Catra cackles, shaking with laughter as she holds onto Adora in her arms, "You're right…"
Adora relaxes a little and nods.
"You only asked my name after the third time you came." Catra replies smugly, "And that, is the truth."
Adora blushes into Catra's chest, "Enough with story time." Adora huffs, "Can we create that amazing night again?"
Before Catra can retort, Adora's pulled the magicat into a heated kiss. Catra grins into the kiss as her hands move up and down the blonde's sensitive spots. Adora trembles in anticipation.
"Anything for my princess." Catra replies pulling the blonde in closer and as they are about to get to it, Catra adds, "And they lived happily ever after…"

End Notes

Yep, happily ever after.
