Catra writes a fanfic.

by the_Frank

Summary

Catra is outed as a pegasister, a.k.a a fan of the cartoon Equestria Girls.

This leads to a discussion about fanfiction in the BFS, things get emotional and heated and... The title might be a hint. Better read to find out!

Everyone (except Maramom who is 39 and Bow who's 16) is human and 17 years old.

Notes

To anyone with a uterus in the US right now: I'm so so sorry. I am partly publishing this little romp to ease my own mind.

Mind you: for the purpose of the story, Equestria girls is its own stand-alone franchise effectively being in the place of MLP:FIM.

CW: shipwars

I have read Your Ship Sucks and I Bet You Suck at Kissing, Too by https://archiveofourown.org/users/BaronVonChop/pseuds/BaronVonChop soo many times. See this as a tribute.

Also, discreet shoutout to Jezmatron. Thank you for being awesome.

Also for Tippenfunkaport for being a great inspiration

Catra writes a fanfic

It was all Glimmer's fault. Definitely. In Catra’s opinion, there was one clear culprit. If Sparkles had just kept her shiny big butt to herself, nothing of this would have happened! Why did she have to be thirsty right there and then? WHY? …Okay, maybe that was a bit harsh, but it was proven beyond any reasonable doubt that If she could just mind her own damn business and stop snooping over people's shoulders this would NEVER HAVE HAPPENED.

The second culprit (but the jury was still out on that one...) was yesterday's lazy friday afternoon. The whole nerd crew - Catra had sworn to NEVER use that damn name Bow insisted on using all the time - plus Scorfuma was at Adoras house, enjoying an afternoon of absolutely nothing, an activity yesterdays Catra felt was perfect. Everyone and their mother (especially Catra’s) loved to talk about how short life was and how you should treasure every moment. Yeah, no mom! Just because you had a midlife crisis… She was seventeen, life was constructed to be chill! Glimmer was the only one who wanted to be more active, she wanted the gang to ‘stimulate the American economy and display our independence as young adults’, which was Glimmertalk for going to the mall, eating junk food, candy, gossip and buying clothes. But save for the gang's resident rich girl, no one had money since it was late in May, and allowances were getting short. (Glimmer was only allowed one ‘EVERYTHING IS ON ME’ per semester, and she had used it up for Adoras and next one was taken for Bows birthdays.) so chilling and homemade pizza it was.

So, there they were, all placed on the old and slightly smelly but strangely comfortable sofa of Adoras familys living room. (Maramom always said that the couch had a ‘rich history’ while winking at Lightmother. Noone but Adora knew what that meant and Adora only blushed and changed the subject.) How do you get a gang of six on a sofa for three and a half? By the superpower of being a lanky teen, that's how! Catra had her feet dangling over the edge, and her head firmly planted in Adoras lap. Adora was sitting, slightly leaning against Scorpia, who was sitting in the middle, with Bow on the other side, Glimmer on his lap, although she lay comfortably on her side, legs tucked in between her and the armchair. Only Perfuma was on the floor, but connected to the rest by leaning their back against Scorpia's legs. It was all very comfortable as long as noone moved, but at the moment everything was still and chill. Everyone was looking at their phones, sometimes a laugh could be heard, or a "look at this" and once or twice a kiss was planted on a forehead, a neck or -altough very quick- on another pair of lips. All very mom-approved (not that Mara-mom would protest, everyone knew Adoras moms to be the most chill. But you never knew.)

And then it all went to heck, and it totally was Glimmer's fault. She, who really should know better, realized she was thirsty, so Sparkles did what Sparkles always did. She asked Bow to fetch her a coke. Bow replied that 'it was a bit too hard when she was sitting in his lap'. She in turn replied that 'couldn't he just carry her with him to the kitchen, pleeease?' Bow just looked at her, and she sighed, said "just because of that, you won't get the next five kisses I had planned for you." and stood up. Bit of a mistake, she instantly found her feet a bit stiff, so she stumbled to the right. She had to get support by putting her hand on Adoras knee. That wouldn't have been that much of a problem, but it bothered Catra, because it led to Adora momentarily stopping playing with her hair. Catra looked at Adora, then she gave Glimmer the stink eye. Glimmer didn't bother, she knew Catra well enough by now. No… she cared more about what she caught a glimpse of on Catras phone. A familiar website… a very familiar website.

"Catra! Are you reading? What are you reading?"

Catra stiffened instantly and pressed her phone against her sweater. (One of Adoras, just enough too big to be really comfortable. Also, it smelled nice). “Nothing.”

“Nothing is nothing with you, cat. I saw it. You’re browsing Eccfiction!”

“I am not! I was on Facebook!”

“Really?” Glimmer crossed her arms across her chest and gave Catra her best ‘are you shitting me’-look. Catra’s eyes shot daggers back.

“YES REALLY! Why do you even care, you were making out with your phone too!?”

While the rest of the room prepared for yet another row between the best frenemies, Perfuma was the only one remaining perfectly calm. They were also the one asking the important question. “Eccfiction?” If nothing else, it helped to relieve the tension a bit. Glimmer looked at Perfuma with some surprice, but she turned towards them and explained happily.

“Equestria-fiction.com. A page fully designated to fanworks about the best show on earth. Equestria girls! The tale of a lost pony princess who enters the human realm and finds friends and adventure in a world not unlike ours! It’s really great!”

Perfuma smiled. “I can’t say I have heard about it. but it sounds nice.”

Adora nodded. “It is really nice. I love that show. Hey, I had no idea you liked it, Catra! You yawned and threw a pillow at me when I suggested we should watch “Rollercoaster of friendship”.

Catra looked at everything except Adora, and Glimmer smirked at the scene. Any chance to get the upper hand over Catra she took gladly. “oooh! Do I sense relationship drama? Kittykat, this isn’t like you! keeping things from your girlfriend? tsk tsk tsk. “ Catra got redder and redder in her face, it was obvious that she wanted Glimmer to vanish right there. But she managed to compose herself and slowly she began to speak.

“Look. I was NOT looking through any damn fan-site! And I fully stan behind that thrown pillow! I don’t watch a stupid girlshow and - GIVE THAT BACK!”

Adora had pulled Catras phone from her hands. “hmm… Nope, this is Eccfiction alright… Catra! You even have an account!" Adora paused, and gasped. "Catra… you have bad bad baddie Adagio Dazzle as avatar?”

“GIVE. ME. MY. PHONE. BACK!”

“Nope. This is payback for the pillow and calling one of my favourite shows a ‘stupid girlshow’.”

Perfuma gave Adora a mean eye, but Scorpia was nothing but smiles. “Oh! I used to love that show, but then the orphanage couldn’t afford Netflix anymore so I couldn’t watch the last season. But I loved the Dazzlings. I feel such a connection to Sonata!”

“Figures…” Catra murmured. She sat up. “Okay okay! So maybe I have seen one or two episodes and maybe I have read a few fanfics. Is that a crime or something?”

“No, but why couldn’t you tell me?” Adora looked slightly hurt and it was obvious that Catra was uncomfortable. Adora took her hand. “Catra… you can talk to me about everything, you know that!”

Catra looked away. “Yeah… but… Okay, so maybe I kinda want to keep just a little of my bad-girl image intact, okay? Even a kitten who can have all the cream she wants still has claws.” When the gang stared at her she looked at her feet. “It’s one of mom's sayings okay? She’s Russian, give her a break!”

“What is fanfiction?” Perfuma again. Catra was happy for the interruption, and so she said slightly louder than she should.

“You don’t know that?”

Perfuma shook their head. “I only got a computer and a mobile phone when I started to go to Brightmoon High. Mother and father are not in favor of modern technology.”

“It’s pretty much THE BEST!” Glimmer had her biggest smile on her face and she was even vibrating a little. “Like, you have, I dunno, a book, or a movie, or a show or even a GAME that you LOVE, right? And you feel ‘I want more, and I can’t wait until they make more or write more’ or they get cancelled or so?” She paused. “Or didn’t you have TV or movies either?”

Perfuma smiled. “Yes, we had books, Glimmer. I know how to read. I must say it sounds very interesting. I remember that once I had finished ‘The Hobbit’ I used to go around fantasising about what other adventures they would go on. That ring Bilbo found always felt so… intriguing."

Bow and Scorpia, who had found common ground as -among other things- being huge fantasy nerds shared a look and slowly began to open their mouths, but Glimmer interrupted them. “That’s EXACTLY how this works! except that it’s a written story, usually written by someone else.”

Perfuma nodded, with a thoughtful look. “But, I must ask. Lets say the story ends with someone dead? What do you write about then? The afterlife?”

“That happens yes.” Catra sent Glimmer a weird look, she shook her head. “Don’t ask. It was weird. A sequel to Romeo and Juliet. ANYWAY! In that case, you are writing what we connesaurs call a “fixfic” or a “shipfic”

“Oh? And that is?”

“Fixfic is when you hate something in the story, like… oh! Like when Bella definitely choose the wrong guy in Twilight, then you write when she…” Bow stood up.

“Oh no. Please don’t tell me that my girlfriend is a Bella/Jacob-shipper?”

Glimmer turned towards him. “Oh yes! And a proud one!”

Bow shook his head. “This… I need to think this over.” Bow leaned back on the sofa with closed eyes and palmed his eyes.

“Nice work, Sparkles. I think you broke him.” Glimmer looked at her boyfriend, filed it away as ‘Eh, he loves me. He’ll come around.’ Instead she decided to glare at Catra.

“Says the one who lied to her girlfriend! I merely didn’t tell him!”

“And that is different?”

“Of course it is!”

“Guys!” Scorpia was still sitting down, but she was still at eye-height with Catra and Glimmer. “Can we stop arguing? We’re all in the BFS here!” Catra made a gag-face, and Adora rolled her eyes at her. “I LOVE fanfiction. Especially the romance. And with Equestria Girls as it was, the only way to read about your OTP was fanfiction.” Scorpia saw the question on Perfumas face. “One true pairing. Your favourite ship. Mine was Flutterdash….” Scorpia got a dreamy look on her face.

"Mine is Rarijack" Adora said, without anyone asking.

“Figures for both of you…” Catra murmured. “Look, it’s an okay ship, but there’s like, NO DRAMA! No EDGE! No…” Adora gave her a weird look and shook her head.

"Edge!? Catra, I love this show, but edge? We're talking about a show about pastel colored humans, so much sugarysweetness that it even rivals Glimmer's breakfast and the characters are named Pinkie Pie, Fluttershy and TWILIGHT SPARKLE."

"Says the girl named Adora.."

"There's nothing wrong with my name! What about us then? Catra? SCORPIA? PERFUMA? BOW?"

"Ekaterina, Adora. Which you know, since you have that name engraved on a plastic spoon I gave you on the night we got together at Wendy's." Then she pointed in turn to the rest of the room. "Sophia. Patricia. Broderick, Georgina... okay, Broderick is possibly an even weirder name." Bow rolled his eyes from his still reclining position. Then Scorpia raised a finger at Adora.

"Also, Adora… don't sound like the haters! Sure, it is basically about -sometimes pretty weird choices of colour- pastel-skinned people, but it's so much MORE than that!" Catra sent Adora a 'told you' look after glancing at Scorpia. Wow. That girl had so much in her.

"Yeah, ADORA! Maybe you have to dig a little deeper, but it's there alright! Sunset is alone in an alien world where she can't find love or gain other people's respect with any other means but to dominate them! And once she realized that there are other ways and that people love her for who she is it all… Well…"

Again, all eyes on Catra. The elephant in the room was big, but Catra wasn't going to look at it.

"I just… It's fun, okay? And I enjoy when she finds love where she least expects it, with…"

"Goody-twoshoes Twilight? Her own perfect little princess as a reward for all her hard work?" Glimmer was sooo pleased with herself. Dammit girl! It's almost like she's jealous of me and Adora! Catra cleared her throat and tried her best to look like she was definitely going to say this name from the beginning. (It was actually her third favorite ship, but this was not the time for nuances.)

“NO! With… The great and powerful TRIXIE!”

Perfuma had by now given up on trying to follow what the others were talking about, but they had seen the look in Scorpias eyes that said “Oh, I will show you EVERYTHING” and slowly began a breathing exercise to deal with their excited girlfriend later. Bow and Adora who did, had been either nodding or shaking their heads with every statement, experienced shippers that they were.

“Trixie! The living embodiment of half-assed magic! Really!?”

Catra began to gain steam. “Yes, REALLY. She knows what it means to be overlooked and laughed at.”

“I’m sure you can relate to that. Eff it, if you want to choose an over-the-top unrealistic Crack-ship, why don't you go straight to ShimGlim?”

Bow gave Glimmer a look. “ShimGlim?”

Glimmer rolled her eyes. “Sunset x Starlight Glimmer. Only THE most annoying and mary-sueisch ships there is.”

“Hey! There is nothing wrong with Starlight! She enters the show as a villain and is the main foe of season 5! But she gets redemption in…" So maybe Catra liked Starlight even a bit more than Sunset… Glimmer interrupted her, waving her away.

“Yeah, but only with THE. WORST. REDEMPTION. ARC. EVER. She enslaved a village and she just GOT AWAY WITH IT? Because of THE MAGIC OF FRIENDSHIP and ICECREAM?”

Glimmer was getting awfully close to Catra now and as she was afraid that Catra would actually hurt Glimmer, Adora decided to step in between them.

“Okay okay! So, Catra. You have your favourite ship and that's… okay…but..”

“You stay out of this, rarijacker!” Adora stared at Catra.

“Catra! What the... There is nothing wrong with Rarijack!”

Catra rolled her eyes. “Oh really. The hardworking farmgirl and the prissy seamstress? They have literally nothing in common!”

To Catras surprise, Glimmer nodded.

“Oh Adora… while I do respect your choice - unlike some people I know! - but It’s written in the stars that Rarity the oh so talented and generous seamstress needs more. Even if she does respect and admire Applejack's work ethics, her honesty and her good and straight values - NO PUN INTENDED- , it’s obvious that their relationship will never last. She needs glamours, drama, intelligence! She deserves… THE BEST “

“So… who’s that, if it’s not AJ then?” Adora looked baffled but also intrigued. Glimmer was getting worked up.

To everyone’s surprise, Glimmer stepped up on the sofa, raised her fist to the sky and declared for everyone to hear it. “The only true companion for the mistress of the sewing machine is the quiet yet loyal Twilight! The humble yet beautiful brainiac! The ever-loyal trusted friend! Always at her side, rooting for her, but alas, too shy to even mention it because she doesn’t want to ruin their friendship!”

“Yeah, I think you’re reading a bit too much into this, Sparkles.”

“AM NOT!”

“Are to! ShimGlim is a real and reasonable ship! RariTwi is just a couple because the author wants it!”

“ YOU TAKE THAT BACK!”

“NEVER! IT’S THE THESAURUS DEFINITION OF CRAP AND I HAVE HUNDREDS OF STORIES TO PROVE IT, INCLUDING YOURS!”

Glimmer paused, mouth open, then she closed it. “You…have read my stories?”

“Duh! Sparklypinkcuddlequeen47, it’s not like it was hard math to figure that out.”

Glimmer looked at her, her eyes shrinking. “Wait a second… You are SunTwiKitten184, who always writes a comment on my fics! ‘Lame’.”

“Yeah, DUH! Because they ARE LAME.”

“THEN WHY DO YOU READ THEM, ASSTARD?”

“BECAUSE… because… I CAN WRITE TEN TIMES BETTER THAN YOU!”

“YOU HAVEN’T PUBLISHED ANYTHING!”

“MAYBE NOT, BUT I AM STILL BETTER THAN YOU!?”

“WAIT A MINUTE, CATRA! If that’s… THEN YOU ARE COMMENTING ON MY FICS AS WELL! ‘BLAND’!” Adora.

“YEAH! ON MINE TO!” Bow.

“WELL, EXCUSE ME, HORSEGIRL4EV3R AND CRAFTMANJOHN THAT YOU WRITE SHIT!”

Then the dam broke and a loud shouting match began where everyone save for Perfuma insulted each other's ships, called it ‘lazy writing’, ‘self-inserts’, ‘Mary Sue-ing’ and the worst insult of all. OOC. (Scorpia joined in just to be included) It finally ended when Maramom entered and with the natural authority you get from being a firefighter she asked what the hack the commosion was about and that they all should be ashamed to talk to their friends that way. After she had gotten five red-cheeked and quite embarrassed 17-year olds to apologise (and in the couples cases, kiss and make-up), she asked again,

“So what is this all about?”

Adora, who wanted to show her mom she was a good girl, spoke first. “We just found out that Catra is a Pegasister!”

That didn’t tell maramum very much, and it took a very enthusiastic (And overcompensating) Adora, four minutes to explain.

“Okay. So this is like Spike or Angel?”

Four very confused faces turned towards Mara Greyskull, with Scorpia the only one nodding.

“Yes! Exactly! …with a few more options, but yeah, that.”

“Alright. Then I understand. And I also understand how important this is for you. I myself always rooted for Spike… Some people just didn’t see the attraction… ANYWAY! I will leave you to solve it, but remember. It’s not worth tearing a friendship apart over.” Maramom got a long look in her eyes. “...Perhaps I should call Lucy after all…” and then she left.

They all stood in silence. It was Bow that spoke first. “Okay. This only means one thing.”

Catra sighed. “I have a feeling I won’t like whatever you will say, Arrowboy…”

“A BEST FRIEND SQUAD EQUESTRIA GIRLS MARATHON!”

Catra raised a finger, then she gave the idea a few seconds.

“Okay, so… not the worst idea, I give you that. But not tonight, mom wants me home by eight.”

“Tomorrow then! My place! We have tons of homemade snacks since Dad has been home sick and spent all his time in the kitchen!”

“Yeah, Lance makes the best snacks.” Adora nodded, but Bow shook his head.

“Not Lance. George.”

“But you said Dad.”

“Yeah, I said Dad, not dad.”

No one really knew what to reply to that, so after a while Adora broke the silence.

“Alright. It’s been ages since I watched all the movies and the series and I would love to finally do it with my best girl by my side." She pulled Catra to her, put her arm around her and kissed her on the forehead. Catra made a face, but she didn’t pull away. "But first this matter needs to be resolved."

"What?" Catra and Glimmer looked at Adora.

"Look. I can forgive you, Babe, even if you’re a lost soul, one day you will understand what the best ship is, but until then you can compensate with your cute butt. But you and Glimmer need to solve this -yes you do, I know you- otherwise you will be arguing about this for the next month!"

"We will not!"

Adora gave Catra a look. "Remember the "Milk or cereal first"-debacle?” Both girls found the carpet extremely interesting now. “So. We will solve this the best way there is! By…”

Bow shook his head. “Adora. Wrestling is not the universal way of solving things!”

“Why not? It always works for me and Adam!”

“No, Adora. Just no.”

“mmmkay…”

Glimmer, who looked like she hadn't been exactly against the idea of wrestling it out, suddenly spoke up. “In that case, I think I have a better idea. Prove it.”

“Prove what?”

“Look. You said that it’s all about the author wanting the ship to work more than actual chemistry, right? BUT if that is true, so is the opposite. A good author will MAKE the ship work! And you said to all of us that you write ten times better than me, which means you’re ten times better than bow and 15 times better than Adora.”

“Hey!”

“Nope. Rarijack sucks.”

Catra looked at them. A small part of her whispered that should just skip it. Let the others call her bluff and everything would be good again. And by the look on Adoras face, she wasn’t sure if she would get her usual ‘sleep well baby XOXOXO’ text before she went to bed tonight BUT…

A larger part of her was more than ready to take up the thrown glove. Old nasty Catra, who had been sleeping for a while, woke up and took a greedy sniff of fresh air. They wanted a fight? They would get one.

“Game on, Sparkles. Give me your worst.”

“Alright. You have until tomorrow's movie night. Minimum length 1000 words, you have to reach at least four digit readers.”

“Puhlease… Give me something hard.”

“And WE choose the character.”

Catra hoped the others didn’t see her swallow. “Bring it.”

Adora walked Catra home, it was a tradition not easily broken. But they had both been quiet the whole way. It wasn’t until they reached their usual cuddle spot (behind a bush 45 meters from the house, not visible from the kitchen or the second-floor bedroom) that Adora took Catra in her arms. She leaned in for a kiss, and Catra -relieved- leaned forward to receive it. But inches away, Adora stopped. she smirked at Catra and whispered “You are so dead, SunTwiKitten184.” Then she gave Catra a peck on her forehead and went home.

3.am saturday morning. seven and a half hours since Adora left Catra at the gate and 5 hours since moms last "Ekaterina! I do not care it is a weekend, GO TO BED NOW!" and Catra couldn’t sleep. She tossed and turned in her bed, walked up to her computer just to stare at it and then go back to bed again for the umptienth time tonight. It was all Glimmer's fault. Definitely. If Sparkles just had kept her shiny butt to herself, none of this would have happened! Why did she have to be thirsty right there and then? WHY? …Okay, maybe that was a bit harsh, but it was proven beyond any reasonable doubt that If she could just mind her own damn business and stop snooping over people's shoulders this would NEVER HAVE HAPPENED.

She had no idea what to do. She had her bluff called and whatever she had on her hand was not enough by far. She had found her friends' accounts months ago and at first her reaction had been a happy one, combined with the old mean streak to stay anonymous and lurk. Oh, she had wanted to write so many times but she was always held back. Her idea wasn't good enough. Or she had a great idea but she just couldn't get the words right. Or she had what was at least a half-decent idea… and then someone else had the SAME idea and made it better. (That had earned Sparkles her first 'lame'. SHE had come up with the Barbie-AU first! Rarity was perfect as the Raquelle!) So many attempts on her computer. So many abandoned fics…At least ten that began the same way and either detoriented or she simply lost interest. It was too bland. Or too much. Or it just 'sounded weird'. Or when she had started pretty well but got hit with her creeping self-doubt. "As if I could do this…" Or the classic killer. "Who in the world would read this shit?" Sure, the answer would probably be 'Adora' but Catra didn't want a mercylike.

Okay, okay okay. She could do this. She was confident, she had friends, she was new Catra. Okay. Make Fluttershy work.

Sigh.

It wasn't like Fluttershy was a BAD character but… She was so damn flanderized. She was just silence and animals and being shy. She deserved a redemption. And there WAS a few but… slow burners. All of them. She could try to write her heart out and give her some soul but… then they would have to read it and value it. Adora would of course love it. And Bow. But Glimmer…"Yeah, like Sparkles would cut me some slack after yesterday…" Okay, then. What she needed was readers. Numbers. A sign of her success. That's all that mattered, ratings bar be damned. Right, something that would please the public. What could she do? An AU… well, sure. But an AU craved background. Same with a crossover, although she DID have some vague ideas about Fluttershy vs. Garfield… But that would not sail well. Alright, shipping then. With whom? With Fluttershy's best friend, the competitive yet oh so loyal braggart Rainbow Dash, the fastest girl in school? …No, that was a dime a dozen. And Twilight BELONGED with Sunset. No way. Rarity… maybe. Or ADAGIO. There was some heavy sub/dom-chemistry there (Catra wasn't completely familiar with what that meant, but it sounded like something she wanted to try with Adora once they moved in together. Some day) Catra knew what she prefered of course. Adventure with a touch of drama and darkness, like Spectacular Seven with all Sunsets angst and the various magical adversaries… but that one was over 70 chapters. Even if it was popular. Then there was Fallout:Equestria Girls. Oh, THAT ONE… So much angst, so much blood… But long as the great wall of china. Alright, something shorter. Something funny. Something just enough risque not to breach the M-wall but still edgy…

Fluttershy. The epitome of innocence… What if you took her and made her…

At 4.25 a.m, she finally began to write.

9.30 a.m, same Saturday morning. Glimmer felt Bow get out of bed, she grunted as responce to his 'morning babe' and dug herself deeper under the duvet. (Glimmer had negotiated for them to be able to share the same bed no matter if they stayed at her place or Bows. The terms was wearing at least three pieces of clothing and yes, socks counted only as one.) She saw a glimpse of his bare back as he left the bedroom to take a shower and get them breakfast. (Coffee with lots of milk. Glimmer didn't like coffee but wanted to appear mature.)

Glimmer dug herself even deeper down under the covers, she was considering calling Bow back and then drag him down to her. She could use some cuddling as encouragement to get up, she absolutely hated mornings. But then her phone gave out a ding. A notification about a new story being posted.

Oh yes… she had almost forgotten. Cat-shit was going to humiliate herself today.

Glimmer didn't actually hate Catra as much as she sometimes vocalised. The ranking list was pretty equal, but save for Bow being cemented as number 1, Catra was slightly higher than Adora. They both were great, but it was fun being able to throw your worst insults at someone who would actually return them and then laugh it off.

But when she thought about this fanfic-challenge, she kinda wondered if she hadn't pushed Catra a bit too far. Eh. If anyone could take it, it would be Catra.

She will write something for Adora. I'm 100% sure of that. She will do her best to write the best romance she can come up with and it will be so cringy and so surpy that even Perfuma will feel sick. Poor baby. Ah well, every writer has to start… some… where…

She looked at the screen where the title of the story appeared.

When Bow returned with the coffee, he found Glimmer staring straight up into the ceiling. Without words, she pointed to her phone. Bow took it, read it… and stared at Glimmer.
