Light Spinner's favorite plant

by Series_Shipper

Summary

Light Spinner's favorite plant are daises right? Right!?

Notes

Sooo hiiii. Guess who is not dead? Me!

This fic was inspired by a conversation in the Discord server a while ago (like months ago actually. Might have screenshots honestly) where someone mentioned something about LS/SW instead of having as her favorite plant daises, weed, so here we are now months later lol.

Hope you enjoy this mess XD

"That's insane Light Spinner!" Castaspella yelled, furious yet shocked as to how her day had turned out.

She had woken up early this morning and luckily for her, or actually unlucky considering her current situation, she had no duties for today which meant she had the whole day to do whatever she pleased. At the beginning she was overjoyed; she drank her tea in silence while reading a book she had meaning to pick up for a while now and finally finished knitting Glimmer's sweater.

As the hours passed by, she noticed that she was running out of things to do and decided to take a walk in the gardens. So here she was in Light Spinner's greenhouse yelling at the woman who looked nothing but unfazed by the whole situation.

"Oh, please!" Light Spinner scoffed ignoring her previous yelling and continued attending to her flowers.

"I can not believe how you are acting so calmly about this!"

"It's just a plant, Casta. Relax." The older woman calmly stated while rolling her eyes which only irritated Castaspella even more.

"Just a plant?!" Castaspella exclaimed indignant. "It's an illegal plant! You could get in serious trouble if anyone of the Guild finds out!" She tried to reason with her.

"Nowhere in the school handbook does it say it's illegal." She stated before her tone turned more teasing and she had now a smirk placed on her face. "And already a member of the Guild knows and it doesn't look like a got in much trouble either way."

"First Ones, give me strength to not kill her right now." Castaspella murmured under her breath, low enough so Light Spinner wasn't able to catch what she said. "Why weed tho? Why is it your favorite plant though?" Castaspella sighed defeated and took a sit next to Light Spinner who was watering her plants.

"Is that even a question?" Light Spinner mockingly trying to get even more under Castaspella's nerves who huffed.

"Yes" She hissed and as Light Spinner didn't seem like was going to actually answer her question she continued with another sigh. "Why couldn't you choose something more… More normal or something" And at that Light Spinner raised an eyebrow.

"Like what?"

"I don't know…" She took a pause looking around her greenhouse in search of finding something that caught her eyes. "Maybe like… Daises!" She exclaimed eyeing the white flower across the greenhouse.

"Daises?" Light Spinner repeated with a questioning tone.

"Yes!"

"Why daises then? They are too plain…" She grimaced. "Too white…" She let out with an amazed tone giving Castaspella a look who in return sighed.

"They are cheerful."

"I mean… Weed can make you cheerful." Light Spinner mocked her.

"You are beyond saving Light Spinner!" Castaspella exclaimed quickly standing up

"You are acting as if I am an addict." She rolled her eyes. "Plus weed is used by doctors."

"So, what now you are a doctor?" Castaspella tried humoring her however she sounded more bitter than intended.

"I don't understand why you are so upset."

"I already told you!" Castaspella huffed. "You can get in serious trouble! What if a kid decides to eat it?"

"They shouldn't be entering places they are not allowed to in the first place."

"Sure… But what if they sneak in?"

"Then they are going to be very cheerful." Light Spinner mocked her, throwing her a smirk.

"You are insufferable." Castaspella groaned which only earned another smirk from Light Spinner. "What if they die!?" She let out worried while Light Spinner simply roller her eyes.

"You clearly don't know how weed works do you?"

"Oh, I am sorry for not doing a full on research on weed beforehand." Castaspella huffed, she couldn't believe the conversation she was having right now, this was insane.

"You are excused but honestly, I have been growing weed for years now and nothing has happened." Light Spinner explained calmly, way too calmly for Castaspella's liking who was a step before completely losing it.

"Years!?"

"I believe so."

"I cannot believe this." Castaspella muttered, messaging her temples and trying to relax as much as the situation could allow her.

"What is so hard to believe? I am telling you it is completely fine, why don't you go tend to your own matters hm? It is your day off now isn't it? No need to spoil your mood with unimportant stuff." Light Spinner tried to reason with a genuine looking smile that was honestly anything but genuine,instead rather mocking. Oh, that woman…

"You are insane." Castaspella stated matter of factly, speaking slowing and pronouncing very simple letter as if talking to a toddler making Light Spinner roll her eyes.

"It is not that deep."

"It is not, it is not what-" Castaspella interrupted herself by taking a deep breath aiming to continue talking however she was interrupted by Light Spinner who had a glint to her eyes which only meant trouble.

"Want some weed to relax maybe? See yourself why it is useful for me to grow it." She suggested with such a sincere tone as if she had just suggested she made her tea and honestly that was the final blow for Castaspella.

"I am done. Just done. See you later, I don't care, I will pretend like I never saw this. You are officially insane. If anyone and I repeat anyone becomes sick or worse dies from your stupid plants I am reporting you to the Sorceress Guild and you go figure it out." Castaspella let everything out in one short breath. "Goodbye Light Spinner!" She announced before teleporting away leaving behind a chuckling Light Spinner.

"At least I now know what my gift will will be to her at her birthday. She needs to relax." Light Spinner decided, still chuckling.
