My baby

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/30674723.

Rating:
Teen And Up Audiences

Archive Warning:
No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandoms:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018), she - Fandom

Relationships:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Bow/Glimmer (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra), Bow (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Light Angst, Sad with a Happy Ending, Eating Disorders, trigger warning, Lesbian Character, Lesbian Catra (She-Ra), Lesbian Adora (She-Ra), catradora, Human Catra (She-Ra), Alternate Universe - Normal Life, she-ra au normal life

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2021-04-14 Completed: 2021-06-15 Words: 25,172 Chapters: 15/15

My baby

Posted originally on the Archive of Our Own at http://archiveofourown.org/works/30674723.

Rating:
Teen And Up Audiences

Archive Warning:
No Archive Warnings Apply

Category:
F/F

Fandoms:
She-Ra and the Princesses of Power (2018), she - Fandom

Relationships:
Adora/Catra (She-Ra), Bow/Glimmer (She-Ra)

Characters:
Adora (She-Ra), Catra (She-Ra), Glimmer (She-Ra), Bow (She-Ra)

Additional Tags:
Light Angst, Sad with a Happy Ending, Eating Disorders, trigger warning, Lesbian Character, Lesbian Catra (She-Ra), Lesbian Adora (She-Ra), catradora, Human Catra (She-Ra), Alternate Universe - Normal Life, she-ra au normal life

Language:
English

Stats:
Published: 2021-04-14 Completed: 2021-06-15 Words: 25,172 Chapters: 15/15

My baby

by Themoonandthesun

Summary

TW:eating disorder (recovering and relapsing) story has a happy ending I swear

This is a normal life au. I wanted some angst and this is as far as I got with that.

Adora is suffering from an eating disorder and tries to get help upon her mothers request but it’s not on her terms so accepting the help that is given is harder than it is. Glimmer her best friend tries to help as much as she can.

Catra is her best friends little sister who has this complex of trying to help the ones she loves but she learns that she can’t help everyone alone and sometimes people do need professional help.

!!: age gap. Catra is 18 and Adora just turned 21. Just wanted you guys to know in case you guys don't like that stuff. Adora is working as an assistant for a clothing designer and Catra is in highschool. I made it that way cause it fits with the theme. I also made catra and glimmer siblings so it fits better I suppose, I know it’s weird but bare with me man.

Notes

Haha I wrote this when I was sad so read at your own pace and risk because it's probably not that good and I don't want to hurt anyone. It's okay to ask for help and you are worthy of recovery no matter what it is you are recovering from.

It’s my favorite show and not really their characters but I wanted to write what it would be like if all of that stuff never happened and I just wanted to write a story so sorry if it’s not great. :(:

See the end of the work for more notes

Chapter 1

Let her eat cake

"Happy birthday to you!"

Let her eat cake

"Happy birthday to you!"

Let her eat cake

"Happy birthday dear Adora!"

Just let her eat cake

"Happy birthday to you!"

Just let her eat the cake

"Make a wish." Make a wish? There isn't anything I want.

Just let her eat the goddamn cake!

"What did you wish for?" I turned and saw my friends sister smiling.

"For you to stop bugging me already." I poked her forehead.

My mom cut up the cake and handed one out to everyone. Me first as always since it's my birthday then continuing on.

Everyone left to go outside and enjoy the sunny evening while I sat inside contemplating whether or not I should eat the cake.

"Are you gonna eat that?" Catra.

The cake? You're not really gonna eat though.

"Maybe later." I pushed it away from me.

"I'm still full from dinner." She looked as if she didn't believe me. I looked at the cake I had pushed away and contemplated again.

"Would it help if we eat it together?" I looked up again to see her sitting beside me.

My cheeks felt warm and as I went to touch them they were wet. I hadn't realized I had been crying until she pulled me out of my trance.

"We'll go at the same time." But it was really hard for me to even pick up the fork.

"It's okay to enjoy this." Is it really?

I wiped my eyes and nodded trying to reassure her.

I slowly grabbed the fork and dug it into the cake making sure I have an even amount of cake and frosting. I brought it up to my mouth.

"You deserve it. You are allowed to eat without feeling bad."

How long has it been since I've had a chocolate cake without feeling bad after I eat it?

"At the same time."

I want to know what it feels like to eat without feeling like I should starve right after.

"1,"

I want to eat without worry.

"2,"

I want to be better.

"3."

This is just a side thing from the main that I wanted to post first :) the actual story starts in the next chapter

1 | Adora

I looked up at my ceiling and watched as my fan spun. My form of entertainment at the moment.

I sat up when I heard my door click then open.

"I'm starving. Let's go out to eat." Glimmer walked in my room and smiled. "Come on let's celebrate you getting out." Part of me felt weird about being out of the hospital.

"Hello ladies what would you like to order today?" We said what we wanted then the waiter walked away.

"How is it being back at home?" I leaned back in my chair and looked at her for a couple of seconds.

"Did you do something to your hair? It looks shorter than the last time I saw you." She crossed her arms and sighed.

"Seriously Adora." I sighed and put my head back.

"I don't know." I shrugged.

"You don't know?" She asked confused. "Shouldn't you be over joyed? Happy to be home? Happy to be free to do whatever you want without having wardens watching over your every move." She exaggerated a little.

"It's hasn't been that long, okay?" I sat up and grabbed a breadstick. I bit it then shook it in front of her face. "Home is home. I've been back for a week and I didn't mind being there."

"I know someone who missed you a lot." I threw the breadstick on the plate and crossed my arms.

Her little sister was also a best friend of mine. I forgot to tell her sister about me going to get help and long story short it's been three months.

"How is she?" I knew she was going to be upset when she saw me.

"Doing okay. She thinks that since she's almost eighteen and a senior in high school she doesn't have the right to care." Seems things changed over the summer. "Enough about my brat of a sister. How have you been?" It's not like I cared to tell her the truth but my brain was always conditioned to playing around when it comes to personal stuff.

"Fine. Tired is all." She seemed worried.

"Adora I don't want you getting bad again." That one sentence.

"I'm handling things okay as is."

"I'm just worried A. I love you and I'm just-"

"Trying to help, I know. I'm fine. It won't be like last time." Last time was....bad. "I'm better now."

"It better not be like last time." She said sternly.

After lunch I dropped her off at her house.

Her mom never wanted her to leave so she stayed living with her mom but she said after she gets married she's gonna move in with her fiancé. I'm happy for her really it's just sometimes I get lonely and jealous that she has someone. Sometimes I wish I had what her and her fiancé has.

"Hey!" I looked up and saw Catra smiling. As energetic as the last time I saw her.

"Why you gotta yell every time?" I groaned and put my head against the headrest. She opened the passenger side door and got in. I didn't even realize Glimmer was gone. "I got out a week ago and the first thing you say to me is a cheery hey?" I figured she'd be mad at me.

I grabbed my pack of cigarettes and took one out, putting it between my lips.

"Did you want me to be upset with you? You did leave without saying anything and not to mention the fact I was th-" I turned to her and covered her mouth.

"I'm sorry." I sighed and took my hands off her mouth.

It's so cold. I looked at my phone and saw it was 78° today. I lit my cigarette and puffed out smoke.

"I didn't mean to." I muttered.

"I know." She punched my shoulder. "You're an ass but I missed you so don't ever do that again or I might just actually kill you."

"Jesus." I muttered under my breath. I turned my head to look at her. I squinted my eyes so the sun wouldn't blind me even more. "You're a weird kid." She frowned a little and I chuckled. The conversation ended like that. We sat here in silence for a couple minutes, I smoked while she played with my fingers but then she put her hand in mine. It's not that unusual for her to play with my fingers but holding my hand was different. I don't mind or at least I don't think I should. I smiled and closed my eyes then screamed. I chuckled then looked at her.

"Why?" I shrugged my shoulders.

"Why not?" She got out. I was about to drive away but she tapped the window. I rolled down my window waiting for her to say something. I put my sunglasses back on and threw my cigarette out my window then looked at her.

"I'm glad you're back." She gave me a toothy smile. "Get home safe." I gave her an awkward smile and nodded. I waved my hand and drove away.

"May I remind you that this piece is due in two weeks! I haven't slept and I haven't had any coffee because I decided to go on this juice cleanse and don't get me started on the lady working at where I get my juice!" I sighed and walked over to my manager.

"Claudia calm down. It'll be okay. You can get the dress done as long as you focus and work hard. Do you need any help? Maybe I could do something." She sighed then sat up in her chair.

"Why don't you go home early? Or you know what you could do? Get me a coffee." I scoffed then chuckled.

"You're on a juice cleanse. You told me not to get you any coffee no matter how much you beg when you first started it. I'll take you up on that offer and head home early though." She shooed her hand at me and sighed.

"Go on." I smiled and gathered my things and headed out of the studio.

I looked around and saw cars honking at each other and people walking hurriedly trying to get somewhere.

"Crazy seeing you here." I turn around and see Glimmer. "I thought you had an hour till you get off of work." I smiled and shook my head.

"She let me off early. Wanna do me a favor since you're here and drive me home." She smiled and nodded.

"You're lucky I took a cab." I tossed her my keys.

"Oh yes I'm oh so lucky." I said sarcastically.

"Hey? Do you feel like screaming today?" I smirked. She's going through the tunnel.

I'm glad my manager let me have my old job back. It's the same as it was a couple months ago.

She knew what was going on and was understanding to the point she said she would hire someone temporarily while I'm away then hire me back which I'm not sure is okay in the workplace but she's in charge and I'm okay with it as long as I have a job.

The tunnel is something we did when we had too much on our minds. We've been doing it since high school.

"Roll your window down!"

"Hell Yeah." I rolled down my window and screamed. Every now and then I would go through here and just scream. Glimmer loves coming with me. She says she likes to see me free. She doesn't scream or anything she's just along to keep me company.

When glimmer pulled up to her house I noticed Catra talking to someone.

"Your sister?" We both turned to see Catra with a boy. "And a boy?" Something I've never seen before.

"Strange." Glimmer said.

The boy got in his car and drove off. Me and Glimmer got down from the car and walked to the front door where Catra is.

She held out her hand and stared at me. I didn't even get a word out.

"Candy?" Candy? She wants candy. I chuckled and shook my head. I usually carry a piece of candy with me and Catra knows that.

Honestly I only now carry a piece with me because she wants one whenever I come around.

I put the candy in her hand and pat her head. I went inside following Glimmer in.

"Welcome back." I was greeted when I walked into the kitchen by Glimmers mom. "How is everything? Settling back in okay?"

My mom and their mom have been friends since high school, they even went to college together. Me and Glimmer grew up together so in a way she's like my sister. So is Catra sometimes.

"Everything feels the same just slightly different I guess. I'm doing better." She smiled and nodded in reassurance.

"Staying for dinner honey?" I opened my mouth ready to say no but I saw the way Glimmer looked at me. It was as if she was shooting daggers through my chest.

"Yeah mom thanks." In a way their mom is like mine too.

We all sat around at the table in awkward silence.

"So I heard the job you had before hired you again. That's good." I sighed and nodded.

"Uh Yeah. The manager and me are really good friends and she likes having me as her assistant." Small talk was never a thing I was good at.

"Are you ready for the wedding Glimmer?" Glimmer smiled and nodded. She look genuinely happy.

"Soon you're gonna move in with Bow and leave me here, but I'm happy for you." Catra looked down at her food. I can tell part of that was a lie. When she lies she looks down. She could say it with a smile or a happy tone but you could tell somethings up when she doesn't lift her head.

"You have Adora here when I'm gone." Oh my god.

"Dude I'm not gonna date your sister." I said as a joke but Catra slammed her fork down and stormed upstairs.

Usually she doesn't take my jokes seriously so I thought this time wouldn't be any different.

"Sorry girls. She's been like that all day. She's in one of her moods. It's not something you said Adora, I think something happened at school so you saying that set it over the edge." So it is my fault?

"Want me to go check on her?" I was about to get up but Glimmer stood up and gave me a reassuring smile.

"It's okay I got it." I nodded.

"I'm just gonna head home. I'll text you Glimmer when I get home. Thank you for dinner mom it was good as always." She smiled

When I got back to my apartment I flopped on my bed and looked up at the ceiling.

"Was it my fault?" I whispered to myself.

I got changed and got under my covers.

I couldn't sleep at all. I just felt bad and kept thinking it was my fault.

"Hey you look like you're gonna fall asleep." I looked up at Clare my friend from high school. She invited me to go out to lunch with her.

"I didn't sleep last night. I'm so tired." She sat down across from me and set our food down.

"Something on your mind?" I sighed and sat up.

"Not really. It's not something I should be worried about." And it's something I don't wanna talk about to her. Don't get me wrong she's nice and all but I don't trust her all that much with my personal life.

"Wanna do something to get it off your mind after this?" She bit her lip.

Sex. She means sex.

That's all she ever wanted back then and that's all she wants now I guess.

"Yeah." But it wouldn't take my mind off of everything else like it did back then.

2 | Catra

Why am I like this? I’m just upsetting them for no reason. This is all just frustrating.

“What’s wrong?” I turned slightly to see Glimmer.

"I don't know." I sprawled myself out on my bed and sighed.

"Well you better tell me because Adora thinks she did something wrong." She thought she did something wrong? She didn't do anything wrong. I sat up and looked at Glimmer.

"School is just really stressful for me right now." Was all I could really say. I actually wasn't sure why I got mad.

"So you just gotta slam your fork down and be mad because Adora made a stupid joke?" I shook my head.

"No. I just-" I don't know. I don't know why I got mad at her because of a stupid joke.

"Don't tell me-" I looked up at her confused.

"What?" She smiled. She came and sat in front of me.

"Do you like Adora?" I blushed.

"What?" I stood up. Why would she think that? "I don't like her like that!" I wanted to convince her that I didn’t like Adora in the way she thought.

I don't like her. At least I don't think so.

I turned my head and gave her a look.

"Chill I'm just kidding. Unless you're lying to me and you actually do like her." She smirked at me. I blushed and looked down.

"Get out of my room." I threw a pillow at her face. She chuckled and caught the pillow. I tried pushing her away with my feet but she wouldn’t budge. I looked up at her.

"Little sister, it's okay you have a little crush on her. I'm not gonna hate you if you like her like a grade school crush." I pushed her hard this time and she ended up falling off the bed.

"I don’t like her like that you ass." She smiled and nodded.

"Yeah I understand." Then she walked out.

You understand? What a weirdo.

"Hello earth to Catra?" I turned my head and saw Entrapta.

"Yeah?" She shook her head. She leaned against the lockers with her arms crossed.

"You're doing it again." I sighed and closed my locker.

"Sorry. I'm just thinking."

"You've been thinking for the past week." We started walking to class so we don't end up being late.

“Things have been stressful.” She looked confused before smiling.

“Is it school work? If it is then I would be happy to do it for yo-” I pushed her head.

“Nerd.”

"We're doing notes today so pull out your notebooks and write down what I underline." I only like notes because it gives me time to talk to Entrapta even though she mostly pays attention to the class.

"Why have you been stressed?" I can't say that my sister thinks I like Adora. Ever since Glimmer said that to me I've been 'on edge' and 'not myself' whatever that means. Glimmer has been trying to get me to say I like Adora even though I don’t.

"Home stuff." She smirked.

"Adora and Glimmer?" More like just Glimmer.

"God what I would do to get in Adoras pants." Mermista. She’s had a crush on Adora since forever. Maybe not forever but two years seems like it.

"Ew. Thinking about that is disgusting." I leaned forward to give her a glare. She shrugged and smiled.

"Just because you think of her as your sister doesn't mean you get a say in how I feel about her." I smiled and rolled my eyes. "Plus you know she's hot too, don't deny it." I sat back in my seat and ignored her comment.

Lunch time rolled around. Usually I sit in the library because it’s quiet and away from Mermista.

"All I'm saying is that if you really want to lose your virginity senior year is the year." But it seems she found me once again.

"Look I just think that if I want to lose it then it'll be with my significant other."

"And if I were you I would do it this Friday." Shes a little pushy about her own opinions.

"My mom and sister wouldn't let me. They'd kill me. Plus if I tell my sister she's gonna tell Adora and that never ends well." I picked at my nails then looked out the window. I don't like the library anymore.

"Why? What happens when she tells Adora?" My eyes widened. I will never forget middle school, 8th grade, a school party. Horrible times.

"She's scary when she doesn't get her way. She's like a big sister." She chuckled.

"Sounds hot to me." She winked. I gagged.

Lunchtime is no longer my favorite quiet time.

"I'm home!" I walked towards the kitchen and saw my mom, Glimmer, and Adora.

"Hey honey."

"We're having family dinner together again? Usually we have that tomorrow instead of today." I smiled at Adora trying to make it seem like I'm not upset anymore.

"Well they have something to do tomorrow so I decided we could have it today." I nodded.

"Candy man!" I shouted jokingly at Adora. She chuckled and nodded. She grabbed something out of her pocket and put it in my hands. It was small. I looked down and it was a Hershey kiss. I looked up, smiled, then nodded.

I didn't think she would actually give me something.

"How was school?" I looked down and started playing with my food.

"It was fine I guess."

"Oh it's getting cold out. You know what that means." My mom turned to Glimmer and Adora.

"I get to stay inside." I chuckled at Adoras comment. Glimmer smacked her and shook her head.

"Warm drinks, candles, and the leaves falling." Glimmer smiled. She weirded me out.

"Weirdo." I mumbled.

"Oh once it gets colder you guys should come over for movie night and we could have popcorn and hot chocolate, how does that sound?" I nodded and turned to Glimmer and Adora. Adora was already looking at me as if she was waiting for an answer.

"Usually you would be jumping up and down at the thought of all of us doing that." She took a sip of her water then put the glass back down. Her eyes still staring at me, waiting for me to say something.

"Uh I'm just really tired but I'm happy we get to do that." I smiled weakly then got up to put my plate in the sink.

Glimmer and mom were washing dishes while I sat on the couch watching tv.

"Hey can I talk to you for a minute?" I turned and saw Adora. Why would she need to talk to me?

I nodded and followed her to the other room.

"Look I know I was supposed to say this like a long time ago but I'm sorry." She chuckled awkwardly.

Sorry? She never did anything.

"For what?" She scratched the back of her head then sighed.

"About the joke. It was probably out of line and honestly I didn't think you would get upset about it, I thought you'd laugh but you didn't." She looked down.

Oh.

"It didn't upset me it was just a weird day."

"But if I didn't say that you wouldn't have stormed off so it's my fault." I shook my head.

"Look it's okay Adora. You didn't do anything." She gave me a small smile then held out her arms.

A hug?

I went in and gave her a hug. She squeezed a little tighter making me smile.

She seems a little taller than a couple months ago. How am I just realizing that now?

"At least you don't hate me." She chuckled. My cheeks started heating up.

Wait am I blushing?

I pushed her away. She looked at me confused.

"Uh sorry I just uh remembered I have homework." She smiled then patted my head.

"Yeah it's okay kid. Homework's more important than hugging me I understand." She turned away with a smile on her face. I pushed her lightly.

"You weirdo."

"Now go do your homework." I walked away.

Kid? I'm not a kid.

For some reason I don't know why that made me, upset? Sad? Or weird?

"I'm gonna get going. Kid do good on your test tomorrow." I nodded and gave her an awkward smile. "Bye mom, Glimmer I'll see you tomorrow." And with that Adora left.

"Why do you look like a sad puppy?" I punched Glimmer in the arm.

"Ow jeez" She chuckled. "I was just saying. Do you miss Adora?" She said in a baby voice. I punched her again in the same spot. "Ow okay I was just kidding!" She backed away from me.

I don't miss her. I just saw her, why would I miss her? I shook my head. I headed upstairs and flopped on my bed. I grabbed my phone and texted Mermista that I'll be going to the party.

3 | Adora

"Hey honey I haven't seen you in a while." My mom walked over to me to give me a hug.

"Yeah mom I've just been busy." I wasn't particularly into hugs even if it was just my mom. I don't even like touching.

"My look at you." It was only a matter of time before she made some remark about my body. "You've gotten thinner." She looked concerned. "Are you really sure you're getting better?" I scratched the back of my head.

"Yeah mom, it just takes some time." In reality the nurses kicked me out because I kept sneaking around my food and such.

I'm not too thin to the point I'm under weight but I guess it seems like I'm almost there.

I want to get better but something in my brain says otherwise. I try not to listen to it during the day so I deal with it until I get home.

"Maybe you should move back in with us. We could take care of you." I gave her fake smile. I sighed and pretended to think it over.

"Yeah move back in here with you and your husband?" She gave me a stern look. "I'm okay with where I am." I walked away from her to sit on the couch.

"I know you don't like him but he's not so bad." Bullshit. I never liked him to begin with but him being an ass added onto it so I guess I found a reason to hate him.

"Thanks mom, for the offer but I'm good." My mom sighed then came and sat down next to me.

"So do you have a girlfriend?" She smiled.

This is her way of trying to get over our awkward conversation. All I wanted was to see her but all I get are awkward conversations and stupid remarks.

"Nope still single mom." She sat forward and looked at me.

"I just want you to find someone and settle down-" I groaned and got up.

"I'm fine mom." I rested my hand on my cheek. “Really I don’t need anyone.” I turned and she had this sad smile.

"I just want someone to take care of you." I scoffed and shook my head.

"I can take care of myself!" She sighed and rubbed her temples. “Stop trying to force this when I’m fine the way I am.”

"Honey just look at you.” Her sad fucking expression again. “I couldn’t take care of you in the end so I just thought whoever you end up with might. I just want the best for you." It always ends up like this. Can’t have one normal conversation.

"Like you did a good job anyways." Her eyes widened. She looked away leaving no expression behind. “My partner wouldn’t be responsible for my health anyways.” I tried my best. “You tried your best but you shouldn’t put my health into someone else’s hands who aren’t a professional.” Just say something.

"Adora." She sighed. She stood up and hugged me. “I’m so sorry.”

I had nothing to say. I didn’t want to. My chest hurt but I didn’t know why. Maybe it hurt because she was touching me or maybe it’s because she called me by my actual name and not some pet name since the incident.

"I have to go to work." She nodded and but stayed where she was.

"Make sure you eat. Please take care of yourself.” She hugged tighter then let go. She didn’t let me see her face but I knew she was crying.

“I will.”

I stayed in my car that was parked at Glimmers house.

“At least come inside. You look like some stalker.” Glimmer startled me.

“Yeah I was going to but I guess my mind wandered.” She look concerned but she just changed the subject.

“Guess who’s going to a party tonight.” She smiled.

“What you still go to those parties?” I chuckled.

“No Catra told me she’s going to a party.”

"What do you mean she's going to a fucking party?"

"A chill out. She's 18. She’s an adult just let her have fun, I told her she could go." I rolled my eyes.

"Do you know what goes on at parties?" She sighed deeply.

"What goes on at parties?" She said in a bored tone.

"Drinking and fucking belly shots galore. Need I remind you that she could possibly have sex. Do you want her to be a teen mom Glimmer? Do you?" She sighed then chuckled.

"You did that stuff when we were in high school."

"That's different and you know that." She chuckled.

"You’re acting like a mom.” I furrowed my brows.

“No I’m not.” I’m just worried. I’ve known her since she was born. She’s like a sister to me. If anything were to happen to her I would feel bad or guilty in some way.

"Yes you are. You don’t let her do many fun things and when we do find something she ends up being bored and you get all pouty.” So not true. Fucking liar. “You’re really overprotective when it comes to her." I rolled my eyes. I am not. "Remember when she was in 8th grade? The school party?" I groaned. I covered my face.

That was kind of embarrassing.

"They were peer pressuring her, Glimmer!" I tried defending myself.

"They were but you didn't need to punch a kid." I chuckled.

Fun times.

"I wanted to see what would've happened afterwards."

"A 19 year old punched a 15 year old. You could've gone to jail or some shit." I rolled my eyes.

My mom paid her parents so they could get off my back.

“But I didn’t and I really think that’s what matters here.”

“You’re insane.”

"Let's go get her back." She crossed her arms and stood her ground.

"I'm not going. She deserves to have some fun." I sighed and nodded.

I got out of the car and we both walked in her room.

I wanted to agree with her. She does deserve this considering it’s her senior year and all that but my brain wouldn’t shut up about the many things that could go wrong. “How about this, we text her and ask if she’s fine and then go and pick her up.” I sat down on her bed and closed my eyes.

"Okay that works."

“Look Adora I know you have really bad anxiety but you need to calm down. Everything will be okay.” I nodded and concentrated on the fact everything will be fine.

She'll be fine and nothing with happen to her. She'll be okay. I’ll be okay. Glimmer will be okay.

"She said she’s doing fine. I asked her if she wanted us to come check on her and she said do whatever." That was thirty minutes ago.

“I have decided we should go because I don’t have a great feeling.” Glimmer sighed and nodded.

“Fine.”

I drove us to the party and saw a lot of kids outside and inside.

"I'm gonna punch a kid."

"You're not gonna punch a kid." I'm gonna punch a kid. “No punching anyone no matter what. I know you’re anxious but that’s not an excuse.” She started lecturing me.

I listened to the rest of what she had to say and decided to not punch anyone because she did have good points.

We walked in and asked around if they've seen Catra anywhere.

"Hey do you know Catra?" This girl turned around and I recognized her. M something. Her name starts with an M. Usually I just called her the mermaid because she seems like one but Glimmer said I couldn’t say that to her face.

"Hey Adora! What are you doing here?!" She yelled over the music.

"I'm looking for Catra." She started laughing. What's so funny?

"Don't worry about her. Dance with me." She tried grabbing my hand but I pulled back. So annoying. I hate people in general but high school kids especially.

"Now! Where is she?" She rolled her eyes and gave me a smile. She pointed upstairs. I nodded and thanked her.

"Thanks mermaid!"

She yelled after me. If I stayed any longer she would've probably started yelling at me.

I ran up the stairs, moving past the people who were standing on the side. I opened the first door. Empty. The second. Empty. Then the third. I opened it and saw Catra sitting on the bed with her knees to her chest. I closed the door behind me.

“What’s wrong?” She looked up startled. She sighed when she saw it was me.

“Nothing. Nothings wrong so just leave.” She mumbled.

I looked around then sat down on the floor.

“You don’t have to tell me but you can at least let me know if you wanna go or not.” She sniffled. She looked up and rubbed her eyes. She chuckled then nodded

“Yeah. I’m really tired.” She got up and walked over to me. She squatted down. “Really fucking tired.” She whispered.

She’s been drinking I can tell that much. She didn’t seem in the right head space.

“I can take you home.” I got up and held my hand out. “Come on.” She looked at my hand before slowly grabbing it.

“You found her!” Glimmer said excited.

“Can you drive?” I handed her the keys.

“Of course.” I opened the door for Catra. When she got in she laid down and sighed.

I sat in the back with Catra while Glimmer drove us back to her house.

"We're here." Glimmer said.

"I'll carry her up." Glimmer nodded.

"I'm gonna go see Bow. Can you take care of her while I'm gone? My moms at work taking the night shift but she'll be home in a little." I nodded.

"Go ahead I got her." I carried her up to her room and set her down on her bed.

"Why didn’t you say anything?" I sighed and sat down in front of her.

"I thought you wouldn’t have liked to explain to her why you’re super drunk and crying to her." I gave her a small smile. She looked down at her lap. "Uh do you want anything? Water? Ibuprofen?" She shook her head.

"I was actually really hoping for you guys to save me so I just said do whatever." She seemed anxious. “There was this guy there and he was just being an absolute ass,” she started laughing. “He was being so pushy and Mermista had to step in but he wouldn’t budge so she finally punched him and all the other guys came running to see if she was okay until they threw him out.” She bit the inside of her lip and looked down. “I just grabbed the bottle and locked myself in the room. I thought I would be safest in there I guess.” She brought her knees to her chest.

“I’m sorry. I should’ve gotten there sooner but your sister said to let you enjoy yourself and I agreed.” I didn’t know what to say. I was upset at that idiot guy and upset that I didn’t do anything.

“I did enjoy myself for some parts if that helps.” I didn’t know what to say. I didn’t know how to react.

"I better go." She grabbed my wrist and pulled me back down.

"I'm sorry.” She let go. “Thank you for coming to rescue me.”

She was sad and I had no idea how to comfort her.

“No problem. Get some rest.”

Why can’t I help her like she helped me?

“Get home safe.”

4 | Catra

"Where were you Saturday night at the party? I remember you going upstairs but I didn’t see you after that. I was going to ask if you wanted a ride.” Mermista kept asking the same thing even over text but I didn’t know what to tell her.

“Yeah I just needed some space after what happened.” I ran my hand through my hair and sighed. “My sister and Adora came to pick me up. I guess I should’ve told you.”

"Yeah I remember seeing Adora. She was looking for you." She stopped smiling and got angry. "That little bitch called me a mermaid." I started laughing. She punched me in the arm.

"Come on it's funny." She pouted. "At least it seems like a compliment." She gave me a sarcastic smile.

"Hardly." I rolled my eyes. "So what happened then? After Adora took you home." I just wanted this conversation to end.

"Uh nothing. She just took care of me, you know with me being drunk and all." I couldn’t really tell her the truth. We’re not that close to begin with.

"I wish she took care of me when I got wasted." She threw her head back exaggerating.

"Just ask her out if you like her that much." She looked at me and scoffed.

"She doesn't do younger girls. You should know that." A rule in Adoras mind is that younger girls look like they would try and make her catch a case. She has a weird thing about not wanting to go to jail because of something stupid.

"It doesn't hurt to try." She rolled her eyes.

"Yeah right. She's probably into someone like you." I shook my head. I threw a fry at her then leaned back in my chair.

"More like she would go for someone like you." She chuckled and pushed my shoulder.

"Yeah yeah I know I'm pretty but so are you." She stuffed her salad that was on her fork into her mouth.

"She doesn't do relationships anyways so theres no chance with her either way." It’s not like I’d want a relationship with her or anyone like her for that matter.

“Did you know most relationships end because one person has a bad mental health and the other has a healthy mental health?” Entrapta popped up out of nowhere as usual.

"And where did you hear that?” Mermista seemed a little annoyed.

"It’s kind of basic therapy things.” I furrowed my brows.

“Did you learn that in therapy?” She nodded then looked away from me.

"I felt the need to share considering the conversation you two were having.” Mermista gave a glare then turned back to Entrapta.

"A conversation that didn’t involve you.” I glared at her.

It always ends up like this in the end which is why we never hang out all together.

"Well maybe if you didn’t talk so loud we wouldn’t be here.”

And it just continues the whole time.

School is never really fun if they both run into each other or if Mermista is being pushy with her opinions and viewpoints.

“Don’t you agree?” I brought my head down to see them both looking at me.

And this also happens. They end up arguing over something and try to get my opinion on it but I’ve already spaced out by then.

"I don't know.”

“Would you kiss her if you had the chance? Entrapta is saying it’s wrong so I suppose her answer is a no but I think yes because you know it’s you.” Kiss who?

“Kiss who?”

“You know.” She whispered. She looked around as if making sure no one was listening. “Adora.” I chuckled lightly.

"She doesn't even like me." She rested her head on her fist.

“How would you know. Maybe she does and she’s just really good at hiding it."

The bell rang which ended our conversation.

After that I tried avoiding Mermista because I knew if I ran into her she would pester me about an answer.

After school Entrapta drove me home.

"Hey wanna come in and have dinner with us?" She smiled and nodded.

Unusual since she doesn’t like going to my house as much.

"Fuck yeah. I'm always up for free food." But then I remember she likes the food my mom makes and especially the ones for her since it’s tiny.

"I'm home." I went in the kitchen and saw Glimmer, my mom, and Adora.

"Oh I didn't know Entrapta was coming for dinner." I smiled at my mom. Usually dinners get awkward really fast which is why I don't invite Entrapta over for dinner much. I looked over at Adora and saw she was avoiding eye contact with me.

She looked up and saw Entrapta. She started walking over to us.

"Hey! I haven't seen you in forever." Adora started being all bubbly. "God how long has it been?"

"They were right about you. You're really tall since the last time I've seen you. That's amazing actually considering puberty makes you stop growing after you're fourteen." Adora went in for a hug and Entrapta accepted it like it was a normal thing.

Usually Adora doesn't like hugging even if it just us. Even if she initiates it first it's still unusual or she does it because she wants something.

"Nice to see you again." Then she walked away not saying a word to me.

Was she ignoring me? Why would she be ignoring me?

"Dinner is done." I tried thinking of what she could be upset at me for, if she even is upset at me.

"So how was school?" I looked down and started playing with my food.

"Same as usual mom."

"Adora how have you been with um you know." Oh my god. Only my mom would bring up things like this when I invite a friend over.

"Mom she doesn't need to talk about it especially right now when we're having dinner." I blurted out.

"I was just wondering if she's doing better." I looked towards Entrapta and she looked confused. She continued eating her dinner thinking maybe it wasn't her place but who was I to know if that's what she was thinking.

"It's fine Catra." She didn't even look at me before smiling to my mom. "I'm doing fine thanks mom. Some days are hard but you know I at least try." I scoffed.

"Are you kidding me." I said under my breath.

"Catra!" My mom sternly said.

If she was gonna be upset with me then it's only right if I was upset with her.

"What? We were all thinking the same thing. She doesn't fucking tell the truth and she knows that." Adora looked down and smiled awkwardly. I furrowed my brows.

"Catra that is enough go to your room." My mom stood up meaning she was really upset with me. I didn't care if Entrapta was over or not but we were all thinking the same thing.

I threw my fork down. For some reason that made my mom upset even more.

"No it's okay she doesn't need to go." Adora said. My mom didn't even get a word out. "She's probably right she doesn't need to go to her room for that." Adora tried defending me. Why am I being so mean? She looked at me and sadly smiled.

At least she looked at me.

"Apologize and you could sit back down."

She stayed staring at me. It's like she knows what I'm thinking.

"I-I'm sorry." Her eyes stayed on me until I sat down again.

Her stare was making me aware of everything I did. My moves, my breathing, my talking. I felt embarrassed. I mean I should probably be embarrassed for throwing a stupid tantrum.

"It's fine." We sat back down and continued eating. After that Entrapta left. When I walked her to the door she didn't say anything about what happened. She knew this was how things were sometimes.

I went to my room not wanting to see anyone else for the day.

"What was that about?" I jumped and looked up towards the doorway. It's just Glimmer.

"What?" I sat up and looked at her.

"Dinner? Why were you being mean to Adora?" I shrugged and looked down.

"I don't know." She scoffed which made me look up at her.

"Bullshit." She came over to me and sat down next to me. "Whats wrong? Did Adora say something to you? Did she do something?" I shook my head.

"No I just don't think she should be joining our dinners so much." She chuckled then messed with my hair.

"She comes on Tuesdays and Sundays. I don't think that's a lot." I fell backwards on my bed, closing my eyes.

"She's been annoying recently." She chuckled. I turned and faced her. She laid down along with me.

"Is she making fun of how tall you are again? You know she's just joking. At least you're still taller than her when she slouches." I rolled my eyes.

"Just something about her is annoying."

"Like what?" I looked up at the ceiling.

"She sleeps around." She chuckled.

"She's been doing that since high school. The poor girls she’s hurt." I sighed. “ I used to feel really bad when I would see them the next day with mascara running down their faces.”

"She doesn't care about much." She sighed.

"Yeah but she does care about us and her family. At least she doesn't hate you." I guess. I was trying to find some reason as to hate her but I think until recently I’ve realized how she is to herself and I think that’s what’s making me upset. "Can I tell you something?"

"Sure."

"Whatever you do, don't sleep with her." I looked at her wide eyed. I sat up and covered my face feeling embarrassed.

"I don't like her like that! God what’s with everyone and asking that!” I know I don’t. “And even if I did like her I would never. Our age gap is what would've stopped it either way." She pushed my head.

"Im just fucking with you." I could tell part of her was joking but the other part of her meant it. "You didn't even ask her for candy today. She even had a candy for you." She did?

She’s been ignoring me all day and now she suddenly changed.

"Sorry about earlier.”

"I'm not the one you have to say sorry to." I groaned and fell back.

"I know you." I looked at her. She looked up at my ceiling avoiding eye contact. "I don't care if your feelings will change naturally. That’s who we are as humans, our feelings change over time even if we don’t want them to. We end up doing something that we might regret.” She bit her lip and sighed. “I just don’t want you getting hurt. I know how people are." I looked at her sympathetically.

I know what she means. Who she was referring to. Way to be more subtle.

"Have you ever been hurt like that?" She started laughing.

"Oh god." She turned to look at me. "I've been there too many times.”

“Adoras not gonna change anytime soon just like I’m not gonna change and neither will you but over time-” she paused.

“Over time things change. People change.” She nodded.

“I hope Adora realizes some things in the future.” She smiled and sat up. “I hope you do too.”

5 | Adora

Chapter Notes

Sorry I went on a small trip and didn’t think about writing the next chapter but here it is :)

"Look my moms going away on a trip and my sister needs to stay with someone. Could she stay with you? Please. It'll only be for two weeks." Glimmer kept pleading and I could tell she was using her puppy dog voice.

"Why can't she stay with you?" I rubbed my eyes. I turned to the side and looked at the time.

7:19 Saturday.

"With me and Bow getting the house ready, moving, along with work I just don't think I can right now, A." I groaned.

"It's too early for me to be making this decision." She snickered.

"That's why I called you this early, you never can seem to say no in the mornings." Exactly why I didn't want to make this decision right now.

"Let me sleep on it." I rolled over and looked out my window.

"Nope. Make your decision right now." I sighed.

"Isn't she old enough to stay by herself?"

"Oh so she's old enough to stay by herself but not go to a party?" God I really have a way with words huh?

"That's different and you know it."

"I guess if she stays by herself she might end up throwing a party but you know we'll never know." I groaned. "She could bring so many friends over and trash the house." She sighed. "She could get hurt and then who would know about it? Not me. Not you. But you know what leaving her alone in an empty house sounds like a great idea." I groaned louder. I knew she was right but why me? She would've been fine staying by herself.

"Alright, fuck, fine she could stay with me." She squealed.

"Yay okay thank you so much. I owe you! I love you! Talk to you later." Then she hung up.

How did I get stuck with her? Oh right my mom wanted to be friends with her mom in high school and then they wanted to both have babies at the same time after college.

Why are best friends such weird human beings in this time of world.

I got up, got dressed, grabbed my keys and headed out to my car.

I decided that I can't really have any girls over at my house when Catra is over but if it happens then it happens I guess. I've been doing good as of lately so it shouldn't happen.

"Hey I'm here." Quiet. I walked upstairs to Glimmers room and saw she was laying down.

"Oh hey I didn't think you'd be coming today." She got up and hugged me. I put my bag down next to the door.

"I figured your sister would need help or something." I put my hands in my pockets and looked around her room. Same as always.

I wanted to help in some way.

"Oh well she's not home right now but you could just chill until she gets back." I nodded and sprawled myself out on her bed.

"Where did she go?" She sat down next to me. I laid my head on her lap. She started running her fingers through my hair.

"She had a sleepover at Entraptas." I hummed.

"So does she know she's gonna be staying with me?" I looked up and saw her expression change to a serious look.

"No she's probably gonna flip shit." She chuckled. She looked down at me and sighed. "Look A I need to talk to you about some things." I sat up and gave her my full attention.

She never gets serious about much so the serious stare she was giving me put me off.

"What? Is it to feed her? Look Glimmer I know you're worried about her but-"

"That's not what I'm talking about." She looked down. She fiddled with her fingers and sighed.

"Do you not trust me with her?" She looked up, her eyes widened. She shook her head.

She held my hands and tried to convince me that's not what she was thinking.

"What?! No! I do trust you it's just-" she gave me a soft smile. "You sleep around a lot and I just-"

"Woah! Do you think I'm gonna sleep with her? Dude I have standards-not saying that your sister isn't good looking because I mean she looks good but-" she started laughing. She shook her head.

I hope she didn't take that the wrong way.

"Dude I know you think of her as a sister of your own so I'm not worried about that, but I will say this if you dare sleep with her I will kill you. I love you like a sister but touching my sister is wrong. She's like a kid still." I looked at her confused.

I wouldn't wanna sleep with Catra. That's wrong and I don't see her that way.

"Ew. Thanks for putting a mental image in my head." She hit my arm. "I'm kidding!" I put my arms up in defense.

"And don't bring any girls over to your place. She doesn't need to be traumatized." I hit her arm back.

"I'll have you know the girls love me and she would be glad to be graced with the presence of hot women." She hit my arm over and over.

"You're disgusting." I chuckled.

"Hey am I interrupting anything?" I turned and saw Catra. I smiled and shook my head.

Glimmer and I looked at each other and started laughing.

"Nope. We were just talking about you-" Glimmer slapped my arm. Jeez what's with her and hitting my arm?

"Oh yeah? What was it?" She smirked. I opened my mouth to say something cocky but Glimmer said something first.

"Just talking about you staying with Adora while mom is gone on her vacation." Her expression changed and she looked down.

"Oh um did you talk to mom about that?" Glimmer nodded. She didn't seem all that excited but then again I haven't seen an excited expression from her for a while.

"Then I guess I'll go pack." She didn't look up. You could tell she was smiling but she didn't seem all that happy. She walked to her room.

Packing pretty late considering their mom leaves tomorrow.

"Is she okay?" I turned to Glimmer. She shrugged her shoulders. I rolled my eyes.

She’s no help anyways. Like Glimmer would know anything going on in Catras life.

"I guess I'll go help her then." We both stood up. I grabbed my bag and slung it over my shoulder.

"I have to go help Bow move the boxes from his apartment to the house. Thinking about it is making me tired." I chuckled.

"You'll be fine. I love you. Don't forget to eat." Then I walked out of her room.

"Hey that's my line! And I love you too!" She yelled. I smiled and shook my head.

I knocked on Catras door, " Hey can I come in?" She opened the door and gave me this look. She looked mad almost. Her face softened when she realized it was just me.

"Sorry. Yeah come in." I smiled at her. I walked in and looked around. Last time I was in here was the night of the party. I shook my head.

She was laying on the bed instead of packing.

"Do you need help packing?" I turned and saw her still laying there. She didn't make a move to get up.

"Uh if you want." I nodded and went to her laundry basket. I picked up her shirt and underneath was her bra. I picked up the bra and put it on my head.

"Look at me I'm an alien." She blushed and came over to me, she yanked it off my head. "My eyes!" She slapped me. I laughed. I sat down on her bed and watched as she started doing her own laundry. "I didn't know you were a B cup." She threw a shirt at my head. I caught it and threw it back. "I'm just joking. At least you got up." She furrowed her brows and sighed.

"Shut up." I looked around her room. I noticed now the little nicknacks around her room and the notes and drawing hanging on the walls made her room really cool. "Thanks for embarrassing me."

"Well there's no one else here so I don't know who you would be embarrassed with." She rolled her eyes.

"You, dumbass." I sighed and put my arms behind my head.

"I don't know why you would be embarrassed with me. You're like my little sister, you shouldn't be embarrassed with that stuff." I lifted my head a little and saw her looking down. She didn't say anything for a while before saying,

"Yeah, sorry I don't know what I was thinking." I looked at her confused. She never apologizes for something so little and simple.

"Hey you didn't do anything weirdo." She still didn't look up at me.

"Your room looks cool." I think when you walk into someone's room you can tell a lot about a person.

"Not really. It's like any others." I shook my head.

"No. Everyone has different things in their rooms. You have sticky notes and handwritten notes. You have flowers in jars and rocks and crystals." She looked at me. "Compared to my room this is really cool. I have blank walls, a bed thats bigger and taller than me, two drawers and that's it." She said a small thank you for complimenting her room. I smiled and sat up. "Say candy man." She looked up at me confused.

"What?" I rolled my eyes playfully.

"Say candy man. I have something for you." I grabbed my bag and pulled the candy out, hiding it behind my back. I got up and walked over to her.

"What is it?" I shook my head.

"That's not how it goes." She rolled her eyes. She smiled.

"Candy man!" She shook her hands. I chuckled. I handed her the Toblerone. She got excited. "Oh my god my favorite." She put the candy down and gave me a hug.

"I figured you haven't had one in a while." She squeezed tighter.

"I haven't had any candy in a while actually." She pulled away.

She had this toothy smile and it was genuine this time. She seemed really happy. I wanted her to continue smiling like that because I liked seeing her happy but it didn’t last long before she turned away from me. I could tell she was still smiling.

"You're pretty observant huh." She punched my arm playfully. I walked away from her and laid down on her bed.

“Not really.”

"Thank you." I turned away from her and hummed in response.

"Yeah anything for you Catra."

6 | Catra

Chapter Notes

> Sometimes it’s hard to get out chapters because I don’t think they’re that good but I try my best anyways so please bare with the storyline:)

My mom left earlier this morning which left me in Adoras hands. The ride to her place was awkward as if this was the first time we talked.

"It's not much." She turned around and started putting the dishes that were on the counter in the sink. "I forgot to clean. It's not usually like this!"

"No it's actually nice." It was really nice. Not dirty. It was fairly clean considering it's Adora.

"Oh yeah you've never been here before." She put her hand behind her neck. "I guess I'll give you the tour." She gestured to her kitchen. I chuckled. "This is the kitchen, obviously. This is the living room where you'll be staying." She moved across the kitchen. The living room was just a gray couch with a tv across from it. Next to the couch was a blanket basket. There was a big window that showed the city. It filled the whole wall.

I really like it.

"Yeah so do I. It's my favorite part out of this whole apartment, besides my room." She winked. I rolled my eyes.

She seemed awkward when showing me around as if this is her first time doing anything with me around.

"Uh this is the closet." She opened the door and went in. "Where I was for years." I pushed her shoulder. She got out and closed the door. She walked over to the other closed door and opened it. "Uh this is the bathroom. You could change in here I guess." I laughed. I nodded my head. "This is my room. Please stay out of it." She chuckled. I looked around. Her room also had a big window.

Guess looking at someone else's room besides my sisters and friends room tells a lot about the other person.

"It's nice." I mumbled carelessly.

"Yeah I guess." She bumped shoulders with me.

She walked out and closed the door.

"Anything that's in the fridge you could have. There's not much so if you want something then just tell me." I opened the fridge and it was sorta empty. I wanted to say a stupid remark but I felt it was bad to say.

"Dude do you even eat?" But I said it anyways because I don't have a filter. I shook my head. "I'm sorry I didn't think. I did-" she shook her head.

She turned away from me and scoffed.

"Uh like I said just tell me if you want something in particular-" she looked down. She scratched the back of her head and started walking away.

"Wait Adora I'm sorry I didn't mean-" she wavered her hand at me. She didn't even look at me. She gave me a small gesture as if she was saying it's okay.

"It's okay Catra. Here you could go out and get yourself something to eat. The key's over there so just lock it when you leave." She set down some money. She ran a hand through her hair and sighed.

"Adora I really didn't mean it." She chuckled.

"Look Catra I'm used to it so just go get something to eat. I'm gonna go to bed early." She walked in her room and slammed the door making me jump a little. I sighed.

I fucking messed up on the first day here.

Fuck. Great going Catra.

I went out and got something to eat with Entrapta and Mermista.

"Are you okay?" I looked up and saw Entrapta looking at me with a concerned face. I shook my head then looked down at my food.

"I'm fine. I'm just not really hungry." I pushed my food away.

"So you're staying with Adora?" Mermista smirked.

"For two weeks." I rested my head on the palm of my hand.

"You know you could've stayed with me. My parents wouldn't have minded. But I understand why you'd want to be around her." I blushed slightly.

"Shut up. It's not like that." She hummed.

"Call me over when you get bored."

"With my luck you'd end up having sex with her while I'm sitting in the living room." She pushed my shoulder.

"I would do it when you're not there. I would never do that to you." I rolled my eyes.

"You guys are disgusting." Entrapta picked at her food then went back to her phone.

"You're the one picking at your food and you don't even like Adora like that so stay out of the conversation." Mermista started.

"Well maybe if you guys didn't talk about it in front of me." And this happens every time as if they plan to fight around me.

After dinner I stayed out with Entrapta till 2 in the morning then I went back to Adoras.

I sighed when I walked in. I saw alcohol on the counter. She's been drinking.

I didn't want to think about it so I just went to my bag and grabbed clothes. I changed in the bathroom. Her bathroom was different than mine. It didn't have much in it besides a toothbrush and toothpaste.

I looked at myself in the mirror. I touched my mouth then my cheek as if I was drawing some lines. I touched my collarbone and then sighed.

I'm so stupid.

I heard feet moving and some mumbling. I walked out of the bathroom and threw my clothes on the couch then went to the kitchen. I grabbed a glass and poured water. I sat down on the stool trying to find the right time to say sorry.

Adoras door opened. I turned expecting to see Adora but instead I saw this girl in a shirt and underwear.

"Oh hey you must be Catra. I heard a lot about you!" She whisper yelled. I nodded awkwardly. "Oh my god, girl Adora talks about you and Glimmer a lot." I blushed slightly. She seemed a little drunk.

"Really? I didn't think she'd talk about us." She nodded. She laid her head on the counter.

"Yeah all the time when she's drunk, but she mostly talks about you and how you're a great person and you're smart and you deserve the best." She looked up at me and grabbed my hands. "You know what I can wake her up for you. She feels soooooo bad about earlier." She tilted her head probably waiting for a response. I shook my head.

She shouldn't be feeling bad about anything. It was my fault to begin with.

"What the fuck?" I turned and saw Adora. She rubbed her back and sighed.

"Sorry did I wake you?" The girl stood up and rushed over to her.

"I told you not to do it so hard."

"And I told you not to get us drunk." I overheard their conversation. I blushed feeling embarrassed.

"Uh I'll just go and lay down and leave you guys to talk." I got up and walked over to the couch.

"No Catra it's fine." They both walked away from me and towards the front door.

I heard something about the girl needing to leave.

"I thought you said you wanted something."

"I never said that!"

"Well drunk you did!" They bickered back and forth.

"Leave." The girl stood there for a couple of seconds before walking in the room then she walked out with her stuff.

"Fuck you." The girl slapped Adora.

"Shut-." Adora mumbled something but I didn't hear the rest. The girl walked out slamming the door making us both flinch.

Adora turned towards me and gave me a sorry expression. "I'm sorry." She kept saying it over and over. "I didn't mean to." She walked over to me and sat next to me. "I really shouldn't have done that. Way to go Adora." She seemed to start talking to herself.

"Uh no it's okay really. It's your apartment, you should do whatever you want." I got up and grabbed a blanket.

"Just so you know there's nothing going on between me and her." I felt something in my stomach. It was different than a stomachache but hurt more than butterflies. "I don't like her like that." She continued to say how she doesn't do that a lot and how she shouldn't do that ever again as long as I'm here but all I could think about was how bad my chest started hurting.

"It's not my business. You don't need to tell me anything. You don't need to explain yourself to me. I mean you could have girls over if you want. You could have one night stands with them for all I care-" she grabbed my hands. I looked up at her. She sighed then let go.

"You're doing it again." I took a deep breath. I usually don't ramble like that but when I do it ends up being too much for me.

"Sorry. I'm sorry." She shook her head. It seemed like she was hesitant to say something but in the end she didn't say anything.

"Is something wrong?" I wanted to run my fingers through her hair but maybe she didn't like that or maybe she would've thought that's weird. I wouldn't want her to think I'm weird. I ended up not doing anything.

"Uh I'm sorry about earlier." She pulled away and looked at me.

"You don't need to apologize for that. It's nothing. Just forget about it." I nodded.

"About you and the girl-"my chest tightened again but I ignored it this time. "I really think you guys would look good together." I looked down. I felt it again, the tightening feeling in my chest.

"You know I don't do relationships." She scooted away from me then sighed. "She was just a hookup so don't stress over it." She started laughing. "I'm still feeling a little bit drunk." She leaned towards me. She looked up at me and smiled. "It's been a long night it seems." She opened then closed her mouth. She shook her head.

"Why do you do that? It's kind of-" I stopped. "Just finish what you're going to say or just leave your mouth closed." She looked at me then looked away.

"Goodnight, and don't forget to go to school tomorrow." She rubbed her eyes and yawned. She kissed my cheek and walked back into her room, closing the door.

I sat there blushing. I put my head in my hands.

Stop doing stuff like that.

7 | Adora

I turned and looked at my alarm.

5:26.

I sighed and rolled to my side.

It's too early to do anything but too late to go back to sleep.

I threw my blanket off of me and got up. I grab the packet of cigarettes on my night stand and got one out. I lit it and walked out to the kitchen.

I looked towards the living room and saw Catra looking out the open window. I turned back around and opened the fridge, grabbing the orange juice. I tried being quiet but when I closed the fridge door I heard Catras small gasp. I turned slightly and saw her jump a little.

"Jesus you scared me." She held her chest. She slowly walked over to me.

"Sorry." I went to the cabinet and grabbed my pill box and a glass.

"I hope you don't mind that I opened the window." I shook my head.

"It's fine. It's actually nice. I do it when I smoke." I widened my eyes. "Oh shit sorry I forgot-" I took the cigarette out of my mouth and was about to burn it out. "I shouldn't smoke in front of you."

"No no it's okay really. Like I said it's your apartment. Do whatever you want." I nodded. I put it out anyways. I can already hear Glimmer yelling at me for smoking near her sister. I turned my attention to my pill box and glass of orange juice. I took out my medicine and put it in a line.

"What are you doing?" I looked up and saw Catra looking confused. I chuckled nervously. I scratched the back of my head and sighed.

"Sorry it's like my brain is programmed to do this." I looked down at them. "Uh I'm lining my pills up." I ran a hand through my hair. I looked at my unfinished cigarette and sighed. "It helps me." Was all I could say when really I could've said it helps me control something other than my other habits.

"What are they for?" I sighed and rested my elbows on the counter.

"Well this one is supposed to help my anxiety. Obviously that one works otherwise I wouldn't do the things I do." She chuckled. "Uh then this one is my antidepressant." I pointed. "I have to take it because the anxiety pill doesn't help my depression which I find weird. This one is for my adhd. I usually take it later on in the day like before I leave to go to work. I kinda need to focus. If I don't take it then I'm like a dog in a dog park." She laughed.

"Do you have to take them?" I shrugged.

"Well I don't have to but I think I need to otherwise you'd never see me for the next two weeks." She nodded her head slowly. She turned away from me.

I took my pills and finished my orange juice.

"Hey why are you up so early?" Catra looked surprised.

"Uh I just couldn't sleep. I had too many things going on in my brain." She chuckled softly. "Why are you up so early? I would assume you'd be asleep till noon." I rubbed my eyes and sighed.

"Yeah. I couldn't sleep either, not after drinking that whole bottle of bourbon. I always hate myself the next morning but then again I hate myself everyday so it's okay." She looked down.

"I'm sorry you feel that way." I shook my head.

"Hey it's okay. Look my pills haven't kicked in yet so I feel weird. Just don't take what I say so literal." She looked up at me with glossy eyes.

"I know but you hate yourself. You take pills to not feel like this. I'm just thinking about how if you didn't take them then you would be a different person. You'd probably be a sad dog at the dog park." I chuckled. I went over to her and wiped the tears off her cheeks.

"Yeah well probably." I stared at her eyes for a second before continuing to wipe her eyes. "I don't like thinking about it so much. If I think about it too much I might end up having an existential crisis." She pushed me slightly. "Wanna release some stress?" I got excited. I tapped my fingers against my leg. I always do that when I'm happy.

"What do you mean?" She said kinda scared. I smirked.

"Let's scream out the window and see who yells at us first." She smiled and nodded.

We walked over to the window then looked at each other. I nodded and gave her a smile. We screamed and let out whatever we wanted. Pain? Anger? Sadness?

"Shut the fuck up! Do you not realize what time it is?!" I laughed. I looked up and saw a grumpy old man.

"Oh shut up!" We pulled our heads back in.

"Wow that actually felt great. It feels like I released all my stress." I sat on the couch and nodded.

"That's why I scream whenever I want to, especially when I go through the tunnel." She sat down next to me. I turned and gave her a smile. I looked down at my lap but saw that she kept extending her fingers in and out. "A stress reliever." I held on to her hand for a couple of seconds before letting go.

"What's the tunnel?" I felt maybe she thought it was weird I held on to her hand. Maybe she didn't want me to. Maybe I was just thinking of myself. All I wanted was to calm her down.

"The greatest thing to exist, at least to me. I'll take you there some time." She smiled and nodded. She seems too preoccupied in her own mind lately.

"Uh I gotta take a shower." She got up but stood there for a little. I tilted my head confused. "I kinda need a towel." I stood up a got her a towel.

"Sorry." She gave me a smile and took it. She went to the bathroom and closed the door.

I sat back down on the couch and sighed.

I feel like an idiot.

"I'll be back later tonight!" I got up from my bed and saw her putting her shoes on.

"Uh Yeah." She gave me a weird smile.

"You good?" I nodded. I chuckled and shook my head.

"Yeah sorry I'm just so used to living by myself. I'm not used to having someone else in my apartment." She nodded her head. She seemed like she was trying to comprehend what I said.

"Well I'll see you later." Then she went to school.

"Hawk, I don't need your input today."

"I'm just saying. You have a beautiful girl living with you right now and you're not gonna do anything?" I rolled my eyes.

"Dude she's like a little sister. That just seems disgusting." In honesty I wouldn't mind if it was someone else but with Catra it's different. It's Catra it's her. I'm not meant to like someone like her.

"Okay but if you didn't think of her as a sister then what? You'd fuck?" I punched his shoulder. He chuckled. "Chill. You hit too hard."

"I don't know. Ask future Adora." He smiled then looked back at his work.

"Oh so you'd fuck."

"Do your damn work." I pushed his head down.

"I think I know what's stopping you." I looked down. I stopped putting pins into the dress.

"What? The age gap?" It's normal for people to think it would be weird. I think it's weird. I think it would be weird if we were to date and our age gap is just the center of attention that everyone will judge.

"Nah it's Glimmer. She told you no didn't she? You know she's been telling you to do stuff since high school." I rolled my eyes. More like my whole life.

I went back to putting pins in the dress.

"It's not like I listen to her. I do whatever I want, I don't play by the rules. If I wanna fuck her then I'd fuck her but I'm just saying I would never. I see her more as a sister than some fuck buddy." I looked up and saw he looked disappointed.

"You and I both know the truth. When are you gonna stop denying it?" I shook my head.

"I don't know what you're talking about." I wish this conversation would end already.

"Bullshit. Do you really want me to rehash some things? Your twenty first birthday? When you got shit faced?" I gave him a death glare.

"Fine. I don't care much about it anymore. It stays in the back of my mind and it'll stay there forever." He shook his head. "I don't think about it anymore. I shouldn't anyways and you shouldn't either." I sighed in frustration.

"I don't know why you think that's a better option. Just let it out dude. If you keep it inside then it'll eventually come out a mess." I smirked.

"Phrase it differently." He smacked my arm playfully.

"Stop. You know I'm just looking out for you. You deserve a lot and the way you're treating yourself isn't great. I really want you to be happy but I don't think you could if you keep your feelings inside." I looked down.

"Thats not your job." I finished pinning the dress then walked away.

I walked in the apartment only to find it empty.

I sat down on the couch and stared up at the ceiling.

He's wrong and his opinion isn't going to change how I think.

I laid down and rolled to my side.

I wouldn't think of her that way. I couldn't. It's wrong and there's too many things wrong with us.

"I'm home." I like things the way they are. "What do you want to have for dinner?" Sometimes. "Are you okay?" Sometimes I think differently about her but not in a bad way. "Are you tired?" I just think about the what if. "You're kidding me right? I thought you were sleeping." She smiled.

"Sorry." I'm so sorry. "I was just thinking." About us.

"Think about dinner. I'm starving and there's not enough time before I inhale everything in site." I wish things were different and

I wish there was no what if.

"You choose." She furrowed her brows.

"Will you eat what I choose or will you eat whatever's in the fridge?" I smiled and nodded.

"Whatever you choose." I don't want these thoughts about the what if and about you.

"Whatever I choose?" She thought about it.

I wish choosing relationships was easier. If I could choose between losing my best friend or losing my roommate for the time being.

"Hmm." She walked away then back to me. I would wanna choose different answers. "This is hard."

I guess I would choose-

"Noodles."

8 | Catra

"I would've slept with her by now." I rolled my eyes. It's been a week now. When is she gonna stop saying this?

"I know you would've but I'm not you." I sat in my usual seat at the library. "I don't wanna be like you."

"I'm just saying-"

"And you've been saying that this past week. Look I know you and I know you would sleep with her if she asked you but I'm not you." She looked at me surprised. She smirked which made me a little scared.

"Okay but if she asked you to sleep with her, would you?" My cheeks flushed pink and suddenly I felt embarrassed.

"No." Jesus Catra make it any more embarrassing for yourself. She raised an eyebrow. "No! No I wouldn't." I played with my fingers.

"Okay okay." She chuckled. "I was just joking.

Yeah like she's been joking the past few days.

"She would kill me if she knew you were here. I mean probably not it's just she doesn't like people coming over." Mermista took off her shoes then went to look around the apartment.

"Why? I mean that sounds so weird because her apartment is really nice." I shrugged.

Probably because she doesn't like people prying in her life even if it is someone she just met.

"Something about people always touching her things so she doesn't usually have anyone over unless it's Glimmer or one night stands."

"I'm home." Shit. I turned around and saw Adora standing there looking confused. "Oh the mermaid." She smiled. I mentally slapped myself.

"Adora!" She realized her mistake.

"Oh shit my bad. Uh it was Mermista right? Sorry sometimes I get them confused." She smiled then turned to me. "I'm just really tired." She took off her backpack and sighed. She left us alone and started doing her own thing but Mermista was watching her. I rolled my eyes and watched as Mermista was enjoying this somehow.

"Ahem So Mermista are you staying for dinner?" What does she mean dinner? She doesn't fucking eat dinner.

"Sure." She smiled and nodded.

"Cool. Uh Catra you could pick a place. I'm gonna go out to the patio and smoke so if you need anything then just ask." She smiled then went out.

"She seemed cool about me being here." I nodded.

"Yeah today was probably a good day or something." I watched as Adora would walk back and forth looking frustrated. She pulled her phone away from her and sat down. I looked back at Mermista and saw her looking down at her phone. "Hey you could pick a place, I gotta go ask Adora something." She nodded then went back to looking at her phone.

I walked out and Adora turned her head towards me. She scooted over then patted the seat next to her.

"What's up?" I sat down and watched as she took a drag of her cigarette.

"Nothing." I wanted to ask about what happened but I couldn't. It probably wasn't my place. "About dinner I thought-"

"That I would skip it?" She scoffed. "I told you I'm trying to get better." She looked down and sighed.

I saw how tired and frustrated she was but I couldn't ask if she was okay. I couldn't without feeling like I'm messing up somehow.

"I hope that's true cause you look like a sack of bones." She playfully pushed me and laughed.

"Fuck you man." She sighed then looked out at the city. "Did you decide on what to eat for dinner?" I shook my head.

"No Mermista was gonna pick." She chuckled and shook her head.

"You left the mermaid in charge of dinner?" I pushed her.

"Stop calling her that."

"I'll stop calling her that the day I sleep with her." She gave me a smug smile.

I knew she was joking but I couldn't help but think about the what if. My chest hurt like that one night the girl was over. It hurt so bad but I ignored it hoping it would go away.

"That's not funny." She chuckled and pushed me with her shoulder.

"Jealous?" I rolled my eyes and got up.

"Come on we gotta go eat." She sat there staring at me for a couple seconds before standing up. She was about to open the door but looked at me with a stupid grin.

"So you are jealous then? I mean the offers on the table so-"

"Shut the fuck up and go inside." I got up and pushed her. She started laughing.

"I'm kidding kid." She opened the door and walked in.

The pain in my chest hurt more than before. I don't know if it's because she joked about us sleeping together or because she called me kid but I really don't wanna be called a kid by her.

"You guys still have Mrs.Berry? Shit I thought she would've been dead by now. When me and Glimmer were in school we used to give her so much shit that she got to a point her gray hairs came out faster than her dye did." Adora laughed.

"When she saw us the first day of class you could practically see the gray hairs just coming out." Mermista laughed. I agreed with her and chuckled.

The pain in my chest stopped hurting but it lingered whenever Mermista and Adora started laughing.

"It was nice seeing you Mermista." Adora hugged her.

And there it goes again.

"I'll text you when I get home." Adora nodded and gave her a smile. Mermista got in her car and drove off.

"You have her number?" She turned to me. She rubbed the back of her neck.

"Yeah she gave me it when you went to the bathroom." We walked in her apartment building and went to the elevator.

"Don't think of doing anything with her." I scolded her. The elevator dinged and then opened.

I meant what I said but she brushed it off as a joke.

"Please I wouldn't dare. She's not my type and she's younger. A no for me." We got in and she pressed the button. She stuffed her hands in her pockets then sighed.

"Yeah I forgot your type isn't younger." How could I forget.

I looked down not wanting to look at her.

After having these weird chest pains that I might have convinced myself was just heart burn, only made me realize that maybe it's more than just heart burn.

"Do you know why?" I wanted to look at her.

"Why what?"

"I don't do younger girls." She paused for a second, "Because I made an exception once I guess." She sounded hurt almost. "I let her in my life and she got to know more about me while I started getting to know more about her. I slept with her on some occasions but it's not like it was serious. I told her that too, that we weren't serious, but she got upset and told a lot of people about us and I almost got arrested." She laughed. I looked up at her and gave her an apologetic smile. "Yeah your mom cleared things up and I had to agree to never see her again. I'm grateful for your mom to this day." She rubbed the back of her neck then sighed.

"When was this?" She looked up at me and thought about it.

"Maybe three years ago, about three years ago, almost four. Why?" I was with my dad three years ago. "You were gone during that time so I didn't expect you to know." I hugged her even though it was a risk considering she doesn't like hugging. "Woah kid. What's the hug for?" Slowly she wrapped her arms around me.

"I feel bad because I wasn't there for you." She got quiet. She patted my back then pulled away.

Why wasn't I there?

"You were 14 dude I didn't expect you to do anything." She gave me a small awkward smile then looked down. "I guess I deserved it after all." She turned away.

"No you don't deserve it at all. I probably couldn't have done anything but I could've stayed here instead of going with my dad. We could've spent time together and you would've never went with that girl and all that stuff would've never happened and we would be okay but instead you have to live with the fact you can't-
"

"Hey calm down. You're doing it again." She looked worried. "Look maybe all that stuff wouldn't have happened if you were here but it's in the past now. I'm okay now so I can move on." She smiled lightly. The elevator doors opened and she walked out. I caught up with her and had this crazy thought. I thought it would be okay but I still hesitated. I wanted to hold her hand but the thought of maybe doing something wrong came back to me.

I reached out and put my hand in hers. She looked up at me confused.

"What are you scared I'll leave or something?" She joked.

"No I just felt like it." She gave me a soft smile and nodded.

She didn't let go of my hand. She didn't even try to let go but she did hold on tighter.

Holding hands with her made me feel safe and made my chest pain hurt less.

"Hey how old was she?" Before she opened the door she turned to me and smirked.

"Same age you are right now." She opened the door and walked in.

"Hey wait a minute she was 18? She was older than me?" I heard her laugh.

9 | Adora

"So you said Catra is coming in a little?" She nodded. I cleared my throat. Being alone in a room with Mermista is awkward. I know she has a crush on me and I know it's kind of a bad one. I don't like her in that way and she knows that at least deep down she should know that.

"She told me to come over here to wait. She said she had something to do today." I nodded. I remember Catra saying that but she didn't say anything about Mermista coming over.

She left early this morning but left me a note saying she would be gone all day.

"Yeah. Well you could do anything you want to, I'll be in my room if you need anything." She nodded then went on her phone.

I decided I would just ignore her till Catra gets back.

I've been laying on my bed for 30 minutes and I'm already bored. I don't have work today and usually on my days off I sleep but I'm worried Mermista will start snooping around even though she doesn't seem like the type to do that I still get worried. All I wanna do is go to sleep but I can't because I'm too wor-

I turned my attention to the door. Mermista knocked on the door.

Did Mermista want something?

I got up and answered anyways.

"What?" I said a little too harsh.

"Can I have a drink?" I raised an eyebrow. I scoffed then chuckled.

"Yeah there's water and juice in the fridge." I was about to close my door but she stopped it with her foot.

"That's not what I meant."

"Yeah well that's what I meant." She looked me in the eyes with intent.

"Fine if I can't have a drink then can I have something else?" I raised an eyebrow confused.

"Like what?" I leaned against my door frame.

"You?" She whispered in my ear. I pushed her back slightly.

"I'm too old for you and frankly I don't go with younger girls." She smirked.

"I'm 18." Shit. I shook my head.

"I still won't do it with you because you're younger. If you were a year or two older then I'd think about it but really-" she pushed me up against the wall and kissed me roughly.

Shit.

"Okay you're done. Leave." She smirked.

Man she's a scary bitch.

She left without saying a word. She just got her stuff then left.

Seems she doesn’t take no for an answer.

"You're so fucked." I glared at Hawk.

"I don't need you saying that to me." I leaned my head on my hand.

"So why did you come and complain to me?" He smiled.

"Because I needed someone to tell and I can't tell Glimmer because she knows her and I can't tell Catra because-"

"You like her?" I glared at him.

"No I don't like Catra, at least in that way I don't." He leaned against his work station. "I just don't want her finding out. I feel like shit will get fucked if she finds out. I honestly don't need her flipping out on me right now." He sighed deeply then sat back in his chair.

"You came to me on your day off to tell me about how her best friend kissed you and how you're worried that she'll find out? And you don't even like her?" I groaned. I put my head down on the desk.

"Hawk I don't like her like that. She's my best friends sister and I could never like her that way." He chuckled.

"Isn't your whole aesthetic a 'fuck it'? The way you act says fuck it along with the way you talk and dress. You just genuinely don't give a fuck and will say it as it is and that's what I like about you. If you like her then fuck it, you know? Fuck whatever Glimmer says, fuck whatever your friends say, fuck whatever anyone says." I laughed.

"That's the most fucks I heard from you." He laughed.

"Now get out. It's your day off and you're spending it here. I'll see you tomorrow." He smiled. I rolled my eyes.

"Yeah yeah."

The whole walk back home was me just thinking. Should I tell her? If I tell her then would she be pissed? And if she was pissed then would she end up hating me? It's like what Hawk said, I have a fuck it vibe but when it comes to serious stuff I can't say fuck it and ignore it. My brain just doesn't work that way.

I walked in and saw the apartment still dark. She's not home?

I went to the cabinet, grabbed the whiskey and a glass. I sat down and sighed.

I guess I'm just fucked.

"I think she's adorable." Hawk looked at me confused.

"Catra?" I nodded. "Do you like her?" I looked up at him wide eyed.

"What?! No! I could never!" I held his shoulders and shook him.

"Chill. Just so you know it's okay to like her." He continued to drink his beer even though he was drunk as it is.

"But then there's Glimmer and then their mom and then my mom." He shrugged.

"So? Just fuck it and be done with it man. Fucking kiss her and confess. It'll be so beautiful like a wedding." He cradled his beer and looked off into the distance.

"I wish it was that easy. She's turning 17, did you know that? In a couple weeks." I rested my head on the table.

"Congrats. A perfect time to confess!" He got excited. I shook my head.

"Fuck no. Plus I never said I liked her." I leaned my head on the couch cushion.

"You don't need to. It's in the way you look at her man and the way you talk about her. You're in love." He whispered. "Hey it's your birthday so why aren't you spending it with Glimmer and her family and your family? And why are you spending it with me?" I shrugged.

"I'd rather spend it with you." He smiled.

"Aww you're so cute. Now back to your crush." I groaned. "All right fine just admit you like her and I'll drop it." He held his hands up then dropped his beer. We both laughed.

"No because then that's admitting it to the world and I really don't think I can commit to that yet." He sighed. "I like her but I can't admit that to myself yet." I mumbled.

"Then it'll be a secret between me and you. I love you like a sister and I want the best for you so whatever you want to do do it at your own pace." I smiled at him and nodded.

"Hey." I felt hands on my arm shaking me. "I think you might wanna sleep on your bed." I opened my eyes and saw Catra.

“What are you doing in my dreams?” I rubbed my eyes.

“What are you talking about?” I opened my eyes and saw Catra staring at me confused. “Come on get up and go to your room.” I sighed and rolled over.

"I don't feel like it. You could take the bed tonight. I'll just sleep on the couch." I rolled back over saw her walking over to me. She squatted down to my level resting her head on her arm.

"Hey I know you're probably drunk but can I ask you something?" She scooted her head closer to mine.

"Trying to ask me something when I'm drunk? Think you can get me to talk?" I chuckled. I saw her smile even though it was really dark. She shook her head.

"Did Mermista come over today? I said she didn't need to since I wasn't gonna be gone all day." That little bitch. She really played me.

"Yeah I guess she didn't get that or something. She stayed for a while then went home." I guess it's better not to tell her.

"Did anything happen?" I shook my head.

"Laid in my bed. After she left I went to talk to my friend about something. Nothing exciting." I smiled slightly trying to reassure her.

"That's not what I meant." I shook my head. I turned my head to the other side. I didn't want to look her in the eyes.

"No man I didn't sleep with her if that's what you're asking. You know I don't sleep with younger girls." She turned my head to make me look at her. My eyes widened a little. "Dude a little to close for comfort." I chuckled awkwardly.

She didn't say anything. I shifted my gaze to her lips then back at her eyes.

Was that it? Did she believe me?

"What did you do today?" She smiled.

"You sobered up fast." I pushed her shoulder lightly. I opened my arms.

"Lay down. I'm getting tired and I don't know how much longer I'm gonna stay awake." She stayed where she was though just staring at me. "So what did you do today?"

"Went to go see my sister and helped her move some boxes out of her room. Went out to eat with them." I chuckled.

"Was it lonely being the third wheel?" She brought her hand up to my face. She gave me a sad look but covered it up with a smile.

"They make being single a joke." I laughed.

She ran her fingers across my cheek like she was petting me.

"Their wedding is coming up soon. You have a date?" She shook her head.

"I think the person I want to go with doesn't want to go with me." I gave her a small smile.

"You never know. Maybe they would be glad to go with you if you asked." She avoided my eyes. She laid her head back down and sighed.

She opened then closed her mouth.

She keeps doing that. It is a little frustrating.

"Maybe I'll ask them soon. Nows not the right time." I wanted to comfort her but I couldn't. I didn't make a move to. It just felt like my body was frozen. I didn’t really know how to anyway.

"I'll be here if they reject you." She started playing with my hair. She stopped then looked at me intently.

"Thanks A." I reached my hand up to her cheek.

"Anything for you Catra." I'm really gonna miss having someone here when she leaves.

I shouldn't get too attached but I can't really help it.

"Get some sleep." She stared at me for a couple seconds before turning away.

"I'll take that offer and-" I pulled her close to me and kissed her cheek. She didn't move making me think I did something wrong.

"Goodnight." She patted my head then got up.

"Goodnight."

10 | Catra

Today is my last day staying here. Over the past couple of days Adora has been acting weird but I try not to pay attention to it. I feel if I pay attention to whatever's happening with her she'd run away again in her own mind.

"Jeez it's gonna be weird now that you're not living here anymore." I turned to look at her.

"Did you like having the company?" She scratched the back of her neck and sighed.

"Only if it's you." Only if it's me?

She put her cigarette out then crossed her arms. I looked away feeling embarrassed.

"What's that supposed to mean?" She smiled.

She didn't say anything for a while until she said,

"It just means I liked your company." Part of me didn't believe what she said and the other part of me tried to believe her in the end.

"I liked your company too." I didn't want to pry but I couldn't help but wonder.

After that I had to leave. We walked to the elevator in silence. It had the same awkward energy as when I first came here.

We got in and she pressed the button. We both weren't talking and it felt awkward. I reached out wanting to hold her hand but something felt off with her. The pain in my chest came back but I chose to ignore it and hold her hand anyway. She looked down at our hands but didn't say anything.

"I'm sorry." She continued to look down. I raised an eyebrow confused.

"For what? You didn't do anything." She looked up at me with a sad expression.

She opened and closed her mouth before scoffing.

"I just felt like I needed to say I'm sorry. I don't know what for but I feel like I needed to say it just in case." She looked down sadly.

What's that supposed to mean?

I wanted to say something but I thought that if I did it would just make things worse.

She pulled her hand away from mine and crossed her arms over her chest. She gave me a sad expression but covered it up with a smile.

I retracted my arm feeling embarrassed.

"I'll see you Tuesday." She smiled. I nodded.

She closed my door and watched me drive away.

"What do you mean she's not coming?" I looked at Glimmer confused.

"She said she was busy but she'll come this weekend." I hoped what Glimmer said was true.

But she never came that weekend.

I waited hoping that maybe she would change her mind and come over but it was the same each week.

"Hey honey I wanted to check up on you and see if you were gonna go see your dad this weekend." I looked up from my phone and saw my mom leaning on my door frame.

"Uh I don't think I want to this weekend." She sighed. She walked over to me and sat on the edge of my bed.

"If this is about Adora then why don't you go see her? I'm sure she would be happy to see you." I shook my head.

I didn't believe her. Maybe she was avoiding me specifically and I was in the way of Adora seeing Glimmer and my mom. Maybe I did something wrong.

I put my phone down and gave her my full attention.

"I tried texting her but she kept on saying she was busy or now wasn't the right time." I looked down at my phone hoping for at least something but every time I did that I would get my hopes up for nothing.

"It's been a while since we've seen her. How long has it been? Almost two months." Has it really been that long? "Glimmer went to go check on her the other day but she just said she was in one of those moods where she doesn't feel like doing anything. I feel bad. I want to give her something but I know she feels bad when I do that." I looked up at my mom and saw she had a sad smile.

"What if she comes this weekend while I'm at dads?" She looked towards me and shrugged.

I didn't want to miss seeing her.

"I don't think she would be coming any time soon. If she does end up coming then I'll text you and you could come right down." I laid down and turned away from my mom.

"I'll go see dad." I didn't want to get my hopes up again. I needed space.

"Oh my goodness! It's so good to see you! I haven't seen you in a year. You're already driving now." I chuckled.

"Come on dad I'm tired and I wanna lay down." He gave me a hug.

"Let the poor girl rest honey." We both looked towards the door and saw his husband.

"Hey. How've you been?" I went up to his husband and hugged him.

"Same. How about you kid?" I sighed deeply.

"I've been better."

"Come on. Let's head inside and talk." My dad ushered us in.

"How's school?" I shrugged.

"Same. Boring classes, boring people, boring things, the usual." They both smiled at me. "Oh yeah I heard you guys got married. I'm sorry I didn't come, mom wanted me to stay over there because we had a lot of stuff to do but I really wanted to go." His husband waved his hand at me.

"Don't apologize! It's sad you couldn't come but we appreciate the thought." He smiled at me.

I checked my phone to see if my mom texted but nothing.

"It's a long drive, isn't it?" I looked up at my dad.

"Yeah almost two hours." I tapped my fingers against my leg.

I stared at my phone again. I still had that hope and I knew it was stupid and foolish yet I still had hoped. Sometimes I feel so stupid having this hope.

"You've been checking your phone since you got here. Waiting for a text?" I looked up from my phone.

"Sorry. No it's nothing." I went back to eating my food.

"Is it someone special to you?" I stopped eating and looked up at the guy.

"It's no one special." I really didn't wanna think about it. "There's this girl I haven't heard from in a while and I just wanna know if she's okay. I mean we were doing fine and hanging out and talking fine but then I left and I don't really know what happened." I looked down at my food confused.

'Did I do something wrong' is something I keep asking myself but I always come up with nothing I could've done wrong.

"Is it Adora?" I looked up at dad.

"Maybe."I stared back at my food. "How did you know."

"Glimmer." Damn her. "Do you like Adora?" My eyes widened.

"What?! Yeah as a sister! Or I guess as a friend. We hung out for two weeks so it's only normal for two people to grow closer as friends." They both looked at each other confused then looked back at me.

"It's okay to have a little crush." I sighed.

But it's not especially if it's your sisters best friend.

"I don't have a cr-"

"What do you call that sad expression you've had since you got here? Why do you keep checking your phone? When I talked to Glimmer she says how happy you are to see her and how you always wait for her to go over." I shook my head.

"It doesn't feel okay to like someone like her." I mumbled.

My phone vibrated and I quickly pulled it up.

Mom:I'm sorry honey.... she didn't come tonight :(

I sighed then put my phone away.

"It's okay to be worried about her. It's okay to have a small crush. Stop worrying about others when it comes to your feelings." He smiled at me.

I wanted to trust him but at the same time it's hard to.

"Yeah." I looked away sadly with a smile.

"I was so lonely without you!" I pushed Mermista off of me.

"I was gone for the weekend not a year." I closed my locker then started walking away.

"It felt like forever." We walked to the library and sat at our usual seats or I guess just my regular seat.

"So how's Adora?" I shrugged.

"I haven't talked to her in about two months. How should I know?" She shrugged.

"You guys are close." She smiled.

"Hey that day that I told you I wasn't gonna be home all day, why did you go to Adoras?" She smiled.

"I thought you would be there later." She picked up a book and started skimming through it which she never does.

"But I told you I wasn't gonna be there so why did you go in the first place?" I furrowed my brows. She put the book down and gave me a look.

"To see Adora, okay?" She shrugged. I shook my head.

"Why would you wanna see Adora?" She raised an eyebrow at me.

"Do you really need at explanation for that?" She smirked.

What the hell is she going on about?

"Why are you beating around the bush?" She sighed and leaned forward.

"Sometimes adults like to do this thing with their bodies when they're hor-" I slapped her. My eyes widened at what I just did.

I wanted her to stop talking but I didn't mean to do this.

"I'm so sorry." I tried putting my hands on her face to see if she was okay but she slapped my hands away.

She shook her head. She looked up at me and gave me a pained smile.

"I have to go." She got up and grabbed her bag. "And yes we did have sex." She said with a nasty tone before she left.

The pain in my chest hurt so bad I couldn't breathe at this point. I clutched my chest hoping the pain would leave but it didn't just like when I hoped Adora would come over and she didn't.

"Catra? Are you okay?" I looked up slightly to see Entrapta. I nodded and breathed out shakily.

"It just hurts." I felt the tears well in my eyes but I didn't wanna cry.

Why does it feel like I fucked up?

"Uhh it's okay." She tried helping. "Let's just try and breathe and calm down."

I'm so mad yet so worried at Adora.

"What's wrong? I can try to help." I shook my head.

I think I like her.

"Adora?"

"I like someone." She furrowed her brows. "I like her but I can't. I'm not supposed to."

I'm too scared to say it to Adora.

"I think I fucked things up." I chuckled nervously.

She shook her head."

"It'll be okay." I heard her say. "It'll be okay I promise."

11 | Adora

I got to my apartment and threw my keys on the island. I went to the cabinet and pulled out the bottle of whiskey and a glass. I sat down on the stool and poured myself a glass.

I stared down at it for a while. I wanted to drink it but at the same time there's no real reason for me to be drinking.

I grabbed the glass and downed it. I made a face then poured myself another one. My phone started ringing, making me groan. I answered without looking at who was calling.

"What?" I asked in a bored tone. I downed that one then poured another.

I kind of regretted not looking at who was calling but it was too late.

"Hey where are you?" Catra. I put my head down on the table and sighed.

Why is she calling me for the millionth time?

"Home. Why?" She was silent for a while before sighing.

"I have to talk to you." I sighed and looked over at the microwave time.

9:54

Why so late?

"Now is not a good time." I looked at my calendar.

Monday

A school night? Really?

"I don't care. Buzz me up." She's already here?

"Can't you just tell me whatever you want to over the phone?" She sighed.

"No because I want to say it face to face." I rubbed my hand over my face. She's really making this harder for me.

"Tell me tomorrow. Go home." I rubbed my eyes already feeling tired.

"Wait-" I hung up and put my head down.

I'm so tired of everything. Why can't Catra just leave me alone already. I thought she would've gotten the hint a month or so ago when that happened.

The next thing I hear is someone knocking on my door. I thought they would just go away but they didn't stop.

"Okay shut up." I got up and slowly made my way over to the door. I rubbed my eyes then opened the door.

"We need to talk." Catra? She made her way into my apartment without even asking.

"Hey what the fuck? I told you to go home. You could talk to me tomorrow." I closed the door and went to meet her in the kitchen.

"Have you been drinking?" She turned to look at me. I chuckled then rubbed my face and sighed.

"No you know I just left the bottle there."

"Stop with the sarcasm." Jesus why is she so mad?

"What's gotten your panties in a twist?" She sat down on the stool and looked at me seriously.

"You lied to me." I looked at her confused.

"What do you mean 'I lied to you'?" She threw her arms up in the air exaggerating. She opened and closed her mouth as if she was trying to find the right words but her anger was clouding her speech.

"Oh my god! You said you didn't sleep with Mermista! I found out from her that you did?! I'm not even mad at her, I'm mad at you for not telling me!" I looked at her shocked.

You're kidding me right? That fucking bitch lied about what happened.

I wanted to defend myself but I also wanted her to leave as soon as possible. I wanted her to somehow forget me then things would be easier.

"I just didn't want you to freak out like you are right now." Lying probably wasn't the best move but it's the only one I got. "Are you done?" She looked at me with disbelief. She kept holding on to her chest. I grabbed the whiskey and glass then poured another drink. I downed it then turned my attention to Catra.

"You-" she looked down. I raised an eyebrow confused. "You're-" I really did feel bad but I couldn't have her around if my feelings won't go away with her here.

"Look just go home and we'll-" I tried putting my hand on her shoulder but she slapped my hand away.

"No! Why-" She spoke quietly. "I wanna know why." Her voice cracked.

Lying to her really wasn't the best move huh. I want to hug her and tell her I'm sorry but I stayed glued where I was.

"Wanna know what?" She gave me a pained expression.

"Why did you sleep with her?" She sounded hurt. She spoke with such a hoarse voice. I didn't wanna hurt her.

I knew what came out of my mouth next is something I shouldn't have said but I did and I felt so bad.

"That's who I am. I don't care if you don't like it. It's my life I'll do whatever I want and I like not knowing what comes next so I think you should just le-" She grabbed my shirt and pushed me up against the wall. I hit my head and winced.

"Are you fucking kidding me?" Why am I like this.

I scoffed.

"I didn't do shit to you! Let me go!" I tried pushing her away but she pushed me up more, gripping harder on my shirt.

"For two months you ignored me!" She was really angry this time. "I tried texting you, but no all you had to say was 'I'm busy'?" She looked at me with a hurt expression. "I'm so mad at you for no reason. I can't get you out of my head and when I try I just start remembering you again." She's the same as me?

She looked up at me. It kinda scared me but at the same time it didn't and it made me feel things that I didn't want to feel.

"Then what are you gonna do about it?" I said taunting her. "I fucked your best friend and all you can do is get mad at me?" Her face got closer to mine.

"I hate you." I nodded slightly.

"I can understand that." She gripped tighter. "If you're gonna hit me then hit me." But she held her stance.

"I can't stand you. You piss me off sometimes but I really don't wanna leave you alone." She looked up at me. She had tears in her eyes and it pained me to look at her. "You like the thrill of things right? You like not knowing what happens after you do something you know others would never do." She was giving me that look again. She gripped tighter. I closed my eyes thinking she was gonna hit me but instead she kissed me.

I tried pushing her off but she stayed where she was.

When did she get this strong?

She let go of my shirt and put her hands on my cheeks. Her hands were really cold compared to my warm face.

It's wrong, right? She's 18 and I'm 22, it's not right. She's my best friends little sister I can't.

"Stop we can't." I said when she backed away.

"Don't you wanna see what happens?" I was blank. I didn't know what to say. I didn't know what to do. She leaned down and whispered in my ear, "Just don't say anything." I tried so hard to forget about my feelings for her but she makes it seem so hard. She looked at me with that same look. Lust? Anger?

She kissed me again. I just stood there in shock.

"Kiss back." She mumbled against my lips. "It's okay you can kiss me." I felt very conflicted but I closed my eyes and kissed back.

She pulled me closer to her body but we had already closed the gap.

She picked me up and carried me to my room.

"It's okay." She kept saying as if she was telling me all of this was okay to do. Part of me knew it was really wrong but I did really wanna listen to her and think it's okay even just in this moment.

Even as she was reassuring me I felt every place she touched tingle in a weird way.

"Look just do this one thing for me please. I know you and my sister aren't on good terms but just take her to school for me. You don't even have work." I pulled my covers up more. Man it really is getting colder.

"Why can't your mom or your moms neighbor take her?" I groaned.

I'm trying to forget about my feelings for her. She didn't even do anything wrong and I feel bad.

"My mom is at work already and my neighbor went to the doctors. So that leaves you. Please babe. Just do this one thing for me." I groaned.

I didn't want to but there was no real reason I could give Glimmer. "You owe me." I hung up and stayed in bed a little longer.

I didn't wanna get up but I knew I had to.

I got up, changed, grabbed my keys, and headed to her house.

"So you're gonna take me to school?" I gave her a sarcastic smile.

"Yeah well I kinda have to." I put my head back, waiting for her to get in.

"Well sorry my car is getting fixed."

"Well maybe you should pay more attention." I spat out. "Im sorry." Maybe being mad at her will make her leave me alone or give us some distance.

I stayed there thinking about what I could do to make the situation better.

"Are we going or are you gonna stay in front of my house all day." She said in an upset tone. I started driving her to school.

"How've you been? Have you been eating since I left?" I scoffed.

"Wouldn't you like to know." She crossed her arms.

"Well Fine I don't wanna hear about it." I lightly pushed her shoulder.

"Chill. I'll tell you." She turned to me. "I'm doing fine. I'm eating and I'm genuinely trying to get better."

"But you look skinnier since the last time I saw you." I lightly coughed.

"You never truly get better till you have some setbacks." I thought recently that I didn't feel the need to eat or I don't deserve to with the way I've been thinking.

"Okay but we're talking about you living. Your life. You're just gonna brush it off as something that doesn't matter?" She raised her voice.

Does it really matter though?

"Of course is matters but I'm just saying that obviously I have days where I don't eat but it doesn't mean I got back to where I used to be." She scoffed and threw her arms up in the air exaggerating.

"I can't believe you! Why can't you just get fucking better?!" She yelled. I stopped the car in front of her school.

I wanted to but something in me says otherwise.

"We're here. Get the fuck out." She looked at me shocked. "God are you fucking deaf? I said get the fuck out of my car!" She grabbed her bag angrily.

I didn't mean to but I just snapped.

"You know what? I'm just gonna think you're acting like this because you didn't eat and not because you actually are mad at me, but right now I'm really mad so fuck you." She got out and before she closed the door I screamed out 'fuck you too' then as soon as she closed the door I took off. I watched her in the side mirror as I drove off.

She was crying.

I made things worse yet I hoped it worked to make her leave me alone.

12 | Catra

"She doesn't need to have dinner with us!"

"Well she's going to! God why do you even have a problem with it?!" I stared at Glimmer for a while but I couldn't come up with a reason.

"Just some things happened." I mumbled.

"Did something happen between you two when she dropped you off at school yesterday?" I shook my head.

"No it's just that she has her own family that she could have dinner with so why is she having dinner with us?" I really didn't wanna see her not after what she said yesterday.

"She's part of our family and mom wants her here. Why is it suddenly a problem? You never used to act like this before." I sighed. I looked down avoiding eye contact.

"I don't know." I couldn't tell her the truth. If I told her then she'd probably hate me or stop talking to me.

"Cut the bullshit. Tell me Catra now!"

"Leave me alone." I laid on my bed turned away from her. She didn't say anything. She sighed then sat down next to me.

"I just wanna help. Whatever's going on between you guys needs to stop. You're mad at her and she's probably mad at you but you'll both get over it like you always do." Yeah sure like we always do. I turned to look at Glimmer. She looked down. She opened then closed her mouth hesitating on her words.

"What?" She looked up at me and smiled. It didn't seem genuine but I shrugged it off.

"Nothing. I just thought of something ridiculous but it's not important." She looked away from me.

It felt like she's been hiding something from me but I can't pry seeing as though I'm also hiding stuff from her. It'd be contradictory.

"Adora didn't come today is all." I looked at Glimmer confused.

That's not what she wanted to say though.

"She said she was busy with stuff." She looked towards me and smiled. "Maybe next time."

After dinner me and Glimmer did the dishes while my mom sat on the couch watching tv.

"Did something bad happen? She never misses dinner." I shrugged.

"How should I know? She's your friend." Glimmer sighed. She looked at me for a couple of seconds before looking back at the dirty water.

"If somethings wrong I can help you know? I could try my best even though it has nothing to do with me." But I didn't wanna worry her.

"Nothings wrong." She didn't seem to believe me though. She dropped it anyways.

Adora:look I'm busy right now so I don't think I'll be able to talk to you for a while.

Me:I need to talk to you.

Adora:Not now.

I sighed then laid back on my bed.

This is so frustrating. I'm not mad at her if she thinks I am.

I want to see her but I don't think that's the best idea right now.

"The anniversary is coming up. What do you want to do?" I turned over to see Glimmer leaning on the door frame. I looked away not wanting to really see her either.

"I'm not up for it this year." I heard her footsteps get closer then stop.

"You gotta do something. It's supposed to be a special day." I would rather spend it doing something else.

"We do this every year and every year I hate it."

"Well when you were little you didn't hate it. What's wrong?" I couldn't tell her even though I should tell someone I just can't.

"Nothing." Was easier than saying something but I know it'll come back and bite me in the ass.

"Have you talked to Adora?" I glanced at her for a couple of seconds then turned back.

"Yeah." She didn't say anything. She continued not say anything else but a 'yeah' in return which annoyed me. "Did she say anything?" I faced her. She held this worried expression. She scratched the back of her neck and sighed.

"Not much. If she even said anything at all I couldn't hear. She was half drunk and mumbling her words." She looked away from me. "It's nothing to worry about." After that she sighed. I know there was something else she wanted to say but I thought she would get upset if I asked.

"Did she say anything else?" She looked away from me and chuckled with a hint of annoyance.

"What else would she say?" She said a little annoyed.

"Us? Whatever's going on with her?"

"Whatever's going on with her is her business so just drop it!" She turned and gave me a glare. "She just needs her space." She got up and stormed out slamming my door on the way out.

What the hell is wrong with her?

Well at least I know now she's actually hiding something.

I did something stupid.

I stared at the door.

I thought it would be better if I went to Adoras apartment and talk to her face to face to settle this and to settle my curiosity but now that I'm here I'm more anxious than confident in what I wanna say.

I knocked on the door and waited. I waited for a couple more minutes but she didn't open the door.

I know she's in there but she's not opening the door.

"Come on Adora you have to come out eventually." She still didn't open the door. "Please just talk to me. Talk to someone." I heard rustling on the other side then the door clicked and opened.

Adora looked up at me with an annoyed and angry look. She looked sick. She had bags under her eyes and the way she was looking at me just wasn't her usual self. She looked skinnier but I didn't want to say anything about that.

"Adora I-" She looked down and shook her head.

"Don't you know when to take a hint? I ignored you and I've told you many times I'm busy but still you don't listen." She scoffed. She leaned her arm against the door then looked up at me with an annoyed expression. "Your persistence isn't gonna get you anywhere. Just leave me alone already." She sounded so monotone. She didn't sound like herself, it was like she was someone else.

"I just want to talk. Can't we talk?"

"No." She said with such a harsh tone it actually hurt me. "Just leave. I'll talk to you when I want to talk to you but for now just leave me alone and don't come back." She was about to close the door but I put my foot out and stopped it. She looked down then back up staring into my eyes. "Just take the fucking hint."

"What the hell is wrong with you?! We were fine just a week ago but now you're treating me like shit. This isn't you and you know that! Did I do something? I can fix what I did." She stayed staring at me as if that would make me leave sooner. She kept playing with the inside of her mouth.

"I have my reasons. I just need space so can you at least do that?" I was getting so angry. I wanted to yell or punch something but I felt like it wouldn't justify how I felt.

"If I did something then tell me!" She sighed and looked at the ground.

"Just leave me alone." I pushed her door open and grabbed her shirt pulling her towards me. She looked down.

"Stop saying that! I don't want to leave you alone don't you see that?! I want to help but I can't do that if you push all of us away!" I shouted at her. I still felt angry but I didn't know how to stop this feeling. She looked up at me with tears streaming down her face. My chest started hurting when I realized what I did.

"I'm so sorry." My face softened. I let go of her and she fell to the ground. "I'm so sorry." She sobbed. I shook my head. "Catra I didn't mean to." She looked up at me as if she was pleading for her life. "Please-" she mumbled something else but my head was too cloudy to think rationally.

I didn't mean to. This isn't what I wanted.

"No I'm sorry." I walked out and went to my car.

I sat in my car for a couple minutes replaying what just happened.

"I didn't mean to make her cry." I gripped my steering wheel. "Idiot." I slammed my forehead on the wheel.

I wasn't angry anymore, I'm just upset with myself now.

Once I got home I went to my room.

"Where did you go?" Glimmer.

I didn't really feel like talking to her right now, actually I don't wanna talk to anyone.

"Adoras." She didn't say anything but I knew she was angry.

"Why would you do that? I told you she needed her space." She sounded upset but she masked it with calmness. I guess she was trying not to upset me but it didn't really matter at this point.

"I just wanted to talk but I think I made it worse." I sat up and looked at her. "I understand what you mean when you said she needed space." She gave me a soft look. She came over and sat on my bed.

"She'll be okay. Just don't go over until she is okay." She softly smiled at me.

I just wanted to help but I ended up making things worse.

"I messed up." She hugged me lightly.

"No she's just-"

"Stop!" I pushed her away. "I messed up let me own up to my actions. Don't say I didn't do anything wrong or don't say it's cause of Adora cause it's not her fault." She didn't say anything. She gave me a look I didn't really know of yet it felt familiar. "I messed up Glimmer."

I stood up and walked to my door.

I just wanted to be alone.

"I need space to think." Just listen to me.

She got up slowly and walked over to me.

She wanted to say something but I guess she decided not to say whatever she was going to say.

"Okay."

13 | Catra

What the hell happened?

I sat up and groaned. I rubbed my head and squinted at the little light that shone through the curtains.

I looked around and saw Adora laying next to me then looked down at my lap. I lifted up the blanket and saw I was naked.

Shit shit shit.

This really happened? I remember having a dream that I was at home last night and then I came here wanting to talk again to Adora but I thought it was just a dream.

I quietly got out of the bed and grabbed my clothes. I hurriedly put them on then walked out her room.

"Good you're up. Can I scold you now?" I looked up and saw Glimmer sitting on the couch.

"What are you doing here?" I looked around nervously avoiding her stare.

"Adora called me last night and said you came over. What the hell were you thinking?" She stood up and glared at me. "You know what don't answer that. We're going home and we're not gonna-"

"I was helping her." I looked her in the eyes and she looked at me confused.

"What?" She said.

"I said-"

"I know what you said!" She sounded upset a little. "Helping with what?" With what?

I looked away for a moment thinking but my mind wandered to last night.

"You know." She waited and shook her head.

"I don't Catra." I sighed and tried spitting out words but came up with nothing.

"Shut up for crying out loud. You two are fucking up my sleep schedule so be quiet or leave." I turned around to see Adora leaning on her door frame. Adora looked at me before going back in the room.

"What's going on?" I looked at Glimmer confused. "Helping with what?" I knew I had to come up with something but I came up with a lie.

"She called me last night." She stood there shocked for a second. "Yeah she said she needed someone to talk to and I was the only one there." At this point I was bullshitting my way through this whole conversation hoping she believes me.

"Okay." Was all she said. She sat down and sighed. "Doesn't excuse you walking out last night without saying anything. I'm glad she's walking around and not looking as sluggish." She gathered her things and started to walk out the door.

"Can you do me a favor little sister?" She stopped and turned. She opened and closed her mouth. "Don't do anything stupid." Then she walked out.

Don't do anything stupid?

I turned to look at Adoras door.

Too late for that.

"Is she gone?" I turned around and saw Adora standing there in just a big oversized shirt.

"Uh" I walked into the kitchen avoiding looking at her. "Yeah."

"You're being weird." I shook my head.

"No." I opened the fridge trying to avoid her.

"Is it about last night?" I closed the fridge door and turned around.

Last night? I didn't really wanna talk about last night and judging by the look she was giving me she didn't want to talk about it either.

"I don't know what you're talking about." I turned back to the fridge grabbing juice then a cup.

"Are you gonna be weird about this?" Was I going to be? I'm not even sure myself but I didn't really wanna confront what happened last night.

"I don't kn-"

"Yes you are. Of course you would be weird about something like this." She sighed. "Can we talk about what happened last-" apparently she did wanna talk about what happened last night or maybe she felt bad so she decided to say something.

"Just forget about it!" It was a silly mistake why is she going on about this?

"Look I'm the adult here-"

"So am I." She sighed then looked up at me.

"I was drunk and you sounded pretty upset. I'm taking responsibility by talking it out with you." I didn't wanna make it such a big deal.

"Talk about it? What's there to talk about? We had sex just forget about it." She looked down.

She's pissing me off. She shouldn't piss me off considering she hasn't done anything but I didn't wanna treat this as some hook up, but I knew she would so maybe that’s what’s making me upset.

"Fuck off." She muttered.

"Excuse me?" I scoffed.

"I said fuck off." She scoffed then shook her head.

"You're mad now because I said to forget about it?" Her eyes widened. "I'm sorry that our first time was when you were drunk and I was upset." Her brows were furrowed in anger. She was waiting for me to say something else bad. It showed all over her face.

"You're acting like a kid." She got up and walked over to me. "Just let me-"

"No!" I raised my voice.

"What the hell is wrong with you?" Why am I getting so upset with her. It's not like any of this is her fault and after all she is trying to help me. "You were fine last night so why are you getting upset now?" I don't know.

"I wasn't fine I was upset and you messed it up. I was upset and you were like a quick rebound." She scoffed. She stared at me for a couple seconds like she was waiting for something anything at this point but then she turned away.

"I know you Catra. I know you don't mean that."

"You don't know shit! You don't know me. You don't know who I really am." She turned away from me.

"I do know you. I grew up with you. I know things about you-"

"You know me?! You know me. Tell me what you know about me? What? Are you gonna say you know my favorite candy? Are you gonna say you know when I'm lying? Were you going to tell me the things you think you know or the ones I let you know? Huh?" She looked like she was about to cry. My eyes widened in realization. She shook her head then looked down.

"You don't mean that." She mumbled quietly.

"What if I'm just a really good lier when it comes to certain things? I'm good at hiding things from you and from my sister. You don't know shit." I don't think I meant any of that but last night was coming back to me and the reason why I came to talk to her.

"You're a great person and someone really great gets to see that someday but that person won't be me considering I don't know shit about you." She turned to me. "We don't really fit if you think about it. If I wasn't friends with your sister I wouldn't think twice about you." Her voice croaked.

"If you really think that then you really don't know me at all." She furrowed her brows. "Did it ever occur to you that the way you see me is different than who I actually am? You don't know who I am when I'm not around you."

"Then who are you when you're around me?" She looked up at me. "What are you some super bad kid that does drugs? Do you drink and sneak out like I used to?" She started walking towards me. "Do you break the laws sometimes for the hell of it? If so I guess we do fit after all."

"I'm your friend." She shook her head. "And if I did do that? You would hate it." I scoffed. "You don't want someone like you, you want someone who will help you Adora." She looked down at her hands.

"That's not what I wanted to hear." Her voice cracked. "You're my friend? You think I want some knight in shining armor to come save me? That's some bullshit. A savior?" Her eyes widened. She looked away. "I can save myself."

"What if the knight in shining armor could be me?" She didn't say anything. "How do you feel when I'm around trying to help?"

"Upset. Sad. Disappointed." I shook my head.

"You're lying." She looked at me.

"Im not! That's how I-" I wrapped my arms around her.

"That's not how you feel. Just tell me the truth." She tried pushing me away.

"Stop it Catra! I'm telling the truth." She sighed and gave up. "I don't like it."

"You do though don't you? You like being saved you like the help cause it gives you hope."

"I don't wanna talk anymore Catra!" She gripped my arms. "If I did have hope what then? Hope only gets you so far. I let you do it with me last night cause I didn't care anymore." She sounded tired. "I wanted to talk about what happened last night but I guess you're right there's nothing to talk about." She gripped tighter on my arm. "You get upset very easily when things don't go your way. You care too much and too little to the point it's kind of annoying. You stick close to the ones you love even when you're mad at them because you wish for the best outcome. I know you Catra, I'm not an idiot." She started sobbing. "I hate you so much." She held onto my arms as she cried. "I wish you didn't help me as much as you did because I don't want the help."

"But you know you need it." She stopped crying and for a second it was silent besides the sniffles she would do every once in a while.

"Why can't you just leave me alone?"

14 | Adora

Chapter Notes

> Ahhhh I didn’t know how to end it but I knew I wanted to leave the ending up in the air so it would be a guessing game I suppose but I tried my best and thank you for reading ~ ☆

Getting lost in your own mind is scary sometimes because you can go too far and possibly not come back. I've went too far way to many times but I couldn't really help it, going back to old habits and hoping people would leave it be until I move on and go back like a never ending cycle.

They never did leave me alone though except for her. She didn't say anything and she didn't force me to do things I didn't want to do. We never talked about our feelings or what horrible things were going on in our lives because that wasn't who we were. We enjoyed the now and left the problems for later and that's what I liked about her.

She'd watch me self destruct and do nothing. She'd watch me drink a whole bottle of whiskey not even batting an eye that was until I'd throw it all up. She stayed next to me while I cried over nothing yet everything at the same time but she wouldn't say anything cause she didn't wanna ruin whatever I was going through even though I secretly wish she had said something. She'd ignore my eating habits and how I felt when I was doing bad cause maybe she thought it would help me get better somehow but I had wished so bad she would stop me or help in some way but I knew it wasn't her job.

She's a fucking kid what am I supposed to say? I could never ask her for a little help because maybe she thought I'd put too much on her. She had her own thoughts and maybe part of me knew relying on someone like her was more of a bad habit than starving or hurting myself in some way.

"You can tell me things."

I remember when I told her something bad was happening in my head and that I had to go away for a little she didn't say anything or do anything. She was frozen and stuck like I had said a disgusting word.

"I can help you."

After that I didn't want the help. I didn't want a reaction from her or maybe I didn't want the same reaction from before.

"I think it's hard relying on someone so deeply. Codependency isn't good for both people if both or the other is going through some things." Hawk looked up at me stopping his sewing. "I'm not saying it's good to not say anything but rather you shouldn't say those things to the one you love or are not a therapist otherwise they think you'd want their help." He furrowed his eyebrows looking at me softly. "It's not good."

"She said I could rely on her. What am I supposed to say to that?" I threw my arms up. "The last time I tried to she shut down."

Sometimes words are stupid.

"She watched me self destruct and didn't do anything until it got too far." Then she got worried more so than she used to.

"Space is what people need sometimes." I shook my head.

"Not Catra." She needs something to keep her moving; to keep her brain moving so she doesn't shut down. "She's not like that." After what I said he didn't say anything else and continued sewing.

The office was empty today besides Hawk and another worker. I didn't have work today and was bored so I visited Hawk on his day off.

"Did you confess?" Confess?

"There's nothing to confess." Even though there was something to say.

"To Catra? Maybe a 'I like you' or something." I shook my head.

"She's mad at me right now." He stopped for a second. He gave me a small glare before going back to his work. "I just said something I shouldn't have and she said something she shouldn't have and I guess it's both of our faults." More mine though.

"The truth is?" I shook my head.

The truth is she found out how bad I really treated myself and doesn't wanna see me self destruct anymore.

"That is the truth." But he just shot me a look as if he didn't believe the stuff that came out of my mouth.

Two months ago I think she gave up on me in her own way. She stopped texting me and stopped coming by and in return I stopped going over to their house because part of me maybe believed she 'needed space' mostly from me.

"You don't take care of yourself and I tried to help I really did but you don't even try."

Glimmer checks up on me often but doesn't mention Catra and I think that's my fault.

"Why weren't we good enough for you to get better?"

She gave up and I know why.

I couldn't get better for myself so what made her think I can get better for others? Like it makes things easier?

"Adora? I didn't expect you to come today." Glimmers mom answered the door. "Glimmer isn't here right now but-"

"I'm not here for Glimmer." Maybe I should've stayed home. "I came to see Catra." I should've really just stayed home.

"I can't stay anymore if you're going to keep doing this."

Glimmers mom walked out after I came in. I stayed standing at the front door still.

Maybe I can still go home. It's not too late to go back.

"I've tried and I've left it cause I thought it was best but look at you. You look sick Adora."

I keep remembering what she said before she left that day. They replay in my head like they're taunting me. I remember and remember and I drink to drown them out but it doesn't work neither does starving yet I don't know why I do both.

“Adora?” I heard Catras voice. Scared almost.

I was frozen in fear thinking maybe this wasn’t the best decision and maybe I should go home but it was too late for that since she already saw me.

“Sorry” I wanted to say sorry but the words came out so hushed it sounded like I said nothing. “I’m sorry.” Maybe it was hard for me to say cause I don’t know what exactly I’m apologizing for. Sorry for being harsh on myself? Sorry I couldn’t get better?

“Adora? Why are you here?” I was still frozen even as she came over to me and waited for an answer.

“Sorry.” She shook her head slightly. “Sorry you weren’t a good enough reason for getting better.” I felt the hot tears stain my cheeks. “Sorry I am the way I am and how I dragged you into this because that definitely wasn’t my intention but I liked it...” I liked her being there. “I liked that you weren’t like everyone else forcing me to be better and forcing me to do things I didn’t wanna do but knew I had to do.” She gently touched my shoulder. “I really really secretly wished you had done something or helped me because I didn't want the help from anyone else but I would had at least tried to accept yours." That's wrong. What I said was wrong. "I wished you'd have stopped me at some point but you didn't and I didn't know if it was good or bad but I couldn't do that to you so I helped myself and separated myself from you." I looked up at her and saw she was also crying but it seemed more sad and heartbreaking.

"You shouldn't have don-"

"No it was what I had to do but then you made that face and I couldn't do that to you. I didn't want to hurt you which is why I grew away from you and why I tried to not get close to you again." I knew it would have been a matter of time before I hurt her again without knowing.

"Because I liked you a lot and didn't know how to show it besides being there to help you but not actually helping."

"But it happened and it was my fault again. So I'm sorry really sorry for hurting you and getting your hopes up." I didn't mean to.

We stood there in silence for a while which actually felt like forever. She opened and closed her mouth wanting to say something but nothing was ever said.

"Why did you lie?"

"I didn't li-"

"When you said you didn't like me?" She scoffed and turned away. "You lied." She turned back to me. "I know you too Adora. Looking away while lying? You're so stupid." She lightly chuckled then sighed. "I know the stuff that happened wasn't your fault. You can't blame yourself. I literally watched you self destruct like an idiot." She slowly walked over to me and grabbed my hands. "I should have gotten you help." That's not what I wanted to hear.

"That's the thing it's not your job to do that. You're young you're supposed to be doing teenager stuff like sneaking out and going to parties and enjoying your last year in high school but I ruined it by mixing you in.” I shook my head and brought my hands back from hers. “I lied to protect myself.” I wiped my eyes and chuckled nervously. “What do you want me to say? I like you? I’ve been liking you but I can’t do that Catra. I can’t-” she hugged me tightly.

“It’s okay now Adora.” She rubbed my back and tried to reassure me but I don’t know how well it was reassuring me. “It’s okay.” But I didn’t believe her. “It’s okay to like me. It’s okay to say you want help even if it’s just to me.” I lightly hugged her back but my crying wouldn’t ease.

“Thank you.” Was all I could say. It’s something I wanted to hear or forcefully should have heard a while ago but was too scared to hear.

“It’s okay.”

End Notes

This story is for me and for my girlfriend because we both used to eat so little but in the end when we got together we found that food is food and it's good for your body so we shouldn't punish our bodies just because we had a bad day.

Please drop by the Archive and comment to let the creator know if you enjoyed their work!